Vienna sensed the great catastrophe that threatened the edifice in Europe

civil and religious, and that he complains especially (which is quite remarkable) that which could) "that the object of those who would have had the power to bring
"Rest was precisely about disturbance and novelty."

It does not appear that such large-scale attacks could have been conceived and executed, without the equally strong and hidden action of some companies whose existence is further proven in another sad way and indirect, that is to say through certain crimes committed since some time; for, if we examine them closely, we will find that they cannot to have been committed without the secret support of any association.

Ultimately, it matters little whether it exists in one form or another.
other, in separate societies, organized into regular corporations, or by a vast and infernal community of systems, views and means; it is enough that it exists, and that it has declared a war to the death to everything we have believed and respected until now.

All his views, all his power were invariably turned against the siege of Rome and against the House of Bourbon, which she regarded as the two keys to the European vault, and yet another times she succeeded as much as a man can succeed (1).

(1) Count Joseph pg MAISTRE, Four unpublished chapters on Russia, p. 101; Paris, Vaton, 1859. This alliance of Judeo-Masonry with the Protestantism, philosophism, and all heresies are masterfully noted by Bishop Gay, in a letter to Claudio Jannet, reproduced by the latter in his book in collaboration with Louis d'Estampes, La Freemasonry and the Revolution, p. 34. We will be thanked for the trans-Write here:

"We cannot read your exposition of the doctrines, the designs, the organization-sation, history, and the occult or public influence of Freemasonry gonnerie, without seeing, and even before the obvious, that under its various names, avee its multiple and changing forms, and despite its divisions and struggles internal organs, this execrable and highly criminal society is but the body consisting of anti-Christianity and the infernal counterfeit of this holy
The Catholic Church, of which Jesus Christ is the invisible head and the Pope the visible leader... |

"It is therefore both formulated and instituted, it is the living and operational rant, with superhuman artifices, a formidable activity, alas! and a prodigious success, this old "mystery of iniquity" which, from the time of Saint Paul already had his place and his influence in the world, and whose last fruit and the sovereign agent must be "the man of sin, the son of perdition", the Antichrist, the great possessed one and Satan's master craftsman. 11 will be, the Apostle continues, opposition, objection, contradiction in per-

He will stand tall, who will be opposed. In his pride and audacity, he will rise up against everything that bears the name of God and is honored as such, extollitur supra omne quod dicitur Deus aut quod colitur, that is to say, it is will surge against the adorable Trinity, one God, creator and lord of all things; against Christ, the eternal Son of the Father and one God with him; against all authority, whether divine or human; against all father-

However, Joseph de Maistre adds:

Illuminism allied itself with all sects because they have anything that suits him; thus, he makes use of the Jansenists of France against the Pope, of the Jacobins against the Kings, and of the Jews against Christianity in general.

It's therefore a monster composed of all the on tees. And, if we don't Let's not kill him, he will kill us.

It is through this multitude of relationships and points of contact that he unity of grace and nature; against all power exercised in the name of the Most High High: priestly, political, civil, or domestic power. He will revolt. against any law, insofar as the law presents itself as being based on a a right superior to man and dominating his will, finally rising by Above all, he will trample things and people underfoot, in the name of humankind, of which he will proclaim himself king, word, and even god, because He will go as far as M, and it is inevitable that he will go there. Saint Paul foretells it. in explicit terms: "This monster will establish its seat in the temple of God, he writes, making himself the center and master of all religion as well as of all the power, and the object of the only cult which, under his reign, will be legally lement permissible, ita ut in templo Dei sedeat ostendens se tanquam sit Deus. |

"And here, looking at the state that we call modern, although..." this is precisely the ancient state, the pagan state, that of the old monarchs-Churches of the East and of the Caesars of Rome, the State such as Freemasonry the dream and the will, as she began and managed to establish it in the world, the State that dominates everything, centralizes and absorbs everything, can do everything, and intends to do so without control, being the nation itself and this people remembers-would be "who does not need," says Rousseau, "to be right in order to validate his "Acts," it must be recognized and confessed that the prophecy is already becoming history.

“Freemasonry is the field that will produce this abominable fruit.” She is the harbinger; she will soon be the mother of this tyrant. deified, reigning on behalf of Hell and inaugurating the State here below. She is preparing everything for the coming and triumph of the Antichrist; she He smoothes the paths for him, wins over the minds of men in advance, and gains his favor. their sympathy; it creates its resources for him and forms his in every country political organization; it popularizes its principles and formulates its dogma; it propagates its morality, which, starting from lies, leads to the perversion; it establishes its teaching and ensures its monopoly; She recruits his army; she provides for his scientific apparatus. fiction, literature, art; she builds his theaters; she erects his platforms; they foreshadow its legislation and invent its language; it She has her press all ready; finally, in building her throne, she knows destined to one day become an altar, she primarily shapes her people for him, this a blinded, degraded and servile people, which is what he needs to be acclaimed, followed and obeyed.

“Father Deschamps writes, at the beginning of his book, that he is philosophy of contemporary history; this title is all too justified. As it is

is particularly dangerous, because he is served in this way by a a multitude of men who do not know him.

The Jews just mentioned deserve special attention from all governments, but especially from that of Russia, which has many of them in its "breast"; one should not be surprised if Europe's great enemy favors them in such a visible way, They already own huge properties in Tuscany and Alsace; They already have a capital in Paris, and another in Rome, hence the chief The Church was expelled. Everything suggests that their money, their hatred and their talents are at the service of the great conspirators (1).

'The prophetic note is in the following lines:

If the Russians, who are somewhat prone to joke about everything (we don't say not at all) they also joke with this serpent, no people will be more cruelly bitten (2).

It is impossible to understand the work and spirit of secret societies without the understanding of the mystery of Jesus Christ, which is the divine foundation of all things, the great question of the centuries, the sign posed to the contradiction and the principal, albeit indirect, cause of disputes and wars that fill history; likewise, if one ignores the mysteries of these nefarious societies, it is impossible to explain what, since the alleged Reform, but especially since the first half of the last century, has has happened in France and around the world and is still unfolding before our eyes.

"Ah! How wise the Holy See was, and has remained so ever since! How wise it has shown and continues to show faithfulness to his mission of fatherhood and universal charity, when, since 1738, through the mouth of Clement XII, followed in this by all his successors up to Pius IX and Leo XIII, he has, relentlessly denounced these infamous societies to sovereigns and peoples alike. as the great peril of our time and a diabolical power that threat to invade everything with the firm intention of destroying everything that holds Ia A society standing tall. Alas! It has been the same with the vicars of Christ as with Christ himself. who said: "The judgment," that is to say, what will serve as his theme and For too many, it will become so dreadful, "judgment is..." that light has come into the world," this light which is the witness- the gage that I render to the truth, "and men have better loved the dark- "They were only light, because their works were evil." We have not The Holy See was not listened to; not only its aver- his troubles and his alarms, but the sentences of excommunication with which he struck the leaders, members, and instigators of these shadowy associations Nations, kings, and peoples continued to march along their paths, carrying, without always being aware of it, the shameful yoke imposed by the Lodges. Everyone knows what became of the kings as a result; we are in learning what becomes of peoples.

(1) Joseph Pe Maistre, lib. cit., p. 111. On page 128, the author concludes by saying: "That the sect which uses everything, seems at this moment to be drawing a "A large Jewish party, which should be viewed with great suspicion."

(2) Joseph DE MAISTRE, lib. cit., p. 142.

And in a letter dated June 26, 1810, Peron, his first In thought, Joseph de Maistre wrote:

The Enlightenment in Germany is nothing other than Calvinism Consequently, that is to say, rid of the dogmas he had retained out of whim. In short, there is only one sect, that's what no man The state must neither ignore nor forget. This sect, which is simultaneously a and several, surround Russia, or, to put it better, penetrate it everywhere, and the attack right down to its deepest roots. She does not need, as in the 16th century, to ascend the pulpit, to raise armies and publicly incite the people. His means Nowadays they are more skillful: she saves the noise for last. He doesn't Today, he needs the ear of children of all ages and patience. sovereigns. She therefore has everything she desires. She already has attacked your clergy, and the harm is perhaps greater than one might think. believes (1).

t {

The Illuminism of the 18th century was transformed into Judeo- 20th-century Freemasonry. The Bolshevik and Jewish serpent has "cruelly bit Russia." For the rest of the world, the Judeo-Masonry still only uses occult means. inspired by hatred, conditioned by cunning, hidden by Hypocrisy, but let us beware: "The fall of the Tsar has already makes noise"; what will become of the fall of the world, if it does not Did not avert the Jewish peril in time?

To conclude the study of Judeo-Masonic Lodges, Let us not forget that the Grand Orient of France was consecrated to them. particularly favorable. We have proof of this in his consent and its Bulletin.

On September 27, 1873, at the festive gathering of its 100th birthday, the speaker, F... December-Alonnier, summarized in Twenty-eight pages on the history of the Grand Orient of France. We We read this passage there:

However, the Grand Orient had not lost sight of the general ideas large and varied works that have always characterized his work, and, in a In a circular dated August 9, 1814, he criticized the non-admission of Israelites to Freemasonry, an intolerant measure that is still observed today in foreign Lodges, particularly in Germany (2). T

(1) Joseph pe Maistre, Tid. cit, p. 183.
(2) Bulletin of the G.'. O.'. of France, year 1873, p. 480.
Before the Grand Orient of France, the same complaints had been made.

As early as 1846, the Grand Orient had protested against "the position "Exceptional of the Jewish Freemasons in Prussia." The report is from F.'. Charassin, dated April 3rd. The speaker states the Regulations of the three Grand Lodges of Old Prussia:

Visitors will be admitted to all work, except for... Deliberative lodges, the Christian Freemasons proving by an authentic diplomatick that they belong to a recognized Lodge.

by the G.'. L.'. of England. We read, in fact, in the Almanac of the Freemasonry of Brother CLAVEL (year 1847, p. 113):

“At the quarterly meeting of the Grand Lodge of England, held On December 3, 1845, the Count of Zetland, Grand Master, informed the brothers that he had approached the Grand Lodges of Prussia so that they might admit into their midst and have admitted into the Lodges within their jurisdiction, the Jewish Freemasons holding valid diplomas issued from the Grand Lodge of England. The Grand Master added that he no response had yet been received, but that, if the expected solution was not in accordance with the principles of religious tolerance and brotherhood universal, which form the basis of the Masonic institution, he did not failwould not be fulfilling the duties of his office; that he would give the order to the representative the Grand Lodge in Berlin to immediately sever all relations with the Masonic authorities of this country, and that he would invite these authorities to cease being represented at the Grand Lodge of England."

In the 1848 Almanac, the question is addressed in greater detail. either from the point of view of the Great League of England or from that of the Supreme Council of France, in 1846. Here is this very important article (F. Crave., (Almanac of Freemasonry, year 1848, p. 67):

The Jewish Freemasons. — Nothing has yet been precisely changed in Prussia's stance on the situation of Jewish Freemasons. Access to the Lodges continues. to be refused to these brothers under the regulations, although the majority Prussian Freemasons be willing to put an end to a state of affairs so abnormal. In any case, we will report some incidents new and very valuable events that have occurred or have come to our knowledge since the publication of our last Almanac, in order to to keep our readers informed of all the circumstances of this serious affair.

The following protest was addressed, on behalf of the Earl of Zetland, Grand Master of English Freemasonry, to the Grand Master of the Grand Royal York Lodge of Friendship, the only one of the three Masonic authorities of Berlin, with which the Grand Lodge of England maintained relations:

"To the Most Venerable Grand Master of the Grand Lodge Royal York, A Friendship, by the Most Venerable Brother Bier, Grand Secretary, To the community Invention of his lordship of December 15th last, this response announcedglove that awaited the existing laws of the Grand Lodge Royal York, A Friendship, the only Christian brothers duly initiated by regular Lodges are eligible to be admitted to the work,

"It seems that all Lodges of the obedience are required to conform"

This was the exclusion of Jewish Freemasons from French Lodges. Here are the complaints of F.'. Charassin:

But righteous pride, which seems to compel you not to suffer of an attack on our Masonic nationality.' This deposit is placed under your vigilance. by the elections of your Fr.'. is nothing in our opinion compared to this other deposit to which the Great Archer of the Universe has from all eternity entrusted the guard at the heart of all Freemasonry on earth — I mean the moral principle of the entire order.

If there is, in fact, anything clear to us, it is that I

to abide by this law, and to exclude, as visitors, the brothers of the Jewish faith, although these brothers may be holders of certificates from the Grand Lodge of England, and be, in their capacity, in all respects inexclusive, their Religious belief is therefore the only reason that makes them reject it.

"At all times, the Grand Lodge of England has proclaimed the aptistudy of the generality of men becoming Freemasons, making neither distinction or exclusion on the grounds of religious faith, a matter in which she never goes beyond the points on which everyone agrees. That's why she doesn't sanction and doesn't recognize certain so-called Masonic meetings, — religious assemblies — particular groups — which were formed in various places. From these aggregatorstions, the Grand Lodge does not concern itself; but for its laws and by its constant practice, she is warned against the introduction, in her Lodges, with all emblems or decorations indicative of a particular belief, judging these decorations or emblems likely to be considered as offensive demonstrations, in opposition to the true spirit of Freemasonry. The Grand Masters of England have always applied to maintaining the universalism of Freemasons; and, each Whenever the opportunity arose, they called for cooperation in this regard. ratio of the other Grand Lodges, without however claiming any right of direct intervention in their government. But, when members of English Lodges, legally admitted and holders of diplomas from the Grand Lodge of England, duly vested with its seal, are not recognized and, on the contrary, rejected solely because of their faith religious, so it is an imperative duty for the grand master to do respect the rights, honor and integrity of the body on which it was called upon to preside, and whose branches extend over all parts of the inhabited world.

"To fulfill this duty, the Grand Master of England protests" against the refusal to recognize the legitimate children of a A legally constituted English lodge, and, at the same time, he is forced to recall from his post the very venerable Brother Knight Esser, as Representative of England to the Grand Lodge Royal York, A Friendship, – from Berlin.

"The communication from the very venerable Brother Bier, Grand Secretary, dated March 2nd, states that the Grand Lodge Royal York, A P'mitid, has long preoccupied with the question of the admission of non-Christian brothers; but that circumstances which are connected with the protectorate of all the

a particular characteristic that distinguishes Masonic morality from all others is the universality of the great sentiments that form its core. Which elevates this morality above all other moralities, that is because its Divine inspirations envelop the beating of every heart and the movements of all minds; it is that it does not include, in its infinite dimensions, neither jealousy between sects, nor competition

Prussian Lodges, by His Royal Highness the Prince of Prussia, Pont forced to postpone any decision on this point; and that she hopes that The Grand Lodge of England will not consider the resolution not to admit that Christian brothers, like the abandonment of a principle constantly recognized by her, and will understand that the motive that determines the Great Royal York Lodge not to deviate from a long-established rule is the desire to maintain the existing mutual relations of friendship today between the Lodges of Prussia.

"The Grand Master of England does not need to worry about the reasons that determine the Grand Lodge Royal York, To Friendship, to conform to prescriptions of the rule invoked. If he acted in this way, if he could hold Taking into account the difficulties you are in, there would be, from his part, abandonment of Masonic principles to contribute to a system religious exclusion, and a failure to fulfill a duty to allow that the diplomas from his Grand Lodge were declared worthless.

"The Grand Master of England deeply regrets that the circumstances– These actions must interrupt, even temporarily, the intimate union that has hitherto reigned between the two Grand Lodges, and he anxiously awaits the He hopes that in the not-too-distant future, these close relations can be restored. blis with honor and advantage for both authorities, and for the benefit of the universal Masonic family; and he has confidence that, in the inter- valley, the fraternal feelings between the Freemasons of the two countries, individual- dually, they will not be weakened. The grand master orders me to add that he communicated to the Grand Lodge the opinion expressed above, as well that the measure he was forced to adopt, and that the Grand Lodge there unanimously gave its full assent.

"The Grand Master of England, in his own name and in the name of the Grand Lodge, nevertheless asks you to believe in its highest consideration and to his brotherly affection, although he deeply deplores the circumstances which, unfortunately, temporarily prevents the usual interactions.

"Allow me to say, with all due respect,
Most venerable grand master,

Your faithful and devoted brother,
William H. Warts,
"Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of England."

"If we were to believe the Israelite Archives, things would be in Ia on the verge of taking a satisfactory turn, as a result of the negotiations initiated by the head of one of the French Masonic authorities. Here is what the document we are discussing says on this subject: "At the feast of the order of the Supreme Council of France, which was celebrated in Paris on December 29 1846, Mr. Duke Decazes, Grand Referendary of the Chamber of Peers and between families, provinces, industrial or political nations, neither rivalries, nor hatreds, nor privileges, nor prejudices of strength or race, Neither belief nor color. Its broad flag, from pole to pole, must fly above all the various flags; it is displayed on the the waving banners of Muhammad, like those of Moses, on the Roman cross as on that of Moscow, on that of Geneva as Commander of the Scottish Rite of France, announced to the assembly that he had

I recently had a conference with the Prince of Prussia regarding the refusal that the Prussian Lodges, acting on his orders, admit the Freemasons Jewish Freemasons at their work. Duke Decazes, in this conference, warmly pleaded the cause of reason, justice, and fraternity, and was the eloquent interpreter of the Supreme Council of France, whose pro-
The testimony was so vigorous and so remarkable. The Prussian grand master was, it seems, shaken in his conviction for the first time and asked for time to reflect further before changing its first determination. May the spirit of this principle finally open itself to the true light. May his ideas be freed from the fog of which...
False religious ideas obscure it. For it is known that the French Lodges-French, following the energetic example of the Grand Lodge of London, did not would not be far from decreeing reprisals against all Lodges Prussian lodges that refused to admit Jewish Freemasons into their ranks equipped with foreign diplomas."

The conversion of the Prince of Prussia to religious tolerance would be without contradicts a pivotal event for Freemasonry; but, one must not
To deny it to oneself is unfortunately far from certain; and, on the other hand
For our part, we fear that the editor of the Archives may have been misled into error concerning the conference of Duke Decazes with the pro- prince tecteur. Indeed, the printed minutes of the meeting of December 29 1846, which is being discussed here, does not contain a single word relating to this subject;
and our personal information didn't tell us anything that gives us to think that there was an involuntary or deliberate omission. On the contrary, it
It has come to our attention that the negotiation of the Supreme Council with The Prince of Prussia continues, and a new agent has been appointed.
recently appointed to activate the solution.

“Moreover, the cause of the Jewish Freemasons is far from hopeless,” We claim, incidentally, the honor of having argued it on first, in 1833, in the Revue de la Franc-Maçonnerie. Our voice has
It has since found many echoes; almost all the Grand Lodges of Europe and America voiced protests, and, on the various points in Germany, many workshops, finally opening their eyes, gave access to their work to brothers whom they, too, had previously treated as outcasts. We refer in this regard to the examples -which we quoted on page 118 of our Almanac last year. Add-tones that the Birkenfeld Lodge, Fidelity to duty, of dependence on the Grand Lodge of Hamburg, has very recently ee an Israelite
-on the proposal of a Christian minister.

"But a fact of even greater importance is the discussion" solemn ceremony that took place at the Masonic Congress in Strasbourg, in which on that of London, on the Ganges as on the Tiber, on the Amazons as on the Ohio; beneath its undulating shadow, far away projected, must one day, amidst the erased distinctions, live as brothers the Indian and the Tartar, the American and the Arab, the Greek and the Scythian, the Negro and Roman; and, all together, united in one heart, guided by the same spirit, finally forming the common consciousness of humankind.

It is this grandeur, this generality in thoughts and feelings-which, without a doubt, constitutes the very essence of our doctrines.

Venerable Masters of Lodges from all parts of Germany were seated in large numbers.
Magne. We are copying the minutes:

“One member proposes to formulate a complaint against Lodges that do not recognize not the Israelite brothers a protest which, although written in terms moderates, make them understand how highly we judge their conduct opposed to truly Masonic doctrines. Another member thinks,
On the contrary, this protest must be written in forceful terms.
in order to condemn, as they deserve, the principles of religious fanaticism that some men would like to impose within Freemasonry.

“Brother Krebs, Venerable Master of the Lodge William of the Rising Sun, to Stuttgart, urges Congress to consider that a sufficiently large
Many Prussian Lodges share our convictions regarding the spirit retrograde of their Grand Orient; that, even in this latter body, of
There have already been heated discussions on this issue, and that once he did not
It was only by one vote that victory was secured for the emancipation side.
citation ct of largely humanitarian ideas.

“Brother Wendler, Venerable Master of the Minerva Lodge with the three palm trees, to Leipzig, gives the assurance that the principles of our order will find always within him, as well as within all the Freemasons of Northern Germany,
"Champion assets for their support."

Other members of Congress, and particularly the Meyer brothers, representatives of the Frankfurt Eagle Lodge, in Frankfurt am Main; Weil, from the same town, etc., successively take the floor in the same meaning. Two protest projects, submitted in turn to the approval
The Congressional amendments are rejected one after the other: unanimous on the substance,
The speakers vary only in their wording. Finally, regarding the proposal
The president, Brother Silberman, referred to the Congress of 1847.

The decision to be made on the matter, and the reasons for the postponement in these terms: |

"Whereas, either by the speeches that have been made on the exclusionsion of some Lodges in Germany, men not professing the Christian worship, but otherwise offering all the moral guarantees, discourse who were received with enthusiastic marks of approval; either by the In the oral discussion that took place, Congress demonstrated in a clear manner aunt that he disapproves of the principles of intolerance that still prevail in some Lodges in Germany...; considering that the time remaining an Congress is too restricted to be able to devote its work to completing its work. creating more time for an incidental question to the detriment of the ques-

Destroy this great character, and Freemasonry, dethroned, no longer has... nothing to teach the world, nothing left for it to practice; its Symbols that have become empty no longer have meaning or revelation; and its little Companies, scattered across the world and without purpose, no longer have any advances to offer. the image of the great human society; they are no longer like so many gentle concerts practicing and preluding the harmony of lenseems, and even striving, from this day forward, to achieve in a world doomed, the happiness promised to the world to come (4).

These grievances clearly reflect the humanitarian nature of the Freemasonry, uniting all men in a Universal religion, deist, pantheistic, or atheist. Plus Freemasonry... The further one moves away from God, the wider His doors are opened. to the Jewish community, that is to say, the more it becomes the Judeo-Masonic-Nonsense. Also the question of admitting Jews into the Lodges was it resumed on July 8, 1869, then on April 20, 1870, with items on the agenda; considering, moreover, that such and such wording could not change the moral effect of the Congress's opinion, and that, While fully agreeing on the substance of the issue, its members were not disagreements only on form: Congress postpones the drafting of the resolution to to comment on this incidental issue.

"Thus, as we can see, ideas work, and truth and justice do not may fail to triumph. It is now a matter of time and of perseverance. We must not forget that nothing is as tenacious as a prejudice. But, if we consider the immense results obtained in fourteen years, are we not legitimately justified in thinking that definitive success is next ? "

"P.S. — What we have just read was composed when two articles of Newspapers have fallen into our hands. Here are the articles:

"The main Lodge of Breslau (the writer probably means of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Silesia, dependent on the Grand Lodge (of Germany, of Berlin) resolved to no longer apply the dispositions of the statutes that opposed non-Christian persons women, and particularly Israelites, were admitted into the assemblies Masonic lodges. The Prince of Prussia, protector of all the Lodges of the kingdom, adhered to this resolution (Morning Chronicle, June 5, 1847).

"According to a very recent decision, the Masonic Lodges of Prussia are henceforth authorized to admit to their work all the French Freemasons without distinction of religion (Week of July 11, 1847).

"We have strong reasons to believe that the facts recorded in These two articles are inaccurate, if not completely erroneous; therefore, do not include them. "We reproduce ourselves only with all reservations."

(1) Bulletin of the G.:. O.:. 1844 1847, p. 260. CT. p. 239.

report of F.'. Poulle (1), and, on May 26, 1878, F.'. Caubet could say at the installation of the Lodge of Passy:

French Freemasonry distinguishes itself in a way through its spirit. very particular to most foreign Freemasonries, especially of German Freemasonry, of English Freemasonry, of the Mason-United States mania.

While some German Lodges refuse initiation to Israelites lites, for the sole reason that they are Israelites; while the Freemasons white people in the United States of America stubbornly refuse to open their doors to men of color, for the sole reason that they are men of color; while English Freemasonry imposes on all visitor, before admitting him to his work, the inquisitorial obligation to affirm one's belief in God and in the immortality of the soul; while that the Grand Lodge of Ireland breaks fraternal relations with the Grand Orient of France, because the Grand Orient of France has solemnly-proclaimed in his last Convent, as a fundamental principle The Institution's core principle is absolute freedom of conscience; Freemasonry

French, completely free from all prejudice, admits into its midst all honest men who come to her, regardless of their color of their skin, regardless of their religious or philosophical beliefs physics, whatever opinions they may hold on the origin and the end of things concerning God and the immortality of the soul.

Through its principles and its admirable organization, Freemasonry French therefore deserves the respect of all progressive men (2),

Moreover, the Judeo-Masonic union became so close that, on December 27, 1879, the Jewish Professional School awarded its prizes on rue Cadet, under the presidency of a Jew, F. Dalsace. The word to the Grand Rabbi Isidor deserves to be reported: po

Listen, my friends, there is a coincidence in this meeting that... strikes, and I want to tell you: Do you know where you are? Where are we? We are in the Freemasons' halls. They were kind enough to make them available to us: I am sending them the expression with gratitude.

The Freemasons! What hasn't been said against them? They've been called Disturbers of the peace, the impious, the atheists. I don't know

---

(1) Bulletin of the G.'. O.'. 1870-1871, p. 314. Cf. p. 806, The Vow in Favor Israelites persecuted in Moldavia and Wallachia; and p. 880: "The Jews before Prussian Freemasonry.

(2) Bulletin of the G.'. O.'. 1878, p. 98. Cf. p. 428, "The thanks of the "Jew and F.°. Ascher to the G.*. O.°. in the name of Romania."

What else? They've been bombarded with misery, slandered, persecuted... cut them down. We tried to drive them out, to exterminate them, like us,

But they are here, standing just like us.

They are, as you know, neither rebels nor atheists. I I know many; there are even some among us in this meeting, and I He assures you that they are men of heart and honor. preach, like us, tolerance and charity; they preach, like We, fraternity, work, human solidarity; and that's why We live, each and every one of us; and that is why we live despite and against all odds.

Ah! my friends, brotherhood cannot be stifled.

You can't kill the truth! 1 © | ©. + = J

I made it my pious duty to collect these words, said the F.". Dalsace, and I believe I am filling another one by faithfully opparing them to the Bar Council.

The Council thanks Mr. Dalsace for this summary and decides that it will be inserted in the Official Bulletin (1).

The Judeo-Masonic union is therefore indestructible. cemented in France. Does that mean it doesn't exist in Germany? SS

German Freemasonry initially presents two extreme parties. On the extreme right, the three Grand Lodges of Old Prussia, called "Christian Lodges". All their Christians Christianism consists of not admitting non-Christians, that is- that is, those who are not baptized (2), They exclude from this Jews do it, as do Muslims and Buddhists.

---

(1) Bulletin of the G.'. O.°. 1879, p. 443. — Note for the record: One Report by Brother Dalsace, a Jew, on behalf of the Jews of Romania, Bulletin of the G.°. O0.'. 1875, p. 128. A circular from the Central Committee of the United Alliance- Jewish community for the Jews of Russia, donation of 600 francs from the G.'. O.'. thanks from the Alliance, Bulletin of 1881, pp. 72 and 192; toast which recalls the decree of Brother Crémieux emancipating the Jews of Algeria name of humanity, Bulletin 1883, p. 664. It is not without interest for the the question that concerns us is to note the names of two Rothschilds in the 1842 Almanac of F.'. CLAVEL, p. 95:

"Supreme Council of France. — In its session of December 29, 1846, The Supreme Council announced to the assembled Central Grand Lodge that it had promoted to the 33rd degree the brothers Baron de Delley d'Avaise, Marquis de Chasseloup-Laubaf, Baron Anselme de Rothschild, J. Barbier and Genevay; at number 32, the brothers Charles Mayer, Baron de Rothschild and Pautret; at number 51, the Fresnel brothers, Vanderheym Weil, Jousserandot and Duplanty; finally, to the 30th degree, the brothers Don Pedro Santana, Admiral Bruat, Quantin, Gay, Dumoulin and X. Loriaux.

(2) See D. BRAUWEILER, The Masonic Danger, in the Allgemeine Randschau, April 12, 1918. i

THERE

On the far left are the areligious Lodges; they are open to all men and they depend on the Great Lodge: At the Rising Sun. The following article, which we quoted last year in the International Review of Societies secrets (1) clearly exposes this triple division of the German Freemasonry in Christian Lodges, in humanist Lodges nuns and in areligious Lodges.

Two trends can be distinguished in Freemasonry: the trend Christian and humanitarian tendencies. In Christian Freemasonry, The candidate is required to belong to a Christian denomination, because The entire ritual, the entire ceremony, everything is based on this requirement.

Humanitarian Freemasonry, on the other hand, accepts non-Christians, but it also presupposes belief in God among the aspirants. as seen in the Old Charges. However, there are today thousands of men of intellectual worth, who, after a struggle their most agonizing inner struggles have led them to a cosmic conception freer, who do not determine their actions according to a supra- Being earthly, inaccessible to our knowledge, nor to hope and the fear of a posthumous fate. Old Freemasonry remains foreign to this great struggle of cosmic conceptions: she refuses to remove certain organizational details that are not related with our time, and which were perfectly appropriate to the past. I] has made many attempts, at the most diverse times, to To bring Freemasonry into harmony with the times; these attempts have always failed against the rigorously conservative leadership of German Grand Lodges, and nothing can be expected from them for an indefinite period of time.

What is surprising then if the noblest minds of our time feel no sympathy for Freemasonry and look at it How is a corrupt institution? The men who direct destinies of the nation do not belong to Freemasonry, nor do they belong to it. will not do so as long as it lacks a principle of organizational development. It is clear that Freemasonry is losing ground. This fact is visible in public life. Thousands of our contemporaries groan under the weight of the chains imposed upon them by an orthodoxy all-powerful, but they dare not shake them for fear of losing their instead, to plunge their families into misery... That's why in In 1907, in Nuremberg, a number of men, animated by a noble enthusiastic about this cause, they gathered together to form a new a system of Lodges that would develop independently of the Grand Lodges

---

(1) Rev. Int. of Socs. Sec., t. IX, year. 1920, p. 459.

German lodges. Thus was born the Masonic Lodge: To the Rising Sun. Its aim is to form a link between men of intellect, of high rank intellectual value which, in recent decades, has been maintained at the gap within Freemasonry: they will form the freethinking elite of our time... This League does not require any profession of faith from its members religious, it even admits those who have a religion: Christians, Jews, Buddhists, etc.

The FZAS is a League of Masonic Lodges for Men reputable free men who reject all dogmatism in the the search for knowledge of what exists, what resists & all intolerance. The League and its Lodges have composed themselves, to demonstrate their trend, a simplified ritual without abandoning the forms that act on state of mind.

As for the exposition of morality, it is a purely social morality that has no other ideal than to make relationships safe and pleasant (1).

The Grand Lodge of the Rising Sun was almost excommunicated. by certain Masonic newspapers in Germany for having soHieité its recognition of the Grand Orient of France since war. This prudishness stems from an alliance with Freemasonry. French with the advanced parties of Prussian socialism, and, A recent article congratulated the three Grand Lodges. of Old Prussia to remain faithful to their Christian principles and Germans by separating from the Freemasonic League To the Rising Sun and to "hold firm against all attempts to Judaize and de-Germanize German Freemasonry order » (2),

---

(1) Die Leuehte, March 31, 1913, p. 46. This article is written based on the pro-Propaganda book of the League of the Rising Sun (2nd edition), 1913. We read in the Anhalt-Staatsanzeiger newspaper of Dessau (April 24) 1913), under the heading "Franc-Macgennerie", the following note: "There is In a short time, as we were asked to announce, it was formed at Dessau, a circle called Sirius, dependent on the Masonic League

At the Rising Sun, from Nuremberg; this is a veritable Masonic secession. nique, whose members aim to realize Masonic ideals by means other than those followed by the Grand Lodges. The Freemason- The current system needs to be reformed. The New Freemasonry in the Sun Levant aims to establish the unity of all systems and at the same time the purity of primitive Freemasonry, under the direction of complete freedom of belief, conscience, and spirit.” Furthermore, Freemasonry Au Rising Sun would have nothing to do with monism, deism and other "isms (sic) and it would not be directed against existing Freemasonry."

(2) The Reichswart of Berlin, April 9, 1921.

That the old Lodges of Old Prussia reject the defilement legal illusion of the presence of Jews, content to simply endure Their influence is good. But between them and the Eclectic League- At the Rising Sun, all the humanist Lodges are counted. nitarians who do not impose the same decree of ostracism on Israel cism. A chapter by Doctor Wichtl: "The Role of the Jews "in Freemasonry," clarifies this question and explains the explosion of rage within German Freemasonry upon the publication of the book, so rich in documents and So full of interest: World Freemasonry, Revolution world, universal Republic (1):

(1) D' Wicuri, Weltfreimaurerei, Weltrevolution, Weltrepublik, ch. VIII, p. 53-65; Munchen, J.-F. Lehmanns Verlag, 1919.

Let us add the list of clandestine Lodges into which falls The League of the Rising Sun. These Lodges were open to Jews and sometimes founded by Jews. We extract this list from the AP book EBERHARDT: "Freemason lodges of a new date in the last quarter of a century”; Leipzig, Bruno Zechel, 1914. After the enumeration German Lodges recognized by the League of Grand Lodges of Germany Magne, the author lists the clandestine lodges:

1° The Grand Lodge of Frans-Masons of Prussia (abbrev. G. Fr. L. v. Pr) and of Emperor Frederick to the loyalty of the League (Kaiser Friedrich zur Bundetreue) founded by the government's close advisor Profr. By Hermann Settegast, in Berlin, in the year 1892.

2° The Independent Masonic Order of Humanists (abbreviation UFO d. Hum.) (Unabhangige Freimaurer-Orden der Humanisten).

The Independent Order of Freemasons (abbreviated UFO), Unabhangige Freimaurer Orden, also initially called the Order of Independent Brethren (abbrev. UBO), Unabhangige Bruder Orden.

The Grand Masonic Lodge Emperor Frederick of Tolerance (abbreviation G. Fr. L. Ksr Fried z. D.), Grosse Freimaurer Lodge Kaiser Friedrich zur Duldsamkeit.

3° The General Citizens' Lodge (abbreviation ABL), Aligemeine Burger Lodge, founded by the merchant Nathan Perls, & Berlin, in 1892, 1895 and 1903. |

The Reformed Civic Masonic Order (abbreviation RBFO), Reformierter Burgerlicher Freimaurer Orden.

The International Union of Lodges (abbreviated ILU), Internationale Logen Union, founded by the bookseller O. Hemfler, in Berlin, in 1896, 1901, 1903.

4° The Grand Masonic Lodge for Germany of the Order of Illumined, (Grosse Freimaurer Loge fur Deutschland des Illumaten Ordens).

The Swedenborg Rite for Germany “%Swedenborg Ritus fur Germany).

The Scottish Rite of Memphis and Misraïlm in Germany (Schottische- Memphis und Misraïm Ritus in Deutschland).

The Order of the Eastern Templars in Germany (Orientalischen Templer

Freemasonry had barely been founded when the Jews tried to infiltrate it. gaining a foothold. This was no easy task, because, at the beginning- Cement, admission to the Lodges was forbidden to Jews. This was It was only around 1780 that two Lodges of They were Jewish, and they were not recognized by the other Lodges. But the the number of voices calling for admission continued to increase; Also, in 1786, von Kortum publicly declared himself in favor of this admission. The Eclectic League of Freemasons, founded in 1783, at Frankfurt am Main accepted Jews from its very beginning; in 1811, for For reasons unknown to us, she took measures prescribing the exclusion of non-Christians; but, from 1844 onwards, it returned to its

First principles, that is to say, the admission of Jews. Today the most important and highly regarded jobs in the League Eclectic shops are almost exclusively occupied by Jews; a few Names prove it: the merchant Ph. Hertz is Grand Secretary; among the guarantors of friendship from other Lodges and the Masters in the chair, we

\

Orden in Deutschland, founded by the journalist Reuss, in Berlin and Londres, in 1896, 1901, 1902, 1912.

5° The Autonomous Order of the Brothers of Truth (abbreviation SOBDW, Selbstandige Order der Bruder der Wahrheit), founded by the merchant Adolf Kohn, in Breslau, in 1900.

6° The Grand Symbolic Lodge of the Scottish Rite in Germany, prelater the Grand Masonic Lodge of Germany, which succeeded iteven at the League of Lodges of Saint Matthew of the ABL, in Leipzig (of the Allgemeine Burger Lodge).

7° The General League of Freemasons on the monist basis (Allgemeine Freimaurerbund auf monistischer Grundlage).

The Masonic League of the Rising Sun (abbreviated FBLAS), founded by General agent CH Loberich, in Nuremberg, in 1906 and 1907.

8° The League of Johannic Lodges working freely (Bund frei arbeitender Johannislogen).

9° The Grand Lodge: Alemic Masonic League (Great Lodge Freimaurerbund Deutschland), in Breslau, founded by the consulate secretary in Mr. Tannert is retiring.

I] must add to this some unions that have separated from the previous ones:

From the Independent Order of Freemasons came:

The League and Grand Lodge Socrates to Self-Knowledge (Bunder und Grossloge Sokrates zur Selbsterkenntnis).

The Grand Lodge of Prussia II (Grosse-Loge von Preussen II).

From the General Lodge of Citizens & Berlin emerged:

The International Order of Independent Freemasons. (Abbreviation: IOU) Fr) (Internationale Orden der Unabhangigen Freimaurer) which melted with the League of Independent Lodges of Saint-Jean (abbreviated BU St-J. L), in Berlin. bs

The Union of Reformed Lodges of Saint John (abbreviation VRJL) (Verein

Let us find, for example, the Moritz Lowenhaar Brothers, Doctor Willy Levin, Doctor Max Lévy, the merchant Horkheinier, E. Rosenberg, Carl Kohn, Max Wertheimer, Bernhard Seeligmann, Docteur Auerbach, Max Oppenheimer, and many others. There is no doubt that the Jewish Freemasons are "the most active and most persevering, and they went to extraordinary lengths to introto conduct in the Lodges; thus Brother Abraham Elissen, of the League Eclectic, he vehemently criticized, as early as 1846, the Grand Lodges of the Ancient Prussia for their fidelity to the "Christian principle" and their persistence to exclude Jews. It goes without saying that the Lodges which were already opening their The doors opened to the Jews received the highest praise from F.'. Elissen.

In Hungary, the founding of new Lodges dates from the end of the the 1860s; from the middle of 1860, the French-Jewish Freemasons held the leadership, but the Christians deserted in The Lodges mass, however without a struggle. Today, the Jews form the a large majority in Hungarian Freemasonry, and they are almost exclusively Jews hold the presidency there. That's what we learned this from a former Freemason who entered the Lodge in 1871 and became Master there. in the Pulpit, then Lodge secretary and delegate of the Grand Lodge; but, In 1876, after forming an opinion based on what he had seen, he left (Freemasonry) and obtained an "honorable cover." This The character is Karl Koller, who later became editor of Vatertand (Fatherland) of Vienna.

Once they had taken control of the Lodges, the Jews soon resorted to attacks against those who wanted to oppose their rapid and systematic rise to power matic. The Hungarian Grand Lodge of Saint John (Blue Freemasonry) launched a campaign against anti-Semitism; on this occasion, the F. Julius Goldenberg, one of those who preached the struggle, supported that the most urgent task of Freemasonry was to fight antisemitism. The Grand Orient of Hungary, as representative of the High-Degree Freemasonry, for its part, launched a circular against antisemitism (1882). It was at that time that the famous trial der Reformierten Johannis logen) which merged with the Grand Lodge at the Three Palm Trees (Grossloge zu den 3 Palmen), in Hamburg.

The General Citizens' Lodge, in Leipzig (Allgemeine Burger Loge), later became, as we have seen, the League of Saint Matthew, etc.

The General Citizens' League (Allgemeine Burger-Loge), in Darmstadt.

From the Reformed Civic Order of Freemasons (Reformierte Burgerliche Freimaurer-Orden), from Berlin, were released:

The Reformed Order of the French-Mucons (Reformierte Freimaurer Orden), in Aschersleben.

The German League of Lodges (Deutsche Loÿgenbund), in Munich.

IH should also mention the Lodges which have no connection with other-three workshops and which call themselves or used to call themselves independent (Unabharigige) isolated ow (AHeinsteheñde).

Tirza-Eszlar caused a great stir; Hungarian Freemasonry believed
It is opportune and advantageous to address this to the Deputy Attorney General, Eduard Sieffers, a letter of thanks for the way he had "taken up the defense of the law".

No Lodge without Jews! This word from the Freemasonic Acacia on the
The situation in French Lodges is triply true for the Lodges Hungarian. However, to avoid misunderstandings, let's say in advance that Acacia (1908, no. 62) (1) does not intend to pronounce a judgment of

(1) We read in the Acacia, I, 98: “The FF.°. who have undertaken to do granting Brother Augagneur the support of Freemasonry, were led to attacking Protestantism, by lumping all the churches together, in order to They fought them, and they weren't even afraid to include the Jews. This has
It was still a mistake. The Jews were completely uninvolved in the debate.
They do not proselytize, do not send missions anywhere, and do not
They ask only one thing: to be left alone. To attack them,
It risks alienating them from us. They too are rich and influential in the Republican government; moreover, we have many of them among us.
There is perhaps not a Lodge in Paris where you cannot find two or three of them;
often more.

"Oh! Freemason Jews aren't fanatics, not even..."
Believers, they are, for the most part, freethinkers; but he
It is important to take into account the much stronger family spirit among them than in the rest of the nation, and of their racial solidarity, consenecessary consequence of their minority status. We heard, during the case Dreyfus, Jews declare: "I am no more Jewish than you are Catholic; it's been thirty years since I last set foot in a temple;
but I would consider it cowardly to abandon the members of the race I come from, when they are persecuted."

Given this spirit of Jewish solidarity, it would be dangerous, not only from an external point of view, but also from that of peace within our Lodges, to attack their Church. This, moreover, has not nothing in common with the Catholic Church, since it promotes liberalism further than the most advanced Protestantism, and that it has no dogmas. A religion without dogmas, is that understandable? One
A story considered legendary, symbols just like the Freemasons, and a moral code. That's all of modern Judaism.

"However, there is a difference between this very liberal Church of today -" liberal because it is imbued with modern ideas - and those of the past, which was less so, a bond of solidarity, of heredity. The Israelite Church of AuToday it is the Church of yesteryear, evolved. It too has retained the memory of the persecutions with which the Church overwhelmed her for centuries of Rome, and this could not have inspired in him tender feelings towards of this one. Moreover, she learned theoretically through the anti-se- campaign mythical of Drumont and his associates, and practically by the Dreyfus affair, that the Church of Rome is only too happy to make the Jews fidget again on the pyre, in sulfur-stained shirts. She must therefore necessarily to defend herself again, to fight on. But she cannot do so as Judaism, given the general hostility towards all churches depreciation. Far from 1a. He recommends their admission as a conquest to be made, and, in two lines of praise addressed to the Jews, He points out that "the Jewish Church has no dogmas, that it has "Just symbols, just like Freemasonry." - "It's

"Why," the Acacia continued, "is the Jewish church our natural ally?
That is why there are a great many Jews in our ranks.” Let us leave Leaving aside the question of whether mutual aid takes place for this that motive, or perhaps others more deeply hidden; there is no no less certain than in the Hungarian Lodges the Jewish community possesses the direction, as a simple glance at the Directory proves Freemason from Dalen for 1914. Among the Grand Masters of honor, we already find the Friedrich Gluck brothers, the Doctor Simons Medgyes, Moritz Mezei; among the guarantors of friendship were others

Grand Lodges, Brothers Heinrich Glucksmann, Karl Duschnitz, Friedrich Artner, Geza Winter; among the Masters in the Pulpit, the Brothers Dr. Marcel Glaser (Humbodt Lodge), Alex Fleissner (Galilee Lodge), Dr. Illes Pollak (Konynès Kalman Lodge), Dr. S. Eisler (François Deak Lodge), Doctor Rudolf Temesvary (Democracy Lodge), Dr. S. Braun (Minerva Lodge), Dr. Julius Frankl (L.'. Progressio), all in Budapest. The situation is the same in the provinces, and the thirteen Freemason Lodges of Vienna which were obliged to go and conduct their business in Presbourg, because the Freemasonnerie was forbidden in Austria, almost all of them have for Masters in Chair of the Jews: the F”. Doctor NS Rumpler (L.. Humanitas), outside the special Catholic — which is the enemy — or Protestant milieu. She can only do so in the name of the higher principles of justice and equality. of the Declaration of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen. That's why The Jewish Church is our natural ally; why does it support us? That's why so many of its members are among us. That's why, finally. It would be absurd to fall out with her in the name of anticlericalism. childishly generalized, and to bring it, too, to take its place in the anti-Masonic bloc.

"Let us therefore quarrel neither with the Protestants nor with the Jews, who Moreover, they ask nothing of us except what we constrain them Catholics to accept: freedom within the common law. The adversary that We have before us, the Catholic Church, is sufficient to exercise our fighting spirit. Let us remember the maxim: Primum vivere... to to which our predecessors made such painful sacrifices in various moments of the 19th century, and let us not make new enemies.

"Such must be the current rules of Masonic politics-" nonsense, which we must observe if we want to achieve our goals.

Hirax M.:

Hiram is the pseudonym of Brother Limousin, founder of the Acacia, the one who so aptly named Freemasonry "The Counter-Church".

Victor Weinert (L.'. Verschwiegenheit) (at discretion or silence), Doctor Alexander Hollander (L.'. Zukunft) (future), Doctor Karl Ornstein (L.. Socrates), Doctor Emil Frankl (L.'. Socrates, 1M6;, EV Schick (L.'. Fintracht) (concord), Doctor K. Gombrich (L... Schiller), Doctor Albert Engel (L.°. Freundschaft) (friendship), Doctor A. Keller (L.'. Treue) (loyalty), Richard Tewelés (L.'. Pionier), Alfred Hirsch (L.'. Kosmos), Friedrich Artner {L.'. zur Wahrheit) (at the truth). Bernhard Schiller (L.'. Gleichheit (equality). These are facts that everyone can see for themselves by consulting the Directory of Dalen for 1914 and 1916.

The same is true in Germany for the Berlin Lodges which depend on the Grand Lodge of Hamburg; the Victoria Lodge, of Berlin, for example, has Mr. Sally Schey as its Professor, for First Assistant Master Doctor Rosenberg, for Second Master Dr. Marcuse is his assistant; it is hardly otherwise in all a series of Lodges of the Grand Lodge of Hamburg, and one will be astonished Is this the Grand Lodge that Jews prefer? To appreciate This fact is worth its true value; it is necessary to establish that the three Great Lodges of Old Prussia (Grand Lodge of Prussia known as A l'Amüié, National Grand Lodge of Freemasons of Germany and Grand Lodge The national mother (Aur Three Globes) does not admit Jews; they grants at most the lower ranks, but they are refused entry in |' "Inner East", that is to say, admission into the Lodges of Saint Andrew and the Scottish Lodges. The Jews were excluded from obtaining High Degrees in the Lodges of old Prussia, co which is all the more important given that one of these Grand Lodges, the Grand National Lodge of Freemasons of Germany "reduced to almost nothing" the value of the three lower grades and that these grades are complementary subordinate to the higher ranks.” The Grand Lodge of HamBourg, taking into consideration the Jewish Brothers of Berlin, founded, in In 1900, in this city, a provincial Grand Lodge clashed with desperate resistance from the Grand Lodges of the Ancient Prussia; they took advantage of their privileged position on the Prussian territory, a situation established by the act of 1798, their recognition thus acquiring the exclusive right to practice Freemasonry in this domain. But, thanks to the efforts of the Settegast and Katz brothers, this right exclusive status ceased to be recognized, and, in 1900, the wish of the Jews was fulfilled. to be treated on the same footing as others.

The founding of the Grand Lodge relates to this same order of events. Kaiser Friedrich zur Bundestreue (Emperor Frederick, to the Loyalty) towards the Order) which was primarily intended to be a meeting place for Jews in quest for light. It was founded by Hermann Settegast who was strongly encouraged in his projects by the justice advisor Alexandre Katz. This new foundation (4902) underwent numerous attacks; it was derisively called the Grand Lodge of Jews, at mostly on behalf of the Grand Lodge of Hamburg; they would form the main fund of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Hamburg, newly created in Berlin, and which has already been discussed.

It disappeared after eight years of existence. Its members and lodges passed away.

In the Lodges of Old Prussia, which together count, in A round number, 42,000 members, is the prevailing national trend. On the contrary. The Grand Lodges of Hamburg and Frankfurt am Main, Thanks to the large influx of Jews, they have a rather international outlook. This was manifested, for example, at the Grand Lodges' Diet held in Berlin in 1909, where the proposal made by the Grand Lodge of Frankfurt with a view to resuming friendly relations with the Grand-Orient de Paris was voted in by five votes to three. Grand Lodges of Old Prussia. When one considers that the Grand-The lodges of Hamburg and Frankfurt together only have 9,350 members, that the three other Grand Lodges (Grand Lodge of Saxony, The Grand Lodge of the Sun and the Grand Lodge of Concord do not unite that there are slightly more than 10,650 Freemasons, making a total of approximately 20,000 Brothers, we see that the victory was won by a weak thirds out of two strong thirds, composed of all the other Grand Lodges Germans. The blame lies with the organization of the League of Great-Lodges, which grant each Grand Lodge a representative, however small... either the number of its members. This must also be attributed to the activity and to the combative spirit of this wing of German Freemasonry, which contains the most active and persevering Freemasons, that is-that is to say, the Jews.

But it's not just in Germany, Hungary and Austria that the Jews are the most restless and active Freemasons, It's all over the world; they know how to instill their spirit in the Lodges and use them for their own purposes. In Poland, they are seen appearing first appeared around 1815 on the list of the Lodge Le Bouclier from the North; in Warsaw, there are already eight Jewish brothers, all merchants of profession. Among the Grand Officers of the Grand Orient of Türkiye, we In recent times we find the Jews Raphaelo Ricci and David Cohen; the Master in the chair of the Italo-Turkish Lodge Macedonia, in Thessaloniki, Emmanuel Carasso is also Jewish. Carasso had been part of the delegation that forced the abdication of the defeated Abd-Ul-Hamid. The dethroned-The Sultan's regime is the work of the Young Turk party. But the Young Turk party, as we learn from the Masonic journal L'Acacia, 1907, no. 57, p. 148, is composed exclusively of Freemasons. Its principal seat-The main point was in Thessaloniki. Thessaloniki is, in truth, an extraordinary place. clearly favorable to your conspiracies, because out of the 110,000 inhabitants, There are 70,000 Jews, as we learn from the Acacia, which He must be right.

"Let's take a quick look at Italy; there we find the most well-known" of his Freemasons, Ernesto Nathan. Who is Ernesto Nathan? The

The Frankfurt Gazette, which is always well-informed, tells us that Nathan was born to English parents and only half succeeded in speak tolerable Italian (1). Why English parents? The P. Jesuit Hermann Gruber, better educated, and whose Freemasons themselves-memes acknowledge the profound knowledge in the details of the Freemasonry tells us that Nathan is the illegitimate son of Mazzini and a Jewish woman, and refers on this subject to the Gazette Populaire of Cologne, April 2, 4900, No. 309. | j

"Ernesto Nathan thus became a Freemason; he rose in rank..." rank – although he was Jewish – to the highest Masonic dignity. I] became Most Respectable Grand Master of the Grand Orient of Italy (May 34 1896). Five years later, he transferred the Grand Orient to the Palais Giusti-Niani, one of the most magnificent monuments of Italian architecture, and, To everyone's astonishment, he became mayor of Rome, and, in this capacity Upon his release, he immediately set about suppressing religious instruction in all the public educational establishments in Rome. At the beginning of During the World War, Nathan was one of the most determined to lead the way. Italy, and, in public meetings, he passionately preached war against Austria and Germany.

"After appointing Ernesto Nathan, we must not forget Brother" Burzel, from Trieste; he too is a Jew. Like Nathan, he is an agitator-political figure; like Nathan, he is a Freemason. He has even already appointed Grand Orator of the Grand Orient of Italy, and will eventually rise up to the highest rank. Shortly after the explosion of the war, he was appointed minister for the irredentist regions, which, thanks to . an unprecedented betrayal, they had to be freed even in their hinterland. Burzel called himself Barzilai, which will surprise none of those who They know these gentlemen's ability to adapt. Samuel Witkowski Hasn't he become Maximilien Harden and Salomon Kosmanowski? Hasn't he turned into Kurt Eisner?

In short, everything that has any influence in Italy is French-In Macon, and among the Freemasons, Jews play a most significant role. important. "This race has many representatives in Parliament "Italian," says the Freemasonic journal, the Masonic Review (Jan-(vi 1908, no. 344, p. 1). – "Much better in Italy than elsewhere, the spirit Hebrew has achieved its goal." (ibid., p. 3).

"What is called the Hebrew spirit in Italy may be accurate, but "Elsewhere," it's no different. In France, for example, we We repeatedly find Jews as founders and as zealots. propagators of Freemasonic Orders. Among them is the Jew Etienne Morin, a Parisian, was the one who worked most actively on to spread the so-called Scottish system (of Higher Degrees), which, really, has nothing to do with Scotland. The supreme affiliates of this system gave themselves-

---

(1) Frankfurt Gazette, November 28, 1914.

They won the most prestigious titles, they qualified with a great seriousness of "Emperors of the East and West". The "Prince of "Masons," Morin, received from these Emperors of the East and West a patent in which he was called "Great, Perfect, and Sublime Master, Prince" of all Orders," and he was also charged with spreading the Freemasonry in America. Morin did what was asked of him and brought the Scottish system to Saint-Domingue, Jamaica and Char-Charleston (South Carolina). From Charleston, this rite returned to France after the French Revolution and he was established there in 1804, with his thirty-three ranks. It still exists there under the name of Supreme Council. A brief glance A glance at the titles awarded there will show how much this system of Higher Degrees is subordinate to Jewish history and imbued with the Jewish spirit. It There is the rank of Vengeance and the Knight Kadosh, the Prince of Lebanon, the Prince of the Tabernacle and even a Great Prince of Jerusalem.

"And now what do we see? The country's nobility is abolished, the Princes are driven out, Emperors dethroned... But not for long, Their place will be reoccupied. The Emperors are dead. Long live the Emperors! Brothers of the East and the West! Make way for all the capable: to the Haase, to the Eisner, the Liebknechts, the Adlers, the Kohns.

"Another founder of the Order, the army supplier Michel Bédarride, who imported the Rite of Misraim (Egyptian rite) with his two brothers, in France and spread it. The Order of Misraim comprises ninety degrees; in France, in 1898, he possessed ten Lodges, and was introduced into Germany by the Reuss drugstore, where the Order met a rather abrupt end in 1907. glorious.

"The Memphis Rite, quite similar, owes its origin to a certain- Samuel Honis, from Cairo, who brought it to France in 1814. Recognized, In 1862, through the Grand Orient of France, this Order passed into Germany thanks to Mr. Reuss already mentioned, but he was unable to take root there. His Secrets were divided among ninety-five grades. Al cost one a great sacrifice to Mammon.

"But, one might object, these are only (alont of Orders, To attribute them to Freemasonry is a complete injustice. The League The German Grand Lodges never recognized them; their existence It therefore has no regular character. Agreed. But the Grand Orient of France has recognized them, and that is perfectly sufficient, even though at The Germans often describe these Orders as criminal foundations. of swindles, which aim to extract money from people who are looking for They sing the light and to credulous people, Besides, the question is not both to know whether these Orders are recognized or not and to serve as proof that Jews play an influential role throughout Freemasonry, in France as in Italy, Hungary as in Austria, and just as well in Germany. Will anyone deny that the Jew Crémieux, one of the leaders of the Did the Scottish system play a leading role in France? Didn't it appear... held, during the February Revolution (1848), with other Freemasons, to the Provisional Government? And what about the one-eyed Jew Gambetta? Will we deny it? that it was the High-Grade Freemason Gambetta who introduced into the significant Belleville program of 1869, the separation of the Church and of the State? And, in particular, can we deny that one of the essential goals -The goal of universal Freemasonry is to establish separation everywhere of Church and State, and that wherever it has taken place, it has been The work of Freemasonry? And isn't Freemasonry... A work of the Jews?

We only have to look at what is happening in England.

England, including the Scottish Lodges, has 225,000 Freemasons. Among them are 43,000 Jews, that is to say, almost the fifth. I] There are Lodges which are composed almost exclusively of Jews, for example the Shelley Lodge, which is composed for the three quarters of Jews; there are even some who are purely Jewish, like the Hiram's Lodge; the latter gave rise to so many scandals that the Grand Master of the Order, Prince Edward Albert, later Edward VII had to decide to dissolve it. But here are some names of Significant Lodges: King Solomon, King David, Baron Hirsch, Lord Rothschild, Henry Bernstein, Sir Albert Sassoon, etc. And what would happen things quite remarkable if the Archi-Berith, of which these Lodges dependent, were mean and started talking, as did us The French writer Théo-Dædalus (pseudonym, in his book: Jewish England) (1). This is especially true since the Franco-Prussian War that the Jews invade the Lodges as conquerors, while here even The Christian Brothers prefer to surrender the territory without a fight.

"Then a great number of new Lodges were founded in the the avowed aim of favoring the Jews; such was the "Lodge of Actors of "Drury Lane," which lauds Jewish actors; the "Savage's Lodge" "Club," which subsidizes the yellow press and engages in the culture of Young plants for journalism (newspaper man). The Jews who had not nothing to do with the organization of the Lodges, in the time of Freemasonry operative, gradually introduced during the 17th century, and today-Today, they triumph. If it is true that English Freemasonry forms the basis of Chamberlain's imperialism — and this is beyond Without a doubt, it should not be forgotten that the leadership of Freemasonry is A large proportion of the population was Jewish. The fact that it was headed by the Duke of Connaught, brother of King Edward VII, as Grand Master does not change nothing to do with the matter, nor does the presence of Lord Ampthill as Pro-Grand Master.

"As for England, one could today, not To ask: Who is a Freemason? but rather: Who is not a Freemason? Macon? Because everything that has a name, an importance, the members of the the royal family, ministers, the Lords, members of Parliament, the members of the press, major traders, bank directors, etc., belong, almost without exception, to the great Masonic society-The Times, a well-known newspaper, displays Masonic symbols. mosaic on its front door, where everyone can see them. Franc-Freemasonry and Judaism are so closely intertwined in this country, that an English writer declares with perfect seriousness that the Franc-Macongrest is nothing more than an artificial Jew. In an English newspaper The Eye Witness, an anonymous author, says that the The present situation of Jews in England could not be better defined by pointing out that they have achieved predominance in Secret societies, including Freemasonry (1).

---

(1) Subtitle: “Israel at John Bull’s”.

"In a noteworthy work on the Rothschilds, the author, Edouard Demachy established that they have belonged to France since 1809. Freemasonry, and this in German, French and English Lodges, and that is why absolutely nothing can be done between-to take against this powerful house. This remark becomes intelligent-It's difficult when you remember that every Freemason has taken the commitment to make every Brother attentive to the dangers that threaten him. That is what makes Freemasonry's main value to Jewry, in addition to... all the more so as it uses it for its own purposes, within its organization more intimate, countless non-Jews. This particular organization of the The Jewish community is, as is well known, the Israelite Alliance, of which Moses Monte-Fiore is the most important representative.

"Brother Moise Monteflore is originally from Livorno; later, he settled in England; he gained the favor of the queen, and was made by her, Montefiore was knighted and later raised to a barony. He rendered services immense to Jews worldwide, and made many trips to to provide its fellow creatures with advantages of all kinds. Its quality of Freemasonry served him remarkably well in this regard. In 1867, when a a constitution was given to Hungary, he personally employed himself with François Deak, Baron Joseph Eotvos and Brother Count Andrassy, then President of the Council of Ministers, in order to achieve equality rights for Jews. He had already made contact with them previously. Budapest, with Brothers Ignace Hirschler and Moritz Wahrmann, and with With their help, he had established a branch of the Israelite Alliance there. At the decisive moment, he made the visits just mentioned, but he could not to obtain no specific consent from these individuals; he was told that the The question was not yet ripe enough for a decision, but Monteflora stayed on his own ground; he insistently emphasized the "patriotic merits" questions” about the Jews. The next day, the Minister of Religious Affairs, Baron Eotvos, came to him with a two-paragraph bill which established-establishes equality of civil and political rights between Jews and Christians uphold and abolish all contrary ordinances and customs (1).

---

(1) The Eye Witness, article from September 1914, in several issues, on the Jewish Question.

"These assertions could be confirmed by countless Other examples clearly demonstrate that the Jews are represented in Freemasonry in a proportion that does not correspond does not correspond at all to the figure of the Jewish population; it follows that the Jewish Freemasons are everywhere the most active workers and more persistent and know how to assert themselves; that, in all the country, they aim to take control of domestic affairs Freemasonry; that in many states, they have already succeeded. and that they strive to take advantage of it for their own benefit, that is to say, especially at profit from their race; it follows, finally, that it is primarily the Jews who introduce politics into the Lodges and seek to influence, in the same meaning, the other Brothers.

"If this is indeed the state of affairs, one can rightly ask whether No one in the German Empire sees clearly in this game, if anyone He will not protest, if no one stands in the way of Jewish ambition. Here The answer: there are thousands of people who see this, and they remain silent. More than one is bound by the oath he took in the Lodge or by his wishes. As for those who protest seriously, they incur wrath.

From the Lodge, they are socially boycotted, and are accused of vile motives. and soon for them it will be a bad professional reputation, the annihilation-economic development. The culprit suddenly feels the daggers of all the Lodges directed towards his chest. This is by no means a symbol. Brother Findel, one of the most selfless and most The number of nobles there may have been could tell us a lot about this. He was a a staunch opponent of what is called the "Christian principle" and fought through words and writing against the decision that forbade the Jews entering the Lodge. But J.-G. Findel had changed his ways to see with time. "Freemasonry," he said, "addresses itself by-

"all and in the same way to men, as such, and with this point
"from the point of view that his disciples unite with each other as men in one
"a fraternal society, while the Jew remains a Jew in all circumstances," and regards foreign peoples only as objects exploitation" (2). !

"How can we explain such a change of opinion?" F. Findel said he himself on this subject: "In the past, I intervened warmly... for the "Jews, because I saw them as oppressed. Since then, I have
"I recognized that they are our oppressors and I fought them" (3). He He states that what made a very strong impression on him was that he

w
w ww

w

(1) Cf. the Freemason journal "Haynal", 1885, p. 101.

(2) J.-G. FINDEL, Vermischte Schriften (Mixtures), t. IT, p. 92; Leipzig, 1902. |

(3) Ibid, p. 212.

It was demonstrated to him that the Jews intervened through corruption. in legal matters; he recalls numerous passages from the The Bible, which promises the Jews dominion over all peoples, and in It ultimately comes to the conclusion that, when a Jew asks for light, We must demand from him a special declaration that would be designed to be... approximately like this:

"I regret the doctrine according to which the Jews are the people
"chosen of God, as aged, mad and arrogant;

"I regret all the inhumane and immoral doctrines contained within"
"both in the Old Testament and in the Talmud, on the domination
"The exploitation of peoples by the Jews should not be..."
" bind;

"I completely side with the educated men of the Occi-
"tooth to disapprove of and fight all Jews who surrender"
"Guilty of exploiting their fellow human beings, by means of the "Deception, excessive profits, and usury, and I refuse all of them."
"spiritual relations with such Jewish criminals. I assure you on my honor-
"neur and the awareness that I am not part of any Jewish organization"
» of combat, such as the Union of Citizens of Jewish Race, of the Order » of Bnai Brith' and the Union of German Jews.

"After my admission into the Freemasonic Order, I could not-"
I will not pursue any particular Jewish interest and I will not use the Lodge for business purposes.
"I regret the service of Mammon and the accumulation of wealth" unproductive like a dangerous plague."

w
w

x

"This statement, taken as a whole, contains only..." things that go without saying, but despite the high position and the consideration-the status that Brother Findel enjoys in Freemasonry (he is a member honorary members of more than thirty Lodges of Saint John and several Grand Lodges (Orients), he achieved no success in this very important matter.

"But perhaps the situation is not so bad in Germany" Magne than elsewhere; perhaps Jewishness does not have a place in Freemasonry German influence that it possesses in other countries, such as in England, France, Italy, Hungary. Let's examine the value of This objection. A single example from current events will suffice perfectly. to make sight clear to the blind.

"At the head of German Freemasonry is, as we know..." a supreme authority, the German League of Grand Lodges, formed of the eight Grand Lodges. The president in charge of the League's affairs was, at the time the war broke out, the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge Eclec-Frankfurt am Main. So far, so good; but, if we seeks to know the name of the Grand Master who, in these critical times, settled the affairs of the German League of Grand Lodges, one does not This name cannot be found; it is untraceable. The Freemason Directory of Dalen only gives the name of the deputy director, who is F.'. Gotthold.

Now, Professor Christian Gotthold was then Grand Master of the Eclectic League, in 1913-1914; he was appointed again for the year 4915-1916, but he was not in the year 1914-1915. Who then was Grand Master of the Eclectics at the beginning of the war, and was in at the same time president in charge of the affairs of the German League of Grand Lodges? That is, of course, a secret that a Freemason German shouldn't know, and the one who puts their foot in the right place doesn't need to know. The reason why we anxiously hold on The hidden name is that of the president in charge of the League's affairs.
German Grand Lodge member happens to be Jewish. Moreover-theirs, he soon went to the eternal East, a short time after the war broke out, probably in September 1914, but he
It is impossible that this was the reason why his name was kept secret.
because he is not found in the obituary; he is not mentioned in the 1915 Yearbook, nor those of 1916, 1917, 1918. What is the Did the lodge hide or "cover up" it?... At first, one believes it impossible to... to discover. The cover-up of the death of a prominent Brother, who was same Grand Master, and who, in a period of the greatest importance
tance, directed the affairs of the entire Order, this dissimulation with regard to in the world of Lodges, this is a fact that had never occurred before in the Freemason circles. What may have happened in those circles high-ranking members of German Freemasonry are, for the moment, escaping the judgment of the uninitiated; perhaps the key to the riddle lies there simply in the name of the Brother who departed for the eternal East: the Respectable Brother Grand Master of the Eclectics, the chargé d'affaires of all of German Freemasonry at the beginning of the war
The world's most famous was Kohn!

"That says as much as volumes. That name is a true program ".

Therefore, although Judaism was for Freemasonry a
The stepmother, Freemasonry, despite a few jokes, was too hospitable to the Jewish quarter to deserve the name of "Daughter denatured" (1). oo

(1) Brother Otto Neumann, whom we have so often quoted in 1920, wrote, on December 7, 1913, in the Volkserzieher: “The Jewish Question
The question arose as early as 1717, he tells us. The Old Duties, which are regarded still today as the cornerstone of Freemasonry, do not have in mind the exclusion of the Jews, for they demand that it be restored to God, a worship in which all men can unite. Even so that the existence of such a religion, the Old Charges, would not be admitted at least admit that one can profess a cult of this kind, and they express quite clearly than differences in religion, no more than those in race or condition, are not grounds for exclusion. It was only later

Lodges exclusively for Jews

Louis d'Estampes and Claudio Jannet wrote that the temporary exclusion of Jews from Freemasonry the determination-mina to "establish special rites, like that of Misraim, in France, and the Beni Briss, in the United States" (1) More further (2), they add that "the rite of Misraim or Egyptian was created by Cagliostro (3), then propagated again in France

that systems of Lodges, calling themselves Christian systems, refused to admit the Jews. In Germany, there is only one system, says the system Sweden, which continues to refuse entry to Jews. However, they are welcomed.
like the Visiting Brothers.

"It was once established that 'no Jew could become
"a good Freemason without ceasing to be a true Jew." That would not be admissible only if the Jew were required to renounce his religion when he is admitted into Freemasonry, and this requirement was not even formulated when the Jews applied for admission to the rank of A, completely papist of the Rosicrucians in the French system... Moreover, since we findvons Amos Comenias at the cradle of Freemasonry, where he is its godfather, His League of Humanity did not exclude Jews. A large number of the sym-
The tenets of Freemasonry are of Jewish origin. The Old Testament is in a close relationship with ritual ethics, even in the Swedish system.
controversial works on the admission of Jews into Freemasonry are very numerous; they form a fairly extensive section in the Bibliogra-Wolfstieg's Masonic philosophy.

"The General Manual of Freemasonry (in German), 1900 edition," Vol. I, p. 5, says: "He who considers German Freemasonry to A Christian institution knows that religion commands us to love
"All men, that we are all equal before the Most High."

"The question of the admission of Jews into German Freemasonry has

This has given rise to much discussion, as we have seen. But one member A prominent figure in the Swedish system said: "A time will come when we will grant "In this system, even non-Christians are excluded." The viewpoint has changed. A high-ranking Freemason, Emperor Frederick III, declared that antisemitism is the shame of the ages. We must strive to do to eliminate the social oppression that still weighs on the Jew, but the Jew must renounce the particular situation in which he still pretends to place himself. German Freemasonry is a product of progress; it has liberal principles. and moves with the times. A Freemasonry that would be based on a A purely Christian foundation would no longer be Freemasonry. Freemasonry has no compelling reasons to keep the Jew at bay. trance. Its principle of tolerance even obliges it to recognize rights equal to Jews and other candidates."

(1) Louis D'Estamres and Claudio JANNET, Freemasonry and the Revolution, p. 38.

(2) Eod. lib., p. 48.

(3) See Marc Haven, The Unknown Master, Cagliostro, Paris, Dorbon

in 1816, and that it counts Jews everywhere. There is a slight front page Confusion: Cagliostro is the founder of the Egyptian rite, while that the Rite of Misraim was founded by the Freemasons Bédarride, who were Jewish (1). The authors of "Freemasonry and the "Revolution" are right to say that all members of the rite The people of Misraim are not Jewish. During the Caillaux affair, the Grand Lodge of Paris, the Grand Orient of France and the Grand-Easterners in Italy asserted that Caillaux was not Frank-Macon. La Bauhütte, January 31, 1918, reproducing a The article in the Frankfurter Nachrichten responds that indeed Caillaux belongs to me neither to the Grand Orient of France, nor to that from Italy, and the Bauhütte adds:

In fact, this had been known for a long time, because Caillaux had always was ranked among the affiliates of the Scottish Rite of Memphis and Misraim.

However, Caillaux is not Jewish; he only has the customs and the qualities. |

Between the two rites of Misraim and the Bnei Briss, there exists Lodges composed exclusively of Israelites.

The Jewish Chronicle of October 29, 1880, reported:

Freemasonry tolerates everything except narrow clericalism, and it is so universal, it possesses a special appeal for Jews. It has retained its preeminence over all other secret societies, because its foundations are as vast as the realm of the spirit.

Anything that is purely local, national, or related to race, anything that which tends to arouse human sympathy has been excluded from its domain. The Order of Freemasonry thus unintentionally became the refuge of minorities struggling for progress and fraternization human.

Clericalism has always persecuted Mounier wherever it has could, and in times past, this spirit of persecution attracted the Jews towards Freemasonry, through an invisible but powerful bond of sympathy-[sant. I] there was a natural understanding against a common enemy.

In its resistance against tyranny, Freemasonry became an ally natural of the Jew who was born the champion of spiritual freedom, and

The eldest, Cagliostro, was of Sicilian family and was baptized in Palermo, on June 8, 1743.

(1) See Mare Bébannipg, of the Masonic Order of Misraim, 2 vols.; Paris, Bénard, 1845. — F.". BouBée, Misraïm or the Freemasons; Paris, Rigaud, 1847; and General Statutes of the [Masonic Order of Misraïm, Paris, Martinet, 1864.

Together they often successfully fight against religious fanaticism and racial antipathies.

In London, there are no fewer than five Jewish Lodges; there are also some in Birmingham, Liverpool and Manchester.

Eighteen years earlier, "Le Monde", November 5, 1862, reproduced the following article from the Historical Papers and Munich policies:

There exists in Germany a secret society, with Masonic-like structures, which is subject to unknown leaders. The members of this association are, For the most part, Israelites, in Berlin..., there are other Lodges, composed of... exclusively Jewish... In London, where, as they say, the epicenter of the revolution under Grand Master Palmerston, there are two Jewish lodges, which never saw Christians cross their threshold. That's that is where all the threads of all the revolutionary elements converge which are brewing in Christian Lodges... In Rome, another Lodge, entirely composed of Jews, where all the threads of the plots converge revolutionaries hatched in Christian lodges, is the Supreme Revolutionary Tribunal... In Leipzig, on the occasion of the fair..., the Lodge The secret Jewish secret is always permanent... In the Jewish Lodges of From Hamburg and Frankfurt, only emissaries have access... May the Almighty soften the trials that befall the great, as a result of their carelessness, and to make them understand what they want the work of Freemasonry, to revolutionize and republicanize the peoples in the interest of Judaism.

We could extend this list, but without to weigh its scope exactly (1). It is not the same from the Bnei Briss branch.

The Bnei Briss Order (2) only dates back to 1843, a time when of which the first Lodge was founded in New York. We read in the Jewish Archives of 1866:

The order of the Beni-Berith, that is to say, has been frequently mentioned of the "Sons of the Covenant," which was created in the United States. As the important-

(1) The Chain of Union (year 1880, p. 162) informs us that in Berlad, In Romania, at that time there existed a Lodge composed of fourteen Polish Israelites. But this Lodge was founded by the Grand Orient of Italy; he It therefore does not appear that she had a distinctly pronounced Jewish character and that it could enjoy a preponderant Jewish influence.

(2) Jews usually write Bnei Briss, others Bnai Brith, or also Bnai Berith, Beni-Berith; these two words mean: "Sons of the alliance.

The popularity of this Order is constantly increasing, and since it is very little known, it It seems useful to us to analyze, based on the American newspapers, the latest Message from the Grand Master, MB-F. Peixolto: "The Order of the Beni-Bérith sent nearly five thousand to the Israelite victims of cholera in the East dollars (25,000 francs). The Grand Master visits as often as possible-sible affiliated Lodges. This year, he visited those of eleven considerable cities. maples. 11 opened conferences and gave speeches for instructing them on their duties as sons of the Covenant, to strengthen them in They possess the feeling and love for the higher objects pursued by the Order. namely: the moral and intellectual advancement of the family of Israel and the most perfect union between its members (1).

The higher goals of this exclusively Jewish order are those of the "Protocols". Moreover, the Bnei Briss do not are not confined to the United States. The Israelite Universe in is authoritative: | [a

The Bnei Briss Order, which was founded in the United States and has nothing of commonality with French Freemasonry, has existed for more than Thirty years in Germany, he created eighty centers and acquired a great influence on the entire inner life of Judaism. He first had the deserves credit for having established a common platform for a large number of Jews. German Jews had long been divided by the struggles that the religious reform had provoked, and the opposition was not less significant from a social point of view: they were overcome by the working together. The Bnei-Briss did not form a charitable society. table like many others where you pay your membership fee and where you are They left the rest. They demanded the active collaboration of their members. They met in sessions of one or two weeks, getting closer-They learned about each other personally, and in doing so, they revealed themselves. as a valuable factor in Jewish communal life...

The Order gradually spread to Germany, Austria, and Turkey. quie, to Switzerland and, most recently, to England. Everywhere, we recognize-It is born that a new spirit enters with him, although he has to struggle everywhere against great obstacles...

The desire of the Order's president, Mr. Krauss, of Chicago, is to create a center in Paris... The Order does not get involved in political matters or religious matters, he sticks to his area of expertise, that of social assistance, but In this area, he closely unites our coreligionists and arouses dea labor forces and dedication (2).

(1) Israelite Archives, year 1866, p. 885.
(2) Israelite Universe, April 24, 1914, p. 80.
We read in Claudio JANNET (Freemasonry in the 19th century,

Naturally, the Jewish Order of Bnei Briss, like the French-Freemasonry does not concern itself with politics or religion, except to Judaize the states and destroy the Church. A report on Israel and its Sects, report reproduced in Fede e ragione (30 January 1921, p. 6) highlights the activity of the Jewish Lodges. Here are some interesting excerpts: |

Everyone knows that Freemasonry and other allied sects usually serve as an antechamber and workshop for the Jew, the enemy inherited from Christianity, aspiring by tradition to make the world his domain and its usufruct. What is less well known is that the Jews have "Lodges" reserved for the "Chosen People", to which the "Goym" are not admitted and in which the family treats international affairs of the Synagogue and the ghetto.

Among the Masonic Lodges reserved for the "circumcised" only, The following orders are counted: Aur armes d'Abraham, Aur armes de David, the Achei Bérith or Brothers of the Covenant, the Achei Ameth or Brothers in faith, the Independent Order of the Beni (or Benai) Berith (the Sons of Pact), the Grand Order of Israel, and others.

These are the main organizations; and the one that is most active
One notable example is that of the Beni Berit, which is very influential in the United States. New-York now seems to be the capital of the Jewish world. The order of the Beni-Berith sent in her annual medal of recognition.
Jewish to Brother Simon Wolf, of Washington, for "distinguished services"

p. 659): "The first of these orders is that of the Beni-Berith, founded in 1843. It has 206 Lodges, with an average of 100 members.

"In 1876, on the occasion of the World's Columbian Exposition in Philadelphia, the Beni-Berith erected a colossal statue in Fairmount Park to Religious freedom.

"The second Jewish Masonic order is that of the Kesher Shel Barzel." The date of its founding is unknown, but it already existed in 1874, and includes-4,934 men and 530 women were born at that time. (Allgemeines Handbuch der Freimaurerei, t. IV, Erganzungen, V° Juden Orden).

"Wealthy and influential, the Jews are beginning to make their influence felt on foreign policy, as in England . In 1874, they obtained from The United States Congress, thanks to the influence at its disposal, a diplomatic march in support of their coreligionists in Romania. Here, on the other hand, is what we read in the Washington newspapers, as of May 30, 1877: '

"Mr. Evarts, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has forwarded to the Minister of United States, in Constantinople, the demands of the American Israelites risk, in relation to the way the Jews of the provinces are treated Turkish and Romanian. Mr. Evarts gave instructions to the minister American so that he would take steps with the Porte, in order to as-to ensure the Jews an improvement in their situation.” (See The States-Contemporary United States, & ed., chap. XXIV, § 3, and chap. XXVI, 8 10).

returned to the Jewish people in 1919.” It’s not hard to guess who has bears the brunt of these "reported services".

The other Jewish Order, which makes its activity felt, is the Achei-Berith. He devoted himself primarily to founding Lodges for Jewish women. We will discuss this further. Let's look at one recently founded in Newport, Minnesota, USA. The Jewish The Guardian, dated April 23, 1920, praised the activity of the Order and especially that of the Aaron Joseph Jacob Lodge, No. 22 (Worshipful Kleinstein) and of the Lodge for women The L. Marks Sisters, No. 28, of Littleston.

These women's lodges are reserved primarily for Jewish women. This is the that we prepare speakers, secretaries, treasurers, and advisors, presidents for women's lodges, public lodges, open to all; and under the pretext of culture, international relations national elections, votes for women, they become, with the complicity other non-Jewish affiliates, the instruments of politics and of Israeli affairs.

Highly suggestive facts prove these missions. There is a "Franco-British Society" whose aim is to facilitate relations mutual benefits for the social culture of both nations. There, we see action as a lecturer and propagandist, the Jewish woman, Mrs. Seligman-Levi. The Italian League for the Political Rights of Women, has for President, Signora Amelia Besso, a Jewish woman from Trieste, and treasurer, Signora Ascoli-Nathan. The similar Lodge in France has or had for President: Madame de Witt, Slumberger; for Secretaries: Mesdames Casevitz, Grimberg, and Brunscwig, all Jewish. The international alliance of these Leagues, which met in Congress in Geneva, is in the hands Jews. The United States of America appointed, at the instigation of Wilson himself, having become the external agent of Jewish high finance, the Jewish mistress Daniels; we could cite others.

What then to say of so many of our ladies who, baptized and believers, whose Some practice their religion, register as members of similar Leagues, and which throw themselves like stunned birds into their Nets? — What to say of so many "spiritual" directors to whom these things are unknown or unwilling to know anything about them? We advise these Good Catholic gentlemen and ladies, try to learn, before to join these Leagues, the number of Jewish men and women who are part of them members, and above all, those who exert a dominant influence there. They will find it beneficial to take such a step.

In July-August 1920, numerous outfits were reported in London in the Lodges Achei-Ameth, Achei-Bérith, Arms of Abraham, Arms of David. In the Nathan-Laski Lodge, No. 32, Brother Apfelbaum (probable- a relative of the notorious Bolshevik-terrorist Apfelbaum, known as Zinovieff) and Brother Schildkranz, members of the Executive Council, installed the dignitaries of the "Amalgamated Austro-Hungarian" Lodge. This circle-Consistency is important because this Lodge has connections with the Anglo-Jewish bank established with the intention of monopolizing the affairs of Danubian countries. Certainly the Jews of the Austro-Hungarian Lodge amalgamated, they must know Bela-Kun and his aides well, whom we live to massacre so many human victims during the Red Terror regime, in Budapest. As for the Austro-Jewish Brethren, they must naturally admire their brother in Abraham and Mordecai (whom the uninitiated call them Carl Marx), the illustrious Adler, who became a character in the Austro-Jewish republic, for having assassinated the imperial minister Stürgkh, as everyone knows.

x
kk

During the summer of 1919, they appeared, but were quickly buried. in the silence of the mainstream press, almost all of which is in the pocket of the Jews, interesting revelations about a secret organization of a very particular nature evidently Judeo-Masonic; it was the League of International Brethren-Nauz, founded by the aforementioned Jew, Mordecai, also known as Carl Marx, now chaired by Jean Longuet, a major figure in the French Republic. He owes this position to his kinship with the founder of whom he is the nephew.

This League comprises three ranks, not counting probable ranks. for unknown leaders. International Brothers are admitted into the first grade; the National Brothers, in the second; the Brothers of _ the international social organization, in the third.

The International Brothers declare that they know no other homeland than the General Revolution, and other enemies than the counter-revolutions naires. They have no other judges than the jurors of their organization; the The solidarity that unites them must be absolute and without scruples. No Brother cannot accept public employment without the authorization of his superiors. A follower cannot be part of the International Association if he is already member of the League's Rational Association.

It's easy to understand the mechanism that makes it move. Between the Threshold and the opposite wall, but in the dim light, stand the Brothers of international social democracy. Behind the threshold, but hidden, are the National Brothers. At the back of the shop are the leaders of the International, which is under the orders of the high bank and the high Israeli gang — bankers like Jacob Schiff and demagogues like Trotaky.

In 1880, the Central Committee was based in London; the famous German Jew Engels was its secretary. This Committee had twenty members, including Almost all of them were Jewish, and the rest were Hebraists. The other Brethren numbered one hundred and fifty. There were three in England Special committees; two in the United States and two in Germany.

In general, the national Brethren are unaware of the existence of the inter- Brethren national leagues, which run the various national leagues from behind the scenes nationals. These maintain the illusion of being local, social organizations.

lists and secrets; nothing more. Thus, all these different Leagues or Ultimately, sects are nothing more than a herd of slaves who have allowed themselves to be lured by promises, very often illusory, to work for the profit of a small number of Jews, masters of the world.

*
* k

On the other hand, the Jews of Eastern Europe — the “Askenazim” Jews of Hebrew-Tude (Yiddish) rite and language — form a sect revolutionary special, founded long ago, which became the The mother of modern Bolshevism, the Bund, "League" in German. The Congress of Geneva, in 1906, revealed its existence to the uninitiated. From its bosom are The main leaders who are drowning Bolshevik Russia in blood have been brought out. and the tears.

*
* *

The Morning Post, one of the major English periodicals, published a series articles on the "causes of the global crisis" and proved the identity of methods, all bearing the same Jewish hallmark, in all the revolutionary unrest that recently shook Portugal, Russia, Hungary, Germany. It's always the Jewish hand that directs the blows, using it as an instrument of masonry bourgeois and demagogic socialism.

For a long time, the head of this octopus was located in Germany. as a result of the center of Jewish wealth in Frankfurt where the Rothschild and so many other Jewish satraps.

The German poet Heinrich Heine, so little German, but entirely The Jew, already prophesied, as early as the middle of the 19th century, the hold of Israel on the world, with this German ghetto as its base and center. He attributed this future triumph of German genius; however, it was not lacking in alluding to the Jews of Frankfurt, by equivocating, as the always the Jewish temperament. This Jew, retired in Paris, in fact hated, He despised and threatened true, non-Jewish Germans; he is the author of the famous poem of the Weavers, where we find the following apostrophe: “We weave your funeral shroud, 6 Germany, with three cursetions”. And hating at least the future epicenter of the Bismarckian empireKien, he addressed these famous verses to him:

O Berlin, Timbuktu of the whites!
O Timbuktu, Berlin of the Negroes!

When the Jew Heine prophesied and extolled German triumph, he He knew perfectly well which Germans he was talking about. Here is what as expressed by the international Jew, Heinrich Heine:

"When you hear a sound like no other in history"

If no similar account has been given, you will then know that the lightning, originating from AlleMagne, struck the goal. This concussion will bring the eagles down from the top clouds; in the most remote deserts of Africa, lions put-They will tuck their tails between their legs and flee to their caves. Germans will then show a drama in comparison to which the RevoThe French revolution will have been nothing but an idyll.

An astonishing prophecy if it applies to the Jewish people, but simple. A sinister farce if it only concerns the Germans.

It was Israel, in fact, that brought down the imperial eagle in blood; which threatens the British lion in Egypt and its possessions, while using England; which plunged Russia and Hungary into the tragic crisis of a bloody revolution, alongside which the guillotineThe French tina was really just an idyll. Heine, the international Jewtional, knew very well what he was saying.

An interesting feature is that Macon regularly connected linking French Freemasonry and Russian Bolshevism, would Mr. Lanquine, venerable master of the Fraternité Lodge, in Paris. He is a professor at the Sorbonne. If he is not French, his name would be a transformation of Russian word Lankine (1).

x
+ k |

La Libre Parole published, in its issues of August 22 and 23, 1920, what-Minutes of the Council of the Grand Orient of Freemasonry French. We see there, for the thousandth time, the cunning of Jewish tactics, The inspiration and usual guide of Hiram's sons. Here is the final conclusion Grand Orient attire: "The Council of the Order approved the dissemination-the spread of Bolshevik ideas within Freemasonry, but asked that they manifest themselves in the form of a study of ideas Soviets and the defense of our Brother Sadoul, so as not to offend the Brothers who are opposed to Bolshevik principles.” Sadoul is a A Jewish Freemason whom the French government sent to Russia. deserted and went into the service of his real government, his own, the ghetto Republican of Trotsky and other Jews.

Here we see the eternal Pharisaical maneuver of Freemasonry Jewish; she receives simple people, orderly men, conservatives, pacifists, who serve as "cover troops" for him, who hide the real ones

---

(1) We read in the Yearbook of the Grand Orient of Paris:

"Fraternity Lodge (October 2, 1905). Temple: 81, Boulevard Saint-Marcel" (13th arr.).

Ven.'. : The F.”. Lanquine (Antonin), 3rd degree in science, 6, rue PestaLozzi, in Paris (5th).

Meeting: 2nd Tuesday.

Address for correspondence: Mr. Lanquine, 6, rue Pestalozzi, in Paris.

Jewish leaders, who alone know what they want. Not to hurt, this which means not to give these oafs any warning; and covered by them, work. So much perfidy mixed with so much baseness, this neighborhood of Caiaphas and Judas, it's eminently the Masonic genre because Eminently Jewish. In short, it's a sect.

Jewish Directorate of Freemasonry

The conclusion of the preceding report affirms the management Jewish Freemasonry. For us, this conclusion will emerge especially from our comprehensive study of Judeo-Masonry triple point of view of Counter-Church, Counter-State and Counter-Moral. We cannot, however, close this presentation the tation of the "faithful of the Counter-Church", the Jews and the Masons, without at least indicating this hierarchy which puts without contests the Israelite element first and foremost.

Freemasonry is the mistress of the world.

For any thoughtful person, Freemasonry is the Mistress of the world, that is the first truth to establish. We Let us take Freemasonry here as the mobilization of forces evils that attack society and religion, sometimes openly, through their subsidiaries, sometimes secretly the shadow of the Lodges. This grip on the entire world by the hegemasonic union dates back at least to the French Revolution of 1789. who overthrew the throne and the altar in France and who continues his work based on the same plan. We were already writing in January 1912 that Lombard de Langres rightly noted the invasion the global rise of Freemasonry and its multiple means of action. After having demonstrated from the beginning of its work that the agents of secret societies "begin with seize public opinion to confiscate it for their own benefit and that they disrupted the social order by a prodigious number of writings disseminated throughout Europe since 1782," he summarized as follows:

We repeat, the sect must subjugate the universe: it is more The question of resisting him is unanswerable; she already possesses the sword and the power. The vast and The criminal conspiracy she is hatching still needs to be investigated. supported in some countries by artifice, seduction, and perfidy.

immoral writings, inflammatory maxims that flatter vices the multitude, where sound ideas are attacked in all forms, The cults and the kings are preparing the complement of the universal revolution. A saddle pondered for fifty years, suddenly stopped in its tracks by a powerful hand and returned to its original activity by a chain-fatal unfolding of events that are beyond human control.

Deep political minds, consider that the Illuminati (read now the Freemasons now control all four corners of the world, that their missionaries penetrated beneath the burning zone of our hemisphere and that the emancipation of all colonies is inevitable. Consider that they are everywhere, in clubs and councils, in the administration and in the armies; that there are some in the Parliament of An-England, in the American Congress, at the Vatican, at the Escorial and even in the seraglio of Constantinople. The kings slumber on the throne, and When they wake up... It's too late! Their offices are no longer open. secrets for the sect; the printing press belongs to her and she works at propagating the representative system under the guise of popular support. One senses What will be the impact of millions of followers spread across Europe in elections and deliberative assemblies for the fulfillment of his projects. It is towards this goal that all their efforts are currently focused. efforts; no sovereign can oppose them (1).

Complete this overly brief list, mention all governments of the world, detail all the administrations Administration, section off all ministries, all departments, all the agencies, count all the political cogs, all The vital associations of the people, everywhere, except in the clergy If you are Catholic, you will find the Freemason or his affiliates. exercising a direct and sovereign influence. France-Freemasonry, in its broadest sense, is indeed the mistress of the world.

What is this influence? Is its purpose really to social revolution? At the banquet of the International Congress of Brussels, F'. Lartigue, Grand Treasurer of the Hospital The Supreme Council of Belgium concluded its toast by saying:

Finally, I drink to International Freemasonry, or rather to the Masonries.
international, both of the Scottish Rite and the modern Rite, whose constants efforts in their different spheres tend towards the goal they pursue.

(1) Lombard de Langres, History of Secret Societies in Germany and | in other countries, p. 200; Paris, Gide, 1819. We could cite one,
'Secret adoption society, part of whose female staff are em-folded at the White House, at the home of the President of the United States.

een 2

follow in their work: the ever-improvable ideal of justice and progress (1).

How to reconcile these words with those of Louis Blanc:

Freemasonry, on the eve of the Revolution, presented the image of a society founded on principles contrary to those of the Society civil (2).

"ad

Has Freemasonry become more moderate? Not at all.
Today's ideal is that of 1793. Let's admit it, if you you want, that a number of Grand Orients do not desire not the universal Republic (3), they nonetheless share the ideas of their more advanced Brothers. There is only one ideal Masonic, ancient and accepted by all Freemasons worldwide,
It is the supremacy of reason over faith, the proclamation of human rights, legal, and soon against rights
God's vision is free inquiry, free and independent morality.
Freedom of conscience is what we call a conquest.
of 1989 and which led to the secularization of society; in a
The word is a return to paganism and, therefore, in the full Acceptance of the word, social revolution. The facts prove it.
As for the means, many Freemasons are convinced of this ideal of justice and progress, they would protest against the riot and the violence. Whether they were masters or high-ranking officers, Those have not yet received the light. In 1845, one read in the Masonic journal L'Astrée:

Woe to the sovereigns who persist in not implementing the Principles of Freemasonry! The religious Reformation of the 16th century and the
The French Revolution is there to teach people how they must assert their rights. On the appointed day, the Freemasons go out from their temples and overthrow everything that stands in the way of their plans.

(1) Proceedings of the International Congress in Brussels, p. 128; Bern, Büchler, 1906.

(2) Louis BLancC, Histoire de la Révolution française, II, 65 ; Paris, libr.
intern. 1869.

(3) At the banquet of the International Congress of Geneva, in 1902, F.'.
Desmons raised his glass, saying, "My F.', one of the great joys of My life will be the one I experienced yesterday, when the entire Congress, unanimously, it was decided to create this Central Bureau, this Bureau in which will come together all the Masonic ideas from around the world. My F.', it was the dream of my life; it had been more than forty years since
I had sought the great joy of seeing precisely what would happen in the

And why not? Revolutions are merely crises in history.
of the development of each nation (1). !

In 1911, F. Cruzel concluded his pamphlet on the affair as follows
Ferrer: |

In this epic struggle against military and clerical reactions, Liberal and revolutionary Spain will bring down the shaky throne of King Alfonso; in advance, we joyfully greet the coming and inevitable
the outcome of this great battle for justice and for the law, which will mark, on the ruins of Montjuïc, the advent of the liberal Republic author and vigilante (2).

Social revolution begins with the idea and ends in the blood, that is the fatal work of Freemasonry (3).

Finally, the Masonic ideal, desired by all Freemasons Freemasons, without exception, revolutionary and pagan ideal by
In essence, it is opposed to the Catholic ideal, the only one that still exists.
the foundation of present-day society. Hence the true international goal-National of Freemasonry: the ruin of Catholicism.
Lombard of Langres, who was not clerical, predicted that Under Masonic influence, Catholicism would quickly distorted (4). He had not fully grasped the watchword of a whole world, a kind of international communications tribunal fraternal which would allow, not only Freemasonry, but as

As one of our F.". said so well this morning, with such elegance, to the demo-entire nations to come together, to understand each other, so as to form a "Day of the Universal Republic." Report, p. 139.

(1) Freemasonry, Revelations of a Rosicrucian about the current co-elements, p. 130; Paris, Bloud ct Barral, n.d.

(2) CRUZEL, The Ferrer Affair before the Cortes, p. 130; Paris, Schleicher, 1911,

(3) We are not addressing here the anti-patriotism of Freemasonry, sometimes openly displayed, sometimes disguised under the name of pacifism;
All these ideas fall primarily within the Social Revolution.
ONCLAIR (p. 229) quotes this very curious extract from the Allgemeine Zeitung:
"Freemasons are not revolutionaries in Protestant countries"
many, but they are and must be in Catholic countries, in order to
to bring about the triumph of reform through revolution Protestant,' .

(4) Here is the passage: “All of Europe is currently undergoing a revolution
This solution is by no means the work of private offices, but rather that of societies.
secret. Aided by these grand words: Spirit of the age and liberal ideas,
They seize the world, a lever for education and religious instruction.
They are religious; they rapidly spread mutual instruction and the Societies

Freemasonry, so well summarized by Tigrotto: "Let us not conspire than against Rome” (!) This is the program that connects all the Freemasons of the world. A distinction was sought between Catholic countries-
The Protestant countries and the F.'. Limousin, of great memory in Freemasonry, he said at the International Congress from Brussels:

There have always been, and still are, two divergent currents.
which dominates in Latin countries where Catholicism reigns and the one which biblical. There are no surer means to annihilate all that exists: by the first, we will have mad and reasoning peoples; by the Second, Christianity will be quickly distorted. "There are documents"

"Trines that ravage the world," said an eloquent man, "and of which we can » to say what Attila said of his horse: The grass no longer grows where they "have passed." Lib. cit., p. 28.

(1) Onczain. Contemporary Freemasonry, p. 74; Liège, Des-healthy, 1885. — In the same work, p. 122, another member of the Haute-Vente writes to Nubius under the pseudonym VINDEX: "It is decided
In our sales, we no longer want Christians. So, let's not No martyrs, but let's popularize vice among the masses. They must They breathe in vice through their five senses, they drink it in, they are consumed by it saturated. This land where Aretino sowed, is always ready to receive obscene and lewd teachings. Make vicious hearts and you “You will no longer have any Catholics.” — Quinet expressed the same idea regarding of the reprinting of the labels of Marnix de Sainte-Aldegonde against
The Church: "Marnix did not simply want, like other writers, Discussing the Church of Rome as a literary point. The struggle is serious.
to excess. It is not only a matter of refuting papacy, but of extirpating it.
not only to eradicate it, but to dishonor it; not only to dishonor him, but as the old Germanic law against Adultery: to smother it in the mud. That is Marnix's goal, that's it.
why, after the strongest, most learned, most luminous, it spreads shame upon the corpse it drags and buries.
in Rabelais's great cesspool. MARNIX DE SAINTE-ALDEGONDE, Painting disputes of religion; Introduction by Edgard QUINET, pp. VII-VIII; Brussels, Van Meenen, 1857. — SS Pius Consistory of November 27, 1911: "What is surprising, if the evil sect-a woman who hates nothing more than God and Christian wisdom, holds her harmful meetings almost right before our eyes... You know that, during the A revolution which, in Portugal, replaced the monarchy with a republic, a a violent storm of hatred and persecution was unleashed against the Catholicism; you are well aware that this revolution took place under the conduct and auspices of the sect we have spoken of: it itself does not doesn't hesitate to boast about it, and, under the pretext of changing the form of "The government's real goal has been to more easily oppress religion." (La Croix, Thursday November 30, 1911; Latin text, Apostolicæ Sedis, November 30,
p. 386).

exists in Germanic or Anglo-Saxon nations, subject to the Protestant worship. In the first of these countries, Freemasonry, which was the object of the anathemas of the head of Catholicism, is, by the force of things, anti-Catholic, while in others Freemasonry enjoys the esteem she deserves, to such an extent that the heads of the clergy, as well that the men who run public affairs are initiated into the Order. This is how, in England, the sovereign, the members of his Family, generals, lords, bishops almost all appear to our Order (1).

These divergent currents only exist in appearance and can be translated as follows: In Catholic countries, it is the full-blown battle; in the others, it is only the declaration of war.

In France, the journal founded precisely by F. Limousin, The Acacia, constantly calls Freemasonry "the Counter-Church, the church of heresy, that is to say, of the choice of opinion; the church of free thought, of free inquiry (2). “This opposition a position in the Catholic Church exists within Scottish Freemasonry seized as in the Grand Orient, it even applies to all religions (3). Finally, she does not accept Gambett's formula:

(1) Report, p. 32. | | rX

(2) L'Acacia, l, p. 97, Freemasonry and Socialism, Particle est Signed M.'. HiRAM, pseudonym of F.'. LIMOUSIN.

(3) Here is an extract on this subject from a curious article in L'Acacia: "Having gathered numerous clues from which it appears that the mystic's snake-Cism tends to infiltrate Freemasonry in order to destroy its very philosophy Clear, we judge our duty, in accordance with the obligations degrees of our grade — which is the highest in philosophical Freemasonry Scottish philosophy — to recall what this doctrine is. There is no dogma in Freemasonry, no Creed to which the neophyte must adhesion, that the initiate be required to confess: freedom of opinion is there complete. However, our eminent predecessors in interesting writings, presented, in a new form, the philosophical doctrine that they-They themselves inherited from our great ancestors. This doctrine is not immutable. in its manifestations; it evolves as ideas progress, but Its fundamental truth is so brilliant that it always shines forth beneath its renewed terms.

"This doctrine is based on and aims at Knowledge, and its enemy This is mysticism or acatalepsy: the incomprehensible. Always establish an exact relationship between human consciousness and the dual world of Things and Ideas, such is the constant preoccupation of the true Freemason.

"Religion is the ordinary form of mysticism. Whatever its denomination: Christian, Islamic, Jewish, Buddhist, Brahmanical Whether Chinese or crudely fetishistic, it always remains on Faith.

“Anticlericalism is not an exportable item” (1). As for the branches of Freemasonry, they follow obediently followed the same program. The following resolution of the The National Congress of Freethought, in 1911, was enough to...

prove: |
Considering: . HN A

That Freethought has, and has no synonyms for, anything but anticlericalism and anti-religion;

That she does not have to approve of the current regime;

That the clerical question is still sufficiently important and on the acceptance of an unverified and unverifiable design. "I “Believe,” said the religious man, and that was all he needed: no dialectic. has no hold on him. The Acacia, I, 799. — Brother BONNARDOT, of the Great The Lodge of France said at the International Congress in Geneva: "You are not "No, my TT.'. CC.'. FF.'., without following the events that are happening in "France, as we ourselves are following the events that are taking place "abroad. You know that right now the government of the "The Republic, supported by Freemasonry, has a terrible struggle to overcome" "to stand against our hereditary enemy, against the followers of a religion" "Intolerant, fanatical, superstitious. Freemasonry, in this circumstance-" "He did not fail in his task; yes, my brothers, I tell you very loudly," "French Freemasonry, France, resolutely wants freedom of "Conscience. We all preach it, and practice it by example." "The liberation of human thought." Report, p. 144.

(1) It would be difficult to produce a deliberation from a session of the Convent of the Grand Orient or of the Scottish Convent, or even simple Lodges or Congresses of Lodges, approving the use of missionaries Catholics in support of France's policies in its colonies or protectorates, or in Türkiye, Persia or China.

"The Freemasons, deliberating as Freemasons, are on this They–extraordinarily–are in complete agreement with the clerics.
profess that it is absurd that, if French republicans find
The Catholic religion is bad in their own country; they export it to the barbaric and savage peoples, whose intellectual level should be raised lectual instead of lowering it. They declare that if the Congregations, with Their invasive spirit is a nuisance in the metropolis; they do not
They should be no less so in the colonies, and that's what working for us is all about.
alienate the Asian nations, over which we wish to exercise a influence, rather than sending them, even imposing on them, associations which the French nation has come to know, through a thousand-year experience naire, the harmful character.

"This is the true Masonic opinion on the efforts made by the Catholic Church for the conversion of infidels, and on protection missionaries, all members of religious orders, in the colonies and protectorates and in China." L'Acacia, July 11, 1903, p. 505. The article is signed M.'.
HIRAM (F.°, LIMOUSIN).

current to remain the goal of Free Thought, without going to seek a another goal which can only divide those for whom only the key question–
The country has brought people together, and whatever solution is proposed, it would divide them.
to ensure the right to life;

Move on to the agenda (1).

Belgium, so loyal to the Grand Orient of France, does not hold not another language. Brother Tempels wrote: "With the exception Freemasonry does not recognize anyone's position as that of the Pope. of an opponent (2)". And the Grand Master of the Grand Orient of Belgium, F.'. Cocq, said:

Masonic powers have accused us of being involved, in our Universal Congresses, questions relating to politics; but Do these Freemasons know what grudges and struggles we are engaged in?
dedicated in Latin countries by those who belong 4
The Roman Catholic Church? Do they know that the ultramontanes are making their presence felt on the peoples bear the full weight of their implacable domination, exercised in all areas, even within our families and businesses private and commercial? And already, the formidable power of this church is... dawn breaks outside the Latin region to spread across the world, if We do not offer him vigorous resistance. Our French brothers, like
We ourselves, in Belgium, must fight against the Roman Catholic Church for They cannot
to confront the incessant land grabs by the enemies of the Republic, which is the legal government of their country; their first duty is to ensure the French people's legitimate exercise of their rights criptible. By acting as they do, the French Freemasons are... they give not only in words, but above all through their actions, a example which Belgian Freemasons will strive to follow (3).

In Italy, the Haute-Vente, Carbonarism, and the Camorra have Freemasonry is an irreconcilable enemy of the Church:

---

(1) France of yesterday and tomorrow, November 11, 1911.

(2) Proceedings of the International Congress of Brussels (1904), p. 44.
Previously, Brother Tempels had written that Freemasons did not pretook part in no struggle. However, "there is only one thing to this," he adds.
Exception: it is the necessity of defending ourselves; the most determined adversary
The death penalty cannot be avoided by striking the murderer who... threat. This is the case with Freemasons and their adversary, Papism.
"inevitable." (Lib. cit., p. 48).

(3) Proceedings of the International Congress of Brussels (1904), p. 124.

In all Latin countries, said Brother Duse, of the Grand Orient of
In Milan, the civil power has clericalism as its enemy; the struggle against the
The Papacy is a social necessity and must be the constant goal of Freemasonry.
rie. t

The Brussels Congress report adds:

Brother Duse raises his glass, expressing the hope that Freemasonry will succeed in planting the banner of progress and freedom over the Vatican which will have ceased to house the Papacy. (Loud cheers) (1).

For Austria, listen to F. Zenker, from Vienna, delegate by the Grand Lodge of Hungary at the International Congress of Geneva: |

> Let's not fight over theories. Let's be vigilant and listen. From where the thunder of cannons roars. It's from Rome! That's our goal. The The time has come for serious and decisive action. We will march and will fight with the F.'. of the universal union (2).

Spanish and Portuguese Freemasonry delivers the same combat, perhaps with even more hatred than in the other Catholic countries. In Geneva, the Spanish Friars Nicol and Morayta complain bitterly about the Jesuits and the intrusion "of all the detritus of the religious orders that the Republican France is in the process of expelling people” (3). In Brussels, Brother Apollinario, of the United Lusitanian Grand Orient, will resume the same complaints (4). Finally, F. Pradera concludes the short preface to F. Cruzel's pamphlet on the Affair Ferrer before the Cortes with this call for days of prayer glantes: "The assassination of Ferrer is the crime of the Church. Republicans and freethinkers, remember! (5).

The same hostility is found in South America.

---

(1) Proceedings of the International Congress of Brussels (1904), p. 132.

(2) Report, p. 68.

(3) Proceedings of the International Congress of Geneva (1902), p. 41: "Spain's great enemy, the Jesuit, is doubly difficult to "To conquer, now that all the Jesuits from France are coming to Spain." — F.*. Nico, p. 73: “You don’t have the Jesuits. In Spain, we have them We have and we must work every day, every moment, for the "to fight." — F.°. MorayrA, Cf. p. 150.

(4) Proceedings of the International Congress of Brussels (1904), p. 114.

(5) CRUZEL, lib. cit., p. 4.

In 1903, Acacia published a letter from Buenos Aires about the Argentine masonry, from which we extract the following passage:

> Freemasonry, in this country, as in all other countries Latins, is, as you say in the Acacia, the Counter-Church. It strives to spread the ideas of free inquiry and rationalism, and For this reason, it wages a fierce war against the Catholic Church. who is the great agent of servitude and superstition (1).

Brother Basso, from Brazil, expresses himself in the same way:

> In this republican country, Freemasons have to support a struggle terrible against the same enemy who attacks the Mason from all sidesnerie (2). |

In summary, it's war to the death in all Catholic countries. liques. What about in Protestant countries? Brother Tempels said at the Geneva Congress:

> While in each country we fight against specific enemies, Throughout the world, Freemasons are fighting a common adversary, more dangerous in Catholic countries, but also formidable in the Protestant countries. That's the one we must strike, that's the enemy of Human progress is papism and its bodyguard the Jesuit (3).

The observation was correct; all Freemasons in the world comdefeat the common enemy, even in Protestant countries. Is not the Reformation, through its free inquiry, the ancestor of the Freemasonry, and doesn't it have its reason for being in the struggle against the Papacy? Of this dual leader, the Protestant is Freemason and Freemason militant against the Church. Also. Is it not surprising that Tigrotto found in London had men who understood better than in Paris its a unique conspiracy plan against Rome and those who joined it 'with more fruit.

---

(1) L'Acacia, II, 918.

(2) Proceedings of the International Congress of Geneva (1902), p. 40. At Congress of Brussels (p. 126), Grand Master Cocg proposes his toast to the Brazil in these terms: "We have among us the T.'. C.'. F.". Cantenhade came from Brazil, as a representative of the Grand Orient Supreme Council of This valley... Brazil was long under the clerical yoke, which it knew rejecting it for the greater good of its economic and philosophical development and social."

(3) Report, p. 35.

He added, "I've received considerable offers. We will soon have..."
In Malta, a printing press is at our disposal. We will be able to do so with impunity.
and surely, under the protection of the English flag, spread throughout Italy, the books and pamphlets that the Sale deems appropriate to include in circulation (1).

It was under the protection of the English flag that the governor
The English government, presided over by Lord Palmerston, was then the more hostile to the Holy See; and more recently the Freemason-English nerie protested indignantly against T encychque
Humanum genus, by Leo XIII. . |

Germany, a major center for secret societies, is suffering from same influences. In the middle of the last century, the author of The book "The Present and Future of Freemasonry" wrote:

Freemasonry and Catholicism are mutually exclusive. To suppose a Christian Freemasonry would assume a square circle, a square round (2).

German Freemasonry has not laid down its arms, the Kulturkampf
This was proven, and, on this subject, the following page is most... informative:

How did it come about that the Prussian government became involved in a persecution, the usefulness of which is sought in vain, against the fourteen Millions of Catholics in the empire? This fraction of the German people Did she fail in her duty during the war? Did her patriotism falter on the battlefield? The religious communities and clergy secure-Did they show a guilty sympathy for the vanquished? No,
A thousand times no! What political interest could there possibly be in em-
Father Guillaume and his prime minister, to alienate themselves, free of charge, a
A significant part of the nation? None.

Here is the key to this mystery:

"Germany triumphed thanks to the support of secret societies," However, since the sectarians primarily seek the ruin of the Church, they demanded that the victor become the champion of the Kulturkampf, and the
The Prussian government accepted the conditions imposed upon it.
by the Back Lodges. Moreover, the men who currently have the
The power in Berlin all belongs to Freemasonry; they are even those holding the highest ranks of the Order; but they do not have the

(1) Onczaïrr, lib. cit, p. 76.
(2) Lib. cit., p. 116; Leipzig, 1854.

management of the Affiliates, and the day Mr. Bismarck might take a fancy
If he were to break his bonds, he would find himself rendered powerless.

"In short, it is from Berlin, for the past few years, that the Masonic movement. It was in Berlin that French radicalism would
To find its rallying cry, it is in Berlin that the formidable force lies.
which he relies on.

"Those who still doubt it should remember the agreement."
unanimous, with which the majority of the last Chamber and the minority
The Senate members have repeatedly called for the intervention of this power and Italy, the homeland of Carbonarism, to hinder the dissolution and paralyze the ministry on May 16th.

"By acting in this way, the Freemason senators and deputies will not were simply obeying the traditions of the Order which has, at all times, classified patriotism among the prejudices which it is important to get rid of” (1).

For Swiss Freemasonry, the Church is still "the eternal enemy of liberty” (2); and the Deputy Grand Master of the Alpina, the F.'. Jacot said at the Geneva Congress:

“We have an irreconcilable enemy; his army is black as the darkness, as numerous as the microbes that poison the atmosphere-sphere; she is strong, united, disciplined; she is a model of submission blind and passively obedient "ad cadaver" (sic)? This is the army of wrong !

"Freemasonry, on the contrary, fights for good; it needs..."
not corpses, but living intelligences to create the Truth, the Light and Liberty I" (3).

At least America, the land of liberty, will be less hostile than old Europe? Secret societies there-
They are a thousand, and Freemasonry is their center and their trait of union. However, American Freemasonry is still deistic.

(1) Revelations of a Rosicrucian, p. 67. This page has found a confirmation a very unexpected development in Madame Juliette Apam's book, After The Abandonment of Revenge (Paris, Lemerre, 1910). Gambetta, the man of the all-out war and the demands of Alsace and Lorraine,
To give to Bismarck, to betray his country, and as Madame ADAM so aptly puts it,
His destiny (pp. 121-127), because he was a Freemason and also bound to a French Kulturkampf against the Catholic Church. Add to that the latest revelations from Waldeck-Rousseau's letters, published by the Morning, and you will better understand how much the Freemasons are intertwined with political and religious events.

(2) The International Bureau of Masonic Relations, p. 23; Bern, BucaLer, 1905. |

(3) Report, p. 103. — At the International Congress in Brussels (1904), Brother MULLER, from Basel, said: "Our main enemy is the ultramontane Church.” (Report, p. 80).

Albert Pike, who was his Grand Master, condemned the Grand Orient of France for having crossed out the name of the Grand Architect of the Universe; the Lodges are believers and above all respectful of all beliefs. But come the Ency-
The clique of Leo XIII and the Grand Orient is almost absolved.

If in other countries, Pike writes, Freemasonry has lost
Given that the old constitutions tolerated communism and atheism,
It is better to endure ten years of these evils than to live one week under the diabolical tyranny of the Inquisition or the black army of Loyola.

And, in that same response, the leader of the Freemason-nerie, Grand Commander of the Supreme Council of the 33rd grade of the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States of America, not
He is not afraid to say that the Encyclical Humanum genus is "a a veritable declaration of war and the signal for a crusade against individual human rights and against those of Associations; against the Separation of Church and State and the limitation of the Church within the bounds of its functions legitimate; against education freed from sectarian influences taires, against the great principle on which the foundations rest the foundations of our Republic as if on an immutable rock, to
to know: "That men are superior to institutions"
and not the Institutions to men”; against the right of people to depose oppressive, cruel rulers and unworthy; against the exercise of the rights of free thought, of free word, and against any government not only repudirepublican, but constitutional.

The Encyclical, he adds, was the signal for the exposure of a conspiracy-already organized against world peace, the progress of intelligence agency, the emancipation of humanity, the immunity that was supposed to preserve every human being subject to arrests, imprisonments, torture, murders committed by an arbitrary power, and finally against the right of man to freely pursue happiness. It was a declaration of war arming all Catholics in the United States, no only against their fellow citizens the FF... of the Order of the Franks-Freemasons, but against the principles that are the very essence of life of the people's government, of which they were believed to be a part, at instead of being members of Italian colonies, of a foreign Potentate and Cardinals, both European and American, his Princes of the Church.

Finally, Pike will also make his anti-papal profession of faith.

by writing: | | j

But Freemasonry also acknowledges, at its own expense, that there is no pages in world history that are more laden with crimes abominable, monstrous acts than those of the Roman Papacy; and She is now well aware, thanks to the revival of the bubbles of Benoit and Clément, whose apparent moderation, gentleness, and
The breadth of opinion of this Church was merely a mask which, once Torn from his face, it revealed his intolerant, persecutory spirit.
cruel, inhuman, appearing all ablaze and emerging even more furious-more than ever from his bloodshot eyes (1).

Neither Nibius, nor Weishaupt, nor Calvin, nor Luther would have had of more treacherous, more acerbic and more hateful expressions.

Albert Pike wrote his pamphlet against the Pope in 1884;
Since then, it does not appear that Freemasonry has improved...
American had changed her feelings towards Rome, and thereby even towards the Catholic Church. That is the very conclusion documented by Mr. Preuss in his work entitled: Study on American Freemasonry. Here is what we read in the Appendix on the Unity of Freemasonry:

If there remained one of our readers who was not yet completely Convinced, let him take: The Genius of Freemasonry and the Twentieth Century, by J.-D. Buck, F., Distinguished M., author of Mystic Masonry and others books. We have before us a copy of the second edition.
published by the Indo-American Company of Chicago (1907). The "Dedication" is thus conceived: "For the good of Freemasonry, in the interest of Independence" pendance and of Brotherhood, of Light, of Liberty, and of Love united against Ignorance, superstition and fear, Clericalism, the Despotism and Jesuitism." An introductory chapter is addressed "To Catholics." This book is an anti-Catholic pamphlet whose anti-
The most sectarian European clerics could be fleeing. The thesis
The author's main point is that the genius of Catholicism, which he calls naturally Popery (papism) and that of Freemasonry, are diametrically opposed and bitter enemies, and that, consequently, the Macon is everywhere the enemy of Papism, p. 67.

On page 250, he speaks even more openly: One cannot counter-to state more fully the claims of clericalism (read Catholic-(licism) which Freemasonry does not do... Freemasonry (Note that the author is an American speaking to Americans) is quite simply and deliberately the exact opposite of clericalism." And
The author continues on page 251: "The more the world converts to the principles

(1) Albert Pike, A Reply For the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Free-Masonry to the Letter "Humanum genus" of Pope Leo XIII: Gr.'.
Orient of Charleston, 1884.

the ethics of Freemasonry, that is to say, fraternal love, seated mutual reproach and Truth, and to the morality taught and practiced by Jesus, and moreover he repudiates all the principles, claims and practices of the Roman clericalism... The indifference and inertia of many Franks Freemasons could only arise from ignorance and madness or from the cowardice. Every intelligent and loyal Freemason should accept the challenge of Rome with all that it entails, and to get to work without delay.
That's what he should do unless he prefers to admit he's a coward.
To fight Catholicism by all means and to destroy it if it is possible, is, according to this late-blooming Masonic writer, a an important part of the Magnum Opus of Freemasonry (1).

In all countries, the secret society, more commonly known as Freemasonry, is indeed the May-braid of the world, which she guides, always by the idea, sometimes through rioting, to social revolution, based first and foremost on the destruction of the Catholic Church. All Freemasons, Jews, Protestants, renegades, or even infidels are the tra-more or less conscious, but determined, valiant men of this a work which, for them, represents the ideal of progress, freedom, and Emancipation, happiness, and modern achievements. All

(1) Preuss, lib. cit., p. 423.

Let us conclude with the following excerpt from a secret circular, issued by the two Supreme Councils of the United States announcing to the Venerable and the Brothers, the publication of a central organ, entitled: The Mystic Light (The Mystical light). We will see that American Freemasonry tra-
It is as valuable in its own country as the Grand Orient is in ours:

"We insist on the need to protect ourselves from companies of our tireless adversaries, whose goal is to undermine and destroy the action Masonic. Our adversaries are not only the enemies of Freemasonry.
Freemasonry, but also the freedom of our country. Italy, France, the Portugal, Spain, and other unfortunate countries were forced to endure to end poverty and ignorance, which led to the enslavement of minds:
These countries had to overthrow "the infamous" in a desperate struggle. Let's avoid Therefore, this first possibility and we recommend to all friends of a true education and a true freedom to keep one's eyes open and to watch first, in order to protect our principles of liberty, which have made the United States the first country in the world.

"Above all, keep a close eye on the plans of our enemies who want to maintain the children in slavery to superstition, by sending children into the so-called parish schools, in which these little innocents are taught-hundreds of people to obey and respect a power which claims to be placed above our government, our people, our "Freedom." The Universe, art. Kranc-Masonry against Christ in the States United States, April 16, 1911. f soa

are, without exception, and not without excuse, levelers; and the pyramids, which they claim will become tomorrow's wonder of The 20th century will be the lamentable accumulation of irreparable ruins.

The Jewish community is the mistress of Freemasonry.

Jewish control over Freemasonry is the second and the final truth to be demonstrated. We will not seek it. proof in a hidden power that would hold the The destinies of the people. We do not know if this Supreme Council consists of twelve members, as some have claimed anti-Semites, or three advisors according to the "Protocols". Let us simply recall that the Jew is the inspirer and The craftsman of the Masonic plan. It is therefore indeed he who draws it up. and directs it. Whether it be hegemony or revolution global, of the universal Republic or of the Counter-In the Church, the Jew is the brain that thinks and the hand that acts.

Convinced that Israel should dominate the world, the Jews have First, the Freemasons were enslaved. Let's not forget the aforementioned reproach. higher up from F.'. Findel to the Jews: "I once intervened with warmth for the Jews, because I regarded them as the oppressed. Since then, I've recognized that they are our oppressors. and I fought them” (1). These oppressive Jews use the Freemasons to unleash revolution in all countries. That's of current history; and the following communications, under the section: New revelations about the Revolution and the Freemasonry confirms this way of acting:

Budapest. — An examination of the Freemason archives has brought to light numerous pieces of evidence of the revolutionary activity of Freemasonry. The two-volume work by Adorjan Barcsay and Joseph Palatinus published by the National Christian Association provides us with multiple with supporting documents. The Kelet, organ of Hungarian Freemasonry, reproducing in his 1900 collection (p. 80) a speech by D" Jean Horthvat, speech read in the Lodge of Szegedin, the Arpad. We canit would be worth noting that "the French revolution had been the work of the Freemasonry” and that “the Revolution which had then begun was not "Not finished yet."

When, in 1909, the Spanish government arrested François Ferrer,

---

(1) See above, p.73.

a 35th-degree Freemason, who was subsequently condemned by a court-martial to death for inciting revolt and for attempting a series of attacks Tats, the Grand Lodge of Paris invited all the Lodges of the world to protest against his execution. The Grand Symbolic Hungarian Lodge organized, She too held a protest meeting during which Sigismund Varady, master of the Ladislas de Nagivarad Lodge, fulminated “against military tribunals, Spanish ministers and government, assassins and Guilty everywhere in the name of the law of Moses and the eternal law "human." It is true that the Grand Master who presided, in the addresstion with which he opened the session, acknowledged that there was a lack of regular evidence of Ferrer's innocence. These gentlemen were not | than those more imperturbable in incriminating sworn Spanish judges and to align themselves with the viewpoint of the Grand Orient of Paris in its circular, namely, "that what they wanted to kill in Ferrer was the Masonic idealfuck.” (Kelet, 1909, pp. 382, 383, 455, 459).

Freemasonry also claims for itself the glory of having organized the Turkish revolution. On October 22, 1909, a visit from two hundred Freemasons in Budapest where the Grand Symbolic Lodge received them Solemnly. Namyk Kiazim Bey, member of the Macedonia Lodge Risorta, from Thessaloniki, declared in a speech that an eta certain gratitude lived in their Masonic hearts, tures to the the right of Freemasonry, for it was the blazing Masonic fire in the shadow that had first inspired them to conquer freedom. Tewfk Riza bey, deputy of Adrianople and master of the Lodge "ConsThe institution of Constantinople, for its part, declared that the Youth Committee The Turk had been inspired in all his actions by the Masonic spirit. “We are very familiar,” he added, “with the obstacles that are piling up,” but we are working no less imperturbably towards the realization of the Masonic ideals, inaugurating the great evolution which, in our country too, will introduce the separation of Church and State... we all bring the days our stone to the construction of Solomon's temple, which will be Ye temple of freedom” (Kelet, 1909, pp. 374, 377).

It is Freemasonry once again that assumes responsibility for the World War II in Hungarian Freemasonry documents. In 1918, Joseph Balasa, Deputy Grand Master, declared, in the Grand Lodge session of November 25, that the partition of Hungary would be fatal to Freemasonry in the country, "because the punishment did not lose not just a nation, but also the idea in whose name nations Western nations had entered the world war.

New statement from Dr. Balasa at the Freemasonry session Hungarian order, January 25, 4949: "Remember, Brothers, that in May 4915, when Italy declared war on us, it was not only because The newspapers told us this, but also, as did the PF... Fleisg recalls this, citing primary sources, partly through official channels. of Italian Freemasonry, in which I myself have read the "tables" addressed to the Lodges of Italy by the Grand Master of that country. Perfect-They wanted war and they waged it. We knew that too. through our personal connections. Brother Temesvary was, in Italy, in mission of the Grand Lodge. Italian Freemasonry has never denied that she wanted war against imperialist and clerical Austria and "also against us; she has, rather, always proudly proclaimed it." (Kelet, 1919, XXXI, p. 2, and p. 21).

From the Russian Revolution, a report from the secretariat of the Democratic Lodge-Cralie said: "The Russian Revolution wants to create social conditions and fair economic practices and it is well on its way to achieving them.” Finally, this are two Jewish Freemasons, Paul Keri and Joseph Pogany, the future People's Commissar, of infamous memory, who play the role in the assassination of Count Tisza" (1).

Note that the latest news reveals two Jews and that it is easy to arrive at the same conclusion in the other cases. Let's focus on the war of 1914. Little by little... High-value documents update participation of Freemasonry, either in its preparation or in its multiple twists and turns. An article this year revealed the negotiations between Freemasonry in Belgium and Freemasonry in Germany, regarding of the reception of the American Freemasons of the occupation force from the Rhine to the Grand Orient of Belgium, under the presidency of F. Magnette. In his speech, "the Deputy Grand Orator alluded to the pre-war efforts of Belgian Freemasonry to maintain peace by addressing the Grand Lodge of AlleMagne (sic). Two interviews took place without any good result, and, before a third one could occur, the Germans had invaded Belgium, which they ravaged with fire and sword” (2). This The Grand Lodge of Germany was the eclectic lodge of Francfort-sur-le-Mein with which French Freemasonry orga-the Franco-German Masonic Congress was scheduled for August 15th 1914. The confession of the Great Belgian Orator informs us that our Masonry was aware of Germany's war preparations. Magne, and that instead of warning their governments and their country, they were lulled to sleep with words of unity and peace. The war, in essence, began with a Masonic betrayal which

---

(1) Rohrschacher Zeitung (Gazette de Rohrschach-Switzerland), April 19, 1921; and International Catholic Press Agency, Fribourg (Switzerland), 7 mat 1921.

(2) New England Craftsman (Boston, Massachusetts, USA), March 1921, p. 167.

The first accomplice was the Grand Master of Frankfurt, a Jew, F.'. Kohn.

Let's continue our research.

The Wiener Stimmen (the Voices of Vienna) are speaking investigations have begun into the "real culprits" of the war” and publications already published on the subject. Then, at the Following a long list, the writer writes:

We are now trying, through public Masonic conferences-questions, in which speakers take the floor and deliver speeches speeches full of unction, affectionate sentiments, to indoctrinate a the public became suspicious of the nature of Freemasonry universal. When secret organizations operate in public, Even the most naive man immediately suspects what it's about. We had, Last Sunday in Vienna, a small celebration of this kind, a "day of reconciliation,” This is the opportune moment to recall what said recently the English pacifist CR Norman, in a newspaper Glasgow, from the independent workers' party, the Forward, on the "responsa-wounds of war."

“There are,” Norman wrote, “two large companies in Europe that have directly contributing to the outbreak of war were the Russian Ochrana and the Freemason League, which bears the name Grand Orient of France.

Norman is an irrefutable and valuable witness against this Lodge, and he we learn that in 1948 he was asked to contribute to the creation of an English section of the Grand Orient, and that he outlined the main points necessary for the execution of this project. He gathered more information specifics about the Grand Orient and he learned that:

"The French Freemasons, in concert with the Russian government, had conspired to exploit, using Franco-Russian capital, huge parts of Turkey, Austria, and Germany, and to subject them in this way."

The Bank of Paris and the Netherlands, Crédit Lyonnais and Ja Société
The arms factory in Le Creusot is closely linked with the Grand Orient and the latter even had a private office at the ministry of the war. French leaders like Poincaré, Clemenceauceau, Delcassé, Combes, Klotz, Viviani, Millerand, Briand, de Lanessan, According to Norman's assertions, they are all members of the Grand Orient or in close contact with him (1). Jaurès was opposed to this organization tion. As foreign members of the Grand Orient, we must mention among others others Vandervelde, Bissolati, Venizelos and Miliukov. Norman insists on

(1) These close relations also exist with the Grand Lodge and its Supreme Council.

the activities of the Grand Orient of France to instigate war and recalls the opposition between the Italian socialists who had dispositions truly pacifist sites, and the members of the Grand Orient (Italian), opposition that would explain the attack, which remains incomplete to this day-explained, committed in 1917 against the Grand Master (Grand Commandant (deur) of the Italian section Ballori, and against the former Grand Master Ferrari, a mysterious attack that cost Ballori his life.

What can we conclude from this? That all publications on the responsible-
The skills of war are a miserable daub, which aims to mislead, and it will continue so as long as a powerful authority will not have opened all the Freemasonic archives for the
to make available to current and future historians. “Down with diplomacy-
"Secret matter," they cried during the war. We take up this cry again, this motto, with a slight modification: "Down with secret organizations; to Down with the mysteries of the Lodges! Let's open the Freemason archives!
"Niques".

Then, and only then, will we know the truth about the people who are responsible for the war and the countless misfortunes it has caused inflicted on half the universe (1),

This is for the Freemasons. Who leads them? Read the following study.
titled: Did the Jews foresee the world war? It will suffice to establish our thesis: The thinking brain and the hand
Those in charge are the brain and the hand of the Jew:

Before we embark on a more detailed study of the link that exists between the written program contained in the documents known as the
In the name of Protocols of the Elders of Zion, we will examine the plans that were future at the time the "Protocols" were written. It is necessary to
It should be remembered, however, that what was future in 1896 and 1905 may have already passed.
today, what was then only a plan can now be in the process of being realized. If we keep this in mind, we will be completely in agreement with the language used by "Protocol" 22:

"I have striven to carefully reveal the secrets of the events-past and future events, and these important phenomena of the future pro-chain towards which we rush through a flood of great crises”.

Several of these "important phenomena" have occurred, and their accomplishment has shed a brighter light on the issue than we are currently studying.

The Great War provided an illustration of this which is clear in all minds. Jewish commentaries on this series of articles, placed great emphasis on the fact that one of the articles was devoted to the

(1) Wiener Stimmen, October 19, 1919.

description of the important place that the Jewish question held in Germany gne, and they tried to mislead people by making them believe that this
The series of articles was, in reality, part of a subtle propaganda campaign.
post-war Germany. The truth is that articles about the state of the
The question, which a number of countries have been asked to address, has been set aside in the...
in order to present, as soon as possible, the question before the American spirit. The articles thus set aside will be published in opportune time, although outside their ranks. Today, Germany is perhaps, with the exception of the United States, the most subjected to Jewish domination — domination exercised both internally and from the outside — and at the moment a series of events far more serious than those that were presented in the first article could be published.
It should be noted that the facts presented in this first article were initially denied.
by the Jews and subsequently acknowledged as accurate by their Jewish spokespeople to United States. Indeed, since the article was written, public sentiment

Germany swept Jews out of a large proportion of public sector jobs. German public opinion has made supreme efforts to put German political administration in German hands. But Did she rid Germany of the Jews? Not at all. In fact, their entrenchments extended further and were much deeper than the mere possession of official power. Their control over industries essential matters, finances, the future of Germany, did not relax the less than anything in the world. It's there, it's immutable. What does this consist of? Influence? We will tell the reader in due course.

If we now speak of Germany in relation to the Jews, it is for the following reason: It will be remembered that this was from Germany that, for the first time, the cry of "annexations" arose, and he left of Germany at a time when all war activities and all the Germany's warlike sentiments were, by everyone's admission, under the Control of the Jews. "Annexations!" This cry once echoed around the world. and to this cry went forth, as a reaction from the United States, a nation which, at this At that moment, he wasn't even participating in the war; this other cry: "No "of annexations!" That was how the question was thrown before the world. like a dramatic incident.

The people of all countries had not been long in forgetting the blood of battles, war profiteers, and many other vital details; it was dealing with a subject that related to the end of the war, and not to its First, the question of "annexations." Now that we know who were the people who controlled the expression of the goals of Germany's war, now that we know what they were at the same time at the time, US foreign policy advisors, the launch- The way this question of "Annexations" is perceived in the minds of the world becomes An interesting topic. We say interesting, but not quite. intelligible.

It is only after reading the "Protocols" that one obtains a full light on this subject, and it is likely that this drafting of "Protocols," which is now in everyone's hands, dates from 1896. There is evidence as solid as a battleship plate for the date 1905.

The second "Protocol" begins with a warlike tone. Here are the first words:

"It is indispensable for our purpose that wars, as much as possible, do not provide any territorial advantages. This will make the war on the economic front, and nations will witness the power of our superiority by the @ that we will bring."

Who, between the years 1896 and 1905, was thinking about its application to warfare? of the "no annexations" formula? Was that you? Do you know what Did statesmen think about it? We know that the military was concerned- pay for the resources to be used and the operations to be carried out in case of war possible. We know that statesmen, among the most responsible- bles, worked to consolidate a balance of interests that was of a nature to make war extremely unlikely. Who then surpassed them? all in anticipation and planning stages, quite completely for establish a defined plan of "no annexations"?

Fortunately, the key to the problem is provided to us by sources Jewish women who leave no room for doubt. The American newspaper Jewish News (American Jewish News), of September 19, 1919, contains, at The first page contained an advertisement that read as follows:

WHEN THE PROPHETS SPEAK,

by Litman ROSENTHAL.

“Many years ago, Nordau predicted the Balfour Declaration. Litman Rosenthal, his close friend, reported the incident in a very interesting ".

The article begins on page 464: "It was Saturday, the day after At the close of the sixth Congress, I received a telephone message from "D. Herzl, inviting me to come and see him."

This sets the date: the Sixth Zionist Congress was held in Basel in August. 1903.

The article continues:

"Upon entering the hotel lobby, I met the mother of Herzl, who welcomed me with his customary kindness and asked me if the feelings of Russian Zionists were now calmer. | :

– Why rather the Russian Zionists, Mrs. Herzl? I asked. Why are you asking about these people?

"Because," she replied, "my son is particularly interested" to them. He sees in them the quintessence, the most vital part of the people "Jewish."

At the Sixth Congress, the British government (Herzl and his agents) had been in contact with the English government, said the Jewish (Encyclopedia, vol. XII, p. 678) had offered the Jews a colony in Uganda (East Africa). Herzl was of the opinion that it should be accepted, not at all as an equivalent to Palestine, but as a step towards it. This was the main subject of the conversation between Herzl and Litman Rosenthal, as reported in this article: "There is some discrepancy between the ultimate goal and the means we have to achieve that goal."

Suddenly, Max Nordau, who appears to have been Herzl's successor at the conference held last month in London, entered the room, this which brought Rosenthal's interview to an end.

Now, let the reader carefully follow the important part from this account by Rosenthal. (Emphasis added):

"About a month later, I went to France on business. I was going to Lyon, I stopped in Paris, and I paid visits, according to my habit-study, to our Zionist friends. One of them told me that, this very evening, the D'Nordau had made a commitment to speak about the sixth Congress, and I, naturally, postponed my departure to attend this meeting and to hear Dr. Nordau's presentation. In the evening, when we We arrived in the great hall and found it completely full. from a crowd eager to hear the Grand Master, whose entrance was greeted to a tremendous ovation. But Nordau, without paying any attention to the applause that greeted him, he immediately began his speech in these terms:

"You have all come here with a question that burns in your heart and
"which trembles on your lips, and indeed this question is a great
"A question of vital importance. I am eager to answer it."
"The question you want to ask me is this: How could I, who have..."
"I was one of the drafters of the Basel program, how dare I..." » speak in favor of the English proposal concerning [Uganda?
"How could Herzl, and I with him, have betrayed your ideal of "Palestine? Because you surely think we betrayed it,"
"that we have forgotten it. But listen to what I have to say to you. If I have
"I spoke in favor of Uganda after long and careful consideration."
"Reflections, and it was deliberately that I advised the Congress
"to welcome, to accept the proposal of the English Government, pro"position made to the Jews by the agreement of the Zionist Congress, and my "Reasons... but instead of explaining my reasons to you, allow me"
"to tell you about a political event in the form of an allegory."

"I'm going to talk about a time that is almost forgotten today,"
"from a time when the European Powers had decided to send
"A fleet against the fortress of Sevastopol. At that time, the Italio,"

The United Kingdom of Italy did not exist. Italy was, in reality, only a the small principality of Sardinia, and Italy, large, free, united, was not that a dream, a fervent desire, a distant ideal for all patriots Italians. The leaders of Sardinia, who were fighting and training plans to create this free and united Italy were the three major popular heroes, Garibaldi, Mazzini and Cavour.

"The European powers invited Sardinia to take part" to the demonstration on Sevastopol and to send, it too, a fleet to participate in the siege of this fortress, and this proposal gave A very lively discussion took place between the leaders of Sardinia. GariBaldi and Mazzini were reluctant to send a fleet to aid the Angleearth, and they said: "Our program, the work we have undertaken The commitment to achieve is a free and united Italy. What have we What to do in Sevastopol? Sevastopol is none of our business, and we we must devote all our energies to our original program, in order to to realize our ideal as soon as possible."

"But Cavour, who at that time was the most eminent, the most capable of leading the statesmen of Sardinia, he whose sight carried the furthest away, insistently declared that his country should join its fleet to that of the other Powers against Sevastopol, and it ends by to take it. Perhaps you will be pleased to learn that the arm Cavour's right-hand man, his friend, his advisor, was his secretary Hartum. a Jew, and in circles where there was opposition, people spoke of scathing terms of Jewish treason. And one day, in an assembly Italian patriots loudly demanded Hartum, the secretary of Cavour, and he was asked to explain his dangerous political actions reux (who sensed betrayal). And here is what he said: "Our dream, our struggle, our ideal, an ideal for which we have already bled and mourned in grief and despair, for which we gave the The lives of our sons and the anguish of our mothers, our only desire, our only But the goal is a free and united Italy. All means are sacred, if they lead to this great and glorious goal. Cavour knows very well that after the battle before Sevastopol, it will be necessary sooner or later to assemble a peace conference, and the Peoples will participate in this conference sessions that will have allied themselves for the war. In truth, Sardinia has no immediate interest in dealing with Sevastopol; but if main-Now that we are providing the assistance of our fleet, we will be seated in the

at the future peace conference, we will enjoy equal rights to those of the other Powers, and at this Conference, Cavour, in his capacity as The representative of Sardinia will proclaim liberty, independence and the unity of Italy. Thus, the dream for which we gave our suffering and our life will become an admirable and happy reality.
And now, if you ask me again what Sardinia
Regarding the matter at Sevastopol, allow me to say the following words, which are like the rungs of a ladder: Cavour, Sardinia, the

"Sevastopol's seat, the future European Peace Conference, the "Proclamation of a free and united Italy."

"The entire audience was captivated by the beautiful diction, truly-" Nordau's poetic, enthusiastic style, and his exquisite, musical French,
The speaker delighted his audience with a pleasure that was, in a way, sensual.
He fell silent for a few seconds, and the audience, intoxicated by this splendid eloquence... quence, applauded wildly. But DURE Nordau asked for the silence, and then he continued:

"Now, this great progressive power, England, but
"the Kishineff pogrom, and as a testament to his sympathy towards
"Our poor people, offered to the Jewish nation, through the intermediary of the "Zionist Congress, the autonomous colony of Uganda. Naturally," Uganda is in Africa, and Africa is not Zion, and never will be.
"Zion," these are Herzl's own words. But Herzl knows very well that nothing is more precious to the cause of Zionism than relations
"Friendly political relations with a power such as England,"
"These relationships are all the more valuable because the main interests of "England's resources are concentrated in the East. Nowhere has there been a precedent."
» more power than in England; therefore there is a great impor-
"trance to accepting, from the hands of England, a colony, and to create"
"Thus, a precedent in our favor. Sooner or later, we will have to resolve the
"The Eastern Question naturally also means the question of the "Palestine. England, which sent a formal political note to "Zionist Congress, to this Congress which has renewed the commitment to follow the "Basel program, England will have the decisive voice in the solution"
"of the Eastern Question, and Herzl believes it is his duty to..."
» maintain the best possible relations with this great pro- Power
"Greciative. Herzl knows that we are on the verge of a tremendous
"A crisis that will affect the entire world. Soon, perhaps, it will be necessary to..."
" convenes a kind of World Congress, and England, the great, the "Free and powerful England, will then want to continue its work"
"that she began with Joffre, generous, that she made in the sixth
"Congress. And if you now ask me what Israel would do
"In Uganda, allow me to answer you in the language of..."
"statesmen of Sardinia, applying them to our case and in
"modifying them in our direction, allow me to tell you the words" » following, as if I were showing you the rungs of a ladder mon-
"so very high, ever higher: Herzl, the Zionist Congress, the pro-» English position on Uganda, the future world war, the confederation » rence of the peer, where a new and free Palestine will be created with
"with the help of England."

"Those last words reached us like a powerful rumble."
thunder ripped through us, and we were all trembling and terrified, as if We had seen a vision of the past. And in my ears resounded these words spoken by our elder brother Achad Haam, who said, to Regarding the speech delivered by Nordau at the first Congress:

"I felt that one of the great prophets of old was speaking to us, that
"His voice descended from the free mountains of Judea, and our hearts burned-
"were within us as we listened to his words filled with
"Wonders, wisdom, and vision."

It is very surprising that Litman's article was allowed to be printed.
Rosenthal. But it only came into being after the Balfour Declaration, at the
the subject of Palestine, and it would never have come about if the Jews they had not believed that part of their program had been accomplished.

The Jew does not betray himself until the moment he believes he has obtained this that he desired, but then he gave in. It was only to Jews that the 1908 program was communicated, the program of the scale:
the future world war, the peace conference, the Jewish agenda.
When we thought we had climbed this ladder to the top, the audience began to talk.

A similar illustration of this can be found in the fall of the tsar.
When news of this event leaked out, it was an opportunity to grand celebrations in New York, and a Gentile of national renown
he gave a speech in which he praised a nationally renowned American Jew, for having started the downfall of the Tsar, by providing the money with which propaganda was disseminated among the Russian prisoners in Japan.

during the Russo-Japanese War. The story only spread then.
after the success of the plot. It is only natural that the last ones who saw the final act of the plot unfold, those who saw the scene even the assassination of Nicholas Romanovitch, his wife, his young girls, from her crippled little boy, were "five commissioners of the Soviets, all five of the Jews.” This had begun with the help by an American financier, was completed with Soviet commissars.

Did international Jews foresee the war in 1903?
Rosenthal's confession is only a very small part of the evidence they
They foresaw it. And did they only foresaw it? Everything would be for the best.
if it were only a matter of prediction, and if the facts did not put the
a clear sign of provocation.

For the moment, the reader is invited to remember two Points from Rosenthal's article: "Perhaps you will find it agreeable to learn that Cavour's right-hand man, his friend, his advisor, was "His secretary Hartum, a Jew." That's how the press described it.
A Jewish woman speaks of one of her own. If this newspaper (the Dearborn Indiapendent), or a Chicago newspaper, or a New York newspaper, so They were compiling a list of the secretaries of powerful men in the world, and followed each name with this note: "His secretary, a "Jewish," the Jewish Society Against Defamation would send letters of protest. But in the mind of the Jew, there is a rule for the Gentile and a rule for the Jew. If the Jew wrote in newspapers intended to the public, and if he were to speak of Hartum, he would call him an Italian.

The Jewish secretaries who were plentiful before the war, who were plentiful during the war, and which were no less abundant during the Confederation
In the reign of Peace, were they less brilliant men than Hartum?
Were there not Hartums in England, in France, in Germany and Even in Russia? (In the United States, there were several) who saw the "Ladder program." Max Nordau, who saw it so clearly in Did he forget about it in 1903, in 1904, and in 198?

Here is what we know: The Jews, at their Congress in Basel, in
In 1903, they predicted the future world war. How did they know? that it "had to be a world war?"

We also know this: the "Protocols," perhaps as early as 1896, but certainly no later than 1905, DEAN had the policy of "No annexations."

The world war took place.

The "No Annexations" program was followed. Co, who was then at
The future in the Jewish world agenda is now in the past.

In the "Protocols," there are two forms of declaration. One
One of them is: "We have done"; the other: "We will do". If, during this summer, somewhere in the world, the supreme secret spokesman
The World Programme is aimed at the class of international Initiates; it
He will have to say, "We did..." in many places where the
The spokesperson in 1896 reportedly said: "We will..." A few articles from programs have become accomplished facts:

“We will present ourselves as the saviors of the lab-
"Lielises"

This has been done and it is still being done:

“We will divert ideas towards industry and commerce from "Nice."

It has been done.

“We will create a highly centralized administration in a way to seize all social forces with a firm hand.

It has been done.

“We will adopt for ourselves the liberal side of all parties and of "all the movements and we will provide them with speakers."

It has been done.

"We will increase wages disproportionately."

It has been done.

"But at the same time we will produce a rise in the price of essential items.

It has been done.

“We will also dry up the sources of production by insinuating…”
ideas of anarchy in the minds of the workers.

It has been done.

"In order to demonstrate that we have reduced the Kind governments of Europe, we will show our power to one of them through crimes of violence, that is to say, through a reign of terror." – "Protocol" 7.

Who would hesitate to say: This too has been done, after having seen Russia, after noting the attitude taken by the prime ministers of the AnEngland, France, and Italy, with regard to the Soviets? Who then would hesitate to acknowledge the subjugation of government men faced with a state of affairs that each measure taken makes more confusing Again? Who would hesitate upon seeing Europe spread out on the ground? afflicted with an injury whose healing is systematically prevented?

"Our plans will not immediately disrupt the institutions" current. We will limit ourselves to altering its operation, and, by Consequently, the course of their actions will be governed by the established plans. "by us."

It has been done.

"We will impose our will on the press and hold the reins tight."

This has been done. Right now, the reins are being pulled very tightly at United States, as many newspaper editors can attest.

"Even if there are people willing to write against us, per- "Sound will not print their writings."

This has been done to a large extent. This has been done entirely for the The press that pays off.

"In order to incite speculation, we will encourage among the Gentiles a strong need for luxury items, luxury which has a sovereign appeal.

That was fatal.

"We must be able to respond to any act of opposition," by having the neighbors of any country that dares us declare war to oppose us, and if these neighbors want to band together against us, "We must unleash a world war." – "Protocol" 7.

The term "World War" is the very one used by RosenThal and Nordau: "Herzl," said Nordau, in 1908, "knows that we are on the eve of a terrible global catastrophe.

"We must create anxiety, dissension, and animomutual relations throughout Europe and, thanks to European relations, on other continents."

This has been done; this passage continues as follows: "There is a double advanceTag: First, we will impose respect on all countries through this method, because they will realize that we have the power to do to either sow chaos or restore order as we please."

That too has been done.

The speaker in 1896 was right when he spoke of these vast events aspects of the near future towards which we are rushing through a torrent of major crises.

Not only was the "No Annexations" program implemented in to the extent possible, exactly as the "Protocols" outlined it-

They know, but a host of other plans have also been prepared and maintained. ready for a future project, at the same time as that of the "No annexations." The "No annexations" system, from the point of view political morality is one thing, and this program "No annexations" when the reason given is: "That will shift the war to the economic sphere, and the nations will perceivewill demonstrate the strength of our superiority in the aid we provide them. "rons." The world was in favor of the "No Annexations" program. when it came to political morality; the other program, the one that he only used this morality as his vehicle, and it was kept secret.

There are also other topics in this group that will require attention. tion, but that will require another article to address them. In the meantime, it is It is only natural to wonder if, after the completion of the program as outlined in the "Protocols", an achievement accomplished on Given so many points, a new "Protocol" has not been drawn up, if the scale has not lengthened, and if the 'Elders of Zion have not made known To their initiates, the new bars to climb, if further revelations are forthcoming. will not attain knowledge of the world. It would seem that a An accurate assessment of what we already know would bring the world to such a point. state of vigilance that would result in the total annihilation of the program and would make combining new programs impossible. But The Gentiles love their comforts, and a bright star shines for the Jew and "calls him" (1).

The Jewish star is called: "World Port", the property from the ground, the black band of capitalists, the collapse of fortunes, the governance of states, the enslavement of minds, the white slave trade, the revolt of souls, the anarchy of peoples, the hecatomb of human lives, and, to close the circle of the symbolic serpent, the collapse of worlds upon the ruins of the Catholic Church. For the grand words of revo-
a global revolution, a universal republic, secular laws intangibles, humanitarianism, a pentacle to deify man and annihilate God, cover the sole plan of destruction of the Church and accuse the Jewish community of a unique agreement with the Church and the Freemasonry, the sole concentration of their carnage, of arson, theft, massacres and nihilism against the Clericalism and Papism. Los von Rom or No Popery are the watchword born of the Renaissance, promulgated by the Protestantism, as practiced by the Lodges, is therefore the cry of

---

(1) This study naturally alludes to the series of articles in the Dear-Born Independent on The International Jew. It appeared in the issue August 21, 1920, p. 168. T

the Jewish war, mother of Reformation Humanism and of Freemasonry.

We are witnessing the penultimate act of this sinister drama that we refuse to see out of fear or cowardice. The denials Jews, especially since the publication of the "Protocols", the promises of governments even more Jewish than Masonic decrees, the decrees of Bolshevism which could well
The mere delays are enough to reassure the crowd.
desiring blissful tranquility and lulled by this selfish Motto: "After us, the deluge." After us, no. The deluge.
Judeo-Masonic will not be stemmed by mere desires;
and by letting the torrent swell, we provoke its terrible devastation-stations. The whole Old World is close to it, and the New
The world is not far from it, for the speed of the waters is dizzyingneur. Despite appearances, our country is perhaps to be less preserved than other nations. Bring closer in a singular coincidence these two words: one is from the 7th
May 1917, sent to fifteen generals, army commanders; she
It comes from a young girl lost in the Vendée region:

"It is Freemasonry which, in agreement with Germany,
wanted war to destroy Catholic France.

The other is from Lenin, dated November 2, 1920:

"Because the common goal is the destruction of France" (1).

Masonic Map of the Universal Republic

If these two warnings are ignored, then they these issues are so clearly evident in the documents we publish,
The nefarious work of our enemies now only has to be accomplished.
What do they want? The Universal Republic. In our edition from the "Protocols" of 1905, we are talking about the Masonic map-
the stifling of the universal Republic in these terms:

"This map anticipates the realization of the Judeo-Masonic by the United States of Europe, in the United Republic-verselle, except for Ja Russie which is marked: "Russia, desert".

It is reproduced in the German edition on page 214.
with the following legend:

"Enlarged reproduction of a drawing entitled: "The Dream"

---

(1) Official Journal, March 28, 1921; Parliamentary debates, session of Senate, March 22, p. 274.

"of the Kaiser," which appeared in the weekly newspaper _ English Truth, Christmas issue 1890. The owner-publisher of this newspaper, whose circulation then exceeded one million of copies, was the politician and Freemason Henry Labouchère, MP (Member of Parliament).

How could F. Labouchère have foreseen, in 1890, the fall the Central Powers and the fate of Russia, which became a desert by the dissolving disorganization of Bolshevism, if he had not Knowing the Judeo-Masonic plan of the "Protocols?" And How is it that a million copies of this map astonishing that he had not grasped the opinion of the peril that threatened the universe?

In any case, the universal Republic, the fruit of the social revolution, as we have said, is only the precursor to The final act of the Masonic drama. What will be the final one?

The Jewish Supergovernment.

The work of destruction is complete; henceforth, Freemasonry which is merely a destructive force that must disappear. The "Pro-"Tocols" mention it in their fifteenth session:

The establishment of any new secret society will also fall.
under the threat of death; as for the secret societies that exist-tents currently available and known to us, those that serve and have Having served our cause, we will dissolve them and send their members to exile at the ends of the earth.

This is how we will deal with the Freemasons.
Kind people who might know more than we need to. We
We will live in perpetual fear of exile, like Freemasons to whom, for some reason, we would show mercy. We we will pass a law that will condemn all former members of Secret societies to be exiled from Europe, where will be the center of our Go-government.

The decisions of our Government will be irrevocable and [no one] will have the right to appeal (1). |

These summary executions are logical. The antagonism of Freemasonry and Judaism result from an irreconcilable antinomy.
deductible. The Freemasons want the universal Republic as the ultimate goal, fraternization, humanitarianism, the reign of people and access to power for all. The Jews do not see in

(1) Ms Jouin, The “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion, p. 188.

the universal Republic as a springboard to dominate the fallen nations, enslave the people and establish the Supergothe Israeli government, based on a dictatorship, an autocracy, a tyranny unknown to dictators, autocrats, and tyrants of the past. The Judeo-Masonic work is the same; the ideal
The relationship between Jews and Freemasons is diametrically opposed.

Therefore, the real enemy is the Jew. If we clear the consideration of human contingencies and chance events to encompass the history of the world and the
As the ages progress, we find ourselves facing two immense cities:
the city of God and the city of evil; and, for twenty centuries, the
The city of God is the Catholic Church, and the city of evil is the people Jewish, an international people, spread throughout the earth, not like Freemasonry in the form of a dissociable society, but at the state of a people indissolubly united and irrevocably cosmopolitan. Here below, the eternal struggle between good and evil, of The conflict between Christ and Satan is playing out between the Catholic people and the the Jewish people; and its particular character, at present,
It's because it's being played out in broad daylight.

*
k *

What is the remedy?

Pogroms? That would be un-Christian; let's leave such things alone.
means to the Bolshevik Jews. Besides, it's a solution Childish: we kill individuals, we kill a people herded into
You can't kill an international people by crossing its borders.

Ghettos? That was the defense of the Middle Ages, and it was
It was applied in a Christian manner and happily by the Popes.
It is certain that the Jewish peril dates back to the emancipation of this
The people, that is the first benefit of the Revolution.

The conversion of the Jews? It's somewhat on the agenda.
and this persuasion is linked to the upheavals that pre-
For many, this spells the end of the world. Such a solution... shrouded in mystery. Conversion of the Jews and the end of the world are indeed problematic and fall into the impenetrable designs of the Heavenly Father. Nevertheless, his conception
The current system seems flawed to us. Abbot Joseph Lémann written: Ht i

The new organization of nations does not allow for the exclusion of Jews.

That's true. Only, assuming that the major storms that occur prepare to overwhelm or dissolve the mations, the Hebrews who still have their laws will survive (1).

This holy ark that will save the Hebrews from the new flood in which all nations are engulfed today holds very closely to the Israeli Supergovernment, and the Jews converts, who became Catholic, while remaining Jewish according to their temperament, seem not to accept the gifts of light and thanks to which, in order to achieve their ideal of uni- domination

Verselle (2). ;

(1) Abbé Lemann, La Prépondérance juive, p. 159.

(2) We read in Jules Severin's The Key to the Apocalypse, the ap-
The following clarification on the conversion of the Jews & regarding the commentary from ch. XIII of the Apocalypse (p. 53, Paris, Bloud et Barral, 1900):

“What is this second beast that comes up out of the earth, and has its apostles?”
and his wonders, as has been announced, to make people believe that the Antichrist Is it Christ himself, to deceive even his chosen ones? Who is communicating?
to the first, in a way, its power, V. 12, which has Unleashed, summoned, armed? Who has enough capital to prepare them?
means, enough hatred to plot our extermination, and who will to put to death all those who do not worship the first beast? What is this height of apostasy and hatred of God, after which there is no More than hell?

"One would have to be blind not to see what is being prepared: it is the Freemasonry is the Jewish community that has been organizing itself for four centuries, shaking the Church with religious wars, instructing the philosophers, decreeing, in 1782, in Wilhelmsbad, Germany, the Revolution
lution, in the Lodges of Secret Societies, overthrowing kings, demolishing nagging persecution, giving power to anti-Christian powers, humbling others, seizing the Papal States, restoring the laws and the customs of the Roman Empire, plundering Europe to prepare a treasure of war, stirring up wars and revolutions for the day when they will be able to fight against God and against his Christ, such a crime before God, after that there's nothing left but to end the world. But God sends Elijah and Enoch, through a final act of his grace, and faithful to his promises.
We saw in Chapter XI that this occurred after the Asian invasion. The conversion sion of the Jews, do not count on it as before giving you a little of Peace before the end of times. They are at the head of our enemies, they They arm them, they unleash them against the Christian peoples.

"For those who believe that Jews will convert so easily,"
So read chapter XI of Saint Paul's Epistle to the Romans, which says that they will come last, but that they will be called not because of their works, but the virtues of their fathers; and elsewhere, saying that they persecuted the Prophets, put Our Lord to death, persecuted his apostles, and that the wrath of God is upon them until the end. (1 Thess., ch.
II, V. 14 to 17). On one side, Muhammad, whose name in Greek numerals makes 666;

HAS

But then what?

There remains one solution, the only real one, the only effective one, the only one preserver from tomorrow's cataclysms, the only liberator
The Jewish peril is our conversion. The Jew is the punishment.
of the Catholic; it penetrates our societies to the extent that they drive out God. The more you reject the poverty of Christ to The more the Jew worships the golden calf, the more he monopolizes public wealth.
and exchange our most beautiful palaces for banks. The more you reject
The purity of Christ, the more the Jew sows corruption of morals, the more he changes the stones, that is to say the foundations of the social edifice, made of loaves of ignominy, so that you Consume your bodies and souls in debauchery. The more you
The more you reject the humility of Christ, the more you exalt man in his science and discoveries to make him a God, plus these Vain adulations of human thought envelop it in ignorance.
rancid and dark, plus the proud idol, erected against the

On the other hand, this sect, a renegade of the Old Testament itself, imbued hatreds of the Talmud, and to which Christians eagerly bring their money through infatuation and with a spirit of desperate hallucinationrants, the colonial campaigns, to awaken the warrior instinct of these hordes so numerous, whose number is like the sand of the sea, then European rivalries, which arm these peoples, divide us among ourselves.
the spirit of civil war widespread everywhere.

“Saint Paul, Epistle II to the Thessalonians, speaking of the man of sin, said as a sign of his coming: “Let him who holds hold
"Again, until it is divided in half." The schism of the Church
The Greek woman is born, God gives her time to do penance; she ends, and Muhammad invades. Europe still holds out; let her arm herself, that it may tear itself apart, that it may no longer inspire terror in Asia, that she experiences some failure in her wars of covetousness, that these few-
Once they are armed and provided with the necessary supplies, he invades the rest of the world:

Great quartet partes terræ. (Apoc. VI, 8).

"As for the promised wonders, hasn't she already channeled the lightning?"
gave hypnotism sessions? Isn't there still such a thing among the pagans?
Amazing and surprising things? The idols of the palens do not ren-Didn't they speak oracles? The pagans had, on their hand and on the front, the mark of their idols; in another sense, those who accept-Won't they have the dignities of a power that kills Christians?
her livery, her uniform, her paperwork, even her diploma, if she has precursors that impose them, as we already see all too clearly, in front of the Corruption of all educational programs? There is a talisman: its figure, if it were not so lavishly used, and which will remain valid until the end of the world, to buy or to sell, because this power is a
The power of money. But first, one must have the current monetary standard, the
The number of the beast. Herein lies wisdom; let us remember it.

Christ collapses with a crash or falls to dust in the the nothingness of a nature reduced to the level of animals without reason. The pursuit, the thirst for pleasure, the stupefactionthe tization of the Goim, that's what you read in the "Pro-"Tocols," that's what you see in our people who are not Catholic in name only.

Their conversion is the only solution. Bring them in.
Christ Jesus and the Jew will retreat of his own accord, the merchants of Temple will see their golden tablets overturned, the debauchers
Those involved in prostitution will be suffocated by the smell of lilies which will be our purified souls, the makers of human idols will be crushed by the collapse of their lifeless statue, while the soul, freeing itself from their embrace, will become believer in Christ who saved the world and who wants to save again.

In short, let's stop becoming Jews. Then the Jew will return-
The Wandering Jew will come; and he will hide in his ghettos, in awaiting his sincere conversion, the day when we ourselves will sincerely become Catholic again.

July 2, 1921.
| E. JOUIN,
| Prelate of His Holiness,
Parish priest of Saint-Augustin.

APPENDIX I

FREEMASONRY in HUNGARY

has

Under this heading, we provide a brief account of the two volumes already cited, in which various authors have published the Secret papers found in the Lodges of Budapest. This publication is too important from the point of view of the Judeo-Masonic question so that we do not expect to provide a translation soon literal.

The book on "Freemasonry in Hungary" which has just been published to publish "The Union of Christian and National Societies of "Hungary" is divided into three parts, preceded by an introduction written by Mr. Charles Wolff, president of the "Union".

The first part, entitled: "The Crimes of Freemasonry-
"Friet," is attributed to the pen of Mr. Adorjan Barcsay, and contains a large quantity of documents seized during the dissolution of the Lodges Masonic in 1920.

The second part, written by Joseph Palatinus, is entitled: "The secrets of a provincial Lodge" and exposes, like the first, the secret Freemasonic work of destruction that led to the Hungary to the October Revolution of 1918 and to communism in 1919.

Finally, a last section contains the list of Lodge members.
Masonic lodges in Hungary, which proves to us that 90% of the free-Hungarian stonemasons were Jewish.

(1) The crimes of Freemasonry, by Adorjan Barcsay. — The documents Secret dealings of a provincial Lodge, by Joseph Palatinus. — The list of members of the Lodges under the authority of the Grand Symbolic Lodge of Hon-Grie. Preface by Charles Wozrr.— Budapest, "National League of Societies"
Christians", 1921. |

HAS
>

has
= ~*~

ro

ririri

11198
>» >»

aM

UL

, CUS
PA
: 14

~~. `

L
VNANANANANANALANAN NN AN AN AN RAR A

OMPLEMOLESITY SESE IE LMS If Mf /f fr

7 = JE ow + -
there
x N
-au |

~~ «=

THE CEREMONY HALL OF THE “HAJNAL” LODGE

(Dawn of Budapest)

Digitized by Google

We will summarize some chapters from the first part later specifically dedicated to the activities of Freemasons in Hungary and to their role in preparing the revolutions that have shaken the social peace of the country.

The first three chapters briefly summarize the story. general of the Freemasonic movement and contain little that fairly widespread data. Chapters IV-VIII analyze The working methods of Hungarian Freemasons: their struggle against the Church and religious education in schools, their campaign in favor of universal suffrage, their policy of nationalities and their international tendencies. Finally, the last chapters, those that should particularly hold our attention, demonstrate how the Jews, grouped in the Lodges, systematically meticulously prepared the defeat and then the upheaval which have followed the end of the war.

Chapter XI reveals to us, with the help of numerous documents, that in Hungary, as everywhere else, Freemasonry is an eminently Jewish work, Thus, for example, the book containing the Constitution of the Grand Symbolic Lodge of Hungary, printed In Budapest in 1905, it bears the date of the Jewish era of 5886. The text The vows spoken by the members are written in Hebrew. The secret passwords, which change every six months or so year, are also Hebrew. The list published at the end of the book This shows us that 92% of Lodge members are Jewish; this are only Abel, Bloch, Berger, Fuchs, Herz, Lévy, Pollak, Rosenthal, Schön, etc., or Magyarized Jewish names, such as Kun, Kadar, etc.

The author of the book cites a very characteristic preface in this regard, appeared at the beginning of Professor Pierre Agoston's book (one of the people's commissars who shared power with Bela Kun, and that Hungarian courts sentenced to death in December last), entitled: "The Way of the Jews". It says, among other things things, that doing the history of the Jews of Hungary is doing history of the Hungarian Freemason movement."

Another chapter (X) provides us with proof that charity Public access has never been the primary goal of Hungarian Freemasons. as they liked to make people believe. Although they had not obtained the recognition of their Lodge by the Ministry of the Interior in 1886 that on the express condition of not engaging in politics, the charity was for them merely a facade behind which concealed the secret intentions of the Jewish Freemasons to seize slowly all political power.

In a report dated February 24, 1911, signed Paul Szense, Grand-Master of the Martinovics Lodge, we find passages such as This one: "We readily acknowledge that charity as The current practice of exercising it does not correspond to our ideas. It is necessary focus our attention on the need to achieve change-radical changes that are disrupting current society."

In 1916, Charles Szalay, the Grand Master of the Comenius Lodge acknowledges in a speech delivered to a plenary assembly that:
"The spirit that animates true Freemasons has always been obsolete" destructive and destructive. Public charitable works are not not their main goals, but stunningly a means to achieve them to the final goal."

Regarding the role of Freemasons in social movements,
The author also cites the extremely characteristic decisions of the Basel Congress in 1897, convened by the Bnai Brath Lodge, whose members are exclusively Jewish. The Grand Master tells a session: "We must maintain the spirit of revolt among the workers. They are the ones we will send to the barricades, in ensuring that their demands are never met, because we need their discontent to ruin the Christian society and hasten anarchy. That moment must come and that the Christians themselves then come to implore the Jews to
"to seize power."

Regarding their role in the communist revolution of Hungary, this work highlights that the Freemasons have tra-
They were particularly well-covered by the press. With patient and tireless work, they have managed to win over most of the press outlets to with the help of which they sought to diminish national sentiment
The Hungarian daily newspaper Vilag is especially responsible for the weakening of discipline in the Hungarian army, from the fourth year of the war. It was by the thousands of copies that it was distributed in the trenches. These are also the French newspapers-Jewish masons who have always defended the Jewish immigrants of Galicompanies, which have ruined the economic life of Hungary through their shameful speculations during the war.

_ They continued to work to poison the youth of the schools of their anti-patriotic theories. The Vilag of December 8, 1910 wrote-vait: "The exaggerated teaching of the Hungarian language, the exaltation patriotic sentiment through the study of national songs has not "Only one result: the stupefaction of children." Or perhaps the Kelet, official journal of Hungarian Freemasons, printed on December 14th 1910:

"We need to win over the professors and school teachers to to reach the souls of youth through them and prepare for teaching secular. Teachers must be the forerunners of ideas
the most advanced."

In 1942, during the national holiday of Saint Stephen's Day, Vilag wrote: “This fairy tale no longer tells us anything. It is strange-
"It no longer represents our ideal."

Besides the press and schools, they did everything they could-were trying to gain as much influence as possible in political life and hasten the vote by universal suffrage, which they knew was impossible still in Hungary. As for the attitude of the Freemasons during The author highlights the revolution through several quotations.
well chosen.

In 1918, the Grand Symbolic Lodge of Budapest decided to the unanimous decision to send to Count Michel Karolyi and the National Council-a revolutionary welcome address, declaring "that the Hungarian Freemasonry will support the new with all its might.
your government, because she finds it very favorable to the accomplishment-
"sealing of its ends."

And on November 2nd, the same Lodge clarified its feelings: "The
The government currently in power aims to achieve the
The same ideas as ourselves. Many of our brothers are mem-government officials, which is a guarantee for us that the Revolutionary Hungary will follow the path of radical reforms.
Our duty is to help this government to the best of our ability.

Finally, let us remember that all Masonic Lodges have They were dispersed as early as 1920 and their property confiscated for the benefit of the State. according to the laws of the Hungarian Constitution. An investigation has been opened by the Ministry of the Interior to find out what the Freemasons directly responsible for unconstitutional acts nels and to bring the guilty parties before regular courts as soon as the investigation is completed. The "Christian Societies" which have formed in part since the end of the war have all listed at the top of their program is the fight against the francsmasons and strongly demand their indictment because Hungarian public opinion largely holds them responsible the wounds of defeat and especially of the revolutionary unrest that have caused so much harm in Hungary.

In 1920, when the dissolution of the Lodges was decreed in this Mr. Berthelot addressed the country, on behalf of the Freemasons of France, a letter to Count Albert Apponyi, head of the hongraise delegation for peace, praying that he would intervene to decide the The Hungarian government is considering reversing its decision. Members of the British diplomatic missions in Budapest and Vienna have took similar steps, but the government made them knowing that as long as the role of Freemasons is not fully understood Once the facts were cleared, there could be no question of reinstating them in their former privileges.

Dr. Jules GESZTESI.

APPENDIX II

The Jews & the Papacy

I

THE TALMUDIC BOOKS

We find in the Analecta Juris Pontificii the article following :

"A letter that the Cardinal of Cremona addressed to the Cardinal" Palotta, in Vienna, in 1629, offers us the opportunity to talk about Talmudic books, which were mentioned once before, 4th delivery of the Analecta. This letter was inserted in the Treatise of Cardinal Albifius, de inconstantia in fide, chap. xxx, n. 310.

"Our Holy Father the Pope, as well as the Most Eminent Cardinals, my colleagues, have examined, in the Congregation of Holy Office, everything that VS has made known about the freedom and the power that the Jews of these lands have to use of their impious books, and particularly of the Talmud, which is read publicly in synagogues and serves to form their rabbis. As this matter is extremely serious because of the obvious danger of corruption that purity faces of the Christian religion, it seemed appropriate to communicate a VS what, after careful consideration, was deemed necessary to remedy such a great evil and to convince of the opposition The remedy's effectiveness applies to all those who, by chance, for lack of knowledge the potential harm that could result, and on the legal proceedings troublesome Jews, might want to defend of these books. But this communication is in no way intended to but to rekindle the zeal of His Imperial Majesty, who draws no in his own piety and in his knowledge than powerful motives to keep his states safe from such a pestilent contagiontielle. That is why, since His Majesty intends, as well as the written VS illustrious, that we obey the bull of Clement VIII, of blessed memory, concerning forbidden books, It will be necessary to apply oneself first, with the greatest care, to destroy the Thalmud which has a very large number of volumes, just as there have also been, at various times, a large number of rabbis who worked on its compositionsition. It is true, or at least some people think so, that, among the early authors of the Thalmud, there were some who wrote a good doctrine in accordance with the mysteries of our holy Christian religion. Nevertheless, those who writesaw that after them they corrupted it, and the writers who have Then those who succeeded them so corrupted and spoiled everything that

Each of the volumes contains not only outrages and execrable blasphemies against Jesus Christ our Savior, fables and lies that corrupt the true meaning of Holy Scripture, but also precepts and commandments dements contrary to the very law of Moses, to all the rights of people and to all the natural laws that they are, as simple men, required to observe. That is why a large number The Sovereign Pontiffs forbade all Jews the use and reading such pernicious doctrines, which they also did many Christian princes, in their own states, by application of the commands of the Popes, who ordered, Furthermore, that all the Talmudic books be collected, in all parts of Christendom, and thrown into the fire, thus that were prescribed by Gregory IX (1230), Innocent IV (1244), Clement IV, Honorius IV, and John XXII. But, later on, this detestable work having been resurrected and, thanks to the printingmere, spread throughout the world, in almost large numbers infinite, it pleased Pope Julius III to order, by a new edict, that a search be made for the persons who possessed and were reading this book. He further prescribed, in 1553, that, specificallysowing during the days when the Jews celebrated their festival of tabernacles, all books of this kind were burned, in all The cities of Italy, which was carried out. Paul IV, after having having taken the advice of this supreme tribunal of the Holy Inquisition, did the same thing and stated that such volumes should be regarded, without further decision, as included among the books condemned by the Catholic Church. And as it was said that at In Cremona, the Jews owned a considerable bookstore, in which contained numerous volumes of Talmudic texts, this The holy tribunal ordered a visit to it and the volumes of which These 12,000 were thrown into the flames. another 10,000 were also burned in Recanati, with Comments by a man named Manahen, on the Pentateuch all full of Talmudic impiety. Gregory XIII, in turn, ordered that the inquisitors proceed against the Jews who possessed some of these volumes; but the heads of this like a hydra, continuing to regenerate even as they were crushed. Clement VIII, through the necessary severity of his constitution, provided, not without much benefit, for such great disorder, by prohibiting the reading and possession of these books, by refusing to admit them, not even on the condition that they are expurgated and in condemning them in the most absolute manner to be burned. That if this constitution, which in Italy has retained all its vigor, would have been equally observed in all other States, this treacherous race would not have had the means to conspire, as She does so, to the ruin of the Christian religion and to the corruption of good morals.

"As for secular princes, we know the pious Ferdinand and Isabelle's rigor towards people and against the Talmudic books of the Jews; which he well ordered Before them Henry, also King of Spain; and what Charles V did, being still very young, when he refused with such a generous piety in this large quantity of gold that the Jews offered him of Spain.

"In 1553, in the Venetian States and by order of Benedict" Valerio, Marc Centano and François Longo, senators and judges of the blasphemy tribunal, an incal– number culprit of these volumes.

"In 1230, the chancellor of Paris and the doctors of theology, by order of Gregory IX, and thanks to the favor and to With the king's help, they had just as many burned in the public square. that it was possible to find some through very meticulous research tieuses.

"In 1239, King Saint Louis, with an infinite number of these books, he also publicly set a large fire.

"Even the constitution of Emperor Justin against the Jews and their writings are regarded by Baronius and by all the other writers, as if they should only be understood by books thalmudic.

Finally, last year, 1628, M" the Nuncio, who is with the King of Poland, having learned that the Jews had printed, in Lublin, a large number of Talmudic books, complained to the king and other officials of the kingdom, in order to to obtain not only a ban on the publication of these books, but also that the Jews are punished, which is what should be done, according to what one thinks, already executed, as a result of the excellent provisions and intentions in which M“ the Nuncio found the king and his employees.

"Now, however, an emperor who stands out reigns." Through his piety and zeal, one must hope that, far from to limit himself to imitating the example of so many princes and his ancestors themselves, he will want, for the greater advantage and profit of all of Christendom, to so thoroughly uproot the roots of evil, that, in his hereditary states and throughout the empire, one cannot to see such poisonous fruits sprout again.

"If someone, sharing Pierre Galatino's opinion, dared to assert that the Thalmud is a useful book, and that it It would be appropriate to translate it into Latin and read it in schools of Christian children, citing the authority of Clement V who, in the Council of Vienne, prescribed that in the said schools there were skilled teachers of the Hebrew language and chaldeian, that they translate the Jewish books into Latin and that they taught their language, from which the said Galatino concludes that a Such a prescription cannot be understood from Holy Scripture. since it has been translated so many times from Hebrew into Latin, but that it must necessarily be applied to the Talmudic books, which have not yet been translated into Latin. If someone, I said, if someone dared to say such a thing, they would have to answer him that Clement's canon speaks only of the first rudiments and elementary lessons of the Hebrew language and Chaldean, which should be learned rather from those Jews who wrote grammar books and dictionaries- Hebrew and Chaldean naires, than those who collected the Talmudic books, in which there is such a great number of impieties and blasphemies, one should not no longer lend an ear to those who would propose to expurgate these books, given that these are all equally artifices on the part of Jews, artifices that were well known to the Pope Clement VIII, who, for this reason, added the clause that one should not could not absolutely read these books etiam sub pretextu quod expurgati fuerint vel donec expurgentur. And, subsequently From the tests that have been done in this regard in the past, we have always regarded these books as not being able to absolutely to be corrected, so full are they in all their parts, of errors and lies of the most pernicious kind. And that is, again in this sense that we have very recently responded, by Order of Our Holy Father the Pope, to the Bishop of Krakow, concerning the Talmud, which the Jews of this city had made to print and for which they sought permission from the Holy See, assuming it had been corrected and alleging the authority of Galatino. I must also say to VS illustriscis, to inform her properly, that experience has demonstrated that these volumes, so often condemned, and, so to speak, destroyed, they are usually put back into circulation by avarice. ministers of kings, who sell permission and authority to reprint and publish them, given that the Jews do not They spare no expense in this regard. That is why These books are excessively abundant in Asia and Africa, where they create very significant obstacles to the conversion of peoples. as also in Greece and in a large number of cities of Germany, fomenting schism in the first and giving rise in the second to a monstrous mixture of new and old heresies, as they have done, and with so many successes, as the illustrious VS writes, the Inga-Battuti and the Ebionites, in Transylvania, and the Sadducees in Livonia. Certainly, if such ministers had at heart the preservation of the Christian religion and its temporal maintenance and the politics of people and states of their princes, rather that their personal interests, they would not be, without any doubt, also favorable to this perfidious nation, especially when These would be the Talmudic books. Indeed, among others and © countless imprecations and execrations that such books command the Jews to act against the Christian name, one finds, in particular, the following, which VS illustrious, with His customary caution will allow him to skillfully make known, when she deems it appropriate; namely, that every Jew must, three times a day, utter blasphemies against the nation

Christian and pray to God that he confounds and exterminates her with its kings and princes, which must be done especially by the priests, in their synagogues, in hatred of Jesus of Nazareth. And, although such prayers are made by people Those who do not have faith cannot have their prayers answered by God. However, these are a clear indication of the malevolence of the Jews. who ardently desire the extermination of Christians, including According to the laws of the Thalmud, authority is much more important to them. execrable than that of the princes of any other nation, considering that it is a much lesser sin to serve a pagan prince that a Christian prince, although, absolutely speaking, and according the same doctrine of the Talmud, their maxim being that one must not obey any mortal prince, but make every effort possible ways to free his shoulders from the yoke of authority every king and every prince, just as one must treat all every conceivable means and resorting to all sorts of methods to take from Christians both their possessions and their lives. must, in addition, in accordance with thalmu- prescriptions to treat Christians like brute beasts, to treat them as such and abstain from the thing only insofar as it is in their

It is impossible to execute it.

"Consequently, when one understands the nature of these books, what the Sovereign Pontiffs have decreed against them and this what the Christian princes did towards them, we see clearlyrement that one must not, in any way, welcome the instances and importunities from Jews, whoever they may be, to the effect of printing their books, and that one should not either to allow them to be preserved and read in public or in partculinary; but rather that it is necessary, with as much activity as possible, search for them and inflict upon them precisely this punishment of fire which they themselves prescribe to be applied to our most saints Gospels, which they dare to call a revealed impiety and a sin manifest; this punishment of fire that they intend to inflict ruthlessly, even though our holy Gospels contain the great name of God, which they hold however in such great veneration; which proves that the hatred they what they bear to our Gospels is even greater than is the the respect they profess for this name, so adorable and so great.

"As for the other books of the rabbis, regarding of which Father Sgambati desires information, such as also in relation to what is observed here in the execution of the the aforementioned bubble, to find out which books are permitted or forbidden to Jews, in order to enforce the same rule in the states of the Empire, which are also hereditary in the House of His Majesty Caesar, I will say to Your Most Illustrious that, in the past, inquisitors also did similar things requests and that they were always told that it's according to Reading these books will allow us to judge whether they are good or not. included in Pope Clement's prohibition, without anyone having never wanted to give the catalogue of those that are permitted and of those who are defended, given that one can never to be certain at first glance of the orthodoxy nor of the books which contain the Old Testament, nor those that contain their prayers, each of which may contain reprehensible things. As for the other books of the rabbis, although they seem to derive in part from the Thalmud and that they contain certain things that deserve to be corrected, we However, use leniency to allow them to be expurgated and corrected, and that thus expurgated and corrected the Jews may retain them, in accordance with a writ granted by the same Pope Clement VIII, after the publication of the said bubble.

"And, although in the Index of Prohibited Books of the second class, we prohibit comments from a large number of their rabbis, however, there is a decree from this Sacred Congressdecree, dated 1596, by which it is declared that one should not to be regarded as prohibited are those which have been altered by the heretics, and particularly by Conrad and Paul Faggio, provided that they are also expurgated and corrected in accordance with related to the content of the bubble, on which it is important to always insist and which should be used as a rule assured.

"Then, regarding the correction of these books, it is good to to point out that impiety and blasphemy are so well present there It is very difficult to discover them when one is not that little versed in the Hebrew language, and that one does not know that only mediocrely captures all the subtlety of their malice. It is Why did the Holy Office never want to appoint any deputies? proofreader of these books, although efforts were made to obtain it, numerous requests, but he demanded that the Jews, who They are well aware of all the evil contained in these books, the they themselves made it disappear and destroyed it so thoroughly that it

It was impossible to read and understand it. And when one has whatever indication of their disobedience, this supreme court does to search their homes and their synagogues gogues; and if the seized books are found to be correct and expurgated in accordance with the constitution of Clement VIII, they are given returns, taking note of it, and expressly declaring that we do not in any way intend to approve them through this restitution; because one can very well doubt that they are sufficiently corrected, they are so bad; and if one then comes to use them to ensure, restitution would not be an obstacle; moreover, one proceeds against the Jews according to the law when they contrathey refer to the said constitution of Clement VIII.

» VS illustrious will see through this letter the conduct that we It fits here in relation to these books. It will therefore be able to satisfy at the request of Father Sgambati, who represented His Majesty the The need to enforce the bull of Clement VIII. VS He, for his part, will have to assist this Father, ensuring that the Jews obey, and do not cease to exhort the Father to follow the interthe operation began, giving him all the help and the necessary information, in order to achieve the goal we have proposes, which is to annihilate the pernicious doctrines of Thalmud, and to repress the pride of these stubborn people, by punctually obeying the orders of the Holy See. Such is the sentiment of His Holiness and of this Sacred Congregation who, likewise, greatly praised the industrious zeal

which the said Father showed to begin this holy work, hopes to be able to praise his prudence and consistency as well to finish for the glory of God and for the service of our Christian religion, etc. — Rome, November 29, 1629.

— “This letter is in perfect harmony with a crowd of acts of the Holy See. We will briefly relate these acts:

"The Jews have several books where the Old Testament is completely distorted and in which are found blasprophecies and outrages against God, and Our Lord Jesus-Christ. SEEN |

"Gregory IX was the first, in 1230, to condemn to The flames of the Jewish books, and especially the Talmud, are being set ablaze. Then comes then the bull of Innocent IV, Impia Judæorum, in 1243.
Clement IV, Honorius IV, and John XXII did the same.

"Under Julius III, the Supreme Council of the Holy Office ordered..."

search the homes of the Jews for all the designated books under the name of Thalmud and prescribed that men skilled in the Hebrew language were charged with examining them carefully gathering and noting all the proposals heretics that were found there, and which were then entrusted it is up to theologians to discuss and examine these proposals.
discussions, after having heard the rabbis.

"It was found that these books were filled with blasphemies."
against God, against the law of Moses, against the laws of nature and honesty, that things were allowed there that an ear human beings would be horrified to hear named, that the cult of God was shrouded in childishness, fables, and supertitations that tarnished all its beauty, and that one prescribed contempt as obligatory things, insults and blasphemies against Jesus Christ in his Gospel. In a, it was ordered that they be burned publicly.
ment.

"We still have constitutions on the same subject of Julius III, Gregory XIII and Clement VIII.

"By a letter dated April 13, 1591, addressed to the nuncio of Turin, the Supreme Council of the Holy Office declared that the bishops did not should not expurgate the books of the Jews, but ensure if The Jews expurgated them, since it is impossible and even
It is ridiculous to suppose that the Thalmud could be expurgated; one acquired the certainty that it could not be through the test which
This was done during the reign of Sixtus V. The letter added that, during over a period of five hundred years, we had constantly delivered to flames the Talmud with the other books of the Jews in which had been found to contain heresies and errors.
Consequently, the Sacred Congregation enjoins the nuncio to do burn the Talmudic books and all the others where he would find a mixture of errors and heresies. Which was executed with the support of the Duchess of Savoy, Infanta of Spain.

“On September 5, 1592, a letter was written to the same nuncio as the
The Pope did not want the Jews to keep any more books that the Holy Bible, but not to worry them, nevertheless, for grammar books. He could tolerate them, but not allow them to be kept.

"On April 26, 1596, it was written that the Sovereign's thought Pontiff in the new Index is not only the Thalmu- books discs can be expurgated, but they must remain convicted.

"On May 18, 1596, the inquisitor of Mount Royal was notified" that the Holy Office never allowed the books of the Jews were purged, if not by the Jews themselves, without
The authority of the Holy Office had nothing to do with it; but if one were there
If blasphemies are found, these books must be burned and the authors punished.
Jews for this misdeed.

"We have already mentioned the benevolent provisions that
The Church took measures to prevent the Jews from letting themselves corrupted by reading Talmudic books, where find so many impious, immoral and superstitious doctrines
The edict of 1775 allowed Jews to read the Bible, and strongly defends the T'halmud. The first four
The articles of the edict relate to the defense in question.

The first basis for the prohibition against reading the Talmudic books is this that these same books contain errors against Scripture
Holy and the Old Testament, or impiety and blasphemy Phenomena against the mysteries of the Catholic faith. In the second
The article argues against teaching these same errors in the schools or in particular. The third article forbids printers and booksellers to print or procure these kinds of books to the Jews. Finally, the fourth article of the edict concerns the Hebrew books" (1).

(1) Analecta Juris Pontificii, 1v, col. 1417 and following; Rome, 1860. —
The following is the text of these four articles in Italian, translated below:

“Firstly, His Holiness, adhering to the second constitution of Innocent IV, which begins with these words: Impia Judæorum, ordonne et command that the Jews may in no way keep with them, neither read, nor buy, nor write, nor copy, nor translate, nor sell, nor give away nor exchange, nor alienate in any way or under any pretext, whatever the title or artifice, no unholy book or manuscript Talmudic, or at other times condemned, superstitious, Kabbalistic, or which contain errors against Holy Scripture or the Old Testament lying, or something insulting, impious, blasphemous against the sacrosanct mysteries of the Christian faith, especially those of the Most Holy Holy Trinity, of Our Lord Jesus Christ, of Mary ever Virgin or of the Saints, nor any other book of those which have been prohibited by Julius III, of most holy memory, in the constitution 24 commenciting by these words: Cum sicut, published on May 20, 1554, and of Clement VIII, of most holy memory, in his constitution Cum Hebræorum, published on February 28, 1593, or in other constitutions and apostolic decrees, whether they are books written in any other language, under penalty of loss of said books, confiscation of property and other corporal and very serious penalties, as decided in each case of contravention, in accordance with the decree of the Holy Congregation decree of the Holy Office published on September 12, 1553, and by such penalties His Holiness intends that rabbis and sinners be similarly subject Jews who will keep the said books in their libraries at home or in any other place for public or private use.

2. That neither the Jews nor any of them should have the audacity to expose, explain or to teach the errors of the aforementioned books, either in public or in private. either inside the schools or outside of them at some no person whatsoever, Christian or Jewish, or of any other religion that this should be done under the same penalties of loss of books and confiscation. property and other corporal and very serious penalties, depending on what will be decided.

3. That no Christian printer, bookseller, or merchant, nor any other— any other person of any state, rank or condition whatsoever, will not may lend his help or advice to the Jews to enable them to have the—said books, no more than to have them written, printed and translated, no more to get their permission to read or keep them — no only under penalty of loss of books, confiscation of property and other very serious corporal punishments, in accordance with the aforementioned decree above from the Holy Congregation of the Holy Office, published on September 12 1553, but still under the penalty of excommunication reserved for the Souverain Pontife, to be incurred immediately, without any declaration.

4. That Jews may not buy or receive any books in the language Hebrew, nor translated from the Hebrew language into any other language than Whether transported by Christians or by Jews themselves, or other book sent or brought, unless for the city of Rome, they not having previously shown it to the Father Master of the Sacred Apostolic Palace lique, and as for the other places or cities of the State, to the Bishops or to Local inquisitors, so that they can determine whether, according to the content of the present ordinances, and of the apostolic constitutions as reported above, they must allow them to receive them and to to keep, all under penalties of one hundred crowns or seven years in prison each instance of contravention; and if any book containing something contrary to the Bulls mentioned above, and to the decrees apostolic, and in particular to the aforementioned Bull of Clement VIII, which one do not return them to the Jews, but that they be transmitted to the Holy Office and that we should do the same when we find some other forbidden book to the Jews.

PEOPLE

Encyclical À QUO PRIMUM of Benedict XIV

Encyclical letter of Benedict XIV, Pope, to the Primate, to the Archbishops and bishops of the kingdom of Poland (1). — On things which are forbidden to Jews living in the same towns and villages as inhabited tempt the Christians.

Benedict XIV, Pope, Venerable Brothers, Greetings and blessing apostolic. |

Since, for the first time, it pleased the supreme goodness of God, that the beginnings of our holy religion had been established blis in the kingdom of Poland, — which took place towards the end of the 10th century, under our predecessor Leo VIII, through the efforts of the duke Mieceslas and his Christian wife Dambrowska, as well as this is recorded in writing in Dlugoss (2), the author of your Annals, Book II, p. 94, — since that time, the Polish nation, always pious and devoted (to God), she persevered steadfastly in the pr-
She was tainted by the holy religion she had adopted, and she turned away.
with horror of all kinds of sects. Also, although these spared no effort to infiltrate this kingdom, establish their headquarters, and spread the seeds of their errors there, here-
Whether it be their perverse opinions or their steadfastness, the Poles have not been swayed by them.
that more strongly opposed their efforts and only provided more abundant evidence of his loyalty.

Certainly, what must be regarded as very specific to our des-breast and as by far the most important thing is first and foremost the gloa joyful memory preserved in the sacred splendors of the Church, of

---

(1) Sanctissimi Domini nostri Benedicti Papæ XIV (Bullarium, tomus fertius; editio quarta, Venetiis 1778; p. 176, col. 2; anno 1751, piece
XLIX. |

(2) Jean DLucoss, canon of Krakow, 15th-century writer, author of a History of Poland.

martyrs, confessors, virgins, men remarkable for their renown of holiness, who were found to be born, grow up and die in the kingdom of Poland; then comes the celebration, at the same kingdom, of several councils and synods, which resulted in a happy outcome, and thanks to which victory was won with a great glory to the Lutherans who had tried all the ways and means of obtaining entry and admission into this kingdom. For example, there was the great Council of Petrocovy (1) which was celebrated under our great predecessor and fellow citizen Grégoire XIII, under the presidency of the prelate Lipomanus (2), bishop of Verona and the apostolic nuncio, council where it was proscribed, for the God's great glory, freedom of conscience, which was seeking an entry and a dwelling in this kingdom (3). Then there was the considerable volume of the Synodal Constitutions of the province of Gnesen, where everything useful and wise was recorded in writing.
a measure taken and planned by the Polish bishops to preserve the reli-intact Christian community, among the peoples entrusted to their governance ment, in the face of Jewish perfidy, although the condition of The time demanded that Christians and also Jews be ren-closed in the same cities and towns. All of this, certainly, shows very abundantly and very clearly what glory
the Polish nation acquired, as previously stated, by the fact that she worked to preserve in its purity and integrity grité the holy religion embraced by his ancestors for so many centuries previously.

Among the many subjects We have just mentioned, there is none is none who deserves our complaints more than the last, to the point that We are forced to cry out, weeping: "This cou-
Their beautiful one has changed!" (4) Indeed, according to what has been revealed to Us presented by serious, trustworthy people who are well-informed about Polish affairs, and according to the complaints of those who live in the kingdom and who, driven by their zeal, have turned to Us and
At Our Holy See, We have acquired knowledge of the facts following: the number of Jews there has multiplied to such an extent that certain-localities, cities and towns, — which were previously duly surrounded by a wall, as can be seen from their ruins, and which were

---

(1) Peterkau, or Petrocovie, or Petricovie. There were eight councils in this city in Poland.

(2) Venetian, author of Sermons and Lives of the Saints, lived in 16th century.

(3) This Council of Peterkau is that of 1578.

(4) Lamentations of Jeremiah, IV, 1: “Mutatus est color optimus”.

populated by a large number of Christian inhabitants, such as the mon-lists or registers of yesteryear are found — many are found abandoned to destruction and filth, filled with a great name full of Jews, and almost entirely devoid of Christians. Furthermore, there are in the same kingdom a number of parishes including the population has decreased considerably and, consequently, the income has become insufficient, and who therefore find themselves on the
at the point of being abandoned by their priests. Moreover, the entire community trade in useful goods, such as liquors and even the
The winery is run by the same Jews; they are allowed to exercise the administration administration of public funds; they hold, by lease, the au-riverbanks, farms, estates, properties; by all these through these means, they acquired lordly power over the unfortunate Christians, who are reduced to agriculture; with an impious authority both merciful and inhumane, they make them do the hard work of plowing and arduous work, and forces them to carry loads excessive; moreover, they impose punishments on them which force them to

It is difficult to bear the blows and wounds in their bodies.
It follows that these unfortunate people are dependent on the authority of a Jew.
like slaves, subject to the whim and power of a master.
No doubt, in applying punishments, they are required to
to serve with the assistance of a Christian official, possessing the faculty to punish; but since the latter must necessarily carry out the orders of the Jew, who is the master, so as not to be dismissed from his employment, the Jew's tyrannical orders must be carried out.

In addition to the public tax administrations, which are required by the Jews, as We have said, and from the locality of the inn-lands, estates and farms, all things whose exercise causes
So much and such great harm to Christians, it is further compounded other absurdities which, if properly examined, can cause damage and harm even greater than those that come to be exposed. Indeed, something that must be valued as What is very serious is that Jews are admitted in person into the residences of the magnates for the management of their domestic affairs ques or economic, to the tune of butlers; and living then with Christians, as if in the familiarity of a single home, they assiduously deploy the regime of despotism towards them, and this ostentatiously. Therefore, in cities and towns, no only one can see Jews mixed here and there with Christians, but Furthermore, there is this absurdity: these same Jews are not ashamed.
not at all to have Christians of both sexes among them, attached at their service as servants.

Now, as the Jews, personally, are busy with-all to the exercise of commerce, after having amassed by this means a large sum of money, they completely exhaust, by the considerable excesses of their wear and tear, the goods and assets of Christians. At the same time, they themselves borrow from Christians sums of money at a very high, even immoderate, interest rate and with the guarantee of their synagogues; but, as can be seen faci-

With a little attention, they act in this way, after having obtained sums of money from Christians which they use to do trade, not only to derive as much profit as possible from it it takes to pay the agreed interest and increase by this means their own wealth, but also to do at the same time all their creditors, as well as protectors of their synagogues and of their persons.

The famous monk Raoul (Radulphus), once driven by zeal excessive, he lashed out against the Jews, to the point that in the 12th century where he lived, he traveled through France and Germany, and that, in prêsong against these same Jews as enemies of our holy religion
gion, he incited the Christians to destroy them completely; which
This was the cause that a large number of Jews were massacred.
What would one think this monk would do or say if he were among us today?
If the living could see what is happening now in Poland?
Raoul's excessive and furious zeal was opposed by the great Saint Bernard, and in his letter 363, addressed to the clergy and people of France
From the East, he wrote:

Jews must not be persecuted; they must not be mas-
Sacred and not even hunted. Ask the sacred pages about them. I know What prophecy about the Jews is read in the psalm (1): “The Lord,
The Church, it said, has given me a revelation about my enemies: Do not kill them, lest one day my people forget me. They are indeed the signs living beings who represent the Passion of the Lord. Therefore, they have been scattered throughout all countries, so that, while suffering the penalty of a However great their crime, may they be witnesses to our redemption.

Then, in his letter 365, to Henry, Archbishop of Mainz, the even written:

Does not the Church triumph over the Jews every day, by convincing them-when or by converting them more completely than it would in killing them all at once by the edge of the sword? Is that it
It is for nothing that this prayer of the universal Church was instituted, which is recited for the perfidious Jews, from East to West, for

(1) Ps. LVIII, 12. Deus ostendit mihi super inimicos meos: Ne occidas eos, ne quando obliviscantur populi mei.

that Dicu remove the veil from their hearts, so that they may be brought from their darkness in the light of truth? Indeed, if she did not hope that those who are unbelievers will believe, it would seem superfluous and pointless to pray for them.

Picrre, abbot of Cluny, also wrote against Raoul, addressing himself to sant to Louis, King of the French. He urged him not to allow the massacre of Jews. But, at the same time, it incited him to crack down against them because of their excesses, to deprive them of the goods they had taken from the Christians or accumulated through usury, and to embbend the price for the use and utility of religion, as one can see it in the Annals of the venerable Cardinal Baronius, in the year of Christ 1146. |

For us, in this matter, as in all others, we let us adopt the same rule of conduct as our venerable predecessors, the Roman Pontiffs. Alexander III forbade the Christians, under severe penalties, to enter into a state or doMixed-race identity continues among the Jews: "They must not," he said, to be placed in the permanent service of the Jews for a salary" (1). The The reason for this defense is explained by the same person in the words the following: "It is because the customs of the Jews and ours do not coincidetooth in nothing, and that they could easily turn minds simple people, with their superstition and treachery, because of this a continuous community of life and this assiduous familiarity," thus that we read, concerning the Jews, in the decretal Ad haec. As for Innocent III, after reporting that the Jews were admitted by to the Christians in their cities, he warns that the method and the conThe conditions of this admission must be such that the Jews do not renNot a misdeed for a benefit: "Accepted as if out of pity" in our familiarity, they grant us the reward that custom of granting to their guests, according to the popular proverb, the rat hidden in the bag, the snake in the lap and the fire in the breast" (3). The same pontiff alleges that it is fitting that the Jews should serveHe is selling Christians, not these ones or those ones, and he adds: "He does not The sons of a free woman should not serve the sons of a woman

(1) Ne Judæorum servitio se assidue pro aliqua mercede exponant.

(2) Quia Judæorum mores et nostri in nullo concordant, et ipsi (scilice! Judæi) de facili ob continuam conversationem, et assiduam familiaritdtem, ad suam superstitionem et perfidiam simplicium animos inclinerent.

(3) Qui tamquam misericorditer in nostram familiaritatem admitsi, nobis illam retributionem impendunt, quam, juxta vulgare proverbium, mus in pera, serpents in gremio, and ignis in sinu suis consueveruni hospitibus exhibere.

slave; on the contrary, these must, as servants rejected by the Lord, whose death they wickedly conjured, recognize themselves, at least through actual work, as servants of those whom the death of Christ has set free, while it makes them "dait, eux, slaves" (1). These words are found in his Decretal Etsi Judæos. Similarly, in another decretal, Cum sit nimis, under the same title De Judzis elSaracenis it is forbidden to taketo discriminate against Jews for public jobs: "defending," he said, that Jews are preferred for public jobs, since they allow themselves using this as a pretext to be extremely hostile to Christians" (2). In turn, Innocent IV, writing to Saint Louis, King of France, who proposed to expel the Jews from his states, approves of this plan. because the Jews did not observe at all what had been prescribed written to them by the Apostolic See: “We who aspire to All our sentiments are for the salvation of souls, we grant you through the divine. authority of these presents, the power to expel the Jews mentioned aboveabove, either by yourself, or by others, especially when they They do not observe, as we have learned, the published regulations against them by this Holy See” (3), as can be seen in Raynaldi, in the year of Christ 1253, n. 34.

Now, if we ask what things the Headquarters Apostolic forbids Jews residing in the same cities that Christians inhabit, we will say that they are absolutely allThese are the things that we allow them the freedom to do today in the kingdom of Poland, which we have described above. For To clearly grasp the truth of this statement, there will be no need from a long reading of books; one only needs to browse the chapter on Decretals of Judzis and Saracenis; as for the Roman pontiffs, Our predecessors, Nicholas IV, Paul IV, Saint Pius V, Gregory XIII and Clement VIII, their Constitutions are at hand and can be found wind in the Roman Bullarium. For you, Our Venerable Brothers,

(1) Ne filii libere filiis famulentur ancille; sed, tamquam served Domino reprobati, in cujus mortem nequiter conjurarunt, se saltem per effectum operis recognizing servos illorum, quos Christi mors liberos, and illos servos effecit.

(2) Prohibentes ne Judæi in publicis officiis preferantur, cum sub tali pretextu Christianis plurimum sint infensi.

(3) Nos, ad animarum salutem totis affectibus aspirantes, expellendi predictos Judæos vel per Te, vel per alios, præsertim cum statuta contra eos a Sede Apostolica edita, sicut accepimus, non observent, plenam tibi auctoritate presentium concedimus facultatem. (In Odéric Raynaldi, writer of the 18th century, continuation of the Annals of Baronius, of the Ora— (Tower of Rome).

You don't even have to bother reading this.
to see very clearly what these things are. Everything presents itself to you, trusted and regulated in the synods of your predecessors, seen on— everything that they made sure to include in their Constitutions which had been sanctioned and ordered by the Roman Pontiffs "with respect to the present matter."

The key point of the difficulty lies in the fact that the memory synodal sanctions have perished, or their execution is neglected. It is therefore to you, Venerable Brothers, that the responsibility falls to them renew. The nature of your role requires that you insist carefully consider their execution. Begin in this matter by the clergy, as is just and legitimate, since it is It is up to them to show others the way to act rightly, and to enlighten them. everyone by their example. We like to hope that with the mercy of God, the good example of the clergymen, Ramé— will put the misguided secularists back on the right path. All this, you will be able to— ordering and placing orders will be even easier and assurance that (as reported by reliable and capable witnesses) (bles) we know that you have not rented to the Jews either your property or your rights, that he did not intervene with them in any loan matter or borrowing money; in short, that you are completely free and free from any conflict of interest with them. The system and the methods prescribed by the holy canons, to demand obedience due by those in default, consist of this: that, for matters of of great importance, as are the present ones, we employ the censures, and that we add to the reserved cases those where we foresees an imminent cause of danger or loss to religion. You know very well that the holy Council of Trent took care to af— close your jurisdiction, particularly by recognizing you right to reserve cases, not restricting them to crimes public only, and much better, by extending them even further up to and including acts called atrociora ef graviora, provided that they are not not purely internal. On several occasions, in various decrees and encyclical letters, the Congregations of Our august capital decided and ruled that it should be classified among the so-called Afrociores cases and those to which men are most inclined, and which, have the effect of undermining ecclesiastical discipline or the salvation of souls entrusted to the care of the bishop; this is what We have explained extensively in Our Trailé of the Diocesan Synod, book V, chap. v, in its entirety. Moreover, with regard to the goal to be achieved, We do not will not fail to provide any assistance from Us. Moreover, for solve the difficulty you will undoubtedly encounter, if you need to to take action against clergymen exempt from your jurisdiction,

We will give to Our venerable brother the Archbishop of Nicaea, Our nuncio in your country, the timely instructions for this in this particular case, so that it provides for what is necessary, in accordance with the powers delegated to him. At the same time, and We promise you— tones with certainty, whenever the opportunity allows, We we will take care to deal with this matter vigorously and with all due respect. Our efforts with those whose authority and power can help _ effectively to make this disappear from the noble kingdom of Poland plague and this ignominy. For you, Venerable Brothers, ask— First of all, with all the fervor of your heart, seek the help of God, who is the author of all good things, implore also, through your prayers, his help for Us and for this Apostolic See, and while We embrace you in all the fullness of charity, We most affectionately bestow the apostolic blessing— tolique and to you and to the flocks entrusted to your care.

Given at Castelgandolpho, on June 14, 1751, in the eleventh year of Our pontificate.

CONDUCT OF THE POPES TOWARDS THE JEWS

We have provided information in the two preceding documents. the assessment of the Sovereign Pontiffs on the books of the Jews, books distorted by the Talmud, and about them. That's always the same condemnation. Imbued with his Talmudic doctrine— In the Christian's view, the Jew is "the rat in the bag" (music) in pera), the serpent in the lap (serpens in gremio), the fire in the bosom (ignis in sinu)"; in short, the Jews are the hereditary enemies of Christ until they recognize him are born for the true Messiah, and, as a result, they remain, with The Freemasons and their lackeys, the faithful of the Counter-Church.

Does this mean that the Popes prescribed a holy crusade? against them and gave the signal for Eastern pogroms?

No. — The Popes protected the Jews. We can already see that in Benedict XIV's Letter to the Polish Episcopate. Next to it As part of defense and justice measures, Rome forbids surrendering to homicidal extremes and often she doesn't even want to resorting to banishment. The two methods generally

The recommended measures are: 1° the return of stolen Christian property or squandered through usury; 2° the confinement of Jews for that they do not enslave the Christians and do not to lose faith. In short: restitution and the ghetto were,
In the Middle Ages, effective remedies against Jews; and,
today, after their emancipation by the Revolution of 1789, and faced with the Judeo-Masonic peril, modern society has no other hope of salvation: restitution to balance public debt; the ghetto, that is to say, the sequestration of Jews and the deprivation of civil rights to which they add always their Israelite rights, not being citizens of this or that country, but only on the condition of remaining Jewish above all else. The famous Jew Louis Brandeis, Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States and Wilson's close advisor wrote along these lines:

Let us all recognize that we Jews constitute a nationality of which every Jew, regardless of his country, his condition, his nuance religious, is necessarily a member (1).

We have extensively covered this issue in the first article from our second volume on the Judeo-Masonic Peril.
It is important not to forget, however, the Jewish mentality in triple perspective of religion, nationality and race.

A Jew is not Jewish by virtue of his religion, but by virtue of his nationality.
ality.

In his book Rome and Jerusalem, Moses Hess, one of the Jews who have most clearly and forcefully expounded the program of his people, Moses Hess writes:

The Jewish religion is above all Jewish patriotism (2).

If the Jews, he adds later, were merely the disciples of a certain religious denominations, similar to others, it would then be
It is inconceivable that Europe (and in particular Germany where the Jews took part in all cultural activities), does not spare the disciples

---

(1) See on BRANDEIS volume II of The Judeo-Masonic Peril, p. 104.
See Dearborn Independent, October 16, 1920. This article provides Brandeis was given the title of "world leader of the Zionist movement".

(2) Lib cit., p. 61. See article in the Dearborn Independent.

of the Israelite faith, neither pain, nor tears, nor bitterness tumes. But the solution to this problem lies in the fact that the Jews are something more than just followers of a religion,
In short, that they are a brotherhood of race, a nation... (1).

The Jews undoubtedly have the Mosaic religion, but it does not does not create between them a simple religious link like the Catholicism or other dissident religions.

Léon Simon, a highly regarded scholar among the Jews, writes Regarding this:

Judaism does not offer a promise of salvation for the individual soul.
Like Christianity, all its ideas relate to the existence of the Jewish nation.

And letting shine through the dream of Israel that every Jewish child finds in his cradle: |

The Messianic era, he said, means for the Jew not simply the advent of the reign of peace on earth and mutual goodwill between men, it also means that the whole world will recognize the
The Jew and his God. This is another way of affirming the eternity of the nation. Dogmas like these are not simply articles
The faith of a church is that of a nation, or its beliefs.
own past and its future (2).

Léon Simon does not fully develop his idea. "The
A nation's beliefs about its past and future, who will make known to the whole world the Jew and his God," are measured more by the size of other peoples. It is a Super-Nation with a Super-Government that needed to be written.

(1) Lib. cil., p. 71.

(2) Léon Sinon, Studies on Jewish Nationalism, pp. 14 and 20 (text English). — Hence it is that religion may change, but the Jew remains. Arthur D. Lewis, a Jew from the West London Zionist Association, wrote:

"If a Jew is baptized, or, which is not necessarily the same One thing is, if he is sincerely converted to Christianity, few people see in him a man who had ceased to be Jewish. The blood, the temperament, the spiritual characteristics remain intact. (/Israel is a nation).

Also, atheism will undermine religion among Jews without destroying it. his nationality. Jessie E. SEMPTER writes in his Guide to Zionism (p. 5):

"The name of their national religion, Judaism, is derived from their desinational cognition. A non-religious Jew is still a Jew, and he It is difficult to escape one's commitment simply by repudiating it.

the name of Jew.
10

We are fully immersed in the "Protocols" of the Sage. of Zion.

Moreover, if nationality surpasses religion, it is herself surpassed by the race.

Brandeis claims that there is no race as pure as the Jewish race, despite mixed marriages, the number of which is almost insignificant.

This is also the conclusion reached by Arthur Lewis in his book The Jews are a nation:

The Jews, he said, were originally a nation, and they have retained more that no other nation possesses one of the elements of nationality, that is to say the breed. This can naturally be proven by the visible mark. for common sense, which consists in the possibility of recognizing them. It is indeed easier to recognize that a Jew is a Jew than to recognize that an Englishman is an Englishman (1).

Thus, Disraeli, although a Protestant, was proud to be Jewish. of race, as he shows in the preface to the fifth edition of his "Coningsby", and we still read in the preface to the Jewish Encyclopædia, signed Cyrus Adler, these words that settle the matter:

An even more delicate problem arose right from the start: it was the attistudy that the Encyclopedia was to adopt with regard to those Jews who, Although born within the Jewish community, Ton abandoned for one reason or another. Now, the Encyclopedia dealing with Jews as a race, it was recognized that it was impossible to exclude those who belong to this race, whatever their religious affinities may have been gieuses.

Thus, apostasy from religion does not erase nationality Jewish, which is itself preserved by race. The Popes they knew, and their experience of the Israelite mentality dictated their rules of conduct towards Jews. To mention only

(1) Moses Hess emphasizes in these terms the impossibility where the Jews deny their racial ancestry:

“Jewish noses cannot be altered; black hair and The curly hair of Jews cannot be changed to blond by the effect of conversion, no more than hair can be straightened by force of comb strokes. The Jewish race is one of the primary races of the species human, and it has retained its integrity, despite the changes continuous changes in environment and climate, as the Jewish type has preserved its "Purity through the ages."

To give a few examples, let's mention gentleness and clemency. of Saint Gregory, whom the Jews themselves praised in their annals. This great Pope gave the order to leave them their synagogues, but maintaining the law that forbade them to build new ones. Similarly, in relations with Israel did not allow slaves to be sold to the Jews. Christians, and he wrote a letter on this subject to Queen Brunehaut, to ban this trafficking in France. It was exposing the faith of Christians and dishonor the Catholic religion that one sopractically introduced the Jewish religion in this way. The letters of Saint Gregory allow us to note the large number of Jews at that time in Italy, Sicily and Cagliari, and the preservation of all their rights in all places where they were neither seditious nor rebellious (1).

Later, Pope Innocent II, advised, it is said, by Saint Bernard showed himself to be favorable to the Jews. It is even said that... Upon his entry into Paris in 1146, the Jews joined the procession. who received the Sovereign Pontiff, and presented him respectfully graciously the scroll of the law. Innocent II received them kindly praying fervently to God to remove the veil that prevents them from to see the truths contained in the books of Moses. Perhaps it is to this act to which this ceremony dates back, to the installation of the Popes, which formerly consisted of the Jews of Rome were waiting for the Pontiff on the road to Saint John Lateran to present him with a copy of the Law. The Pontifical

(1) The papacy made it a point of honour to defend Christians against the grip Jewish; Gregory VII (Hildebrand) continues the tradition on this point of Saint Gregory:

“At the Council of Rome (1078) where, for the second time, he launched the ana theme against the enemies of the papacy, he defended, by a canon law, to admit Jews to public jobs or to guarantee them a any authority whatsoever over Christians. This ordinance was specifically aimed at Castile. For, in 1080, the Pope addressed King Alfonso VI a mandate, an excerpt of which follows: “We consider as a obligation to express our wishes for the constant progress of your glory, but at the same time it is our duty to draw your attention regarding the mistakes you make. We urge Your Highness to no longer to now allow Jews to exercise some power over Christians. To subordinate Christians to Jews and subject them to their Judgment is to oppress the Church of God and exalt the Synagogue of Satan. Christ himself is despised by seeking to please his enemies”. GRABTZ, History of the Jews, IV, 68; Paris, Durlacher, 1893; Translator Moise Bloch: —> To

The Roman document then contained the response that the Pope was to give them. thus worded: “I venerate the Law which you have received from God by Moses; but I condemn the explanation that you give him Give, because you are waiting for the Messiah whom the Church apostTolique believes that Jesus Christ, Our Lord, lives and reigns with the Father and the Holy Spirit."

The same protection was granted to them by Alexander III, who safeguarded their synagogues and the practice of their worship, but who imposed upon them the prohibition against quoting clergymen anymore? Christians before a civil court and to no longer keep the Catholic churches as collateral or right of sale.

Regarding the crusade encouraged by Gregory IX, this The Sovereign Pontiff put an end to the abuses committed against them to submit to the future crusaders (1) and maintain their old privileges, as his uncle Innocent III had done (2). The same Pope wrote to Saint Louis on their behalf. We read in Grætz, the Jewish historian, so sometimes unfair to the papacy:

Gregory IX issued a bull (May 3, 1235) by which he ordered the application of the Constitution of Innocent III which, at the beginning of his reign, had shown himself to be quite favorable to the Jews... He had intervened in

(1) Cf. GRAETZ, lib. cit., IV, 126. |

(2) But Innocent III was often obliged to defend the Christians against the Jews. Graerz (lib. cit., IV, p. 162) carefully notes what limited the Jewish invasion; Innocent III wrote to Philip Auguste:

“I am saddened to see princes preferring the descendants of deicides to the heirs of the crucified, as if the son of the slave could inheriting from the son of the free woman. I learned that in France the Jews are appropriating the property of the Church and Christians through usury; that, contrary to the decision of the Lateran Council, held under Alexander III, they hired Christian wet nurses and servants; that the courts do not accept the testimony of Christians against the Jews; that the community of Sens built a new synagogue which is taller than the neighboring church, and where prayers are recited, not in a low voice, as before the expulsion, but in such a loud voice high that the offices of Christians are disturbed; and, finally, that the Jews are allowed to appear in public during the week of Easter, in towns and villages, and to turn the faithful away from their faith."

And, in 1208, he wrote to the Count of Nevers:

“The Jews should wander, like Cain, throughout the world, and carry .sar their faces the mark of their abjection, Instead of humiliating them and Instead of enslaving them, the Christian princes protect them and receive them in the towns and villages and use them as bankers, to make them their favor at the death of Saladin in 1199, when a new crusade It was organized and the crusaders began to plunder and kill the Jews.

Following the accusation by Nicolas Donin (a converted Jew) who claimedsaid that the Talmud allowed Jews to deceive Christians and to To break their oaths, Gregory IX addressed papal bulls to the bishops. from France, England, Castile, Aragon and Portugal for their order the confiscation of all copies of the Talmud, while the Jews would be gathered in their synagogues, and handed over to Dominicans and Franciscans. The rulers of these countries had to to lend a hand to the bishops. The priors of the Dominicans and of the Franciscans were tasked with opening an investigation into the Talmud and, in the event that Nicolas Dunin's accusations are founded, of burn all copies (June 1239).

John XXI had the Talmudic books burned and exhorted the bishops to oppose Jewish superstitions; but he did not did not consent to the banishment of the Jews from Rome and their retained all their rights.

Martin V published, on January 31, 1419, a bull in which we read:

Since the Jews are made in the image of God and the remnants of their nation will one day find salvation, we decree, following the example of our predecessors, that it is forbidden to disturb them in their synagogues gogues, to attack their laws and customs, to baptize them by constraint, forcing them to celebrate Christian holidays, their imto impose the wearing of new distinctive signs or to obstruct their trade relations with Christians.

Alexander VI, Julius II, Leo X, Clement VII, Paul III, Sixtus-Quint were favorable to the Jews. This leniency was rewarded by Jewish emancipation.

extorting money from Christians. Even worse, they throw them in prison Christian debtors of the Jews and allow the latter to take in pledge of fortified castles and Christian villages, whose tithe, then, is not paid to the Church. And isn't it scandalous that Christians have their animals slaughtered and their grapes pressed by Jews, for so that they can take what they want and then leave the rest to the Christians. What is especially reprehensible is that the wine, thus prepared by the Jews, it is then used for the sacrament of communion. communion. Are Christians excommunicated and their countries placed under forbidden by the priests because of their relations with the Jews? They chuckled to themselves and were pleased that, thanks to them, the harps of the Church should be hung from the willows and the priests deprived of their income, for the duration of the excommunication."

in Italy and through the influence of Jews on Humanism, more particularly by those who came from Greece and Constantine Tinople. We know the name of the Jew Iochanan Aleman, pretutor of Pico della Mirandola, who made his pupil a Judaizer and Kabbalist. That would be a whole page of history. to write about the anti-Christian role of Renaissance Jews. Their efforts were intended to bring about the Reformation, Philosophy, Freemasonry and, finally, civil and political emancipation the tic of the Jews that Father Joseph Lémann calls: "The Entry "Israelites in Modern Society." The centuries-old work The papal palace was destroyed, and from that day on, the peril began. Judeo-Masonic.

Equity and humanity, fruits of Christian civilization (1),

---

(1) We read in Cardinal Hergenrœther's History of the Church, IV, 181; Paris, Delhomme-Briguet, nd, trans. Belet:

"Among the Jews as well, there were some isolated conversions: Many, it is true, were only apparent and originated from the forced, because the persecution against the Jews had intensified during The Crusades. The Popes and Bishops took them under their protection. defended the imposition of baptism by force, the destruction of the synagogues Gugues and mistreating individuals. But the crimes are numerous Crimes committed by Jews, and especially usury, often aroused the fury of the people. One also sometimes saw Christians embracing the Judaism. The councils forbade baptized Jews from continuing to to observe Mosaic customs, and to those who were not baptized to keep Christian servants; they barred them from employment public officials prescribed a particular costume for them, condemning them to to return the proceeds of their wear and tear and to pay the tithes attached to their land. In particular, the following were condemned with great severity: The Talmud and Jewish scholarship, which, after various vicissitudes, comthreatened to reappear in Spain and the South of France. Stained

Jewish speculation could only produce the pantheism of Averroes. disastrous results. a:

The author provides the following bibliography on the Jewish question and the papacy:

NEANDER, K.-G., II, p. 369 et seq., Protection of the Jews; GREG. M. lib. I, ep. XXXV, XLVII; Mansi, 1055, 1066; JAFFE, n° 738, 761; ALEx. II, ad episc. Hisp. ; MANsi, XIX, 954, J., n° 3485, p. 398; ALEx. III, al. CLEM. III; Mansı XXII, 355, J., 9038, p. 306; GREG. 1X, RAYNALD., an. 1235, no. 20; 1236, no. 48; POTTHAST, p. 841, 870, no. 9893, 18243; INNoc. III, 1199, lib. 11, ep. CCII, P., n° 6616, p. 494; RAYNALD. year. 1220, n° 48, P., n° 6340, p. 554; Innoc. IV, P., p. 1042, 1062, 1246. See S. Tuomas IP II, q. X, a 2; q LAVI, a. 10: S. BERN., ep. CCCLXIII; Otro FnRis, from Gest. Frid. I, XXXVIL XXXVIII. Jews outlined to the Popes their course of action towards Israel. However, they were even more obedient to the supernatural motive of their conscience which gave them hope for the conversion of the Jews. This was the sentiment of Saint Gregory, who condemned hatred. against the Israelites, because they were destined to convert one day, according to the Scriptures. He even favored every movement in this meaning, and his example was constantly followed by the Papacy. It must be admitted that the results were mediocre; what he It would be necessary to write, it would be the story of the false conversions of the Jews, especially in Spain and Portugal. The episcopate, moreover, gave little credence to these mass returns, and Julian of Toledo confused the Jews with his writings, without the to bring them to repentance. He asked them where the land was that Had it been promised to them since they were being driven out? "We he was looking for, he said, the kingdom of the Jews, and there was none; We look for their altar, but we do not find it; we look for their priesthood and it is not found anywhere; one asks Where are their sacrifices, and no one answers, because all these things are abolished, as Daniel [had] predicts » (1). | po ® & converted by miracles: Innoc. III, June 8, 1213, to the archbishop of Sens, lib. XVI, ep. LXXXIV, Migne, t. CCXVI, p. 885, P., n° 4749, p. 413: Conversions to Judaism: CLEM. IV, const. Turbato chord, 1267; GREG. X, const. III, year. 1273; Nicoz. IV, const. IV, an. 1288 (Vinc. Petra, Com. in. Const. apost., t. III, p. 248 et seq., 253 et seq., 266 et seq.) Bonrr. VIII, c. xur, de Hær., V, 2, in-6°. Crimes of the Jews. PETR. VENER., lib. IV, ep. XXXVI; Marru. Par., Hist. Eng., p. 280, 359, ed. Par., 1844; RAYNALD., an. 1305, no. 15; 1306, n° 16. Testimonies on Jewish usury, in Jost, GEscH. der Israeliten, VI, p. 295 and following; VII, 426 and following — Measures to which they are subject, III, Council of Lateran, c. xxvi; IV, c. LXVII-LXX; Council. of Narbonn., 1227, c. XXIV; of Rouen, 1231, c. xLıx; of Tarragona, 1239, c. IV; of Monteil, 1248, c. v ; of Albi, 1254, c. Liv-Lxx; of Fritzlar, 1259, c. vii; from Aschaffenburg, 1292, c. xvi; d'Anse, 1300, c. 111; de Vienne, 1267, c. xv-x1x. See BERWALD, Decrees of the Council of Vienna concerning the Jews in 1267, in WERTHEIMERS, Jahrbuch f. Israel, Vienna, 1859; HÉFELÉ, VI, p. 91-93; Honor., III, 1221; GREG. IX, 1233; Bull., Taur., 111, 380, 479, P., p. 578, 781; PuiLLIPs. K.-R., II, p. 423 et seq. Gregory IX had, on June 9, 1236, condemned the Talmud and ordered the bishops and priests to destroy the copies. Innocent IV prayed, in 1244, to Louis IX, King of France, after examining the Talmud, to have copies of it burned by the doctors of Paris and the chancellor of the Sorbonne. (P., p. 911 and seq. 966). The same measure was recommended by a Council of Béziers in 1255. (HEFELE, t. VI, p. 46).

(1) JULIAN OF TOLEDO, Migne, P. 4, t. XCVI, col. 569, Comprobation ætatis sectæ, lib. I, 28. ne . 2,

To prevent this reproach, the rabbis said and had said long before, that they had in some corner of the land a king who ruled the Jewish nation. But Julian Toledo accused them of putting forward an untenable falsehood.

This bishop was unfamiliar with the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion. Since then, the promised land has been reconquered; the Sabbath is reconstituted in Palestine; in the absence of a priesthood, the billionaires of the Jewish International High Bank replace the Princes of the Priests, and Israel is, once again, who became a worshipper of the Golden Calf, while awaiting the universal king that he will give to the world.

These predictions, almost entirely fulfilled, we abruptly reveal the "Jewish Peril," without showing us the symptoms of Israel's conversion. "Israel is the scourge of “God,” some tell us; “Israel, returning to Palestine, "will convert," the others reply. Although Zionism no longer simply based on expectation, the conversion _of Israel, barring a miracle, hardly appears on the horizon, while that the Jewish peril becomes more threatening every day.

Moreover, as early as 1899, this twofold objection was quite humorous. scientifically refuted, as follows: |

And if the Jew is God's scourge, should we then resist him?

The plague is a scourge from God! Must we surrender to the plague and Shouldn't you call the doctor?

Famine is a scourge from God! Must we cry out in fear before famine? and let themselves starve to death?

War is a scourge from God! When it is declared against us, must we Raise the butt in the air?

Attila was a scourge of God! How could Saint Leo have let him pass? about the Eternal City?

The English were a scourge of God! In the time of Charles VII! Was it necessary? that Joan of Arc, to please "the intellectuals" who were demanding the English rule in France, as they are asking today for that of Dreyfus (in 1899), was it necessary that Joan of Arc not drive out the Anglas?

The German was a scourge of God in 1870! Did our heroic and unfortunate army did not try to block the way to The invasion?

And then they would tell us that we must not resist the Jew under the pretext that he is the scourge of God, that the work of slow but sure The destruction accomplished, especially on us, over the last twenty years, is a work God's will?

Come on! There is something more surely willed by God: It is the instinct for self-preservation that God has placed in the hearts of peoples like individuals, and we are sure of them when we follow their impulse, to do God's will.

What? Job on his dung heap, undergoing God's trial, was the worms from its wounds. And France would not have the right to remove the Jewish vermin. Do his injuries?

Let's get rid of the vermin, all the vermin: the Jews, the Protestants, and the... Franes-Mat¢ons (1).

Two pages later, the same author responds to the objection misleading about the conversion of the Jews:

Is this the moment for the sheep, when it is in the lion's den? to be concerned about the conversion of the wolf?

Is this the moment for us, sheep of Catholicism, to worry about... cuper of the conversion of the Jewish wolf, in whose mouth we are Up to the neck?

We grumble, and our last bleat would be: "Have pity on the Jew?"

Let's bleat instead: "Have pity on us!"

— It is said: “Our Lord did indeed cry out: ‘Forgive them, for they "They don't know what they're doing."

— He said this about the executors of the sentence against the Jews, who were not Jews, since they were Romans and did not know, in fact, what they were doing, since they blindly carried out an instruction, in the manner junior officials of today, who throw the monks to the the gate and the Catholics outlawed, on orders they did not know, the Most of them came from the Jews!

For these too, Our Lord implores forgiveness, for “they do not they do not know what they are doing”; but He does not implore Him for the leaders of the Judaism, the Chief Priests, the Scribes, the Pharisees, who had voted for his death with good reason, precisely because H had cursed them, who continue to vote for her every day, because he maintains his position against them his curses!

— Will people still say: “However, what about every sin and mercy?”

— Who, for every sin one repents of! Show us the signs of The Jew's repentance!

Are these the threats of "upheaval" from Reinach? the promasses of terror — “compared to which the old Terror will not have been that an idyll" — from one of his high-ranking coreligionists, if he happens to be able to see ?

Until you give us further signs of repentance, suffer-It is better that we think much more about defending ourselves against the Jew.

(1) L. Via, The Sectarian Jew or Talmudic Tolerance, p. 328; Paris, Fleury, 1899.

than to grant him a pardon he doesn't think he deserves, if he even thinks of it asking with his usual impudence!

Moreover, while one shouldn't be more Catholic than the Pope, one should not One shouldn't try to be more merciful than God, under penalty of to fall from mercy into foolishness.

Now, what does God say about the Jews?

That they will only convert en masse at the end of the world (1).

Until then, they will continue to crucify Christ, according to Talmudic tradition. dic, among its worshippers the Catholics, who will consequently count– They add another illusion to their list if they continue to hope when even the conversion of the Jews.

We are not talking about individual conversions, which will continue to to occur, “but in small numbers,” Saint Paul told the Jews of his time (2).

– The objection will again be raised: “Must we then sacrifice this small number?

– No, but we must sacrifice far fewer people of our Catholic brothers whose souls are perishing by the millions under the blows from the Jews.

In short, when the wolf invades the sheepfold and devours the sheep, This is the time for them to resist, not to bleat.

Or rather, you have to do Pun and the other one, otherwise you'll only be doing the half of his duty.

Duty begins with prayer, but it ends with action.

While it is true to say that "any action is void which is not supported" "Through prayer," it is no less true to say that "all prayer is "A futile effort that does not lead to action."

And each must be done in its own time.

When Joan of Arc charged at the English shouting "Jesus! Mary!", She did not stop her horse's momentum in order to pray for or against I'm English.

She prayed before and after the assault, but not during it; she put her

(1) I will send you the prophet Elijah before the great and terrifying The day of the Lord is not yet coming, and he will gather the Fathers (the Patriarchs) with their children (the existing Jews) and the hearts of the children with their Fathers. (Malachi, 1V, 5 and 6).

“The Jews who killed the Lord Jesus and the prophets, who…” have persecuted, who do not please God and are enemies of all men, prevent us from proclaiming to the Gentiles the word which should to save, to fill without interruption the measure of their sins.

"For the wrath of God has come upon them until the end (of the world)." 1 Thessalonians 2:15–16.

(2) “When the number of the children of Israel were equal to that of the

"Of all the grains of sand in the sea, only a small remnant will be saved." Rom. IX, 27.

LET

An assault between two prayers, or rather, she intertwined her actions with prayer. She did not put her prayer in place of her action.

She knew that from France too, it must be said that "God who made her "Without us, she doesn't want to save it without us." ©

This is how, with God's help, she routed the battles– English lons!

This is how, with God's help, we will rout the battalions of the Jewish community!

– Finally, the cry goes up: “And what about charity?”

Charity commands us to hate, not the Jew, but "the evil that is in the Jew and what does the Jew do to us” with his Talmud, interpreted by his abominable Kahal!

If we do not hate with all our might this Talmud and this Kahal, who have been destroying Christian France for a hundred years, we do not like France, we do not love our brothers, we do not love Our Lord.

And if we love them, our hatred of the Talmud and the Kahal will be the
a measure of our love.

Under no circumstances should we hate the Jew.

However, there is one exception that is too often forgotten today. almost to the point of crime.

Here it is, according to the gentle Saint Francis de Sales, disciple of the gentle Saint Augustine was a doctor like him:

"I make an exception, among all those declared enemies of God and his Church, Because these people, like sects, must be denounced as much as possible.
heretics and schismatics and their leaders.

It is charity to cry wolf when he is among the sheep. (Introduction) tion to the devout life) (1).

Ultimately, our attitude — towards Jews and Freemasons must be a fighting attitude, or else we are not militant Catholics. Because the Jews and the Freemasons do not form a single block, which allowed the columnist to the Review of Historical Questions to conclude its article of April 1, 1882, by this dilemma:

»

Judaism rules the world, and one must necessarily conclude or that Freemasonry has become Jewish, or that Judaism has become Freemasonry Mason (2).

For us, the first solution is the real one: France Freemasonry has become Jewish, servilely Jewish; therefore we are—

---

(1) L. Vian, lib. cit., p. 231.
(2) Review of Historical Questions, April 1, 1882, p. 670.

we are struggling with the "Judeo-Masonic peril". The Papacy has forged our weapons of war: "Restitution and the a ghetto that will reduce the Jew to vassalage by taking away his civil rights.” If we do not impose this dual solution
As soon as possible, the dilemma of the Review of Historical Questions:

“Judaism rules the world, and it is necessary to conclude either that the world has become Jewish or that Judaism will devour the world.

The choice is simple: either the Catholic Supergovernment through the conversion of France, or the Jewish Supergovernment through the absorption of the symbolic serpent.

E. JOUIN,
Prelate of SS
Parish priest of Saint-Augustin.

APPENDIX III

EEE

The Bolsheviks & the Jews

Hatred against humanity, religious hatred, hatred of races, incitement to assassinations and pogroms, idiocy, an obscurantism comparable to that of the Middle Ages, such These are the objections, the terrible accusations that are raised against all those who dare to speak the truth about the Jews.

The threats, the insults, the slander, the lies, everything is used against Christians who want to remain Christians.
and who have enough independence of character and mind to not to bow down to the Jewish will, the Jewish power;
In short, so as not to follow the path of evil.
The Jews.

These are indeed the same methods of stifling thought.
that the Bolsheviks employ, with the added bloodshed (1).

Any notion of "verecondia" is absent from the mentality Jewish; in their venomous rage, the Jews lose even the They are cautious and reveal themselves as they truly are: liars,

(1) The Jew Saurus wrote, in January 1896, in a journal of Mainz, the Wäücherpile:

“We Jews, with our understanding, know that “Every word written in our favor earns usurious interest. Therefore, we spare no sacrifice to spread it, to encourage 'Page the author and reward the publisher.

“If, on the contrary, a book appears that is hostile to us, we will not If we don't buy it, the edition quickly goes from being a blight to pestle. ;

"The publicist is nothing anymore, we just have to organize against him" "Jui, the conspiracy of silence."

It's always good for the Jew to stifle thought.

shameless, vindictive, hateful, slanderous, with the absence complete with a sense of the ridiculous.

Regarding the "Protocols," they moved heaven and earth to to prove their falsity, and, so far, they have been unable to do so. to prove. The "Protocols" still remain a document absolutely in line with the age-old Jewish mentality and the plan, said to be messianic, of upheaval, for their benefit, of the worldwide.

They mobilized American scientists and pastors, all the Jewish Russians, the adventurers, and everything these people have said or written about the "Protocols" is recognized as false or insignificant.

The Jewish authorities of Bolshevism do not breathe a sigh of relief. Note: they found nothing in the "Ochranka" archives which would have proven the fabrication of the "Protocols" by the Tsar's policemen.

Similarly, regarding pogroms, they were perpetrated by the government. Russian, as well as on the alleged treason of the Emperor and of his wife, in whose name the revolution was unleashed and cast suspicion on the loyalty of Nicholas II in the eyes of Neither Kerensky nor Trotsky, as allies, were able to publish a single document proving these three charges against Pem-Father of Russia: the incitement to pogroms, the fabrication of the "Protocols" and the alleged imperial treason.

The memory of Nicholas II remains free from these odious slander. | ' |

And yet, listen to this PANE, said PUnivers israélite of the 7th

{

January 1921: |

Then a handful of murderers descended upon what had been the Your Majesties and Highnesses, and suddenly formed a horrible pile of corpses, just as they used to act, not so long ago, in the ghettos of a town Polish soldiers and police officers of these same Majesties, of these These same Highnesses, so sure of impunity in their palace, in the midst of their guard regiments. Yes, Nicholas II, his tsarevich, his great-Duchesses were ignobly murdered, defenseless, without useful protest, just like that Nicholas II and that tsarina had approved, provoked, and desired the assassination of men and women, of Israelite boys and girls, who were certainly not Majesties and Their Highnesses, but still human beings. Tragic. A dreadful turn of events! The autocrat pogromized like a a simple Jew!

+. -

Don't you discover in each word, in each the phrase "the implacable hatred of the Jew against the unfortunate" Nicholas II, a devout Christian, and against his own family? Don't you see-You don't see the hypocrisy of those who feel guilty about these heinous assassinations, and their desire to be exonerated from Their participation in this crime? "Nicolas, he pogromized like "Just a Jew! This is the appalling return of things!"

Well then! What are the Jews complaining about? One might say They can be accused of anything they want, of every crime committed. by the Bolsheviks on the Russians, this will change nothing in the The implacable law of "things returning." If they are absolutely innocent before immanent justice, they will not affected by this law; if, on the contrary, misfortune befalls If we start to "pogrom" them, it will only be... the simple, though "tragic and appalling return of things.

If the Jews have such great faith in justice From above, if they feel innocent of the sea of blood spread by them in Russia, they have nothing to worry about, nor to rage against those who provide evidence of their participation passion for Bolshevism.

Or do they think that men are so devoid of discernment that they can be easily directed in any What does it mean? Today, the Jews are inciting them against the Christians, and tomorrow the latter will throw them against the Jews.

No. If the Jews have experimented and found, among the Russians, supporters of their idea of upheaval and of massacres, they know full well that they only hired them among the nation's dregs, and this filthy rabble, seeing power, escaping the hands of the Jews, will turn around against the Jews, silently approved by the entire population persecuted, starved, slaughtered under Jewish rule.

It's "the relentless return of things".

ee |

Mr. Roditcheff, an old idealistic liberal, wrote a pamphlet on The Bolsheviks and the Jews.

This brochure is very curious; it reveals a state of mind particularly to an entire generation of Russian intellectuals who

LEGEND

The Red Tables (Red Calendar) in honor of the holiday Pentecost
Humor Weekly
Written by TOUNKELEN, with illustrations by SCHIKLIAVER

KERENSKY, a new Moses, whose forehead is adorned with two rays of light– Neux, descends from Sinai. He is dressed in the tallit with ritual fringes. The The Hebrew people rushed towards him and acclaimed him, prostrating themselves before the Red Tablets of the new Law that Kerensky announces to the people.

On these Tablets, which he holds in his hands, one reads:

Liberty – Equality – Emancipation – National rights, etc.

In the distance, one can see the palace of Tauride – the Duma of the Old Kingdom from Russia.

Multitudes of Jews surged past the Palace, carrying flags and banners; on some one can distinguish the word: "Liberty", on others, 'pentagrams.

A block of stone, to the right of Kerensky, appears to depict a bust: could it be– That one from Kar! Marx?

Since this publication was intended solely for Jews, several Russians at whose homes it was discovered, they were immediately put to death.

Y

| 4 7 be
F

P Ne D

JUDAIC APOTHEOSE OF BROTHER KERENSKY
President of the Provisional Government

7 |

wanted and prepared the revolution and took part in it – always

under the direction of the Jews – an active part.
The conclusion of this brochure is as follows:

Antisemitism from above, as well as antisemitism from below, has the same roots in ignorance, incomprehension; in the strength of passions and zoological instincts (these expressions are always used) used by Jewish writers when they speak of patriotic sentiment tic), incapable of critical analysis.

Let's see how Mr. Roditcheff demonstrates his analytical ability.
Critical list. He says:

The Bolsheviks—they're the Jewish power, so they say. But where Did we take that seriously? It was the decaying army that brought him to power. The Bolsheviks, not the Jews. They're not the Jews either. who massacred the young students of the military schools who were defending the provisional government. It wasn't the Jews who bombed Moscow. The murdered sailors who swam—not on the sea— But in blood, they are not Jews. The Bolshevik assassins in Not all the cities and all of Russia were Jewish. Those who, at Lenin's call, destroyed the castles, killed systematically and with joy, sometimes men, sometimes horses and Cows are not Jews, but real Russians...

No one says, however: Here come the Russians!

And when we say that the Bolsheviks are Russians, we put ourselves... angry tones, and we are right.

Nor do we say: "Look at the Menjinskys (?) or the Djerzinsky – it is Poland that is massacring |... We understand that they They are Bolsheviks because they are wicked and cruel, not because they They are Polish.

Trotzky only wants to make the entire Jewish people guilty. Bronstein, Ioffe and Co." We forget the Jews who fought against the Bolsheviks, who perished at the hands of the Bolsheviks, like the nobleman Vilenkin, the well-known Moscow lawyer.

Mr. Roditcheff brilliantly demonstrates his inability of discernment and critical analysis.
No one has ever claimed that only Jews are Bolsheviks. Mr. Roditcheff confuses the effect with the cause—this | which proves that the main rule of logic is Unknown. When he says that "it's the army in decay" "ui.", etc., he completely forgets the cause of the decomposition Hey, one of the Russian army; he forgets the cause of the massacres of

j Z 2 z stadt, of Sevastopol, like that of the peasant revolts in the

ea; hiat, , 11

campaigns. We say: "It's the Jews, nothing but the Jews who prepared and unleashed the revolution and the Bolsheviks Visma in Russia. It was the Jews who incited the massacres. and to the looting, and it was the Jews who benefited from it.”

And these causes, which should not be unknown to Mr. Roditcheff The boss doesn't want to talk about it.

We Russians know very well that the army held good until the day the Jewish propagandists invaded it and decomposed, by inciting the soldiers against the officers. We we know that the provisional government was subject to obedience- the complete session of the Soviets, which arose from who knows where or how, but led by Jews, whose pseudonyms were unveiled; – the Bolsheviks were shooting the Russians on the spot at whose place one could find the list of these pseudonyms and the biography of Kerensky.

Order number 1, manufactured by Sokoloff, in the company of a Jew, A German spy, and signed by Mr. Goutchkoff, was sent into Parma was under threat from the same Soviets.

Mr. Roditcheff, even if he was never himself in the Che-Ka, must at least know from the Russians who have been there that everything The staff of these terrible institutions are Jewish, except in the rather rare cases where Jews want to disguise themselves – such as in Ekaterinburg where the Tsar was killed – and put as President, a Russian fool who serves as a puppet.

Mr. Roditcheff should know that this is on the orders of the Soviets. that all the prisons were opened and that the criminals released immediately became the most reliable support of these same Bolshevik Soviets.

I] must also know that Trotsky, in Kronstadt, and Sarah Ostrovsky, in Sevastopol, was stirring up the sailors against the officers and shouted that soon all the wealthy Russians and intellectuals would be assassinated. He must know that all the Jews were distributing money to these same sailors who were the vanguard army of Bolshevism in the pay of the Jewish quarter.

Mr. Roditcheff speaks of the system that was followed to massacre The Russians; he let slip an imprudent word. Yes, everything is it was based on a system, a plan prepared in advance, and this The plan is none other than that of the "Protocols".

He neglects to mention that Jewish democratic organizations,

Like Bund, Poaley-Sion openly adhered to Bolshevism.

He forgets to mention that at the head of the Ministries, the Universities, Academies were filled with beardless Jewish boys and ignorant people, emboldened by their insolence and their hatred of the Russians.

He does not say any more than that the Jewish plebeians adhered to the Bolsheviks. visme that she served in the establishments of the new government, that all the communist commissars were Jews affiliated with the Third International, and that the latter is led, worldwide, by Jewish leaders* and Jewish agents.

He is completely unaware that this Third International is not, In short, that the secret society attached to Freemasonry of Weishaupt's followers, and all the communist cells are merely the ramifications of this masonry, accessible to all those who have demonstrated during their six-month internship that they are capable of all the crimes that high-ranking Jews command.

To deny these things outright, for the sole reason that we ignores, even though they are now established, proven, do not raising no further doubt, it demonstrates a provinobvious professionalism and bad faith (1). |

(1) Mr. Gansky eloquently developed this idea in a Conference the statement he made on April 15, 1921, to the Franco-Russian Friendship League, On the Causes of International Unrest:

"The Third International," he said, "has become the absolute master of the Russia and can exert a formidable influence on the (world) and on the international market.

"Because Russia possesses immense wealth, and it is to clear away the place in the capitalist International that so many Russians have been exterminated and that national property and production have been ruined.

"And here we have the two pincers of one and the same" vice: one — the one above — the golden International, the cosmo- capital politeness; the other — that of below, the Revolutionary International of the proletarians tariat led by demagogues of the same Jewish race to whom the Capital provides the funds.

"Consequently, those who are destined to be crushed are the nationals" from all countries, the rich to be robbed and ruined, the independents to be shot, the poor to be enslaved.

"That's exactly what happened in Russia."

"As a means of propagating this poison that kills nations and the States, they make use of secret societies, Masonic lodges, the new-

Regarding the "Protocols" and all the noise surrounding them Mr. Roditcheff says of them that "it's idiocy".

He only knows one thing about the "Protocols": that they were given to Nilus by a certain Souchotine. What is this Souchotine? Mr. Roditcheff knew him or heard about him... He is a provincial administrator and landowner; he wanted to have his stables cleaned by the peasants; but the latter, knowing that Souchotine's horses were sick with snot, refused to carry out his order. So Souchotine had them arrested. The peasants complained about him. but he was acquitted.

From this, the perfectly logical conclusion that a gentleman: He could only transmit a falsehood to Nilus.

But what then becomes of the Radziwills' claims and

Chayla said that the "Protocols" were the work of the police Tsarists? How could this document have fallen into the hands of the in the hands of a mere provincial administrator? And, if it is the
The government that produced this document, it is the one that should have dů edit and distribute it, and not entrust its editing to a unknown like Nilus.

All of this escapes Mr. Roditcheff and the Jews who have They've really lost their minds and can't get out of all the... contradictions in which they are mired.

old religions imported from the East claiming to reconcile and unify in one and the same principle: Science and Religion, Lucifer and Christ.
The symbol of these sworn enemies of the Church and the State is the seal.
of Solomon, the Pentagram, the five-pointed Star adopted by the Sacrificial Magi of Bolshevism.

And, further on, the author concludes in these terms:

"If Bolshevism persists in Russia, this country will be the home of all The corruptions, from all sects to the most monstrous cults. The Russia will become the wide-open gateway to Asia, while the Empire
Russia was the surest bulwark against the invasion of the Asians.
What am I saying? Russia itself will become Asiatic, and barbarism, too close to Western Europe, which will no longer be guarded to the east by a powerful state, the barbarity led by the Bolsheviks, allied with Germany Magne and followed by the Chinese, the Tartars, and other Western peoples, will overwhelm the West in an irresistible invasion that the governors Jewish communities and republican democracies have so well prepared for "All forms of enslavement, like all forms of shame."

e"

In this regard, I must say a few words about my memories.
personal, since the Jews use theirs as proof of the falsity of the "Protocols".

The "Protocols" are merely an extension of the theses.
contained in Rabbi Reichhorn's speech, delivered on the tomb of Simeon-ben-Joudha, in Prague, in 1859.

This speech was published by Readcliff in his book:
Account of the political and historical events that have occurred in the last ten years. Readcliff was brought to this meeting by Lassalle. After the publication of this work, Readcliff died suddenly after a dinner, and Lassalle was killed in a duel over a Jewish woman, Rakovitz, by Denigetz, in 1863.

The Jews want to ridicule this speech and Readcliff
he himself; they claim that everything he says
It's a novel for old women.

I learned about this speech through the work of Wolsky: Jewish Russia.

When I was in Russia, one of my friends, a prosecutor at the
The Odessa Court of Appeal secretly communicated this to us.
speech. He had found it in the "Secret Archives of "Courts." This speech had been read in Simferopol by a rabbi, in a synagogue. The authorities had arrested the rabbi for having delivered a seditious speech, and the case had arrived at the Court of Cassation in Odessa where she was suffocated
"so as not to incite passions against the Jews." But the
The file was kept in the secret archives.

If this statement had been false, it is obvious that the rabbi would not
He wouldn't have read it at the synagogue. The Russian government, Fearing pogroms, many were classified in this way.
of cases concerning Jews, which proves once again
the falsity of the accusations made by the Jews against the Tsarist regime as an instigator of pogroms.

*

kk `

q

But let's get back to Mr. Roditcheff.
At the end of his brochure, he tells us about the environment in which he lived Nicholas II and where "the Masonic conspiracy was firmly believed-

Screw you, witches, the coming end of the world, the devil

"With or without horns."

Mr. Roditcheff finds this very pleasant. Speaking of the He hears about sorcerers, Papus, Philippe and Rasputin.

Papus, Grand Master of the Martinist Order, had gone to the Imperial court to open the first breach to influences occult and Masonic. Then Freemasonry sent the Philippe the spiritualist, and, finally, Rasputin, with his acolyte the Tibetan doctor Badmaieff. Rasputin was under the orders of The Jewish community and Germany.

The emperor and empress were aware of the plot Masonic plot against them, without suspecting, however, that The Freemasons were already inside the palace itself.

In addition, some ministers and other influential figures Those in the administration and in the Duma were Freemasons. the society of the Emperor's immediate entourage was infested of all sorts of sects, more or less mystical, but having all have links with Freemasonry. This tradition dates back to far away. Paul I" was a Freemason and was strangled by Freemasons. Alexander I was under the influence of Martinist mystics which he eventually managed to get rid of; as he died, he embraced Catholicism. The Decembrist movement originated from Masonic lodges. The Engineers' Palace was the epicenter- the school of Masons or apprentice Masons; it is from this school that the most revolutionary officers in the army were coming out of.

A Russian colonel told us the following story: A Hindu he gave him the plan of the underground passages of the Palace of Engineers in Petrograd, telling him it was in one of the rooms of these soulerrains, precisely in the library where preserve all Masonic archives, which the representatives members of world Freemasonry held, in June 1914, their Congress. And it was at this Congress that the war was decided. This colonel, with an officer, checked the plan in hand, every room in these underground passages. Everything was accurate. He couldn't However, despite persistent searching, the part could not be found. reserved for archives, so carefully is it hidden. Before the war, Petrograd was overrun by these companies secret meetings where, under the pretext of mystical gatherings, theosophistic, religious, they indulged in all sorts of experiments erotic experiences, under the influence of powerful narcotics.

Everything led to black masses and the worship of Lucifer. Despite their searches, the police were unable to find anything.

The groundwork for Revolution and Bolshevism was being laid, And the followers were recruited from among these deranged individuals. They needed... leaders, rulers, and these leaders were found; they were the corrupters and destroyers of all tradition, the Jews of the Third International, closely linked with the high dignitaries Masonic secrets.

Roditcheff seems to be unaware of all this. That's his business. We don't Let's not believe he's paid by the Jews: he's a provincial and an ignorant man, like almost all liberal intellectuals Russians. But his pamphlet earned him a laudatory article in the The Jewish Tribune, the same Tribune that sends its spies at all meetings where Russians might be present and where they speak out against Bolshevism. The Tribune prints then the names of these Russians, heaping insults upon them, lies and slander, in order to denounce them thus to Bolshevik agents are swarming in Paris. The Cheka will know to then take revenge on those who remain in Russia. The Tribune The Jewish community is merely a clandestine agency of the Bolsheviks in Paris. It is from this agency that the Russians, who call themselves anti-Bolsheviks and who kiss the dirty feet of Jews, receive a word of good-vigilance and encouragement. They rejoice and they continue to mislead public opinion; — and they are legion!

If the Jews are the direct and undeniable cause of the Bolsheviks visme, they are a power, an enemy force of order Christian, against which we must fight with discernment and intelligence.

But nobody ever said that the Russians who were bowing before this power, flattering the Jews and humbling themselves they lie in front of them, begging for a few crumbs from their table opulent, be innocent: they are a thousand times more despised sands and more harmful than the Jews, for they cover them with their names and their authority; they help them in the accomplishment- the masterminds of their diabolical plan, and they are those masterminds amorphous where all Jewish ideas become embedded like parasitic larvae; they spread the Judaic virus in their atmosphere, and no logic, no reason, no fact will be able to change their unhealthy mentality.

They are not true Bolsheviks, but they are worse.
In vain they tell themselves, anti-Bolsheviks, their brains are damaged revolutionary poison that leads them to latent Bolshevism occult, as was the case with the provisional government.

Men like Bourtzeff (1), Milioukoff, Goutchkoff, Roditcheff and many others who proclaim themselves patriots
Russians, Christians, anti-Bolsheviks, are merely agents aware of the same leaders, the same power, of those who destroyed Russia, assassinated the emperor and his family, of those who massacre Russians by the hundreds of thousands and who are preparing the new order of things for Russia, he said democratic, which will finally allow us to undertake the feat-Russia's tation – with the help of the new government entirely devoted to the Jewish cause – through the Jewish bank.

Are there not two rival banks in America that
Are they fighting for the economic takeover of future Russia?
One, American, the Morgan Bank; the other, Jewish, the Bank
Khun, Leeh, Schiff, specifically the one who provided the funds for the destruction of Russia.

The American bank does not want to enter into a relationship with the Bolsheviks and let no Jew near her. While that the Jewish bank would gladly provide money for to maintain the unrest in Russia and thus prevent the American bank to conduct business in this country.

Finally, all of this happens according to the plan and the absolute system.
documents conforming to the "Protocols".

But Mr. Roditcheff and his associates don't even suspect it.
On the contrary, they find insane those who They reveal the plot hatched against the Christian world. Also Our author concludes his brochure by saying "that it is indis-
It is conceivable to fight against the contagion of anti-Semitism, on which the political madmen, enraged in their hatred, base
"All their hopes."

(1) In our first volume on The Judeo-Masonic Peril, we
We analyzed the 1920 Russian edition of the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion:

This edition includes an article on Bourtzeff. (M# Jouin, Les “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion, p. 172-177).

*
xe

No, Mr. Roditcheff, you are mistaken. Those who fight against the conspiracy and domination of the Jews are clearer-seers like you and your kind. They have no hatred against the Jews as such; they do not form dreams homicides, as the Jews try to persuade us; at
On the contrary, what they want above all is to have a a well-governed homeland, according to its historical traditions, in order to
to bring happiness to all.

But what they don't want is to keep in their homeland the latent virus of Bolshevik evil, which is none other than the Jewish mentality.

It is against this evil that they feel hatred, an implacable hatred.
cable and salutary at the same time; their great fault, in the eyes of the Jews and of the Jews, consists of being perceptive enough to comp-
to take that the propagators of May, the instigators of
The assassinations and destruction are none other than the Jews.
They appear today as the protagonists and the representatives on earth of absolute evil.

For centuries and centuries, Jews have fought against the Christianity, which brought to this world the notion of absolute good, absolute truth, and separated good and evil, which were confused before Him. It's not the Christians' fault that the Jews remained.
On the other side, forming the city of evil (1), Always and everywhere

(1) Mr. Gansky has often demonstrated in his Conference that the Bolsh-Visma primarily unleashed religious war:

"The Tsar," he said, "was assassinated not only as a political leader, but also as a religious leader. It is this sectarian, anti-religious fanaticism which explains the relentless and cruel effort to destroy the entire family imperial.

"Moreover, the Russian clergy also had to endure the most severe tortures."
unprecedented; its history since Bolshevism is now nothing but a long and doulourcux martyrologe.

"However, the Russian Church, persecuted, subjected to martyrdom, remains still standing, gathering around the Cross the Russian rebels against the revolution and capable of standing up to Bolshevism. This is proof of extraordinary vitality and miraculous strength of faith in Christ, the eternal ideal of sacrifice in the name of love for humanity suffering.

The speaker returns to his idea a few pages later and pays homage to delicate matter to the Catholic Church and its Head, the Sovereign Pontiff:

"We have before us an undeniable fact that I hasten to

Throughout history, they have engaged in corruption and decomposition, shamelessly exploiting the Christians to whom their Religion forbade harming one's neighbor. And when The Jews felt stronger; they were already trying what they What happens in Russia is revolution and death.

Who doesn't remember the massacres on the island of Cyprus, in CyreNaic, in Palestine?

Finally, when, at the end of their patience, their victims began- Jews, ever eager to take justice into their own hands, have always did what they are doing today: they cried out against injustice, against the persecution, fueled by religious hatred, turning their punishment into accusing the Church or the monarchy, and always to blame others for their own crimes.

This, however, was merely the effect of immanent justice: The overstretched spring breaks and injures its unwary archer.

This is the case with Russia.

What is happening there, the Jews wanted it, they prepared it through their own actions. Doctor Pasmanik complains that someone has been killed 150,000 innocent Jews in Russia, in pogroms. First, Where is the proof of their innocence? In any case, some Millions of Russians were slaughtered by the Jews. Who then in Speak? You all remain silent, you future builders. from Russia with the help of Israel, in fear of the wrath Jewish.

Whether it concerns the Church being persecuted, martyred, and outraged, None of you breathes a word about it. But if we make a thousand times less to the Jews, you cry religious persecution to remind you. Apart from all these struggles on a material level, which corrupt our energies and make men so cruel, there is a another power, also universal, but whose activity is situated in a completely superior field, I mean in the field spiritual.

n It is the Roman Catholic Church.

"We have already seen that the Russian Orthodox Church remains standing despite all of Satan's attacks. Likewise, the Catholic Church is always remained at this inaccessible height that dominates all passions human and retains its full authority over the souls of its faithful. It is governed by principles diametrically opposed to those to which democratic governments are subject to principles of authority and Hierarchy. Principles which, in the Church, are of divine origin, based on the very words of Christ and fulfilled in the Apostle Saint Peter, of whom His Holiness the Pope is the direct and legitimate heir.

to racial hatred. For our part, let us be courageous, let us denounce it. everywhere our persecutor, the age-old enemy of Christianism, its teachings, and Christian civilization.

The same Doctor Pasmanik confessed in The Jewish People that the "Terror" among the Bolsheviks was merely a full-blown act of foresight: if we abolished the "Terror", it would be the the beginning of the pogroms; therefore, to avoid this If necessary, the Russian population must be kept on a leash by the "Terror." The admission is clear: "Terror exists for me only because..." to protect the Jews from the justice of the people" (1).

Thank God, there are courageous, well-bred people everywhere. seigniorial, calm in mind and temperament to weigh the

(1) Let us quote here the last note from Mr. Gansky's Conference:

"We are talking about this 'Terror' that cannot be described. This It is not death itself that is terrible: on the contrary, we have seen people who calmed down when they were sent to the Che-Ka to be shot.

"The Bolshevik 'Terror' is something else entirely; it is neither human, nor earthly; she is from the other world, the infernal world.

"Under the Bolshevik regime, there is no more hope; isn't there?" Precisely what characterizes hell? The Bolsheviks trample underfoot What is best for man: freedom, independence, the poetry, the joy of living. They bring with them a dreary and saddened boredom, destruction, cold, hunger, filth, infection, obscene swearing, lies, mistrust, hatred, vice, moral torment, blas- . a pheme against all that is sacred and in the end — only — death, Moral death, physical death, the death of nature itself. It would truly be the unleashing of all satanic forces to to devour everything that lives on earth.

"The Bolsheviks have no gift for creation, they are not capable" of no act to promote life, they are not men, but larvae, human waste, brought out from underground bearing the seal of Cain at the front, with hatred and vengeance in their souls (if they have one), with a thirst for blood and plunder. That is why all of humanity, overcome with disgust and anger, must turn away from everything that evokes the memory, however distant, of Bolshevism and the Bolsheviks.

"Russia has, alas, experienced Bolshevism in all its..." horror; and we, the Russians who lived through those terrible days, we We believe it is our duty to warn all our Christian friends about the others nations and to say to them: “Fear everything that reminds us, even from afar, Bolshevism; and beware of setting foot on the first step, It's so slippery it would send you tumbling into the abyss. To avoid it, preserve intact the Christian truth, as it is taught by The Church alone will protect you from a fatal misstep; for the question Bolshevism is a religious question and, therefore, for everyone "For the people, it's a matter of life or death."

things and facts, without being intimidated by the barking from the Jewish and Judaized press, by those hypnotized by the idea Jewish, like the Russian intellectual liberals, or by Sordid Jews, who emerged from some unknown ghetto in Russia, ignorant and hateful, possessing nothing but the impudence of lies and slander. They update in the newspapers or magazines the Judeo-Masonic plan such that it is clearly developed in the "Protocols". A A counter-army is forming in the threatened universe: may it to liberate Russia and preserve the world from the greatest peril that he had known until that day.

This is our response to the pamphlet: The Bolsheviks and the Jews; such is the vow of hope and salvation that the true Russians by race and tradition oppose him.

P. GANSKY.

APPENDIX IV

DOCUMENTS ON THE WORLD JEWISH MOVEMENT

DURING THE SECOND QUARTER OF 1921

SUMMARY :

INTERNATIONAL GENERAL INFORMATION: Universal Anti-Jewish League. Einstein's Internationalism. — The Anti-Semitic Thesis. — Twelfth Zionist Congress in Carlsbad.

The Protocols: Article by Mr. Salomon Reinach on work by Mr. LuCien Wolf. — Interview with Princess Catherine Radziwill and Ms. Henriette Hurblut. — Princess Catherine's Conference Radziwill in Brooklyn. — The Jewish People reprints the article from the World Review. — Slander of |' American Jewish Committee. —Brochure: “The Elders of Zion and World Opinion!” against the "Protocols." — Italian translation of "Protocols." — Discussion from an article in La Croix by L'Univers Israélite. — Article by MA-M. from Chayla.

GERMANY: Bismarck and Anti-Semitism. — German Jews against Zionism. — Jewish influences in the Wirth ministry.

ENGLAND: Lecture by MG Levison on anti-Semitism. The Joint Press Committee to combat antisemitism. Jewish Influences on Mr. Lloyd George. — Sir Marcus Samuel, Peer of England. — Sir Philip Sassoon, secretary to Mr. Lloyd George, Member of the Council of the National Gallery, London. — The governornement refuses communication of the report on the disturbances in Jerusalem Salem. — There is no information on the proportion of Jews naturalized. — Two Jewish women are appointed judges of the London committee. — Sir David Sassoon is appointed mayor of Bombay. — Proposed opening Freedom of English colonies to Jewish immigration. — Protest against halting Jewish immigration to Palestine.

—AUSTRIA: Anti-Semitic Congress in Vienna. — The Jews are not admitted to the Touring Club. — The B'Brith League.

BULGARIA: Favors for the Jews.

EGYPT: Israel, Jewish newspaper.

UNITED STATES: Mr. Henry Ford's predicament. — The YMCA admits Jews and Catholics (?). — Zionist schism. — Jews in Parliament. — Michigan Anti-Semitism Act. — The President Harding and the B'rith Abraham. — Mr. Louis Marshall protests against the Immigration restrictions. — President Harding favors immigrants. — Jewish press campaign on the same subject. —

Jewish recognition for President Wilson. — Jewish Congress American. — Campaign against Ford's "Dearbon Independent". — The Knights of Columbus against anti-Semitism, against prejudice race, conference organization in America and Canada in this goal. — A Jewish lawyer. — Cardinal Manning and the Jews.

FRANCE: Excerpts from obituaries dedicated to Mr. Joseph Reinach, the Dreyfus affair, Zionism, the League of Patriots and Boulangisme, etc. Alfred Dreyfus at the funeral. — The Undesirables, letter a special letter addressed to the Review. — The Jews, Joan of Arc and Napoleon Leo I." — Social boycott of the Jews. — Religious inspiration Jewish life, France, and Jewish worship. — The Alliance Israélite Universelle and Zionism, A curious anecdote about the newspaper De Temps. — Complaints against Mr. Briand. The Jews are not revolutionaries. — Protest against an article by Mr. Roger Lamblin published in the Revue Hebdo-Madaire. — Lectures to the Jewish Youth of Nice. — L'Humanité, Victory and the Jews. — Mr. Tirard, High Commissioner in the pro-occupied German cities intervened against anti-Semitism.

HOLLANDE: The Queen of Holland and the Israelites.

HUNGARY: Measures against Jewish doctors and teachers. — Boy-Jewish newspapers' cottage. — Prohibition of Hebrew and Yiddish in correspondence, etc. — Jewish criminal statistics. — The Jews and Béla Kuhn.

ITALY: The death of Ernesto Nathan.
LITHUANIA: Minister of Jewish Affairs.

PALESTINE: Jews in Palestine, praise from the High Commissioner English. — The English Mandate and the Jews of France. — Address Consistorial Council of the Holy Father. — The “assimilators” and Zionism. — Suspension of immigration to Palestine. — Jewish spies. — The Jewish National Committee of Palestine and the British Mandate. — The poli-
Sir Herbert Samuel's tic is not as energetic as the vouwould treat the Jews. — The Arab and Christian Committee of Jaffa requests a representative government and the annulment of the Balfour Declaration.
a= Declaration of the President of the Arab Congress of Caiffa.

POLAND: The Jews in Upper Silesia. — The government fears the the Jews. — The Warsaw Bar Association refuses The admission of Jews — Anti-Semites want to close the border Eastern to the Jewish revolutionaries. — The Jews want to change their names.

ROMANIA: A Deputy Minister for the Jews. — The Minister of Justice condemns antisemitism. — Measures of the Minister of Justice war against Jewish espionage.

RUSSIA: Jews forced into Soviet government service. — The me-

Memoirs of Count Witte: The Revolutionary Jews.

— We read in the Archives israélites, April 14, 1921, p. 59:

Anti-Semites are stirring up trouble in most countries. The truce of the The war seems unbearable to them and they claim to be starting their war against the Jews. To carry out two projects, they prepare themselves to create a Universal Anti-Jewish League. It was Berlin that took this initiative. initiative. But Vienna outmaneuvered it by convening an anti-Semitic Congress to which these good Germans and their friends from Czechoslovakia are summoned.

If we compare these demonstrations with the campaign led by certain certain English newspapers and labels prevalent in the United States, one might will report that a general uprising of anti-Semitic bakers is being prepared. A word to the wise.

It's always the same tactic, the Jews carry the revoElution and anarchy in all countries. Then, when the Christians want to defend themselves, the Israelites cry out against the Persecutorcut and reaction. The trick eventually got exposed. Well, good A word to the wise!

— The Evening Post, of New York, published an interview with Jewish physicist Einstein, author of the theory of relativity.

— The Jewish Tribune reports certain statements among theWe note the following:

Humanity is currently suffering in Germany and throughout Europe. oriental, as it has never suffered in recent centuries. It suffers as a result of an exaggerated and narrow nationalism. The wave nationalist, who transforms at the slightest pretext and without pretext None, in chauvinism, is a disease.

Internationalism, which existed before the war, in 1914, the intercultural nationalism, cosmopolitanism of commerce and industry, Intellectual tolerance, this kind of internationalism was right. Peace will not be restored to the world, and the wounds caused by the War will not be cured until this internationalism is restored. poi.

Indeed, we know that internationalism in all its forms is one of the weapons that Jews use best to achieve the domination of Israel, announced in the "Pro"The 'sons of the Elders of Zion'."

— The journal Peace and Law, organ of the United Jewish Association Verselle, published an article in its May 1921 issue: "The Jews and the Conquest of the World," in which we Let us note this fairly accurate exposition of the anti-Semitic thesis:

The Jews are the promoters of the malaise from which the current situation is suffering. world; they are both responsible for and profiteers of the war and the calamities that followed. Bolsheviks in Russia, Zionists in Polandgne, Palestinians in England, Communists in Central Europe, sociallists according to Moscow or unbridled capitalists in the West, whatever Regardless of their nationality, origin, or political party, they all agree. to betray the hospitality of the people who generously welcomed them, to destroy their national civilizations and conquer upon their ruins commercial and financial supremacy as well as political power. After Russia, which is their prey and their victim, it is the turn of Great Britain. Brittany came, whose conquest only preceded that of the universe. i Already, the more or less hidden power of this inter- coterie The national newspaper focused on English politics and its representatives: The prime minister is now a prisoner of this. It is in this fact that we must seek the root cause of his words and actions, of his abrupt changes and diplomatic missteps. His attitude in the prothe problem of reparations, in the questions of Palestine, the Ruhr and of Upper Silesia, its irreconcilable hostility towards Poland, its compromises with the Soviet Republic, its systematic forgetting of the law and the interests of his French allies, all of this is dictated to him by the Semitic bankers of the Stock Exchange, allied with those of Wall Street and Berlin.

Naturally, the author of the article undertakes the refutation. of these assertions; his argumentation, however subtle, is weak and clashes with the evidence of the facts and the implementation in action of the program announced in the "Protocols". If It is added that the Jews are leading everywhere, with the help of France. Freemasonry and its subsidiaries, the struggle against the Church, the painting is as true as it is complete.

— From the Jewish People, June 24, 1921:

The twelfth Zionist Congress will open on September 1st in Carlsbad. An office in charge of the preparations for this Congress is placed under the direction of Mr. Julius Berger and Dr. Martin Rosenbluth...

The meeting of the Grand Action Committee, which had been scheduled for June 22nd, has

»

It was postponed to July 10th... The meeting will take place in Prague, in the B'ne Brith Lodge premises.

— Under this title: “The Alleged Minutes of the Wise Men of Zion,” Univers Israélite reproduces, in its issue of April 1, 1921, an article published by Mr. Salomon Reinach, in the Critical Review of History and Literature. This work aims to but to demonstrate that the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion are a forgery which Mr. Lucien Wolf, of London, is said to have found Multiple sources. According to the English author, to whom Mr. Salomon Reinach lends his authority to the work of Serge Nilus is linked to the works of Barruel, Robison, Malet, Gougenot des Mousseaux. We find these same ideas, apparently, in the Anabaptisticum. Pantheon (1702) and the Eisenmenger's Judaism Unveiled (1711). Then also in the works by Ed. Drumont, Copin Albancelli, in France; Wichtl, Meister and Rosenberg, in Austria and Bavaria; M™ Webster, in England. And also in the novels of the Polish writer Krasinsky (1834), and especially the Prussian Hermann Goedsche (whose | The best known would be Biarritz, 4 volumes, Berlin, 1868). And All of this is worthy of Leo Taxil; at least, that is the opinion of Mr. Salomon Reinach adds, addressing those who believe to the "Protocols" of the Elders of Zion:

Such naiveté in 1920 is truly inspiring. Those who believed in the Monita Secreta were less to be pitied, for these Monita, artfully written by a former Jesuit, are a fake, which one cannot say smells bad at a distance. You really have to have an incredible sense of smell not to recognize it. to be born that of Nilus. | |

Mr. Salomon Reinach concludes as follows:

The falsified Basel reports came at just the right time to strengthen the opinion that Russian Bolshevism is of Jewish origin... But, it is insisted, There are Jews by origin among the Bolshevik leaders. Undoubtedly, but he They're not the only ones. These leaders, even if they were all Jewish (there are hardly any of them), that about ten) (1), it would be necessary to recognize that they are pursuing a non-political policy Not Jewish, but anti-Jewish, like the twelve apostles who were nevertheless all Jews, some nineteen hundred years ago.

---

(1) Mr. Salomon Reinach is very poorly informed, for a scholar, on the question. He may find it helpful to read the document published on page 333. from the supplement to our April issue.

We do not need to discuss this in this part of the Review Mr. Salomon's more or less accurate and risky assertions Reinach; we will make only one observation, always the same: Have the facts justified, and do they still justify, each day by day, multiplying the program unveiled by the "Pro"Tocols" of the Elders of Zion? A program of action which aims to but ultimately the destruction of Society and the ruin of the Church Catholic, in order to clear the way for mon- domination dial of the material Messiah of Israel.

And we will add that if Mr. Salomon Reinach, Mr. Lucien Wolf, of London, and others, found traces of similar ideas blatant to those expressed by the "Protocols" of the Sages of Sion, in other, much earlier works, this simply proves that revolutionary and anarchic action Jews, marching to conquer universal domination, This is not a recent phenomenon. Indeed, traces of it can be found in the Zohar and the Talmud that Mr. Salomon Reinach neglected to to cite, perhaps because they are the work of Jewish rabbis.

— Under the title: “The Truth About the Protocols of Zion”, The Tribune Juive reproduced, in its issue of April 1, 1921, two “Interviews with Princess Radziwill and Ms. Henriette Hurblut", which appeared in the Amecican Hebrew (numbers 15 and 16, 1912). These documents do not tell us Nothing new. It's still the same philo-Semitic thesis. which cannot prevail against accomplished facts and facts in progress of implementation. Note, however, the following passage of the declarations Princess Catherine Radzivill's rations:

As for the assertion that "Protocols," regardless of their authenticity- To suggest that this had any connection with the revolution is nonsense. All those Those who knew the situation in Russia could have predicted the advent of the revolution. I myself pointed it out in my book "Behind the "Veil of the Russian Court," which I published under my pseudonym "Count Paul Wasili".

The revolution was not the work of the Jews. The revolution was born from Historical causes and was inevitable, like all revolutions. If If there hadn't been a world war, the Russian police would probably have knew how to suppress it for a certain time, as she had done in 1905.

Princess Radziwill speaks of an "American lady" who would have had knowledge of the forgery at the princess's home in Paris manuscript.

The Jewish Tribune says:

The American lady, Mrs. Henriette Hurblut, whom the princess mentions Radziwill, who is currently in New York, made, in 1916,
The American Hebrew (No. 16, March 4, 1921), the following statements.

Why in 1916? Nobody at that time was talking about the publication by Serge Nilus. Let's move on and note that after Having declared herself "anti-Semitic," this American woman... her marriage, born to a French mother and an English father, confirms, without dwelling too much on it, the statements of the Russian princess, in regarding the alleged police origin of the "Pro-"Tocols." All this is nonsense, and the Jews will do well.
to look for something better.

The Tribune Juive informs us, in its issue of the 22nd April 1921, that "Princess Radziwill did, these days
lastly, a conference in Brooklyn, on "The Origin of Minutes of the Elders of Zion. Let us record, according to the Jewish newspaper, this statement:

I am not Jewish. There is not a drop of blood in my veins.
I am Jewish, but everything I am about to say is dictated to me by the conscience of a sacred duty; I must express everything I feel and everything I know.

Princess Radziwill is simply repeating her previous mistakes
'assertions whose inanity and self-serving source no longer
No doubt about it. Here, however, is a new fact:

Later, during the examination of the Beilis case in Kief, they were given jurors received a copy of the "Minutes".

If the fact were true, it would have been known. Such a document does not go unnoticed.

In its issue of April 1, 1921, Le Peuple Juif reproduced without comment Commentary on an article published by Princess Catherine Radziwill, in the World Review, against the authenticity of the "Protocols of the Elders of Zion.

— The “Protocols” indicate that slander must be one of the weapons used by the Jews to discredit and dishonoring Israel's adversaries. Here is a sample of genre, taken from La Tribune Juive, April 8, 1921:

The American Jewish Committee's annual report states that, during

The Peace Conference, with European anti-Semites in Paris, tried to sell their silence to the delegates of the American Jewish Committee and proposed not to publish the "Minutes of Zion.” The deal was not accepted. (See: L'Univers Israélite, April 15) 4921, p. 756).

We read in L'Univers Israélite, April 22, 1921, p. 12,
under the title "The Forgery of the Elders of Zion":

As it is of the utmost importance to thoroughly clarify this a deceitful work and to confound the slanderers who tried thus compromising the entire Jewish people in the eyes of humanity.
we have gathered the most essential documents published on this subject in the world press.

The brochure has a foreword by Mr. Maurice Vernes, President of the School of Higher Religious Studies at the Sorbonne.

"The Elders of Zion and World Opinion" is available for purchase at
"Buisson Ardent" editions, 24, rue Laffitte, 3 francs.

— The Jewish Tribune announces, in its April 22nd issue 1921, that "an Italian translation of the famous pamphlet
The anti-Semitic book "The Jewish Peril" has just been published.

We read in L'Univers Israélite, April 29, 1921, regarding from an article published in La Croix, under the signature of " Franc " :

You can turn the question of antisemitism over and over in your mind.
as you wish and examine it successively on all its sides
tures: you will only ever find one type of thread
-blane, the one unwinding from the reel of clerical and demagogic Catholicism, political exploitation of religion, which has nothing to do with feeling religious ment.

No one has forgotten the abominable role played by La Croix during the affair Dreyfus. No newspaper ever tried more venomously to deceive the spirits; none, not even Drumont's. Combat monks politicians exploited this factory of lies, the infamous Assomp-
I don't know if the Assumptionists continue this in person.
Nice work, but La Croiz remains and persists. She perseveres in her to be, which is to spout the most audacious calumnies and sophisms, the crudest. What contempt one must have for one's reader to dare him to present such astounding reasoning!

How much trouble does the publication of the "Protocols" have to cause?
the Jews to incite them to such anger. For all this This stems from the fact that "Franc" had published an article devoted to a a work by Monsignor Jouin, which costs 1 franc and which would like to popularize the fake Protocols of the Elders of Zion.

which was transmitted through a Mrs. K... who, herself-

In this article, "Franc" wrote, according to the Israelite Universe, this undeniable truth:

Even if the Protocols were not authentic to the point
From the point of view of their origin and their historical character, they exist from less so, and they have undeniable value as intellectual documents, even if they were purely imaginative.

And this value is all the greater when they are confirmed.
by the facts. That's precisely why their disclosure causes so much of rage against the Jews. To such an extent that, losing all restraint, they come to recall the "fake Henry" and the death of lieutenant-colonel who was "found with his throat cut in his cell,
"Suicide or murder."

We will simply pose these questions to the Israelite Universe-tions, to which "Alsaticus" will carefully refrain from responding, Furthermore:

Who benefited from the fake Henry, the Jews or the anti-Semites?
Who, once the forgery was exposed, had an interest in the disappearance (suicide or murder) of the alleged perpetrator, so that the origin
The document's actual validity can never be established? However, the Rabbi “Alsaticus” is not unaware of the legal adage: Is fecit cui prodest.

As for the "Protocols," further evidence will be needed.
testimony of Princess Radziwill, the only one collected so far by the Jews, to demonstrate its falsity. Their veracity is,
On the contrary, demonstrated by the events of each day.

— MA-M. du Chayla, Russian officer, French by origin, having seen in Lyon, "in the windows of the bookstores on the square Bellecour,” the French edition of the “Protocols” of the Elders of Sion, published by M. Jouin, appeared in La Tribune Juive, May 14, 1921 (1), a long article on Serge Nilus and his book. Mr. du Chayla met Serge Nilus in 1909 at the convent Orthodox “Optima Poustine”.

The Jews and their defenders began by putting in doubted the existence of Serge Nilus, then they gave the information

(1) The issue should have appeared on the 13th; it was delayed by one day, given
The importance of this article. (See the note from the Jewish Tribunal).

the most fanciful claims about this writer. Mr. du Chayla provides clarifications that set the record straight.

Serge Alexandrovitch Nilus was, in 1909, a man of
He is about forty-five years old; he is descended from a Swedish emigrant,
"He came to Russia under Peter I." He is an educated man, former owner of the Orel Government; he has completed his studies at the Faculty of Law of Moscow University. He owns "French, German and English to perfection" and knows "in depth contemporary foreign literature.

His brother, Dimitri Alexandrovitch Nilus, was president of the Moscow Court. Serge Nilus married a former lady-in-waiting to Empress Alexandra Feodo-Rowna (1), Helene Alexandrovna Ozerova, daughter of Mr. Ozeroff, Master of the Court, former Russian minister to Athens. His brother, Major General David Alexandrovitch Ozeroff, was Marshal of the Palace of Anichkoff. Serge Nilus was a protégé of Grand Duchess Elisabeth (2). In 1918, S. Nilus was to Kieff, then he came to Germany, to Berlin.

The first edition of "Protocols", by Serge Nilus, is from 1902. The manuscript, the text of which was written in French, It was transmitted to him through a Mrs. K..., who, herself-He even got it from General Ratchkovsky, the police chief. Russian in France, where he fought against Freemasonry and The Sects. These pages were written in handwriting and ink. different; some contained, Mr. du Chayla tells us, French errors revealing a foreign author. In 1901, Serge Nilus was already in possession of the "Protocols".

We are now far removed from the novel of Princess Radziwill which claims to have seen them made in Paris in 1905. The first publication by Serge Nilus took place in 1902, as an annex ' to his book The Great in the Small and the Antichrist, etc. Nou-new editions in 1905, 1907, 1911, etc.

In addition, we have a Russian edition printed in 1901, which is merely a reprint of a pre- edition previous.

We do not need to go into this part of the Review in a discussion that will be conducted by a more scholarly writer

(1) Wife of Nicholas II. |
(2) Sister of Empress Alexandra Feodorovna and wife of the Grand Duke Sergei, Governor of Moscow.

and competent; but we see from this short analysis that Mr. du Chayla's article, published in La Tribune Juive, comes contrary to all the arguments put forward so far by the Jews and their defenders.

Moreover, the great proof of the authenticity of the "Pro-"tocols" is provided by the course of events, and, more The further we move forward, the more this evidence becomes apparent.

— MH Prague wrote in the Jewish Archives, April 28 1921:

A certain Dr. Otto Johlinger undertook to rehabilitate the memory [Bismarck's] perspective is one that resonates with us. Bismarck moves, in In effect, for having, if not created, at least nurtured and covered with all his might health protection this monster called anti-Semitism, an essential product so Germanic. Now, in a conference held in a circle Mr. Johlinger defended himself against this accusation regarding Jewish students in Berlin. which tarnished his reputation among the Israelites.

After summarizing the speaker's arguments, MH Prague concludes:

In short, this attempt to rehabilitate the Iron Chancellor seems to us having to leave intact Bismarck's well-established reputation as patron of anti-Semitism!

— From L'Univers Israélite, April 29, 1921, p. 37:

At its recent annual congress, the Union of Associations of Jewish students from Germany, renewing a previous decision, adopted a resolution in which it declares itself hostile to Zionism.

On the other hand, one of the best-known rabbis in Germany, Dr. Jacob, From Dortmund, he declared in a newspaper: "We have no other homeland" that Germany... My conscience cannot admit that we should collect-Lions are currently raising funds for an Anglo-Jewish colony in Asia... What The Jews of England and France devote themselves, if they so wish, to... Palestine. Ultimately, we do not have to encourage imperial-"Neither English nationalism nor Zionist nationalism."

— We read in L'Univers Israélite, June 17, 1921:

One of Chancellor Wirth's most discussed choices is the one that has focused on the appointment of Walther Rathenau as Minister of the Reconstitution in the new German cabinet. The reactionaries and the anti-Semites — it's six of one and half a dozen of the other on both sides of the Rhine (1) — had protested in advance against the entry of the large industrialist in the government, both because of his social ideas and his of Jewish origin. They claimed that the Wirth ministry was already too "Jewish"; 3] it appears in particular that Dr. Rosen, Minister of Foreign Affairs foreigners of the Reich, has Jewish connections... We cannot prevent us from noticing that, when Germany wants to escape the catastrophe and regaining an honorable place in the world, she does appeal for the assistance of an Israelite.

From this we can conclude that Your Jewish power dominates Today the world, QED

— The Jewish People gives, in its issue of May 6, 1921, a brief report of a conference held in London, under The presidency of Mr. Lucien Wolf, by Mr. CI. Levison. Subject: "The prevention and treatment of antisemitism." We Let us extract the following passages:

Examining the causes of contemporary anti-Semitism, Mr. Levison believes that at its root lies an instinctive and widespread antipathy widespread against the Jews, which takes on a very marked character of hostility which arose when nationalist sentiments became exacerbated. The movement nationalism having developed extremely after the war, anti-Semitism ism did the same.

The speaker does not believe that the feeling of race, which was Ia the primary cause of antisemitism, currently plays an important role so much...

Mr. Lucien Wolf, the chairman, also agreed that there is a sentiment-an indefinite degree of antipathy towards Jews that anti-Semites stain to use...

Regarding the political causes of antisemitism, Mr. Lucien Wolf believes that the Jews left their ghettos with political ideals often ahead of their time...

This "instinctive antipathy" towards Jews arose from the day the nations saw the hand of the Israelites behind the revolutionary and anarchic movements of which they They suffer more and more each day. Common sense prevails. Furthermore, it begins to suggest the Jewish role at the heart of the World War I of 1914; he still sees that if peace has not It was what it should have been, that if the war continues a

---

(1) If this is correct, which we do not know, the thing holds without doubt, not only on both sides of the Rhine, but everywhere else, Jew And revolutionary, it's six of one and half a dozen of the other.

Almost everywhere, this stems from Jewish influences on the governments and Bolshevism spread by agents of Israel. That is why antisemitism is gaining ground in countries that, until recently On that day, they had remained resistant to this movement. The alliance between Jewish plutocracy and demagoguery is becoming more pronounced. more or less openly, to domesticate the people. They resist: that's where anti-Semitism comes from.

— From La Tribune Juive, May 14, 1921:

After lengthy negotiations, the Jewish Board of Deputies' plan for to found an organization representing the Jews of England, and before Combating antisemitism is becoming a reality. This organization It will be called the Joint Press Committee and will include representatives from Jewish Board of Deputies, the Anglo Jewish Association and the League of British Jews (4 members from each). In addition, the Committee may invite representatives from other organizations up to two by group. The Joint Press Committee has already asked Bnei Brith to the Jewish Historical Society and the Maccabees, to send delegates

— La Tribune Juive, May 20, 1921, reproduced, in criticism-As for, of course, the following lines from the Morning Post:

The whole world is noticing that the English Premiere allows too much of its Jewish friends to direct British policy. Finance international aid not only has an interest in rescuing Germany, but The strength of German industry remains to be seen. However, the leaders of the International finance is run by Jews. It's time to warn Lloyd George. that in the City of London there are English blood panguiers who could give him advice.

— From La Tribune Juive, June 17, 1921:

Sir Marcus Samuel has just been appointed a peer of England for his distinguished service.

Sir Marcus Samuel is the former Lord Mayor of London.

Sir Philippe Sassoon, MP, secretary to Mr. Lloyd George, was appointed member of the Board of Trustees of the National Gallery of London. (Jewish Archives, March 31, 1924).

Sir Johnson Hiks requested that Parliament be made aware of the report on the anti-Jewish disturbances that took place in Jerusalem, the year past. Colonel Ameri replied that, according to Sir H. Samuel and the governor-In English, the publication of this report was undesirable. (The Tribune Juive, April 8, 1924).

A member of parliament questioned the Minister of the Interior about the proportion of Jews were among the 122 foreigners naturalized in March. The minister replied that being Jewish was not a factor in the question-naturalization process and that, consequently, there was no information [This is unclear and likely a separate point.] (La Tribune Juive, May 6, 1921).

Two Jewish women were appointed judges for the county of London: One is Miss Nettie Adler, the daughter of the late Chief Rabbi Hermann Adler; the second, Miss Lily Montagu, is sister of Lord Swaythling and of Mr. Montagu, Secretary of State for India. (L'Univers Israélite, April 15) 1921, p. 755).

Sir David Sassoon, of the great Anglo-Indian family of that name, was appointed mayor of Bombay. (Archives Israélites, April 14, 1924, p. 60).

All this does not prevent the Israelites from denying the influence global, which is held against them by anti-Semites.

— From La Tribune Juive, June 10, 1921:

Mr. Lucien Wolf has just informed the Jewish National Council of Poland that English Jewish organizations submitted to the Minister of Colonies denies a memorandum requesting that the British government-England opens the English colonies to Jewish immigration.

Mr. Henderson, leader of the Labour Party, asked the government The reasons for the suspension of Jewish immigration to Palestine.

Telegrams from New York, Antwerp, Paris, Riga, Kovno., from Warsaw, etc., are constantly arriving in London to protest against the cessation of immigration to Palestine.

We see that, despite the self-serving denials of the publications Jewish Christians, the English government is well regarded by Jews worldwide as the great protector of Israel and the designated defender of its interests.

— We borrow the following extracts from The Jewish People, 15 April 1921, p. 10: | |

The various anti-Semitic and clerical parties, including a large number of Austrian "Christian Socialists" have made many preparations in view of of the anti-Semitic Congress, so hoped for, and finally convened in Vienna, the March 11, 12 and 13.

Approximately forty anti-Semitic groups and organizations were represented at the Congress, both from Austria itself and from Germany, from Poland and Hungary, including the all-too-well-known company: the Hungarians who are waking up, which was solemnly celebrated.

The inaugural speech delivered by the renowned Tcherbak emphasized the great merits of this company which has recently become the pioneer-he denied the anti-Jewish action, and he extolled his great devotion.

Among the issues on the Congress's agenda, we can mention the following: Following ports: "Jewish Power in the World", by Dr. Kmoska (Hungary); “The struggle against the Jews of the East”, by Dr. Walter; “The Jews and Politics,” by Richli; “The Zionist Peril.”

The Congress, the Jewish newspaper said, was accompanied by vio-slow demonstrations against the Israelites. The police had to take strong measures for the neighborhood Jewish. (Leopold-Stadt). | |

— From La Tribune Juive, May 20, 1921:

The general assembly of the Austrian Touring Club voted on the auto- article raving about the acceptance, as members, only of people of origin Aryan.

The League [read: Lodge] “B’ Brith” told the Ukrainian Committee that she was prepared to take charge of two hundred elderly Jewish orphans, who will be apprenticed to Jewish artisans in Vienna. (The Tri-Jewish church, June 24, 1924). |

Bulgaria has passed a law making work mandatory physical activity for men for one year, and for the women for six months, for the benefit of the state. This is reminiscent of Days of in-kind benefits under French law. The Universe Israélite, May 27, 1921, writes on this subject, p. 133:

At the request of the Central Consistory of the Jews of Bulgaria, the The Council of Ministers has just taken, with regard to the subjugated Israelites This law represents a decision that reflects his liberal spirit. The resolution is designed as follows:

The following are released from compulsory labor:

1. The staff of the following Jewish institutions: the president and the Secretary General of the Central Consistory of the Jews of Bulgaria; the members of the supreme religious court and the rabbinical courts of Sofia, Roustchouk and Philippopoli, with three members per tribunal; the secretary of the chief rabbinate; the presidents of the communities and the chairpersons of the school committees;

2. All Jews are freed from physical labor on the Sabbath days and Jewish holidays and replace this work with another done during-during the other days of the week;

3. Religious officials are freed from physical labor lists, which are only responsible for monitoring;

4

f

4° Are freed from physical work M it during the periods of appeal, the Chohetim.

The Israelite Universe does not tell us if there are any exemptions from The same rights were granted to members of other faiths. or of the different races that exist in Bulgaria. In any case, this country can count on the protection of England and the major Jewish bankers to escape the consequences of the betrayal by his king, Ferdinand of Coburg.

L'Univers Israélile, April 29, 1921, p. 37, reports the publication cation, in Cairo, of Israel, weekly newspaper, published in French, Hebrew and Arabic. The director is MA-D. Mosséri. Israel is independent and Zionist. It already appears, in Egypt, a Zionist Review, in French, organ of the Federation Zionist from Egypt.

The Jewish publication also reports on the first issue of a newspaper in Judeo-Persian dialect, published in Tehran.

— Under the heading: “Ford’s troubles”, we read in L'Univers Israélite, April 1, 1921, p. 707:

Henry Ford, the great American automobile manufacturer, is in is facing serious financial difficulties: this billionaire has had to request with the help of New York bankers. High-profile resignations have The crisis has worsened: the vice-president and treasurer of Ford Motor Company, the advertising director and the head of the Euro- department The people have abandoned the house.

These departures and difficulties are attributed to the anti-Semitic campaign.
led for a year by Ford in his newspaper, the Dearborn Independenttooth. Anti-Semites might say that "Jewish high finance" revenge. The Jews will be tempted to think that it is a punishment from God.
We simply believe in an effect of "immanent justice"
(while waiting for the other one): an industrialist who embarks on campress releases and hate propaganda inevitably neglect its company and does a sterile job.

We don't know if the new data is accurate; but,
In any case, it fits well into the plan unveiled by the "Pro"tocols"
of the Elders of Zion.

The Jewish Correspondence Bureau learns that the powerful organization
The YMCA will admit Catholics and...
Jews. (La Tribune Juive, April 1, 1924).

Jewish members, thirst, we see nothing that opposes it;

But Catholics, no; we cannot believe that he finds Catholics, men or women, willing to enter in this Masonic and Protestant association, whose dangerous activities have recently been reported to the vigilance of the bishops of the whole world by the Holy See.

— The Jewish People published, in its issue of May 6, 1921, documents to explain a "regrettable split which took place at the Zionist Organization of the United States.

The information below is provided by the Archives.
Israelites, May 26, 1921, p. 84:

Jews in the United States Parliament. — The House of Representatives tants counts, out of 435 members, eleven Israelites, nine of whom belong to the Republican party, one Democratic party, and one socialist. In the Senate, who
It comprises 96 members, but no Israelites sit on it.

— From La Tribune Juive, May 27, 1921:

The Michigan State House of Deputies voted on the bill.
proposed by Mr. George Welsk, a project intended to combat through fines and even imprisonment, anti-Semitic campaigns, similar to the one that Mr. Ford undertook.

President Harding at the annual session of the Brith Abraham sent a message paying tribute to the patriotism of the Jewish population. (The Jewish Tribune, June 24, 492A).

— We read in La Tribune Juive, April 22, 1921:

It is written from Washington that Mr. Louis Marshall, representative of the
The American Jewish Committee protested vehemently in the U.S. Senate against da legislation that restricts immigration to the United States.

And again:

The Forward (New York) has learned from a reliable source that the president-Denton Handing promised to ensure that the discussion of the bill on the immigration restrictions in America did not take place in the first sessions of the US Congress, but that it be postponed to an indefinite date finished. In addition, the president instructed the secretary of state to order to consulates located in countries where emigration is cons!
unmanageable, not to create difficulties for the emigrants who all have Required documents:

This speaks volumes about the power of the Jews in the United States.
United. |

We read in La Tribune Juive, April 15, 1921:

A Jewish delegation, composed of representatives from all the organizations important announcements, visited President Harding on the day he took office. She handed him a note asking the president that he would not ratify the Senate bill restricting immigration tion in America.

The entire Jewish press in New York expresses the hope that the president Harding, as a Democrat and a Republican, will not ratify the limitations, taking into account the lamentable plight of the refugees from Eastern Europe.

— La Tribune Juive quotes, in its issue of May 6, 1921, the following words, spoken in a sermon by the rabbi Max Raissine, March 11, at the Brooklyn synagogue:

Jews around the world are grateful to President Wilson for what he did for them.

— The Jewish Tribune announces, in its April 22nd issue 1921, that "the Jewish-American Congress is scheduled for the 30th-31st October and November 1st.

— From the same newspaper:

In some cities, the police have banned the sale of Dearbon Indepentooth, Ford's anti-Semitic newspaper, in order to avoid any danger of unrest.

— From the Archives Israélites, April 21, 1921, p. 63:

We know that an anti-Semitic campaign is being waged in the United States. A large Catholic organization, the Knights of Columbus, has proshe has spoken out against this movement, which she denounces as anti-humanitarian.

We know that the Cult of Humanity is the religion of the Lodges. Masonic lodges from all countries.

Under this title: "The Knights of Columbus against the prejudged by race," La Tribune Juive, May 14, 1921, publishes the Information below:

The American Catholic organization, the Knights of Columbus, has published an appeal to all members of this organization, inviting them to oppose in the most energetic way all attempts to propacing of racial and religious prejudices in the United States.

The organization's director, William Larkin, stated:

The Knights of Columbus will oppose the anti-Semitic movement.

because it is contrary to the American spirit. Every race, living on our territory contains undesirable elements, but This in no way proves that the entire race should be persecuted. Also for a long time certain elements of the population will be able to draw an advantage fueled by these prejudices, the anti-Semitic movement and other movements Similar ones will continue to exist in our country.

Mr. James A. Flaherty, "Supreme Knight of Columbus", recently convened 2,200 speakers from its Association to combat anti-Semitism. (La Tribune Juive, April 15) 1921).

The large Catholic association "Knights of Columbus" has addressed to all its committees and all its delegates in the United States and to Canada is calling on them to fight as actively as possible against the anti-Semitism movement that began to develop in America.

— On the other hand, we read in the Israelite Universe, 22 April 1921, p. 20:

— At a criminal trial in New York, the first female lawyer... took the floor. She is a Jew, Ms. Rosa Ruthenberg (id).

The Jewish Tribune, June 17, 1921, reports "A new American demonstration against anti-Semitism.

To mark Passover, the American Hebrew published a A special issue dedicated to the fight against antisemitism. This issue contains articles and statements by President Harding, of Bernard Shaw, John Spargo, Cardinal Manning, etc...

The statement attributed to him ends with these words:

The sole criterion of our civic loyalty must be our fidelity to the constitution and institutions of the country. However, I don't know anyone who better meet these requirements than the Jews whom I am honored to have for friends.

It's always easy to make the dead speak. We don't It does not say where and when these lines were written; was it by the member of the High Church, archdeacon of Chichester, or by The Archbishop of Westminster? In any case, the cardinal Manning died in 1892; he did not know about the "Protocols". the Elders of Zion, who reveal the Jewish plot for domination- global nation; these revelations might have changed his ideas and gave a new direction to his friendships. Manning, on He knew this, and did not hesitate to sacrifice them if necessary; witness his conduct with Newman.

Excerpt from the short obituary notice published by the Archives Israélites, April 21, 1921, p. 63, to Mr. Joseph Reinach:

While his brothers, [Solomon and Theodore], one as a member of the Central Committee of the Alliance Israélite Universelle, the other as secretary of the Society for Jewish Studies, and author of a history of the Israelites, demonstrated their interest in Judaism, Joseph Reinach, absorbed by He kept himself apart from the political struggles. The retrial Dreyfus, for whom he was one of the first and most active workers, and who exposed him to the worst attacks from opposing parties, to the most slanderous odious, highlighted his manly civic courage which he paid for with a Unjust popularity. As a journalist, historian, and politician, his The name will remain attached to the current regime.

— From the Jewish People, April 22, 1921:

We regret that such a powerful mind did not understand the Sio- ideal. theist whom he fought fiercely.

Excerpts from the obituary published by L'Univers Israelite, April 22, 1921, to Mr. Joseph Reinach:

One of the great figures of French democracy has just passed away. Traitor with Joseph Reinach. Entered political life in the early During the years of the Republic, he belonged to the phalanx of those who supported him ensured victory and consecration and who, in the different crises that nearly jeopardized his existence, employed all their energy to safeguard it. He was, in fact, one of the champions of all the great struggles — May 16, Boulangism, the Dreyfus affair...

His collaboration with the French Republic... various missions that he accomplished in the East, drew the attention of Gambetta, who did of him the secretary to the presidency of the Council when he formed his grand ministry of 1881. He was to remain henceforth a friend of the illustrious statesman and become one of the confidants of his thoughts.

Joseph Reinach was, in fact, one of the most sinister agents of the Jewish Republic, whose reign still lasts. The The following lines are particularly interesting to quote:

On the Jewish question, Joseph Reinach had very firm ideas. which make him seem like the typical "assimilationist" Jew. He believed that since the emancipation of the Jews, Judaism was merely a concept- religious devotion and, as he was not a believer, he had ceased to claiming Judaism. He was not, however, indifferent to the fate of Jews and, although he resolutely fought Zionism, he was part of, from 1883 to — 1885, of the Central Committee of the Alliance and did not refuse its assistance to Jewish philanthropic works. We must fight against tendances also harmful to religion and Judaism; we can regret- It is astonishing that such a distinguished man should have remained apart from the community. but we must recognize the logic of his attitude and the probity of his mind.

From the obituary published by La Tribune Juive, 20 May 1921, to Joseph Reinach:

“In 1885, Joseph Reinach, who had been secretary of the League of Patriots and contributor to Le Drapeau, he broke with Déroulède when He had committed the League to the Boulangist movement...

The article ends as follows:

The life of Joseph Reinach deserves attention and respect. The defense Freedom and the country have occupied her entirely. The Jews lose in his person an eminent and devoted defender.

As far as the Jews are concerned, we have nothing to reproach them for. to this judgment. But, for the country, it's something else. All the Good French people could not forget that Mr. Joseph Reinach was the main author of the "upheaval" in our service intelligence and counter-espionage, which allowed Germany to safely prepare for the surprise attack from 1914. In this sense, without looking any further, the Jews are responsible for France's misfortunes, and it's their fault that so many ruins have devastated our homeland. Nothing, not even blood very generously deployed in battles, will not wash away the Jewish race of this crime resulting from the Dreyfus Affair.

Speaking of the funeral of Mr. Joseph Reinach, La Tribune Jewish woman, April 22, 1921, wrote: |

Alfred Dreyfus, whom Mr. Joseph Reinach defended with such... devotion, attended the ceremony.

We received the following letter from a regular reader of the Review; we reproduce verbatim, removing the proper names of which we only retain the initials:

How many people do not believe, or do not want to believe, in the Jewish peril? Here is what I, GR., Knight of the Legion of Honour, medalist Military officer from 1870, I heard today, Wednesday, May 25, 1921, at Monthly luncheon of the Trade and Industry Union Committee, President L. Dubois, Member of Parliament, Chairman of the Reparations Commission.

I had at the table, opposite me, Mr. Ed. M..., brother of the bishop of...; Next to me, Messrs., publisher. Mr. Ed. M... is at the head of an important business... His offices are in the Place des Vosges district. Here what he told us:

"In my neighborhood, I have 14,000 Jews, two synagogues in my neighborhood; I asked, a few days ago, the parish priest of Les Blancs-Manteaux how this Jewish population behaved towards him.

"Quite well with those who are half civilized," replied Mr. priest; they are polite. But here's what happened to me these past few days: I tra-
I was heading towards the Whitecloaks market, and passing by two Jews not yet cleaned, I heard one of them say in Arabic, to a comaa harbor as lousy as he is (the priest of Blancs-Manteaux is a (former White Father and understands Arabic): You see this man, in desi-"Gnant, may the woman whose womb bore him be cursed." Mr.
The priest turned around and stared at the individual who, realizing he was understood, slipped away.

This is the vermin to whom we give hospitality and who find to find accommodation in Paris, while our workers have no rooms to rent.

Mr. Emile Cahen writes in the Archives Israélites, April 21 1921, p. 62:

We did not wait in this journal for the beatification of Joan d'Arc, nor the government decision declaring May 8th a National Holiday to affirm our respectful admiration for the Virgin of Orléans. We have even, on numerous occasions, protested against the attempts of appropriation, for the benefit of their evil cause, by the anti- royalists Semites, of a heroine whom the Israelites, like all their fellow citizens Christians or freethinkers make the same demands as them.

This is all the more commendable on the part of the Israelites because Saint Joan of Arc most likely did not have a great tenderness for the Jews. Apparently, it is not the same. of Napoleon and his heirs; at least the director of Archives Israélites, who should know what to expect, gives it clearly to be heard:

Our fellow believers... will contribute as much as possible. blue... to the various ceremonies that are organized for the celebration of the "Centenary of Napoleon I." Indeed, May 5th will mark one hundred years since... The greatest general the world has ever known has passed away on Saint Helena. Neither under his brilliant reign, nor under that of his nephew which, alas, is ending! The Israelites suffered so lamentably at the hands of the powers that be.

"5
public. Bonaparte did not show, towards us, the bad feelings-comments that an insignificant Duke of Orléans did not hesitate to display, during one of the toughest periods that French Judaism has ever gone through çais.

This note is quite suggestive. We have known, in fact, since
For a long time, in the political world, it was believed that in the event of the Republic-
The Republic would cease to do the business of the powerful Jews, these have set their sights on the Bonaparte heir for him succeed.

Regarding the centenary of Napoleon, Mr. Baruch Hagani
Written in Le Peuple Juif, May 6, 1921:

...The publication of Napoleon's correspondence, Pelet's notes from Lozère, memories of Baron de Barante, memoirs of Chancellor Pasquier, the methodical examination of secret archives and those of the Council of State, have, little by little, allowed historians and It is up to the lawyers to reconstruct in all its details this high-level comedy
The meeting of the "Grand Sanhedrin" in Paris, framed by that of the "Assembly of Notables". But the Jewish deputies did not have no need to go behind the scenes of this performance to realize-to see, too late, that they had been duped and that according to their own expressions of the Minister of the Interior, these assemblies had given by their deliberations "weapons against themselves and against the race which they were defending the cause…

Napoleon, despite not liking the Jews, and while mistreating those in France, found themselves forced... to free their coreligionists wherever they passed his victorious armies. So that in the end, Napoleon was useful to the Jews and that the Jews became attached to the memory of Napoleon.

Jews today love the Revolution. And they forgive Napoleon appeared to their ancestors in the guise of the Revolution boot 1... : |

t

Mr. Emile Cahen writes in the Archives Israélites, April 7 1921:

Through a phenomenon, about which we would be very eager to have some
A satisfactory explanation, but one that, for our part, we do not understand.
Not at all, an intimate and complete fusion, from a worldly point of view and social, between the French Catholic and Jewish elements did not
It has been accomplished, just as we hoped. This seems all the more gratifying to us.
It is extraordinary that in France, at least, anti-Semitism, in the sense the entirety of the word, according to the Gospels of the great Pontiffs of the Doctrine, has, we can say with certainty, completely disappeared... Now, if We believe well-informed people, apart from a few high-ranking officials.

Jewish personalities, who continue to move in high society
In Paris, clans are increasingly forming where people do not mix, from other backgrounds.
In one way, the representatives, even the most honorable, of the different communities. This seems all the more curious to us given that the best Protestant society itself remains quite apart from the most important
So many Catholic salons... The recent creation of Jewish newspapers in Paris, whose spirit in no way corresponds to the mentality of the immense
The majority of our French coreligionists are perhaps somewhat responsible sand of this antinomy against which our old newspaper will not cease to react.

It would be too lengthy to explain all the causes of the a situation that troubles the Jewish Archives; but one can To summarize them in one: French Catholics have finally finally acknowledged that Jews are among the most fierce opponents of the Church. The Jews, demagogues, socialists lists, anarchists, freethinkers, Freemasons, etc., etc.
openly wage the battle, subsidized, more or less openly, by the global Israeli plutocracy. And if the Catholic salons are increasingly closing their doors to Jews.
It's that, under the guise of snobbery, they sought to introduce into the still healthy sectors of our society, their Theories of neurotics, destructive to all social order. Jews came to us, with a high-class anarchism, a whiff of
of pagan immorality, which our current modes do not provide Too many examples, alas! But which, nevertheless, begins to
To revolt, the old common sense of our race, made of Latin mentality and Catholic. Let the wealthy Jews stop subsidizing those who relentlessly and without respite attack the Church and its society;
then, and only then, peace and "worldly fusion"
that which Mr. Emile Cahen desires can be done.

— The “Cultural” services, introduced by Pope Pius X, would be… Are they of Jewish inspiration? We read in L'Univers Israélite, April 15, 1921, p. 750:

Judaism created the ideal religious institution: the community, organized and governed by its members, open to all the faithful and where all are entitled to the same services and the same honors. Today, in In France, the legal form of the Jewish community is the association religious.

— We also read in the same issue, p. 751:

France was the first country where Jews became citizens.

And it wasn't just the Jews who were emancipated, it was the Judaism itself, which was lifted out of degradation and promoted to freedom. France was the first country where the Jewish faith had an organization official and legal, which was envied and imitated by the Israelites and others country.

To thank France, the Jews brought her the revolution lution, socialism, class struggle, secularism, antiricalism, etc., etc., and bolshevism.

— It seems that the struggle has begun between the Israelite Alliance and Zionism. Under the signature A. Ludvipol, The Jewish People,

On April 15, 1921, an article on this subject was published in which we Let us note this suggestive anecdote:

Before the Second Zionist Congress in Basel in 1898, I had the idea of I wanted to give some positive publicity to the Zionist idea and movement. understood that I could achieve this by getting permission to go to Basel as Correspondent for Le Temps. I contacted Bernard Lazare.

"You're lucky," Bernard Lazare told me. Mr. Sch..., the secretary A fellow member of the editorial staff of Le Temps is absent from Paris. This is MEL (he is a colleague, who is now a leader in the (Clemenceau's journal), which replaces it. Go see it. I'll give you A brief introductory note. If Sch... were in Paris, you would have all the The world faces difficulties in publishing an article about Zionism. With EL... Whoever is goi, there's nothing to fear. If the newspaper isn't too full In terms of materials, your business is done.

EL.. received me well. The next day, I was received by Adrien Hébrard himself. He kept me for three-quarters of an hour, asking me questions about the subject I came to discuss with him. He was extremely interested in our movement. I received my return train ticket, as a correspondent for Le Temps, and had the satisfaction of publishing in this major daily newspaper of articles and correspondence on Zionism and the Second Zionist Congress. As usual, dozens of newspapers then reproduced the information from Le Temps.

A month passed. One day, the idea of wearing a... New article in this newspaper. EL., to whom I addressed myself, received me again Quite courteously, he took my copy, and, without reading it, questioned me:

— Still on Zionism?

— Naturally. | l 4

— Impossible. ie

He looked at me a little strangely and said:

— Just imagine! We have thousands of subscribers among the Israelislites, your coreligionists. We thought we were pleasing them by dedicating A few columns in our newspaper are devoted to Jewish questions. And you

You have no idea of the letters of protest we received at the occasino of your items.

And he gave me back my manuscript.

I remember, at the end of the conversation I had with Hébrard, having learned from me that some Jews are rather unfavorable to Zionism, he told me:

— How can it be that Israelites are against such a magnificent

A mythical idea like creating a homeland for your people?

I remember that I couldn't help but think of the famous word Jew: "A goyiesche kop": a goy brain. Go explain that to him. His Adrien Hébrard, with his own powerful mind, so adept at political matters, ticks, however, will never understand the mentality of the opposing Jew to the creation of a homeland for his people.

While having "a goy brain", it is easy to comto take, after careful reading of the "Protocols", that the
The "Elders of Zion," the true leaders of Israel, want the domination not over Palestine, but in the world whole. Primordial idea of the temporal Messiah which must not that the fulfillment of Zionist aspirations may divert the Jewish people.

Mr. Emile Cahen writes in the Archives Israélites, May 5
1921, p. 70:

If we point out the current mentality of anti-Jewish leaders, it is because to note, with some regret, that the Jewish deputies do not appear not supporting the policy with as much energy as we would like so courageous, liberal and energetic of the Government. In one of the the last elections that took place before the current holidays, most of our coreligionists voted against the ministry or abstained.
This agreement, certainly involuntary between the Israelite members of the Parliament and anti-Semitic politicians tell me nothing worthwhile. It doesn't
These are not the flowers, which, at the slightest opportunity, our royalist colleagues cover Messrs. Ignace and Mandel, which will prevent us from deploring a In our view, this attitude is just as bad for France as it is for the Judaism.

Mr. Emile Cahen also writes: |

It is insane to want to represent us ad viiam ælernam as revolutionaries, when, in 1789, our fellow citizens overthrew the monarchy, by opening the path to freedom to the entire world, none Israelite, and for good reason, was not involved in this admirable movement.
In reality, the vast majority of Jews are conservative.

Apart from the profoundly anarchistic nature of the race,
That may be true, up to a certain point, where the Jews dominate public power. But the Israelites are revolted Revolutionaries in countries where this conquest remains to be achieved.
Conservative, multimillionaire Jews subsidize Everywhere, anarchy and Judeo-Masonic demagoguery reign. That's the the truth is that the "Protocols," so vilified by the Jewish press, have brought to light, because they have shown the great the goal of universal domination pursued by Israel, but in accordance with all its religious traditions of a chosen race. And the Jews who quibble so vehemently about the origin of these documents, are careful not to try to demonstrate that they are contrary to the principles of the Talmuds or the Zohar.

L'Univers Israélite, May 27, 1921, reproduces — while the describing as infamy — the following lines, published in the Weekly Review, under the signature of Mr. Roger Lamblin:

There were Jews incorporated into the armies of all the belligerents.
The losses, due to the terrible weaponry used in this
The war was such that there was a fairly high number of dead and of wounded among the Israelites, although a good portion of them
He served in supply corps, hospitals, and rear-echelon units.
The fact of having participated in the war made them nationals, consecrated them as patriots.
It would have been unseemly to treat us as foreigners, as naturalized citizens.
fresh date or second-rate, soldiers who shed their blood or risky to use it for the defense of the country.

Therefore, the Israelites gained in esteem during this period of the war; but they derived other profits from this war of a different order material, such as bankers, industrialists, traders, suppliers of armies, hoarders of oil, flour, and foodstuffs of all kinds.
The tremendous increase in their financial power made it easier for them
the means of penetrating very deeply into governmental circles, and the predominant influence they acquired has, in turn, become producer of big interests.

The Jews, who so often sang of Justice and Truth, before
They don't seem to like war very much, it seems, when it's inflicted on them.
serve afterwards. Mr. Roger Lamblin's reflections are, however-of the highest accuracy and absolutely compliant
to the reality of the facts.

— A dispatch from Nice announces to the Israelite Universe, May 27
4921, that the "Jewish Youth" of this city organized two conferences

rences, under the chairmanship of Rabbi Schumacher. The speaker,

“Mr. Siere, a scholar of Catholic origin,” spoke about the Talmud and about Kabbalah.

From Mr. Emile Cahen, in the Archives Israélites, June 16 1921: |

Mr. Hervé [Gustave] expressed the other day some fear of len- invasion of the newspaper l'Humanité by French (Jews) barely naturalized citizens. Can the leader of Victory seriously believe in a a Jewish conspiracy capable of provoking a wave in our country as well of anti-Semitism which he would deplore, he is willing to add... in all conscience science, we ask him if instead of serving us, he is not doing well rather the game of our opponents, emphasizing the bad influence of revolutionaries who are Israelites in name only and who are French freshly made.

To fully appreciate the humor and good faith of these lines,
It suffices to recall the indignation with which the Jewish newspapers reacted.
— the Israelite Universe in the lead — protest when one speaks to take measures against facilities of all kinds granted to these "undesirable" Jews.

Mr. Tirard, French High Commissioner in the German provinces occupied, banned the posting of anti-Semitic proclamations.
French pogromist newspapers are deeply outraged by this "Scandal." (La Tribune Juive, April 15, 1921).

— The Queen of Holland and the Israelites. — The sovereign who is having recently come to spend a few days in Amsterdam, she received there a special audience, first the rabbinical court, led by the great Rabbi Onderwyzer, who, in his harangue, made a comparison between the lamentable fate of the Jews of Eastern Europe and the rather enviable one Israelites living under the rule of the House of Orange. The queen has then received from the members of the Central Consistory, those of the Council of the The Great Synagogue, which celebrated its 200th anniversary, finally, the representatives stakeholders of the Diamond Exchange which is largely composed of Israelites. The queen gave a very warm welcome to both groups, attending to their needs, and assuring them of his particular sympathy.
(Archives Israéliles, May 5, 1921, p. 71).

— According to the “Jüdische Presszentrale Zürich”, the Committee of the League Doctors from Budapest resolved, in their last session, to exclude fifteen Jewish doctors for their conduct during the Bolshevik regime.
(La Tribune Juive, April 15, 1921).

— From La Tribune Juive, May 20, 1921:

The Budapest municipality has decided to dismiss all the teachers

Jews. A recent statistic, taken from the teaching staff of schools from Budapest, demonstrates that out of a total of 5,325 people belonging In this body, there are 810 Jews and 102 converts.

— La Tribune Juive, April 15, 1921, published the following note from his correspondent in Budapest: |

Two major meetings have recently taken place regarding the boycott.
Jewish newspapers, or rather, newspapers with liberal leanings.
Vidago, several speakers advocated fighting against a certain name- newspapers. Messrs. J. Székely, Prœhle, Wolf, Csilléry, have demanded the reform of press laws. Hungarians who are waking up, in a at the Petdfi Square meeting, Messrs. G. Szmrécssanki, Herkely, Szabo, etc. surrendered, at the end of the meeting, at Admiral Horthy's residence, and they presented him with the list of wishes of the League.

This agitation is intended to harm the success of Az Est, Magyarorszag, Pesti Naplo, whose owner is Jewish, as well as the distribution of Nepszva, the organ of the Social Democrats.

— The Hungarian Minister of Posts has issued an inter- stating the use of Hebrew and Yiddish as correspondence languages dance.

— The Budapest city council has decided to no longer authorize Jewish merchants to trade in markets, fairs and squares public. {L'Univers Israélite, April 1, 1921, p. 715).

— The “Nemzeti Ujsag” publishes statistics according to which on 4,018 people convicted of fraudulent activities during the At the time of the war, there would be 714 Jews. (La Tribune Juive, April 8, 1921).

— The Jewish Archives, June 16, 1921, write:

The main grievance that Hungarian reactionaries have against the Jews is that they were involved in the revolutionary movement led by Bela Kuhn... The majority of Jews were against the communists. Sculs what-which individuals took part in the revolution.

It's always the same argument, depending on whether the revolution is Victorious or defeated, the Jews played a more or less significant role in it. less faded. Only, in short, they were still there.

— The Jewish People, April 15, 1921, announces the death of Mr. Nathan:

It is being sent from Rome that Mr. Nathan, former mayor of that city, is died on April 3, at the age of 76. Mr. Nathan was born in England to an English father and a mother and center of Catholicism. Re-elected in 1910, he held his position until 1943.

Italian. He went to Italy at the age of 13. In 1907, this Jew Born abroad, he was elected mayor of the Eternal City, the Pope's residence.

The Tribune Juive, April 22, 1921, reports the news in these terms:

In Rome, Ernest Nathan (Jewish), former mayor, died at the age of 86. of Rome and leader of the Italian Freemasons.

Excerpts from an article dedicated by Mr. Pierre Ryss to Ernesto Nathan, in La Tribune Juive, May 14, 1921:

I often had the opportunity to meet Nathan around the time of 1907-1911, when the anticlerical current was particularly acute and when the post the syndic (mayor) of the holy city was carried off in a fierce struggle by Nathan the Jew...

Don't you think, I asked him once in the middle of a fight, that your Will this election unleash a wave of antisemitism? He retorted with a calm certainty:

— It is freedom that fights hypocrisy, tyranny and prejudice. A Jew as mayor of the Eternal City is a symbol of the times new... We will crush antisemitism in its home...

We know that today, in an attempt to make their cause popular, Jewish writers assert that antisemitism is son of Germany. The article ends with these words:

His name will always be spoken with pride by the Jews.

From L'Univers Israélite, April 1, 1921, p. 712:

An editor from /dische Welt interviewed Mr. Rakhmilévitch, second President of the Jewish National Council and member of the Lithuanian Parliament. Although there are only six Jewish deputies out of one hundred and twelve, the majority holds always taking into account the interests of the Jews. The government does everything to To safeguard and develop Jewish autonomy. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs Jewish affairs are controlled by the Jewish National Council, which elected its minister Dr. Soloveitchik. He must answer to him for his actions. The minister-The priest directs all affairs relating to the Jews. 3

It should be noted that the parliamentary majority belongs to the Christian party. democratic, which cannot be suspected of any particular love for the Jews, but which duly respects Jewish autonomy. The Lithuanians are trying to interest the Jews in all governmental works national, in order to use their intelligent collaboration in the reconstitution Lithuanian state tuition.

Excerpts from a letter published by L'Univers Israélite, April 8 1921, p. 727:

Jewish Palestine is no longer a vague hope, but a solid reality. Despite anti-Zionists, whatever their religious affiliation— The Jewish renaissance is now a fait accompli. God has indeed wanted "our country" returned to us; it is to us that it belongs Now to organize it...

There are worldly Jews here; they all work with zeal and enthusiasm & the reconstitution of the Palestinian homeland, but they do not do not disdain to rest from their labors by taking part in sports, in attending concerts or parties, or even dances.
At first glance, this may seem disconcerting, not to say shocking; but on reflection, it seems that we should approve of those who want to create a new state of affairs rather than continue to be to lament past misfortunes.

The English are extremely benevolent towards the Palestinians.
The praise of the High Commissioner, Sir Herbert Samuel, is already well established;
He is a wonderful figure who will go down in history...

We will not hide our predilection for the admirable "-:yechiboth" where religious instruction is given. There, nothing of Modern, it's true. No luxury, just cleanliness and hygiene.
indispensable in overcrowded rooms teeming with poor children dressed up, already wearing long strands of hair on the ears and bent over the Talmud and other holy books...

We read in Le Peuple Juif, April 1, 1921, regarding the mandate given to England:

It has been painful for many of our fellow citizens to see Palestine, to which so many shared memories closely link France, confed to the British mandate. The Jews of France were the first to think it and to feel it.

Very platonic feelings, as evidenced by the lines the following: i

However, reflection reveals the reasons for the adopted solution.
by the League of Nations recommends itself and what arguments at the same time
Both positive and negative factors can be cited in his favor.

The Supreme Council was faced with three theses: Franco- Palestine French, English Palestine, International Palestine...

Palestine under French mandate was the intervention of the missions Catholics, impatient for a situation they had envisioned like a fall from grace. The eminent Dominican of Saint-Etienne, Father Lagrange vehemently protested against the hypothesis of a restoration ration of the Jewish state. It is with deep regret that we see distinguished men maintain in this respect the traditions of the Middle Ages Age and flattery of ancient prejudices. It seems that in the Vatican they have Appreciated with more composure, an inevitable transformation. Hostile to Zionism in its Catholic elements, hostile to that same Zionism In its freethinking, France lacked certain qualities necessary for the kind and friendly tutor of the new establishment His government risked being thwarted by its own agents.

Mr. Maurice Vernes goes to great lengths and is quite inexperienced.
It was a deliberate attempt to conceal the truth. It would have been much more simple and in line with reality to write frankly: the The mandate over Palestine was given to England out of hatred of the Catholic Church.

We borrow the following from the minutes of the Consis- Page of June 13, published by the Religious Weekly of Paris, 2 July 1921 (t. CXXXVI, n° 3521, p. 23):

The Pope spoke there first with a truly apostolic frankness and a barely contained indignation at the situation of the Christians Palestine, by the regime that has been in power since the armistice, "in this region which is very dear to Us, as it is to every Christian, because the The divine Redeemer himself consecrated it by his mortal life.

The Pope denounces the rampant propaganda of foreign sects: with the abundant resources at their disposal, they take advantage of habit- element of the extreme misery and destitution to which the war has reduced the residents...

But it's not just the work of Protestant sects; it's the new political regime in Jerusalem which gives the Pope the most bitter anxieties. As he had already expressed his fear in his Address of March 10, 1919, on the capture of Jerusalem by the Allies, "of This historical event, so fortunate in itself, has the consequence that in In Palestine, the Jews have assumed a dominant position and enjoy a a system of privileges.” The Christians of the Holy Land are in conditions of worse conditions than under the Turks. The new laws and institutions have drove the Christians out of the position they had always occupied until now, to put the Jews in their place.

An even more incredible maneuver: they are working on a real profanation of the Holy Places; they want to establish places of pleasure there, there importing all the attractions of lust. "Abominable everywhere, from Such things are especially so where at every step the the most august memories of religion."

MH Prague wrote in the Jewish Archives, May 12 1921:

The British administration, in its initial forays into Palestine, did not truly-Bad luck. Last year at Easter, it was the masses An Arab who attacked the Jews and massacred some of them. that year, after Easter, it was the Jaffa riots that cost the life to a much larger number of our coreligionists...

The political atmosphere in Palestine has always been troubled: The dissidences of religious beliefs, rivalries of various national elements have always fostered the seeds of religious and civil war.

Zionism came and developed this breeding ground where it-age-old hatreds and atavistic prejudices lie...

But what a tragic fate has befallen Israel... What a dramatic destiny is his | Let's have the courage to say it: the future of persecuted Israel and in search of safe asylum, he is not in Palestine where so much Religions compete, evade each other, and seek to supplant one another. fanatical about the great memories that fill their past...

fl is in the New World, in those republics with territories large enough to accommodate all the hardworking emigrants... It is from this The side that needs to be oriented and directed towards the Jewish population... Yet another one Indeed, therein lies the salvation of martyred Israel, and nowhere else!

The editor-in-chief of the Archives Israélites summarizes in These few lines outline the thesis of those whom the Zionists call the assimilators.

— The Zionist Commission in Jerusalem telegraphed the Committee executive, requesting that due to the events and also the lack employment for newcomers, the various emigration offices gregation are asked to suspend for the time being all shipments dimm-grants destined for Palestine. The High Commissioner has, in fact, instructions were given to that effect. This decision provoked a strong reaction. commotion in Zionist circles... (L'Univers Israélite, May 20, 1921, p. 109).

— A recent issue of "Haaretz" accuses the government of recruiting Spies among the Jewish workers. (La Tribune Juive, June 24, 1921).

Under the title: "Jewish Address to Mr. Churchill," La Tribune Juive, April 22, 1921, published the following note:

The Jewish National Committee of Palestine presented Mr. Churchill with a address expressing Jewish gratitude to England for its acceptance of the mandate on Palestine and its willingness to re-establish a Jewish national home. The address adds that the Jews of Palestine see in the appointment of Sir Herbert Samuel as High Commissioner the first step towards the implementation of the Balfour Declaration.

Regarding the unrest in Jaffa, MN Hermann writes in

The Jewish People, May 13, 1921, speaking of the alleged authors:

All these instigators, we dare to say here, have not found a hand strong enough to muzzle them. Sir Herbert's policy Samuel was too lenient and, for the primitive mind of the Arabs, too clemency. is synonymous with weakness. Arriving several months after the disturbances of Jerusalem, he pardons the perpetrators...

We understand the difficult and delicate situation of a High-Jewish commissar in relation to a non-Jewish population. As a Jew and in As an Englishman, he did not want to assert his authority by force of arms. clear. But there are limits to everything...

These events are likely to jeopardize Sir's situation Herbert Samuel. A campaign, the echoes of which are being reverberated in Palestine is being led in London by a certain English press against the Zionist policy of the government and in a particular way against the High Commissioner...

In any case, Sir Herbert Samuel will certainly have to revise his methods for restoring his prestige both domestically and internationally. Having tied his fate to Palestine, he will try everything to justify the hopes that were placed in him.

— The Morning Post publishes a telegram from the Muslim Committee and and Christian of Jaffa, asking, on behalf of the Arab population of Palestine, Muslim as well as Christian, a government representative elective, under British mandate, the annulment of the declaration. Balfour Declaration (National Home for Jews) and the prohibition of immigration Israelite cation. (L'Univers Israélite, May 20, 1924, p. 109).

Excerpt from Pair et Droit, the publication of the Alliance Israélite Universelle Universelle, May 1921 issue:

On May 3, the president of the Arab Congress of Caiffa addressed the declaration the following ration to the King of England, to the Pope, to the House of Commerce municipalities, to the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of France, America, from Italy and Spain, as well as to the newspapers Morning Post, Egyptian Gazette, Times and Le Care:

"The bloody fighting that erupted in Jaffa in recent days and the Bolshevik principles that Jewish immigrants spread in Palestine are the natural consequences:

» 4° Measures taken by the government to convert the Palestine as a Jewish national home;

"2° From the Balfour Declaration!"

» 3° Regarding the approval given by the government to the proposals and to the projects of the Zionist Commission, all aimed at the same end, the expulsion of Palestinians from their country.

ad

"This policy is the cause of the introduction of Bolshevik principles," of massacres and destruction by Jews throughout the entire country.

"The people's protests against the Balfour Declaration were in vain." and against this policy. At the moment when the fire of Bolshevism burns a of our most important cities, where the red flag is flying freely in our streets and where revolutionary newspapers are widespread throughout the country, we demand once again, the abolition of this policy and the Balfour Declaration, before the Bol— spirit the cheviste does not spread so much in the country that it is impossible for us to help the government suppress it.”

UPPER SILESIA. — We have already noted the Jewish influence in this question. La Tribune Juive, May 14, 1921, reproduced information provided by Nener Morgen which helps to understand many things:

Silesia has 20,000 Jews. Many limited companies are in the hands of the Jews. This is how, for example, the large society for iron ore extraction, founded in 1846, belongs to Jews. The richest coal mines in the Lybnik region are in the hands of the Jewish company "Heinich". In the industries In textiles and copper, Jews held prominent positions. The timber trade is developing, thanks to Jewish initiative.

Jews make up 1% of the population in some places, they pay 30 to 50% of all taxes.

That is why Mr. Lloyd George did not want the High-Silesia was given to Poland. The powerful Jews of that country want to remain German. In order to achieve this, they will not hesitate not to unleash a new war. That's still a crime From Israel: Revolution and war to fish in troubled waters.

From L'Univers Israélite, April 1, 1921, p. 711:

The Ministers of the Interior, Finance, and Foreign Affairs They brought together representatives of the Polish press. They gave them clearly understood that an agreement with the Jewish population constituted a vital necessity for Poland's interests from both a point of view both internal and external factors, but which the government could not achieve this agreement was reached with the support of the press.

The Jewish magazine reports that a "significant reversal and "A good omen" has appeared in the Polish press so far anti-Semitic.

– The Warsaw Bar Association Council has decided not to

to address colleagues who would claim Jewish nationality.
(d., p. 715).

– The antisemitic organization "Rozwoj" voted on a motion demanding the closure of the eastern border to Jews, under the pretext that In agreement with the Russian revolutionaries, they introduced anarchy.
Tribune Juive, April 8, 1921).

We read in La Tribune Juive, June 24, 1921:

The "Dwa Grosze" are rising up against the request made by the community Jewish community of Warsaw to obtain the right for Jews to change their names. The newspaper sees this as a serious danger for Poland.

He's not wrong. In France, this "camouflage" is one of the means employed by the Israelites to conceal their origin and more easily conceal dangerous activities of the Jewish race.

From L'Univers Israélite, April 1, 1921, p. 714:

The Romanian parliament adopted, by a majority of 144 votes to 89, the government proposal to establish a ministry for minorities national..... The Romanian government intends to create with from the Ministry of Minorities a position of Deputy Minister for Minorities Jewish.

– From the same newspaper:

The Romanian Minister of Justice stated that anti-Semitism was disappearing in the country and that all the demonstrations anti-Jewish acts would be rigorously repressed.

We find the documents below in The Universe Israelite, April 29, 1921, p. 39:

No. 381. 188. 198.
The 2nd Territorial Army Corps at...

We are honored to inform you that we have observed that certain bodies and services attach no importance to the choice of couriers responsible for carrying correspondence.

Because of the incompetence of some and the bad faith of others, he Losses and indiscretions occurred, as correspondence of a confidential nature have been disclosed to persons outside the army. We draw the attention of the corps and service commanders and we orders that in the future the mail function be entrusted only to capable and trustworthy soldiers that the corps possesses and who have made their evidence.

It is not permitted, under any circumstances, to use for this function soldiers of a nationality other than Romanian nationality.

The heads of the corps will be held responsible in the future for the poor choice of letters if we notice any losses or disclosures of the content of correspondences.

The Commander of the 2nd Territorial Corps,
The Chief of Staff, Lieutenant-Colonel.

The Major General,
RUJINSKI.

The Minister of War, No. 10,212

We have the honor of requesting that you kindly replace the Jewish soldiers by Romanian soldiers who could read and write, because, In accordance with the existing order, soldiers cannot be employed Jews in the commandant's office service.

These decisions were not made without serious reasons; and, Naturally, the Jews cry out about anti-Semitic persecution. Mr. Pierre Ryss wrote in La Tribune Juive, April 15, 1921:

Russian Jews were terribly affected by the suppression of the trade and crafts under the Bolsheviks. Completely ruined, the Jewish masses were forced to scatter into the countless services of the communist state. Jews, as well as intellectuals Russians were forced to become Soviet civil servants. a people who had never seen Jewish officials, welcomed this new fact. calf with undisguised animosity. Hating officials in In general, he particularly hated Jewish officials. The agitation The Hundred, red and black, exacerbated this feeling of hatred. For a an ignorant crowd that believes only what it sees, for an anarchic crowd The Jewish people, who are going through an unprecedented crisis, have become the embodiment of... nation of evil and crime. Demoralized by the events of these In recent years, the ignorant and anarchic peasant began to massa-to create the Jews with all the more zeal as he was encouraged instead to be discouraged.

The Tribune Juive, April 29, 1921, gives extracts from "Memoirs of Count Witte", recently published by the Daily Telegraph. We note the following passages, recalling that the Russian minister was rather pro-Semite:

One of the most irreconcilable enemies of the Jews was the Grand Duke

Serge... I

We know that the Governor-General of Moscow was assassinated. using a bomb thrown into his car on February 17, 1905, by the revolutionaries, but it is unknown what power secret directed the hand of the assassins.

Count Witte also wrote:

All of this, of course, encouraged the Jews, especially the Jewish youth, to support the revolution. I'm not saying that all Jews became revolutionaries, but no nationality in Russia gave a "such a high percentage in the extreme parties. Almost all the intellectuals-Jewish families joined the Cadet party, which promised them equality. _ rights. The influence of this party is largely explained by the support The intellectual and financial influence of the Jews... It cannot be denied that the Jews played a prominent role in directing and expanding the movement revolutionary... |

Count Witte is not anti-Semitic, quite the contrary. His These statements are all the more valuable. They confirm this that we already knew about the role of the Jews in the revolution Russian, and on the anarchic actions carried out by the Jewish race, worldwide, following the program revealed by the “Protocols” of the Elders of Zion.

E. D'YLBERT.

—~

APPENDIX V

DOCUMENTARY OVERVIEWS

on

The Judeo-Masonic Peril

We will publish under this title a series of documents relating to to the Judeo-Masonic question. We are drawing them today Contemporary notes received from Italy. They date back to part in 1920, but they highlight the action and the peril

Jews, particularly from the perspective of the High International Bank, of which he is of extreme importance to follow the ramifications and discover the goal. This study will explain many events about which we do not did not fully grasp the cause, either during the war, or since the peace. This work is divided into numbers; we Let's eliminate those who have lost their relevance. We leave to their author is responsible for their information.

CONTEMPORARY NOTES
1920

1. — The state of the world in 1920. — At the beginning of the year In 1920, the global situation was expressed through realities following:

a) Never before has the world been so much in the hand of the German-Financial International and the International demagogic.

b) Never before have the two Internationals been as strong as they are today were not in the hand of Israel, which is the master of the High International Bank and the ultimate engine of demagoguery international, which he intended to revolutionize the world for to better subjugate it. The Jewish banker Jacob Schiff, who has provided the Bolshevik leader Trotsky (see below), symbolizes this crucial fact.

c) Although Israel has not yet succeeded and probably will not- how could he ever succeed in realizing his ideal of a global trust (1)

(1) In a more recent dispatch from our Italian correspondent, we Let's read:

"As we have already seen, to this formidable power of Israel, which weighs heavily on the world; there can only be one counter-corrective weight, namely: A global resistance bloc of all its victims. However, we can add to this with some satisfaction and a hope that is not entirely unfounded, a seed of dissolution Jewish, stemming from envy, jealousy, and resentments that surface within the synagogue and the ghetto, which give rise to conspiracies, Revenge between individuals, between clans of the chosen people. That is not enough. no doubt to cure our ailment, but it is no less true that. Without this, the world would be trampled underfoot by Israel, without reprieve.

and without hope.
| » For example, it is known that the primitive core of the fortune of Rothschild originated from the ruin of the rival Jewish house of Cerfbeer.

"From time to time, strange 'Jewish scandals' come to light-knowledge of the profane world; but they are quickly stifled, thanks to silence an accomplice protected by the "good" press.

"Here is a recent example: Le Petit Marseillais, April 8, 1920" published the following.....

(We'll skip over this Jewish family drama).

"We would not have recalled this episode if it had not occurred." as the obvious symbol of the crisis through which silently passes Israel will be beseeched, and this will be fatal to it. This was the strength of the ancients. ghetto, individuals and Tamils, it was this power resulting from the cohabitation, discipline, solidarity that forced the Jew to lead a a relatively austere life, even when this austerity was the result of greed and avarice.

"Let us add that each family lived and worked united in one compact bundle, whether that bundle was a camorra or a gang.

» But Israel, which has sustained two thousand years of tension, of lation, of underground work to conquer the world, can no longer resist today, to the action that a wise proverb defines thus: "May God... "preserves from the day of glory." The nerves of Israel, which remained strong in The misery of the starving Lazarus cannot withstand the orgy of the wealthy opulent. Today, Jews are giving us the tragicomic spectacle of neurasthenics, erotomaniacs, such as their hideous colleague Guido de Verona represents his heroes and heroines.

"Fae Te

of which he would be the leader, a gigantic octopus, whose tentaculprits would envelop the entire world (to prevent the realization- To implement such a project, one must take into account the incurable rivalry.

prominent Jewish and Judaizing leaders, more so than on resistance from the outside); however, Israel has already succeeded in forming large groups and large agreements, at least temporary, thanks to which its global hegemony, if it is not absolutely accomplished, this is felt, at least morally. on everything and everyone.

d) Faced with such a threat, the so-called Christian world offers the most miserable spectacle of intellectual pettiness and morality, short-sighted selfishness, disastrous divisions, in outside of a small number of people, and a good number even fewer institutions have understood the situation, and who want to contribute to finding a remedy.

e) These persons and institutions include the urgent the need for coordinated, or at least parallel, action, all social bodies, action impossible if it is not preceded by a clear and precise investigation and an intuition of the crisis and its various elements; in short, it is essential to see the face of reality beneath the hundred masks of social life.

2. – Hidden Jewish High Bank. – One of the skills of Israel, aided by the superficial nature of public opinion, has always been precisely that of concealing one's own A face hidden beneath a multitude of national masks. In Italy, it was – and it is – easy to hear the national lamentations

This is the secret of this all-too-frequent disintegration of the Jewish family and of his disregard for age-old traditions.

"The ghettos of Slavic countries, the Balkans and the Islamic world" pour into the West the muddy torrent of their still unborn emigrants civilized and strong in their filth of soul and body, as is all Barbarians against a civilization in crisis. But these semi-savages, through contact with Western life, they will decompose more rapidly than their coreligionists who have lived in our countries for centuries. That is as well as the fact that the black man destroys himself faster by drinking alcohol.

"And that is how the Nemesis of History will avenge our poisoned race–" methodically orchestrated by Israel] through individual corruption dual, familial, political, which he uses to better dominate a The more corrupt the world, the weaker it is.

"Today, the same plague attacks both the poisoner and the poison-stunned; we shall see who dies first, the little assassin or the major victim.

nationalists against the danger of the "German" bank and boasting for this the "English" bank or the "French" bank or the "American" bank or vice versa; there's something for everyone Tastes. But the reality is this: The so-called German Bank is almost always the "Jewish" bank of Germany (the four Ds, initials of the Italian Commercial Bank, etc.); the so-called French Bank is almost always the bank Jewish women of France (Louis Dreyfus and his branches of Foreigner); the English Bank is almost always the bank Jewish from Great Britain (Rothschild, Hirsch, Isaac, Montagu, etc.); American banks are almost always Jewish banks in the United States (Kuhn, Lob and Schiff, etc.). The result is that the various groups of naive people, terrified by the national nightmare, fleeing a trap, fell into a other, in the opposite direction, because all the traps work directly directly or indirectly on behalf of Israel.

3. – High-Banking Center. – The global crisis of the The war forced Israel to move some lines of the net international. For example, its German center, already organized by Bleichroeder, Ballin, etc., with |' "Frankfurt Alliance" (including the bank of Jews who converted to Protestantism) but which always remain linked to Jewish interests, like the very The powerful Mendelssohn Bank) has had to, since the beginning of the war, putting pressure on the American center, which is which has now become the main driving force (New York, houses) already mentioned, Kuhn, Leb, Schiff, etc).

4. – Wilson, prisoner of the Jewish Bank. – If Wilson is the highest interpreter of the main Jewish center, which is that of the United States, this is a consequence of the electrical contract total agreement concluded between the Jewish High Bank of New York and the democratic party on the occasion of the elections which gave this party held the parliamentary majority and brought Wilson to the presidency.

In fact, the Democratic Party would then have suffered further damage defeat now traditional, if the Jewish Bank, calculating his interests with his usual perspicacity, had not secured victory through millions lavished in the electoral arena total. Of course, from this day forward, the democratic party was the slave of the Jewish High Bank which had imposed on him specific conditions. One of these conditions was revealed by a

The Cairo Arab newspaper, thanks to a fortuitous circumstance.
The pact imposed on Wilson the obligation to always send to Constantinople, as ambassador to America, a Jew who he would work there in the interest of the Jews in Palestine, in Mesopotamie, etc. The condition was punctually carried out until the war by sending the Jewish ambassadors Elkus, Morgenthau, etc. The first of these, of Arab origin, gave The Arab newspaper took the opportunity to reveal the family secret.

5. — In accordance with Israel's practice of closely monitoring its agents (conscious and unconscious) non-Jews. — We shall see the ongoing applications; — Chief Rabbi Stephen Wyse has was imposed as an intimate advisor to Wilson, who did nothing and does nothing without him.

6. — High Bank of Germany and the United States. —
The close agreement between the Jewish High Bank of Germany and that of the United States (itself of German origin) was the
The fundamental reason why the government of Wilhelm II, deeply influenced by the Jewish element, has nurtured until the very last moment a blind faith in Wilson's neutrality. He had become the subject of famous newspaper caricatures, for example the one that... represented responding to German acts of war with diplomatic notes. Now, Wilson declared war one day...
What had happened? The far-sighted and powerful Israel, which Until then, he had tried to save Germany, not for her.
but in his own interest, he had known of the collapse imminent, and he immediately resolved to throw overboard
Imperial Germany, in order to remain in control of the situation.

In fact, Wilson's intervention clearly showed that he
_ it was a matter of fighting against Hohenzollern Germany, but not against that of the "people", that is to say, that of the German Republic, in other words the one where Israel would have the greatest power over Germany (and experience proved him right), — analogous Wilsonian politics to the one that had been followed with regard to Romanov Russia replaced by the Russia of the triumphant ghetto.

Wilson's intervention also gave this high-ranking agent of the
The Jewish High Bank has a legal title to prevent the Entente from to win a political and military victory that would have annihilated Germany and perhaps, above all, harmed major Jewish interests.

From then on, Imperial Germany was succeeded by Red Germany.
Jewish, for the benefit of Israel, which made its agents disappear having become too dangerous because of their extremism, such as the Jewish woman Rosa Luxemburg, the Jewish man Liebknecht, the Jew Eisner, etc., while maintaining disciplined Jews in power.
A Jew who, from the opposing side, was supposed to be outside of this game, Ballin was the confidant of William II, and organizer of the merchant marine. Ballin, seeing Germany crumble, killed himself.

7. — Wilson's Jewish policy. — The same point of view provides a very strong reason for Wilson's tenacious opposition against the cession of Fiume to Italy (likewise Clemenceau, the Jewish man, as we shall see, who answered
to the Italian delegates by the famous phrase: "Request Fiume, that's asking for the moon"), as opposed to the transfer of Danzig to Poland and to the option of the measure that put Constantinople in the hands of the "League of Nations" (profane formula of the Jewish World Monopoly).

These three cities must become the three points of a huge triangle that would control the trade of half of Europe.
If Fiume, Danzig and Constantinople were in the hands of a people who made it a major national market, the monopoly of Israel, and morally, that of its great Anglo-Saxon center, would obviously be compromised.

If, on the contrary, Fiume were ceded to Jugoslavia, whose businessmen residing in Paris (Pachnitsch, Vesnitsch, Trumbic) conceded everything to America, with the support of the Grand Orient of the French Freemasonry of rue Cadet (see below), and if Danzig and Constantinople were given to the "Society (Jewish) of the Nations", the “great affair” was arranged.

In this regard, it is worth recalling a fact that we hold
From an absolutely reliable source. A proposal was made to a government to The Entente, during the war, had a project for a railway line which would have was entrusted to an international (Jewish) union, to join

Fiume and Danzig.

8. — High Bank and Conference of Versailles. — Moreover,
All the actions of the Versailles Conference were monitored.
by the Jewish High Bank. We will see some of them here.
accurate data. Through this Conference, the true masters (that is, the Jewish High Bank of America, of An-England, France) pursued a single goal: to arrive between

They have a deal to divide up the rest of the world.
both among those who were officially the winners
than between those who were truly the vanquished. A difference of treatment between the various states that are part of the spoils
The financial and economic situation depends and will continue to depend on their attitude.
Submissive or defiant in the face of the Jewish monopoly. Hence the hostility.
persistent against Italy, Poland, Romania, and from there as well favors to the Czechoslovakians and Jugoslavia.

9. — Direct Israeli control over coups d'état. — Clemenceau has always been the man of the Anglo-Jewish Bank Saxon, from the time he served Cornelius Hertz. Having become as president, it was always in the hands of his own secretary-to keep quiet in particular, the famous Jewish businessman Rothschild Mandel (who later became a member of parliament) and another Jewish emissary, Wormser.
Ultimately, it was a life-or-death struggle between Clemenceau and Caillaux.
at its core in the fact that Caillaux was the representative of the Clemenceau was a high-ranking German Jewish banker in France.
that of the Anglo-Saxon Jewish High Bank. The twists and turns
The war brought Mandel's man to power,
Wormser, de Loucheur, Tardieu, etc., and were led to prison Phomme des quatre D. Judeo-German. i

For his part, Lloyd George is being monitored by various chiefs of Jewish business dealings, such as Lord Reading, ambassador to of the United States, implicated in the Anglo-American scandal of the Marconi Wireless Telegraphy Company (this lord English is the Jew Rufus Isaacs, now Viceroy of India); Sir Samuel Montagu, British Commissioner for PInde, a Jew of the Montagu family of London, which has,
Naturally, the monopoly on banking transactions with P India (1).

10. — Zionism. — a) To make this movement fully understood-the thing that is being talked about so much right now, we must remember that the Jews are divided into the following parties (2): 1° Zionists proper, organized by Herzl, who want to reconstitute the Jewish state of Jerusalem (Zion) in Palestine;

---

(1) See: The Jews among the Leaders of the Entente; M& Jouinn, The Peril Judeo-Masonic, II, p. 96.
(2) Eod. lib., p. 38.

2° Zionists, improperly called by that name, who should rather to be called Territorialists, whose leader is Zangwill (center British); they would like to establish a Jewish Land, but in any place in the world where they could find favorable conditions; 3° the Cosmopolitans who
On the contrary, they prefer that Israel remain dispersed throughout the world to mine it. Several of them give themselves by opportunism like Zionists, and contribute their contributions
but, in reality, their program is neither Zionist nor territorialist.

b) As for Jewish social policy in general, there are the Ultra-conservative Israelites, organized around the year 1880, who are opposed to any culture, to any mixing with the goym (non-Jews); conservatives who allow contact opportune with Gentile life, provided that Jewish life remains essential traditionally; the social democrats, who have ever more invaded and dominated by democracies European and American, since the classic social
From Marx to Bebel, and including the independents and Bolsheviks of Russia, and Spartacists from Germany. These were organized by the old “Bund” (German word meaning League) of the revolutionaries Jewish revolutionaries who revealed themselves at the Geneva Congress of 1906.

The Jewish High Bank subsidizes all these parties and Served by everyone. The Rothschilds, the Hirschs, the Schiffs, etc.
they have no intention whatsoever of becoming citizens of a poor little Jewish state, they who are masters of the world, but they always give their support to the efforts that are being made in this goal, in order to maintain their popularity among their competitors triotes, or perhaps because all these Jewish businesses are from good deals (1).

e) On the other hand, Christians must never lose given that the Jews who, personally, are neither territoriallists, nor Zionists, are not really for that and loyallyrical fusionists, that is to say, sincerely desirous that the A Jew from France or Germany should become neither more nor less than a French or German citizen like any other. The old Pharisaic element (phareli, to divide), that is to say Separatist, still lives among the vast majority of Jews.

---

(1) Paragraphs c and d deal with the Territorialists of whom we We have spoken at length in our second volume, p. 88 et seq.

even among those who have lost the faith of their ancestors. The Jew cosmopolitan is neither territorialist nor Zionist, because in He does not see these two projects as a good deal for Israel. But he is a Zionist in his own way, in that he wants that the Israelites, physically dispersed throughout the world, be citizens of their respective states to exercise all rights that this title entails, and that, at the same time, these States recognize-Israel's national privileges are born. This dual pre-The tension contains within itself a contradiction, but Israel It also dispenses with logic. We will see, in fact, the Jews from Czechoslovakia to claim and obtain — and those from Poland to demand — by any means necessary — that the Jew of Prague, the Jew of Warsaw, whether a full Czech citizen or a citizen Polish, with full rights, and that at the same time the the country's government recognizes "Jewish nationality" to grant him special schools with their language own, etc., etc., that is to say, all Jewish privileges.

This spirit prevails even in the United States, where the merger and the confusion of all races and the democratic leveling-These factors should facilitate this definitive merger.

f) As for Zionism itself, it was prepared, from the On the other hand, the Revolution emancipated the Jews and gave them a foundation that allowed them to hope for anything, to have everything to dare. On the men's side, it was prepared by certain people-political and financial interests in Israel, such as the Anglo-Jew Italian Moses Montefiore, at the beginning of the second Empire (attempt interrupted by the Crimean War). When the AIU (Alliance Israélite Universelle) was organized, With its headquarters in Paris, it took up the project more assiduously. by founding the first Jewish settlement in Palestine, the Mikweh Israel, with an agricultural school supported by the Jew Charles Netter and several Russian coreligionists. At this first Jewish colonies in Palestine were added during the thirty In recent years, many others, including some who are They are very prosperous and tend to become veritable cities. many of these are Petach-Tikwah (the gate of the esp-France); supported by Baron Edouard de Rothschild; Rishon-le-Zion (the first in Zion), near Jaffa; Zichron-Jacob (Jacob's Well), in Samaritania, made up with Jewish elements from Romania; Rosti-Pinah (angular stones) (laires), in Galilee, etc.

On the other hand, in England, organization was taking place from 1860 onwards (we we have seen traces of Jewish organizations in Eastern Europe around that time), the Zionist movement with Lawrence Oliphant (1879), and not without temporary success. At the same time At the time, Richard Cazalet published a plan for condensation Jewish demographics in Palestine.

At the same time, in Russia, the great the Jewish center of Odessa, the Chovené-Zion (Friends of Zion), having for intellectual leaders the Jewish writers Ferez Smolensky and Leon Pinsker, with the aim of leading the Jewish masses of Russia towards Palestine.

g) But the great organizer of Zionism proper was the Jew of distant Spanish origin (the Ashkenazim are the Jews of the Germanic rite and group; the Sephardim-Sunday (those of the Spanish rite), Theodor Herzl, born in 1860 and He died in 1904. In the midst of the Dreyfus Affair, he dared to launch, in Paris, a true Zionist program: "The State of the Jews". The "Affair," already slowly prepared and now ripe, had achieved definitive success.

Organic Zionism had its central organ in Leipzig, in from 1896: Die Welt, Israelitisches Zentral Organ (The Monde (central Jewish organ) weekly. The party asserted itself at the Basel Congress, at the beginning of the year 1902; a Zionist medal was minted (reproduced in the Secolo, of Milan, of February 3/4, 1902).

Then the Jewish work in Palestine gained strength. In 1914, The Jewish Institutes adopted the spoken Jewish language. Large Funds were collected to ship and place families Jewish women in Palestine, sums collected by the Jewish National Fund, by the Chovené-Zion, which has been mentioned (chief: Wissotzki), by the Jewish banker Jacob Schiff, of whom we We will soon see the criminal activity, by the Judeo- Association. German Judisches Hilfsverein (Jewish Aid Society), etc.

A true Jewish international government — already existing in substance from antiquity ——— has been perfected in these in recent years and has functioned completely and energetically during war and during peace, imposing promises and compromises to world leaders, ct tenaciously pursuing a policy of conquest and of land grabbing on all vital land. We shall see some features of this government which functioned even at

we

sum

London with "Committees" and "Commissions" for business foreign affairs, for the press, etc., etc., veritable ministries or State departments. Within this framework, Zionism represents feel the visible raised part of a program whose points The strongest are invisible to the profane world.

10 bis. — Jewish High Bank. — The Jews (German section) (mande) who intend to govern Italy internally and externally outside by means of the Banca Commerciale Italiana, have already founded the Banca Ungaro-Italiana in Budapest. We give Here is the list of its senior staff, indicating the Jews that we know as such, but there are certainly some others whom we do not know as Jews:

President: the Jewish Commander Camillo Castiglioni, who has already greatly deserved by the imperial and royal government Austro-Hungarian in the treacherous lands of Venetia occupied.

The Jewish high-ranking officer Giuseppe Toeplitz, administrator delegate and director of the Banca Commerciale Italiana (see further away).

Alader Fonagy and Baron Giulio Madarassy Beck (Jews?), vice-presidents.

Roberto Adler, Jewish, and Marino Petronio, directors of the Credito Italiano; Adalberto Gross, Doctor Oscar Goldfinger (Jew), members of the Foresta management; Riccardo Gualino, Count San Martino, senator and inspector of Ja Banca Commerciale Italiana; Commander Mino-Gianzano, central director at the same bank; Federico Deutsch (Jewish), Dr. Eugenio Hilb (Jewish), a member of the board of directors of Holzbank, Raolo Goldstein (Jewish), member of the management and head of the Allegemeine Depositen-Bank; Gabriel Neu-Mann (Jewish), director of the same company; Ludovico Egyedy, Arminio Stein (Jew), members of the leadership of the Landesbank. | , Baron Ludovico Kürthy, Alessandro Matlekowits, the Doctor Francesco Nagy, Baron Giuseppe Szeterenyi, Dr. Eber, Director General.

Members of the Inspectorate: Edmondo Barta, Virgilio Eordogh, Bala Teleki, Sigismondo Horvath, Rodolfo Jakobs-Vits (Jewish), director of the Banca Commerciale Italiana: Adolfo Lord, Count Carlo Parravicini, director of the Banca Marketed Italiana; Federico Szento and engineer Antonio by Toma.

We repeat that, in this list, there are more Jews than We did not specify this because we know the company is Jewish. that in Hungary and elsewhere many Jews wear masks titles of barons, etc. Moreover, the Israelite leaders Toeplitz and Castiglioni alone are worth an entire ghetto.

11. — High Jewish Bank. — Two large Jewish banks operated until the war for the business world Anglo-Germanic-Austro-Hungarian and Balkan, it was the Anglo-Austriaca Bank and the Ottoman National Bank.

Banque Anglo-Austriaca (Jewish Baron Hirsch, organ of Neue Freie Presse, Jewish, from Vienna), born in 1863 with a capital of 20 million (soon to be increased), headquarters in London and in Vienna; director, when the war broke out, the Jew Karl Marawitz. — This bank financed the railways of the the Habsburg monarchy, then the Balkan routes (this with the direct support of the Hirsch family, opposite the Rothschild). She founded and controlled the following establishments: Bavarian Banking Union — Central Bank for Industry and Commerce (Berlin), — Discount Company (Leipzig), — Austro-Germanic Bank (Frankfurt), — National Bank Germanic (Bremen); it subsidized the Hotel Society Swiss, etc.

The Anglo-Austrian Bank was interested in the Bohemian Coal Company (17 million tonnes in 1912), in the German-Bohemian Coal and Lignite (in conjunction with the Jewish Deutsche Bank), in the Budapest Electric Railway Company, in the Galician Petroleum Company, within the Factory Company military canned food from Dalmatia, in the Trieste and Fiume Rice Milling Company, within the Company An anonymous Hungarian woman for artificial fertilizers, etc. She had a main part 4 the transformation of the Jewish Bank of Thessaloniki, as well as the Jewish Bank of Paris and the Netherlands Not (director: Louis Dreyfus, about whom we will speak later) far).

Before the war, the Anglo-Austriaca had, in England, 32 branches and 18 agencies; its 1912 balance sheet was 657 millions.

As for the Ottoman Bank, which was founded in parallel with

/

PAnglo-Austriaca, it is represented today by the Levantin Vlasto, linked to Basile Zaharew, who will be discussed later further. The two banks form an economic banking plan-London-Constantinople route through Germany, the lands of the former Austro-Hungarian Empire and the Balkans, linked to Fiume-Trieste to the west, to Odessa to NES: and with the line Baghdad opposite.

Simply pointing out these details is enough to make it clear. many political events of the last few months.

12. — Italian Commercial Bank. — Always, d'actua-the Parisian magazine La Vieille France published, in its number 157, these details:

"In Italy, the famous Commercial Bank was among the hands of the German Jews. These disappeared (at the beginning-cement of the war) leaving behind the most cunning, who Giuseppe Tceplitz had become a naturalized Italian citizen.

See the characteristic data on this dictator letter from the Perrone brothers, published in the Giornale d'Italia, of May 21, 1920. — See also Filippo TEMPERA, La Guerra e la Pace d'Italia, Insider of the Banca Commerciale di, Joseph Toeplitz; Rome, 1920.

13. — Book speculation. — Our correspondent in Rome He wrote to us on May 17th: “Yesterday, the Messaggero, which "Certainly not anti-Semitic," published a short article. titled: "A Blameworthy Bookselling Speculation", in in which he denounces a group of Italian and French Jews doing the book trade, which has sparked particular speculation in which a Paris publishing house and a Italian publishing house. This group, says Il Messaggero, is looking for to monopolize publications in order to sell them at prices doubles and triples, and, not content with that, he introduces into a large quantity of the worst literature, especially French, by publications of an extremely pornographic nature... In certain bookstores dependent on the aforementioned trust are seeing "Very large collections of this kind of vicious book." That's what the Messaggero says. I'll just add that it refers here, in Rome, to the Jewish publishing house Bemporad, from Florence, to his Jewish sister, the Treves house, of Milan, both of which have a branch here, and at the bookstore Jewish fashions on the Corso, whose shop windows are full of Large-format, truly pornographic chromotypes. It's always the same, the Jew is involved in the prostitution trade. of human flesh, or continues his work either in the film, in the drawing, in the book; H wants to cash in at the same time money and spreading corruption.

14. — Bank of Paris and the Netherlands. — We have appointed Louis Dreyfus as head of the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands. This Dreyfus is one of the most prominent figures influential figures at the Jewish Bank in France. He grouped around his bank: the Franco-Serbian Bank, Société Générale and various other business centers. In its vicinity are particularly Crozier, former French ambassador to Vienna, As a member of the Board of Directors of Société Générale, he deals specifically with Franco-Austrian affairs; Dutasta (who is known to be closely linked to Clemenceau), secretary-silenced by the Versailles Conference, a well-known businessman in Switzerland and in Central Europe; Jules Cerf, the trusted man of the American Jewish Bank under Rothschild; Stern, Zaharew, etc.

15. — Caillaux and the Jewish High Bank. — Such a French-Judeo coalition linked to the aforementioned Anglo-Jewish group Austro-Levantine was too interested in the affairs of the _Mittel-Europa and the Balkan tail attached to it, for to be able to pursue a policy that is truly hostile to Europe Central; and, indeed, her true man was Caillaux. The This thing is so well known that in the aftermath of the partial conviction de Caillaux, Léon Daudet could write, in Action Fran-French woman of April 24: "I will surprise no one if I add that the The Paris Stock Exchange, today as yesterday, is Caillautist and that the High Bank will take for the condemnation of Caillaux, half-mourning or court mourning.

Regarding the word "yesterday," when Caillaux was compromised by the rival Anglo-French group represented by Clemenceau, The Dreyfus and C'* coalition had to get closer to the Tigris; it there arrived by means of the aforementioned Dutasta, who was made secretary-silence of the Versailles Conference, in order to ensure the affairs of the coalition. Ultimately, Dutasta is more of a caillautist than Caillaux himself, but he did not commit the headbutts of the latter.

Clemenceau was thus navigating between his wartime popularity and the unreliable support of Franco-Jewish business dealings. But the Clemenceau's tactical errors in foreign policy have already shaken his position; the abuses of his Jewish Camorra and Judaizing, the Mandel-Wormser-Tardieu-Loucheur, etc., had alarmed public opinion. And yet the old meadow-the president would probably still be in power, in the seat higher, if he hadn't stubbornly persisted in his cutthroat struggle against Germany and Red Russia. It was becoming disastrous. for the aforementioned Franco-Jewish business dealings, very strongly inter-resumed its business with Central Europe and with the Russia, especially since its accomplice and rival, business dealings Anglo-American Jew had already begun working on this double market. Clemenceau fell within twenty-four hours.

16. — Austro-Hungarian Jewish Affairs. — As for the In France, the enormous Jewish plot is directed by the aforementioned Dreyfus and Basile Zaharew, Levantine adventurer, founder and owner of the Radio Agency of the Parisian newspaper Excelsior, etc.

The mission, and later the Allizé embassy, are linked to this plan. in Vienna, to organize an economic reconstruction of the countries formerly ruled by the Habsburgs. Their economic union mique would recreate, more or less, the situation of the Jewish market in these regions. When a certain press The Italian woman realized that in France and England they are more favorable to enemy Austria-Hungary than to Italy As an ally, she only saw the material facts without understanding them. My profound reason. Franco-British Jewish affairs, much stronger in the lands of the former Austro- empire Hungarian than in Italy. It is well known that it is Israel which imposes guidelines on French policy and the English policy. As for Austria-Hungary, the Apostrophic Empire-Tolique, it was entirely the fiefdom of the Hirsch, Rothschild, etc.

16 bis. — The Jew Castiglioni in Austro-Hungary. — In In our number 10 bis, we alluded to the vouchers services rendered to Austro-Hungary during the war by the A Triestine Jew, Commander Camille Castiglioni, placed by the Toeplitz the Jew at the head of the new Hungarian Bank-Italian from Budapest. Today, the newspapers specified some of these services, for example that of having manufactured the airplanes with which the Austrians bombed-They include Venice, Padua and other Italian cities.

17. – Jewish Cinema. – A Jewish trust has been organized in Paris for cinema (a type of industry that Israel values highly), because, while being an excellent financial deal, it serves at the same time as the most effective propaganda among the masses). The Board of Directors of the aforementioned trust, the Générale Cinéma, 4, rue d'Aguesseau, consists of Ed. Benoit-Lévy, Ern. Levy, Rob. Rosenfeld, Marcel Rosenfeld, Marcel Deutsch, Ed. Harispuru, all Jews. We will see more far from the Judco-Avemand helping hand on the Brothers' affairs from France.

18. – Monaco, – The Principality of Monaco is a center one of the most active Jews, thanks to the Jewish loves and affairs of Prince Albert. It is thanks to him that France has not... The land of roulette has not yet been annexed. Note among the Jews of the Principality: Blanc, the main owner of the Casino, related to the Bonapartes, the royal house of Greece and the princes Radziwill, etc.

19. – Italy and the Jews. – Until now, Italy was regarded by the... laypeople, and particularly by the Italian laypeople, like a country where Jews were discreet, kept to themselves peaceful, especially since, apart from the old- jokes information on the "giudii", conscious and organized antisemitism was unknown.

Today, the war has opened many people's eyes to The real situation is quite simply this: "Italy is one of Israel's many strongholds, coming to its ranking among the Jewish strongholds of France, Germany, and England and the United States." i! |

Let's start with the German branch and its principal figure- the chief, the former Polish German, pseudo-Italian, the Jew Joseph Toeplitz, head of the Banca Commerciale Italiana, the famous a fortress of political and financial intrigue within the Bank Jewish woman from Germany.

Toeplitz's career is beginning to become known; he, in accordance with the characteristics of his breed, he was able to put a great skill and equal perseverance to reach the top degree of its current power; but, once it has reached At his peak, he held nothing back. Anyone who wanted to follow the The adventures of this Israelite would only have to be described by reading the main ones Italian newspapers since April 1920, where are the recent epistolary controversies for and against the Bank Teplitz, that is to say the Commercial.

Tœplitz, flanked by the Jews Ehrenfreund, Goldschmidt and others, extends its tentacles throughout all of financial life. industrial, economic, and, consequently, political of Italy, on behalf of the Jewish International Bank, and to to the detriment of our country. This Tœplitz group is showing up everywhere: For example, Italian railways may or may not have wagons available for exporting our Italian goods abroad, depending on whether Ehrenfreund wants it or not. Wholesale buyers of Italian fabrics for nations friends who had bought them at a bargain price They can't find wagons to load the fabrics, and if after They manage to get it through many efforts, the train will stop at the border, because these fabrics were necessary- sares... to Italy.

The beautiful thing is that the German Jews are thus hindering a Italian trade, knowing that this fabric and other merchants- Italian films were boycotted by them, and that, on the other hand part, as many French fabrics and other goods were going to replace ours in the destination countries. It wasn't German merchandise, which makes abso- a deficient element for the needs of Germany itself, It was French merchandise, shipped by trains regular and lengthy... The truth is that these manipulations have indeed could have been made for German-Jewish houses in France in French houses, these so-called French houses masking Jews. | a |

t

20. – A Jew in disguise. – Speaking of masks, our readers will have noticed the consistent presence of a name in this kingdom of Teeplitz, the Banca Commerciale Italiana and Ungaro-Italiana is the name of the Piedmontese Count Enrico San-Martino di Valperga Maglione. "Here's one who isn't Jewish," people will say. And this refutes the claim of a Jewish monopoly on the group.

Toeplitz. Well! The Signor Count is the son of a Jewish woman, born Meyer, from Vienna, who was baptized in order to marry the baron Isola, from Turin. After his death, she married the count of San-Martino, father of the current count. A sister of the said The Jewish lady bequeathed it to the sister of the current count, Donna Augusta Buoncompagni, his vast estates in Hungary, etc. And there you have it.

Count San-Martino was legitimately welcomed into the Jewish group of the Commercial of Ungaro-Ifaliana, etc.

21. — Let us return to the Jews of Italy. — The Judeo-French begins at the French Teeplitz, Louis Dreyfus, of the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands. It is represented here by the Max Bondi, a Jewish man, and by the world of the Secolo of Milan, old organ of the Judeo-Masonic society of Paris (until today lin-Jewish genius Pontremoli, today the Jewish senator Della Torre). oi

Max Bondi has business dealings with Pisa Bank (of the Jewish family of Pisa), with the Iloa, etc. He organized the Societa Metallurgica italiana, as well as the Jewish senator Della Torre organized the Associazione Bancaria Italiana; we see that the two major coalitions of banking and industry Italian countries are controlled by Jews.

The Antimonio company is also controlled by Dreyfus.

Another figure linked to the Jewish bank is the commander. Volpi of Credito Veneto, who is currently in contact with the Sud-Bank in various Balkan affairs.

Thus, the economic and financial life of Italy is caught up in the Jewish pincers, which have one French tooth and one German tooth order.

Banks that are not under Jewish control are few and far between. numerous and of secondary importance; they are under the constant threat of strangulation or absorption. Among the major banks, the ones where they fight best against the element and the Semitic influence is the Banca Italiana di Sconto.

22. — Freemasons and Jews. — On the other hand, in Italy, the threat of the Jewish monopoly over the country, by means of a rapid tightening-The influence of the Judeo-Masonic network is becoming increasingly visible. It is not for nothing that the Roman seat (Piazza del Gesù) of Scottish Freemasonry, at odds with Freemasonry Symbolically, it has recently had two leaders Americans: Burgess and Williams, so that the Jewish center Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry was certain of the maneuvers of the Freemasonry Scottish order in Italy, the Italian Brothers having given evidence of alarming versatility.

As if Judeo-Masonic action weren't enough, he A "Political League of Italian Women" is also being organized. a direct instrument of Judeo-Masonry, represented by the President Amalia Bosse, a Jew from Trieste, and the secretary Signora Ascoli Nathan, who is part of the Judeo- tribe Mazzinienne of the Honorary Grand Master of Freemasonry Italian. This league suddenly revealed its purpose, in seeking to impose on its members the fight against the Bolsheviks Visegrad and against... clericalism. Everyone knows what Jews understand clericalism, like everyone else knows what they mean by "business".

23. — The Jewish Press. — At the management of the Tribuna remains the Jew Malagodi, the man from Teeplitz and the Jewish monopoly from Italy, the one who, under flimsy pretexts, sent back from editorial staff of the Tribuna and thrown onto the pavement, as much as that depended on him, the editor Signorina Bianca Paulucci, whose the real crime was having opposed, a few weeks, during the assembly of the aforementioned Women's League, to the attempted Judeo-Masonic takeover to which we alluded to. A Jew, Limentani, is administered traitor of the Idea Nazionale, while the Jew already named, Della Torre succeeds the Jew Pontremoli in the management of the Secolo, the old organ of the Judeo-Masonic community of Paris.

The annexation of the major Jewish center of Trieste is a reinforcement unexpected for the number and audacity of the Jewish businessmen Masonic lodges of Italy. The Jew Toeplitz is flanked by the Jew Triestine Ehrenfreund, who has a vast network at his disposal of intrigues involving banks, railways, etc. all the more so since this Ehrenfreund was able to prevent good and honest business of Italian industry with the nation friend, by arranging for the necessary wagons to transport failed, stopping the goods, and alleging as an excuse that these merchants were needed disputes in Italy, etc.

24. – Posts and Telegraphs. – And now here is the Jouche, a figure of the Jew Ottolenghi (whose "companion" is a authentic Bolshevik), head of the Postal Federation Telegraphs and Telephones. When there was a threat of a strike, Ottolenghi had a meeting with Minister Chimienti and with the socialist leader of Aragona; the strike seemed so absurd, so It is unfair that d'Aragona was the first to advise against it, and Ottolenghi bowed to this verdict. Hardly the two The men had already parted ways when the Jew went to telegraph a a coded circular that imposed an immediate strike on the teleGraphic designers and telephone operators by Higher Orders. These orders superiors had come from abroad to disrupt Italy. and, to increase the confusion, at the same time a railway strike, and this while Nitti was at Paris to conclude national and internationals. And this abominable game continued.

25. – Jewish Bankers, Jewish Exchange Agents in Rome (1920). – Ajo Giulio, – Alhaïque Gino, – (Consclo Leone, removed), – De Porto Gastone, – Friedmann Giulio, – Hannau

Bindo, – Levi Vittorio, – Nillul Arnoldo, – Recanati Ugo, – Sacerdoti Ettore, – Soria Alberto, – Soria Raffaele, – (Vitale Giacomo, retired, – Sonnino Marco, – Bosio Justin, – From Montel, – Sonnino David, etc.

26. – American grain. – Our correspondent in Rome He wrote to us (late March): "There is urgent talk of an investigation" (until now prevented, as usual, by all powerful interventions) on the role played by a leader of The well-known banker, the French Jew Louis Dreyfus, in the purchase of American grain for Italy during the war. – The price of American wheat is considered exorbitant; Why the purchase, instead of being handled directly by Italy? Did it pass through the hands of Dreyfus, who made a big deal out of it? in accordance with Jewish traditions" (1).

27 bis. – Jewish press of Italy. – The Corriere Israelitico, Rivista mensile per la storia, l'spirito et il progresso del giudaismo (Monthly Review for History, Spirit and the progress of Judaism), directors: Rabbis Dante Lattes ct Riccardo Curiel; editorial office in Turin; correspondent offices dance in Livorno, Venice, Alexandria of Egypt, appearing at Udine, at the Del Bianco printing house, founded in 1861.

Still on the subject of the press, and to return to what we we have said about the pornographic trust of Jewish booksellers (no. 13), We will not forget the brazenly Jewish advertisement that... made about the filth in the books of the Jew Guido Verona (which is done to call Guido of Verona, as his ancestors did before (that the French Revolution imposed a family name on them) is a base for taking over the world. On the ignoble production of the Jewish novelist, which is part of the program To corrupt the world in order to dominate it, see the article masterful performance by Emilio Cecchi in the Tribuna, Rome, from 25 May 1920.

28. – Stefani Agency. – April 1920. – Lawyer CappelIletto, currently publisher and director of the Stefani Agency, is the front man of the Commercial Bank, and, consequentlyQuent, from Tæplitz; moreover, the Stefani Agency has a long Jewish tradition that still endures.

29. – Italy and the Jews. – April 1920. – Another Jew, in the Italian Government: the Commander of Nola, whom the Minister Dante Ferraris was appointed as Chief of Staff.

30. – Chocolate. – The Italo-Dutch Company, of Rome, For chocolate, it's called Italo-Hollandaise because it's not finds neither an Italian nor a Dutchman, but simply the Jewish family Calo... Two masks and only one face.

---

(1) Issue 27 reports on a case involving the Jew Max Bondi near the Italian government.

31. — Another Catholic newspaper controlled by Jews. — April 1920. — L'Avenire delle Puglie (The Future of Apulia), founded in Bari, with capital specially provided by the Bishop. The newspaper eventually fell into the hands of the honorable Martino, founder of rural credit unions, etc., very influential and who eventually joined Montecitorio. With the competition of the journalist Alfredo Proia, of the papal Osservatore Romano and Roman correspondent of the Awenire delle Puglie, Honorable Martino succeeded in obtaining significant subsidies. from the ministry, and now the newspaper has given itself to Ilva, for 250,000 lire.

32. — The Rinascent. — Secularism of the Italian Municipality lienne. — From our correspondent in Rome: “The Rinascente (The Renaissance), a new industrial society that succeeded to the Bocconi Society, gave the mayor of Rome a sum to be distributed among charities. Here is the list of distribution drawn up by the Christians of the Capitol: To the rider Spizzichino, Jew, for the Israelite deputation; to the rider Sonnino, a Jew, for the Israelite asylums; to the commander Orrei, upper Macon, for those suffering from malaria; to the Institute named after the Jew "E. Treves"; to the distinguished Macon and Giordanobrunist E. Orano, for his works of Testaccio district; in Macon, active VE Bianchi, for the Pro Infantzia; to Bergamini, director of Judeo-Masonic Giornale d'Italia, for its Sanatorium-advertising, and the rest for strictly secular institutions.

33. — Cinema. — Our correspondent in Rome tells us written (March): "The presence of the businessman is noted here." known as the German Jew Rosenberg, director of Bioscop Aktion Gesellschaft, which, through its colleague Bratz, general manager of the Agenzia Cinematografica "Ufa", leads the campaign for a Judeo-German monopoly on cinema- "Tography in Italy".

34. — Italian Circles. — “At the same time,” our continued corresponding to the Jewish appropriation of the various forms of Italian life is becoming increasingly vibrant. It's the turn of the most high positions in the main Italian circles; the Circolo Artistico Internazionale of Rome was about to meet to remove the current Presidency and Council, thanks to the agitation led by the Jewish sculptor Vito Pardo, suspected, despite all his decorations, of Bolshevik sympathies chevistes through its Cooperative Union of Artists "Ars", which regiments the students of the Institute of Fine Arts Arts. A close friend of Bombacci and Serrati, Pardo wanted impose on the Artistic Circle the subscription to Avanti and Lins- Registration at the Bourse du Travail (Labor Exchange). While waiting for something better, he has Another Jew, a certain Ortona, was placed in the secretariat of the Circle. who is collaborating with him to launch an assault on the presidency and to the Council. Parde's wife, it is said, is a Russian Jew. He is very influential in the Touring Club. In recent years At one time, he took a trip to Istria, and went to the large Jewish center which is in Trieste, where he held conferences with the Slavic agitators.

The aforementioned Jew Vito Pardo, besides P? “Ars”, holds in his another very important body of the Artis- Association Italian tic, the Cassa Pia di Previdenza (The Pie Box of (Provident insurance), of which he is president and director, institute- autonomous tuition within the Association itself.

Until very recently, Pardo was still advisor; as we said, he implemented the most audacious attempts at Judeo-Bolshevik appropriation, this which caused him to fail in the following elections.

In the same Association, the Bolshevik emissary is stirring things up- Miss Hilda Ainscough, English subject, entered the International Artistic Association presented by the members Ugo Ortona, a Bolshevik Jew, and Ercolo Drei, subversive in art and in life.

39. — Italian Jews. — A highly suggestive episode in The subject of the threatening awakening of the Jews of Italy. It is revealed to us by the astonishing news that the Jew Mortara, prosecutor general (brother of the former minister, both Jewish) dissolved the Uni- Jewish university (that is, the Jewish Community) of Florence. When the public read in the newspapers of May 26-28 this extraordinary At the dinner, he saw her accompanied by this other woman, a The comic ending: the ministerial order of dissolution has been addressed "by mistake" to the Israelite University, instead of being sent to the King's Prosecutor. Never before has such a mistake been seen who informs the purpose of the measure before notifying the justice system; in so that the person concerned has time to prepare the letters, the alibis, etc. Of course, these lucky breaks only happen to Jews.

This address error can be explained by two reasons: first because the University's charitable funds were applied to Zionist propaganda; and, secondly, because that the University was organizing a propaganda campaign in favor of this a simple and modest claim. Italian Jews must have all the rights of Italian citizens, and, at the same time, all Palestinian citizens' rights: double citizenship rights, double rights... and the Zionist pretension that we will see to present to all governments that will yield, which will grant this interesting protection to Israel (as we will see (see in Prague, Athens, etc.). Others refuse to grant this protection (as in Warsaw, Bucharest, etc.), also do they become the target of all local Jewish malice? and international.

Let's get back to the Zionist bats (half mouse, half birds): a newspaper that was talking about Florence's coup added: "In Livorno, Pisa, Siena, Ancona, Rome, Turin, cities where Jews are very numerous (Giornale d'Italia, 27 May), their agitation against this dissolution intensifies, because that they fear (sic) finding themselves in the presence of a case of perse-political cut (sic). But, certainly, the poor bald men-Mice are odiously persecuted by anyone who claims that they are either Italian citizens or Palestinians, a very justifiable claim for the common Christian, but

It is sacrilegious audacity to try to apply it to the "chosen people". of the "High International Bank".

36. — In Greece. — Meanwhile, the Jewish claim makes its route. The newspapers reported this on May 26, 1920. Dispatch from Athens: "The Greek Government will present to the The House is considering a bill that includes recognition official of the Jewish community of Thessaloniki as The first Jewish authority in Greece. The same project confirms the religious, judicial and educational privileges of which The Israelites enjoy in Greece, and recognize Saturday as "A holiday for Jews."

37. — Mistress Wilson. — We wondered why reasons Mistress Wilson has so much influence over her husband and has led such a vigorous campaign against Italy in favor of the Jugo-Slavia and the Jewish triangle of Fiume-Danzig-Constantinople.

Not to mention other reasons in which we do not we neither can nor want to enter; it will suffice to point out that Mistress Wilson is a relative and close friend (they were together in Paris) of the wife of the Serbian adventurer well Vesnitsch, a well-known minister in Paris. M™ Vesnitsch is a Jewish, born Ullmann of Frankfurt; and the rest... the reader will. will say.

38. — High International Bank. — Our correspondent Trento writes to us:

a) Beware of the intrigues of the Jewish Bank of Germany Magne and Italy regarding the foundation it deals with of an Italian-German Bank (remember the Italian-Hungarian one) (from Tæbplitz and Castiglioni) in Innsbruck, with 40% of shares to Germany, 30% to Italy and the rest to Tyrol. The new line business is probably linked to it. Kufstein-Ala railway (i.e., from the Bavarian border) to the old Italian-Austrian border across all of Tyrol Austrian and Italian and Trentino) on behalf of a Italian-German consortium, a project on which the Jews have already got hold of it.

» b) Obviously the International Bank wants a monopoly-read about the major opportunities in financial and economic life From Italy: Budapest, for the eastern Danube region, Innsbruck, in the north, for the German-speaking countries; in Switzerland, with the Jewish bloc that has long reigned. As for the part Western, that is to say French, Louis Dreyfus is considering it, while the Jewish Bank of England and the United States works partly "for himself", partly behind the scenes German, Austrian, Hungarian, etc. firms (note from us: remember the Anglo-Austrian and the Imperial-Ottoman (see above number 11).

"C) I would also like to point out a flood of Jews" Galicians in the Alto Adige region (Italian Tyrol) where they are employed as milkmen. Our Trentinos who are Those who went to Galicia told us that the same flood of Semitic dairy boys quickly led to a monopoly Jewish milk, as there already was one of brandy, etc.

» d) Finally, I would like to point out the suggestive coincidence of a similar immigration of Russian and Ukrainian Jews to Switzerland, to through the hospitable countries of Germany and Austria "Judeo-socialists."

39. — Masons and Jews. — Freemasonry — old office Israel's business — is more linked than ever to the colossal Intrigues of Jewish banking politics. While the ritual Scotsman (of Anglo-Saxon type) is doing Rothschild's business and of Leeb, the Symbolic rite (of the French type), of which the Grand-Orient has its headquarters in Paris, on rue Cadet, and is the arsenal from which ships depart numerous ships... pirate ships. The symbolic Freemasons "Peninsular" regions, that is to say those of Portugal, of Spain, Italy, Serbia, Greece, are simple fiefdoms of rue Cadet, and are not the only ones.

40. — Yugoslavia and Freemasonry. — And since I am speaking of The palace on Rue Cadet is where the famous committee is based. national Jugoslav who enriched Vesnitsch, Paschitsch, Trumbic, etc., who placed Jugoslavia at the disposal of the High International Bank, starting with the well-known Judeo-Wilsonian affair of the Fiume triangle-Danzig-Constantinople.

41. — Czechoslovakia and Freemasonry. — Czechoslovakia Slovakia is another stronghold of Cadet Street. Its leaders, old sectarians agree with the Grand Orient of Paris on the based on the following: the rulers of Prague will organize the religious persecution against the Catholic Church (1), of which they have seized the houses and churches, against which they fostered the schism of the so-called national clergy, etc., and the street Cadet promised and maintained his support against the protests. Slovaks (Catholics) to whom no Conference of Ja Paix, no Wilsonian commission ever asked whether or not they wanted to be part of Bohemia-Moravia (country of the Czechs), and now that the Slovak majority is protesting against this forced union, while the sectarians, masters in Prague, they imprison Klinka, leader of Slovak nationalism and a Catholic priest, and only release him because His health is ruined; today, Cadet Street has imposed the silence on Slovak demands to the press and to the policy of France and the states annexed to the Grand Orient of Paris.

---

(1) Cf. International Review of Secret Societies, vol. IX, year 1920, p- 373: Czechoslovakia and the Grand Lodge of Paris.

42. — Inter-Allied Masonic Congress of 1917. — And there you have it the explanation of the famous International Masonic Congress held in 1917, on rue Cadet, in which it was decided that the The Three-Points Brothers would support the annexation of Trieste, of Istria, from Fiume and Dalmatia to Judeo- Jugoslavia Wilsonian. It was in this Sanhedrin that the delegates of the Italian Freemasonry, headed by the Jew Ernesto Nathan, adhere, through Masonic discipline, to this program parricide.

When news of this incident broke in Italy, public outrage forced the Giustiniani palace to play the usual comedy of protests, resignations, etc., but no deaths or injuries. remained in perfect health, and it was not even This would require assassinating one or two Balloris.

43. — The two Maconnertes. — But, opposite the Macon-Symbolic Freemasonry, Anglo- Italian Freemasonry, developed Saxon of the Scottish Rite, ever more aggressive with regard to that of the Symbolic Rite. And the High Bank Anglo-American Jewish (as we indicated in number 22), in this case as in others, makes an active competing with its French counterpart for global dominance, while the German-Jewish High Bank works for his account and with connections to the American High Bank-As for the Brothers in Abraham and the Golden Calf, the big Jewish potentates make agreements or fight each other like. such and such parliamentary groups. This is simply human, one might even say providential, because this prevents the definitive enslavement of the world in the hand of Israel, as we indicated at the beginning.

44. — Scottish Rite. — All those who know Freemasonry-Italian nerie of the Scottish Rite (the one whose seat is on the Piazza del Gesù, in Rome) know that its leaders during the war against the Saxons, Burgess and Williams (see number 22; they understand well how Americanism The Judeo-Wilsonian wanted to be sure of his Freemasonry and gave it to him For their leaders, his Missi Dominici. If these foreigners have today as successor the Italian Commander Palermi, director from the newspaper Popolo Romano, already secretary of Freemasonry Scottish during the time of these two Anglo-Saxon leaders, that holds true to what the Anglo-American masters recognize in him P “Scottish” the most hostile to the “Symbolic” rite.

45. — Symbolic Rite. — But, precisely, the victory The "Scottish" of Palermi redoubled the efforts of the "Sym-"Boliques" to overcome him. In early June 1920, It is considered certain that Grand Master Torrigiani, armed of convincing arguments from Cadet Street, succeeded to intimidate Palermi and persuade him to make peace and to let the "Symbolics" enter the old journal of Chauvet. Perhaps the stormy air blowing around the Wilson's government, perhaps the "new ways" of Did English politics (?) leave the former secretary of Burgess and Williams were in a position to reflect on many things. things... |

46. — Masonic Divisions. — To this Masonic crisis of the Popolo Romano, there are people who recognize the Masonic clamor from various Three-Point Brothers, nestled for some time now in the Messaggero (whose head is Meoni, Vice-Grand Master of the Giustiniani Palace) about a article entitled "The Ministry and Freemasonry", by the lawyer Ciraolo, Intermittent Brother, appeared in the Messaggero of the 1st June 1920, an article which spoke without any enthusiasm of the inquisitorial trial brought by the Grand Orient against the Brothers who had entered the third Nitti Ministry, alongside members of the Italian People's Party.

Meoni would have strongly protested against the audacity of those who dared to voice reservations against an act of the Grand Master, as if it were just any Pope, protected by the law of guarantees, and, therefore, capable of being freely Criticized and insulted. When the Grand Orient speaks, there's nothing to it. to rent it or to remain silent, if one does not want to expose oneself to the inquisitor Masonic section.

Meoni's price list gave rise to discussions stormy exchanges between friends. But yet this staging could very well lead to the Brothers being sent away from Messaggero with a hefty severance package, and to their to allow entry in a cheerful, well-ordered procession into the Popolo Romano symbolizing.

47. — Jewish International Bank, — Whatever there may be real in the development of these tragicomic episodes Between Siamese twins, one can be certain that the tiny-The petty rivalries of the tiny Roman Easts will not cease no, given that, from behind, there will always be the thrust the "big shots" of the Jewish International Bank, divided, too, into colossal agreements that put in The business world is a movement. Italian Freemasonry will always be the mercenary, in other words the fiefdom of the High-International Bank, and when it is divided, its subsidies will be divided among the pitiful masonry groups-Italianism.

48. — The YMCA — On the other hand, the Anglo- masters Americans, well aware of the fragility of "their" Freemasonry Italian nonsense, they are not satisfied with just that to hold in hand Italy. Instinctively distrustful of others, they support their a work of political, economic and social expansion, on a appearance of religious and humanitarian organizations. Today-Today, for example, everyone knows that the famous YMCA and the YWCA (Young Men's Christian Association and (Christian Association of Young Women) not only is full of Masons, but is also connected to Freemasonry, of which She adopted, by inverting it, the symbolic triangle.

49. — Protestants and Freemasons. — Likewise, certain Churches American Protestants, beginning with the Methodists, are notoriously Masonic centers, and that's why that we are discussing it, given that these truthful notes

They absolutely exclude any religious question from this. either about the Jews or about the Christians. But he

It is impossible not to mention organizations linked to the Freemasonry, which, as we were saying, is like so many workshops of Israel, without, of course, all or part of the Freemasons or members of the other aforementioned organizations or similar people want to work or know that they are working to the hidden goals of this agreement.

90. — Protestants and Jews. — To those who are naive enough to believe that, when it comes to Protestants, he could not Regarding the question of seeing the Jewish influence, we would advise — for we will limit ourselves to an example between an infinite number — of se find out more about the International Federation of Investigators seriousness of the Bible (Internationale Vereinigung ernster Bibel-Forscher), an American-German company. This company fanatically Protestant and anti-Catholic (she spreads postcards depicting a medieval church struck by lightning, etc.) has just launched a special, Zionist issue, bearing at its head the symbol of Zionism, the pentagram surrounded by rays with, in the center, in Hebrew characters, the word "Israel," a number extolled by the reconstituted state in Palestine. The title is Die nahe Wiederherstellung des Volkes Israel (the (the near restoration of the people of Israel) and it is published at Barmen, Germany (1914). On the second page of the On the cover, we see a dizzying avalanche of graphs and symbols relating to the age of the Israelite world. Here we are, in In short, in the midst of Talmudic literature, from the Sefer-Ha-Zoar, etc., and that is what the Protestant Association of Serious Bible investigators. If it were an association As a Jew, what would she have done?

That is why anyone who wants to see Israel must seek it. everywhere and he will find it almost everywhere.

51. — The Tribuna. — A typical example of Jewish action Anglo-American information in Italy is provided to us by La Tribuna, which Malagodi, the Jew or Jew, is directed by the agent and defender of Joseph Tœplitz. In its May 27, 1920 issue, the correspondent-New York's ponder was talking about the candidacy for the succession of Wilson, and, recognizing that the democratic (Judeo-Wilsonian) had little hope of retaining the presidency. He was talking about the Republican candidates. He was skillfully demolishing them. the candidates (like Wood) who were enemies of the trusts, and exalted candidate Hoover "who lived (these are his exact words)" which he uses) outside the United States for almost the half of his life." The correspondent still shows... better the tip of the ear when he says: that Hoover will harm the suspicion that the businessman he is will perhaps represent to be in the Government of the Republic the knights of in-industrial... That's what you call betraying yourself.

Is it necessary, after that, to add that the skillful correspondent The editor of Malagodi and Toeplitz's journal is a Jew. Mr. Arbib-Costa?

52. — Judeo-Masonic propaganda. — Let us return to the Judeo-Masonic propaganda. Putting us on the same footing From our point of view, and with the aforementioned personal reservations, we believe about recalling here the information that our Rome correspondent: "Absolutely dignified people" of faith draw my attention to the active Masonic propaganda-the trick that is being used to get staff into the Lodges political, diplomatic, consular, etc. of the new States having achieved independence. The birth of these states was too quick so that the Judeo-Masonic pit can prepare in time this staff according to her views. That's why she works at "making up for lost time," as one diplomat put it, who cited various names." We are given information from Paris-Similar movements. Israel is wasting no time.

53. — High Bank. — The Rome newspaper, from Paris, of the 11th In January 1920, he published an article entitled: "Business and the Peace," in which, after recalling that the president

Orlando had conferred with Minister Tittoni at the Comman-Crespi and Volpi, men of the "Commercial", the mandate

very delicate financial questions for the Treaty of Saint-Germain continues:

"This mission was accomplished by Messrs. Crespi and Volpi for the account of the "Commercial". Signor Crespi, using from his diplomatic mission, came to Paris to establish agreements between the Banca Commerciale Italiana (owned by the Jew Toeplitz) and the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands (of the Jew Dreyfus) in order to to create a highly successful business league to pursue in Serbia, Romania, Poland and in various new States of the former Austro-Hungarian monarchy. The Bank of Paris and the Netherlands absorbed the former Bank of the Austro-Hungarian Empire; she also maintains discretion resources of the financial institutions of the dual monarchy-Shit. The Banca Commerciale Italiana takes part in these major operations of the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands.

94, — High Bank. — When during the war discussed, in Paris, the plan to take over the Bank of In Rome, Louis Dreyfus was behind this project. Moreover, the plan Jewish "basists" for the conquest, at the right time, of the The Bank of Rome has not vanished in the slightest. If Joseph Toeplitz was speaking...

55. — Bolshevik propaganda. — At number 34, we have spoke of an English Bolshevik agent, Miss Hilda Ainscough, introduced into the International Artistic Circle of Rome by the Bolshevik Jew Vito Pardo and C". The imprudences of the Miss had eventually managed to have her reported to the Italian police. who, accustomed to foreign Bolsheviks, paid by governors elements that are not always those of Lenin, feared to contact an emissary of some allied government, and has closed his eyes for the thousandth time. Thankfully, the emissary The Bolshevik had no "unnamed" protector whose name everyone pronounces, but that no one does not print. So it was enough that the Miss was known to investigating official of the British Embassy in Rome so that the citizen of the United Kingdom would be immediately grabbed by the arm, led to Naples and put on a boat for The foreigner. An exception that... proves the rule.

56. — Italian bookstore. — Our correspondent in Milan writes to us:

"@) The issue of the takeover of the Italian bookstore, which you have been dealing with deserves to be specified, and I then do it. For twenty years the Bemporad Jewish bookstore, of Florence, undertook a slow process of monopolizing the Best Italian books, the most talented writers, and, to acquire directly or indirectly (under the name (of some straw man) the largest possible number of bookstores in decline or bankruptcy.

"This house has fully succeeded in achieving its goal." Italy is now populated by bookstores that depend more or less directly from the Bemporad company, which, from an almost specialized publisher of schoolbooks, has become publisher of a little bit of everything: art, literature, philosophy, books techniques, etc. She thus succeeded in removing them from other houses editorial work by various renowned writers.

"The vast Bemporad net is now being developed to such an extent" to the point that it is not easy to know all the intricacies, but we know several, for example: is part of the Bemporadien trust, the publisher Casanova of Turin (a Jew himself also?), Modes of Rome (Jewish), where, in addition to the house of Via Minghetti, the Bemporad house has the old Lux bookstore in Via delle Couvertite, and the Nou- bookstore valley of via del Parlamento.

"The Bemporad house, after having triumphed over very Despite great difficulties, it managed to seize the exclusive monopoly of French, English and literary and periodical production German. In fact, its "Messageries" (a nice euphemism which (the most Jewish of trusts) are, in Italy, the only way to obtain publications from the following foreign publishers, cn largely Jews or representatives of Jewish households:

French publishers: Flammarion, Lysle, Calmann-Lévy, Plon-Nourrit, Larousse, Armand Colin, Nathan, Delagrave Hachette, Ollendorff, etc.; German publishers: Julius Gross, Tauchnitz, Baedeker, Teubner, Berlitz Ullstein, etc. ; English publishers: Nelson, Cassel, Gowans and Gray, Word Lock, Dent, etc.

"What is truly symptomatic is that not only-element when any establishment, but also a anyone who desires a publication of the aforementioned editions for teurs, they absolutely must contact the Bem- house

porad, without being able to deal directly with these publishers.

» b) Things were thus going perfectly for the Bemporad Jewish trust when, in Milan itself, competition arose influence of another powerful Jewish house, that of the Trier family.
All brothers, the Jews, but... business is business.
So, the Treves organized the countertrust, and by the act
Guasti, on November 25, 1919, formed itself in Milan
(registered office: Foro Bonaparte, 43; commercial headquarters: Turin)
Via venti Settembre 54, |' \ Anonima Libraria Italiana
(ALL), with an initial capital of 1,300,000 lire. To this Company where the Treves entered for seven-twentieths, federated the GB Paravia company (six twentieths), the Drucker sons, of Padua; the Zanichelli family, from Bologna; the Dante Alighieri family, from Buenos-Ayres, the Societa Editrice Italiana (SEI), the Unione

Tip. Editr. Torinesse (UTET), the successors of Le Monnier, the Italian Institute of Graphic Art, etc.

"Of course, in the ALI, the leaders are the Jews," starting with the director-engineer Eugenio Rignano and right down to the advisors: Senator Volterra, lawyer Ferruccio Foà, right up to the accounting trustees Donato Bachi, the knight Carlo Compagnano, Commander Guido Treves, and finally the Chief executive, Dr. David Todros.

» c) The struggle between the two Jewish trusts (linked behind behind the scenes at larger Jewish groups that have their center abroad) has become increasingly Judaically fierce.
The two rivals are vying for the most popular "numbers", with checks. Bemporad made some big offers.
to the novelist Panzini to remove him from Trier; they have spent half a million on the odious pornographer Guido (da) Verona, Jewish.

"In this way, the art and industry of Ja bookstore in the classic land of the Italians Manuzi and Bodoni are the prey of the Semites, who made it into a large grain for them, and all too often for the public, it's low corruption.
as the same Messaggero cited earlier soon had to denounce.
"by us."

57. — The Cinema. — With the bookstore trust, the trust cinematography is another source of income for the Semitic and corrupting to the public, but also another an opportunity for fraternal struggle between the twelve banking tribes... of Israel. In accordance with what we read above (number 33) we have recorded that the Italian press of the second half of March 1920 heralded the constitution
from a colossal Jewish trust, P « Universum Film Aktion Gesellschaft (UFA), controlled by the Jewish Banks: the Deutsche Bank and Dresdner Bank, and that this trust had put itself in agreement with the Unione Cinematografica Italiana (PU. FA), has,
In Europe, 4,000 agents oversee 5,000 theaters. The agreement was concluded in Rome by the German Jewish Baron Rosenberg and another Jew, Bratz, managing director and director UFA general All this in competition with the “Generale Cinema”, Jewish trust of Paris (see number 17).

58. — Zionism. — About the Universita Israelitica of Florence and her newspaper Israel, which drew very strong criticism platonic of the royal Prosecutor Mortara, we have under the eyes the issue of /srael, of April 29, 1920. The first page is an enthusiastic anthem because (said in large print)

The title) The Jewish state (of Palestine) is a fait accompli.
The penultimate and last pages contain a supplement entitled: "The Jewish Commune". To make this clear
What is this... Commune? The title is preceded by a hand who waves a torch. This supplement begins with a threat to "assimilationist" Jews (that is, those who prefer to be seen first and foremost as citizens of the country they (inhabit) who dare to deny... the Jewish Commune. Therefore, this
The newspaper is anti-assimilationist and separatist, which amounts to
To say that the Jews of Italy are Jews and not Italians. For our
In that case, we completely agree with them, but then when we to end the role of bat: either Jewish citizens, or Italian citizens.

59. — Trieste. — Here is an interesting document from the Government-French information that escaped the attention of the Italian press.
Official Journal of Paris (Senate, session of February 27, 1920,

No. 2986) gave this explanation from the Minister of the Interior
in response to a question from Senator Gourju:

“The French Government, “by decree of April 2, 1917”, had divided foreigners into four categories (residing in France): 1° the allies, 2° the neutrals, 3° the special protected persons,
4. The enemies. The Israelites of the Levant, that is to say, the subjects Ottomans of Jewish religion, were, like the Poles, the Czechs, Armenians, Syrians, Triestines (?!), put in the category of special protected persons, which gives them the right, despite their original nationality, not to be considered derelict, nor treated, on French territory, as nationals-Ottoman saints. The Triestines, special protégés of France, like so many Israelites from the Levant, this must have been a trick from the all-powerful ghetto of Triste, great Italian patriot... beyond the border (except for the due exceptions). But Casti-Glioni, with his airplanes that bombed the territory Venetian, is today the most Italian director as Toeplitz, of the Hungarian-Italian Jewish Bank, and there remains still the great representative of the ghetto.

60. — Bolshevism. — Our correspondent in Rome tells us communicated (August 1920) the following note on certain propa-Gandos and certain Bolshevik meetings in Rome:

"@) The Jewish woman Vera Rosa Eisenstadt, putative wife of the Jew Weidenmuller, president of the Relief Committee Russian refugees in Italy (sitting in the premises of the “Citalnia” or Russian reading room, via delle Colonnette), was presented to Wilson when he came to Rome and She delivered a speech on behalf of the Slavic ladies (!). She did appearing to be anti-Bolshevik, while she is actually an agent revolutionary, like all or almost all Russian Jews who play the role of anti-Bolsheviks.

» b) When the Russian general Denikin obtained and sent subsidies to the audit committee for competitions, the Jews nestled in Citalnia and the Committee had them distributed to their victims of the Revolution, that is to say the Jews and others — Bolshevik workers... of the Social Revolution in Italy. One
The Jew who presided over this operation was Wodowosoff, of whom we We'll talk soon.

» c) Among the various meetings of Bolshevik propaganda-In the Vico-Jewish community in Rome, two tea rooms should be noted: one, that of M" Wrangel, called Women's Exchange (Exchange of Women), previously Via dei Condotti, now Via Magnanapoli (in the former premises of the Hotel Laurati); the other is the tea and dining room, with an exhibition of Russian paintings futurists, Via Due Nacelli 49-50, in Capo-le-Case 22.

_» d) The famous Kotoff, former Roman correspondent of the Official Gazette of Petersburg, held in high regard as an unofficial journalist for the Tsarist government, is today recognized as the Russian Jew Samuele (Smul) Abraham Ascher, mechanic, convicted of theft at the exile to Siberia; there he met the political prisoner Kotoff. He was dead (perhaps in his friend's arms).
Ascher), he managed to substitute his papers for those of the dead. He was thus able to return to St. Petersburg; but, fearing He thought he was doing the right thing by emigrating, hoping his scheme wouldn't be discovered.
and he went to Italy. In Rome, the Jew, disguised as an Orthodox Christian, managed to gain the pity of the Russian consul Zabiello who made him to have said correspondence with a thousand lire per month. The Tsar
No sooner had he fallen than Ascher threw off the mask and revealed himself for what he truly was.
one of the thousand and one thousand Jewish agents of Bolshevism.

"€) Another highly active Bolshevik agent is the Jew"
Wodowosoff, whose sister is the companion of the famous Jew Russian Soviet leader Apfelbaum known as Zinovieff. Wodowosoff has recently negotiated with the Italian government for the permission given to the Italian socialist leaders Cabrini and Bombacci to go to Copenhagen to deal with Lit-Vinoff of business affairs... and others. Even in this
In this circumstance, the Jew concealed his Bolshevism in order to better to act. He is the unofficial representative, for the moment, of the Government of the Russian Soviets in Italy. The National Idea, from Rome, dated April 30, 1920, printed concerning this per-ringing:

“The Commissioner for Foreign Affairs of the Republic-The republic has appointed engineer Michel Wodowosoff as its delegate.

"in Italy for the exchange of prisoners. The same Signor" Wodowosoff was appointed representative for Italy of the "Trade delegation of Russian Cooperatives. This same..."
» character accompanied as interpreter Cabrini and Bom-"Bacci in Copenhagen. It is also said (according to an English newspaper)" that this same Signor Wodowosoff was in San Remo.
"We must say that Bolshevism chose a representative"
"Feeling worthy of him..."

» f) The very active Bolshevik-Jew Zakharin, expelled from Italy, currently (or at least very recently) in Thessaloniki, receives from the aforementioned Committee in Rome 400 French francs per month.

» g) Large Bolshevik center of Jewish-Russian agents in the island of Capri (Naples). There, resolutions are being plotted in Italy and elsewhere. Recent developments in Naples, with Red flags, etc., were the small maneuvers of the state-
"Major of Capri."

61. — Jews in the United States. — As announced the
According to the New York Herald at the end of January 1920,
New York, where the Astor Public Library was purchased and closed on May 1st by the Jews who made it the headquarters of their Jewish Immigration Society. They paid $325,000 for it. that is 1,625,000 francs. The number of Jews in the United States exceeds currently 3 million. The Jewish billionaire Jacob H. Schiff, Magnes' friend and the paymaster of the Russian revolution (see more far) stated very recently that no American law likely to restrict Jewish immigration, would not close the door to the Jews, because they will not have it closed to them.

Quite audacious, when you have millions to manufacture the general elections and buying the President and his Ministry.

62. — Bolshevism in the United States. — Almost all people arrested by police in the United States (a few thousand) under the accusation of fomenting revolution, of preaching anarchy, Jews are plotting the destruction of the government.
disguised with Russian, Polish, and German names. In this Among them, we note the Russian agitator Rosa Pastor Stokes, known as Rosa Luxemburg of the United States, a Russian Jew already sentenced to ten years imprisonment for espionage, placed in
She was released on $10,000 bail. She stated that, although that she is an American citizen, and therefore not subject to Plex-Driven by impulse, she will leave America, this land of tyranny, for to go to Lenin's free Russia, from where she will return to United States in five years, the date set to give America of Wilson and his rabbi Wyse the Bolshevik regime of the Present-day Russia.

63. — Judeo-American Plan. — The pole-
the US press crisis in the first few months of 1920 regarding plans for a Judeo-American monopoly in Europe and the world, and the revelations made about this not the American senator Borah, etc. The god Dollar has, as Ordinarily, this controversy would be stifled, but this silence does not which confirms the enormity of these cases.

64. — Lansing. — It is known that the Secretary of State, that is to say-to say the United States Secretary of State Lansing was abruptly eliminated by Wilson. And yet
Lansing had shown activity, skill, and even attack-
The Jewish Tribune of Paris, of May 14, 1920, gives us the key to the mystery, by quoting his Jewish sister, the Zukunft (Future), published in England, which wrote this:

"The Jews have no reason to pity Lansing and yet less to grieve his departure, because his attitude has "always been distinctly hostile to Jews."

It all makes sense now: Rabbi Stephen Wyse communicated to his Wilson the sentence of the | Synagogue Bank, and Lansing
has been liquidated. | | | i

65. — Lord Northcliffe. — The famous Lord Northcliffe (Jewish), owner of The Times, the Daily Mail, etc., who boasts to overthrow ministries whenever he pleases, this great and A proud master is a humble slave. Of whom? His sons having inadvertently let a few words of criticism slip by
With regard to the Jews, Lord Northcliffe immediately published the most
He offered his sincere apologies. He invited the director with great honors.
from Doar Hayon, a Jewish newspaper from Palestine, with him, and boasts to have a Jew among the editors-in-chief of its newspapers, a large number of Jews as correspondents, etc.; he promised to pay a tribute visit to Jewish Palestine.

66. – Bunau-Varilla. – Just the same, Bunau-Varilla, director of Le Matin, famous for his saying: "My armchair of "The director is worth three ministerial seats," and who is the Northcliffe, French, had to dismiss the Jewish editor Gugenheim. But Israel stared fixedly at the almighty. Bunau-Varilla, and he, trembling all over, hastened to resume the Gugenheim.

This is the kind of control the "Great Press" has in its hands: avenkillers, servants of the Jewish International Bank. This is the The "mainstream press" that shapes public opinion, the field heavily smoked to sow the seeds of Israel's affairs.

67. – Russia. – It is not possible to give here a A complete picture of Russian chaos from our point of view; the preparationthe ration, the genesis, the evolution of this monstrous event have been too complex. Nevertheless, we will not fail to to provide timely clarifications. Today, It suffices to note that this is a secret known to everyone. that the Russian revolution is a Jewish affair, the result of a formal pact between financial Israel and Pisrae] demagogue. The first (Schiff, Jewish funds of Paris and Frankfurt) provided Secondly, the means to overthrow the empire of the tsars. Immense territory of huge business, but with too many restrictions bureaucratic in general, and anti-Semitic in particular, for could be widely exploited by the Jewish High Bank. From then on, Russian Israel had to burn the forests and clear the Thus, the ground was laid for the Israelites of gold. They used the Jews who are demagogues by conviction and fanaticism, like also skeptics and cynics who work at any What a betrayal, for the usual thirty pieces of silver.

68. – Kerensky. – Rabbi Magnes, Helphand-Parvus, Trotsky, are among the characteristic figures of this a menagerie of ferocious beasts; there are also puppets such as than the famous Kerensky. He is the son of the Jew Aronne Kerbis and the Jewish woman Adler (Adler belongs to the Jews, that one who became a minister of the Austrian Republic because that he assassinated the minister, Stuergkh). After death d'Aronne's widow got involved with a certain Kerensky, an inspector of schools in Russian Turkestan. He married her and adopted the little Kerbis, who later became the instrument of Israel, who He created him as a straw dictator only to soon throw him down the computer drain. naire where the inept servants of the ghetto end up.

69. – Russian Revolution. – A first-rate document on the game of Israel giving orders and Israel acting as assassins was provided by the American secret police (Secret Service), This is the following one, which was not published until this year. (Documentation, Paris, March 6, 1920) and concerning which the Jewish hands organized the usual obstruction, so that the the document itself is still ignored by the vast majority of public opinion. We present it here in its entirety and faithfully. translation :

“I. – In February 1916, it was learned for the first time that a revolution had been fomented in Russia; it was discovered that the people and houses mentioned here were committed to this work of destruction: 1° Jacob Schiff (personally), Jewish; 2° the Kuhn Bank, Leb and Co., Jewish, with Jacob Schiff, Jewish; Serome I. Hanauer, Jewish; 3rd Guggenheim, Jewish; 4° Max Breitung, Jewish. Therefore, there is no There is no doubt that the Russian revolution, which broke out a year later the date of such information, was launched and fomented by a clearly Jewish influence. In fact, in April 1918, Jacob Schiff had to publicly declare that it was thanks to his financial support that the revolution had succeeded in.

"II. – In the spring of 1917, Jacob Schiff began to sponsoring the Jew Trotsky to carry out the revolution in Russia social; the New York newspaper Forward, newspaper Jewish-Bolshevik quotation, for its part, paid a contribution for this purpose.

"At the same time, in Stockholm, the Jew Max Warburg commandated the Jewish house Trotzky and Co.*; this society was also sponsored by the Westphalian-Rhenish Syndicate, a Jewish company, as well as by another Jew, Olaf Aschberg, of the “Nya Banken”, of Stockholm, and by the Jew Givotovsky, whose daughter married Trotsky. Thus were established the relations between multimillionaire Jews and proletarian Jews.

"HI. — In October 1917, the social revolution took place in Russia, and, by virtue of this revolution, certain organizations Soviets assumed leadership of the Russian people. In these Soviets The following individuals, all Jewish, appeared in the foreground. with the exception of Lenin (our note: Lenin is however son of a lady of Jewish descent). Here are their nom de guerre, and, (In parentheses, their surnames):

» Lenin (Ulianoff), — Trotzky (Bronstein), — Abramowitsch (Rein), — Stekloff (Nakhames), — Martoff (Zederbaum), — Uritzky (Padomilsky), — Larin (Lurge), — Bohrin (Nathansohn), — Ganetzky (Fuertenberg), — Martinoff (Zibar), — Kameneff (Rosenfeld), — Bogdanoff (Zilberstein), — Garin (Garfeld), — Suchanoff (Gimel), — Kamneff (Goldmann), — Sagersky (Krochmann), — Riazanoff (Goldenbach), — seniors (Joffe), — Solntzeff (Bleichmann), — Piatnitzky (Ziwin) (1), — Axelrod (Orthodox), — Glasunoff (Schultze), — Parvus (Goldfandt) (our note: this name is also Helphand), — Zwiesdin (Weinstein), — Zinovieff (Apfelbaum), — Lapinsky (Loewensohn), — Dan Gurewitsch.

"IV. — At the same time, the Jew Paul Warburg, who had initially been in contact with the "Federal Reserve Board", He was noted for his active relationships with certain prominent figures. Bolsheviks of the United States. This circumstance combined with other information contributed to his defeat in the re-election of aforementioned Committee.

"V. — Among Jacob Schiff's close friends is the Rabbi Judah Magnes, his very close friend and devoted agent. Rabbi Magnes is an energetic propagandist of Judaism. international; the Jew Jacob Billikoff went so far as to declare a The day Magnes became a prophet. At the beginning of 1917,

(1) La Documentation catholique (March 6, 1920, p. 327) gives for several names, a different spelling, and in addition, the three names following:

Maklakowsky (Rosemblum).
Meschkovsky (Golberg): Chernomorsky (Chernomordkin).

the aforementioned Jewish prophet launched the first truly Bolshevik in this country under the name of "People's Council". The danger of this association only became apparent later. On the 24th In October 1918, Judas Magnes declared that he was a Bolshevik. in complete agreement with the doctrine and ideal of the Bolsheviks.

"This statement was made by Magnes at a meeting" of the Jewish Committee of America, in New York. Jacob Schiff condemned the ideas of Judas Magnes, and the latter, in order to deceive public opinion, submitted his resignation as a member of said American Jewish Committee. But, moreover, Schiff and Magnes remained in perfect harmony as members of the Council Administration of the Jewish Kehillah.

"VI. — Judas Magnes, commissioned by Jacob Schiff, is on the other hand, in close connection with the Zionist organization Universal Poale Zion, of which he is in fact the director. His The ultimate goal is to establish the party's international supremacy. Jewish laborer. Here again the link between the Jews becomes clearer. multimillionaires and proletarian Jews.

» VII. — The social revolution had scarcely broken out in Germany Magne that the Jewish Rosa Luxemburg automatically took- political leadership; one of the main leaders of The international Bolshevik movement was led by the Jew Haase. To this at that time the social revolution in Germany developed according to the same Jewish directives as the social revolution in Russia.

"VIII. — If we observe the fact that the Jewish house Kuhn, Leeb and Co." is in contact with the Westphalian Syndicate-Rhenish (Jewish house in Germany), with the Lazarus brothers (Jewish house of Paris) and with the Gunzburg bank (house Jewish from Petrograd, Tokyo and Paris), if we notice, in Furthermore, the aforementioned Jewish affairs are closely related with the Jewish firm Speyer and Co., of London, New York and Frankfurt am Main, as well as with the "Nya Banken" affair Bolshevik-Jewish from Stockholm, it will become clear that the Bolshevik movement, as such, is, in a certain measure, the expression of a great general Jewish movement, and that some Jewish banks are interested in the organization "sation of this movement."

70. — United States and Jews. — The report of the “Secret”

Washington Service (due to unsold items) Israel in the great Jewish market sponsored by the gang Wilson) is an absolutely complete confirmation of the fact it is now clear that with the party's rise to power Wilsonian, the United States became the great center of the international Jewish power. Thanks to the Wyses, the Leebs, the Schiff, etc., reinforced by vanguard leaders such as Judas Magnes, all of the world's life is invaded and threatened by the Jewish, banking, and demagogic peril, a unique peril under the guise of... rent struggle between Jewish demagoguery against the entire Bank while this demagoguery is paid for by the Jewish Bank for to overwhelm and annihilate all other forces.

And even more suggestive is the fact of the organization Judeo-American of the Russian Jewish revolution. On the eve of the war, a Russian-American diplomatic incident throws a light on what was being prepared. A large number of Jews driven out of Russia and fleeing to escape trials, went to the United States where the Jewish government-Wilsonian promptly granted them the status of citizens Americans. Armed with this document, the Jews returned to Russia. where they declared that they intended to be "respected" (meaning: having become intangible) due to their quality of American citizens. The Petrograd government expelled These new "American citizens" who were... Jews Russians. Fury of the Judeo-Wilsonian government which threatened Russia of one of those reprisals which, later, during and After the war, they made Wilson's government famous. He threatened Russia with not renewing the trade treaty which was about to expire. Since that day, Sovereign Israel in Washington-New York swore to end it at as soon as possible with anti-Semitic Russia.

71. — Jews and Bolshevism. — Mr. Charles Petit, back again in Russia, gave details to Le Petit Parisien (late May 1920) Interesting. Speaking of the "propaganda trains" launched at across Russia to stupefy the masses, he writes:

"Several propaGandists of Eastern origin, Jews, Armenians, Georgians... Petrograd is dying, agonizing: what mysterious Asian revenge? tick." (Our note: poor Charles Petit or his diary) dare not say: Jewish). — And, recalling that in the time of the Tsar the Jews were not allowed to move freely in certain parts of Russia that with a special permit, he adds: "Today, they are the Jews who grant permits to those they deign to to grant this extraordinary favor.

And then people will come to deny or downplay the fact that, in the In the Russian revolution and oppression, the dominant element was Jewish.

72. — Russia and the Jews. — Here is yet another proof between a large number. The Prizyi (The Call), a Russian newspaper which printed in Berlin, published the following in its issue of 11/24 February 1920:

“Our special correspondent in Switzerland reports to us The arrival in Lausanne of a group of Jews from Paris. entered into contact with Russian émigrés and have comstarted buying land and forests in Russia, this Russia Soviet-era, which we Russians must not enter. Hi, it's certain that these businessmen have excellent relationships there. possess reliable information, because if they didn't not certain of the success of their venture, they would not conclude Not from such a distance, such big business. For a long time we have noted the existence of a meticulously planned scheme, down to the smallest detail. details, and whose purpose was the organization of future destinies of our homeland. Today, a great number of facts make to conclude that this plan is followed with formulaic accuracy Mathematics. The land is taken from the owners under the using the pretext that the peasants don't own enough..., but we we do not see that the peasants have benefited in any way of this devastation: the extent of uncultivated and unplanted fields The increase is alarming. We will not seeWe don't want new big landowners to appear. of the race of Israel, as has long since happened in Galicia? The Russian Revolution resulted in putting in the hands of the Jews all Russian gold and capital; Will the riches of the earth not suffer the same fate?

73. — The Aisne offensive. — After that, we will appreciate better understand the importance of an article published in the Revue des Deux Mondes (Paris, April 15, 1920), under the title: "The Offensive of "The Aisne." The author is Mr. René Pinon, a well-known specialist. on foreign policy, unofficially serving the government nement, and naturally from certain financial circles French, and therefore very well documented. This service unofficial channels did not allow him to denounce it in the aforementioned article.

the Jewish center, but it gives enough suggestive details for that an intelligent reader can understand the rest.

So, the Russo-Mongolian "Asian offensive," panmic, etc., against Western Europe, is a monstrous coalition which the Bolshevik center is furiously working towards of Russia, which is to say the Jewish center of that country. The coalition Jewish Bolshevism with pan-Islamism, whether Ottoman (on knows that, among the various Young Turk leaders, the dominant Islamites, crypto-Jews or deunmeh, that is to say the families Jewish women, especially from Thessaloniki, outwardly converted to Islamism), or Turanian (Mongol or Indian); this coalition, I say, must bring back the days of the invasion of Tartars of Tamerlane and Genghis Khan, to overthrow Europe western, with the complicity of the Bolsheviks (read Jews and (Jews) of our West.

René Pinon follows several threads of this gigantic net to which is due, for example, to the birth of the Caucahis own of Azerbaijan, a Muslim region, from which René Pinon fails to mention that it is full of Jews, those famous ones Mountain Jews of the Caucasus, who, according to a Talmudic tradition dique would be the descendants of a part of the Israelite people transported to Mesopotamia during the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, part which, for special reasons, would have condensed into an angle of the Causic massif. This artificial republic has was created to form a Judeo-Islamic state embedded between Judeo-Russian Bolshevism and Judeo-Turkish Ottomanism, in order to to serve, at the opportune moment, to crush or enslave the republics Christian and anti-Semitic republics of Armenia and the Georgia. Already, as Mr. Pinon points out, it has been concluded an offensive and defensive alliance between Turkey and Azerbaijan, with its military commitments on the part of this latter state, which amounts to making it a true vassal of the Ottoman Empire.

Similarly, according to later information (May 1920), This is also the situation in Georgia, a republic which, by fearing a threatening crushing defeat, prescribed commitments analogs. EU |

74. — Jews and the Asiatic Peril. — And now, let us return to the obvious Jewish clues that escape the diplomatic penMr. Pinon's method.

"The 'Turkish Home' Society, founded in 1910, by the "Union and Progress Committee" (our note: the large center) (deumneh of Thessaloniki) to re-establish relations with the Turks of Russia and Central Asia, organize a meeting, January 29, at the University of Constantinople. hears Ms. Halide Edib, an Ottoman woman of Jewish origin, preach the agreement of all Turks and to claim the preponderance of the Sultan of Constantinople in the Caucasus and Turkestan (p. 810).

"In these suggestive pages that we recall, one does not could not fail to find the name of the great Jewish agent of international Bolshevism, the famous Parvus (Helphand that we saw earlier in the list denounced by the (American Secret Service).

"Many of the threads of this vast plot will lead towere being woven in the hands of the famous international agent Helphand, also known as Parvus... Anyone familiar with the intrigues of this A Bessarabian Jew throughout the war, possesses the Key to significant events. Revolutionary agent. service of: the German General Staff (note from us: to be Exactly, it should be: in the service of revolutionary Jewry (with the German general staff), he is involved in all the plots that lead to the disintegration of the army and the Russian Empire, due to Bolshevism. Its principal officeThe main city is Copenhagen... It also touches on the affairs of Turkey; he is working towards the reunification of the Caucasus with the Empire Ottoman; he makes an instrument of war of this pantouranism (panmongolism) which was invented by his coreliLegionnaire of Salonica, Cohen known as Tekin-Alp" (pp. 812-813).

As we said, any intelligent reader will be able to perceivecevoir, thanks to the skylights of Mr. René Pinon, the characteristic signs of the Jewish heritage in this Tower of Babel Pan-Ottoman, Pan-Turanian, etc. |

75. — In Germany. — From our correspondent in Munich (Bavaria), June 25, 1920: Fe

“In Düsseldorf (Rhineland), the Jews organized a agency to recruit Jewish workers from Russia and Poland and to occupy them in the Rhenish industry, a major Bolshevik center. Fortunately for us, many then emigrate in America and the Netherlands. For the German elections of

On the 6th, Lenin and Trotsky sent 50,000 to Germany. lions of paper rubles.

16. — Zionism. — The Basler Nachrichten (News of Basel), dated June 7, 1920, announce that the "Correspondence Bureau-Jewish Correspondence” (Judische Korrespondenz Buro) declares that it will take 25 million pounds sterling (1.375 billion) millions of lire (not taking the exchange rate into account) for com- to begin the great works of Jewish possession of Palestine. A special ad hoc committee was established by known Zionists Naiditsch and Slatopolsky. To obtain this sum, we will launch An appeal to all Jews. A tax will be imposed on 10% (the biblical tithe of the Lord) on all property owners Jews to raise the necessary sum specifically to do to immigrate huge masses of Jews to Palestine and the powers of houses, land, workshops, shops. In short, the purchase of Palestine is a land of opportunity.

77. — The Jewish municipality of Vienna. — The Reichspost, The Vienna decree of June 5, 1920, denounces the sectarian spirit of the Jews. now masters of the Vienna City Council. These sent district chiefs a circular to prohibit the Christian and very popular festival of Corpus Christi (Feast-God). And, being the good Jews they are, they gave as pre- The text of this sectarian measure... the economy.

78. — Bolshevism. — From our very good correspondent Informed from Naples, dated June 26, 1920:

"A few months ago, the Jewish leader arrived here from Russia." Bolshevik Vigdertschik (who, according to the Jewish system, modified (his name in Vigderschuk to give him a Russian ending), member of the first revolutionary ministry of Petrograd. He came to organize the Bolshevik propaganda network. In Italy, equipped, as was customary, with a large sum of money. He has organized among other centers, that of the island of Capri (Naples), where the wife of the owner of the Bellevue hotel is Russian (and natural- (really Jewish...). — The Capri center is acting, it seems, as the main center, not only for Italy, but also for certain contacts with foreign countries.

"I learned here that another center closely linked with Capri is that of Bologna, which extends into Romagna and where it has contact was made with Trieste, from where the inter- correspondence originates national of Bolshevism.

"Of course, he makes a huge and continuous distribution of a distribution of loose sheets, brochures, etc., supplied by a local printing press where literature is printed in various languages erasure of the genre.

"In the port of Naples (and, as far as I know, in the other ports where Russians continually disembark fugitives), the Bolshevik organization has a magnificent service surveillance from which no Russian can escape. If this Russian is Bolshevik or at least shows himself to be assimilable, then He is given every facility... especially illegal ones; if he is an anti-Bolshevik, if at least he doesn't show it favorable to the sect, so they plotted all sorts of things behind his back various schemes to obstruct his visa passport, for its placement, etc. |

"It would be interesting to see what contacts exist between these agents of the revolution and the diverse personnel who can do to create or eliminate difficulties for a fugitive who lands in a country unknown to him and in which he has no no special protection.

"I'm told that Vigdortschuk is currently at Constantinople, from where he maneuvers the principal threads of his mission. Meanwhile, his staff (which he left in Italy) works with equal activity. In the recent unrest workers of Naples, as well as in the troubles of these In recent days in Lombardy, this general staff has not been foreigner.

This is what our correspondent tells us. Compare what he says about the Bolshevik service in our ports with this as written by Popolo d'Italia on June 22, 1920: "Gold and emissaries foreigners in the ports of Apulia” (1).

80. — Jews and Austria: Prussia. — The agony of Austria, including its current economic agony, is a A good case to prove Jewish rapacity. While the Authentic Austrians, amidst the most appalling misery and in the face of complete disorganization, they no longer have the strength To defend themselves, the Jews of Austria seized the last resources. Needless to say, among a hundred different things,

(1) Issue number 79 refers to some anti-Semitic leaflets in London, in June 1920.

paper is in their hands a monopoly thanks to which no Not only do they earn money, but they are also masters. from the circulation of honest, poor newspapers. The Volkssturm (The People's Assault) of Vienna, of June 13, 1920, appeared bearing This indication is at the forefront to explain its increase. Price: "Because of Jewish foreigners: 80 centimes (Heller)."

81. — Austria and Rothschild. — Still on the subject of "Austria on its deathbed, devoured by the Jews," this is what the The Judeo-Bolshevik newspaper Avanti!, June 18, 1920. Note the writer's graceful euphemism, which carefully avoids to say that Rothschild is one of the "Judges of Israel". Here is So what this revolutionary newspaper writes under the title: "A Rothschild worsens the Viennese state's record:

“One of the Rothschilds left England and came to honor…” his presence the republic of Austro-German misery; he lodged in his castle in Langau, where he hopes to be able to live cheaper than in the land of the pound sterling. It's a desirable foreigner who enjoys the favor of the government. Among other things, he had the telegraph office opened from his castle, while in Vienna itself a large number of Telegraph offices are closed for economic reasons. Isn't it pleasing to see this republican state bow down? in front of a gold magnate, who leaves dozens of castles, just in little Austria, while so much Austrians sleep exposed to the elements, and that makes to preserve the timber from its vast forests, while the workers They have no wood to heat their soup and they shiver How cold is it in winter?

"The social-democratic-Christian (sic) government grants a Rothschild's telegraph office while he refuses to Doctors in Innsbruck increase treatment and deprive Thus, the entire city has medical care, because the doctors went on strike and abandoned the hospitals, the sanatoriums toriums and all hygienic and sanitary establishments."

82. — Jews in Romagna. — From private information, June 1920, we learn that on the seaside beaches of the In Romagna, one finds a large number of Hungarian Jews for most of them belong to Bela Kuhn's gangs, who make Bolshevik propaganda, based on the Republic of Saint-Martin, which would thus be for the upper Adriatic what the island of Capri is to the southern Tyrrhenian Sea.

83. — Bolshevik Russia. — Detached notes that we We have direct sources on Bolshevik Russia:

"@) The two Russian Jewish brothers, Schivatovsky, are of the five Jewish leaders to whom it is especially responsible the responsibility for the assassination of the imperial family and the the worst Bolshevik atrocities. These and their worthy leaders of the ghettos have, among other "weapons," various harems of adventure-Jewish women who are their favorites for orgies, but who are often sent on "missions" to the characters politicians to prostitute themselves, their vile fantasies, their stealing their papers, etc. Hence the very large number of Jewish mistresses of politicians, administrators, journalists, etc., not only in Russia currently, but everywhere and for a long time.

(b) One of the most active Jewish agents in Russia is, among others, Mischa (Michel) Rosenberg.

» cC) The counter-revolutionary general Broussiloff had his anti-Bolshevik headquarters in the town of Berdyczow (Podolia), which, by itself, is almost a ghetto. The general he had thus walked right into the lion's den, and, among the pimps and the prostitutes of the ghetto, the Bolshevik affairs were going magnificently. In general, and with the exception of conventionalnables, within the overall Russian anti-Bolshevik movement, the old Russian tradition according to which a beautiful woman and A large sum of money gets everything, it was too well preserved. so that Lenin and Trotsky wouldn't use it as a weapon. against the more or less fantastical attempts at reaction Koltschak, Denikin, Judenitsch, etc.

d) From the Baltic to the Black Sea, through Poland up to Bessarabia and Crimea, there are at least seven millions of Jews; this is the major infection zone.

"€) The British government refused Sazonoff a ready for the Russian anti-Bolshevik government, because Sazonoff did not want to promise to give the Jews of his territory, in the event of political restoration, the fullness of citizens' rights and racial privileges. It should be noted here that the British government (Rothschild, Hirsch, Isaacs, Montagu, etc.), like the American government (Leb, Schiff, Wyse, Morgenthau, etc.) have formal commitments with the Jewish occult government to achieve plenitude citizenship rights and racial privileges for Jews various states. Similar pressures (with the acts of revenge that (related to it) exercised by England and America on Poland and Romania, since the opening of the Confederation The (Jewish) peace initiative was also denounced by the press. Thus, in their time, the Panamanians of the French Republic French, bought by the Rothschilds, the Hirschs, etc., through the intermediator of the Jews Crémieux, Cornelius Herz, Reinach, etc., granted all the rights of French citizens to the Jews of Algeria, by refusing them to the natives."

85. — Jewish Bank. — A brilliant banking coup for the Jews Anglo-Saxons in Ukraine: They founded the Ukraino- Bank American and Anglo-Ukrainian (we are now accustomed to knowing what these double national names mean of the International Bank). Fifty million in capital. The headquarters, when possible, will be in Kieff, and for the moment... the foreigner.

86. — Jews and the carpentry industry. — The Jewish Tribune (English edition of the Tribune Juive de Paris, 1) June 1920), contains a feature article on the Jewish share in the industrial renaissance of Russia, the industry of frameworks. This article, translated into Christian language, means the Jewish takeover of this industry which, as it is written, is one of the greatest industrial assets of this misfortunetwo countries.

An interesting passage in this article appeals to the testimonythe birth of a specialist: V. Faass, sent on a mission to Germany Magne, specifically for the Russo-German trade of frameworks. From his report to the Forestry Administration, he It follows that experience has proven the great practical difficulty to put the German buyer and the merchant in contact big Russian, without going through the Jewish intermediary who knows well selling the timber with limited resources, because he knows the local life, use of waterways, etc. "So," concludes "The eminently Jewish article, the Russian forests are ours."

The reality is that, among the peoples of Europe, the people The Russians proved incapable of serious, methodical work. experienced, and, faced with the Jewish octopus that exploits him, He only knew how to engage in sterile reprisals (moreover, extremely exaggerated by the bought press) instead of imitating them tenacity and polite manners in traffic. But it's not That's one reason why the Russian should continue indefinitely to be the Jew's commercial pariah. On the other hand, the Jews, famous for their lack of psychological finesse (flair), (which makes them It causes them to make so many blunders and pushes them towards these provocations. dangerous factors that add up to one another in the burden of Israel) do not understand that after the Jewish experience, it isthat is to say, the Soviet and Bolshevik experience, which the Russians must finally start to see clearly and shoot... — oh! Don't be afraid... — to draw conclusions.

But the Jews don't understand this; the number of the The Jewish Tribune just cited is almost entirely dedicated to the "commercial regeneration of... Russia".

87. — Jewish University of Riga. — The same newspaper announces the inauguration of the "Jewish National University" in Riga which,

According to the topography of the commune, it is a city in Livonia.
(Baltic), but which is a Jewish city in that of the Bank international.

88. — Jews in Ukraine. — Another gem in the same vein Issue number: The Ukrainian mission in Riga protests against the slanders accusing Petliura's Ukrainian government to let the pogroms happen, etc. And the mission employs this
The argument that seemed decisive to him was the government of Petliura is largely in the hands of the Jews.

89. — Slanders against Poland. — The death of Poland resurrected, sworn dead by Israel, is announced in many ways forms, among others through the traditional network of slander launched in the complicit press through corruption and prejudice.
Last March, a dreadful little Jewish newspaper from Vienna, the Swit published the fantastic horrors committed by the Polish reaction against the innocent Bolshevik sheep Jewish women in Poland. Immediately, the Avanti, the Judas traitor to his country and to the Italian proletariat, thanks to the thirty pieces of silver that he "regularly sends Trotzky and Co.," he hastened to reproduce by exaggerating the aforementioned horrors in its issue of the 2 April. The Polish news agency was quick to deny it.
these calumnies, by revealing that they came from Swit (Dawn). It is not superfluous to unmask here one of the a hundred things that the Jewish press uses. It publishes a brazen lie by some small, insignificant Jewish newspaper which enjoys no consideration where it is printed, that is to say where he is known. But the mainstream, sectarian foreign press immediately reproduced this news, prefacing it with a solemn: "We read in the... Swit of Vienna that...";

and the foreign public who do not know what the various
The Jewish Swits remains impressed and... — Slander, slander,
Something will remain of it.

90. — Latzko. — Something similar is happening for Hungary. In the first days of April 1920, the Avanii, and Other newspapers of the same ilk reported that the great Hungarian socialist Latzko, the poor innocent man, was going to be condemned to death by Horthy's brutal government.
Jews... pardon! The Hungarian socialist comrades, were appeal to the Italian brothers to compel the government-to force Horty to release the great man. But it soon became clear that Latzko was not neither convicted nor even in prison, but that he was staying in a sanatorium for his neurasthenia due to alcohol abuse and morphine...

91. — Sokoloff. — According to the small Jewish newspaper Dwa Grosso
(two cents), there are currently in Poland and Lithuania
6,800,000 Israelites. — Reappearance in Warsaw, where censorship Imperial Russia had suppressed it, from the Jewish newspaper Hazefirah.
written in Yiddish (spoken Hebrew dialect) by the agitator well known as Nahum Sokoloff.

92. — Poland. — From our correspondent in Warsaw (letter whose overabundance of material has obliged us, as for many other pieces of information, to delay the publication cation):

“On December 18th, he performed in our Diet
a fact that the mainstream international press, enslaved and complicit of Israel, which the whole world ignored. The Diet approved the law by which all business houses were to be closed on Sundays, a holiday for most of the purchasing people. On this occasion, resistance from the deputies Jews in the Diet, but resistance was useless. Then the Jewish deputy Grunbaum, losing his temper, began to scream: "Well! we
We will close the shops on Sunday, but Poland will not have neither Wilna, nor Minsk, nor Eastern Gallicia.” (These are his (express words). — Can one admit more clearly that the

Is the Versailles Conference... Jewish?

93. — Poland: Press. — News from Warsaw (May 1920) that the Jewish Club of the Diet (Polish Parliament) demanded from the Minister of Justice that he prevented the newspaper Rozwoj from publish blacklists of owners who sell houses for the Jews. The minister responded by pointing out the absurd-_dity of this claim. But, for its part, the Jewish press

(like the Haint), denounced the printing press that prints anti-Semitic newspapers such as the Skulsky and Pade- printing press rewski who took over the printing of the Prawda Robotnicza. And The provocations of the Jewish press are such that the government-ment had to suspend the Jewish newspapers Tog and Judische Zeitung, from Wilna.

94. – Poland: German propaganda. – Refuting the fake news about the military situation on the Polish front The Polish Telegraph Agency denounced the organizers. of this smear campaign in the foreign press and especially in the German press. – “This information,” he said the Agency, arrive in Upper Silesia thanks to propaganda-' Bolshevik dists, mostly Jewish, who, as has been the case proven, they export gold, silver, and German securities from Poland orders and foodstuffs for Germany."

95. – Poland: Anti-Semitic struggle. – The national struggle Polish to liberate Poland from the political and economic yoke of Israel (in Warsaw alone, the number of Jews exceeds half a million) is getting better and better organized, and can be useful as an example to other countries. The National Union Rozwoj (the Development) which has been fighting against land grabbing for many years Jewish paramilitary group, actively promoted through conferences brochures and newspapers even in the smallest villages sidelined to enlighten and organize with a view to independence economic. Rozwoj founded a bank with a capital of 10,000,000 marks, entirely in the hands of the partners. Naturally, the Jewish press cried foul, denouncing the unprecedented scandal that this gives a people who do not want to be enslaved either politically or economically mimicry. Read, for example, the entertaining indignation of the Jewish Gazette of Voss, May 28, 1920.

96. – Jews and alcoholism. – For the Jewish Archives lites. – Before the war, the press in various countries had denounced the work of stupefaction that the trust of Jewish cabaret owners, in general Russian Jews and Austro-Hungarian Jews, accomplished in Galicia (Austrian Poland), by propagating and exploiting alcoholism. Polish and Ruthenian peasants were particularly prone to... the victims condemned to end up in poverty and the dishonor. Edouard Drumont, in his Testament of a Antisemitic, he recounts this characteristic anecdote (p. 150):

"It was a high-ranking Polish nobleman who told me what next: An eight-year-old boy walks along the road. The innkeeper The Jew calls to him from the threshold of his tavern: "Hey! Little one! Stop!" "Just a moment, I'll offer you a glass of brandy," and he pours the kid a huge swig of adulterated brandy. The lord approached the innkeeper: "Why corrupt "This child? You have no interest in him, since he doesn't pay you." "Not." – "No doubt," said the other, with a sinister smile. "People of his own race, he doesn't pay me..., but, you see, "They need to be accustomed to it from a very young age." That sounds better. to understand why a resurgent Poland wants to do so today put an end to these Jewish businesses.

Jews in Galicia and Bukovina. – In 1880, there were 686,596 Jews in Galicia and 67,418 in Bukovina; in 1910, these The figures had risen to 871,895 and 102,919 respectively. As always, the Jewish High Bank has continued to protect this exploitative "colony." For example, Baron Hirsch, after enriching himself and ruining the Ottoman railways (see above) gave 17 million florins (then approximately 34 million francs) to the Viennese government so that it favored the Jews of Galicia. Naturally the government His Apostolic Majesty accepted the money and observed the pact. The following information will suffice: In 1867, there were Galicia: 38 Jewish landowners; in 1880, for 3,700 Christian owners there were 680 Jews; since then the the proportion has steadily increased in favor of Israel.

97. – Zionism. – The Messaggero (a newspaper that cannot be suspected of anti-Semitism) published, in its issue of the 16th June 1920, an important report on the Pan- Congress Syrian from Damascus against the Jewish hegemony of Palestine. Let's look at the main passages:

“In recent weeks, a meeting was held in Damascus…” congress in which representatives from all the parts of Syria, the delegates of the Defense Committee national, the delegates of the Arab Independence Party, those of the Syrian Union, those of the Syrian pact, those of the pact Mesopotamian, the tribal chiefs of Hauran, Circassia, Syrian coastal regions, the Ulema of Damascus, the students, intellectual unions, etc.

"These general assemblies decided on the fight to the bitter end against Zionism, through a declaration in which it is established:

"1° That the Syrian nation reaffirms that the Palestine is an integral and indivisible part of Syria and that she intends to defend the unity of the Syrian homeland;

"2° That the inhabitants of Northern Syria and the coast consider Zionism a serious threat to their political existence. In such a state of affairs, they reject Zionism and condemn it, just as they rejected it and convicted before the American investigative commission;

"3° That the inhabitants of Northern Syria and the coast join forces with the Palestinian Congress to reject any government indigenous government that might be formed before the wishes presented to the American commission are welcomed. The wishes in question are: the unity of all of Syria and inter-. diction of Zionist immigration to the Holy Land.

Finally, the Congress decides to organize by all means which will be within his power the fight against Jewish immigration. The general impression is that Faisal (Arab emir of the Hejaz) – somewhat compromised for Zionism – now seeking any way to get out of this predicament in the face of the levy of shields which is taking place throughout Syria.

Another observation: In a moment where the difference was Religious distrust between Christians and Muslims has been fortunately eliminated by the direct initiative of the elements natives themselves, in the heart of the Orient, transplanting the Zionism in Syria means sowing a whole harvest of quereal news.

"Beyond the limits of purely economic action in Palestine, Jewish leadership circles proclaim today:

a) The absolute right of the Zionists to hegemony in their land against the native Arabs, described as an inferior race and against Catholic Christians, whom they do not recognize not ideal rights. (See Braunstein's interview with the Cardinal Dubois).

» b) Their indissoluble union in this policy with England. (See the statements of the Zionist Committee of the Cairo) ».

This is what the Messaggero says. This case will be noted. TVpic of the Jewish lie. Sir H. Samuel (Jew), British agentnic, envoy from Cairo to Palestine for Jewish interests-English in the Holy Land, had declared, upon returning to Cairo, that he it was necessary to view them as malignant inventions of the antimites... the two points a and b defined by the Messaggero that This newspaper considers the following as authentic points of the program of Zionism. And it is deplorable that Catholic institutions from England, such as the Catholic News, London Service {7 April 1920), lent themselves to defending and accrediting the mendreams of the Jewish agent Samuel, because of these lies were convenient for English politics, in order to lull the opposition of consciences which unites with that of interests legitimate reasons against the Jewish invasion of the Holy Land.

98. – Palestinian statistics. – Since so much is being done Noise in the Jewish and Judaized press about the Israelite Home rekindled in Palestine by the Judeo-Wilsonian peace of VerSailles and San Remo, let's take a look at the figures which, like said Thiers, these are not an opinion.

Palestine, the "Jewish homeland." – Palestine is composed of, according to the Ottoman administration, of the mutessarifat of JeruSalem (22,000 square kilometers), the Sangiacats of Saint John from Acre (7,527 kmq.), from Balga or Nablus (Galilee and Samaria: 6,664 kmq. ; total surface area: 36,191 kmq.

Population: 341,638 in the Jerusalem district, 66,975 in the Sangiostats of Saint-Jean d'Acre and 48,979 in that of Nablus; total: 457,592.

And here is the distribution of this population according to the last-
Latest statistics: Jerusalem Mutessarifat: 251,332
Muslims, 26,886 Catholic Christians, 17,503 non-Christians Catholics (44,389 Christians in total), 39,886 Jews.

Sangiacat of Acre: 25,642 Muslims, 12,520 Catholics.
5,805 non-Catholic Christians (18,325 Christians), 20,637
Jews.

Sangiacat of Nablus: 40,630 Muslims, 6,164 Catholics
liques, 1,984 non-Catholic Christians (8,148 Christians), 297 Jews, including 180 Samaritans (who are more separate from the Jews)
than Catholics (or Protestants).

So a total of 317,604 Muslims, 70,796 Christians, 50,820 Jews. And there you have it... the national rights of the Jews on the Palestine. And note well that, of these 50,000 Jews, Several thousand were recently imported into Palestine.
tine, thanks to the millions from the Jewish International Bank,
to artificially inflate the Jewish population of Palestine.

Let us add that, of these 50,000 Jews, 28,000 are grouped in Jerusalem (which has 40,000 inhabitants) and 2,500 in Haifa (per 10,000 inhabitants). Apart from these two centers which already absorb three-fifths of Palestinian Israel, we only finds small groups of 500 to half a dozen of individuals.

These figures speak for themselves.

But the Anglo-Jewish enterprise in Palestine, like all An English and Jewish company is a "business." La Libre Parole from Paris (May 6, 1920), from whom we borrowed this data, continues the exposition of the plan for this Anglo-Jewish affair:

"Commercially, the port of Jaffa can only be the outlet of Palestine proper, but English ct Jews are particularly focused on the future of the port of Haifa, an outlet of Galicia and especially the terminus of a road iron on Damascus which makes a victorious competition to the line French from Beirut to Damascus. Our economic rivals count the grains of the Hauran, the oils of the Giulian and from Moab, the fruits of Damascus will flow into the port of Haifa and not Beirut; they are convinced that if The Emirate of Damascus (Syria) is under our political protectorate.
he will be under their economic protectorate (sic) and in their sphere of influence... The English have prepared for the future “Jewish Home” a railway network that will increase the economic value. The current line from Jaffa to Jerusalem by Ranileh will be extended on the one hand to Bethlehem and Hebron, and on the other hand to Another attack on Jericho and the Jordan Valley, while Jaffa will be linked to Egypt by the Jaffa-Gaza-El railway Arisch-Port-Said, from where all travelers go to Egypt will visit Palestine. Finally, they are also considering connecting the Palestinian network to the Haifa-Damascus line, by means of the Jerusalem-Nablus-Nazareth trunk, which will allow "Traveling overland from Europe to Palestine and Egypt."

This is what La Libre Parole says, which clearly leads to the Conclusion: an artificial minority, Israel, and an occupation
Politicians in England are making Zionism a big deal
Anglo-Jewish, which will have the initial effect of blocking economic activity than French Syria, from which Palestine has been very artificially detached... The Judeo-Masons of Cadet Street served their country well. It's the eternal issue of the Judeo-Cosmopolitan Freemasonry. But what about the synagogue-lodge?
from Cadet Street, where French Freemasons agree to sacrifice French Syria. The Italian Freemasons (see Masonic Congress-(nice of 1917 already mentioned by us) readily accept the sacrificeproud of irredentist Italy and the rest, — because we
As laypeople, we don't know even a tenth of all that something is brewing in this den of Judas.

99. — Always Zionism. — Zionism is not content not, in Palestine, wanting to possess things, he still wants to possess men. Also, the Jewish Tribune, a Jewish newspaper from Paris, in its March 5, 1920 issue, she announced that the head of the Jewish settlement "Rosh Pinah" (Palestine) has opened a school for the young Arabs of the surrounding population-Ronnante. In this school, they teach Hebrew... Others
Similar schools will be founded in Palestine.

The sea itself must be Jewish. (Newspapers, April 1920)
announce the solemn launch of the Jewish ship Le Précurseur, which displays the Zionist flag, bearing in one corner the British colors. Why not the St. John's cross? Georges? | |

100. — The Jewish High Bank and Palestine. — Let us draw from Official report 1903-13 of the Anglo-Palestine Company Limited (Jewish) indications which, although retrospective, do not They are not lacking in interest, because they give the names main elements of the Anglo-Zionist network of direct activity for the Jewish colonization of Palestine. Some of these names for-

might reappear from time to time.

So, PA. PC (the report says) is a creation of the Jewish Colonial Trust (Jewish Colonial Bank) of London, founded in 1899, under the direction of Theodor Herzl. The JCT comthreatened its operations in Palestine in 1902, and founded in this but PA. PC

On the eve of the war, this very active company had as senior management:

D. Wolfsohn (Cologne), President; — JH Kann (The Hague), Vice-President; — Board Members: Samuel Barbasch (Odessa); Joseph Cowen (London); Mr. Feldstein (Warsaw); JL Goldberg (Vilna); Doctor N. Katzenelsohn (Lebanon); Johann Kremenezky (Vienna); Leopold Kessler (London); Hugo Urysohn (Moscow); D. Levontin (Jaffa), Director-General for Syria and Palestine.

Director in London: Th. Hirsch; — Secretary: H. Neumann.

Delegates to Syria and Palestine: in Jaffa, the aforementioned Levontin, Managing Director; S. Hoofien, Deputy Director; NI Arwas, Deputy Director; J. Grasowski, Deputy Director; J. Chelouche, cashier.

In Jesusalem: Doctor I. Lévy, director; A. Rivlin, cashier _ sier ; B. Bentauwin, chief accountant.

In Beirut: I. Lipawski, director; M. Elyaschar, cashier; I. Lerner, chief accountant.

In Khaïfa: N. Kaisermann, director; H. Asriel, cashier; _S. Nathansohn, Chief Accountant.

In Hebron: Mr. Slonim, director; Riwlin, cashier.
In Saffed: I. Karniol, manager; SG Barschad, cashier.
At Tiberias: S. Gordon, director.

101. — Palestine. — A committee of the unofficial Reuters Agency gave the information that, despite Jewish pressure, the court The British military had been unable to acquit the Jew Jabotinsky and his 19 fellow believers, guilty of Semitic brigandage, and This is "due to the troubled situation in Palestine." In fact, the acquittal of these brigands would have sparked some strong anti-Semitic reprisals among Muslims and Palestinian Christians, now united to stand up to Pencommon enemy.

102. — Association for German Palestinian Jews. — It was founded with Anglo-American capital (April 1920) in Danzig (a free city under the League of Nations) a association for the construction, in Palestine, of houses for the German Jews who will be sent there to reinforce the Jewish population, with a view to domination over Palestine.

103. — Friedrich. — The Reichspost of April 14, 1920, published, regarding a well-known politician, the Hungarian Friedrich, the following:

“Deputy Friedrich explained his exit from the Christian Union National Assembly in a speech that was loudly applauded by the Chamber Members of Parliament. He said, among other things: "The question of "The most important day is that of Judaism, which is little to "Little forgotten. We only ask that they hunt outside."
"The Galicians. This request is not directed against the "Jews, since these good Jews share the same opinion as "We. We absolutely must not allow capital to..."
"remains solely in the hands of the Jews; we hope that the
The government will resolve this problem soon. It is also necessary to...
"To put an end to the Jewish press. When the war broke out, the "Liberal press (that's what the Jewish press was called) was"
"enthusiastic about the war; later, she was for the » defeatism and ended up placing himself at the disposal of the Bolshe-

"Visma. Yet she agreed with the Romanian censorship." and later supported the coalition government. When "We were under Romanian occupation, the Union of the
"The press (in the hands of the Jews) sent an ultimatum to the "government, warning him that if, before five o'clock in the morning..."
"That evening, the region beyond the Danube was not accessible to"
"newspapers, she would address the Romanian command and"
"to the missions of the Entente. This is an act of high
"Treason", etc.

104. — Jewish peril in Hungary. — The declarations of Frie-Drich's views on the Jewish peril in Hungary correspond, moreover, to the real situation, L'Epoca, a Judaizing newspaper from Rome, reports-a letter from Bern, dated March 17, 1920, which tended to compare the "red terror" of the Jewish Bolshevik Bela-Kuhn
to the "white horrors" of the subsequent anti-Semitic reaction
It is a simple matter. But it reports or summarizes facts that must have to give the newspaper's readers something to think about. It suffices to recall Professor Mayer's statement that we would like to make known to all and forgotten by no one: "The most
The great deception of our time is the word democracy; this is merely a refined means of establishing Jewish domination.

105. — Jewish High Bank. — The Basler Nachrichten (Basel News) announced, at the end of May 1920, that a group of English financiers — read Jews of England — were thinking of establishing a position on the Austro- Danube Hungarian. I] You don't need to be a genius to see the hand there of Hirsch's "Anglo-Austriaca", if not that of the _ rival Rothschild house. Good British Jews have suddenly seized 51 hundredths of the shares of the "Company Hungarian maritime and river navigation" and the option on all the shares of the "South German Society" (Austrian-(female dog) of navigation on the Danube" (German title of the two Companies: "Ungarische Gesellschaft fur See und Flussschiffahrt" and "Suddeutsche Donau Dampfschiffahrt Gesellschaft"). But the same newspaper adds this information cryptic: "An Italian company will have to control the "Navigation within the country." Which Italian company?

Obviously a Hungarian-Italian company from Budapest, a German-Italian society of Innsbruck; in short, the "Ita-Links » Castiglioni and Toeplitz. And the Jewish belt of the Alps
the Rhine and the Danube narrows around Italy.

In this regard, here is what the Oesterreichische announced Korrespondenz (The Austrian Correspondence): "With capital increase from 120 to 220 million crowns,
The Hungarian Bank and Company AG has transformed into "British and Hungarian Bank Limited". On the English side there participate the "Imperial and Foreign Corporation" (president: Lord Balfour of Raleigh; director: Lord Chamberlain) and the "Marconi Society" (Mr. Godfrey). And the said Correspondence
The Austrian bank concluded: "Like the Hungarian Bank, the Romanian Commercial Company by Joint Stock of Bukarest and
The Hungarian-Bulgarian Bank of Sofia are linked to each other; the English capital (read Jewish-English) thus expands for mucanes?
the sphere of its Balkan interests."

As you can see, it's still the London-Vienna line.
Budapest-Balkans of the English-speaking Jewish plan: plus ¢a Change doesn't matter, it's more the same thing...

106. — League of Peoples. — The National Christian Association Hungary launched an international manifesto in the various countries to propose a "League of Christian Peoples" for their defense against the Jewish peril." This circular has already was reproduced by various French-language newspapers, alleorder, etc. While acknowledging the terrible reality of the peril Jewish and the need for an agreement, it is generally agreed that the first indispensable basis is the local kernel from which International understanding will emerge, mature and spontaneous.

107. — Zionism. — Documentation. — Among the publications

Zionist cations that best expose the tenacious work and deep-rooted efforts are underway to create an artificial Jewish majority.
In Palestine, it is worth noting the report published the day before.
of the war by the Anglo-Jewish Palestine Company
(The Anglo-Jewish Palestine Company): Activity Report of the A. PC and its branches during the years 1903-13" (London-Jaffa, 1913); with portraits, topographical maps phiques etc.,

And regarding Zionist companies and businesses, besides
PA. PC and the Zangwill ITO that we have already mentioned,
It is necessary to recall the so-called Jewish Colonial Trust Bank and the JCA (Jewish Colonization Association), founded in 1899, and whose activity surpasses that of the ITO, and which directs Today, the Palestinian movement. It is worth noting that All these companies are headquartered in England, whether they are openly protected by the British government who obviously intends to use it as a support for his business colonial, as Germany under Wilhelm II relied on the German-speaking Jewish Hilfverein.

108. — Peace Congress and Jews. — The Israelite Alliance Universal (AIU) published, as lett makes a government of any kind, a Grey Book on "the Jewish question" before the Peace Congress." This book contains the Correspondence Alliance's relationship with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs French managers; the texts and commentaries of the imposed treaties . by the (Judeo-Wilsonian) Congress of Versailles to Poland and to Romania so that they recognize the rights of the Jews of citizens of the country and racial privileges, etc., etc.

109. — False pogroms. — The campaign is now known defamation campaign waged by Jewish agencies against the countries anti-Semites whom they blame for pogroms that did not never happened. But it is necessary to point out the The truly Jewish malice of such insinuations. Leaflet's take, for example, the Tribune Juive de Paris, we will see there We constantly receive information of this kind: "The noise rumors circulated that there had been a pogrom in X...; according to information coming from Y... there are fears of pogroms in Z...; in X..., under under the pretext of... a crowd threatened a pogrom...; at Z..., one feared a pogrom, fortunately... » And so, & force of "It is said," through the repetition of "it is feared," the reader becomes hypnotized and sees pogroms on every page. The truth is that the pogroms in Hungary, Poland, and Romania are inventions of Israel, the most famous slanderer there is never had in the world. While the press, complicit Whether consciously or unconsciously, she speaks of pogroms; the reader does not He doesn't see the real pogroms, that is to say the uprisings, fires, assassinations committed by Bolshevik gangs organized and directed by "international" emissaries "nationals" accustomed, that is to say by the Jewish emissaries, to start with Italy.

|

110. — Jews and names. — One of the most The trend in the Jewish world is to change or change one's Jewish name; this, not only in Russia, but everywhere. In England, the Hillbrechts called themselves from Hill's British name. In Hungary, a large number of Jews dared to adopt the names of Hungarian heroes: Hunyadi and Rakoczi. But their parents, having passed under the dominion-Czechoslovak nation, enemy of Hungary, change their Hungarian name versus a Czech name... (1).

113. a United States and Judaizing sect. — The United States, the The country with a thousand sects now has one more: Mistress Anna. White, from the state of New Jersey, founded a new one under the beautiful name of "Column of the Society of Fire". It announces The imminent arrival of the Messiah and the triumph of the Jews. The The first of these things is just as problematic as the second. is certain.

114. — Vienna and the Jews. — In a serious article entitled: "Vienna, a paradise for Jews," the weekly newspaper Volkssturm, of May 16, 1920, gave suggestive details about the ruin of Vienna in the hands of the Judeo-socialist sect. But what was most striking was the characteristic sign of the Triumphant Jew who, in the intoxication of success, throws off the mask of age-old hypocrisy; not content with stripping the vanquished, He mocks and insults him. Thus, in Vienna, the new masters they began to Judaize the names of the main streets and squares. Emperor Joseph Street became Henri Heine Street; Eugène Square (of Savoy) is now called Place

---

(1) Numbers 111 and 112 give, according to our International Reple Secret Societies, the statistics of Jews in 1903.

Victor-Adler; Aufmarsch Street became Karl-Marx Street; Prince-Rodolphe Street is now Ferdinand- Street Lassalle... Regarding these two founders of Judeo-socialism Internationally, the Volkssturm recalls the double case of the only the concealment of Jewish names. Karl Marx had as his true family name Mordechai (that is, Mordechai), civilized in that of Marx. Lassalle's real name was Talmi; the family from the village of Loslau (Silesia), from which he came, was called Loslauer, as our Jews are called Veneziano, etc.; in The dialect (Jewish) the Talmi called themselves Losl, or even Lasl. The father of the revolutionary who became a wealthy silk merchant, Giving in to the prevailing Jewish snobbery, he changed his name to that de Lassalle... We know of Lassalle's amorous adventures, who was killed in a duel as a result of one of these follies.

115. — Banking antisemitism. — In Syria, the element Christian founded a bank to fight against the monopoly Jewish businessman (1). : |

118. — Thessaloniki and the Jews. — Le Temps, April 17 1920 publishes a dispatch from Salonika announcing "the creation in Thessaloniki of a major French company, with a capital of a large number of millions, who will handle the exploitation "Macedonian agriculture." The dispatch neglected to add that it was a Jewish company operating under different names various. Israel, which wants the Fiume-Danzig-Constantino triangle-The nople needs to strengthen itself to the east and west of this the last city remaining to the Sultan; from there, the concentration of Jewish activity in Thessaloniki and Odessa.

119. — The Jewish Tribune. — A Bolshevik-Jewish Review In Paris: the Tribune Juive, a weekly magazine devoted to Interests of Russian Jews, 3, rue Washington, Paris, 8th arrondissement dissent. She presents herself as anti-Bolshevik, democratic, bourgeois, because the Jews are in all camps for always be with the winner.

120. — Latin Union Committee. — There is a Committee in Paris

(1) Numbers 116 and 117 give the Jewish origin of Mr. Millerand, of his cousin Mr. Levayer (Jules Kahn) and his former Chief of Staff to Foreign Affairs, Mr. Klein (probably: Petit), married to a Jewish woman Russian, née Balakhowska. (Wouldn't this Jew be today at (the Elysée Palace?), of the Latin Union, including the Parisian newspaper Rome, in its issue of February 18, 1920, gives the constitution under Ja pre-Mr. Deschanel's residence. Members of the Committee include: Alfred Croisset (pseudonym of a Jew) (1), Raphaël-Georges Lévy, another Jew... The same newspaper announces a conference on the "Latin House," by L.-C. Moyse (Jewish). This same newspaper rarely talks about books; his first bibliographic review which falls before our eyes relates to the Geography of Robert Almagià (Jewish). And everything we've just seen is circulating under the title Rome, weekly political newspaper of the Union Latin...

121. — Poland and the Jews. — General Elia Zacharian Mordack (Jewish), called upon (March) to succeed General Henry as head of the French Military Household in Poland, is gone to its destination. We know that Israel demands of "its" governments sending Jewish representatives to Poland, where He needs to eradicate Polish national anti-Semitism.

122. — Central Israelite Consistory. — The Central Consistory Israelite consists, for the current Jewish year 5680, of following members:

Alfred Lévi, Chief Rabbi, 32, Place Saint-Georges, Paris.
Israel Lévi, Deputy Chief Rabbi, 54, rue La-Bruyère, Paris.
Edouard de Rothschild, 2, rue Saint-Florentin, Paris.
Emile Lévylier, 27, rue Octave-Feuillet, Paris.

Eugène Sée, Place des États-Unis, Paris.
Raphaël-Georges Lévy, treasurer, 3, rue de Noisiel, Paris.
René Dreyfus, secretary, 31, rue Octave-Feuillet, Paris.
Rodriguez, Ely, 2, boulevard Henri-IV, Paris.

Armand Baze, 45, rue de Maubeuge, Paris.

Gustave Péreire, 35, faubourg Saint-Honoré, Paris.
Bernard Gugenheim, 10, Place de la Banque, Dijon.
Ernest Lang, 48, avenue Henri-Martin, Paris.

(1) This information, as given here, includes a rectifiFiction: Alfred Croisset, that is to say Alfred Croiset, is a professor from the Sorbonne, who was also closely linked to the Jewish woman Dick May. But the Jew Wiener, who adopted the name Francis de Croisset, is a dramatique, owner of a magnificent hotel on the Place de l'Étoile, where he stayed Wilson, during his second trip to Paris, was as mad as Sir Philip.

Sassoon, another Jew, hosted the Allied Conference in Hythe. As for Alfred Croisset was a great friend of the Jews, to whom he perhaps owed his brilliant career, but he is not Jewish.

Alfred Bernheim, 20, rue Alfred-de-Vigny, Paris.
Julien Bloch, 33, rue de la Bienfaisance, Paris.
Nathan Kahn, 57, boulevard des Batignolles, Paris.
Achille Picard, La Terrasse, in Ecully (Rhône).
Roger Lévylier, 29, rue Octave-Feuillet, Paris.
Leonard Aaron, 29, rue de Ponthieu, Paris.

Paul Helbronner, 16, avenue Kléber, Paris.

E. Bickart-Sée, 17, place des Etats-Unis, Paris.
Benjamin Goldstadt, 50, avenue Victor-Hugo, Paris.
Paul Nacquet-Laroque, 174, boulevard Haussmann, Paris.
Edmond de Rothschild, 23, avenue Marigny, Paris.
Edouard Masse, 27, avenue Victor-Hugo, Paris.
Jacques Helbronner, 32, avenue Henri-Martin, Paris.
Alfred Bachmann, 3, avenue Vélasquez, Paris.

Raoul Lévy, 187, quai Valmy, Paris.

Jules Zebaum, 47, rue Saint-Georges, Paris.

Fernand Moch (?)

Mario Bernheim, in Elbeuf.

Léon Abomayer, 40, rue de Monceau, Paris.

S. Lévi Valensi, 109, rue de Courcelles, Paris.
Lucien Sauphar, 31, rue Octave Feuillet, Paris.

SS Cohen, 31, avenue Victor-Hugo, Paris.

E. Mirtil, 60, avenue Malakoff, Paris.

123. — Jewish Deputies and Senators. — Among the new elected to the French Senate, let us mention the well-known Jews in businessism such as Raphaél-Georges Lévy, member of the Consis-Israelite history; Lazarus Weiler, Schrameck, Strauss, etc.
As for Jewish Members of Parliament in France, let us recall, among other things: the representative of Provence, Schrameck; that of the French Guiana, Jeroboam Rothschild-Mandel; that of Béarn, Amschel Mayer Rothschild; of Artois, Abrahami; of the Champagne, Israel; from Picardy, Klotz; from Alsace, Lazarus Weiler; from Ile-de-France, Uhry and Bokanowky; from Paris, Blum, Strauss and Lévy.

124. — Jewish High Bank. — In France, a banking center-Cairo, very powerful and subject to Jewish intrigues: the Bank of the Parisian Union, to which Minister Marsal belongs. finds, in its Board of Directors, the representatives from other major consortiums.

125. — French Theatre and Jews. — The Jewish actress Simone

Benda, the divorced wife of actor Le Bargy, has entered the troupe of the Comédie Française, which brings the total to around twenty the number of Jews who are part of this national theatre.

126. — The Wailing Wall. — The Jewish publisher of Paris, Camille Bloch publishes "The Wall of Tears", a poem by Edmond Fleg (Jew, whose real name is Fleggenheimer). Here is, according to The Jewish People, a summary of this work:

"The Wandering Jew is asleep at the foot of the Wall of Tears" (at the place where the Temple stood, and where the Jews go to (to mourn the destruction); he has in a dream the revelation of the destructive universal war. Then, on the Christian world, it sees the Israelite Sanctuary of the promised times being built, in in which the messianic hopes are peacefully fulfilled niques... Suggestive dreams.

127. — Morgenthau. — According to the Jewish People, the Council The Supreme Allied Power had decided to appoint Commissioner General Morgenthau, the Jew, former ambassador, in Danzig American in Constantinople on behalf of the Jews (see more (upon the Wilson pact with the Jewish Bank).

128. — Jewish elections. — In Paris, under the presidency of Hungarian Jew Victor Basch, professor at the Sorbonne, were outfits – rue de Lancry – the solemn seated for the

The appointment of the Israelite government was in attendance. The leaders Israelites David Jacobson, Nahum Slousch, D. Fildermann, Bernfeld, Lévi, Lambert, and Pines. The committees were elected there.
of the balance sheet, the Jewish national fund, organization and propaganda
large, financial control, education for Palestine, etc.
The Management Committee, composed of Messrs. Hechter, Shapiro, Basch, S. Gunzburg, Bruck, Henri Fridmann, Braunstein, Spanien will soon be followed by new elections.

129. – Jewish Mask. – One of the thousand episodes of the "Mask"
on the face," La Voix Nationale is fiercely anti-Semitic like its ally's magazine, La Vieille France. In each number, we massacre Jews... whom we choose with wisdom.
But neither of them names the true king of Ja
French Jewish bank: Louis Dreyfus. And the National Voice prominently features the Bank's advertising articles Paris and the Netherlands... We learn from one of these articles that the Dreyfusard bank "played an important part in the training of the French National Bank of Commerce

foreign and commercial, industrial and financial company for Russia. Recently, she created the French Bank and Spanish, in agreement with three of the largest banks of Spain. She is preparing the creation of the Franco-Polish... Countless issues and constitutions to which The Bank of Paris participated; the financial support provided to various industrial companies: Omnium International oil, and especially oil from Galicia (note from
We: we saw earlier how much the Jewish Bank is involved in this Anglo-Austrian, now linked to Dreyfus). Benefit
Net profit for the year: 14 million francs.

So then, good anti-Semitic readers of the National Gazette,
Give your money to the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands.

130. – Jewish banks in Holland. – May 1920. – Plu-several German banking houses, with a preponderance Jewish groups are organizing in Holland. For example, the very strong Mendelssohn house (Jews who converted to Protestantism) tra-
The other Jewish house, Bleichroeder (which is not as strong as it was during the time of its late leader) with the Barmen Banking Union (Rhineland), with the Jewish house Simon Hirsch from Essen (Rhineland), founded a new company by shares, new Jewish center, 4 Amsterdam, under the title of "Heydt-Kerstens Bank" with one million guilders capital. The Jews hold a large Rhenish monopoly in German and Dutch territory, as can be seen from these _ indications, and this is fully confirmed by another
The fact is that they mostly fall into the new Anglo-German-Dutch Navigation Company for traffic on the Rhine. Always the "international" brand.
"nale" to cover Israeli affairs.

131. – Automobiles (Germany). – A few days before the Kapp coup, it was reported from Berlin that the government d'Ebert was dealing with the American Jewish Bank, to cede
the monopoly on car services in Germany, center of supplies of American raw materials.

132. – Jewish High Bank. – A grandiose project is organized by the Jewish High Bank of Germany, in agreement with that of England, France and the United States, to put Germany in a position to undertake the major reconstruction of Russia, a matter that will generate many billions of 4

'
j

benefit. As usual, the project is based on an exchange.
If the Entente allows Jewish Germany to take charge of such a thing mandate, and assistance in filling it out, will charge: 1° to the Russia, its old French debt; 2° to Germany, its new war debt; 3° she will seriously fight the Bolshevisme; otherwise, no.

Le Temps, a major Parisian business newspaper, launched the thing in its issue of December 28th, while appearing to be to simply present a statement and even condemn the project; but
The exposition itself was biased and favorable. The leaders of the
The project involved well-known Jews: Rathenau and Hanspohn.
directors of AEG (Allgemeine Elektricitat Gesellschaft),

General Electricity Company; Hjalmar Schacht, of the Bank National already named; the great industrialist Arnold RechBerg (1) and Paul Mankiewicz, of the already named Deutsche Bank also.

133. — Walter Rathenau. — From our correspondent in Munich (Bavaria), June 1920. — Concerning German Jewry- In the order, Walter Rathenau is specifically named. This Jew is at the head of the famous Allgemeine Elektricitat Gesellschaft (Société générale d'Electricité), a colossal producer of electrical equipment. This Jew was stubbornly opposed to electricity. the management of the state railways, until the day he was confident that he would be used. So he pushed the matter further with He showed such tenacity when war broke out. He is one of the Jews the most harmful in our unfortunate country."

134. — The Four Ds (Germany). — It is good to remember that the four German banks known as "The Four D." are: Deutsche Bank, Diskonto Bank (B. Discount Bank), the Dresdener Bank (B. of Dresden) and the Darmstadter Bank (B. of Darmstadt) whose real name is: Bank of Commerce and Industry (Bank fur Handel und Industry). They compete fiercely, but they They always agree when it comes to bleeding Christians dry. Deutsche Bank employs more non-Jews than the three others; it notably includes members of the Centre (called

(1) We are told that this Arnold Rechberg is not a industrialist, but also a spy who operated in Paris before the war. under the guise of an artist, and who even tried to exhibit at the Salon Portrait of Wilhelm II.

Catholic), which better explains the business dealings of the various Erzberger.

135. — Austro-Hungarian anti-Semitism. — From our correspondent Vienna's representative: The anti-Semitic reaction is being organized among we and in Hungary, despite the greatest difficulties. Here, the journal Volkssturm gegen Judaismus, Materialismus, Kapitalismus (Saeulengasse, 12, Wien IX) — The People's Assault The war against Judaism, Materialism, and Capitalism — leads a very lively anti-Semitic popular campaign with tendencies Christian-socialists (Baron von Vogelsang school). But here Again, a strong antisemitic base needs to be built. It seems that it will first be carried out in Hungary where the new Hungarian National Commercial Bank and the Agricultural Bank begin to form the economic and financial bloc against the "Old Jewish Monopoly of Budapest." It is worth noting among Memberships in the aforementioned banking movement (March): Ladislas Unghvary, half a million crowns; Prince Nicholas Esterhazy, 200,000 c.; M' Zmereczanyi, Archbishop of Eger (Erlau), 100,000 c.; Louis Shoke Alsodabas, idem; the family Kotzel, 120,000; Joseph Szortsey, 100,000, etc. The Jews are preparing a supreme struggle against this coalition, in resorting to their usual methods, that is to say, by spreading an incessant stream of slander against Hungary "reactionnaire” in the foreign press to create in the country of political and economic difficulties, and seeking to do to enter the anti-Semitic bloc, by some hidden Jewish emissary, or by attempting to bribe some member of this bloc, etc. It is claimed that in Poland the struggle is also engaged by the Jews with all the most semiticks. |

136. — High Jewish Bank. — The Jewish Dreyfus Bank and C", of Frankfurt and Berlin, joined to the Jewish Bank ZimMermann and Forstag, of New York, are making a loan of ten millions of marks at 4% to the German city of Darmstadt (Hesse). Note that the Dreyfus family is in control of the banking world in Paris as in Germany. Bank “international... » to excess.

137. — University of Vienna. — The Frankfurt Gazette, of the April 24, 1920, announced: The demand of the German parties-national and Christian-social so that the Eastern Jews are removed Vienna's rate was repeated by students, who fear to see the German character of the University of Vienna compromised by the large influx of students from the countries Easterners from the former Austrian monarchy. There were clashes. between German national students and Sio- students nists and their social-democratic friends. The University was closed. S

138. – Jews in Bavaria. – Jewish newspapers in Germany The success of the Jewish community in Bavaria was recorded in May 1920, where She succeeded in getting the government to ban the newspaper antisemitic Volkische Beobachter (The People's Observer).

139. – Jewish High Bank. – The German newspapers of May 1920 heralded new major affairs of the Jewish house J. Dreyfus of Frankfurt and Berlin, German facade order, corresponding to the French façade Louis Dreyfus of Paris. So the German Dreyfus concluded, in concert with the Bavarian Central and the Zimmermann and Forstag House of New York (we have repeatedly pointed out the Jewish agreement) German-American, displaced, but never interrupted) a loan at 4% to the Bavarian town of Furth, for 10 million marks; that we note that all the actions of the loan will be placed in the United States, which will exempt them from contributions wartime measures imposed by the German government on the German affairs. That's how the Jews work in... the interest of the countries that offer them hospitality.

140. – Jewish Peril (Bavaria). – From our correspondent in Munich (Bavaria): "Here the Jewish danger is perfectly well known, and, in truth, one would have to be completely blind not to to see it, after the collapse of the monarchy. We go so far as to to mark the houses of the Jews with colored butterflies to give the people the exact indication. I read this on the door of a Jewish lawyer: "47% of Munich's lawyers are "Jews, even though Jews make up only one percent of our "population." Meanwhile, the famous Catholic Center, but no less ambitious than our Italian People's Party, willingly does "business" with the Jews at the Bank and of the square. The major newspaper of the Centre, the Koelnische Volkszcitung (Cologne People's Gazette), famous in the time of Pius X for having sold out the interests of the Catholic masses to the government, was purchased today by the house Otto Wolff, a Jewish man, is building a newspaper trust.

Rhinelanders of all parties, because all parties must "To serve Israel."

141. – The Jewish Entente. – From the Jewish Tribune of Paris, May 14, 1920:

"The Entente Commission has banned the broadcast of a whole series of anti-Semitic publications in the territories occupied (of the Rhineland)".

142. – Jews and Romania. – For the Jewish archives. – Until before the war, the Jews of Romania and their pro- London and other locations denounce the "persecutors" actions that the government or the population inflict upon them Romanian Christians who dared to refuse to give the "The final blow to Galicia, dying under the heel of the Jew." See in this regard the interesting and well-documented refutation of these Jewish accusations in the pamphlet entitled The Jews are- Are they being persecuted in Romania? by IG Bibicoseo (Bukarest, Vointa Nationala 1902).

143. – Danish anti-Semitism. – It even occurs in Denmark, an anti-Semitic movement. That was enough for the peaceful Danes, to realize the danger, to see the passage shady Jewish agents of Leninism and Spartacism who were meeting in Denmark. In Copenhagen, they created an anti-Semitic organ: Jodisk Aand (The Jewish Spirit).

144. – Jewish Press Center. – One of the centers of Semitic infection by means of fake news and insinuations- tions through the international press, that is the "Jewish Press Center (Judische Press zentrale) of Zurich.

145, – Zionism – Herbert Samuel. – Note the vast (therefore well paid) propaganda disseminated by the press in all countries, including that of Italy, to present it in a favorable light the dispatch of the Jewish-British High Commissioner Herbert Samuel in Judeo-British Palestine. Grandiose declaration of Liberty, Fraternity of the peoples inhabiting Palestine; do not have So don't be afraid, Muslims, nor you either, Christians: all of you equal... And we do not say that, even given or being refused the creation of an administration (over which Israel weighs so heavily) respectful of material equality Legally, Israel is the master of global finance and politics.

will absorb all the vital resources of the country. Every Muslim or every Christian who will find themselves in financial difficulty and will inevitably fall in the Jewish hand that holds all the collected money ready plundering the world. Thus, in a short time, the Jewish immigrant... will make master of the land, of industry, of commerce pale-Tinians. A fictitious majority, recruited from the ghettos of five parts of the world, will become the legal mistress of the Holy Land, and everyone knows what the Jews are capable when they feel they are in charge.

There it is, stripped of the veil of political hypocrisy, the real Herbert Samuel's Judeo-British mission, and there is no of conscious or unconscious collusion that is capable of
to conceal it.

146. — Zionism (Palestine). — The Times, July 5 1920, presents a suggestive diptych in two columns at middle of one of its many pages. The first column
It bears the title: "The Jews in Poland", a report of the Mission
British; cases of killing and ill-treatment.
The other column bears the title: "The New Era in Zion", celebrations
Welcome to the High Commissioner.

So, according to the Times, the Palestinian population welcomed
The British High Commissioner, greeted enthusiastic cheers, and the British Commission in Poland stated that the Jews are unjustly mistreated there. All this, the big newspaper
Lord Northcliffe of the UK said so.

So many "British" words in these few lines. Let's...
Now, a few observations:

1. The report on the outbursts of enthusiasm in Jerusalem is from "our Zionist correspondent", therefore, from a Jew;
He recounts the well-motivated enthusiasm of the Jews, beginning through the port of Jaffa. The commissioner being celebrated was the aforementioned Sir Herbert Samuel.

2. Let's move on to Poland. The article on the alleged bad

'treatment suffered by the Jews begins with these words'
Textual: "The mission sent under the direction of Sir Stuart"
Samuel, brother of the High Commissioner of Palestine... »

3. But who is this Lord Northcliffe, owner of the Times and other newspapers that print such beautiful things?

A certain Jew from Frankfurt, named H. Stern, who left for England, penniless and unscrupulous, became English under the name Harmsworth. Having earned money as The Jews know how to do it; the German-English Jew bought the Lord Northcliffe's vacant fiefdom, imposed itself on everyone by its acquisition
The Times and a large newspaper trust. Of course,
This superman is a humble servant of the Jewish Bank
International, as we have had the opportunity to see.

To counter Samuel of Palestine, the government English appointed the Jew Sidney S. Abraham as civil governor of Mesopotamia.

These are the ... British who rule the world.

147. — The high cost of living and the Jews. — In Paris (July 1920) the
The government has given some salutary examples against the big scoundrels who tried to prevent the decline in life
Dear. Now, in the Parisian newspapers of July 14th, Among other things, it reads: "Mr. Quesnelle is convicted to two months in prison, a fine of six thousand francs and ten insertatements of the judgment and postings of this judgment for two months, both at the door of the condemned man's home and at the door the offices of the Society of which he was a member. The director of this Society, Mr. Nathan, known as Salomon, was declared
"civilly liable."

The moral of the story: The Jew Nathan, also known as Solomon, organizes and directs the maneuver: when, by a very rare chance, the Justice strikes, the little emissary goes to prison, pays a hefty fine fine, etc., and the fat Jew gets away with the declaration of "Civil liability", that is to say the obligation to pay on the company's cash register.

148. — Jews in Poland. — The major Jewish newspaper of Germany Magne, the Frankfurt Gazette, August 12, 1915, at the time when Germany's fortunes in arms allowed it to hope for the triumph, he wrote:

"Warsaw is the most important Jewish center in Europe.
In this respect, it ranks second in the world.

After New York... Warsaw is the heart of Judaism in the east, the capital of Jewish civilization... It is in the interest of Germany
"Manne emphasized this point."

It is appropriate to recall this testimony of the most com-
It is striking today that we see the Judeo-red Germany and Judeo-Red Russia trying to strangle the Polish nation resurrected, with the complicity of the "Jewish-British.

149. — Jews in Morocco. — If French Algeria in the hands
The Jews lament, French Morocco does not laugh. A statistic-
A recent tick announces the following about the very important city Moroccan woman from Meknes: "There are five schools: one for the Indians-genes, two for the Israelites and two for the French.

As for the cases, the proportion or disproportion in
The favor shown to the Jews is immensely greater.

150. — Jews enriched in the United States. — Until February
In 1920, the English National Review announced that in the United States, out of 20,000 new millionaires who appeared after the
At the time of the war, 19,000 were Jewish and almost all of German origin.

Today, the lifting of the state of war brings... new millions for Israel.

151. — The Jewish Legacy and the Versailles Conference. — There are
There are still people who don't see it in the famous Conference from Versailles, the big Judeo-Wilsonian thing; they will be able to to be enlightened by reading what the Judeo-English magazine Jewish wrote Guardian from the very first days of this year 1920. This these are full confessions that have not escaped public attention.
that thanks to the unconsciousness, if not the complicity, of the "good press ".

So the official organ of British Jewry, in its
The issue of January 30, 1920, reported on the steps taken.
made by the "Jewish" Foreign Affairs Commission to the Entente governments for the prompt rapasorting of the 5,000 Jewish soldiers from Austria who were prisoners of war in Russia. The documents of the British government in The responses to this Commission are striking in their emotional language.
and pressing...

The same newspaper, reporting on the debate of the "Com-
"The mission of the Jewish press," we learn that the clerk-Mayor Bertram Jakobs stated that this press was more harmful rather than favorable to propaganda (read: corruption) Secret in the world press. He's charming, this Jakobs...

But the most solemn admission is the one published by the Jewish Guardian, February 6, 1920:

"A triumph for Jewish rights. — What has been accomplished"

at the Eastern European Peace Conference, a work of The Jewish Delegation... The solemn meeting of nations at Paris offered a golden opportunity (our note: that's what
Well said... a golden opportunity to resolve the old question Eastern European Jewish. Our (British) Isles community has promptly grasped the magnitude of the fortunate opportunity which offered herself, and immediately seized her with both hands.

"When you know that these hands were those of Mr. Lucien"
Wolf (our note: Wolf means wolf and everyone knows that) (what are the "hands" of a wolf called) that passed to Paris, almost a whole year spent actually pulling the threads (of the maneuver) — (our note: now that's what I call talking (clear), it will be understood that the work of the Anglo- Delegation Jewish women at the Peace Conference were crowned with a brilliant "Complete success." The documented demonstration of this follows.
triumph.

152. — The Jewish Rulers of the United States. — A group leading Jewish businessmen in the United States who dominated Wilson's policy is composed — not counting the banker Jakob Schiff, from the management of Loeb Kuhn Bank and the Rabbi Stephen Wyse, already appointed — bankers Samuel Untermeyer, Felix Frankfurter, Bernard Baruch and the judge Brandeis. It was this clique that did everything to have as British ambassador to Washington, the Jew Rufus Isaac,
He became Lord Reading, compromised, while he was a minister.

in the Anglo-American Marconi Company scandal (United Wireless Telegraph Company).

153. — Zaharow. — We named in his time the affai-Parisian priest Basile Zaharow, a great enemy of Italy. He-He's not Jewish, he's... Levantine. This Levantine is so closely linked with the Jews for whom he founded the famous Agency Radio, with the Jewish Astruc as co-director. who is not not the real director.

We saw at the time that the famous jugo- plot Slavic opposition to Italy's rights to the Adriatic is too much colossal for being primarily Yugoslavian. In fact, it
It hits home with the Jewish International Bank. That's why
M™ Wilson and M™ Nesnitsch work there, "behind" (as (as Zangwill would say) their respective husbands. And likewise works on the "Radio" the Jew Astruc "behind" the Levantine Zaharow.

154. — Jewish Czechoslovakia. — During our pre-
We had to provide objective and impartial information.
to note that if the Jewish Peace Conference has ostensi-Czechoslovakia and Serbia were greatly favored and have been shown to be hostile towards Poland and Romania, the reason being the fact was that these last two states refused to become fiefdoms of Israel, while the first two have become so,
thanks to Masaryk, Vennitsch, etc.

And now, an eloquent document falls before our eyes.
concerning the sectarian government of Prague. It is, like Usually, it's the Jewish Chronicle of London that provides it to us.
On April 2, 1920, she published: “The Jewish National Council of the Czechoslovakia subscribed for one hundred thousand crowns to the project to build a Jewish Students' House in honoring the 70th anniversary of the President's birth Masaryk.

It is well known that the daughter of the President of the Republic Czechoslovakian, Ms. Alice Masaryk, is a very active propa-Gandalism against Catholicism, in favor of Judaism and of socialism.

We know, on the other hand, — as the Den announces, the Vecernik and other newspapers, — that the small Republic of Masarik has over 400 Jews in its administration. That's it.
Why the Jewish Doctor H. Bergmann, in the Zidovsky Spravy, number 40, sang a hymn of praise to Masaryk, presenting him "not only as a common friend of Israel,
but also like a man who fought for our "cause." In fact, under his government, the Jews have seized the large manorial estates, the properties, the pious works, etc., that is indeed the true "cause" of Israel.

155. — Poland and Jews. — That's all for Czechoslovakia.
Now let's look at the other side of the coin: Poland.

Observations from L'Éclair (May 19, 1920), a radical newspaper socialist and Judeophile, and therefore above suspicion:

"The maneuvers of the Jews in Lithuania and Ruthenia —" maneuvers directed against Poland with the support of Germany Magne — also compromise the situation in Poland.

"When the Germans entered Warsaw, the occupation began with the Jewish quarter. While the rest of the...
The city was plunged into mourning and consternation, while
All the windows were closed and the streets deserted,

German soldiers found a welcoming environment in the ghetto warm.

"The Jews threw flowers as the troops passed by,"
they kissed the horses, offered bread to the Germans
And the salt... The Jews placed themselves at the disposal of the Germans.
for the service of espionage and denunciation...

"From a social point of view, the attitude of the Jews of Poland"
was no happier. The majority of the agitators Bolsheviks arrested in Poland were Jews; they are Jews who attempted a communist movement in Galicia, in last December and January.

The newspaper continues by protesting against the slander of alleged Polish pogroms that never existed.

These findings by the unsuspecting Eclair cast a sinister glimmer — a glimmer of disgrace for the Entente — on the supreme assault of Jewish Russia against Poland during this year's summer.

156. — Ukraine — An interesting article on the “question of Ukraine”, by the Jew Markotoun, “member of the Committee "national (!) Ukrainian in Paris" was published in La Tribune Jewish woman from Paris, born July 15, 1920. Markotoun, like all the Jews who intend to be the ultimate masters of Russia, wants Ukraine returned to him. And that is obviously in such a goal that the Jew Markotoun is part of the Committee Ukrainian national (!)...

The article concludes with this interesting statement: "The Jews are far more centralizing than Russians. We, Ukrainian federalists, have no doubt that, in the merciless struggle with Petliura's autonomists (note from us: who wants Ukraine's autonomy consolidated by an agreement with Poland and Romania, to guarantee against the fangs of Jewish Russia) the Jews as well as the socialists "The lists are siding with us."

So Israel declares a war to the death — a “pitiless struggle” — to Ukrainian independence as to independence Polish woman, so that both would be devoured by Moloch of Jewish Bolshevism which reigns supreme in Russia.

It is the Perennial Judeo-Socialist League that Markotoun invokes. Is that clear?

As for Romania, the same issue of the same period- Jewish newspaper reports, according to the Jewish Press Office

HAS

don't RS. ie, gun, GE eee, = OR RENE … on ee en... eee, EE

(Zurich), which a Jewish delegation presented to the minister of the Romanian Interior a request which is a real ultimatum: Complete amnesty for all Jews who are in Romanian prisons (for high treason, etc).

157. — Israel and the Press. — One would be astonished — if Pon could, in those days, be astonished by anything — by see that almost all the so-called serious, honest, conservative press variable (of the salary), etc., helps Israel to keep the world in the blindness to the responsibility of the Jews in the cata- current global climax. And yet the intoxication of triumph makes to commit daily to the Jews the most comprehensible confessions promising, confessions that would be enough to investigate a Trial... crucial for Israel.

Such confessions are never reproduced in the press, including We were just speaking. Honest and intelligent people who those who want to "know and make known" are reduced to relying on a fortunate coincidence to get one's hands, on occasion, on some documents of this kind. And that is why it is only at- It is only today that we can quote these words from the Jewish Chronicle (one of the official organs of the British ghetto) nique), which printed the following:

“There is much in the fact of Bolshevism itself, in the fact that so many Jews are Bolshevists, in the fact that the ideals of Bolshevism at many points are consonant with the finest "ideals of Judaism".

"It is very important for Bolshevism itself that so many Jews are Bolsheviks, and that the ideals of the Bolsheviks vismes agree on many points with the most beautiful "Ideals of Judaism," reproduced by the Morning Post on the 5th February 1920.

158. — Bolshevism. — This solemn declaration is illustrated by what the Russian V. Anichkoff so aptly states, whose work, written in English, was published in the United States under The title: Inside Soviet Russia Soviet). After writing that: "in all organizations Bolshevik missions, the leaders are Jews, that the commis- Deputy Minister (Vice-Minister) of Primary Education arrives with great difficulty making himself understood in Russian..., that the people consider the Jews to be the authors of all the evils, that anti-Semitism has spread to all classes of the nation that regards Bolshevism as a matter "Jewish," the author continues:

“Currently, there is great excitement among the Jews-national and religious stance. They unite (in their thinking)
The triumph of Judaism in the universal revolution. They believe that the promised (messianic) times have come for the
The Chosen People will dominate the entire earth. They believe they see in the progress of the revolution the fulfillment of the Ecritures (biblical promises to Israel)”.

159. — The Jews and Russian Bolshevism. — But here is a
A decisive confession... domestic. The Communist, official organ
The Bolsheviks of the city of Kharkov published the following manifesto signed by the Jew Kohan and entitled: "The services rendered by the "Jewishness to the working class." Let us quote verbatim:

"We can say without any exaggeration that the great
The revolution in Russia was organized and carried out by the Jews. The working masses and the peasants, so poorly enlightened, Would they have dared to break the chains of the bourgeoisie? Certain-
No. So it was the Jews who led the prole-
Russian tariat towards the dawn of internationalism, and which conti-
They are reluctant to do so, because all the Soviet organizations are in their hands.

"So we can rest easy as long as the management
The supreme command of the Russian army will belong to our comrade Trotsky. It is true that there are no Jews among the soldiers, but, in the Committees and in the Soviets, the Jews, in their capacity commissars boldly lead the Russian proletariat.
It is therefore not without reason that, in Soviet organizations-of the tists, the majority of votes went to the Jews, and that the
The Russian people have chosen the Jewish comrade Trotsky as their leader.
(See Vieille France, number 169).

160. — Same subject. — Here, on the other hand, is the testimony
by JH Clarke (Times, May 10, 1920):

"I had before me the list of names and nationalities."
of the main officials of present-day Russia, procoming from the Soviets' own papers... Out of a total of 556 of the civil servants, 17 are Russian, 458 are Jewish, the others are Latvians, Germans, Armenians, non-Russians of the former Empire.

161. — Bolshevism and the Foreign Office. — An abundant source Dante is highly authorized to confirm facts of this kind.

the official "Collection of Reports on Bolshevism in Russia”, published by the British government (Foreign Office, number 1, 1919).

Here are some excerpts:

a) Report of the British Council to Ekaterinenburg, of the February 6, 1919: "The Bolshevik leaders do not represent the "Russian workers, but they are mostly Jews,"
p. 38.

» b) Sir E. Howard to Mr. Balfour, August 20, 1918: “The "Most of the agitators are fanatics or..."
"Jewish adventurers, like Trotsky and Radek," p. 2.

"€) Mr. Alston and Lord Curzon, January 23, 1919: "The "Bolsheviks form a privileged class that can terrorize"
"to mock the rest of the population... Jews, Latvians, Estonians."

"Jews are particularly numerous in high-level positions."
p. 33.

» d) General Knox at the War Office, February 5, 1919:
"As for the massacre of the imperial family in Ekaterin-
"Burg, we have proof that there were two parties in the Soviet"
"Local: one of them was determined to save the imperial family"
"and the other was led by five Jews, two of whom were resolute"
__» to the assassination. These two Jews, named Vainen and Safarof, =» accompanied Lenin when he made his journey through "Germany... The Imperial Family Prison Guard" included ten Latvians and three Jews... The death sentence
"was read to the imperial family by the Jew Yarowsky," p. 33.

162. — High International Jewish Bank. — Vital interest
Italy orders him to watch closely over the launch-financial clement which threatens Italy itself by the High International Jewish Bank which (as we have

(as often said) quickly reorganizes its monopoly in the territories of the former Austro-Hungarian Empire... and neighboring countries trophies.

The data and documents presented here will amply prove this. ment:

“(a) On February 11, 1920, the Parisian newspaper Rome wrote the following under the heading: "High Banking":

"The Board of Directors of the French Bank and Italian for South America (born from the Banca Commerciale Italiana) underwent some modifications, among which It is worth noting this one: Mr. Chevalier, director of the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands, joins the Council. The Banca Com-Italiana Commercial Bank and the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands have Interests and also a few common sins... The Bank of Paris and the Netherlands absorbed the former Bank of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, thus holding in its hands the strength of one of the most powerful financial institutions of the dual monarchy. The Banca Commerciale Italiana does part of this major operation with the Bank of Paris and from the Netherlands. Both establishments still have a large exploitation program to be carried out in the former Empire "Austro-Hungarian." That's what Rome says.

Some people might notice: The Bank of Paris And from the Netherlands? It's the Jew Dreyfus. — The Banca Commer-Italiana? These are the Jews Toeplitz, Goldschmidt, Ehrenfreund, etc. — The Bank of the Austro-Hungarian Empire? This are the Jews Hirsch, Rothschild, etc. — The vast field of operations What was the proportion of these Jews in the former Austro-Hungarian Empire? It is the Hungarian-Italian Bank of the Castiglioni Jews and Tœplitz, etc., etc.

Why didn't Rome specify all of this?

We reply that Rome could not do it, because that Rome is in the hands of the Jews, in disagreement with the above-They were named, but Jewish nonetheless.

"(b) Regarding the Faresta (Summer of 1920), this Society Anonymous for the timber industry and trade, headquartered in Milan, subsidiaries abroad, Vienna, Budapest, Bucharest, Paris, is a large Jewish center where a brother of Teeplitz works."

Regarding La Foresta, it is worth recalling an article recent from the Jewish Tribune of Paris, so often cited by we, in which it was declared that the immense industry of Russian wood can only be properly used by the hands of the Jews, who have an entire network of concentration camps for the timber, fittings, transport, etc. La Foresta is a wheel of the gear.

It should also be noted that all these banks, industries, summer, supposedly "Italian", linked to Budapest (or with the headquarters main one being the Hungarian-Italian Jewish Bank Castiglioni and Toeplitz, or pretending to have a subsidiary which, on the contrary, is the true base, like La Foresta, does not are all Jewish businesses. We know that the ghettos of Vienna and Budapest were, under the Habsburgs, the masters of all the industries of the Empire, including the frontiers Thirds bordered Italy on one side and Russia on the other to Romania.

has

"(c) There is no need to tire oneself out by recalling a an observation as obvious as it is forgotten by most people, which is as follows: through the assiduous and intelligent juxtaposition of facts disparate, in terms of place, time and external circumstances different, but homogeneous in nature, we can reconstruct — at least in its typical lines — the immense network of the Jewish cosmopolitanism.

This fundamental truth kept coming back to us during that we reread an article from the Rome newspaper L'Epoca dated May 11 1920, an article that is more relevant than ever, one year from distance; it will remain so for quite some time yet. It is there question of one of the main nodes of the aforementioned Jewish network, _ node that we have already mentioned, that of the Jewish Bank from Germany and the United States, Schiff, Kuhn, Leb type and other acquaintances of ours.

Let us reread this very relevant article that we have reproduced, and that we admire, moreover, the ingenuity or the cunning of Luigi Luzzati's journal, thanks to which the journal avoids to say, even just once, "what blood ties" unite all these vampires—all Jews. He shouts loudly at regarding the "German" or "American" Bank, etc.

while it is nothing more than "a single and
"Same international bank," the Jewish one. — So, here's the article with our notes in double parentheses:

“Among the German delegates who are waiting, in contem-plant the Neptune Basin, to receive communication from The Peace Treaty features a mysterious character, Max Warburg ((Jew)), German financier ((that is, German Jew-Magne), financial delegate. Max Warburg was the brother of Paul M. Warburg, American financier (that is to say, Jewish) American)) who, during the war, was, in Washington, pre-president of the "Federal Reserve Board", an equivalent organization, in certain respects, to the Bank's Board of Governors of France. But the fact that there is, in Versailles, on the German side, a Warburg very closely related to another American Warburg is not the strangest thing, nor the most disturbing. This What's worrying, what's strange, is that the Warburgs ((Jews)) engaged in mysterious activity, still poorly understood defined, in the worldwide conspiracy against the Allies, and that we find them and their group, and their partisans, in the most sensational cases that have agitated Europe and America.

"From this point of view, the inquiry conducted by the American Senate-
The American seems to leave no room for doubt. December 20th 1918, before the Senate Commission of Inquiry, tasked with to research German machinations, com-appeared a magistrate whom New Yorkers call their Bou-thistle, the Attorney General of the State of New York, the
the same one that produced the evidence of Bolo's guilt, Mr. Alfred Becker.

"Examining the actions of the Banks before and during the war, Alfred Becker spoke more specifically of a Bank from New York, which, in its picturesque expression, "played
"His fate on both sides of the picture."

"This bank was called the Kuhn, Leb and Co." Bank ((Well-known Jewish central bank)).

"She had subscribed, on the one hand, for 25 million to one of the first French loans, but, at the same time, she negotiated-was taking out a loan of one million marks to Hamburg-America ((a Jew: Ballin)) to allow him to equip and perhaps even to arm its ships.

"Now, who is behind Kuhn Bank?" Leb and C"? First, we find a man who, although he is of German origin (a German Jew) has sympathies which cannot be doubted for France and for the An-England, Otto Kahn, to whom the French Government, in
In recognition of countless services rendered, he awarded the cross of the Legion of Honour.

"But you can also find the two Warburgs there, the German and the American. "There was a relationship between the Warburg group and the
"Kuhn Bank, Leb," Mr. Alfred Becker told the Commission » investigation, a community of interest association (Com-» community of partnership). And, even more curiously, it
It includes several of the "leading players" of » Caillaux and Bolo affairs, such as Jacques Minotto and the
"The famous Hugo Schmidt."

“James Minotto, agent for Deutsche Bank in America,” according to the indictment in the Caillaux case, had served intermediary in Argentina between Caillaux and the count of Luxembourg; in 1915 he felt the need to endorse the Kuhn Bank, Leb vis-a-vis France, and on October 15th
This year, he addressed a letter to Georges Pallain, governor of the Bank of France, a letter from which the following are some excerpts.
significant:

"You no doubt remember, Mr. Governor,

"that, during my last visit to Paris, I explained to you
"How does Kuhn Bank, Leb and Co., which is one of the
"the largest and most powerful financial institutions"
"Health services in the United States, was unjustly accused in France"
"to have Germanophile tendencies, whereas on the contrary
"This house has rendered a real service to the cause of..."

Allies, by categorically refusing to deal with business
"which had been offered to them by the German government, .
"under the most advantageous conditions."
.. » Even today, in the negotiations of the Com-» Franco-British mission with American high finance,
"The Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Bank" provides proof of its
"A truly positive attitude towards the"
"France, for England, etc."

As for Hugo Schmidt, he didn't write for the Bank.
from France, but at Deutsche Bank (one of the four major D of Germany, whom we mentioned earlier). And he wrote to this Bank on February 16, 1916, rendering an account to it of its negotiations with Kuhn Bank, Leb and C" for the account of Warburg and Hamburg-America.

“Kuhn, Leb and C,” Schmidt wrote, “did not appear "willing in principle to discuss our loan request."
“Then, as I told you, they were willing to us
"to grant a loan of one million marks, but they ask" that you give them as collateral things of great importance
"value, that is to say the ships themselves..."

"The U.S. Senate investigative commission concludes" that all these events occurred before the declaration of war of America and that, as they had happened during a during the period when America was still neutral, there was no of the offense. And the case was not pursued further. (Sentence) Jewish, because these acts were punishable as that undermines neutrality. But who would want to touch to the Jews, in the United States?)).

163. — Same subject. — The Epoch continues thus:

"But, in the Entente countries, one might wonder if it is simply by a stroke of luck that the German-Magne chose Max as his financial delegate in Versailles
Warburg, German banker, brother of Paul Warburg, banker
American, who had close ties with Kuhn Bank, Leb and C," which, in turn, had even more reports close friends with Jacques Minotto and Hugo Schmidt, very close to their side in the Caillaux and Bolo affairs...

"The spotlight shone on this powerful financial group" would not be complete if we did not remember that it is still united by blood ties ((all Jewish!)) with the Schiff family
((the famous Jewish bank of Jacob Schiff, friend of Manes and Trotzky's financial backer)) German-American, and that he did not play a well-defined role during the war, but that his role begins now. The combined action Warburg-Schiff took place specifically against us in the question of Fiume, and it is obviously to these bankers that Professor Herron was alluding to when he spoke of "Diplomatically privileged financiers." (This refers specifically to...) sement of the "Jewish" triangle Fiume-Danzig-Constantinople)).
The discerning reader may find the article so interesting
The Epoca with our notes and without them. Without notes, the reader who wouldn't know the rest, wouldn't see that some bankers
Germans and some other American bankers have done Shady dealings. Bah! One more, one less, he would conclude.
this good reader... But, with these notes, this same reader com-will realize that this is not a Camorra of parent bankers, German-Americans, but from a large ring of the chain
Jewish woman who encircles the world. So, let's repeat it, it's time.
to put an end to the various names of the German Bank Mande, American, French, English, etc., when it comes to Jews. We must say, what is really true: the Jewish Bank from Germany, America, etc., if one does not want to do An illusion of the world, if, on the contrary, we want to illuminate it.

"(d) And today, as a posthumous complement to
The article from Epoca, let's publish the press release from the Institute of Austrian Credit Union (Kreditanstalt), published in the major organ of the Jewish Bank, the Neue Freie Press (New Press)

Free) of Vienna, July 15, 1920:

“During the meeting of the Kredi- Board of Directors
"Tantstalt, it was decided to carry out a capital increase"
"to 120 million crowns... and to offer two-thirds of
"This capital, amounting to 80 million, goes to the shareholders; the other third,
"40 million was donated through Maison MW"
"Warburg & Co." of Hamburg, to an American consortium
"formed from the banking house Kuhn, Leb and Co." and the
"Guaranty Trust C° of New York".

So the Austrian Kreditantstalt came more than never to the German Warburgs and the "American" Kuhns, Leb and C," that is, to the Jewish International Bank of which the Warburgs, Kuhn and Leb and many others, anonymnames of the Kreditantstalt and the Guaranty Trust and C°, are the sponsors.

» €) At the same time, the same Jewish publication (July 16, 1920) announced the 50 million capital increase of the famous Jewish Bank Castiglioni, Toeplitz, etc., known as Hon-Gross-Italian woman from Budapest. We can be sure that it is of another Jewish affair...

» f) The same Neue Freie Presse announced on July 4 1920, which the Rothschild family of Vienna had purchased, at Amsterdam, the French legation palace to house, agreed with the Amsterdam Credit Institute (another center) Jewish) the headquarters of a new Bank for business of Austria and the monopoly of “Austrian reconstruction” "female dog." The Government Capital Credit Institute the Netherlands will make available to the new company its international relations (Jewish High Bank).

» g) To conclude for today, let us recall the Anglo-Danubian Association headed by the Honorable F. Huth Jackson, britannic, of course. Everything about it is British, but We know what this word means. In fact, in the list of magnates who make up the A.D., we read the names and the The following firms: Goschen (Jewish), and Cunliffe, Kleinwoeth Sons and Co. (Jews), Lazard Brothers and Co. (Jews), NM Rothschild and C° (Jews), JH Schroeder and C° (Jews)...

In conclusion: all these facts and documents (and how many others) (again) make it as clear as sunlight

the economic and financial encirclement by the International Bank Jewish national, to the detriment of Italy (and the whole world).

164. — Silence of the Jews. — The golden hand of the Jew has made Suddenly, silence fell over the Zionist scandal in Florence. whose starting point is the Israelite University and its organ Israel, through repeated provocations, had finally awakened the Statue From Michelangelo's Night: "I am happy to sleep, and even more so than to be made of marble, so as not to see any of the shame "In my day," as one might call justice and the political police of Italy.

So, complete silence. The newspapers... free, which They had spoken of it, but lost the gift of Jewish speech. Nowbut they will have to be content with simply repeating the slogan launched by the aforementioned /sraél (Florence-Livorno, 2 Scelhat 5677, (that is, January 25, 1917), official organ of Judaism Italian:

"Today, the Jewish committees (of Italy) must put in the full light of the sun their will and their works, and calling on the 40,000 Jews of Italy to express themselves in a way their clear and solemn solidarity with the rest of their people (article-program entitled: "The lines of Jewish action in Italy”, column 2).

He continues (pay close attention):

"It is therefore necessary to call upon the people to organize the democratic movement, and to emerge from the shadows and the resecret unions” (ibid.).

Rereading in 1920 these lines written in 1917, interpreting them, Of course: "To step out of the shadows and out of secret meetings," and moreover, to address the naive and desperate of the demandbloodthirsty gogie: the real leaders, however, are not enough fools to expose themselves like that to sunburn and strokes of wind.

165. — Jews and Freemasons. — The famous movements of Trieste on August 3, 1919, and the following days were to be launched by the Jew D" Lévy, one of the most bloodthirsty leaders of the Spartacist Republic attempted in Munich; fortunately He was arrested at the border while attempting to cross it. — he was coming to Switzerland.

It is worth recalling here that, in that same year, the Maconnerie, a traditional Israeli instrument, had its claws in this

~~. ee = nn rar Sos en see el SN eT” WOO a EEE ee ae ae a eae ee network of revolutionary movements (during the strikes) of July 20-21, 1919). a E

The uninitiated glimpsed a thin ray of light in these intrigues at the time of the noisy quarrel, which occurred Tarentum between two affiliates of the Prometheus Lodge (of the Mason- (Giusfiniani Palace). One of them was Professor Antonio Torro, a Macon, but anti-Bolshevik; the other was Railway employee Giuseppe Tisé, a Bolshevik. “fascfo d’ordine” (the bundle of the partisan of order) of Tarentum, whose leader was Torro, prevented the unrest. to erupt in this city. Tisè attacked Torro and wounded him.

But the Freemasons, for the most part, sided with Tisé, and Torro, indignant, left the Lodge and made it known that they were doing part of the Tarentine conspiracy of officers and soldiers bribed by sectarians.

And then the newspapers, whether sincere or complicit, said and perinsist that this series of strikes and disturbances continues nuels, which even worsened from 1919 to 1920, is entreheld by Jugoslav gold. Jugoslav gold is like the fleet Switzerland: it never existed. The Serbs have always asked They have never given any gold. Only they can give They have money in abundance and at their disposal. And we know who has it at his disposal. Behind every Trotsky, great or small, There is always some Jacob Schiff, that is to say, the Bank International Jewry, which wants to sabotage countries that are not its own not yet completely sold, and these countries are Italy, the Poland, Hungary, Romania. "The more things change, the more "It's the same thing."

166. — Jewish Government in Poland. — August 1920. — On announces that the Bolsheviks, by invading Poland, there establish "their" government. This "their" means, well Understood, the Jewish government, not the Russian one. In fact, the newspapers (for example, the Giornale d'Italia, August) announce the constitution of the Bolshevik Trumyirat imposed on the territory Invaded and devastated Polish: Markiewski, Dzwinocki and Kohn. One of the three, the last one at least, is Jewish, even in name; the other two are of race, under the false names of which they customarily use, by modifying the known names of country.

167. — Switzerland and Bolshevism. — Switzerland is still the major international infection center; it has a large a number of the most active agents. Among them, we note the The well-known Jewish woman Rosa Grimm, who in the summer of 1919, convened a secret meeting in Olten to organize a secret foreign section of Bolshevik propaganda among the various socialist parties, especially from neighboring countries. The Jew-led Bolshevik newspaper Avanti! must know something about this. thing.

168. — Jews in Romania. — According to the Jewish periodical Ha 'Olan, the Jews who currently exist in the kingdom Romania is divided as follows: Moldavia and Wallachia (Pre-war Romanian kingdom), 250,000; Bessarabia, 250,000; Bukovina, 100,000; Transylvania, 400,000; total: a million Jews preparing Romania for the fate that has been prepared by their colleagues in Poland.

ADDITIONAL NOTE

THE

"Protocols" & their alleged precursor Maurice Joly

Our volume was printed when the articles appeared _ from The Times on Maurice Joly and his Dialogue in Hell between Machiavelli and Montesquieu (1).

We were already preparing our new edition of the "Protocols" from 1901, prior to those of Nilus; we take this opportunity to

---

(1) Dialogues in Hell, Machiavelli and Montesquieu, or Politics Machiavelli's by a contemporary; Brussels, A. Martens, 1864.

In 1868 a second edition appeared under the same title; but the author adds his name in parentheses (Maurice Jozy), Brussels, at everyone's booksellers.

Both editions are in the National Library; shelfmark of the edition. 1864: Lb56 1469; shelfmark of the 1868 edition: Lb 56 1469 A. — The Times used the second edition.

to conduct a comparative study of the Jewish text and the text of Joly. We would appreciate a few weeks' grace.

Let us simply note today that, without setting any At the time of drafting the "Protocols", we find them comfully summarized, as early as 1859, by Rabbi Reichhorn in his speech delivered at the tomb of Simeon-ben-Joudha, in Prague (1). Maurice Joly was therefore able to draw inspiration from it and even to know the Judeo-Masonic plan more thoroughly, than we Let us go back, with Darmesteter (2). A Jew of high standing, to the dispersion of Israel. This plan has not changed; it is lexpressure from promises made to the chosen people, and from ambitious goals interpretations of the Talmud. The global influence per fas and nefas, the decomposition of peoples poisoned by the Jews, the waxy unwinding of the rings of the symbolic serpent Finally, the Israeli Supergovernment, everything that makes up the "Protocols" and form the basis of events nowadays, appears to us in the age-old antagonism of the Synagogue and of the Church, and even though this invasion took place for a long time, in a gradual and latent way, he took pride in fortunately betrayed himself when the Jews made their entrance in our modern societies. Those who think, like Joseph de Maistre, whom we quote in this volume (3), and those who act, that is to say the leaders of secret societies and the revolutionaries, did not wait for the second half of the It took until the last century to realize this. These latter, in particular, have had too much contact with Jews to ignore the major lines of their program.

Was Maurice Joly a Freemason? (4) It's probable; in In any case, he was a revolutionary, and we will find him involved. to the tragic events of the Paris Commune of 1871. Condemned to eighteen months in prison for his Dialogue in Hell, he left Sainte-Pélagie on September 4, 1870, and, on October 31 Next, he was part of the group of rioters who overthrew for a few hours Trochu, Jules Favre and the others members of the Government gathered at the City Hall.

We read in Charles Virmaitre's book:

---

(1) See above, p. 166.

(2) See above, p. 7. i!

(3) See above, pp. 48, 50, 51.

(4) In his Supplement to Masonic France of 1889, Léo TaxıL Note on page 113: Joy, Maurice (Paris lodge).

However, on the sidewalk that the crowd had invaded, and in the middle of the In the square, orators harangued the "people" with great animation. tion. The shouts mingled, each person demanding something. Finally, 1) It was agreed that a delegation, led by Messrs. Thibaldi and Maurice Joly was going up to the town hall.

These gentlemen were ushered without difficulty into a small sitting room adjoining the main hall. There, they were received by Mr. Jules Ferry. This The last person asked them the purpose of their actions. Their only response was... Delegates threw in his face that "he was incompetent, not having known" to save the resources of the city of Paris.

Maurice Joly was not bothered by crude remarks. The proceedings of the trial of the twenty rioters of October 31, 1870 (2), in which it is included, provide proof of this. Joly was especially aggressive towards Jules Ferry, which earned him this Answer: "How can you speak like that, you who came from..." every day you ask the Government for places that you Do you want to demolish it today?

The same criticism is suspected in the following short article. which is not lacking in flavor:

Speech on the Paris Commune. — Placard, only the front side of which is Printed; Balitout printer. — This is a speech by Mr. Maurice Joly, dis- The class was violently interrupted at the Club de la Porte Saint-Martin, and that Its author doesn't want to lose.

In this speech, the author of the Dialogue in Hell between Machiavelli and Montesquieu exclaims: "The French army, crushed a month ago, has Sedan, through the ineptitude of the shameful and cowardly man to whom you gave the "in the name of the Emperor..." and further on: "Paris, which alone protested against the war, protested against the Empire, the sole cause of the misfortunes of the France.

However, the same Maurice Joly published a pamphlet in 1661 entitled: This will be the Address of the Legislative Body, and from which we extract This sentence (and there are others) that we recommend: "ll It goes without saying that the Chamber will only be the country's organ in expressing his gratitude to the Emperor for so many great services rendered by him to France, during a reign that includes as many actions

(1) Ch. VIRMAITRE, La Commune à Paris, 1871, p. 4; Paris, bookstore international, 1871.

(2) See Le Temps of February 26 and 26, 1871, and the Gazette des Court proceedings of February 26 and March 16, 1871. These debates teach us that Maurice Joly was born in Lons-le-Saulnier (Jura) on July 19, 1831, and that at the time of this trial he was a lawyer and that he resided in Paris, 3, Boulevard Saint-André. Cf. Journal de Fidus, II, 342; Paria, Savine, 1889.

how many days, and whose undeniable grandeur will mark a large place in history.

Mr. Maurice Joly is a lawyer who is obviously destined for great things. future (1).

Active revolutionary under the Defense Government nationally, Maurice Joly felt even more at ease under the Commune of 1871. At the beginning of April of that year, the members of the Municipal Commission of the first district dissent submitted their resignations; Maurice Joly joined six other citizens to form a provisional commission in pending new elections. Here are the two proclamations. revolutionaries who bear the name of this "Communard":

The Provisional Commission delegated to the municipal administration of first arrondissement to the inhabitants of the first arrondissement:

Citizens,

In the critical circumstances we are going through, at the moment when The civic duty of all must be at the disposal of the Commune, of the traitors, cowards and fearful people, obeying openly or secretly- under the liberticidal orders of the Versailles government, seek and employ every means to increase the disorder in which a A treacherous and corrupt administration has abandoned all services public.

The town hall of the first arrondissement has been abandoned.

The Commune has all the revolutionary energy necessary for the reorganization and installation of everything. It first provides for the replacement of the criminal men who, complicit in the reaction, have systematically abandoned their post, knowing only how to flee after having sought your votes, sought honors and jobs.

Accordingly,

The Executive Committee of the City Hall has asked the Committees from this district to indicate to her the citizens to whom she could temporarily entrust the care of the collective interests of our neighborhoods.

Our names were chosen from the list presented to the Municipality. to form a municipal commission.

Until an election relieves us of this responsibility, we accept the duties. of these functions. We are working to remedy the unbelievable disorder. from the abandoned town hall, and starting tomorrow, after we have separated, by means of findings which we have carried out by bailiffs lords and police commissioners, in the presence of the guard officers national, our responsibility is that of the people we have just replaced to place, all municipal services will be organized and expanded according to the circumstances and public needs.

(1) Street Publications during the Siege and the Commune, p. 65; Paris, Auguste Aubry, 1874.

Paris, April 3, 4874.

Members of the Municipal Commission of the first arrondissement:
D'PILLOT, NAPIAS-PIQUET, TOUSSAINT, WINANT, TANGUY, JOLY, SALLÉE.

The municipal delegation of the first district to its constituents.
Citizens, i

In the solemn circumstances in which we find ourselves, it is of It is the duty of every good citizen to act with patriotism and courage. civic duty by spontaneously offering to join the guard battalions federated nationals.

The law allows us to force you to do so.

We do not want to resort to force.

We simply want to appeal to your honor, to your patriotism ism, convinced that we will be heard and understood by all those who have a generous heart.

We do not want to appeal to cowards, nor to those who twenty years Empire has corrupted even the noblest sentiments that characterize- They raise man: feelings of freedom.

You don't want to give us a master any more than we do. You want to live free and participate in the regeneration of our unfortunate homeland.

Do not push our unfortunate country into decadence. In all Time, abstention, and failure are to blame. Know this again. that this smells like crimes.

Citizens, form your battalions. Unite without delay. your efforts against the common danger. Remember that we have fought together, side by side, against the Prussian, and know that all cowardly and treacherous generals who betrayed us, sold us out to Prussia, do not deserve neither pity nor forgiveness, any more than the vile henchmen of RT mercenary troops in the service of all despots.

Paris, April 3, 1871.

The provisional municipal delegation of the first district:
D " Prot, NaAPIAS-PIQUET, TOUSSAINT, WINANT, TAN@Uy, JOLY, SarLée (1).

In these proclamations, Maurice Joly does not back down in the face He uses violent means; one senses that he is calling for terror. He does not He doesn't hide it, by the way, in his 30-page autobiography.

(1) Official Journal of the Commune from March 19 to May 24, 1871, p. 147; Reprint. Paris, Victor Bunel, 1871. Cf. The Black Book of the Commune Paris, p. 304; Brussels, Office de publicité, 1871.

which he composed during his leisure time in prisonnement (1). in which he praises the "Committee of Salvation" "Public." His conclusions, in this brochure, as well as in his other work: Research on the art of succeeding (2). do not align at all with the conclusions of the "Protocols". Maurice Joly, like the ordinary revolutionaries, remained to social leveling; it could not rise to the level of power world whose end will be the Supergovernment of the Jews. This remark is of utmost importance in dissociating his anarchist work of the Jewish program, of which he owed really grasp that the first part, the reversal of modern societies. Because we are convinced that, if there is Plagiarism; the plagiarist is Maurice Joly, not the author. alleged "Protocols". We will prove it.

The true common thread between Freemasons and Jews is hatred of the Catholic Church and the concentration of their dual strength to destroy it. This is what constitutes Judeo-Masonry and in fact the Counter-Church. This alliance could not be foreign to Maurice Joly. Also, in the political confession who finishes his autobiography, he takes care to inscribe as First article: the need to eliminate Catholicism from French government and to proclaim complete separation of the Church and the State. For him (and this was the work of his successors) (ceases) Catholic France must disappear and the "Daughter "Eldest daughter of the Church" to become "Eldest Daughter of the Revolution", "For," he said, "it was the schism that saved England, that made free America and which constitutes the dignity of all countries "Free." Here again, the common goal of Freemasons and Jews presents a significant divergence of views. The former want, with Joly, social atheism; the latter are preparing to impose, with the "Protocols", the Mosaic religion, according to the letter of the Talmud, that is to say the religion of the golden calf.

In summary, after having tried their preferred method in vain, For their part, the Times, whose director, Lord Northcliffe, is of Jewish origin; from Wolf or Reinach, that's natural. That their defenders of fortune may be unremarkable, that a princess

(1) Maurice Joly, his past, his program by himself, Paris 1870.

(2) Research on the Art of Success, by a Contemporary; Paris, Amyot, 1868, 8°, 403 pages.

In his autobiography, Maurice Joly loudly proclaims his paternal-the integrity of this work which he had published anonymously.

Radziwill was disqualified by Old France, one of the Chayla disqualified by Ms. Tatiana Fermoor (1), a Maurice Joly by His Bolshevism before its time is understandable; but that the conservative press complacently countersigns these barely disguised evasions, and she lets out a sigh of relief at the news of Jewish liberation from These "accusatory protocols," that's what makes one dream. Is it that the Doyen report, during the Caillaux trial, would be verifiable dic? Is it the vast majority of the liberal press touch rue Laffitte or 4 some other ticket window of the Haute-International Jewish Bank? Should we say, like the Russians of 1901, regarding the "Protocols": "Too late! "
No, it's never too late when you have God on your side.
"This will kill that." This isn't Judeo-Masonry, it's
The Church that will triumph.
| E. JOUIN.

(1) See above, p. 2.

Take

Wd T FT aE of

~

VN
hi +

SEr-7° 970 Rw

k

Cr a

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. — JUDEO-MASONRY AND THE CATHOLIC CHURCH. — First Part: The Faithful of the Counter-Church: Jews and Masons. — IT. The Masons (E. JOUIN) 4

Antimagnetic reaction 4
The Jews in the preparation of the Mason-
NENG.” wxiocim Sos EEE EE RE
The Jews at the origin of Freemasonry...... 11
The Three Stages of Freemasonry.... 15
Alliance of Jews and Freemasons.... 18
Freemasonry and the Emancipation of the Jews... 20
The Jews, the Freemasons, and Napoleon I........ 34
Judeo-Masonic Lodges in the United States
United States ...... Syeda EE NME 37
Judeo-Masonic Lodges in Europe.... 45
The exclusively Jewish Lodges............ 76
Jewish Directorate of Freemasonry. — The France-Maconnerie is the mistress of the World: slim unes 85

The Jewish quarter is the mattress of the Ma counerte. 100 Masonic map of the United Republic
yersel 250s Ge Sides nina 114

APPENDICES:

I. — FREEMASONRY IN HUNGARY (By Jules GESZTESI) Lima iii ie dd rene ut 120
II. — THE JEWS AND THE PAPATY (E. JOUIN) ste ts 125
1. The Talmudic Books:
(Letter from the Cardinal of Cremona to Cardinal Palotta (1629)............
2. People:
(Encyclical “A quo primum” of Benedict XIV) 3: iii us. 136

3. Conduct of the Popes towards the Jews... 143
JII. — THE BOLSHIVIKS AND THE JEWS (P. GANSKY).......... 157
IV. — DOCUMENTS ON THE WORLD JEWISH MOVEMENT, 2nd tri-maester of 1921 (E. D'YLBERT).................. 173
V. — DOCUMENTARY INSIGHTS INTO THE JUDEO- PERIL
MASONIC: :::-1 24cm wee "Ohi

L. CLOIX Printing Works, 17, Avenue Gevrges-Clemenceau — Nevers.

C5055

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

eel Des k
x = a + S

y U
—

Demco-293

<
SRE ad

bone a yd
Ed
F ji"
bi | ti
t G
h 4 |
RTE LA
"* `
a Le
w wx
* - =.
L bn he. Pd >
Q Ead ki 4
G ee
eras re Li Wok s æ. 5

Sr RL IR TR
at r=... tp
Wr

ed

ry.
W P-
+ |
v. ie F
P to"
BANG
+ + ential
In Spain

~~ THE | has "to.
rows
aa

" er Re oe es oe See

"has

naked
=

ee ee nn
s Ter

=

ee te 6. T eee eer... >" The |

```
"s –
–~ & –

has

72.4% aes

n
–re ee. See a FT Y

– Ze

r Aere..
woe Set eee Pe ë a
.–

LIN LNRE "IC";
"At dee i F'

to ee Ra" VAUT se De PE EE.

i * bsg
4 x A
T4 KH
"of >
To rjkj
y + > € NOT, fn: He `“
A, He Gr

ACL POLE RTE The LOSC Agen Ek Es See
= 4 *~ ws

$ AN 4
a A 4 TO
to. F
` > 4 | a A |
V 4 ec
r Sa eg}
eS
F4 If at F
Y” dhe. es,
on he – iol a 4

i mm co ace me ve ne
ML for Vs E AL, S aa

"ane, ee"
RL 2s Se
Ls. OR
Ae Ws

CE 7

at 4 to s

eee. e me ae wm ee

–.v' se:

EG OCR ee

ARLES 424% SA N Ge

tt D SEE ET TES EVALUER
– –paš – –+ an | >

T:

ie Li

sz «
=P
```

Full text of " 1800s French Nationalism Pt 6 "

See other formats

This is a reproduction of a library book that was digitized
by Google as part of an ongoing effort to preserve the information in books and make it universally accessible.

Google Books x.

https://books.google.com

[u]

Google

About this book

This is a digital copy of a work that has been preserved for generations on the shelves o precaution by Google as part of a project aimed at allowing internet users to discover the line.

Because this book is relatively old, it is no longer protected by copyright law and is no
"Belonging to the public domain" means that the book in question has never been subject t
Expiration. The conditions required for a book to enter the public domain can vary from c
These are all links to the past. They bear witness to the richness of our history, our cu too often difficult for the public to access.

The footnotes and other marginal annotations present in the original volume are reproduce
of the long journey the book has taken from the publishing house through the library to f

Instructions for use

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize works in the public domain and make thus accessible to all. These books are indeed the property of everyone and we are simply However, this is a costly project. Therefore, and in order to continue disseminating thes necessary measures to prevent potential abuses by third-party merchant sites, in particul
technical constraints related to automated queries.

We also ask you to:

+ Do not use the files for commercial purposes. We designed the Google Books Search progr
We therefore ask that you use these files for personal purposes only. They may not be use any commercial purpose.

+ Do not perform automated requests. Do not send any automated requests whatsoever to the research concerning translation software, optical character recognition, or any other fie
For large amounts of text, please do not hesitate to contact us. We encourage the use of works and documents belonging to the public domain and we would be happy to be of service

+ Do not remove the attribution. The Google watermark contained in each file is essential and allow them to access more documents through the Google Books Search Program. Do not de No cases.

+ Stay within the law. Whatever use you intend to make of the files, remember that it is y Be sure to respect the law. If a work belongs to the American public domain, do not assume other countries. The legal duration of copyright for a book varies from country to country
The works whose use is authorized and those whose use is not. Don't assume that simply pos
Book search means that it can be used in any way anywhere in the world. The sentence to wh
The penalties you would face in the event of copyright infringement could be severe.

About the Google Books Search service

By facilitating searches and access to a growing number of books available in many languag contribute to promoting cultural diversity through Google Books Search. Indeed, the Google allows internet users to discover the world's literary heritage, while helping authors and online searches in the full text of this work can be found at: http://books.qgoogle.com

LEE
Te 21
ATP The Ai
E

oe MAPA

"ju ie Mg ^o

F

I,

in

a tru ^ed.
"LUN aet a"
LA Es

E ae

dr'e}
Pia Ayal to E . i*
Doo
-

(cm

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

SAME BOOKSTORE

FREE SHIPPING UPON RECEIPT OF PAYMENT (STAMPS OR MONEY ORDER)

ANTISEMITIC LIBRARY

EDOUARD DRUMONT
The End of a World, 65th thousand. . . . .
AUGUSTE CHIRAC
High Finance and Revolutions, 3rd edition...
Speculation under the 3rd Republic, 5th edition, 2 vols.
KALIXT DE WOLSKI
Jewish Russia, the secret history of the Jews, 3rd edition.
GEORGES MEYNIÉ
Jewish Algeria, 3rd edition. ....
The Jews in Algeria, 3rd edition. . . . . ee
KIMON
Israelite Politics, a psychological study . . . . .
The Art of Defeating the Jews............-.
AUGUSTE ROHLING

The Jew according to the Talmud, with a preface by Edouard DrUMONL è sud ee ms se She sde Pa Won

HONORÉ PONTOIS
Former President of the Tunis Court
Honorary President of the Court of Appeal of Nîmes.

The Scents of Tunis, 4th edition. . . . . es es to PIERRE RICHARD

The Trial of the Patriots' League, 2nd edition...
ALBERT SAVINE

My Trials. . . . . . . E ATOR ey als oo. is ves abite BO Badd du Sur

HENRI DESPORTES

The Brother of the Duchess of Angoulême, iu-8. . . .
The Freemason Jew (to be published soon)

3.00

3.00

THE

MYSTERY OF THE BLOOD

AMONG JEWS THROUGHOUT TIMES

~

BY THE SAME AUTHOR

The Freemason Jew (will be published soon).
The Brother of the Duchess of Angoulême, in-8° 3 fr. 50.

On the occasion of this latest work, the author received the apostolic blessing. of the Holy Father and the approval of several members of the Roman high clergy.

La Civilta cattolica writes: “The great interest inspired by M. Desdoors cst such as it seemed good to us to report on in this bibliographic review-chart... "

The New Books Review: "This reading is more moving than the The most dramatic of novels, one remains bewildered by the duplicity of royal courts... »

The Student, from Louvain: "It's a historical composition that will..." to occupy today, or rather it's a page of life that has so recently passed, with such a distinctive and interesting character that the work can stand out from the res ordinary traditions of the past; it is also likely to fascinate readers "actors, of all kinds, who make up the general public,"

A distinguished French prelate: "It is a well-written, well-supported, very well-written b Well-reasoned, almost very well written. I'm amazed that, at such a young age, you've achi such solid maturity, »

Available at Savine, at FERROUD, 192, boulevard Saint-Germain and at the author's home, rue de Narine, in Amiens.

HENRI DESPORTES

THE MYSTERY

BLOOD

AMONG JEWS THROUGHOUT TIMES

Preface by ÉDOUARD DRUMONT

The use of Christian blood is essential to the salvation of our souls.

THE JEWS OF THIRTY.

| NEW PARISIAN BOOKSTORE
ALBERT SAVINE, PUBLISHER

42, Rue des Pyramides, 12

1889

FEB 6 1899

HAS

ÉDOUARD DRUMONT

THE HARSH IDEA-STOPPER

Digitized by Google

PREFACE

Dear Sir,

I am deeply touched by the thought that you have prompted to dedicate your very curious work on me
The Mystery of Blood.

I read your book with a shared interest.
will, I believe, all those who read you without bias taken, with sincerity and good faith.

Even outside the religious sphere, your book will awaken many ideas and inspire many re-deference to those who are passionate about the study of humankind, issues of race, cerebral phenomena,
the problems of atavism, the persistence of certain certain instincts in beings of the same origin.

You very conscientiously group a number a considerable number of irrefutable, undeniable facts. These
The facts are guaranteed by witnesses.
for whom the lies of the press do not exist were not yet and who only believed in what they saw with their own eyes, in those cities of yesteryear where the inhabitants of the same city lived in a hurry and

has

as if pressed tightly together. These facts have were recorded by contemporary chroniclers attested by commemorative monuments including Some still exist, perpetuated by works of art, sculptures, stained glass windows; these facts were accomplished in a roughly identical way in countries very far apart from each other and who previously had only rare opportunities to comcommunicate with each other; they reproduced at very different eras; while many date from the Middle Ages, some of which took place in the 16th century? century, while others are very recent and belong, in a way, to current events.

Let's admit it, to make the discussion as broad as possible. that possible, that in the past the legend could have to add to these facts some slightly romanticized details, It is nonetheless impossible to deny the materialthe very nature of these facts. If, indeed, one were to reject the testimonies of eyewitnesses, the account of chroniclers, archival documents, files of courts, it would logically be necessary to deny all the historical events, declaring that the battle of Bouvines or the Battle of Agincourt, the trial of Templars, the assassination of the Duke of Orléans or of Jean Fearless fantasies are the imaginings of fantasists. The testimonies on whose faith we believe The reality of these events is of the same order. that the testimonies which confirm the assassinations rituals and murders committed by Jews on Christian children.

That being said, it would seem that in a time when the Strange things tend to attract spirits. where the Oedipuses multiply to guess the enigmas of history, this question of Sacrifice bloody must have attracted all those curious about the life of the other three times:

Not at all. All the scholars flee, they steal, they take a detour when we place them in presence of this question.

That is where the Jew's great strength lies. He starts screaming like a madman as soon as someone shows a any desire whatsoever to see things clearly in his affairs, and people with sensitive ears are terrified to that noise that tears at their eardrums. I knew there were loudmouths of that kind in life; they were having reached the point where they could no longer find anyone for their address- to make an observation; as soon as one tried to explain oneself- When they talked with them, they started yelling. "What- What you want me to say to so-and-so, you "He immediately shouts," his comrades replied. "Like a possessed person, it's tedious."

This is what happens with The Mystery of Blood. I have discussed this point very often with scholars, I told them, "Come now, my children, you come to split hairs and we'll tell you He gave an award for this work, I am delighted. You have proven that Lucrezia Borgia, whom we believed redhead, was blonde and that Charles V had a crooked eyelash, but anyway, the subjects will eventually You miss me. Why don't you discuss this?

question of the ritual sacrifice which had such an im- Weight in the Middle Ages? You have the pieces of the Trials of Trent; are they authentic? In de- apart from the documents published by Amelot of the Houssaye, the case file of the Raphaël Levy trial judged in Metz in the 17th century, there must be some on the other hand, unless the Jews did it discreetly- to appear. There is an original publication there. to attempt. " :

The Jews, with their particular gift for oppression to deny people any freedom of thought, to designate in advance the path in which they must walk, have so asserted their mastery on intellectual France that no one is bold enough to deviate from the stated program. members of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Letters would never dare to put such a subject in competition; they tremble like slaves under the whip in front of some German Jews, Weill or the Opperts. Our admirable Leon "Gautier, whose work is so French and whose life is so upright and so pure, he was terrified when he read what I had said of him in Jewish France, showing how much superior he was to Meyer who had entered at the Institute before him; he was afraid that my praise

did not prevent his election!

When Jews are a little embarrassed by
In a case like Tisza Eszlar's, they become issuing certificates by Renan who declares that Ritual crime never existed. "To believe in pa-reilles histoires is nothing less than monstrous madness-

"True." One point: that's all...

– So all these stories are false, all these the-Testimonies are the words of imposters, all
Are these court documents falsified? Admit it, Even in this case, the Academy of Inscriptions of-should really encourage the publication of a thesis which would shed light on one of the most singular points of the life of the past, which would show all nations conspiring for a thousand years to falsify texts and erect monuments to perpetuate the memory to stem from events that no one had ever seen before.

The truth is that these facts are mostly absolutely accurate and that they offer the opportunity to the most exciting study there is, in some point of view, I repeat, whatever one wants to position oneself on.

The existence of the people of Israel is nothing but a struggle constant against the instinct of the race, the instinct semyth that draws the Hebrews towards Moloch, the:
child-eating god, towards the monstrous Phoenician idols. The words of the Prophets fl-constantly striving for a return to idolatry, not leave no doubt about the attraction it exerted cruel superstitions about the Israelites neighboring peoples.

After the deicide and the scattering, in abjection
In medieval life, the Jew reverts to his type First. It's Moloch we worship in the ghetto, it's to Moloch that one sacrifices the child one has been able to... seize it. The real party, the complete party, is the one that allows the Jew to satisfy the hatred he feels for all that bears the sign of Christ, for all that which is baptized.

Christ, by establishing the holy Sacrifice of the mass in which he offers himself as a victim, abolished forever the bloody sacrifices of others Three times. The Jew, in order to better defy the true God, goes back to Moloch by restoring the sa- human sacrifice and by slitting a throat, no longer a lamb or heifer, as under the old law, but a Christian child or girl.

This is precisely the crux of the debate. No man common sense has never claimed that the throat-slitters children's ments were prescribed by Mosaic law. The Pentateuch, on the contrary, strives to pre- to come, the Hebrews, against the instinct that attracts them. towards the voluptuousness of blood.

"Be firm, do not waver; resist the inelina- the act of eating blood; no, you must not. To eat, I want you to pour it on the ground. water.

Regulations concerning kosher meat still in use today are a evidence of the concerns that this issue raises would be angry with the religious leaders of Israel.

No positive passage in the Talmud leaves room for nor assume that the bloody sacrifice ever- but was officially recognized by the authorities of the synagogue.

On the other hand, it is obvious, it has been demonstrated that the most indisputable way that in the Middle Ages monstrous custom transmitted thanks to the teaching oral communication by members of a certain sect he introduced himself among the Jews; it is undeniable nor when impunity seems assured this custom is not yet practiced in certain places certain countries where the Jew has remained what he was elsewhere- times.

It was like a collective initiation into... dreadful mysteries, a horrible conspiracy like that of the Bacchanalia, the discovery of which terrified boasted of Rome in the early days of the Republic, a kind of shared madness, if you will, a frenzy of blasphemy and bloodshed that can explained by the rage that the Jews were inspired by triumph of the then all-powerful Church when Israel was plunged into humiliation. Which is Certainly, this madness manifested itself in many ways. repeated, in roughly similar forms everywhere, with characters that reveal the existencetenancy of a rite known and accepted by all insiders.

The definitive book that has yet to be written on this The subject should emerge from the collaboration of a historian. nothing and a doctor; on the margins of the story of the historyTorian, the physiologist would have to write a study marvelous on the fatalities of race, the laws of terribs of heredity. Sym- neuroses have been studied ptomatic, sympathetic and idiopathic, the Ethnic neurosis would be the subject of a very important thesis has provocative for a young man, it would be necessary by an example of his wealth, which he did not seek not the clientele; it's not Germain Sée who would recommend...

There is no shortage of cases to observe, even in our era. I'm leaving aside the crimes of which You recount for us the lamentable and dramatic table, I take the last case which does not redoes not go beyond last March, the afto make Max Bernstein, softa at the rabbi- college nique of Breslau; he lures the child of a The young Severin Hacke, a Catholic from the town, him makes incisions all over the body with a knife sharp to draw blood from his wounds and the sends him back after giving him treats.

Here there is no doubt, the accused himself acknowledged the facts; the Jewish community, seeing the case as weak grave did not make as much noise as usualstudy; two Jews were even present in the tribunal who simply sentenced Max Bernstein to three months in prison.

Obviously this man who, in a fit driven by a passionate aberration, he could not resist the desire shedding Christian blood would have been a slaughterchildbearing in the Middle Ages, but race among He probably no longer has the savagery that she had among the ancestors; instead of bleeding until Death stops him, and once the first pleasure is over Once satisfied, he regrets what he did. Even in the proportions of a simple news item, it is not

£

less curious to find in a city of Germany
Magne, in the heart of the 19th century, human sacrifice, the Molochist sacrifice of Carthage and Tyre.

In other countries, the Molochist Jew has retained
all his ferocity. Great Polish lords, who lived for a long time in Paris, who are not at all-
Some fanatics wrote to me that nothing is happening
Not a year goes by without an incident of this kind occurring.
duise around their estate. Jacques de Biez, during his trip to Romania, which he should Having finally decided to publish the story, he saw the sacrifice bloody in an endemic state. We observe, at least-the Easter ceremony, that a child has disappeared, the tri-Romanian police officers begin an investigation.
but it never succeeds; not a single Jew betrays the
The Kahal keeps a secret and covers up for the guilty.
of his all-powerful protection.

Everywhere the courts are capitulating to compelling influences or irresistible arguments;
When they can't be bought, we break their judgment. Ritter, his wife Gittel and Sto-convinced chinsvky, without even the slightest shadow of doubt, of a ritual murder committed towards the end of 1881 in Luctza in Austrian Galicia were sentenced to death three times; twice by the Court superior broke the ruling and the third time the empe-
The Austrian king showed mercy to these brave people.

The poor emperor who gave himself body and soul to Jewish financiers is out of commission and, moreover,
has absolutely no intention of opposing the crimes

of Israel. The Tisza-Eszlar case, which you recount at length, shows that in Austria-Hungary the Jews can get away with anything:
I was in the country some time after the juglying and I have never met anyone who had the slightest hesitation about the guilt of the accused.

Semitic gold triumphed once again.
As you point out, the last word of the trial is this statement from a high-ranking person-swimming, closely involving the Minister of Justice saying to a Reichsrath deputy: “The interest of the Hungarian state and the entire Austrian monarchy -
The female dog is that we cannot demonstrate and cons-to test the truth of ritual bloodletting, because we
we are engaged on all sides with the Jews ct
In many respects it is impossible for us to do without them.

This could be a very clever policy, but ge-Generally, she is not blessed by God. When a prince uses his authority to wrest
Those who massacred the children will be punished.
of his subjects, a day comes when God punishes the sub-Verain is unworthy in taking away the son who was his pride and its joy.

In this time of universal cowardice, you have had,
Dear sir, the courage to tackle these head-on questions that everyone avoids out of fear to incur the hatred of the Jews. Others, by taking care-more specifically of a particular crime, in going to the sources, by consulting the .d'ar- deposits

Foreign sources may perhaps shed some light on this.
certain points of a more complete light. Your
The book will have the valuable advantage of attracting attention on this side, to make all men say imparliaux: "Why in our time when the most minor historical problems are thoroughly investigated
Do we ever hear anything about these events except that...
Jewish exclamations: "Fanaticism, memories of the "Barbarity of bygone eras, absurd accusations..."

Epouarp Drumont.

Soisy-sous-Etiolles, June 27, 1889.

Digitized by Google

BOOK ONE

THE STARTING POINT

Digitized by Google

CHAPTER ONE

HUMAN SACRIFICES AMONG THE HEBREWS

This work establishes and develops a serious accusation against Jews today. It's curious to go back until the beginning of time and to find there the germ of instincts which have developed remarkably lopped into the Israelite people.

This people, whom some scholars have depicted for us as if filled with the spirit of monotheism, he was possessed contrary to idolatrous fury.

Even under the rod of Moses and Aaron, the people, to whom Christ reproaches his sacrilegious inventions and his false traditions, mixed with those that are part of the divine law, falls and falls again and again into the honors the superstitions of the strangers who surround him. And not only does he adore the golden calf up to his feet of Sinai, but its vicious slope leads it to the most Incredible abominations. He testifies against them. himself, and this testimony is eternal, for he is the one books that its dispersion has scattered among the peoples.

No doubt the law that God promulgated for him at amidst the splendors of Sinai, was the most pervasive law. made of the world, since it was not made of human hand. But how often this fickle people has escaped this law, slipped from the very hands of God.

Neither its inflexible legislators, nor its pure divine law, neither his divine government nor his priesthood could to prevent it from faltering and falling into the abyss deep into idolatry.

He could not make contact with the people strangers who surrounded him without immediately indulging in their vices and their abominations. He went into that way as far as all deeply ido- peoples Jatres; to the false gods he offered as a holocaust the blood of her own children.

“His fury at this religious crime,” said Gougenot des Mousseaux, was extreme, since so many pages of Scripture repeats, one after another, the terrible threats
.of God against this habitual crime, that is to say against the acts of an idolatry which is summarized in its ritual
all the monstrosities of the magic sabbaths; the vice of cursed cities, from the Dead Sea and beyond: the homicide and cannibalism.

How many times have the prophets spoken out against these bloody practices. The most terrible laws, the
the most rigorous punishments, the most Everything was used and everything was ineffective.

“You shall not give up your children to be dedicated to the idol of Moloch, and you will not defile point to the name of your God... If a man from among the children of Israel or foreigners who reside in Israel, gives some of its children to the idol of Moloch, which he be punished by death and that the people of the country stoned.

It is in Leviticus that we read these for-young ladies; which clearly shows that from the very beginning
The chosen people turned away from God and rushed to worship false gods. Hardly out of Egypt, under the dreaded gaze-the table of Moses, amidst the wonders that the Lord multiplied in his favor, the house of Israel bore, to next to the Ark of the Covenant, the tabernacle of Moloch with a head of calf, the image of its murderous deities, the star of the God Rempham!

“When the Lord your God,” repeats Deuteronome, will have exterminated the nations over which you will possess-to the country, and that you will live in their lands,
Take great care not to imitate these nations, and to inform you of their ceremonies by saying: I want to follow myself the worship which these nations have honored their gods.

“You shall not worship the Lord in this way—”
Lord your God; for they did to honor their gods all the abominations that the Lord has in horrorreur, by offering them their sons and daughters as sacrifices, and burning them in the fire.

Under the judges, we see many times, the Jews return to the bloody worship of false gods. From time to time
In time, God's messengers snatched them from the abyss.
They were back in operation a few months later. It seems that the taste for blood, that the idea of bloody sacrifice was the very essence of this people who never understood the a marvelous story that God was weaving through him, using him before his crude and savage hands. Also the act of Jephthah — sacrificing, in an unprecedented blindness, his daughter of God himself who abhorred blood — not pa-
Wouldn't it have provoked disapproval? By dint of sacrifice-
Proud of the human victims at Moloch, we were getting used to to think that Jehovah could be honored in the same way manner.

“They mingled among the nations,” says the psalmist.

6 THE MYSTERY OF BLOOD

And they learned their works. They worshipped their idols. carved into sculptures: which was for them a causing a scandal. They sacrificed their sons and their girls to the demons. They spilled innocent blood, the blood of their sons and daughters... And the earth was infected by the abundance of blood they shed;
She has been defiled by their criminal deeds.

King Josiah had the vases thrown out of the Temple which were used in the worship of Baalet by all the stars of the sky.
He exterminated the augurs established to sacrifice on the high places in the cities of Judah; he put to death those whose incense was burning in honor of the sun and the moon, the signs of the zodiac and the stars; they overturned the small buildings, constructed within the Temple, which served as shelters to the devotees of the most infamous debauchery.

He desecrated the high places, where the priests of idols from one end of his states to the other, without omitting those of Topheth, so that no one would consecrate- He added that his son or daughter had been exposed to Moloch by fire; he took away the horses given to the sun by the kings of Judah, and He burned the chariots of this god; he destroyed the high altars on the dome of Ahaz's chamber, and those who had Manasseh built in the two courtyards of the temple of Lord.

He desecrated the high places to the right of the mountain of Scandal, raised by Solomon to Astarte, goddess of Sidonians, in Chamos the scandal of Moab, and in Moloch the abomination of the Ammonites; finally he killed all the pre- they devoted to the altars of the high places; they exterminated those inspired by a Python-like spirit and made disappear from the midst of the people, everything that drove him to these acts filthy and abominable.

This reform, although radical, was not yet

long-term and Israel quickly returned to the monstrous- sites that he was pleased to admit into his cult. The book The Book of Wisdom tells us about the religion of these peoples. that the Jews liked to imitate: "They kill without compassion their own children; they eat, and they are the entrails of men; they drink, and it is blood human victims.

“Go,” the Lord said to Jeremiah, “go to the valley of the son of Ennon, and you shall say: Hear the word of the Lord, kings of Judah and you, inhabitants of Jerusalem. This is what says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: “I will to unleash my vengeance upon this place, plagues such as Everyone who hears about it will be horrified. Because they abandoned me to serve gods foreigners whom their fathers did not know, whom they have filled this place with innocent blood, and built high places to burn their children there, and offer them as a burnt offering to these gods; things which I did not ordain, which I I did not speak, and who have never gone up in my heart; the days are coming and the valley of Ennon will be called the Valley of Carnage.

Such were the excesses to which the people stooped chosen, despite the rigors of the old law. What a- will come these idolatrous people when the right wing of God will no longer be with them, when the all-powerful help- - the Lord of the Most High will have abandoned them, when the deicide will it burden their arms and blind their eyes?

It's easy to presume. All the bad instincts will thrive in vegetation voluptuous, the spirit of superstition will stifle the spirit of religion and the most hideous rites will become the appearance swimming from the synagogue.

The infamous executioners of Golgotha, abandoned by God, cursed by Heaven, will roll from abyss to abyss, from darkness upon darkness, to end in a mire without name: they will no longer have prophets to guide them Expensive, but rabbis to push them further into this vortex of infamy. They despised the Messiah, — the light; they will no longer see the truth.

This decline is logical.

It is also historic; let's show it.

CHAPTER II

THE TALMUD

In the time when Jesus of Nazareth ministered, in the lands of Judea, his fruitful apostolate, two main sects were vying for influence over Israel.

The Sadducees — the materialists and the Epicureans of that time — although descended from royal lineage, rejected the spirituality of the soul; they soon came to deny The existence of angels and Satan. Exclusively occupied of pleasures and debauchery, they had nothing on the masses of the nation that has a rather limited influence.

The true leaders of the national party, the drivers of the The people, they were the Pharisees. Taking the law at face value. letter, they had failed the organs of interpretation traditional scriptures, "the doctors of casuistic." They pressured consciences and imposed revolting and impossible precepts. In their world, everything was outside: provided that appearances were Even if they were preserved, the man was just and holy.

his soul would have been as covered in sins as the month
May is full of flowers.

How many times had the Savior risen up against these artisans of lies and hypocrisy, by flagellating their practices
superstitious ticks, by comparing them to sepulchers whitewashed, accusing them of putting their traditions meñdreamers above God's law. We see by The Gospel showed that oaths didn't bother them much: swearing on The Temple and the altar were nothing; so that the oath obligeat, it was to be uttered on the gold of the temple, on the offerings placed at the altar. To these aberrations they joi-

the most shameful vices, such as robbery and usury; they levied tithes on the property of the poor and oppressed the widow and the orphan.

After the great sacrifice of the God-Man on the mountain
At the Calvary church, these flaws worsened. It was at to whom this death was due, and in punishment of their hard-hearted, they were struck by a blindness fatal. They continued to teach the people, but they They moved further and further away from Mosaic law; they soon even came to forget him completely and to him to substitute their own doctrine. That is how they for-gradually revealed the Jews we know and develop the bad trends to an excessive degree which we revealed in the first chapter.

Before the total dispersal of their coreligionists, the rabbis compiled their teachings into a single code scattered. This code was the Talmud. It became the book of all truth from true Judaizers and in this work
we will only refer to the faithful as Jews savage and unsociable traditions of this code, in a
the word the pure follower of Pharisaic orthodoxy.

That's why it seemed useful to us to give before a brief overview of the historical composition of Talmud, and on dogmatic and moral doctrines that it contains. This is thanks to a book that has had so much influence.
influence on the destinies of the Jewish nation and that because Christians should study this closely. Perhaps would they find the solution to serious problems there?

The Talmud was written in the early centuries of the Christian era, in two different places, in Jerusalem and in Babylon; thus, two Talmuds are distinguished. Chacun is named after the city where it was composed.

The first idea of the Jerusalem Talmud is due to Rabbi Judah Ben-Simon, or Judah the Holy, great-grandson of Gamaliel I!, who had been the teacher of Saint Paul. He lived at the beginning of the third century; he established in writing the Mishnah (second law) which he had the pre; attempt to trace back to Moses through tradition oral. It was like the core of the Talmud.

“It is the foundation,” Vigouroux wrote, “the starting point.” and like the text of the code, including the Talmud itself is the commentary. The authority is regarded as indisputable in Judaism. The language is Hebrew, mixed with Aramaic, Greek and Latin expressions. There are some changes in the Baby- Mishnah lone. It is said that they were introduced into the text by R. Judah while the primitive version remained in force in Palestine.

It is primarily in the ghemara (commentary) that git The difference between the two Talmuds. That of Jehovah

After the capture of Jerusalem by Titus, the Sanhedrin was reconstituted appointed to Jamnia by Jochanan, and his authority was recognized: by: the entire Jewish community. In the year 80, the head of the Sanhedrin was GamaJiel IE, son of Gamaliel I, who claimed descent from the great Hillel. Since then, the dignity of Nassi, or 'patriarch', was hereditary” in this family.

is much shorter and was completed towards the end of the 4th century. It is attributed to the commentators of the Mishnah who, imitating their elders, in turn felt the need to fix their impressions. Upon completion of this compilation, the Jewish Patriarchate of Palestine disappeared with Gamaliel V, the last descendant of Hillel.

It was not the same in Babylon. Since the great captivity, a large number of Jews had held not to abandon the banks of the Tigris and Euphrates.

They lived there in a kind of unique society,
in the midst of their religious traditions that they had faithfully preserved. They kept them for a long time.
headed by a "prince of exile," to whom the Persian kings recognizedsuccessively held very extensive rights. There were In these regions, schools flourished. But in the 5th century, Under Firouz, these schools were closed, as were the synagogues were destroyed.

The rabbis, believing that the time of the dispersion
The final and total moment had come, they wanted it before the moment of the final separation, leaving an imperishable memory
to come from their teaching and that of their teachers:
They wrote the Gemara. It is ten or eleven times more more extensive than the Mishnah and was compiled by R. Aschi his disciple Abina. This Babylonian Talmud, which consisting of twelve folio volumes, among the Jews
a greater authority than that of Jerusalem, perhaps-to be because he is more impious, more unjust and more explicit about the hatred that should be felt towards Christians.
The Talmud spread among the Jews with great speed and from the 'first centuries of our era it had force of law in Jewish communities.

The Church Fathers, Saint Justin, Origen, Saint Epi-
They were already familiar with some of the treatises. Saint Jerome said that this second law of the Jews "is full of fables and of precepts so shameful that he would be ashamed to utter them.” Saint Augustine condemns these oral traditions of the Jewish doctors.

and in particular their doctrine on polygamy: “By a gross error, he said, and to justify their morality
as being of divine institution, they claim that God
He created two wives for Adam: hence these endless genealogies and these fables already condemned by Saint Paul."

As early as 552, Justinian forbade the dissemination of this book throughout the empire. Since then, the kings and The emperors renewed these decrees; the popes and the councils have repeatedly formally
They condemned these doctrines and burned the book.

But nothing worked. The Jews still hold their Talmud in great honor and continue to do so rule of their conduct.

Rabbi Isaac Abnab teaches us that the foundation The Jewish religion is based on oral law, or tradition. Fathers, and not the law written by Moses: "It is in consideration-Degradation of the oral law that God made a covenant with the Israelites, as it is written: Quia juxta verba pango tecum fedus..... and these words are the treasures of God holy and blessed.

“Abrabanel,” said Rupert, “and the most esteemed masters” members of the synagogue supported the same opinion; They argue that the oral law contained in the Talmud has clarified the difficulties of the mosaic law and resolved them the gaps. In the book entitled Horcoim, it is established that all those who mock the synagogue leaders, or say something contrary to their teachings-will be thrown into the depths of hell to be tormented there mentioned. The rabbis even teach, concerning the Talmud, that, if there is anything in this book which a kind of natural order or one that surpasses our intelligence agency, we must blame the weakness of understanding-human nature, because, by meditating on it deeply, one note that the Talmud contains only pure truth.

"Rity."

Consequently, "those who violate the precepts of Rabbis should be punished more severely than those who violate the law of Moses; the offender of the law of Moses can be absolved, absolvi potest; but the violator Violating the precepts of the rabbis must be punished by death: death moriatur. » |

Since that is the case, everyone will understand from which It is necessary to study this doctrine. We will know it. The following summary provides sufficient information.

H

Dogmatic doctrine

We will only give a brief overview of the dogmas taught in the Talmud. What we want most of all What this work studies is Talmudic morality, and the sad fruits it has borne. However, it is necessary that the reader learns, through a few quotations, what blasphemies contain the religious code of the Jews of our time. A

Peter the Venerable, Abbot of Cluny, recounts Rohrbadear, wrote a treatise in five books against the Jews; and, In the fifth, he confuses them by simply to turn against them the absurd and impious fables of the Talmud. In one of them, to this question: "What is God doing?" "In the sky?" the pages of the master book answer: "He does nothing there but assiduously read the Talmud, and to confer with the Jewish scholars who have composed. Now, one day, during one of these conferences, he There was talk of different kinds of leprosy, and someone asked whether such and such a disease was or was not a leprosy. God had an opinion, and unfortunately for him, The rabbis were of a different opinion. Following heated debates... Concussions, the decision in this case was referred by a joint agreement to Rabbi Nehemiah, that the land still had the The happiness of possession. The idea then came to God to do to bring down the angel of death, with the mission of bringing to Heaven, the soul of this wise man; but the angel found this rabbi reading the Talmud, and the Talmud is such a holy reading that Anyone who immerses themselves in it cannot die. The angel therefore saw himself forced to resort to cunning; and, according to the Lord's command, He made such a racket above the rabbi's house, that he momentarily turned his eyes away from the Talmud and could be struck.

Rabbi Nehemiah's soul immediately ascended towards the heavenly dwellings; there she found God wholly occupied with to discuss the issue and to defend it against the saints doctors of Judaism, and exclaimed at first: "No, "Indeed, this disease is not leprosy!" —DieurouHe accepted his defeat, but he did not dare to rise up against the dedecision of such a great doctor, and soon it was heard to exclaim: "Ah! My children have defeated me!"

These sad ramblings are reminiscent of doctri- follies Hindu beliefs about divinity; those who They were the chosen people and have now descended to the lowest rank of humanity. That is how The proud are punished: they have disregarded God and his prophetic orders, God has taken away the light that...

They used to guide them, and today they don't even notice.
That they are ridiculous. Here is further proof:

“God,” they say, “repents of having scattered the Jews.”
and having thrown them into misfortune: he himself made unhappy by this fault, and every day of-Then, two large tears fell from her eyes in the ocean; the sound of the waves and the earthquakes have no other cause. He took a void oath and guilty when he swore that the Israelites would not no part in eternal life; but he has freed himself from this oath.
"God once lied to establish peace between Abraham and Sarah; for the sake of peace, it is to us
So, lying is allowed.

“God is the cause of sin, since he gave us an evil nature and that he imposed upon us the yoke of his law.” Let us draw the conclusion from this abhorrent maximnable: The Jew never sins, he is not responsible of no evil deed.

It is not only the teaching of theodicy that is reprehensible. Superstitions and witchcraft have all their foundation in the Talmud: “The patriarch Abraham, the rabbis say, practiced sorcery.
And he taught him: he wore a precious stone around his neck.
magical, which healed the sick, and the rabbis of The Talmud had some that could restore life to moris. »

“There are 600,000 souls created by God and drawn from the divine substance: they belong to the Jewish race.
The souls of other men come from demons and are similar to those of beasts. Cain had three souls, one entered Korah's body, the other...
Jethro, the third in the Egyptian whom Moses struck down death. The soul of Esau, murderer and adulterer, passed into the body of Jesus. The impious Jews, who apostatize or who kill a Jew, after their death, pass into the state of a-animal or plant, but their souls transmigrate into-continued in humanity and finally returned to the Israelite people; for every child of Abraham must end by entering eternal life.

M

"Hell is sixty times larger than heaven; because it is intended for all the uncircumcised, especially to Christians.

"The Messiah will come and he will restore the kingdom to the Jews; All peoples and all kings will recognize it and the will serve; but he will refuse the offerings of the Christians; After his advent, every Jew will have 2,800 servants and 310 women.

These quotes are taken from a German brochure, has become very rare, despite editions and translations French, English, and Russian, which have been multiplied: the Jews seize them as soon as they appear and destroy. The author, Dr. Rohling, has agreed to pay 1,000 thalers to anyone who proves the falsity of a any quote.

It is to this brochure that we will turn for information. materials on Jewish morality; another very good book Also rare, the Syrian Affairs, by Ac. Laurent, we will provide some examples: these are translated passages in 1840, for the Damascus court, by Mohammed-Effendi, a rabbi converted to Islam, of whom we we will talk about this at greater length in the story of the famous trial of 1840. The translations of this ex-rabbi have were fully approved by the chief rabbi of Damascus. There is no way to doubt their veracity and of their accuracy.

ere ae ee De DOSE CIO CN = PSOE SG LK e DUI

II

Moral doctrine

4° ON THE NEXT

It is a feeling that can be found everywhere, except Among some savages, it is that of human brotherhood. Maine. This sentiment is unknown among the Jewish nation: in the eyes of the Orthodox Jew, any foreigner to his religion Gion is not a man, but a brute. He is

According to the Talmud, it is a sin to enter into a partnership with the idolaters (non-Jews).

“An Israelite is more pleasing to God than the angels.” Giving him a slap is just as bad as giving him one to God. A goi who strikes an Israelite is worthy of the dead. The Christian race is a cattle race: descended of the devil, they are called pigs; they are not not the next one either, nor the animal, and it is not allowed them to show mercy; concealed it- - Expressions of affection and outward displays of affection are permissible. only in cases where one can derive an advantage from it tage. »

"It is self-evident that when- that a traveler foreign to Judaism should die without leaving behind proselytizing children, he must be considered to have no heirs; whoever enters first in possession of his property, will be judged legitimate possession "Seurt."

Maimonides. — Commentary on chapter XC of the Mishnah.

Here are some excerpts translated by Mohammed-Effendi:

"An idolater who strikes an Israelite deserves death." Moses, during his stay in Egypt, killed an Egyptian, who, before his very eyes, had struck down an Israelite. To give a To slap a Jew is as if one were offering him to God.

"The idolater who sanctifies one day of the week deserves death, God having said: “You shall not rest day, nor night; » he would incur this penalty, even though this would be any other day than Saturday. The idolater who Reading the Bible must also suffer death, the Bible being intended only for the Jews. As for whoever would take it, he "He must perish." (Chapter Sahandérin, p. 58.)
© This death threat bursts forth on every page of the Talmud. "They are referred to as the sons of Noah," it is said again, all peoples other than the Israelites, those-having separated themselves and having recognized God from that time from Abraham to Israel. The sons of Noah can be killed on the conviction of a single rabbi and the deposition-tion of a single witness, even if the witness were a relative of the individual denounced. If the latter killed a Jewish woman He was pregnant and caused the death of the child she was carrying; he deserves the dead. It is different for an Israelite, who does not can only be killed by a decision of twenty rabbis and of two witnesses; yet he does not deserve death for having caused the child to perish in its mother's womb; such "The Jew should pay the price for the child."

How could the most fervent fanaticism not be unleashed? of these poisonous precepts? How can such advice Wouldn't they generate repulsion among the people Thus treated? The Talmudists themselves foretold it and they stooped so low as to give to their fellow believers The following advice:

“If a Jew,” they say in the treaty cited above, Walking down the street, he meets a stranger, he will do it pass to his right, if he is armed with a saber, and to his left- if he is equipped with a staff, because the sword is carried As far as the left is concerned, the Jew will be more within reach to restrain him. in case the stranger wanted to draw it, and the stick... Holding with his right hand, the Jew will take with his left, in order to to hold the other person's hand, if they try to lift the stick. If the stranger happens to be climbing a hill, the The Jew must go forward and be careful not to bend down for fear of being killed. If the other person inquires about his destination he will indicate a distant place, so that the stranger, trusting over the length of the journey, always believes he has time to kill him, and that he himself might by this expedient to save their lives.

Alongside these childish or odious fears, we findvons expressed a contempt for foreigners which he It's difficult to get an accurate idea. Those who don't have no hour of being born into the glorious Jewish sect, are thereby excluded from humanity: in the treaty Aroubim, it is said that their houses are veritable stables, and in the Bahiamoteth treatise, we read: “The tomThe beautiful things of foreigners do not defile, they are not impure, like those of the Jews, because they are animals "ills."

These extracts, by teaching us the true principles of Jewish morality will help us understand, in part, the hatred with which the Middle Ages enveloped them; they were given back the punishment of retaliation, they made their own word, as in Frankfurt where they wrote at the entrance to The promenade: "Jews and pigs are forbidden" "Come in here!"

9 ON THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS

“You shall not steal from your neighbor,” said the deca-
- the Gospel of Moses; but the god is not our neighbor, and Moses did not write: You shall not steal from the wicked. The
The world belongs to the Jews: stealing from others besides the Jews
"It is not an injustice." – Therefore, it is necessary to "avoid the "Foreigners are becoming property owners." Furthermore-their what the goim possess has the value of one abandoned property: the first occupant is the owner-silence.

From this it is easy to conclude that any theft committed at Harm to a foreigner is not true theft: it sin only occurred when the illicitly removed object appeared It belongs to an Israelite. The Talmud states this explicitly:
"It is permissible for you to deceive a goi and to practice usury."
with regard to him; but when you sell to your neighbor or You will not deceive him if you buy from him. God does not will not forgive the Jew who returns lost property to a goy;
for it strengthens the power of the wicked. Sile goi comes to lose the pledge that a Jew had given him in order to obtain
"As for the money, neither the money nor the pledge can be returned."

We read in the tractate Arubim: “The son of Noah who steals an object even if it's worth less than a para.
deserves to be killed, since he violates one of the seven commandments
the gifts that God gave to the children of Noah; he did not know-he could not obtain his forgiveness in any way, he restored the stolen item. God did not prescribe the restitution of the stolen.
than to the Israelites, if one of them steals and restores
The stolen object, he is absolved; but anyone other than a Jew,
If he stole less than the value of a paratrooper, he deserves death.
"immediately and without mercy."

99 THE MYSTERY OF BLOOD

The precept of usury, which has been mentioned a little while ago above, comes from the fact that Moses had allowed to be taken-to show interest when lending to a foreigner. From this The rabbis had permission to make a strict duty: "God,
they say, ordered us to take usury on everything
gol, and to lend to him only on that condition; otherwise, that would be helping him; it is necessary to harm him, even when-
that it can be useful to us: with regard to an Israelite,

Usury is prohibited. – “The life of the goi belongs to you!”
How much more so his money!

And throughout history, Jews have placed their actions in rapport with this precept: "Jew and usury are," says Gougenot Mousseaux, two words linked together by a a cohesive force twenty centuries old; and to this day No power of reasoning could overcome it, this strength! "

It is in vain that many Jewish writers have raised against this accusation. We believe more in actions rather than words; and the actions of the Talmudic scholars unfortunately denote everywhere and always a little an irresistible song that withstands wear and tear.

How many times have the nations of Europe rejected them! from their midst because of these atrocities of which they could not were going to defend themselves. The popes, the kings, the abbots, the councils take turns denouncing their manipulations: the pou- Public sights force them to confess, and yet, at after a short time, at the most competitive price

It is written: “Shall I not hate him who hates you, Lord?” Take the life of the best of idolaters. He who removes from A ditch saves an idolater; it is forbidden to take a idolater out of pity. He who sheds the blood of the wicked (of the non-Jews) offer a victim to God. The precept: "You shall not kill,

This means: You shall not kill a son of Israel.” – Quoted by Rohling, op. cit., p. 41.

Degrading, they return to the countries that expelled them. they resume their innocent little jobs in apparence, and one fine day the whole of society wakes up caught in an inextricable net that they have painstakingly and silently woven. "In the Middle Ages," says Michelet, The one who knows where the gold is, the true alchemist, the real one The sorcerer is the Jew or the half-Jew, the Lombard; the Jew, The filthy man: the man who cannot touch food nor woman, that they should not be burned; the man of outrage, on which everyone spits on; it's him we need address them!... Dirty and prolific nation! But they have resolved the problem of wealth disappearing. Freedmen By the bill of exchange, they are now free, they They are masters! From one blow to the next, there they are on the throne of the world!

Yes, there can be no doubt about it, "God commanded the Jews to take away the property of Christians in any way that it may be, either by cunning and force, or by usury and theft: quovis modo, sive dolo, sive vi, sive usura, stve furto! » Usury is therefore for the faithful of the The Talmud defines an act of holiness, the act whose practice... brings us closer most usefully, for time and eternity, of the loyalty of his fathers.

3° ON WOMEN

It would be interesting to conduct a comprehensive study on the the lamentable condition of women among the Jews, condition which is made to it by the Talmud. But such is not our goal, and moreover we would encounter in this This study contains too many obscenities, which our Christian sense...

' L. Ferrari, — Prompta bibliotheca.

forbidden to afflict the souls of our readers. One page of | contemporary author will put before our eyes a por-
a very accurate trait of the Jewish woman of the Talmud.

"The Jewish woman," he said, "has earned more than her husband." to the benefits brought about by the progress of civilization-tion and freedom. Women were nothing but slaves everywhere and always, and it was on her that the effects fell. of her husband's long-constrained mood; she was the instrument of his pleasures, a scapegoat inconstantly intended to soothe sorrows and grief of misery and persecution!

"Responsible for all domestic care and perpetuating-" To kill the family, the Jewish woman seemed to have been born only for that; his monotonous life unfolded amidst all these concerns... happy again when her self-
His devotion and dedication did not attract him complaints and mistreatment. The woman was not counted as nothing in the social state of the Israelites; its birth was not like that of men, consirecorded in the community register; his death did not was not the object of any such act; his active and suffering life swept across the earth like a hurricane. No one taught Jewish girls received nothing but literature, science, and...

arts; nothing of trades, nothing of morality or religion
gion; they were only accustomed to suffering and silence.
They were forbidden entry to the Temple until their ma-marriage, and it is hard to understand their devotion, even their fanaticism, when we know that Judaism has nothing as for women, that he grant them no place in the social hierarchy!

If this is the woman within Judaism, what should-

' A. Cerbeer. - The Jews, their history, their customs, p. 49.

What will she be like when she lives among strangers? - One brute, nothing but a brute so degraded that the Talmud sup-
the assumption that foreigners prefer Jewish animals to their own wives. In the Barakouth treaty we read that an Egyptian woman is called a donkey and treated as such as the religious code of the Jews, in several places, clearly conveys the idea that foreign women should-vent be relegated to the rank of mere female animals pains.

Therefore, "must the precept of Moses against adultery to be heard by the one who commits an act to the detriment of a Jewish, not a goy. There is no true marriage among them.
foreigners, no more than animals. The Jew does not commit adultery by raping the wife: of a Christian. He could not commit any injustice by-to his own wife, in whatever way he treats her
"in marriage."

From this the reader will judge the purity of the teaching.
Talmudic ment. However, we have not revealed here that only a very small part of the depravities he refirm. | |

The rest is too sickening, and we cannot rai-reasonably expose it to the eyes of our readers.

TO? ON THE OATH

It is customary to distrust the oath sworn by the Jews towards Christians. "We have good reason never to be there proud. They only take such an oath when they are there are constrained by our laws, but it does not entail for them

no obligation, nor if they lent it towards an animal: besides, that's enough for them and they think they are per-

2

put into using mental restraint to remove from the service "All value."

In their country, it is very easy to be released from a servitude. awkwardly. "Even today," Drach writes, "it is before a tribunal of three that the letters of divorce, etc.; and three Jews ANY other The Jew is seated, and they have full authority to release him from his oaths and to cancel his promises, his commitments, both for the past and for the future. » |

There are even days of remission in the synagogues solemn ceremony, where the Jews are absolved of all sin and of any oath, without any question of restitution. Before the usual ceremonies begin, three men, assembled in tribunal, and placed at the head of the assistance, cancel by their full authority all the vows, all commitments and oaths of each of the assistants, both those from the past year than those of the year in which one entered. We call that Kol-Nidraz.

The Yom Kippur festival in particular is reserved for this a benevolent ceremony. On that day, in the presence of the Divine being, the Jews offer a prayer that begins like this: “Omnia vota, pacta, juramenta...” and by which they believe that all vows, all conactions they may or may not have taken in the during the previous year.

“In this belief,” said Rupert, “instead of looking at each other—” They are treated like criminals and perjurers, they are convinced dice of their candor and sincerity. Add to that that the Jew has a particular formula, accompanied by various external acts, to pronounce an oath: the Christian who is unaware of these details, He believes in the oath, while the Jew swore without scruple.

something contrary to the truth. Maimonides and the Rabbi

Moïse Cozzen proposes a large number of these detours.
and these subtleties to deliver their coreligionists
of the obligation to uphold their oaths.

Thus, on the night before Yom Kippur, they declare that every time, in the following year,
They will be obliged to make a vow or an oath, he will-
will be regarded as worthless and will not attributable to sin. By coming to the synagogue in
In the presence of their rabbis, they hold in their hands the book of the law and pronounce these words: “I, N..., I declare before God and before all that all the servants things I will do for someone during the coming year chain, and that I will have promised to observe, while my will not consent to observe them, I want them be null and void, and of no value and not attributable to sin,

if I do not accomplish them.

The novice Pferfferkorn writes: "Sometimes it happens-every time a debate arises between a Christian and a Jew subject of a pledge, a loan, a fixed period or of something important, so that, in the absence of Evidence shows that the Jew is obligated to take an oath according to the rites of his religion. He doesn't object, and He swears, though deeply convinced that he is swearing a a false thing, and he fears no avenging God of the par-swears. If by chance he refuses to take the oath, that doesn't It does not stem from his love for justice or truth, but from the fear of being severely punished if one came
...to convince him of a false oath. Therefore, the Jews did not...
"Neither religion nor faith is mentioned in their oaths."

All the self-serving denials in the Jewish newspapers will not be enough to destroy these overwhelming testimonies emanating from competent individuals of diverse nationalities verses, from different eras and which had no in-interest in letting these hang over the heads of the Israelite people hideous accusations.

5° ON CHRISTIANS

Throughout history, there has been hateful animosity towards Jesus-Christ and his divine religion have been regarded as a duty in the Pharisaic synagogue. This hatred res-worse on every page of the Talmud.

In the Barakouth treatise, we read: “He who re-
The guardian of the tombs of the Jews must say: Blessed is he who created us for the law, who gave us life and to die in the law, which has promised to resurrect us by the law, and who knows our number; blessed be he who raises the dead! — But if one sees the tom-
If a foreigner is handsome, one should say: "Shame on your Mother! May she who gave birth to you be blasphemed!
for the end of these peoples will be bad and barren as the land of the desert.

Later, we will speak at length about Jewish hatred.
Daic against Christianity; let it suffice for us to Let us quote here again some words from the Talmud:

“A Hebrew who kills a man with the intent to-intent to kill an animal, or a Hebrew, a brother, in "Thinking he is killing a Christian, he will be absolved." (Treaty of Sahan(derim.)

Maimonides writes: “When the Israelites have a dis-
A whore with a goi must be judged according to Christian law.
Look, because this one is to the Israelite's advantage: we
We will therefore invoke the constitutions of the goi. But if we see some benefit in being judged according to our

under the law, we will claim our rights, and we will say Thus do our customs dictate, and let no one be...
No wonder. That shouldn't seem all that extraordinary.
that it may seem harsh and cruel to kill an animal, although it has not sinned; for whoever does not have the perfection of human virtues, should not truly be regarded like a man: the end of his essence is to serve to the needs of others. »

The authors of the notes made to interpret the treaty
The Mishnah entitled Avodah Zara also have in-taught that "the followers of the doctrine of Jesus must-vent be treated in such a way that if they are seen near to die, they are finished off; that, if one is found near a well, they throw it in and cover it with a stone, and that if there is a ladder in the well, it is removed in order to
'that he cannot go back up'. This advice is perfect.
ment conforming to the merciless morality of the phari-
his own; an author who enjoys great authority will make them even better known in the third part of this work.

In another part of the same treaty, we read: "It cannot be permitted to form an alliance with the idolaters, nor to negotiate peace with them; we must simply trying to disabuse them of their errors, or kill them... This must be understood as referring to idolaters, in general. As for those who destroy Israel and lead it to his downfall, like heretics and blasphemers, It is a good deed to destroy them, and to carry them with their mother at the bottom of the abyss, since they hold- They cause Israel distress, and distance the people from The way of God. Such are Jesus of Nazareth and his disciples. ciples whose names are cursed; from which we must conclude that it is forbidden to treat the adora as a doctor-followers of Jesus, even for a fee!, to unless there is a serious danger in refusing.

2:

This, in broad terms, is the pale summary of the doctrine. 'Talmudic. The facts that will be discussed in the two The following books will soon give him a terrible confidence mature.

IV

We find in the book of a Jew, Solomon ben Sevet, a passage that should greatly attract our attention. This author tells the story of the Jews who lived in Spain before being driven out. Unwittingly, he makes us to fully understand the prejudices and perversity of the Jewish morality.

He tells us about a conference that took place in 1412 before the sovereign pontiff, among learned rabbis Jews and the neophyte of Holy Faith, whose Hebrew name It was Joshua. The novice repeats the accusations made against the synagogue; he speaks of barbaric maxims contained in the Talmud, and he notes one conceived in Few words, but fraught with serious consequences. a maxim in which one can see the trace of mystery bloody, which we will discuss in the next chapter.

Solomon ben Sevet then made the pontiff speak as if he were to question Rabbis Samuel Abrabin and Solomon Levite. Here is the translation:

"Is it true that we read these words in your Talmud:

---

* Elsewhere, it is said that a learned physician does not must not deal with foreigners, even for a salary; one does not You can only do it to practice, get used to it, get some experience!

"Tov shebagoim herogh," that is, it's a good The act of killing the goin? — They replied: "It is True, O supreme pontiff. We hold it from our ancestors that everything that belongs to the law and the exposition of sacred letters were written by our masters, among whom Rabbi Aschav is found there; the rest was written by the commentators to confirm the thoughts of the first and later inserted into the text of the Talmud. For us, who have received the Talmud in its first redaction, We pay little attention to these words.” The pontiff he added: "In any case, they are written in the Talmud, and to prove what you admit, namely, that they were later inserted into the text, it would be necessary provide eyewitness testimony or demonstrate it by obvious reasons. You also have to tell me to know the true meaning of these words, because, to the good Considering them, they contain a cruel and bloodthirsty meaning. so that the Jews who live in my states, surrender worthy of just punishment.

“The famous Solomon the Levite replied thus: ‘O pontiff supreme, the ancients interpreted this passage, as They did it, from the severe administration of justice. usage among other nations in the punishment of mancide, and they claimed that he is simply opposed to the The Hebrews' overly lenient justice, which often ensured impunity for murderers. Indeed, before anyone In our country, if someone is led to torture, there must be... witnesses who tried to stop the hand of the homicide by threats; it is also necessary that these witnesses having observed the most minute circumstances, the Clothing, weapons; otherwise, homicide cannot be punished. The elders assured that the passage of which he This is specifically opposed to this manifest sentiment.

by some illustrious men, that if we had lived In the time of our judges, no one could have been convicted.
damned to death as a homicide, for fear that, if,
By chance, the victim had previously had some illness or received some injury that was certainly fatal
she should not be considered as similar to a dead person;
which should in turn make the aggressor consider himself as not having killed a healthy man, that is to say
'truly a man, but only a dying one. Now,' Among us, whoever kills a dying person cannot legally-to be condemned to the ultimate torture.

"The other nations rightly judged that the homicides would gradually multiply if we allowed crime this ease and this impunity. If, indeed, it were necessary to submit under such rigorous scrutiny the manifest crimes and the acts of the guilty, these could almost always with impunity indulge their rage and carry out their sinister designs. It is therefore sufficient, among other peoples, to have well-founded suspicions to condemn to death
the homicide, and to intimidate others by his torture.
Therefore, can we say that there is nothing better among the nations, that the strict administration of justice and the
The death penalty was established for homicides.

"Moreover, the words that are the subject of this discussion-
sion should not be directed in an imperative sense.
as Pierre (the novice) heard them. But in an indeterminate meaning, that is to say, they mean that Killing is an excellent thing among nations or Christians. There is no commandment to kill, there is no that a general formula saying that for nations
It is an excellent thing to kill; so that in exacarefully mining the determined passage, one does not will find neither the order to kill Christians, nor the harshness the barbarity that one thinks one sees there. On the contrary, one recognizes-

It will be born that these words are glorious and honorable for Christians, since they praise their conduct;
because they say it's an excellent custom among the nations, that those who devote themselves to the study of virtue and May justice prevail, and may the severe avengers of the scoundrels be brought to bear.
and condemn them to the ultimate torture."

The pontiff replied: "If the masters in doctrine
The Talmud agrees that they do not want to punish as homicide is that in which the victim could have died at a distance

Ravant of illness, without a doubt, they were all mistaken. and rendered unworthy of the name of wise. Who does not understand. that there is an absurd and pernicious opinion there, which ensures, for the most frivolous reason, impunity to the ho"Micide?"

Here is the response of Solomon Levite: “The prophet Amos, chapter 3, pronounced this oracle: Tantum vos cognovi ex omnibus gentibus terre, idcirco visitabo super your iniquitates vestras!. He therefore who escapes the tribe- earthly, and is not punished in this world, does not escape- He certainly will not be in the heavenly court. Our fathers We have been taught that those who are punished in this world, fully atone for their sins, and may those who avoid earthly justice cannot escape that of Heaven, and cannot cause them to fall into even greater evils after this life. "

The pontiff replied again: "This reasoning has of some value. However, it is necessary that justice human dignity may be exercised in this life, so that fear

'I have known no one but you of all the nations of the earth; it is why I will punish you for all your iniquities. The text of the Vulgate is this: Tantummodo vos cognovi ex omnibus cognationibus earth; idcirco visitabo super vos omnes iniquitates vestras.

"May punishment restrain wicked men." — Peter He then said: "Most Holy Father, with what cunning and what The Jews speak of treachery! They substitute auda- beautifully distinguishes between falsehood and truth. Moreover, the words that The following are included: The best among butchers is the journeyman of Amalek, cannot be repeated by them to our praise, but rather to our shame; likewise the The words indicated are: Tor shebagoim herigh... »

The reader will no doubt have noticed which The Jews employ subtle evasions throughout this conference, and what paradox they resorted to to exonerate the Talmud.

The words of the novice Peter are significant and conclusive. Raised in the synagogue, he had con- defeated that everything there is falsehood and lies, and he was entered the Catholic Church to find the truth: he could not so quickly fail in his desire, accusing falsely claiming to know his brothers. He did not deceive the pontiff.

Roman.

Moreover, the meaning of the Hebrew words quoted does not does not allow for any other conclusion. The meaning–
The rigorous interpretation of the Talmudic sentence is: "It is
"It's a good thing to massacre Christians."
too many clearly proven facts demonstrate to us–
They will soon realize that this dreadful maxim is far away of having remained a dead letter.

V

After the exposition of the preceding doctrine, we will not we will not be surprised by the words of MA Laurent, where he fully confirms the revelations of Drach, the rabbi converted: |

"The Babylonian Talmud is the only one that is followed. It forms a collection that has no fewer than twelve volumes folio. The two Talmuds stifle, as has been strongly felt.
Well said, the law and the prophets. That's the religious code of the Modern Jews are quite different from those of the ancient Jews.
This is where all beliefs are contained; and when one has the courage to peruse this immense collection there one finds the still active causes of hatred of peoples against the scattered remnants of Israel.

"This is the book that everyone studies and comments on."
those among the Jews who claim the title of scholar.
According to these comments, the text of the Bible is not more than a historical account, a collection of principles and sublime laws; it is now nothing more than an allegory that the Ghémara explains in the strangest way and the more ridiculous. It is from this comment that the following are derived the chimeras of the Cabal, the dangerous errors of the magic, the summoning of good and evil spirits, a
a long pile of moral errors, and a borrowed theogony to Chaldea and Persia. The Gemara is, according to the Modern Jews, fulfillment, /perfection, and that is even there what its name means in Hebrew; but in
In reality, this comment destroys the law through its interpretations.
ridiculous or absurd statements and by principles of hatred that it contains, for all men who do not part of what he calls the people of God.

This assessment aligns well with what was written, in 1803, a former rabbi converted to the Greek religion. In a moving chapter that we will have our readers, it reveals everything concerning the mystery of the blood, and he concludes with a few words on the Talmud, at the doctrine from which he attributes the cause of the hideous events that he recounted:

"Suffice it to say," he said, "that he is absolutely commanded by God to all Jews that three times by One day they curse the Christians and pray to God to... destroy. This is especially imposed on rabbis. God orders the Jewish nation to appropriate the wealth Christians; and this, regardless of the manner in which they do so: whether through deceit, fraud, or usury. Jews must, according to the law, imagine that Christians they are no different from ferocious beasts, and they must treat them all the same. The pagans, the Turks, Idolaters do neither good nor evil; Christians do all possible evil. If a Christian finds himself on the edge From a precipice, the Jew, if he can do so without harming himself, must to throw him in and kill him that way. The churches of the Christians are places of prostitution dedicated to idols; That is why the Jews must destroy them. The Gospel is an unholy book, full of errors, blasphemies, and corruption; that is why the Jews must burn it although the holy name of God is written there.

And to explain the spirit in which he had spoken, the The converted rabbi adds: "May everything I write, O most Dear reader, do not let this be a cause for scandal. Truthfully, I know and I foresee that you will say: Is it possible that the Jews have descended to such a great immorality Literacy? — But you must know, you already know that the The Jews trampled the law of salvation underfoot and put themselves outside of all divine, human, and natural law. This punishment is inflicted upon them because of their harshness heart, which corrupted their faith and made them put The Talmud contains so many blasphemies that are horrifying. Suffice it to say that there is no such thing in the world as a belief more impious than that of the Jews, that there is none, at least in general, of a man who can on to pass off the Jew as impiety and treachery. And woe to the world if they manage to achieve supremacy!

"Ah! Let us continually pray to God with fervor so that that he might deign to soften the heart of this wayward nation to tear away the veil that blinds her and dispel the darkness in which she lives voluntarily.

We desire nothing else. Let that be clear.
It is not a thought of hatred or revenge that directs our pen in this search for truth,
but only the desire to stop the coulums savages who are a disgrace and an obstacle to good and
-to happiness for those who tolerate them.

This was written in 1803 by a man who, as we can see, the cons was born well and judged them soundly.

CHAPTER III

THE ACCUSATION

The immense unrest that has been occurring for the past few years
They torment old Europe everywhere, they are there for us learning that the human mind is terribly logical and consistent with the doctrines attributed to him as .
Pasture: False social and anti-Christian theories have given birth to the disarray in which we groan.
Man is made in such a way that he cannot last long in contemplation, and that of speech, he passes quickly to action.

Having accepted this principle, it will be easy for us to
to report on the effects produced in the Jewish world by Talmudic teachings.

No Orthodox Jew can escape the influence disastrous delivery of heterogeneous material. From the youngest age
They put this writing in his hands and for years
He will make it the daily nourishment of his intellect.
Through personal meditation, through teaching doctors, through family conversations, the
The Talmud irrevocably penetrates the soul of every Jew, and saturates it, so to speak, with its abominable digressions.
tions.

Two main effects naturally arise from this ordinary commerce: a terrible, ingrained, inex- hatred

Violable against everything that does not bear the name of Jew, and in particular against Christianity and a disposition-an irrevocable lion to endure all superstitions, to consecrate-to recreate all rites through a sacrosanct practice odious of the cabal and occult societies of the East.

Jewish hatred of Christianity is reflected in great day in various ways: through wear and tear, through barbaric and learned calumnies against teaching Christian, through odious persecutions, every time It's possible. This hatred is finally manifested in the atrocious sacrifices committed at all times, in all countries, on Christian figures, sacrifices of which we find traces on every page, from our columnists.

Anti-human self-immolations are also an expression the taste that Jews feel for superstitious rites tieux. This is the subject we will be dealing with here-particularly in this work, leaving to others the care to reveal the shameful Jewish enterprises on the fortune and the soul of humans.

Like all imprecations uttered against God, the vile Jewish imprecation, uttered during the The death of Christ has not passed away: the Jewish nation has asked that the blood of the God-Man fall back on she; and for eighteen centuries, this blood has weighed heavily inexpressible, on the guilty heads.

But blood calls for blood. Major criminals they are well aware of this deep-seated need that is revealed after the first crimes, and Shakespeare, in Lady Macbeth

He magnificently painted this bloodthirsty fury. The blood of Christ reddened his hands with an indelible mark. of Israel, and to destroy these frightening traces, these hands for centuries have been plunging into streams of Christian blood.

As the rest of this study will amply demonstrate, there is no longer any way to say, as the charitable P. Bonaventure at the Congress of Mechelen (1865): "No man serious people today believe in no country in the world Jews may believe they are authorized by their religion to sacrifice Christians.

Here is our bold answer:

— We emphasize and we will prove that, since the dispersion of the Jewish people to this day, in all centuries and most recently in our own, in almost all countries of the East and West, more than once the Jews were convicted in court of murdering Christian children during the Easter holidays; that these assassinations are committed in hatred of Christ and of his followers; that they were not the work of isolated men and blinded by superstition, but that they are national and legal crimes, observed and practiced by the entire Jewish people, whenever it seems possible- Possible and safe.

Not only is it a way to express their hatred and their revenge against Christianity, not only It is a pious work, but above all, first and foremost, the accompaniment: The perpetuation of these abominable practices is for them a strict duty, an obligation of conscience, an obset--legal advance imposed on them by the Talmud and the rabbis. Yes, it's according to the prescriptions of these documents. their murder of Christian children, not both to assassinate them and to sanctify themselves: same, by collecting the blood of these innocent victims, blood with which they will feed at the Easter solemnities, that is by mixing it into the wine, or by kneading it into the bread Wafer paper. These are incredible things, yet true. that the reader will find clearly proven in this work.

Many writers have addressed this question yet a little-known phenomenon: among historians of all countries, French, English, German, Italian, Spanish, we Let us examine the account of ritual assassinations; we find the same accusation of using Christian blood for all kinds of evil spells, curses or infamous ceremonies-religious denies.

A converted Jew, Jean de Feltre, recounts that in Germany Magne, until 1420, the Jews often renewed between them and in a completely secret way a ritual mysterious thing he had seen his father do, on the day and the day after Easter. "In those days," he said He, my father, took Christian blood and placed it in his cup, in which there was wine; then they sprinkled the table of this beverage. He also put some of this blood in the dough from which unleavened bread was made, and the Jews in "They ate at the Easter feast."

In Tongeren, his homeland, he had witnessed the killing of a child Christian whose blood had been collected; forty-Five Jews, convicted of this murder, were burned at the stake. lively.

In the year 1475, the Jews of Trent could not celebrate Passover, because no one possessed Christian blood Here. We'll see how they got it. We we will also see that, in the years that preceded, the blood what was needed had been brought to them from Germany by a blood merchant, by a horrible Jewish courier, who had made his fortune by exporting extracted blood in this way veins of Christian children.

The entire history of the Middle Ages is filled with the facts of This genre, and nowadays they are far from having disappeared.

A traveler in Egypt, Mr. Hamont, recounts that he I have often heard the people of this country say: "If the descendants of the men who crucified Jesus Christ, cannot buy children born into Christianity They choose a fat sheep and stab it one after the other, thus alluding to the death of Savior of the world.

Copts claim to have seen Jews buying Greek Mamluks and feed them to make them die in the time of the fairies.

A Jewish convert, Ben-Noud, who, having become a Christian Yours was called Catherine, a similar story to Count of Durforl-Civrac, during his journey in Orient. |

“Ben-Noud,” wrote the famous explorer, “came to dress in Latakia, where there are only three or four families Jewish women. During those three years, they were regularly sent-Aleppo-style unleavened bread necessary for the Easter. Ben-Noud says there are two kinds of bread. unleavened bread, which some call mossa and others mossa guésira (in Syriac guésira means to slaughter). The mossa guesira, similar to mossa, contains In addition, a mixture of human blood, but in sufficient quantity small quantity so as not to impart any taste by-particular. Blood is not kneaded with flour; one uses it applies a layer, a coating to the bread when it is made. Jews eat these unleavened breads during the seven days of their Passover. They only use the mossa when They are running out of mossa guésira. During the night preceding their Passover, there are very few Jewish families who do not crucify a rooster. They nail its wings to the wall, and they torment him in every way; Each of the assistants comes to pierce it with a point of iron, to mock the passion of Jesus Christ, And all of this is done with great bursts of laughter. A rabbi who happened to be passing through last year Lattakieh, at the time of Passover, this bar- ceremony bare took place in Mr. Bélier's house, where he was staying, by charity, the family of Cháloun +. If instead of a rooster, the Jews could crucify a Christian, Ben-Noud said that This would be much more in line with their wishes. They have two festivals in which they charge the Christians of imprecations; the Jews who appear the most fearful are the ones who show the most in all these horrors of relentless cruelty and brutality.

Everywhere the same belief is widespread. "Yes, he is of tradition, writes the secretary of the Latin Patriarchate of Je-Rusalem? And everyone here is talking about it, that the Jews slaughter (when they can) a Christian child whose They mix blood with flour to make unleavened bread. for Passover. Two years ago, a Jew was taken, near from the Brothers' school, which was carrying away a child. It was during Holy Week and very early in the morning. Like The child was screaming, a man, I was going to say an idiot, is left his house; and, not suspecting the mystery, simply delivered the child and gave a chi-
"A slap to the Jew who ran away as fast as his legs could carry him."

That was the name of the Jew to whom Ben-Noud had been married.
strength.
* Letter from Abbot Coserc to Mr. Imbert-Gourbevre, June 14, 1886.

II

After clearly stating our accusation against the Jews, and before proving it, let's say a word negations that have been deliberately raised against the voice of history. We owe it to our readers and to ourselves-same. On several occasions, Jewish newspapers have protested against what they consider to be a heinous slander Denial. Here is a sample of their prose: |

"Among so many alleged kidnappings of Christians deeds performed by the Israelites, and so often reported in the East by public outcry during the last two centuries; amidst the severe legal proceedings which, as a result of accusations formal sations, had always been exercised there so much by the Muslim authorities as well as by those of the com- local Christian communities, as well as by the consuls Eastern powers residing in this country;... we have never been able to ascertain, neither legally, nor even through Legal presumptions, none of the murders committed by the Israelites. On the contrary, there were a thousand circumstances remarks and a thousand historical facts that have obviously demonstrated that it was a despicable slander employed against this unfortunate people, either through malice premeditated, either by blind fanaticism, to cover up, by this presumption, generally accepted in the East, other crimes that were actually committed there.

There is only one word to answer: the reader will see, in

5 Archives israélites, XIX, p. 899; 1867,

the following book, if the Jews have never been legally convinced of the crimes we accuse them of.

It takes an immense amount of audacity to deny also brazenly of facts on which the testimonies abound.

A few years ago, a famous Jewish preacher from In Vienna, Dr. Adolphe Jellinek engaged "in a violent outburst against religious fanaticism, in the middle of the Jewish people themselves,” thus proving us right by forward. He recounted heinous acts attributed to a com-

Jewish community of Galicia, and he added: “We have lamentations about the persecutions suffered by the Jews to bear, but I praise in advance the man who... will show the horrific picture of Jewish fanaticism. »

Such words caused too much harm.
to the immune members of the people who like to proclaim themselves mar-Tyra. Also, there was a general outcry against "this rabbi" accuser, denouncer and slanderer of his brothers, provoking hatred and contempt against them."

The Israelite Universe says of him: "How, alas!
Can we still complain about the attacks and the foreign persecutions, when we see a speaker
From our sanctuary, a pastor in Israel, striking thus his flock with all the poisoned weapons and deadly consequences of denunciation and slander?

"Fortunately, the people who see our conduct and our works, recognize the falsity of these hideous insinuations from a false Jewish priest, and they no longer believe them.
to the murder of Christian children for the needs of our pastor than to the persecution by ourselves of our pious rabbis and our men of science.”

The rabbinical organ is mistaken: the people admire

3,

the learned doctor who had enough independence and out of love for freedom to speak freely to Israel and believe that child sacrifices are still in use in Talmudic worship.

For a long time, 6 Jews, your denials and your objections will only strengthen our belief. Ah!
Your explanations are ridiculous, your defense is Too pathetic! We clearly articulate positive fails-Hairs, and you think you can destroy them with arguments.
empty spaces like this one:

"It was not necessary," said Basnage, "to commit such acts are an insult to the Passion of Our Father Lord. An insult that so obviously outrages humanity.
manity, and which is accompanied by so many perils, must rarely occurs to man's mind. I have some It's hard to believe that such violent acts could occur.

without any particular interest driving it, and when the Prudence and humanity oppose it. I fear that These crucifixions of Christian children were nothing more than pretexts to stir up popular anger against the Jews.

All defenders of Israel reason from the same point of view. manner.

However, the facts that form the basis of the accusation directed against Jews, they can be attacked from two sides ways. They can be challenged in detail, one by one, at name of historical criticism; they can be denied in 'mass resolutely and absolutely in the name of this assertion which considers itself philosophical: "The human mind has a an innate aversion to unnecessary cruelties, and the Jews do not can deviate from this instinct, as one might wish. to say. » |

If Jewish historians were to enter into the first discourse discussion, in the discussion of the details, we will follow them there- We would believe them, and we would present them with the murder stories. rituals, surrounded, from a historical point of view, by the same guarantees that the most undisputed facts. We give them We would then ask why they admit some and push each other away, when both sides prefeel, in the name of history, the same titles to the belief.

But they will be careful not to start such a discussion. Sion: they will always hide behind their sophistry: “We reject these facts because they are impossible; The belief you are proposing is contrary to our reason. » Sir Robert Pell and Maxime d'Azeglio, who are involved in defending the Jews, no doubt because they were their brothers in Freemasonry, did nothing but reduce- Dear, these old, worn-out, toothless considerations.

Other Jews, without addressing the fact more directly in themselves, they get out of trouble in a more specious indeed: they give... a typical Norman answer. Here is an example.

A bishop had preached in Madrid, and publicly he had declared that Jews cannot celebrate the holiday Easter only with Christian blood. The King of Spain, Alphonse, finding himself in the company of a Jewish scholar, asked him what the truth was; he was careful not to reveal it to him to know and answered him as the Talmud advises to to do in such an occasion. — “Listen, 6 king,” he said; we have seen that a Jew does not eat blood or anything else that which lives; they even forbade drinking the blood of fish, of which the Talmudists nevertheless say that this It is not blood. And blood is abhorrent to them. because the Jew is not used to it, although he sees Many people eat blood. But how many

Furthermore, he will have a greater disgust for human blood, since he has no I haven't seen a human being eat it. The king, moreover, can... to recognize this repugnance in the fact that, when a Jew — eats something hard to bite, and that it flows from him bleeding from the gums, he will not eat again until he scraped up this blood. Now it is known that the man has a greater disgust for the blood of other people than for his own his own blood, and that he is also disgusted by his own blood, because he's not used to it." That's what's comingshovel to cleverly turn the question around.

Recently, the good Jewish apostles imagined a A new kind of evasion. In the Israelite Universe From 1882, Rabbi Wogué repeatedly asked Let the unleavened bread be seized and analyzed. chemical; and he defies anyone to discover the Not a trace of human blood. I believe it without hesitation.

Didn't we hear Ben-Noud telling the count of Durfort-Civrac, which we are careful not to put in the enough blood for the taste or trace of unleavened bread that they may manifest themselves outside. The Chief Rabbi of Paris, for example, in fulfilling the precept religious, place a single drop throughout the entire dough sensitive pain from blood, or more often a pinch of blood reduced to powder and carefully preserved for this use. After fermentation, cooking and the dividing all this dough into a multitude of loaves, What sufficiently expert analyst could trace... the drop which was enough to carry out the abomination rite netable. |

Let us add that most of the elements that make up The blood ends up in the bread. That the chemical analysis... mique reveals, for example, the presence of iron which found in so many substances, one might conclude that this presence is due to the ritual blood deposited in the Easter bread?

The Jews, moreover, would not allow this to happen. In conclusion, and if, by some impossible chance, almost by a miracle, This drop of blood was found in the unleavened bread; they did not would fail to say, without it being possible to prove the On the contrary, that the baker or the mother of the family had frostbite, or that another accident caused him to fall a little blood in the flour.

The chemical trace of blood in unleavened bread does not would not be enough to convince the Jews; the absence of this A trace cannot be a full justification for them. Rabbi Wogué is therefore invoking here a ridiculous pretext. ass.

Should we think differently about what Isidore Loeb says? in the Revue des Études juives? He claims that the Jews are innocent of shedding Christian blood, because their accusers disagree on the uses to which This blood is used in the synagogue. A good reason, indeed. truth. We will not dwell on refuting this nonsenseseries: the third part of this work will answer that Absolutely.

Let's also move on to the opinion of those who claim that the Talmud contains nothing hostile to Christianity nism. The study we conducted taught us this that we should think about it; and in discussing Jewish secrecy, we will explain at length why the Talmud does not present He did not openly criticize the ritual murder.

First and foremost, we implore the reader to lend all his attention to the long series of fails that are going to be reported in our second part, and then the astonishingthe state into which our words may have plunged him, will cease of his own accord. Everyone will understand and ratify these Words of Mr. Hamont: "If in our France, — country of rectitude but of generosity so often thoughtless, — the mass of the nation cannot accept the motives which 'had Father Thomas assassinated', that's understandable; but it is permitted to men who have stayed some time in the East, to the men who frequented the Jews, and finally all those who have lived among the peoples

"Easterners, to think differently."

* See further on for an account of this crime,

BOOK II

THE FACTS

Digitized by Google

CHAPTER ONE

ROSARY OF CRIMES

This chapter can be called for two reasons:
A rosary of crimes!

The story of the synagogue assassinations, indeed, is a long, endless chain, with multiple medaillons, which unfolds continuously throughout the ages, under the hand of the leaders of scattered Israel: tirelessly, They are engraving new paintings, or rather, they are re-releasing The same with a few variations. A poor little child Christian struggles in the throes of a horrible death, surrounded by the instruments of passion, in the middle of the The executioners' sneer!

The word rosary also evokes the idea of prayer. Good! Even in this sense, it perfectly characterizes the A tale of Talmudic depravity. For the Jew, indeed, A ritual murder is a good act that serves the salvation of His soul is a prayer; and the chain of these crimes Horrible, it's a powerful set of supplications!

The Bollandists, the particular and general chronicles rales, the stories of kings, princes, and emperors, Private memoirs and diaries will help you to unravel this immense scroll of horrors, engendered by Jewish hatred.

From the earliest days of Christianity, this hatred springs forth in hearts and breaks through the day outside.

Furious at the progress and spread of Christianity, the vomit of God, who had erected the cross of Cal- They still rise up against Jesus of Nazareth, this Jesus Noceri, as they call him: they molest him in his servants, they heap reproaches upon him in his loyal followers, and they always challenge him to win the world.

At that time, Jews were spread throughout the Familiar territory. Everywhere you can see that they were the main ones. almost the only adversaries of the messengers of good new, who evangelized the poor and the humble. Their rage against the disciples of the Messiah was so great, that they were looking everywhere for enemies for these worshippers of the same God as themselves; monotheists, they allied themselves to polytheism in order to combat true monotheism. The Fanaticism, you fool, it's one of those aberrations.

Saint Paul, in his apostolic journeys, is always in open conflict with his brothers in Judea: they prevent him They try to stop him from speaking, they lay a thousand traps for him, they raise He was subjected to countless persecutions, including being stoned to death. They are ruining the fruits of his sacred ministry.

Saint Justin! reproached them: "You have sent some people all over the world to spread the word that a sect impious and perverse, she had been formed by a certain Jesus

t Dialogue with Tryphon, ch. cvi.

of Galileo; that he was an impostor who was crucified by you... And you add that he taught us things eminent and impious things, which you tell to all kinds of individuals against those who confess that Jesus Christ is the master of men and the Son of God.

- Therefore, it is not surprising that some have played a role the Jews, in the persecutions that bloodied the forecourt of the nascent church.

It was the Jews, all-powerful at Nero's court, which made this actor's narrow mind understand hateful calumnies against Christians, and stirred up This beast-keeper against the followers of the Nazarene. The Jew

Alitilus was then leading the councils of the playful emfather and Empress Poppaea was entirely devoted to the synagogue.

- In the martyrdom of Saint Polycarp, the Jews have the principal role'. Mingling with the crowd of pagans, they exciThey were against the holy bishop, and they were demanding great cries of his death. After the sacrifice was consummated, they hastened to ask the prefect that the body of The martyr was not handed over to any Christian, to protect thus the sacred remains for the veneration of the faithful.

In Persia, while the reign of Constantine established peace in the Roman Empire, the Jews, in concert with The magicians were so adept at outwitting the king and the to make them hostile to the Christian religion, which they managed to destroy all the churches and to incite against the Christianity faced a long and violent persecution that led to 16,000 faithful perished? It was because of their machinations slanderous that Saint Simeon, bishop in this country, was t Eusebius. — Hist. eccl., book. IV, ch. xiv.

---

* Sozomene. — Hist. eccl., book. IH, ch. 1x.

accused of conspiring against the king, and condemned to martyrdom'.

In many places in the Roman Empire, before the Christian emperors, this hatred erupts, sinister, implacable. Even after Constantine and his successors had promulgated numerous decrees to defend the Christians stand against the merciless irascibility of the synagogue, The Jews continued their anti-Christian attacks, relentlessly attacking their converted slaves, circumcising children, sparking bloody fights, such as the one that broke out in the year 415 between the Christians and the Jews of Alexandria, at a public performance given by a dancer on the Sabbath.

“On that day,” recounts the historian Socrates, “the Jews…” give them up to rest, not to hear the words of the law mosaic, but to enjoy the spec- more fully tackle and the pleasures of the theater. The city prefect began duty to calm the turmoil, but in their hatred against The Christian name, the Jews had been waiting for this moment to attack the faithful and massacre them. However, An edict had just been published within the theater grounds, and a certain Hierax having approached to read it, a

A multitude of Jews, upon seeing him, began to shout, that he only came there to incite the people to relift. On this accusation, however slanderous it may be
The prefect had Hiérax seized and publicly beaten.
Bishop Cyril, having learned of the matter, summoned...
He addressed the leaders of the Jews and declared to them that if they did not cease to spread rumors against Christians, .
They would bear the responsibility. These measures did not

1 Cassiodorus. — Hist. tripart., book. HI.
* Hist. eccl., book. VH, ch. xim.

that would further exasperate the Jews, so that they resolved to set fire to the church the following night;
what they did under cover of darkness. Quantities of The Christians, having been warned, hastened to come to save the sacred building; but at the same time the Jews, who were ready, fell upon them and massacred them all those who were in the streets. When day broke came and it became known among the Christians what had happened Afterwards, a large number of people gathered and went
The Jews were driven out of the synagogues during the attack.
city and the people were allowed to plunder everything they had. » The Christians of that time understood by-
This actually constitutes a case of self-defense.

A crime that always arouses popular disapproval laire, it is the murder of children, of little ones, of the faibles. The Jews were well aware of this, and not without hope of reaping a bountiful harvest of riots, that they were spreading hateful calumnies against the Christians, accusing them of exterminating, in their meetings unfortunate children and devour their limbs panting.

In doing so, they were simply giving their qualities to others. In truth, they were the children of the synagogue only those who reveled in these savage feasts.

I

The horrific custom of killing Christian children,
to collect its blood, already existed at that time
among the followers of rabbinism. Samuel of Trent, said, in 1475, "that many years ago—he could not—rail to specify the date, but he believes it was before that

Christian faith would have taken such a fundamental development — the most remarkable among the Jews who lived Babylon and the surrounding places gathered together and held conseil. And there it was decided that the blood of a Christian child immolated amidst torment, was very useful to salvation of the souls of the Jews; that this blood could not serve that insofar as it was taken from a Christian child; that this child, during the extraction of his blood, was supposed to be killed in the same way as Jesus, that Christians honor them as their God; that this child must not, as far as possible, to exceed the age of seven; that he It's better if he doesn't even reach that age. Adding that if she was a Christian woman, she was not fit for sacrifice, meaning that one could not to collect her blood, because her blood, even the The woman would have been less than seven years old, and was not clean. to their religious rites. And the reason he gives is that Jesus having been crucified and the Jews acting in this way in derision and contempt of the God of the Christians, he is suitable, they think, that the one from whom they collect the blood should be a man and not a woman. He adds that The Jews of Italy do not possess any of these prescriptions. in their writings, but that they are found exposed in whole among the Jews who are beyond the sea; what _ oldest and most prominent of the Italian Jews Only they know this secret, and it is passed down from father to father. in threads.

We will return to this important statement later chapter where the profound secret will be discussed with which The mystery of blood was passed down; we will insist on the Easter rites, when we explain the customs of the blood. Let it suffice for us to retain for the moment the origin of the bloody tradition. x:

We can see how far back in antiquity the Jews trace their history. the institution of their barbaric law, in the early centuries of their dispersion and the foundation of the Church, “antequam says the minutes, fides cristiana esset in tanta potentia”. — When, instead of the institution, Samuel teaches us that it was in Babylon, in a region where the Christian faith

Yours had hardly penetrated yet. Was it at 1v? or 5th century of the Church, in one of those assemblies where the Jewish doctors composed the Babylonian Talmud, _ perhaps when they declared it finished.

No sooner had the Babylonian Talmud been promulgated that ritual immolations were already being perpetrated.
Socrates, a writer of the 5th century, whose extreme impar-territoriality made famous, preserved for us the memory of some of these alternatives.

Here is an event that took place in Immus or Inmestar, in-Today Imm, between Aleppo and Antioch, towards the year 418: |

“The Jews having committed an abominable crime against The Christians, they bore the penalty. Giving themselves up, on | the banks of the Orontes River, as is their custom, at rest and to all sorts of entertainment, they pushed ' insolence and pride, in the midst of their drunkenness, at beyond all bounds, and began to insult fat-Seriously, Christians and the Savior himself. He mocks... among those who placed their hope in the cross and worshipped in her the instrument of their salvation, they led to an act of appalling atrocity. Having They seized a Christian child and tied him to a cross.
then they subjected him to all sorts of ridicule and jokes, which soon left no room
than in their fury, and then they beat him so cruelly that the poor child died under their blows. Following

Because of such an act, a conflict arose between the Jews and the Christians.
bloody collisions, where on each side several holes-
"They face death."

It is during this same period that the attack must be attributed.
whose chronicle of Bishop Palladius has revealed to us-preserved the memory. A holy priest, named Gaddane, He lived alone near the Dead Sea; one day he suffered the attack by some Jews who wanted to satisfy their demands their hatred of the Christian name. A miracle prevented the execution of their homicidal desire.

Such was the first surge of monstrous rites which reached their peak in the Middle Ages, remained almost unknown in the eighteenth century for its awakeningto start nowadays with greater energy.

Saint Leo the Great (440-461) reports that from his At the time, it was a widespread opinion in Germany that The Jews, on certain occasions, were martyred by unfortunate innocents. It has been claimed that this opinion stemmed from this well-known fact that the Jews, making in large slave trade, circumcised all the Christian children who passed through their hands; beautiful- As a result, these children died as a consequence of the operation. And from this, the people would have concluded that they were being killed out of hatred. of Jesus Christ.

A few very simple remarks prevent us to accept this hypothesis. Circumcision is encountered almost always among the rites of human sacrifice in custom among the Jews; they could therefore well circumcise their young slaves and then sacrifice them, — The center of the slave trade was Venice and Germany was not a priority; at that time the Jews were very- powerful in Italy, but had only a fairly limited influence restricted to the harsh northern forests.— Furthermore, we

we will find in the ritual assassinations of the eleventh century striking similarities with that of the fifth, sacrifices always take place during a festival of The Synagogue, amidst the jeers and blasphemes, and constitute a hateful parody of the Passion of the Savior. Is it likely that these rites be transmitted with such accuracy from the 5th to the 11th century key, if from time to time a ritual murder hadn't occurred To refresh the memories of those concerned?

And Samuel's confession, clearly indicating that lori- The tradition of bloody sacrifices dates back beyond the fifth century. fifth century, does it not sufficiently indicate that the the precepts of the Babylonian doctors have never been neglected?

It is true that historians say nothing or almost nothing about it. that nothing. But we mustn't forget that the chronicles of that time, so few and so limited, are far from Please report any murders committed during this period. still barbaric, like the children sacrificed by the Jews were usually stolen from among the people, therefore nameless children, whose disappearance caused only one a rather relative stir. We didn't have, as we do today, the newspaper's advertising, and yet how many readers News items currently ignore the vile attacks perpetrated by Jews against Christian children in recent years!

So that we talk about these customs, which are often

Dark enigmas, a current must be established, that a bold accusation is formulated, rises to the surface, attracts attention. In the early centuries of the Middle Ages _age, it was necessary to overcome countless obstacles to to create such a current. Therefore, we cannot, when since the 11th century we notes an immense number of Riluel assassinations comput in place by the Jews, one cannot infer from the silence of old chroniclers, that these murders did not occur Never. Everything leads us to believe that the chain of marTyres was never interrupted. From the 11th century onwards, at least, there is no doubt.

PP 2

I II

In this century, when the great civilization was beginning to shine... France, among all the nations, was a medieval-Christian traditions, distinguished by his zeal for the study, by the number and sincerity of its chroniclers. We owe them several accounts of ritual murder. The earliest one took place in Blois, in 1071; on this subject Robert of Mont-Saint-Michel says in his chronicle:

"Theobald, Count of Charles, delivered to the flames several Jews who lived in Blois, because in /a Easter solemnity, they had, in hatred of Christ, crucified a child, then they had locked him in a bag and thrown at the Loire; convicted of this crime, they were condemned to the fire, except for those who embraced the Christian religion yours*.

Sixty years later, England viewed with horror The same attack is happening again within the walls of Correct assumption. New research has led us to believe... the assassination of the infant saint Mantius, in Portugal, to v1* century:

* My. Germ. hist;, Seriptorum VI, 520.

Norwich, on the person of Saint William, child of twelve years old.

He was the son of wealthy farmers! And several prodigies had accompanied his birth and illustrated his childhood.
He led the purest and holiest life, and that is as well as he deserved to be distinguished by the Jews for the Easter sacrifice.

He was placed in Norwich as a tanner's apprentice.
At the Easter celebrations of the year 1144, the Jews who lived
They lure him to this town by trickery and abduct him.
Then they tied his limbs and head together in such a way that to prevent any movement. "After that, they shave the They wound her head and wound her repeatedly with thorns; then they put the innocent man on the gallows and try to drag him away
Dear life. On the left side, to the most intimate part of
They inflict a cruel wound on their hearts, and to appease the e-
the flow of blood that occurs throughout the body, they
They pour very hot water over the head.

When the young martyr had died, they locked him in
They put his body in a sack and carried it to the nearby forest to hide him there; but they were met by a bourgeois of the city named Riluerdus, who threatened to... denounce. To ward off this evil, they won at a price of money the governor who took it upon himself to impose silence to Eiluerdus.

He only succeeded for a time; and soon the crime
He was discovered and punished as he deserved. The remains the young saint's remains were collected and buried with honor neur; numerous miracles were attributed to his tomb.
In Chersonese, the monk Sustratius, enslaved by a
He was Jewish and had already been crucified by his master.

t Acta sanct., IH' vol. of March, 590.

In France and England, self-immolations continue until the end of the 11th century. In 1160, in the sixth year of the king's reign

Henry II, the Jews crucify a child on the walls of Gloucester! Twenty years later, in 1181, they dared to perto carry out their horrific attacks in the capital itself of the country. As Easter approached, a child named Rodbert is killed by these fanatics near the church of Saint Edmund; he was buried in this sanctuary, and there performs a multitude of miracles?

However, France also had its martyrs.
4179, Saint Richard of Paris expires under the ritual knife. The significance of this murder led us to dedicate it to... create the second chapter.

King Philip Augustus hated the Jews, especially in because of these abominable murders. As for the To taunt them, the Jews repeated the attack two years later. in 1181.

On the 15th of the Kalends of April, a Christian was killed by the Jews at the Château de Braisne, located 15 leagues from Paris and 20 kilometers from Saint-Germain-en-Laye. Agnès, Lady of Braisne, The Countess of Dreux, seduced by their gold, had delivered them this Christian whom they accused of theft and homicide. They They led him, whipping him, through the city, after him having tied his hands behind his back and having crowned him with thorns; then they crucified him. — The king was then at the Château de Saint-Germain. When he learned of this, he mounted his horse and immediately rode to Braisne where he made a burning The 80 guilty parties?

In the 19th century, the horrific atrocities of the synagogue

1 Monumenta, ibid.
* Acta $s., IIT° vol. of March, 594.
* Rigord. — Hist. of Philippe-Auguste.

multiply: the work of blood appears on all the points of Europe.

In Alsace, the death of Saint Henri de Vissembourg, which took place on June 29, 1220, is reported as being . the actions of the Jews.

In 1225, in Munich, a woman, seduced by the gold of Jews, stole a young child from his neighbor and delivered him to these bitter enemies of the Christian name who made him suffer the usual treatments, by means of punctures and injections incisions on various parts of his body, they shot him.

all the blood to use in their cri- practices.
minelles. |

They then persuaded this woman to hand her over to them
a second victim; she was going to succeed again, when The child's father discovered what was happening. The evil-
The happy woman was handed over to the courts and confessed everything: one hundred Forty Jews were condemned to be burned alive.
The tradition surrounding this horrific tragedy has long been preserved -
raised in the country'. |

Matthew of Paris recounts that the King of England, Henry III, in the nineteenth year of his reign, in 4235, held his court at Westminster, during the Christmas holidays, in The presence of many bishops and lords. It is while "seven Jews were brought before him, under the accusation of having stolen by theft in the city of Nor-which a child they had hidden for a year at the gaze of Christians, and to have circumcised him, wanting the to crucify on Easter Sunday. Con-
Having been defeated in this crime, they confessed to the truth of the matter.
In the presence of the king, they were locked in a prison.
so that the king could dispose of their lives and their

* Meichelbeck, — Hist, de Frisingen, t. II, p. 94.
4,

EE PP ————RÉÁRÁMBTS

members. » This same crime was committed in Erfurt, the December 4th of the same year.

In 1236, "the Jews killed in a mill of the Fulda castle some (three, says another chroniclerqueur) Christian children to use their blood.
Once the fact was discovered, several Jews were masked.
consecrated by the people of the castle and others were burned
"Wounded?" The bodies were taken to Haguenau, where they are honored as relics of martyrs. Emperor Frederick Deric, who was in that city at the time, protected the Jews, because of a sum of money he had received of them.

The people's murmurs erupted against the prince.

. good-natured: the anger of the humble threatened to make justice. It was a close call that there was not one against the Jews general uprising, such as the one that occurred at London, in 1239. There too, the cause of this riot was "a homicide committed secretly by the Jews" in the City of London?

And yet this riot, in its consequences, sastrous, was not a lesson for the Jews of AnEngland, no more than their failures had been 1935. Nothing stops these men in their march in forward towards the goal they have determined. That is why, In 1240, they made another attempt at Norwhich.

They circumcised a Christian child and called him Jurnim; and they were reserving him to crucify him in hatred of Jesus Christ. The father of this child, after having

---

* Great Chronicle, trans. by Huillard-Bréolles, IV, p. 86.
* Chronicle of Albert of Strasbourg and elsewhere.
* Matthew of Paris, op. cit., IV, 433,

LED

Having searched for it for a long time in vain, he finally found it hidden at the foundation of a Jewish community; he made sure to let everyone know. to the whole city. Bishop Guillaume de Rele, having learned of this, had the accused Jews arrested.

Those claiming royal authority: "This "Look at the Church," he told them, "and it must not be carried." before the king's court, since it concerns circumdecision and attack on the Christian faith.” Four Jews, Those found guilty were initially dragged through the city, "attached to the tails of four horses, then they were hanging from the gallows, where they exhaled the remains of their 'miserable life'.

In this century, ritual murders are multiplying on all points of English territory. It was in 1255, at Lincoln, the immolation of the child, Saint Hugh or Hugon, to which a special chapter is devoted a little more far.

It was in Northampton, in 1279, that the Jews crucified a Christian child, amidst unimaginable torment.

It was in London, on April 2nd of that same year, A similar crime was reported: these were the main ones Jews of the city who were convinced of this. For this reason, they were tied to the tails of untamed horses and their The corpses were then tied to the gallows?

London, at that time, was often the scene of murders. Talmudic. Already in 1257, the Jews, says Cluverius, to page 541 of his Epitome historie, had immolated a Christian child to fulfill their annual sacrifice.

There were other precedents in this city. In August 1244, one could find, in the cemetery of

---

* Matthew of Paris, op. cit., V, 39.
* Florent of Worcester, — Chron., p. 222:

Saint Benedict, the body of a male child, who had no was buried. In several places he bore characteristics very Hebrew; one also saw on this small corpse livid marks, tears caused by blows of the penis, in short, the manifest signs and indications tortures that Jews are accustomed to inflicting to the children they want to crucify.

Converted Jews were forced to read the characters markings on the child's limbs. "They found the | the names of the father and mother of this child, but the preNames were missing; they also read that he had been sold very young to the Jews; but to whom and why, that is this. that they could not discover.” The people were saying aloud that it was a new attack by the Jews: the clandestiny and suffering of the principal Israelites of the city did not that this conviction will increase.

Other parts of Europe had cause for concern the same mourning. In Zaragoza, the Jewish nation "was coming to accept and follow this monstrous belief. that any man who furtively abducted a child Christian and handed him over to be put to death, was, by that very thing, free from all forced labor and impositions, and | relieved of all the debts he had incurred."
That is how Moise Albay-huzet seized the young Dominique del Val, aged seven, and handed him over to the Jews to be crucified. They nailed him to a wall, and him

They were struck on the side by a spear thrust. This was happening in July 1250, as we learn from the in- . inscription placed on the reliquary where the relics of the little crucified one. Around the same time, in Orsona, .

---

1 Matthew of Paris. — Op. cit., V, 519.
* Joann. A, Slow. — From Pseudo-Messiis, p. 33,

In Castile, a Jewish rabbi sacrificed a Christian child. in his own home.

In Wissembourg, according to the Annals of Colmar, a The child was killed by Jews in 1260.

. In Pforzheim, a town in the Grand Duchy of Baden, in 1261, The Jews committed murder on an eight-year-old child years, whom a Christian woman had delivered to them. This poor the child was taken to a secluded place, laid on what-these shrouds, and, after they had closed his mouth, They pierced him at all the joints of his body remove all the blood and soak the cloths on which He was lying down. When he had succumbed to these atrocious barBaries, they threw him into the river where he was found three or four days later by fishermen. It was suspected the Jews; the woman was convinced by her confession little girl and revealed the perpetrators of the murder. Two Those who committed suicide were the ones who were sentenced to death. These facts, the author says, were recounted to me by two religious figures. of the Order of Preachers, Rainier and Egidius, who were in Pforzheim, three days after the events- "and who gave me a detailed account of it."

In the last years of the thirteenth century, the The murders are occurring at very close intervals: One is reported almost every year.

In 1282, a witch from Munich sold to the Jews a a small child who soon perished in their hands, transpierced all over his body and suffering terribly?

In 1283, according to Baronius and the Annals of Colmar, a child was handed over by his wet nurse to Jews of Mainz, who had him killed.

---

t Thomas de Catimpré. — De ratione vitz, liv. II and XXIX.
* Raderus. — Bavaria sancta, vol. IT. p. 315.

In 1285, Munich was once again the scene of a new Rabbinic crime: the people, exasperated, burned the house The murderers of the gentle victim!

In 1286, Saint Wernher was sacrificed in Oberwesel.

In 1287, in Bern, the Jews, who were numerous in In this city, they steal a Christian child named Rodolphe, they hide in the cellar of one of their leaders, they overwhelm him of Lourments and slaughter him.

The crime could not remain hidden: the corpse covered with His wounds were found and he was honorably buried in the primatial church, where worship was subsequently offered to him public. — The main culprits were broken on the wheel, and their exiled accomplices. Even the city senators from Bern formally forbade any Jew from coming in the future, living within their walls?

Similar events occurred in Swabia in 1989; in Colmar and Constance, in 1292; in Crems, in 1293; in Bern in 1294, it was an endless slaughter.

IV

In the fourteenth century, ritual immolations did not are no less frequent. One can always follow the existenancy of the law which orders Talmudic scholars to sacrifice a Christian each year and to draw lots for the country to provide the bloody tribute.

This is how it is reported in Remken, Germany

* Raderus. — Bavaria sancta, vol. TI, p. 315.
2 Henri Murer. — Helvetia sancta.

a ritual murder, in 1302. And the very next year, a a new attack was taking place.

In Wizzens, Thuringia, the Jews overwhelmed with torments, a young schoolboy named Conrad, which was the son of a soldier: after cutting his muscles and opened his veins to extract all the blood, they they killed cruelly before Easter, in the year 1303.

But God did not want the death of the innocent to remain hidden: he lost the homicides and illustrated by mira-
The keys to the child's martyrdom. The Jews could not succeed to bury the corpse; ultimately, they hung it in a vineyard.

Finally, as soon as the truth was known, the soldiers left-return from their camp, under the leadership of Frederick, son Albert, Landgrave of Thuringia, and aided by the citizens of the city, they seized those whose were horrified °.

Then, the list of ritual bloodlettings continues.

In Prague, in 1305, as they were preparing to celebrate During Passover, the Jews committed acts of the last-the latest atrocity against a Christian whose poverty had reduced to serving them. They tied him naked to a cross, in a secluded place: some began to beat him with rods, others to spit in his face, all to recall a in one way or another what this cruel nation had causes suffering to Jesus Christ.

This barbarity aroused outrage among the entire population of Prague: they didn't even wait for the king's return to
to do justice, but a crowd rushed upon the Jews and

t Ann. Colm., II, 32;
* History: of the Landgraves of Thuringia.

They were put to death in great numbers in horrible towers ments!

In 1320, a choirboy from the cathedral of Le Puy was sacrificed by a Jew; the Holy Virgin resurrected him
a few months later.

In Annecy, Jews put a young cleric to death:
a decree of Philip V expelled them from the city (1321).

In Überlingen, in the Grand Duchy of Baden, the Jews committed an act of barbarity against a child they threw him into a well after killing him. WhatA few days later the body was found; the justice system informed my and, as we live on the body, incisions which These findings were added to other clues that were already available. It was become clear that the Jews were the perpetrators of this. murder. In this circumstance, even the local judges they did not wait for the emperor's consent that It was known that he was sympathetic to the Jews, and the execution was carried out immedi Immediately identify the perpetrators of such a revolting crime. This fact arrived in the year 1331.

Seven years later, in 1338, a Francon nobleman tombait under the synagogue knife, and his brother, for To avenge him, they carried out a veritable massacre of the sons of Israel. The carnage, mowed down by this avenger, the failures that previously had crowned the enterprises of the Jews from Munich, the fear of severe repression, nothing did not prevent the Talmudic scholars from committing in this city a new attack, in 1345: rabbinic law is at'above all concern. That is why the secThose who enforced this odious law seized, in the capital of t Jean Dubraive. Hist. of Bohemia, 1. XVIII.

---

* Dionysius of Saint-Martin. — Gall, Christ., 11, 123.

3 Jean Vitoduran. — Chronicle.

Bavaria, a little boy named Henry: they opened the door for him- They cut his veins and pierced him with more than sixty blows, as reported by Raderus.

In 1347, a child was crucified by the Jews of Messine, on Good Friday.

It is to the same period that we must attribute the marthe name of a child named Jean, whose Bollandists they drew the story from the acts of the church of Cologne. The Jews seized him as he was going to the school at the monastery of Saint-Sigebert, convent of the Franks: ciscans where he studied humanities. Drawn into a In a secluded spot, this child was stabbed repeatedly. until he breathed his last. One of those coulancet-shaped windows have been preserved in the church of Saint-Sigebert.

At that time their horrible customs, because of the numerous lawsuits brought against them began to to be well known and several columnists tell us.

They stated that the murder of Christian children was one of the main grievances against the Jews during the great expulsion of 1394.

France was not the only country that could have then hunted down to punish the unbelievers because of this abomination: in the various regions of Germany as well, the blood of children cried vengeance to heaven and called for irremediablecurses upon the guilty. The chronicles of This time reports a thousand examples of rab- cruelty binique.

In 1380, some Jews from Hagenbach, in Swabia, were caught at the moment they were sacrificing a Christian child
Your child was secretly taken from his parents. They were burned alive!

tMartin Crusius. — Annals of Swabia, IM? part., book. v.
5

In 1401, 1407, 1410, 1413, 1420, the same attacks occurred.
Diessenhofen-en-Wurtemberg, 4 Krakow, in the Thu-Ringe, & Tongres in Limburg. Several rioters bring justice to the crimes that royal authority leaves to chance unpunished. But that doesn't stop the sinister murders.
sorters. E |

From 1429 onwards, they started again in Ravensburg, in the Wurtemberg t.

A Christian child, Louis Van Bruck, had come from Switzerland to study in this city. He lived he was close to the Jews and had become very familiar with them.

Between the Easter and Pentecost holidays, these Jews celebrated a great feast to which many were invited of Israelites from the surrounding countries. On this occasion, the Young Louis, full of goodwill, got his services accepted.
vices to the head of the household. He paid dearly for it.

For while he was fulfilling his promises, he was noticed by two of the guests, two brothers Aaron and Anselm. Knowing that he was a Christian child, they
They train him with the help of one of their companions.
named Moses: in a secluded place, they caused him to expire at amidst the torture. They also subjected themselves to a sort of Sacrilege involving a child's genitals: practice infamous, which was part of the death ritual.

Nothing is more typical than these demons rising from the feast to satisfy their anti-Christian hatred and revecalmly taking a seat among the guests, when Their horrible crime was committed.

In Regensburg, six children were put to death by the Jews who collected their blood for practices of magic. "The judges in charge of the case," said Raderus,

' Acta sancta, 3 vols. of April, 978.

found an underground place in the house of a Jew called Josfol; there were still remains of the children there
The slaughtered bodies, their remains, were transported to the prelature. There they were saw a cup-shaped stone placed on a kind of the altar, and it was there that the limbs of these were torn apart innocent creatures. The stone still bore the traces blood; but so that nothing would be noticed, the stains had been covered with mud, which one all he had to do was remove them to find the clues that were too obvious.
"tains of the cruelty of the Jews." During the proceedings, Seventeen Jews confessed! The Cosmos has published an engraving depicting this stone.
In Tyrnau, Hungary, in 1495, "the Jews, having found guilty of barbarity, they suffered the torture they had earned it. Twelve men and two women had they had taken a young Christian with them: they had taken him-led to a neighboring house, and after locking him in
They had opened his mouth, his veins, letting it flow
the blood they carefully collected until the en-Fan breathed his last. They drank some of it.
blood and kept the rest for their coreligionists.
As for the body, they dismember it into pieces and...
They dug in the ground. However, the parents' searches
Their efforts to find their child had been in vain, until...
what they finally knew for certain that the previous day-we had seen him in the Jewish quarter and that from He never reappeared at that point. From then on, suspicions naturally fell upon the Jews; the agents of the law enforcement officers were ordered to conduct searches.
in the various houses, and the bloodstains that one discovered in one of them, motivated the arrest of

! Bavaria sancta, IIT, 174.

master and his entire family. First, the women, whom the fear of torture soon determined to confess everything, the crime itself with all its details; con- Defeated by these confessions, the most guilty were con- condemned to the fire by the city prefect; the others were punished with damages to their property and had to pay a A large sum of money!

In 1453, a child from Bresleau, stolen and Seid by the Jews, expired in a barrel filled with spikes where These wretches rolled him around to collect his blood.

y

The southern regions, not being exempt from Jews were not exempt from the horrible customs which, like a bloody tunic of Nessus, cling to the footsteps of the deicide race.

In Italy, the children of Israel were paying for the kindness of popes, by stealing Christian children, by offering them in holocaust to the rabbinic Moloch, by making it serve Horrible ceremonies involving their mutilated remains. The proof This is based on what happened in Savona in 1452. The history- Torian Alphonse Spina? reports several facts relating to the bloody practices of the Jews. Here is one who... was recounted by a novice: "Emmanuel (that's the name (from this novice) told me about an act of cruelty that happened to Savona, which he had seen with his own eyes and which he attested to several times- several times before and after his conversion, adding that He had even drunk the blood of the sacrificed child.

! Bonfinius. - Fasti Ungarici, br. III. dec. 5.

3 De bello Judaeorum, lib. III, consider. 7.

- |

"He told me that his father had once taken him to the house of a Jew from Savona, and there, gathered seven other individuals of their nation, they had reciprocatedly, bound by oath never to reveal what they were going to do it, and keep their secret until death. After that, a Christian child was brought among them. aged two years; they stripped him naked over the vase where they used to receive the blood spilled in the circumcision of their children. Four of them took Thus began the horrible execution. One held out the the innocent creature's right arm, another, the arm on the left, a third man held his head raised from the ma- the first to form the cross, and the fourth to enter tow in the unfortunate child's mouth for to prevent him from screaming.

"Then taking sharp and rather long, we pierced it in all directions, mainly in the region of the heart, so that its blood would flow- Milk was pouring from all sides and falling into the vessel. This was for I witnessed a spectacle I couldn't bear to watch, and I I moved away, putting myself as far apart as possible. But my father soon came to me and made me swear that I would never speak of any of this to anyone. After I grew closer to the others and I saw nothing but the the child's corpse, which was soon afterwards thrown to the bottom of a toilet in the house.

"Having done this, the Jews cut into very small pieces- These various fruits, pears, walnuts, almonds and some others, which they threw into the vessel where the blood . had been collected. They all tasted this horrible dish; I tasted it myself, which caused me such nausea. that day and the following day I could not take any kind of money food.

The same neophyte, who was baptized under the name of François recounted to the same historian another fact that he inherited from his parents:

“A Jewish doctor, Simon of Ancona, was in contact with a bad Christian, of depraved morals. This A man once kidnapped a four-year-old child and abandoned him gave it to the Jew, who took him to Pavia, where he resided.

"Having arrived home, as the hour was favorable to To carry out his barbaric plan, he seized the child, stretched him out on a table and cut off his head; then leaving With that head on the table, he carried the torso away in another room to complete what he had set out to do. During this At one point, a large dog entered the room where was

With his head raised, he pounced on it and carried it off in a leap. through a window onto the street.

That's how the police were alerted to the crime, and in Following the trail of blood, we arrived at the Jew's house. But he was no longer there and had evaded all the searches by hastily climbing onto a building in Departure for Turkey.

And unfortunately, this was not an isolated incident. Around the same time, how many similar attacks were sognalés.

In 1462, Blessed Andrew died in Rinn, near from Innspruck.

In 1475, Saint Simon was martyred in Trent.

In 1476, there was the murder of young Conrad, as told by Baronius and Bartolocci.

In 1480, a similar crime occurred in Treviso; it was in Molta, in Veneto, a ritual sacrifice performed on the Day Easter.

In 1485, it was in Vicenza that the immolation of Saint Laurentin, cited by Benedict XIV in his bull Beatus Andreas.

Almost every year, the mystery reveals its grim secrets. existence. In the Hispanic peninsula, the chronicles They also recount several martyrdoms.

Around the year 1454, in Castile!, two Jews seized of a Christian child on the lands of Louis d'Almanza, They lead him aside, slit his throat, and cut up his body. through the middle, they tear out his heart and bury the caDavre in a hurry.

Then, meeting in secret with their fellow believers, they burn this heart, throw the ashes into wine and the drink together. The investigations do not allow the The slightest doubt about all these infamies. At the cost of With considerable sums of money, they were able to drag out the trial. in length: justice triumphed, however, and the couThe pables were expelled from Spain in 1459.

The Jews of Castile appear to have had at that time the monopoly of fanaticism.

Indeed, even before the end of the 1454 trial, they were attempting another ritual murder,
in Toro, where two Jews, in 1457, seized a child Christian. Not having enough time to consume
They carried out their crime to the very end; they cut off a piece of him.
of flesh on the calf; they carried off this piece and
They went to hide in the city of Zamora.

Like all expulsions of Jews, that of 1459
It was not effective for me; they did not leave Spain or there They will return soon. In 1490, they placed a child in cross at Guardia, near Toledo, after having made to suffer all the torments of passion. We celebrate his worship and he is invoked under the name of the holy child of the Guardia. La Croix published his story in 1886.

* Alph. Spina. — Op. cit,

——————— M ———— M ——M——MM —————M——

Thirty years earlier they had restarted the series of their self-immolations.

In Sepúlveda, a city in Old Castile, the Jews... consecrate a Christian woman, on Good Friday of the year 1468. On the order of Rabbi Salomon Pecho, they
They nailed her to a cross where she died. — This action
The crime was soon discovered: on the orders of the bishop
Jean d'Avilà, the guilty parties were brought to Segovia.
The most criminal were burned alive; the others were hanged, broken on the wheel, or imprisoned!

In 1480, the young Sebastian of Porto-Buffole, from Ber-
The game was bled dry by the Jews. The people were burned in Venice.

VI

In the 16th and 16th centuries, amidst the wars
of religion, literary concerns of the Rebirth, the splendid development of letters, of the sciences and arts, when modern men, enamored of themselves, they voluntarily broke the ties which tied them to the past of their ancestors, the Jews,

They forget nothing, repudiate nothing, change nothing.
The nation, condemned by deicide to a deplorable immutability, doomed to all curses and all the infamies, continues to carry out its horrible prejudices, does not cease to obey the bloody injunctions-

* Colmenares, - History of Segovia,

the roots of rabbinism and always immerses itself in blood innocent people.

At Waltkirk, in Alsace, a father delivered, for ten florins, his four-year-old child to the Jews, on the condition that they would return him to him alive, after having extracted a Little blood. But they drew so much from it that the poor man The child died. The unnatural father was sentenced to death. with another individual whom the Jews had paid for to bring blood to Algasa, in 1503.

In 1505, a similar attempt took place at Budweiss, in Bohemia. There, she succeeded completely.

In 1509, in Posing, a village in Hungary, the Jews abducted-they entrusted their little child to a wheelwright, dragged him into a cellar and they tortured him in the most cruel, by cutting his small veins and sucking the blood by means of quill tubes. Then they threw the body in front of the village, in a thick hedge of thorns where he was found by a woman who reported the matter to the authority. The Jews were thrown into prison and eventually Confess everything?

In 1510, Baronius cites an attack of the same genre. |

In 1520, the Jews began again in Tyrnau and Biring the crime of 1494, by murdering a Christian child in each of these localities. Thirty of them were burned and the others driven out of all Hungary °.

One of these atrocious acts committed in Buda in 1525, this sparked a general movement of the population against the Jews. This was a precedent set by Tisza-Eszlar.

t Acta sancta, II° vol. of April, 839.

* Zirgler's Spectacle, p. 588,
* Acta sanela: Ibidi,

In 1540, in Sappenfeld, Bavaria, a child named Michel, aged four, was put to death by the Jews! before the Passover festival; they took him away from his father, Georges Pisenharter, and transported him to Titing. There they They tied him to a column and tortured him for three days, they cut off the ends of his hands and... feet, opened his veins, "and tore him apart with such so that he couldn't be hurt any further."

This assassination was revealed by a young Jewish man who said in the street with several children his age "that the dog was "He died after screaming for three days." The neighbors heard him- They spoke, but dared not reveal anything. The body was buried in a nearby wood, and when it was discovered by a sheepdog, he still bore the very visible traces of rents from crosses, circumcision, and wounds by which the barbarity of the Jews had taken pleasure in torturing their victim.

Talmudic assassinations continue in Germany. at very short intervals. Here are several specific examples:

In Raw, Poland, two Jews, Moses and Abraham, They kidnap a tailor's child and kill him. were burned and their coreligionists were forever expelled from the locality, as they already were from Pultow, in Mazovia, for the same reasons: there, one does not ren- Jews were only permitted to attend fairs. This took place in 1541.

In Witow, Poland, Jean, a two-year-old child, son of a widow from Piotrkow, Marguerite Kozanina, was sold for two marks to Jacques (of Leipzig) and cruel- was put to death in 1569. Louis Dyex, administrator

t Raderus. — Op. cit., vol. III, p. 176.

of Krakow, made a report on this subject to the king, to whom he signaled, at the same time as in Bielko and elsewhere, the blood

Christian had been poured out in abundance by the Jews.

In 1574, in Punia, Lithuania, the Jew Joachim Smier-Lowicz did the same thing: one day in March, a little before
On Palm Sunday, he put a young girl to death.
seven years old, named Elisabeth. An inscription and a painting kept in the chapel of the Holy Crosses in Vilna attest that his blood was mixed with flour, from which bread was made. — Around the same time reports similar facts in Tarnow and in another city in Galicia.

In 1375, the child Michel de Jacobi was bled by the Jews, who escape punishment.

In 1590, "in the town of Szydlow, the Jews were abducted
a country child; and, after having extracted the blood through astonishing torments, the opening of the veins and numerous stings, they threw his body into A deserted place. But innocent blood cries out for vengeance.
in heaven, and with parental care involved, it was found the corpse which still bore the horrible traces of sacrifice! »

In Vilna, in 1592, Simon, a seven-year-old Christian child, was so viciously cut with knives and s-pettes, that more than 170 wounds were counted on his body,
not to mention those that were made by the reeds
which was forced under his toenails and fingernails.
His body was transported to the Bernardine Fathers.
in 1623?

In Goslin, a woman once again sold a child to

1 Acta sancta, II° vol. of April, 839.
* Acta sancta, IIT' vol. of July,

Jews for the same torments: two Jews perished
by the hand of the executioner (1595).

In 1597, not far from Szydlow, the Jews noticed a child at a peasant's house, with whom they spent some time-that time the house, under the pretext of wanting to do a purchase. One day when the child was home alone, they They prevailed, killing him with exquisite torture.
and kept his blood to sprinkle on their new Szydlow synagogue.

"They threw the corpse outside the territory's boundaries:" he was found with his eyelids, throat, and... veins, limbs, genitals, and constricted by fire; all those who witnessed this sad spectacle were seized with horror!

In a village in the Polish province of Podlaskie, there was only one Christian family that was not subservient to the Greek schism: it is in this one that the Jews chose their Passover victim in 1398.

It was Albert, a four-year-old child. The day after the Latin Easter, March 25th, his father takes him with him in the fields where he went to plow. At nightfallbante, the child resumes the journey home alone, and He gets lost along the way. Two young Jewish men appear who They take him and go hide him in their father's cellar.

Four days before the Jewish Passover, the horrific sacrifice It was carried out with the help of the leading Jews in the country. First, the child's neck will be tightened with a rope to to prevent him from screaming. Then they opened his veins feet and hands, and they pierced him in different parts of the body, so as to allow all its blood; the Jews collected it in vases: a part was left to the head of the house where this crime and the others took the rest to mix it with the flour from which unleavened bread was to be made.

In the trial that followed, the unaccused Jews They spared no effort to halt the course of justice: offers money, bribing false witnesses, warnings and threats directed at those who could contribute to to lose the accused, every effort was made. Three were nevertheless condemned to the torture of the wheel.

Not only were they convicted of this crime, but Their confessions also revealed the common practice they were shedding Christian blood: Rabbi Isaac confessed that the blood was used partly in the wine, partly in the bread from the package.

In 1650, Mathias Tillich, a child of four or five years old,

t Acta sancta, II° vol; of April, 839,

was immolated on March 11th in Caaden, Bohemia?
Similar attacks then occurred in Steyer-Marck, at Karntey, at Crain.

In Tunguch, Germany, Jews slaughtered a child
Christians at their Easter in 1655. Several were burned?
In Vienna, on May 12, 1665, a woman was cruelly
She was killed by the Jews. She was found trapped in a pond.
in a bag with a 50-pound stone. The body was covered in wounds, the head was cut off as well as the two shoulders and legs up to the knees*.

This horrible mutilation was repeated in 1669 on a three-year-old child, from Metz, by the Jew Raphael Lévy.
A famous trial ensued.

---

* Acta sancta, II° vol. of April, 835.

* Tentzel. — Conversations of January 1694, p. 118.
3 Ibid. July 1693, p. 563.

Zirgler's Spect., pi 553:

VII

The eighteenth century presents fewer examples of the Talmudic crime. This is not, however, a reason to af-to affirm that Jewish customs were suspended on this era. The immense struggles of philosophy against the religion, wars, the rise of Freemasonry
They are causing this century to wrinkle and, deeply preoccupying minds, perhaps prevented them from closely monitoring the plots
of the synagogue.

Moreover, the tide was turning towards liberalism. We were getting ourselves-knows a point of honor in not attaching any importance to taunts to acts that reeked of the "barbarity" of the medium age; people readily blamed it on fanaticism Catholic, the accusations that the writers ecclesiasticks of previous centuries had been raised against the Jews. And the crimes of the synagogue were no longer hidden.
distinguished from ordinary crimes: the account of these abominations could enrich the judicial annals, but it disappeared chronicles, and it did not pass into posterity.

History, however, is not completely silent.

on the harmful effects of Talmudic scholars.

In Orkul, a ten-year-old child, son of a resident of Jean Balla, from this country, disappeared on the morning of June 19, 176^, by picking flowers in the countryside.

It is said that this disappearance is the cause of a Image preserved in the Buda-Pesth archives. It shows a naked child, whose body is covered in wounds countless; on the face, there are 18 strokes of knife; on the arms, 16; on the chest, 32; on the back, 17; feet, 19. The right eye is removed; the throat is tightened with a rope; around the neck, a wide injury; the hands are tied behind the back. This image is 1 meter high and 60 centimeters wide.

On June 25, the young child's body was found in a nearby wood. On his chest and thighs, he it bore the marks of blows from a knife and a motto in Hebrew; here is its meaning: "There is only one "God, that's why we must destroy one of them."

On the day the child disappeared, there was in the The village saw an influx of Polish Jews. After we had The body was found, and suspicion fell on three Jews. of the country, who bore the popular hatred upon their heads area.

Credible witnesses have stated that on the evening which preceding the child's disappearance, two foreign Jews They entertained him for some time and entrusted him with their responsibilities. picking flowers. The murder was finally confessed by the three Jews from the country; one of them even converted to Catholicism in its prison!

Feller said of the Riluel assassinations: "To hear the 'scholars of the day', only fanaticism could have to accuse the Jews of such atrocious barbarity. When In 1715, they were accused of having renewed it in Poland. we tried to pass off the witnesses as visionaries, and for extravagant ones all those who added faith to their depositions.” And, after having recalled-Pelé, the fact of Trent, regarding a pamphlet on culture Sancli Simonis, Feller adds: "We saw at CronweisSenbourg, in Alsace, a respectable monument which

* Tisza-Eszlar, by a Hungarian deputy, p. 108.
* Historical and literary journal of January 18, 1778,

preserves the memory of a very similar atrocity.
Mr. Hirschfeld, in his Letters on Switzerland, reports on this another equally certain example, consequently from which all the Jews were expelled from the territory of the city of Bern. Finally, nowadays, we have seen a renewal this bloodthirsty and sacrilegious mania in the city of Thorn, in the Liège region.

Near Tasnad, in Transylvania, the Jews committed,
In 1791, a thirteen-year-old child was murdered, and...
We give the full account later. The historian of Tisza-Eszlar cites other facts. A young girl died at Holleschau, in Moravia. Another ritual crime was committed.
placed in Woplawicz, in the Dublin government.

VIII

Nowadays, in the "age of enlightenment", it seems that the murder of Christian children should have disappeared traitor of history, and that the Jews, launched into the deathcivilizing force, often claiming to be the driving, would have to repudiate medieval customs and completely proscribe Talmudic obligations.
discs. That's not the case. Numerous ritual assassinations demonstrate that Jewish fanaticism still retains its hideous splendor.

It is primarily in the East that savages occur.
manifestations of this fanaticism.

Under Selim III, who reigned from 1789 to 1808, a young
A Greek man was found in Pera, hanging by his feet and giving
The last gasp, sixty Jews accused of this murder

and condemned, were hanged, ten by ten, from cables
which were placed in the bazaars.

In Aleppo, in 1810, a poor street vendor was "killed by a Jewish broker, named Raffoul Ancona, for his Blood, during Easter!

In October 1812, three Jews from Corfu were condemned to death, for having likewise slaughtered a child.

On the same island, a little later, the child of a Greek, named Riga, whose family had lived since Alexandrie, was he kidnapped and massacred by Jews?

In Beirut, Fatallah-Sayegh, dragoman from Lascari
He was killed in 1824 by the Jews with whom he was staying. The few
The investigation that was attempted revealed that this murder had been done for a ritual purpose.

In Warsaw, Chiarini? reports the disappearance of a Christian child, two or three days before Easter
Jewish woman of the year 1827.

Around the same time, the Jewish woman Ben-Noud, of whom we
As already mentioned, he lived "at the age of six or seven, in the city of Antioch and in the house where she was staying, two en-
"Fans suspended from the ceiling by their feet." Frightened,
She ran to warn her aunt; her aunt replied that It was a punishment inflicted on children, and he made her leave.
in order to divert his attention. "Upon his return, the bodies had disappeared, but she saw blood in one of the vases that the Arabs call laghen, and which they use
"Wind for washing clothes."

Letter from John Barker, former English consul in Aleppo, to Mr. de Ratti-Menton, French consul in Damascus, April 20, 1840.

* Ac. Laurent. - Affairs of Svrie.
? Theoria del Gindaismo.-vol, 1, p. 355.

In Hamath, a city in Asian Turkey, a young girl
The Turkish woman disappeared in 1829. Her body was found in a garden on the banks of the Orontes. The corpse was horrified severely mutilated on almost all parts of the body, wounds were found that had been inflicted with a sharp instrument
by means of which the flesh had been pierced into a thousand places rights. The Jews were found guilty, but the ar-Gent saved them; nevertheless, they were driven out of the city.

One of the most curious events is what happened to the
Mr. Gervalon's wife, a merchant in Turin. This man, accompanied by his wife, entered the district of Jews and began to do business with some of them them. Meanwhile, his wife ventured to do some not in the narrow streets of the ghetto. She barely had she lost sight of her husband, that a crowd of Jews surrounded herrent and push her towards their dens, where they make her descend into an underground passage.

Stripped to the waist, she was placed in front
two rabbis who recited the ritual prayers over her
They spoke Hebrew and finally told him, "You are going to die."

Her husband, frantic with worry and terror, was looking for her from all sides; a friend reminded him that on certain days
The Jews kidnap the Christians to sacrifice them.
He took some soldiers with him and walked around the neighborhood.
The Jew kept calling out, "My wife! My wife!"
At this unexpected cry, the poor victim regained courage, and Gathering all her strength, she cried out: "Antoine, I I'm here!

The trapdoor was opened, and the woman was pulled out into a
A pitiful state. Money stifled the affair.

“This fact,” adds Baron de Kalte, “would no longer leave
There is no doubt that the Jews of Europe defile themselves from time to time
"At the same time as the Jews of Damascus." Good.
other facts of the same kind do not allow us to doubt.

In 1831, in Saint Petersburg, the daughter of a non-commissioned officer
The head of the guard was assassinated: the fact and the ritual purpose were recorinus by four judges, called off in doubt by one-fifth. The court recorded the ruling and the Jews, were transported to Siberia.

In 1834, Ben-Noud was living in Tripoli, at the home of a relative. There, from the top of a terrace, she witnessed a a horrible spectacle, not a single detail of which was erased from his

---

1 In 1840, Antoine Gervalon lived in Châtillon d'Aoste, where he was born, his wife, Juliette Bonnier; was dead; his daughter was married To Mr. Monta, merchant in Turin. — Details taken from a letter from Baron de Kalte, where he tells this story.

memory.

“An elderly Christian man from Aleppo was invited by the Jews,” with whom he traded, to come and eat oranges
in a small courtyard adjoining the Tri- synagogue polite. He was offered nargileh, brandy, and coffee;
Then, at the moment when he felt himself showered with politeness,
Four or five Jews jumped on him, bandaged him
they covered his mouth with a handkerchief, garroted him, and suspended him-
"They said, 'By the toes of the orange tree.'"

He remained there from nine in the morning until noon, in order to
"to make him expel through his nose and mouth the water which Evacuation is necessary for the blood to acquire the
the degree of purity required for its intended use.

At the moment when the old man was about to expire, "the
The Jews cut off his throat with one of those knives which
The rabbis use it to slit the victims' throats, and the
The body remained suspended until all the blood had drained.
fell into the basin.

The work of butchers!

A Jew from Damascus was arrested at customs in 1839.
carrying a bottle of human blood.

The following year, this same Jew was among the principal murderers, who collected the blood of
P. Thomas of Calangiano.

Around the same time, and a little before Easter, some Jews from Rhodes were looking for eggs; a merchant
He provided them with some and sent them by his seven-year-old child.
at eight years old. The poor little boy never came back. The governor-
The man, having been informed, gathered the notables and conducted an investigation.
The trial, held in Constantinople, dragged on for a long time.
and ultimately the government stopped the prosecution.

This is the usual epilogue to the lawsuits brought against Jews, now that they have monopolized all the choices its necessities for life.

IX

In recent years, Talmudic assassinations

have multiplied with a resurgence proportionally nelle to the expansion of Israelite power. The me-creative, feeling they have nothing to fear, give themselves to it-comfortable. It is especially Eastern Europe that is the the scene of their grim exploits.

In Romania, it very often happens that several people mysteriously disappear near
of the Passover, and leave no trace, the kidnappers
They take care to erase everything.

Hungary, which is soon entirely delivered to Jews often see their soil bloodied by martyrdom

Easter victims. The death ritual was a little changed. The victims of the synagogue attack, in this country, are often young girls, serving in the May-Israelite sons: the priests, thus having them under the
they can easily and safely seize by hand.

"This is a striking and characteristic fact," said Mr. Onody.
that all the missing children belong to the bottom people. This preference is understandable. By attacking the Children of poor people, the Jews could assume that such disappearances would go unnoticed and that no rooster would crow at them. No one is quoting from cases where a child from a family in question disappeared.
one could indeed believe that these influential families did not would not remain silent about his disappearances and would
the most serious research. » Also the Jews guard-Do they really think it's right to steal the children of those who could to shed light on their monstrous crimes. In this they still follow their beloved Talmud which recommends to them-Command to carefully avoid danger. Cruelty and cowardice go hand in hand.

"Three ritual murders took place in 1879,
in Tallya, in the county of Zemplin, — in 1880, in Komorn, — in 1881, in Kaschau. In this last-
In the second town, the daughter of a man named Joseph Kocsis disappeared suddenly and was found after two weeks in a fountain: the corpse was completely bloodless.

"Thus disappeared in 1878, 1879, 1880 and 1881, at Stein-am-Anger, specifically before the Easter holidays Jewish, four young girls, one after the other: two chambermaids whose parents lived in the cam-

loincloth, the daughter of a poor shoemaker, and the little girl eight-year-old Jewish coachman: they were never found their trace! In all four cases, the courts refused to investigate.

to use this tactic against the Jews: it was considered too much Not important!

Faced with the Jewish gold, the fascinated magistrates declare themselves powerless or acquit indiscriminately.
Hungary is starting to get used to these acquittals.
scandalous. Besides that of Tisza-Eszlar which resounded in Across Europe, there are about ten of them, including the
The memory is silently preserved in the hearts of Magyars and ignites an unquenchable fire of hatred.

In 1815, it was in Zboro, in Saroch county.
A sixteen-year-old maid, Anne Zamba, was seized at unexpectedly by several Jews gathered in the house from his master Horowitz, saw the ritual knife rise on her head. The sudden arrival of a truck saved her. But The terror she felt gave her an illness from which she She died in April 1876. Still on her deathbed she swore "that on the eve of the Feast of Atonement, in the year 1875, in house no. 165 C, in Zboro, the bou-dear Jews of that region had wanted to kill her in pre-
"The presence of several Jews." The district court was informed of these facts. But the president, Barthélemy Winkler, a liege man and debtor to the Jews, he was careful not to don-
The case was pursued and everything fell apart.

In 1871, it was in the village of Szalacs, in the county of Bihar. Joseph Klec sold his niece Thérèse to the Jews Szabo, aged six, and her nephew Pierre Szabo, aged nine years old. During the night of the murder, remorse tor-he would kill the coward, and a servant heard him say to his Woman: "I feel sorry for the two poor children: the little one
The girl will perish immediately, but the young boy will endure a

---

' Tisza-Bszlar, by M. Onody, passim.

"A long suffering." A Jewish doctor, called in to performing the autopsy, declared that the children had not
They were murdered and that was the end of it.

In 1879, it was in Piros, in the county of Batsch-Bodrogher: Lidi Sipos, a fifteen-year-old girl, servan at the home of the Jewish Grossman, murdered by her mother It was on October 15th. She had been there for four days. only at this man's house, and she had not entered it. that with the strongest reluctance, that after the requests repeated attacks on the individual. The body was found completely completely bloodless, with a circulatory wound in his abdomen The area of apparent penetration. This method of drawing blood from Their victims are quite commonly used by Hungarian Jews.

The same thing happened to a young girl who served in Budapest, in the Jewish quarter (Theresa City, street of the King). Put to sleep by a beverage a few days before the During the Purim festival, she only woke up for twenty-four hours. afterwards. When she woke up she found herself so weak that she could he could barely get up and was suffering terribly in all his limbs. Upon examining her body, she found at the top from the right arm, to the upper left thigh and to the stomach above the navel, circular red wounds which looked like bloodstains, and in the middle of which a small opening was concealed. It presuma that the Jews had given him while he slept, she drew a considerable amount of blood, and she left immediately at their service.

In 1882, it was in Tisza-Ezslar. The trial that followed the The death of Esther Solymosi stirred up the whole of Europe.

But these horrific events are not unique to Hungary. repeat at very short intervals. The correspondentdant of Constantinople of the Moniteur de Rome wrote in the issue of June 15, 1883:

“A few years ago, in Smyrna, a small child belonging to one of the first Greek families of the The city was robbed as Passover approached. Four Days later, his body was found on the shores of the sea. A corpse pierced with a thousand pinpricks. The mother, mad out of grief, he openly accused the Jews of this murder, The Christian population rose up en masse and rushed to Jewish quarter, where a terrible massacre took place. More than six hundred Jews perished.

“Last year, in Balata, the ghetto of Constantinople, a child was lured into a Jewish home where more than Twenty witnesses saw him enter. The next day they found his corpse in the Golden Horn: the consequence was encore a grindstone.

"In Galata, the same thing happened. Mr. Se-" Rouios, the most renowned lawyer in the community Greek, addressed an inquiry to all representatives of Christian powers in Constantinople, to ask justice and to obtain vengeance. But the Jews sub- They entrusted the Turkish police who made the inter- Requests for judicial assistance and witness statements. The patriarchy cecumenical, obeying orders from above, did to declare, by paid doctors, that the mother was Suffering from mental illness. The whole thing was hushed up, basically. what could M° Serouios do, and the Jews deposited at the pa- a sum of money, to serve the ecumenical triarchy "A pension for the mother of the stolen child."

Money being the supreme god of this nation, she believes that everything can be bought, even a mother's silence on the murder of her child.

Contemporary society is so fallen apart that they are almost always right. The police In particular, they are easy to buy. That's what arrived, in 1883, at the chief of police of Pera, and at Galata police commissioner. Tasked with investigating a new case of ritual murder, they let themselves they won with Jewish gold and prevented the investigation from succeeding.

A newspaper, the Stamboul, which had undertaken a campaign The vigorous pagne against the guilty was abolished; and this suppression cost the Jews one hundred and forty thousand francs*.

Everywhere, Israelite gold has the same power. In Alexandrie, the murder of a ship's captain's child from the island of Cyprus, in 1880, and that of the young Evangelio Fornoraki, in 1881, remained unpunished.

In 1879, a scandalous acquittal provoked a An explosion of indignation swept across the Russian Empire. The matter was decided at Koutais, in the lieutenancy of the Caucasus. A six-year-old girl, Sarah, had been killed by four Jewish plasterers. On the child's corpse Strange injuries were noticed: between the fingers The flesh of the hands was as if cut with a knife; feet, slightly above the calves, deep inci-

Horizontal incisions were made. The veins did not contain
Not a drop of blood was shed. Those were indeed the signs. characteristics of the Easter operation. There was only one a voice among the people to say it.

And without the covert agitation of influential Jews from the
In Russia, the guilty parties would not have had any trouble due to their package?

French newspapers, often subservient to the Jews,
They almost always remain silent about these attacks.
especially when the guilty parties are convicted. That's how it is.

'Jewish France, vol. II, p. 402,
* Universe of April 9, 1879.

that they remained silent about a crime of this kind committed around the end of 1881, in Luctza, a small village in the Rzes- district Zow, in Austrian Galicia. The Jew Moses Ritter, after getting his Christian servant Franceska pregnant Mnich did not want her to give birth to a child who would have been naturally baptized and would thus have absconded from Judaism. The Jews of Galicia have a book, the Sohar who in this case orders the assassination of the mothers to tear children away from Christianity. The authority of This book is superior even to that of the Gemara and of the Kabbalah. Ritter, his wife Gittel, and Stochinsky, his their accomplices were sentenced to death on December 21, 1882. by the jury of Rzeszow. The superior court overturned two The defendants were convicted three times. to death; ultimately, on October 10, 1883, by the jury of Krakow. But the government pardoned them and the He was thus unfortunately snatched away from the punishment he deserved!
A ritual murder attempt occurred in Deusch-Lipsius, in Hungary, around Easter time in 1885.
A Jewish woman robbed a young Christian woman who did not escape the knife only by miracle. — At Mit-Kamar, in Egypt,

In the same year, a young Coptic man was sacrificed for Passover.
Jewish.

Few media outlets have said a few words about the condemnation of the rabbinical candidate from Breslau, who at last July, drew blood from a Christian child Here. A special chapter will inform the reader about this.

final act of the dark, bloody tragedy that unfolds– has been traveling the world since apostolic times to this day.

The entire Christian era is marked by this terrible stigma.

'Letter from Mr. Istoczy to the author.

Mate. Since the great immolation of Calvary, the Jews, as if driven by an inescapable need, by an invisible hand, have not ceased to spill the blood of disciples of Christ. And throughout the world, they are gathering a uniform cry from the mouths of all peoples: The Jews, fanatics, kill Christian children to make use of their blood in horrible ceremonies and oGod's remedies

CHAPTER II

SAINT RICHARD OF PARIS

(1179)

One of the oldest assassinations, including the old ones Chronicles have preserved the story for us with some distails, is that of B. Richard that the Jews of Pontoise They were martyred on March 25, 1179. The relics of the child were brought to Paris and performed great miracles there.

A touching account of this ritual immolation has was left by Brother Robert Gaguinus, General of the order of the Holy Trinity and of the captives. We Let us simply transcribe it here, striving to... to preserve its naive beauty.

This wonderful story, the writer said, has been neglected aged in French annals and is not well known followers of Christ: it's almost as if our ancestors paid little attention to this fact, which is why today I would like to see it celebrated on our altars.

This is how, in the search for the facts of the ancient In time, what often happens to the rich in the an inventory of their wealth. In their piles of things of value, they find some forgotten object: they are uh-

They are delighted with this discovery, and they are astonished that they disdained it. for a long time, this was what they had that was precious.

What every faithful person is now pleased to be put into in the light remained as if hidden in the fog of negligence: I mean life and cruel passion of Saint Richard, whom the impious Jewish nation martyred at because of the religion of Christ.

The Jews, after the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans endured cruel suffering: exiles from in almost all countries, they had to, in various places, supto bear a humiliating servitude. That is how they came in Gaul, and obtained, in exchange for tribute, permission to settle in Lutetia, the ancient city of the Parisians. This lasted until... reign of Philip Augustus, who, three years after he was Having ascended the throne, he stripped them of their fortune and He was driven out of France. The cause of this act was seen in the the continual hatred that this perfidious people bore to Christians. However, there was a particular cause, a a horrible crime, not to mention the damage caused by wear and tear. daily life in this avaricious nation was a source of suffering for the inhabitants. A large part of the city paid tribute to them. It was surall the little people who had to suffer from their exactions; but the nobles themselves, whom usury had snoredaged and whom the Jews had impoverished, had become their captives. The Israelites were convinced that this They were permitted, according to the precepts of Moses; this Indeed, this great legislator did not forbid them usury. than towards those of their nation t.

And they were not content with this unjust avarice: the sacred vessels, the priests' vestments that were deposited at their homes, pledges were allocated to the uses More shameful? When they had many pledges of

---

* "Wolves do not eat each other," says the proverb.
The Abbot of Cluny had already written to Louis the Younger: "There exists
n,

this nature and that it became very difficult to hide them, or that they feared their abduction, they made bundles that they threw into the cesspools. Few

Gradually they became more daring: they took the ha-habit of killing a Christian, a believer, every year, according
the word of Christ, to serve God, by flagellating and by attaching the disciples of the Nazarene to the cross.

Thus, around the time of Easter in the year 1179,
They abducted Richard, a child of Paris, by luring him to They charmed them with caresses. They led him into a cellar-rain! which they had made a secret place to perpetuate.
the horrible crime. Their priest, according to the law, asks
The child, what is his religion and his faith? — "That one," he replies the gentle and pious Richard, whom I received from my parents,
I follow her and firmly confess it. I believe in Jesus.
conceived and born of the Virgin Mary, by the operation of the Holy-Spirit, struck with rods, covered with spittle by your nation, condemned — pure and innocent — to death vile, to redeem humankind from hell and re-to be in the kingdom of God the Father, of whom he is the son unique. "

The priest, indignant at this profession of faith: "Foolish
"Child," he said, "you speak like a delirious man and"
You are mistaken in your foolish credulity. Certainly, it is right.
to condemn you to cruel torture, you who confess that a lost man possessed something divine.” And Turning to his companions, he commanded:

an ancient, but truly diabolical law, originating from the Princes Christians themselves: if a church property or, what is worse, a
If a sacred vessel is found in the possession of a Jew, he is not obliged to return it.
what he possesses through sacrilegious theft, and one is not bound to "Hand over the thief."

'At the Château de Pontoise,

"Strip this wise man who is so foolish, and strike him with yards.

Immediately the faithful child is stripped of his clothes, struck with fists and atrociously flogged with blows from worms
The Jews mocked him, and in his person covered Jesus and his mother with blasphemies and insults;
They spat in Richard's face, although they admired
His patience and perseverance were evident. In the midst of the cruel flagellation, the young soldier of Christ only repeated the sweet name of Jesus, and the executioners struck with their rage only intensified when they heard him invoke this name more often and more accurately.

Hardly had they had their fill of insults when the Jews, on the orders of their priest, raise Richard on the cross, striving to to heap the same scorn upon the child as upon their fathers they believed they were throwing Christ, the Son of God, down by crucifying him.
O blind emulation! O foolish malice! The perfidious Jew has not yet understood that if he is exiled from so many places on earth, unless he has a dwelling in any country assured, it is because, despising the doctrine of Christ,
He accused, condemned, and vilified an innocent man. He forgot Jesus' words announcing that he would be driven from all the earth and that his city would be destroyed. He did not notice-nor what is written in the Prophets, which is proclaimed by Christ. He makes little of miracles.
divine works that the disciples of Jesus performed in the towers the tortures and the torments, or which take place every day at the Prayer of the saints. The Jew, so delusional, tortured the child full of contrition that God had wanted glorify in heaven.

Bound to the cross, the blessed martyr Richard
he often repeated this verse from David: “Libera me, Domine, quia egenus et pauper sum ego et car meum coudurbatum

"is intra me." The Jews laughed and mocked him.
tending, and each vying to outdo the others, each believing himself to be all the more pleasing to God that he inflicted more insults on the child vile and even more horrific tortures.

All the time the unfortunate band of Jews were turning Richard hurled curses and tortures at us, until…
which he thankfully regained his senses, after having lost all his blood.

For several days Richard's close relatives
They searched for him in vain; but soon suspicion fell upon the Jews because of their customary tyranny-
The martyr's lifeless remains were finally found.
exhumed and buried in the church of Saint-Innocent des Chamskins, where they became the cause of many miracles:
In particular, mention is made of fever patients who were restored to health through the intercession of Saint Richard.
Some Englishmen, having been healed at his tomb, carried away out of gratitude, the relics are returned to their country.

We will see a little later what happened to the Jews of France, because of this barbaric assassination.

* Psalm 108. Deliver me, Lord, for I am poor and in poverty, and my heart is quite troubled within Me.

CHAPTER III

SAINT HUGH OF LINCOLN
(1225)

The story we are about to tell will make us... one more step in the sad journey of exploration that We have undertaken this on Jewish lands. We will be forced to conclude, after this account, that the murder the young Hugh or Hugon was executed in hatred of Christ. This story is recounted at length in the Bollandists; several chroniclers of the Middle Ages, Wilson, Capgravius, Mathieu (of Paris), made it a A story that differs only in a few insignificant details. fiants. Everything that follows is explicitly found in these authors.

I

In the year of the Lord 1255, around the feast of the apostles Peter and Paul, the Jews of Lincoln stole a child named Hugues was eight years old. Then they locked him in a completely secret apartment and fed him there with milk and other foods suitable for children.

Meanwhile, messengers went everywhere proproclaim the good news and call the children of Israel to sacrifice which seems to have replaced for them the true sasacrifice of the old law: instead of the altar of burnt offerings Cautes la table du chourineur. The columnist tells us: said that every city where Jews lived had to send to Lincoln of the representatives "so that they would be present" to the sacrifice to bring shame and insult upon Jesus-Christ. – | |

This shows how important the sacrifice was.
bloody for the Jews of England. Nothing is powerful and dark, like the feeling evoked by the idea of these men, traveling from distant lands to the martyrdom of a Christian child. One can hardly believe one's eyes when witnessing a such a spectacle; and yet the annals of our elders Chroniclers reveal facts of this kind at every turn.
Or else one accuses of barbarity the century in which they took place
these monstrous events; and we forget that this barbarity still lives on today, whether it is displayed before our eyes or not.
. doors, that she threatens our children. — Yes, still at-Today, scenes are taking place that are all very similar to the disgraceful parody that the Jews played at Lincoln, this that year.

For the entire sacrifice was a parody of the com-
From beginning to end, a parody of the death of Jesus-Christ. When all the delegates from the cities had assembled wheat, they elected a Jew as judge; he was the representative . of Pontius Pilate. Then the child's passion began:
on its frail limbs, all the turns were experimented with comments that had made the Savior's flesh shudder.

He was beaten with yards until he was almost completely lost.
full of her blood, "to the point of pallor," the chronicle; a crown of thorns was placed on his head Innocent, her fresh face was smeared with spittle.

Cruel executioners pierced his body with their daggers,
they poured gall on him, and rained down op-
honest things and blasphemies.

And often, the columnist adds, amidst the sneersmentals, gnashing of teeth, Christ himself was
He was reviled and branded a false prophet.

The parody of the Passion of the Savior; the unfortunate child, overwhelmed with contempt and In mockery, he was crucified, and his executioners pierced him with a spear to the heart.

After his death, the Jews detached the body from the cross, and, for some unknown reason, tore it from him
the intestines (eviscerarunt); it is said that this was for the
to employ in magical arts and sorcery.

While all this was happening, the child's mother, worried about his absence, she searched for him with great care;

His searches were fruitless for several days. Finally, some neighbors told him that the last time they They had seen him; he was playing with Jewish children from his age and that he had entered a house with them Jewish. She entered the designated house unexpectedly. and there he discovered the corpse of his child who had been... plunged to the bottom of a well. Warned by her, the bailiffs of The city officials went to the scene and had water drawn. The corpse of the little martyr. The pain of the poor woman Mother was such that she broke the hearts of all those who sat there. so much so that most of them mingled their tears with his moans.

Jean de Lexington, who had been Keeper of the Seals of King of England, was then in Lincoln; he was a a circumspect and highly educated man, and as soon as he He knew the facts we have presented, he brought this judgement: "We have often heard that the Jews, out of hatred and contempt for the crucified Jesus Christ, they did not fears perpetrating such attacks. It is likely that This new assassination is their responsibility, and they are guilty of it.

This cry, we find it everywhere the trace exists of a human victim, and all mouths prodid. Yesterday, it was the immense voice of a people, today-Today, it is the accredited voice of a scholar, of a man of the State, tomorrow, it will be the inspired voice of a servant of God. Of every class of citizens, at all times, in In every country, the same cry echoes for a long time. echoing this, a whole chain of odious accusations is formed. which are proving to be true day by day.

Jean de Lexington wanted to know if he had guessed correctly. They had arrested the Jew in whose harvest the child had been found, this Jew being even more suspicious than The others. He spoke to him in roughly these words:

"Wretch, you know that death awaits you in a short time." deadline: all the gold in England wouldn't be enough for you save. I want to provide you with that means, but at a The condition is that you will discover me completely and "Without falsehood, everything that has been done in this matter."

The Jew, whose name was Copinus, believing he saw there was a lifeline, he readily indulged in all of this that we wanted from him.

Here is what he stated: "What Christians say It's true. Almost every year the Jews crucify a as a child, filled with hatred and contempt for Jesus. But we don't I don't know every year because it's done in secret.
and in hidden places. This child, whom we call Hugh was crucified without mercy; and after his
He died, and we wanted to bury him, but we never could have succeeded. It is also said that the body of an innocent is very useful for revealing the future; that is why it is used

It tore out his entrails. He was thought to be buried in the ground.
But the evil one, the earth vomited him up and gave him up, and he was found without burial. Then the Jews, terrified, the they threw them to the bottom of a well: he could not yet remain there hidden. That's how his mother discovered it and told me denounced to the bailiffs.

The Jew was put in prison, pending the end of the affair.
to do. From that moment on, Hugues was regarded as a martyr: the canons of Lincoln requested the body and buried him with great respect.

The King of England, Henry III, blamed John of Lexingthe tone of having promised the accused his life; "for," he said Matthew of Paris, this murderer and blasphemer, was "worthy of all punishments."

Seeing that death was inevitable for him, Copinus

He thus completed his first statement: "Death me threat, and Lord John cannot tear me away from it. HandNow, I will tell you the whole truth. For the death of this child, about which the Jews are accused, almost all the Jews in all of England had assembled, and delegates had been sent from every city
to witness his immolation, as for the sacrifice
Pascal. » The reader will notice that the confessions spring forth spontaneously from the heart of the Israelite; he does not speak under the threat or influence of torture. GenGenerally, defendants in these kinds of trials fear more their fellow believers than their judge, and that is only when they are certain of not falling into the hands of Jewish vengeance that they decide to confess.
Talmudic law, in fact, is merciless towards those who they cast their secrets to the four winds of heaven: it matters to crime, to shame, to remain in darkness.

The sacrifice of Saint Hugh had a great impact everywhere

=
i

impact. In the Middle Ages, although there was no the communication facilities of our time, the facts of this kind quickly became popular. We have conserved a lament in old French verse, under this title: Passio pueri Hugonis de Lincolnia, It reads:

Agon li Ju responded so much:
Bailez méi icel enfant

For thirty deniers weighing Vei les ici demannant...

We see that the Jews are accused there of having bought the child; Matthew of Paris says nothing about it; perhaps it is- This is just one more detail, perhaps it's also a legend. But, if the purchase did not take place for Saint Hugh, the Further work will reveal that the Jews had some. yet quite used to it.

He

The torture that avenged the death of the young martyr was terrible, tied to the tail of an untamed horse, the neck- Pable was dragged to the gallows, "and presented in body and in "soul to the evil demons of the air."

The denunciations led to the arrest of beau- his accomplices were killed: they were taken to London, numbering 91, and imprisoned in the famous tower, from which one rarely left except for torture. The justices- The king's officials conducted a very serious investigation, where under the faith of the oath!, they were declared guilty of

'Here is the translator of the Great Chronicle of Matthew of Paris crime of which Copinus had accused them. Eighteen of the principals The principals were hanged on November 23, 1255. The others remained in prison.

AM AM

But the Jews already possessed at that time the the art of skillfully weaving the threads of a plot, science which they have brought to its zenith in our time. prisoners found the carnage that had paid their last ritual sacrifice, and they resolved to to save their lives. Thirteen remained, and 24 were to to be hanged soon.

They considered approaching the Franciscans and the they begged for intercession to spare them the An ignominious death they so richly deserved. Emotional Driven by compassion and charity, the half-brothers neurs, whose power was great at the time, used all their influence over the king, and obtained for the 24 convicts were granted a remission of the death penalty. But they remained under close surveillance.

The other 49 remained in prison for some time longer. their; then they were finally released in the month of May 1256!

has taken this note, which we are republishing: Jurala, jurea, jurée, legal investigation. We believe, based on the meaning of the sentence, that this word has a particular meaning here and signifies the oath sworn by the Jews super rotulum legis (Mosaicæ). Carpentier reports the for-ordinary mule of this oath. — Forma sacramendi fiendi per Judaeos contra christianos, dum ipsi Judæi tenent rotulum in collo: Juras per quinque libros legis el per nomen sanctum et gloriosum “Heye asset Heye Hue Heye” and per nomen honorificum “Hiya Ilya Yhia” (corruption of Jehovah?) et per nomen magnum et fortem tam admirabile quod erat scriptum super frontem Aaron, Dic juro. »

In the mid-15th century, in Dauphiné, the formula carried... names with a less strange appearance: Per sema Israel, Adonai, Elloemi, Adonai and Eal (sic).

1 The figures we give here do not exactly agree-

This liberalization did not satisfy the English people, who wished to see his revenge more successful. Also. a huge concert arose against the Franciscans of blame: it was even said that the Jews had purchased. This accusation cannot have the slightest value.

theirs in the eyes of those who know the rule of Minorities:
not only can they not own anything in particular to link, but the community itself is also poor than the brothers.

But popular sentiment doesn't always make sense
with rectitude, and in this circumstance, the crowd ma-
He expressed his resentment against the Franciscans, by re-reducing almost to nothing the gifts of which she composed them previously blait.

May this trait be further proof of hatred.
popular that the Judaizers had stirred up at this era.

ment with those that Matthew of Paris gives in various places of his column; but we think there was an error in the trans-
the writing of numbers that were written in Roman numerals.
The numbers given above appear to be the true ones.

CHAPTER IV

TOUCHING STORY OF SAINT WERNHER
(1287)

I

In April 1287, the small town of Oberwesel was the scene of a poignant, painful drama, like the are all those where Christian children are handed over to the rapacious cruelty of the Julius. It is to this cruelty that beautiful-
The origin of the legends was attributed to simple souls.
of vampires who have so often graced the evenings of our aleux.

That year, the Christian Easter was celebrated on April 6; the Jewish Passover had taken place a few days ago previously, on March 25th.

But in Oberwesel, it had happened without the sacrifice customary: the martyrdom of Christ had not been renewed Velé, the blood of a Christian child had not defiled the synagogue walls. It was a gap that needed to be filled.
to fill the void. Sacrilege and crime were used to compensate for it:
When a Jew misses his shot once, it's because hit harder when he starts again.

The victim was a fourteen-year-old child named of Wernher, who worked in one of the houses Jewish women of the city.

He was born in Wammeraïd, a village on the banks of the Rhine, not far from Koblenz. From his childhood, he showed that he was destined for great things. God's hand was upon him: his life was short, but full of works. And that is how he deserved to receive the palm of martyrdom from the very hands of those who had placed the crown of thorns upon the glorious head of Christ.

In terms of bloody sacrifice, the Jews have a taste for gourmets. They never attack a child of the street, which has kept in its devastated heart, the smell of waves of mud, in which he bathed. What he Their fault is the child, whose heart is filled with innocence, ravished the souls of the seraphim, whose blood, pure and crimson, They have all the vibrancy of life. They have the rage of martyrs. To mock the saints.

Wernher was a child of the people. But at his baptism, he was marked on the forehead with the inescapable sign of no-heavenly blessing, and he made himself worthy of it. His family was poor; he had to learn the work of hands, which would provide him with food. He kept himself busy with pruning the vines, without thinking about the knife he was using denied every day, was soon to be the instrument of his torture.

His work, which he offered to God each morning, was fruitful. It was also more than enough for his subsistence; The poor benefited from the superfluous. In his work, He was so cheerful, so agile, so skillful, that he was cherished by everyone: his good morals, his piety, Her virginal purity made her an angel. Now the place angels are in heaven, and not in our valley of the middle Seres.

Various reasons forced him to leave his village and his family, to come and work in Oberwesel. In this During his journey, the Lord's mercy shone forth within him. It was in July 1286: the heat was scorching, the

The road was deserted. And so the young traveler was wasting away.
of hunger and thirst. These sufferings had tormented him since for a long time, when he also met shepherds thirstier than him, but having bread. The good people.
They did not need to be asked twice and shared their food.
the traveler.

"Take it, dear child," they told him; "we would like"
also offer water to your parched lips, but there is no
a fountain point in this country.

Moved by these words, the saint raised his eyes to heaven and He implored God in the silence of his heart. Then he-
He plunged his stick into the ground and a spring, clear and limfast, it gushes forth. This spring, located on the road to Bacharach at St- Werdelin, could still be seen in the 16th century;
It was called the fountain of Saint Wernher.

II

The child then won without further incident, the term of his trip. After several months, employed at various work, he managed to get a job, a few days before the Passover, in a Jewish house: they made him LOS pore. the soil removed from a cellar that was being dug.

He had maintained his good habits in Oberwesel his childhood; also the woman, with whom he lodged, the-was she lavishing maternal care on him? When he entered the Jews, she told him, as if moved by one of those premonitions-moments that touch the hearts of mothers:

— Wernher, be careful: Easter is approaching and
The Jews might well sacrifice you.

Their barbaric customs were so well known that by-
We talked about everything openly at that time.

The child, simple as a dove, replied with perfect resignation:

— I] will be what God wills.

The fruit was ripe; the marten was going to pick it. It was celestial flower, which a bunch of usurers, with dirty hands
They, clumsily, would wither and grind miserably.
Today, the descendants of these men, who have become a little more cynical, they act like the slimy slug in the lily, before cutting into it: before losing the en—
They tarnish his image. That's how the crime escalates.
and becomes more odious; perhaps that is why Modern peoples, having become liches, repress it.
less.

On Holy Thursday, after washing his soul in the waters invigorating Penitential practices, he piously received in his heart the bread of the strong.

We know that the Jews have always felt hostility towards the Jews.
tie a kind of insane rage; every time they can seize it, they subject it to infamous or—
They tried it that day, in Oberwesel.

When Wernher left the holy table, the Jews
They lured them away under the pretext of urgent work; they were indeed eager to insult Christ on the day when Every believer humbles himself by compassionating for his sufferings.

No sooner had the child entered the house than they seize him, hang him upside down, for him to make them return the precious bread they had just received. They

They stopped her cries, brutally placing her on the mouth a mass of lead which deprives him of all ability to speak.

These Jews must have been accustomed to this sacrilege.
The child was not, in fact, suspended in any way
any kind, but to a sort of wooden statue arranged for this purpose. This statue could still be seen in Oberwesel.
in the 15th century, when the canonization process took place of the saint. She was held in great honor by the pè—
The clerics, who often carried away pieces of it and the
they regarded them as precious relics.

Their efforts were in vain and the Savior's body was saved this time from desecration. To deceive their Enraged, they resolved to kill the child; but they waited a few days later, on April 17th, the bloody sa—
The crime began.

It had been going on for some time already, when a serboasts of the house, which was Christian, noticed and went to see the chief judge of Wesel, named Eberhard. Upon learning that it was the Jews, he did well an ugly grimace, quite similar to the one that is sketching the magistrates of the French Republic, when one dethey bring the all-powerful Jews before their tribunal. `But, willingly or unwillingly, he followed the instructions of the servant, and, to the great astonishment of the executioners, entered the room where the martyrdom was taking place!

What a horrible sight met his eyes!

The child was still tied to the shapeless statue which we have spoken of, but her angelic body was not more than a hideous wound, and swirling around him A swarm of demonic Jews. The flesh of the martyr It had become swollen and torn under the bites of the ferals, and the clots of his own blood enveloped him like 1.

-

of a bloody shroud. With his own knife, the the child's veins had been cut in various places rights: young people laughingly held the wineskins where Drop by drop the red liquid gathered, and hideous old men, fearing that a little blood might remain in the the victim's body, gripping his neck tightly, the Arms and head. There was enough there to fill a... with horror A refined brigand, the most cruel executioner would have feared even to the point of hurting the child's delicate limbs; the The Jews, for their part, were swimming in joy and through their jeersbets and their blasphemies, insulted the silence of. patient.

The judge's sudden entrance was a dramatic turn of events: the Marlyr exulted in the hope of her deliverance, and the. The executioners looked at each other in dismay, while the Instruments of torture fell from their hands. But: Their panic was short-lived, and they soon recovered to their dirty work, with particular tenacity and audacity tied to their race.

Here is what happened. The chief judge of Oberwesel did not He did not disdain money, the Jews knew that, and one They hastened to make him proposals that swoon His mind was filled with the memory of just judgments. He received the the price of his iniquity, as Judas received the price of his . crime; and he responded only with an icy silence to the child who begged him for his deliverance. Then this one, sublime in her naiveté, she cried out: "If you abandon me, God and his blessed mother will come to my aid.

After the corruption and the judge's departure, the sacrifice continued and only ended on April 19, when the marTyr had exhaled his soul with the last drop of his blood. The torture had lasted (three days). The next day It was a Saturday, the Jews did not touch the leftovers.

of the marlyre. But scarcely had the setting sun made cease the Sabbath rest, so that they could have been seen to dissipate to slip into the shadows of the night and win stealthily, in hugging the walls of the houses, the banks of the river where they they wanted to erase all traces of their crime.

Boats were moored there, ready to go upstream as far as Mainz. The Jews settled there with their precious burden and they made light of the oars. But God came-his martyrdom was already erupting, his heart filled with fear cowards: the whitening dawn trembled on the horizon, and despite the vigorous efforts of an entire night, a They were barely a league from Oberwesel. They stopped shaken by terror. They had arrived not far from Bacharach, opposite a small valley, where the order of Saint William has since founded a monastery under the Name of Saint Wernher. A small, blocked cave. Brambles and thorns presented themselves to their questioning gaze. They threw the bloody relics into it and hastened away. to return to their homes.

III

Cruelty had done its work; God was about to do the hers.

It should be noted that almost always, the remains Innocent people, killed by Jews, have been found miraculously. Which shows how much these Murders are horrible in the eyes of God.

Soldiers were camped nearby. During the

at night the guards who kept watch in the Fursten- camp Berg glimpsed waves of light that seemed to spring forth from the cave where the martyr slept his last sleep. These lights having been renewed for several days immediately, they piqued the curiosity of the men-at-arms;
came to the place from which they had departed, and guided by a
They found the body wrapped in a fragrant scent
her blood-soaked shroud.

According to the custom then in use, they wore the 'corpse at the Bacharach courthouse'. They are doing Even today. Corpses whose identity is not recognized, they await, at the Morgue, a clue which-conch shells come to reveal their origin. That's how we acts for Wernher.

But at the courthouse, a fragrant scent wafted from the air.
The miraculous light still surrounded his body.
always with a glorious halo. The persistence of these
The events stirred public opinion; the voice of the people acclaimed a new...
blessed calf and it was with pious devotion that the martyr's remains were transported to the chapel of Saint Cunibert? who was located nearby in a mountain pass.

He was buried with all the honors due to martyrs.
of the Church, and God himself was pleased to confirm this halo of sanctity due to the numerous miracles of which he honored the grave of the young sacrificed man. During the two In the months following the death, ninety were found miracles about which not the slightest doubt can be raised.

1 Prussian town on the left bank of the Rhine; nn covered rock inscriptions and named Bacchi Ara seem to have given it its name.

* Bishop of Cologne, who died in 664 and whose feast day falls
as of November 12th.

All diseases found their cure at this tom-Beautiful and blessed. This is how God avenges his martyrs.

When men honor executioners. There is a wide compensation.

CHAPTER V

THE PRELUDE TO THE CRIME OF THIRTY
(1462)

In the country surrounding Innsbruck, there existed a remarkable tradition. The people long claimed that a band of Jews were abducting Christian children, the martyred, collected their blood, and from this blood that one employed in religious practices, made a pre-heavens as a commodity: Jewish peddlers went,
from ghetto to ghetto, parading this hideous pedant-
and piled the gold into their saddlebags.

We will see in Part III that these noises about
The bloody trafficking was not without foundation.
We have already seen that the Jews did not scruples about sacrificing Christian children to procure-to shed innocent blood. The Innsbruck tradition therefore has Not entirely wrong.

Where we cannot fully admit it is when she claims that the assassination of B. André, which had taking place in Rinn!, in 1462, is due to the same Jews who de-

1 The village of Rinn is located in the Pinn valley, on Fim-
a plateau sloping southwards towards the river; it is little Located away from the towns of Hall and Innsbruck, the capital of Tyrol. Approximately
It takes an hour's walk to get from this village to Hall;
It takes a little over two hours to reach Innsbruck.

thirteen years later, they would so cruelly immolate the
B. Simon in Trento. The thing is possible; but no Positive evidence does not confirm this popular rumor. We do not we do not possess the names of Rinn's assassins; as for
to the Jews of Trent, they confessed to nothing of the sort,
And the accusers, the witnesses, the judges remain silent on this.

subject.

What is certain is that a ritual murder was committed by Jews in 1462 in the town of Rinn.
Here is the story:

In the 15th century, the city of Posen had celebrated fairs four in particular were renowned. They had Location: 1° the first day of the moon following Sunday
Oculi; 2° the first public holiday after the feast of Saint-Sacrament; 3? September 8; 4? the day after Saint-André, that is to say, December 1st.

The merchants who traveled from Italy to these different rents and fairs passed through the village of Rinn, where found a hotel.

In 1462, the Feast of Corpus Christi fell on June 17th.
A little before this time, a group of merchants Jews were crossing the village of Rinn and stopping to
to rest, at the inn run by an individual named de Mayer. In front of the door with his companions age, played a young child of about three years old, whose face, of ineffable beauty, held irrevocably captured the attention of travelers. 3

He was the nephew of the hotel owner. He was born near 1a in the village of Rinitoparchia, in the diocese of Brux, on November 16, 1459. His parents, of humble origins, but with an unblemished life,
They named Simon Oxner and Marie: he himself wore the
His name was André. He lost his father at the age of one and a half.
It was then that his mother, having no other child, came to remain in his brother-in-law's house in Rinn. The Young André was entrusted almost entirely to his uncle;
In this way the mother could more easily go about her business.
to his occupations and earn his daily bread. This was for
She caused it bitter tears.

Indeed, Jewish merchants, attached to their prey, did not
They never ceased to marvel at the beauty of young André, and at his
The hotelier was pressed with questions on the subject. He confessed that the child was his nephew. Immediately, a diabolical plan was hatched.
stood between the kidnappers; at all costs, they resolved to seize the object of their bloodthirsty covetousness.

They try by all means to circumvent the host-to tie; they represent to him that his nephew is worthy of a better fortune, better education; they sense it to entrust the child to them; they promise to take care of him. of parents; to give him a full and pleasant life. The uncle remained hesitant. The sons of Israel could not renouncecer to their project after having made such great progress; They put forward the decisive argument; they offered to Mayer a large sum of money which made him agree to their request.

The deal was concluded immediately: it was agreed that the enfant would be handed over to the Jews when they returnthey would be out of the fair, after four weeks.

This return took place on Friday, July 9th. The Jews, at a number of ten, — among Jesquels was a rabbi,

— stopped at the village of Rinn to celebrate the Sabbath. The innkeeper, who had become a good friend of the Jews, took part to this celebration by drinking with them. Then they remainedThey waited for some time, awaiting a favorable opportunity to the fulfillment of their dark designs: the mother of The young child was bothering them; she had to be moved away.

Finally, on Monday, July 12th, the long-awaited moment arrived.

From early morning, the mother of innocent André spoke to the harvest in a rather sparsely populated field; as if from a computer . naire she entrusted her sonS to the care of her brother-in-law. It could have been nine o'clock in the morning when the impious The merchant brought the Jews into his house and their he handed over the weak innocent man in his care. In return, The assassins threw the gold coins into his hat that they had promised him. Then they withdrew hastilyespecially by carrying off their prey.

Either by a singular chance, or by permission of God — whose avenging arm extends in a way particular on the executioners of the children sacrificed because named after him —, a violent storm raged over the barbaric kidnappers, as they were leaving the village. The sky had suddenly become covered with clouds, that violent lightning flashes tore through the sky, and it happened that a so heavy rain that all those who worked in the The plains fled to safety. Fearing they would be noticedTaken by surprise, the Jews locked themselves in a hovel. in ruins which was located nearby.

As soon as the rain had stopped — which was around noon —
— the Jews, with their innocent victim, gained a
They were near a small birch wood, from which they were not far away.
wood still contained at the time of the Bollandists wrote this grim story, a stone that the people called it Jewish stone (Judenstein).

HAS

“As soon as the innocent man arrived at the altar, the rab-Well, he received it in his hands. After removing his He laid his clothes on the rock and gagged him for to stifle her cries. Then, amidst horrible blasphemies against Christ, the victim was sacrificed according to the rite Jewish: the cheeks were pierced by a horrible wound
Sure, the veins in both arms were cut, and the blood which was flowing was received in a vase by a kneeling Jew.
And so that everyone could unleash their rage against the innocent martyr, they pierced his thighs and legs in turn — role. |

"Then, at the moment when the martyr, exhausted from blood, was about to..."
to breathe his last, they laid him on the rock shaped like cross, and there he was strangled by the bloodthirsty rabbi.
The victim's life was extinguished, but not the rage of the executioners: the shameless thieves are still at it again on the poor little corpse. Finally, they hung it from a nearby birch tree and provided for their safety by a fast flee.

II

During the storm, André's mother had had something like a a premonition of what was happening: a strange worry tortured his heart and seemed to be calling out to him for help her child. Serenity had returned to her soul with the calm of the elements, and she had gone back to work with his companions. It was then that a mystery came to him.
a terrible warning from Providence: three times

a drop of blood fell on his hand, without either

Neither she nor her companions could explain its origin.

Struck with astonishment and foreshadowing nothing good, She hurried home. She looked for unnecessarily his son, first in his cradle, then in the neighborhood among his acquaintances. Don't find him- Before she could, she questioned her brother-in-law and asked him where his André had run. The traitor hid everything.

But as the mother persisted, moaning and repeating- he tearfully sent word to his son, delivered by this infamous man, he He told him not to worry because he had provided well her child, but that wasn't enough for the poor woman widow. dh

She redoubled her questions. Not daring to answer them, di- Immediately, Mayer led her to his home, to to share with her the price of blood, as if a mother could, through the possession of a little gold, console himself for the loss of something as precious as a child. One must be mother to understand the bitter irony that it contained the bitter intention of the desperate traitor. His punishment could not- It would be a long time coming, and his shame would be proclaimed before our eyes. of all. 20

He opened his hat to offer his share to the his mother was shamefully deceived: he found there only a vile a pile of willow leaves. The most vivid astonishment painted on the unfortunate man's features and this spectacle made- This only intensified the widow's anguish. Then... She obtained from him a confession that Jews had kidnapped the child, and had led him into the nearby woods.

Without further delay, the mother ran to the indicated place. Calling out to her André in a tearful, moaning voice, She arrives at the foot of the rock, where the traces of the horrific sacrifice. Looking around her,

She caught sight of a pitiful spec- on a nearby birch tree tackle, his son hanged naked and bloody.

Her cries of pain drew many people to her side. neighboring farmers. Everyone felt sorry for them. of the poor woman and offered her consolation; but No one, the historian said, thought that the remains were there. of a distinguished martyr.

That is why the child's body was detached without to worship him, and he was placed in the arms of the mother. She took care of having him buried, and one

He was buried, like an ordinary child, in the cemetery of the parish of Ampass, on which the village then depended de Rinn.

Mayer, meanwhile, had gone completely berserk, so although he had to be chained up in the very room where He had sold his nephew. He stayed there for two years. His body it became a raw wound and gave off such an unbearable stench-portable that he was relegated to a stable. He lived there in-
He lived for two years and died very miserably.

III

But God did not always want to leave in the shadows and in the silence the glory of the martyred child, and by Through various miracles he revealed the treasure to the inhabitants of Rinn
which they had scorned. Several miraculous events
They came to attest to the world the glory of the martyr,

On his neglected grave, he pushed, towards the beginning-autumn lily of dazzling whiteness;
This miraculous flower lasted for several days. It was destroyed by the impudent hand of a child who empara. His posterity has borne the burden of this profanation: it was noted that almost all of his descendants perished from premature or violent death.

The other miraculous event occurred around the
at the same time, when the leaves turn yellow and de-leave the branch they adorned during the summer. The birch tree from which the child had been suspended, was exempt of this general law: it remained green and this greenery
It was extraordinary and preserved for seven years. It had-would probably have lasted longer if a daring goatherd had not, with blows of an axe, cut down the privileged tree;
It is said that his goats often went, during Phiver, grazing the birch's greenery, and only to...
To avoid the trouble of following them, he cut down the tree. He didn't delay not to bear the consequences of his audacity. By dragging the trunk |
On his way home, he broke his leg: the injury never heals, a secret evil invades him even while-third and he died from it.

These miracles gave the people pause for thought. Then when it was learned in 1475 that the child sacrificed by the Jews of Trent were honored in that city as The idea arose of venerating him as a martyr in a public cult. the memory of little André. On Saint- Sunday Trinity's bones were exhumed from the cemetery and carried to the rock in the forest, in a solemn processionnelle, and there at the church where they were laid with large honors. Miracles rewarded the faith of faithful.

Forty years later, Emperor Maximilian!, being in travels to these lands, goes to venerate the relics of holy child. And since the church was quite dilapidated, he left a large sum of money to build a new one new, inviting the entire neighborhood to contribute to the consconstruction of the building. But the money was squandered by Jacques Haan, the architect. It was only after... long legal proceedings, and much later, than the basilica It was built up and the worship of the blessed man took on a great extension.

The Bollandists write that in the year 1671, after the ediconstruction of the new temple, the body was clothed in a triple silk tunic and placed in a tabernacle made expressly, into which the view could penetrate. The The body, they add, is perfectly preserved; it does not lack: that the last phalanx of a finger which was given to the Bishop of Brussels, when he came to consecrate the new church and the two altars: he locked it in a box of silver and kept it in great veneration until the end of his life. Other parts of the body were also affected. Winds requested and constantly refused.

On page 438 of their third volume from July, the Bollandists reproduced an old painting which found on the walls of Rinn's church. When it was Discovered in 1620, it already dated back to a high antiquity: it was deteriorated in several places and The inscriptions which were located at the bottom of each small table or comcompartment, representing each act of martyrdom.

'Maximilian I*', Emperor of Germany, husband of Mary of Burgundy (1459-1519).

It was exactly reproduced in the new church. in 1675, shortly after the translation of the relics of saint. She represents step by step the martyrdom as we We told the story.

This monument, which was known to all the inhabitants of the country leaves no doubt as to the truth of the story we have told. If the facts of which it is the reproduction had not been true, the voice The public would have been moved and would not have allowed subsis- to erect a monument that demonstrated them as such.

CHAPTER VI

THE TRIAL OF THIRTY
(1475)

In this chapter, we will discuss the history of an event- which shed immense light on the depravities of the synagogue. Let's first give a brief summary of the case.

On Holy Thursday, March 23, 1475, he disappeared in the city of Thirty-one, a twenty-nine-month-old child; his parents, After searching for him in vain, they referred the matter to the bishop. who was also the temporal lord of Ja city. Extensive searches were conducted. The Jews who had the body in one of their houses, not knowing how to get rid of them, because they were being held in custody, they imagined throwing it into a flowing stream under the kitchen of that house. Then they went to denounce at the court that they had found the body, in the es- to deflect any suspicion from them through this approach audacious. It was not so, for the examination of the The corpse revealed that death had been caused by torture. It was in vain that the Jews invented a thousand reasons. sounds to exonerate himself. This led to a lengthy trial, during which the revelations gradually occurred the most devastating.

€

Even before the Jews were interrogated, a something we must note. "The governor wanting to know if it was true, as was said, that the Jews used to kill Christian children and to collect their blood, he summoned John to his side, Christian of Feltre, who was detained in the prisons and was formerly Jewish; he had become a Christian seven years ago approximately years.

“John, brought before the governor, took an oath on the Scriptures to tell the truth; and this is his deposition: — About fifteen years earlier, his father, Sachetus (from Germany), had told him that, forty years later tót, while he was living in the town of Lanzhut!, in the Lower Germany, with his family, all the Jews, habit- - so many in this city, they killed a child at Easter time male and used his blood. The matter was summoned to the lord of this town, a lord of whom he does not remember- He did not spell the name. This lord had all the Jews who were there, except those who fled and among whom was the father of the witness, who could thus escaping the ultimate torture. And the father of the A witness told him that, because of the murder of this child, Forty-five Jews were burned, but he did not say anything about it. more details on how the child had been killed, and He did not state by whom.

"The witness was then asked if he had ever..." served that blood when he was Jewish, if he had never saw his father use it, and how and why.

! "But he knew that this city was called by others Tungghut — a word which the Bollandists translated as “Tongres”.

He replied that he did not feel obliged to declare if he had used that blood; but that his father, during throughout his life — before the meal, on the day of the Jewish Passover and the two days that followed — took blood, he put some in his cup where there was wine, and He sprinkled this mixture on the table, cursing his faith.

Christian. He also said that this blood was put in the dough, from which unleavened bread was made, and this before the Passover, the festival during which Jews ate bread unleavened bread. But he didn't know how or why this was happening. He said that other Jews were doing the same thing.
based on what he saw and heard, adding that all of this
"It is done among them in a very secretive manner."

Such a statement was not intended to stop the investigations: they were therefore numerous and pro-extended. This can be judged by the extent of the acts of the trials where the interrogations are kept in a clerk's style, that is to say, in a simple style, devoid of ornamentation and containing only the fifths meaning of the statements.

An authentic copy still exists in the archives from the Vatican where he was transported, along with the rest of the secret archives, of the Castel Sant'Angelo, which the con-
This was the case during the time of Benedict XIV. This pope is the first who mentions it in his work on canontation'. He says, speaking of B. Simon, super cujus obitu, authenticus exists process in archivio secreto castri sancti Angeli de Urbe, quem Bollandiani, ceterique omnes which of eo scripserunt, ignorarunt.

In 1884 and 1882, the Civilta cattolica published the
the most important extracts. It is in what she has

'Book I, chapter XV.

published, from which we drew the elements of this study
on the crime of Trent.

"This trial," says the valiant Italian review, "has remained until now completely ignored, as he was when Benedict XIV first mentioned it;
The full extent of the infernal effect he spreads over the... is largely ignored.
abominable secrets of Talmudic rabbinism. And for- .
So much so, by leafing through these documents, one notices the pre-
The first time we not only read them, but that we even studied them carefully, since in many of them-
The margins are full of notes; and this, on-all in the places where the secret impiety of the Hebrew law. And that is why he is all the more singular because, in none of the writers who have tried to tear this veil, we do not encounter

a sign that would suggest the true discovery of these heinous infamies: it is only today, after four
It has been a hundred years since this historical truth began to be proven. Until now, it has only been in a state of doubt "Infinitely probable!" It was by an unexpected stroke of luck.
that a correspondent from Cvvilta had in his hands

1 The Moldovan rabbi professes the same opinion. “Never,” he says
No one has spoken or written about this barbaric secret of blood that the Jews preserve and practice; by which their lives have become worse than that of ferocious beasts. If it ever falls into the hands of Christians-Here's a book dealing with this secret; the Jews don't respond.
never directly, but ambiguously by saying that the Hebrews do not kill Christians and it is forbidden for them to eating blood. — And here is the reason why not only the Hebrews in general, but even the Jews converted to Christianity Tianism should never say anything clear about this mystery.
assumes, when speaking of converted Jews, that they act in this way, because that they actually don't know the secret (since in fact (not all Jews know about it), or because Jews con-Greens think and hope that their brothers will perhaps convert

`

He studied these old documents and conducted a remarkable study of them.
whose translation alone would be enough to cover the entire nation
Jewish, veiled in infamous cruelty, shrouded in horror reur!

He

- At the end of the 15th century, there were thirty-three families
Jewish women whose leaders were respectively Tobias, Ange and Samuel. The latter two practiced the profession common to Jews, the profession for which they seem born: they lent money at usury. The third practiced the me-medicine, or rather surgery. It is called artis chirurgize peritus in the manuscript left in the archives of Trent, by the bishop and prince of this city, Jean IV Hinderbach, under whose pontificate the martyrdom of Blessed Simo- occurred
Cino and the punishment of his assassins.

In Samuel's house lived an old man with a beard.

One day. And they fear that, if the knowledge of this mystery when it happened to the Christians, they did not refuse to admit them into the Christian faith. Perhaps it is because of this poorly understood charity-
"It's clear they've kept this mystery quiet."

We do not know, says Civilita catholica, if this story handwritten with all the documents attached to it is still in the boxes in Trento, or if it has been transcarried in the Palatine Library in Vienna. But these documents almost all of these items are cited or reported, either in abbreviated form, either in extenso in the two rare and important works of a
The learned Father Bernard Bonelli, of the Reformed Order of Franciscan Friars: Apologetic dissertation on the martyrdom of Blessed Simon, Trent, E et Monumenta ecclesie tridentinæ: voluminis tertii pars altera.

old man, who in the Israelite clan had the reputation of
to know the time when the Messiah would appear on the earth. He was called Moses the Elder. This man played an important role in the crime of 1475.

All his life, this unfortunate man had used blood
Christian: he had successively lived in two cities
from Germany and Italy, and the proceedings of the trial... learn that everywhere it was customary to use the Christian blood, which Moses had followed everywhere - tume of his coreligionists. What a life this existence-tormented tene at the bottom of which all-days the preoccupation with blood! From what day a his-Does history - like that of this Moses - shed light on the abominable morals of the ghetto!

Moise had been living in the house for about ten years.
his nephew Samuel, in Trent. He had come from Germany, where his father was another Samuel, in the town of Sbirterberg. An octogenarian and almost Decrepit, he certainly deserved the nickname "Old Man"; but he
It is likely that the Jews had not given it to him.
for this reason. They surrounded him with a large Respect, profound veneration: he was a master.
in Israel and he was often consulted on Talmudic rites discs from which long experience had taught him. In the martyrdom we are about to recount, the high presidency
it was assigned to him.

For several years, these Jews, from whom we come to draw a quick sketch, had sought in vain to obtain Christian blood. Angel who lived in the city for the past five or six years, had not missed each year to discuss this with Samuel. But until then, their Their attempts had been unsuccessful. Perhaps their Hadn't our efforts been thorough enough, good enough?

8.

combined! Perhaps the Christians were also observing scrupulously the ecclesiastical laws that prevented them
They were afraid to mingle with the Jews. Wise laws! How many had been right to move the disciples of Jesus, since the Israelites themselves declared that "Every year, they take great care to collect"
the blood of a Christian child.

But the year 1475 was an extraordinary year, a jubilee year, where it was impossible for them to evade the Talmudic prescriptions. They still possessed many the blood powder that a few years earlier they had bought from a Saxon merchant; but that was insufficient. In the Jubilee year, in fact, it is absolutely necessary for the Jews to obtain blood
the cost of a Christian child! Otherwise, they have no part of the graces and privileges of the great year.

On Tuesday of Holy Week, they held a council.
Passover was approaching and they were preparing everything they needed.
was necessary to celebrate it. They had plenty of-the dance of meats and fish, but the principal thing-pale, "the thing without which the celebration of the festival
"Was impossible," was still missing. Ange reminded them
the fatal obligation of blood, and, by common agreement, They considered how to fill the prescriptions of the law. This took place in the house of Samuel, where the synagogue was; they were discussing it in hushed voices, for fear of the servants who were going and came from all sides, busy with preparations for the feast pascal.

Note this circumspection: we see here

* Declaration of Tobit: In quo anno jubiei OMNINO OPORTET
psos habere de sanguine nECENTI pueri christiani, si fieri potest.

We put into action the statements of the various witnesses. All of us They say, in fact, that the secret of the blood was not entrusted that to trusted people and that it was carefully hidden- to those over whom distrust hung, to those whose Orthodoxy was not perfectly rigid and intransseat. |

The Jews' main preoccupation is stealing

They no longer share their religious secrets with the uninitiated. No doubt they they hope in this way to escape the severe repression which should always follow their monstrous crimes. For To protect themselves from publicity, they employ an astonishing level of luxury. taking precautions.

This luxury was displayed in Trent for the martyrdom of the little Simon. Even before having the sweet one in his hands victim, they pointed out the place where she should be struck. This took place in the assembly which was held at the synagogue on Holy Wednesday. Tobias and Angel declared that it couldn't be done at their place, given the cramped conditions. of their houses: in these narrow dwellings, one does not could easily hide from the servants and the prying eyes, and the child's cries could penetrate- to reach the neighboring houses. The wide and spacious Samuel's home offered complete security; also the was designated to be the scene of the abominable sacrifice.

It remained to steal the propitiatory host. Always by As a precaution, they had, since the day before, tried to to have the deed carried out by a traveling merchant named of Lazarus, who was staying in Samuel's house. This The latter had summoned him: “Lazarus, him he had said, if you have the courage to steal a Christian child hold it and deliver it to us, we will give you 100 duCats!

But this poor man, who certainly didn't know the mystery of blood, refused to be associated with this iniquity. "That is a great crime," he said; "I refuse to perpetrate it- "Trem." And without further ado, he gathered up what he owned and He left the city, never to return. It seems he had wanted to protect himself from Israelite vengeance: Otherwise, this sudden departure would mean nothing.

On Wednesday, they repeated the same attempt.
with another traveling merchant, named David.
He also sensed some dirty business in this mvs-
a serious matter and hastened to take cover, in using the pretext of needing an immediate departure: he wanted, he said, go immediately to the territory of Brescia
buy lemons and take them to Germany.

The assassins therefore had to resign themselves to operating through them.
memes. Easter was approaching and the altar could not to remain deserted that day.

It was Thursday morning, and nothing had been decided yet.
There was another meeting in the synagogue at during which the Jews said to Tobias: "We Note that no one better than you can com-
We wish you well: you find yourself in contact every day with the Christians, and almost all of them are familiar to you.
You can easily remove one because nobody
Don't pay attention to yourself in the city streets.
In recognition, we will strive to fill you with
goods. » |

Tobias initially refused: he cited numerous reasons to demonstrate the perils that awaited him. But his His companions forced his hand, threatening him with
To expel him from the synagogue; bloodshed was necessary at all costs.
to these feverish vampires.

We know what an insult it is for a Jew to be expelled

the synagogue. So Tobias looked there with two times before accepting the curse of his family. Moreover,
The gold intoxicated him, and he quickly resolved to the crime that was demanded of him.

“I would gladly leave this province,” he said. “But,”
As you know, I am poor and my job is enough.
I can barely feed myself: I have several children, I'll tell you about them
I recommend it, as well as myself.

"Bring the child here," came the reply, and one will never have reason to accuse us of ingratitude towards tol.

The supplier was determined. He only took what-
What precautions to ensure the success of his grim expedition, "Don't lock your door," he told

Samuel, so that if I have any bad encounter, so that I can take refuge here.

Then he waited until the shadows of evening had faded. spread over the city: so he slipped out discreetly. The hideous jackal was on the hunt for its prey.

III

He walked through the streets darkened by the crepustule. Seemingly lost in thought, he proconducted the most severe inquisition around him, searching with an eager gaze the narrow alleyways from which the light of The day was fleeing. What a horrible hunt! The hunt for The Christian child?

The human flesh merchant walked for a long time:

The opportune moment did not present itself. Finally, after Having wandered around a bit, he retraced his steps and trareversed the Fossate route again: the purebred dog He smelled excellent game in this area. He didn't He wasn't fooling anyone and wasn't going to return empty-handed to the kennel.

Night was falling. In the half-dark street, he was playing on a bench, in front of his parents' door, a child of great beauty, which attracted the attention of Jewish. He was little Simoncino, son of André and Marie, who was born on the sixth day before the Kalends of December 1472 and who, Therefore, he was not yet thirty months old. was having fun quietly in front of his house parents awaiting their return: the father was at fields and the mother at the divine office.

The moment was ripe for an abduction: the Jew He couldn't help but notice. Felineclose to the child, he caresses him and offers him his finger: the poor little boy, who was of a cheerful disposition, throws himself in the arms of this man who gives her such a warm welcome cordial. The thief, without wasting any time, walks away in leading the child along: first he goes slowly and pretends to play with little Simon.

But the darkness grew thicker and thicker, the The streets became deserted, the houses closed up, and the gentle family vigil began behind the awnings well closed. So Tobias ceased to fear, Seeing himself alone with the child, he grew bolder to the point to brutally push him forward with knee strikes.

Already the hatred absorbed in the heart of the Israelite was blast.

Surprised by this sudden change, Simoncino raises
his eyes on the convulsed face of his companion
Gnon, and seized with fear, he calls his mother loudly cries and sobs aloud. It's the Jew's turn to to be terrified: he knows he is not yet safe and that the cries of the innocent can call down upon his head

a cruel repression: so he hastens to silence
the child, through gentle caresses, through sweets and by giving him a silver coin. This man was He was used to buying everything. He wasn't finished yet.
of his fears.

A few steps further on was the shop of a cobbler. It wasn't closed yet and the modest
The worker was working, illuminated by a lamp that projected His light shone on the street. The Jew, for fear of being seen, dared not cross this luminous expanse. Pale with fear, he pa-Ra was pinned to the ground. For a moment the worker turned the head, and immediately Tobie passed by with the speed of an arrow.
Soon he arrived at Samuel's house where he took refuge.
with his loot.

“What joy,” say the Bollandists, “these dragons have not-Didn't they prove it then! They were screaming for blood
"Christian like wolves whose throats are parched."

The leading figures of the colony were gathered there.
While awaiting the great sacrifice, there was Moses.
Vieux, his son Mohar, and his grandson Bonaventure,
Samuel and his son Israel, Tobias, another Jew named Vitale and finally Samuel's cook, a man named Bona-Venture!, Ange was missing.

They waited until the darkness became deep.
Then they moved into the vestibule of the synagogue-

'The judges had immense difficulty discovering the names of those who had witnessed the assassination, Israel, interviewed a pre-
The first time, he had given up the names of some of them. Vitale, for his part, had
He had become more recalcitrant. He refused to reveal anything. They locked him up.

in a cupboard and Israel was brought in, who renewed his declaration–

–

They
did not fail to call – as usual – divine curses on Christians by reciting the a prayer they repeat three times a day. Old Moses he stood up in the midst of his kneeling fellow believers, and he pronounced aloud, in Hebrew:

– That for converts to Christianity there was No hope!

– Amen! the assistants responded in unison.

– That all the minim (infidels or Christians) be scattered within the hour!

– Amen!

– And may all the enemies of your people, Israel, be Cut to pieces!

– Amen!

– And uproot the kingdom of perversity (the Church)!

– Amen!

– And break, and crush, and overthrow all our enemies promptly and nowadays!

– Amen!

– Blessed are you, our God, who crushes our enemies and Overthrow the wicked!

Amen!

tion. "So they took Vitale out of the wardrobe. And when they asked to tell the truth, he replied that the Prince should... to try to understand what Israel had confessed. He was asked what were Israel's confessions; he replied that the Prince must have had
"I had heard what had been said." (F° XXXIX verso of the trial) verbal.)

1 The paragraph is called the blessing of the Minims, and the whole Prayer, the eighteen blessings, although there are nineteen... Rabbi Lévy said: The blessing of the Minim was instituted at the abneh; Gloss of Solomon: long after the other eighteen, after the heresy of Jesus Noceri (of Nazareth), who learned to reverse the words

Then the child was brought into the middle of the troop of soldiers Guinean. Samuel gagged him with a handkerchief to to stifle the cries that the pain would cause; then he He placed himself on Moses' lap, who was sitting in a higher seat, next to a stove. The first
The cowardly executioner's concern was to subjugate the weak fall which was obstructing the victim's mouth; and when he
It was quite certain that no complaint could find an echo Outside, he resolved to fulfill his nefarious role and worthy of him.

He lifted the child's tunic up to his waist.
a way of exposing the legs: under the pink skin and tenderly flowed a crimson blood, the sight of which sent a shudderhis joy rose in the hearts of the scoundrels. Then he seized the pliers which they had deliberately chosen as instruments torture; here is the reason given by them-same. They did not cut the flesh with an instrument-sharp ment, for fear, they said, of being suspected known to Christians of this murder, if the corpse of The child was found. And this fear was caused by an event that had taken place two years prior.
A young child had been lost for several days and the Bishop of Trent had indicated a means of recon-to be born the perpetrators of the disappearance: the incisions on the
The corpse would have proven that the Jews had killed him of the living God... In the order of Moëd, treatise Rosh-Haschana, chapter 1,

It is said: The Minim are the disciples of Jesus Noceri who have The words of the living God were misused. These same words... found in the same order, treatise of Berakhot.

This prayer must be said standing, with feet together, and the one who says it
The reciter must refrain from speaking of anything else, even if a ser-
The pent would wrap around his heel. Moreover, the Rabbi, in The public office says it twice aloud, and the faithful respond
Amen to each imprecation.

to extract his blood! And that is why, in 1475, they preferred pliers to a knife, imagining that,
The type of torture being different, they are also different
These would be the suspicions.

It was on the right cheek that the first wound was inflicted.
sure: Moses tore off a piece of flesh and placed it in a bowl prepared for this purpose;
All the assistants imitated him in turn, and each tore off its piece of raw flesh. The wound reached-It thus grew to the size of an egg. The blood, which flowed in abundance was collected in a bowl. "And if by
By chance, the gag gave way slightly and the child pushed a few muffled moans, quickly we put our hands up to his mouth and they were cruelly suffocating him.

The priest had already performed the circumcision on the child, as happened in those kinds of murders
very. Then he grabbed the right leg and his companions kept it within his reach. He was subjected to the same treatments that had been inflicted on the right cheek and the executioners still had the distinct pleasure of slicing at even the living flesh of a Christian. The crimson blood gushed forthsmoothed arteries that had been brutally severed: Tobie and Mohar presented in turn the tin bowl with the pre-jets heavens.

The child, exhausted from suffering, was reaching his last-
These were the last moments. It was time for the final insult and of the ultimate torment.

The failing body was taken by Moses and Samuel, and

We cannot help but notice, by this fact, how-
The bloody practices of the Jews were commonplace. It only takes one
The child disappears so that they can be accused of stealing him; it's enough that a corpse has traces of incisions for it to be pronounced that it
There is a ritual murder at the Synagogue.

raised in the shape of a cross: Moses was on the right and held his right arm outstretched; Samuel was doing the same thing to left; Tobias held the feet. The vicissitude had absolutely the appearance of a crucified man.

On Moses' orders, they armed themselves with these long round-headed pins that can still be seen in Italy and which in the Venetian dialect they are called aghi col pomela; This corresponds well to acus a pomedello, a text which we find in the trial documents. They pierced them furiously 'the limbs of the child stretched out in a cross. From the head to feet they covered him with countless repeated stings- so much so that horrible blasphemy: "Thus we have killed Jesus, the God of Christians, who is nothing; may our "May our enemies be confounded forever!"

Moses had not revealed the cause of this torture, he had only said that he was "good and conve- "Not capable of pricking the child." But we know that he was necessary for the blood to be good, to kill the child in torment. Moses, in his capacity as an- The ancients knew better than anyone the ancient tra- editions of the Talmudic synagogue; that is why it knew that the true and legal rite required that blood be shed excerpt from a tortured, martyred child who died of suffering France and torment. Here is what the Vital Jew:

"When asked why they had injured the child in this way and had covered him in bites.

"He replied that they had hurt him to get his blood; that they had stretched out their hands and pricked the A body in memory of Jesus.

"He was asked if they were acting in good faith or in good faith." bad part;

"He replied that they had done it out of hatred and mal-taken from Jesus, the God of Christians; adding that each year they commemorate his Passion.

"He was asked how they create this memory?"

"He replied that the Jews remember the said Passion every year, by putting children's blood Christian, every year, in their unleavened bread, that is to say in their Easter cakes.

The cruel ordeal had been going on for over an hour:
The child was fainting, and raising his eyes to heaven, he seemed to call upon the blessed to witness his sufferings.
Soon he breathed his last gently, realizing the touching image of the poet.

Purpureus veluli cum flos succisus aratro

Languescit moriens, lapsoque papevera collo Demisere caput, pluvia cum forte engraving.

"Then Moses and his companions gave thanks to God, for what they had been able to obtain, vengeance and sacrifice
the Christians' fief; and leaving the body there, they ran throughout the house with large demonstrations of Joy. As he went down to the supper, Samuel ordered his servants to hide the corpse under the wine barrels.

And such was the blindness of these fanatics that they rejoiced in this abomination as in a good action.

When the blessed man had breathed his last, the monsters
They wash the bloody body in a basin. They rethey carefully gathered the water they used, and in sprinkle their houses, just as we do with holy water; and they were happy to wash their hands and face in this water. The pool is still t Fol. XLII recto of the minutes, kept in the convent of Saint Bernard; this convent belongs to the Observantines and is located a short distance away

tance of Trent.

A strange scene! The sons of the ghetto advanced solemnlynelly through the apartments and sowed with faith on the walls, on the floors, on the furniture, the water bloody, in which they had just bathed their hands and their faces.

After this unspeakable ceremony, it was too late to to bake the unleavened bread. But there was no shortage of for this purpose, to use Christian blood, which had been repicked with such joy in the evening. Before `

Samuel sat down to eat with his children and friends, then put a little of this blood in his cup; then he added some He added wine and blessed the table in the usual way. He made even the following day.

Unleavened breads were made, as Vitale did. declares. Moses and Samuel put some of the child's blood into it whom they had killed the previous evening. The cook Bonaventure, in whom great confidence was placed, was in charge of the making of this bread.

The Jews of Trent had to celebrate Passover with great rejoicing; for they had everything they needed. was necessary,

IV

The work of iniquity was completed; the punishment The culprits were about to be caught. But the clever schemes

'See further the Easter ceremonies,'

Jews held it suspended above their heads for a long time. It remains for us to recount the main incidents of the trial. La Civilta cattolica, in the June 17th issue 1882, perfectly outlined the various twists and turns; It is from his masterful article that we draw in large part part of the substance of this paragraph.

It was Tuesday March 24, 1475 that the horrible assassination They met for the first time; it was the following Thursday that he complied, the very next day, Friday the 24th, the jurisconsulte Jean deSalis!, with the help of learned doctors . began the investigation and the trial according to the order of John IV Hinderbach, Bishop and Lord of Trent "a very firm and incorruptible man, like us in We shall see the proof, but until then, protector of the Jews of Thirty.

On Thursday evening, Simoncino's parents were astonished of not finding him upon returning to their home. active searches began: the complete arrival The night prevented them from continuing. But the next day, They took them up again with renewed enthusiasm.

Powerful allies were moved by their sadness and they took their complaints to the bishop, who took an interest to their unfortunate fate and gave them a cohort of soldiers to actively conduct the search. That's and so they arrived at Samuel's house.

The individual resisted for some time, complaining about this that they were disrupting his Easter celebration, and that The Christians would defile his house if they entered it. But he eventually submitted and led himself... even the researchers in his room and in that one of Brunette, his wife. Nothing was found there: the cunning took great care to lead them to the right place, at the mercy of deny.

---

* Or Sala, citizen of Brescia and praetor of Trent.

It was there, in fact, that all day Friday The martyr's body remained hidden. Samuel had covered it-green with his clothes, and Vitale had taken him up to the attic where he had cleverly concealed it under a pile of straw.

The Jews showed great indignation at this that they could have been suspected, and strengthened by the protection that the bishop had always shown them, they had the audacity to accuse the Christians whom they imprisoned ring several times. Among them was Jean Sveizer. who, despite having demonstrated an alibi and his perfect in-Nocence was put in irons and owed his release only to a miracle of Blessed Simon: he invoked the little martyr and Suddenly his chains fell away and his vines broke-rent. And by reading the original documents, one acquires the conviction that, without the incredible consistency and the the great incorruptibility of Bishop Hinderbach and of the Roman court, without the great miracles! May God preferred to operate, not only would the Jews have been ab-under, but they would even have had Christians condemned-Look at these innocent people. That's how far the clever audacity of those people.

On Friday evening, Samuel, fearing another attack, quest, ordered Bonaventure, his cook, to hide the body in the wine cellar; but this servant had fear and carried him to the stable where he covered him with straw.

In just a few days, these miracles rose to over two hundred. all perfectly proven by investigations carried out by the compapal emissaries and dispatched to Rome: these miracles opened they opened their eyes and closed their mouths to many ill-intentioned people tions.

—— OE RS Ce a aye a Ra eS we ene a

The search continued in the city: they were probing The fountains, the cisterns, the streams. Seized by fear, the Jews were not in a minor predicament; Therefore, a meeting was held at the synagogue on this subject. Opinions were divided and nothing was resolved. Bonaventure, which had previously consulted with its master, went out without a word and threw the child into the river which passed very close to the cellar. And immediately he went up to tell his mistress, who was then in the middle of his women, that something blane was arrested among the waters and that it could well be the child being sought with so much emotion among Christians.

Without letting on to her servants, she went downsaid this in the synagogue and taught Tobias and Samuel that she had just heard. They decided to go and find the ebishop and to inform him of this discovery. The scThe lorats believed they could thus annihilate suspicions, the child having already been searched for in vain in their maisounds.

But the corpse bore the most obvious marks of ritual murder; the bishop, seeing the wounds, did not He couldn't help but exclaim: "For this crime has been..." committed by an enemy of the Christian faith.

A more serious investigation was directed against the Jews: It was noticed that the ground was stained with blood, and "onall in the place where these rabid dogs had exercised their butchery.” The crime was obvious; the trial followed. its course and outcome.

On July 13, 1475, several Jews, Tobias, Israel, Mohar and Moise were convicted and condemned, when The bishop and consuls of Trent learned, from various sides that the Jews were moving heaven and earth to intrigue with the princes, the emperor and the pope, depend-they spent fabulous sums to demonstrate their innocence. On the same day, the bishop received from Sixtus IV an initial letter in which he ordered him to postpone at the trial until the arrival of his commissioner. On August 9, the Pope, in a second letter, said expressly- "It was said that many princes disapproved of this," although he himself criticizes it justly; that is why he sent to Trent the bishop of Ventimiglia, a learned man, who would have to examine the Done.

But the Bishop of Trent, who, as prince temporal, administered justice in the name of the emperor Frederick and Duke Sigismund, governor of Tyrol, continued the trial as before; and since then The trial was approved in Rome.

Meanwhile, the commissioner had arrived. The Jews had already succeeded in winning over their cause; he did not he stayed only a few days in Trento and retired to Roveredo. on Venetian soil. He believed he would enjoy a greater great freedom. There he successively brought in several Christians of Trent, whom he regarded as guilty of the assassination. He sent several reports to Rome in favoring the Jews and against the bishop, and even began a trial against the praetor of Salis and the other judges of Trento. Then he retired to Verona, dragging himself along at his next, in chains, a Christian named Angelino, whom he accused of being Simoncino's true assassin; the in- The innocence of this man was only recognized in Rome. The commissioner does not appear to have acted in bad faith; he had been tricked by the cunning of the true coupables.

In Verona, the commissioner was very poorly received: The people He was completely devoted to Simoncino, because of the miracles that took place at his tomb; everywhere he was proclaimed blessed. They even spread throughout the whole country very biting satirical poems about the unfortunate papal commissioner. But that did not prevent him from to keep poor Angelino in prison and to take him to Rome, where he also took the trial documents.

However, Hinderbarch continued the trial at Thirty.

On November 3, 1415, Sara confessed to the infanticide. Tobias' wife, and Bella, Mohar's wife; both They converted to Christianity and were freed. The same confessions were repeated until 1477 by Jewish women, sisters or wives of the accused. Alone, Samuel's wife, Brunette, resisted all the tortures and refused to make any confession at the time. But whenOnce she was released, she made the confessions more complete, and asked for baptism: the bishop baptized her Tisa himself and named her Catherine, in memory of his heroic constancy.

This is how the Bishop of Trento continued the concontinuation of his work and laboriously amassed Irrefutable documents and overwhelming evidence against the Jews. They wanted to stop his march, by throwing a decree from 1470 of Fré- at his legs Deric III, and two papal bulls, one from Gregory IX, in 1236, and the other from Innocent IV, in 1247. They claimed to Using these documents, establish the incompetence of the eveque in the trial he was conducting against them.

Frederick's conduct, which he fully approved everything that the Bishop of Trent had done clearly demonstrated that his writing had no bearing under the circumstances present. As for the bubbles so boldly placed in Previously, the Roman court and many authors declared them rent apocrypha!; at least one finds nothing there which may affirm the Jews' foolish claim.

Since the Jews of Novara, Brescia, Venice, of Bassano, Roveredo and other places bribed at price of silver a priest from Novara, whose name was Paolo and led him to attempt a plot as ingenious as Treacherous. He was supposed to come to Trento and seize the good thanks to the bishop by revealing to him that the Jews had planning to poison him. He would do this poisoning himself. sounding on the person of the bishop and that of his as a lender, he would try to tear down the gate that was blocking the entrance to the pit where the child had been thrown, in order to to make people believe that he had been carried there by the force of the neckrant; then he would go to Rome to testify against the bishop in favor of the trial conducted by the commissioner, would attest that a manifest wrong had been done to the Jews and that the

The real culprits were this Sveizer, whom we have already spoken, and Angelino who had been taken, in chains, to Rome.

The corrupt priest attempted his demonic work.

The bishop took him into his home and employed him for two months to make authentic copies of the proceedings, copies which were sent to the Pope and the Emperor. Then he-
He tried to accomplish his sinister plans, and first he did in order to gain the trust of the bishop and his entourage.

The illustrious Panvino, auditor of the sacred palace appointed by Sixtus IV
In examining the proceedings of Trent, it expressly states regarding these bulls: “Notwithstanding privilegia Gregorii et Innocentii: tum quia non faciunt fidem, nec aulhentica, nec sine suspicion falsi; tum quia etiam ad litteram intellecta non sunt servanda de jure: (um etiam quia Concilium Viennese talia rescripta aperte improbat tum eliam quia sane intellecta excludunt solum fraudolentam calumniam... Patet non futisse intentionem concedentium talia privilegia nisi excludere calumniosas vexaliones. »

But before he could succeed, the prelate was informed that he had been seen several times in secular dress, in the
The city of Trento and its surroundings. For this reason he was He was immediately imprisoned, held incommunicado, and interrogated. He promised to melt everything in writing if he were left alone. We obtain-
He was asked to do this and immediately cut off the tip of his he cut out his tongue with a penknife. He did not become mute, as He hoped for it; and somehow, he had to confess everything.
He specifically stated that a Jew named Grassino... had said that the praetor of Trent would have done them good-a stroke of good, if he had wanted it; but from Salis, incor-
Like his bishop, he was brittle and had always refused gold.
Jewish. He also announced that he would soon be going to Rome, as had been agreed with the Jews, for testify in their favor: he had been helped in this by Man, a Jew from Pavia, and by Ognibene, a Jew from Venice, who had given him in writing everything he needed to say and answer during his interrogations. The commissioner, he added, during the few days he was in Trento,
dealt with the Jews by letter; the correspondence
were secretly placed on a church window
Saint Nicholas. He had come secretly to Thirty-three Jews, Jean-Pierre, false convert, Salomon and Grassino

who had been deputies by the Jews of Italy with the order to spare no effort to free the prisoners; these the messengers had tried to steal B. Simon's body and For this, Grassino had even offered four hundred ducats.

Paolo was questioned on September 16, 2016, 2017, and asked, "Why him?" a priest who said Mass, he was a friend and confidant of the bishop, had wanted to betray and poison him; he replied that he "He wanted to do this to earn 400 ducats." He is It is difficult, upon reading these strange revelations, to admit that Jews were also mistreated in the Middle Ages, that unconscious writers were willing to say. No, those who... cannot portray themselves as victims. openly open the entrance to their house to the soldiers of the bishop, who imprison poor Christians in their place, which makes a Catholic priest forget his duties to the point of suggesting the assassination of a step-author, who even seduced a papal commissioner. Yes, In the 15th century, justice had been venal, if souls had been dulled, if consciences had changed-hidden as in our sad times, it would have happened In Trento, the lamentable spectacles that we see unfold today and the Jews, proven murderers, would be strutting about, amidst an escort of gentlemen-men, in a triumphal chariot dragged on blood clots.....

A Jewish, nomadic painter, who was in Trento At the time of the assassination, he became a Christian under the name of Volfang was appointed interpreter for the court. He took advantage of this responsibility to deal with the Jews of Italy and from Germany in favor of the accused and attempt, in concert with Paolo of Novara, the poisoning of the bishop, of the Salis's lender and Captain Sporo. "Volfang," said the Civilta Cattolica had already managed to obtain some poison, and he took it to Solomon the Jew, who examined it. This Solomon had first been to Vienna, near the emperor Frédéric, el in Innsbruck, at the court of Archduke Sigismund world, to find out if money could stifle the affair and Since he had been unable to obtain anything, he had come to Trento with the hope of succeeding through poison.

"Solomon, having examined the poison, said that it was not "Not good at all, and he would have given better."

On November 21, 1475, Volfang was asked "for-what he had become a Christian and whether he believed in the Christian faith-"Yours?" He replied that he had become a Christian to escape to death; that he did not believe in the Christian faith at all; and that he held it to be certain that the Hebrew faith was just and holy.” As for the use of Christian blood, it replied that he firmly believed it was a good the act of killing Christian children, eating and drink their blood; adding, without being questioned, that for He, if he could have the blood of a Christian child at the feast He would gladly eat and drink Easter food, provided he can do it in secret. Despite his baptism, He was determined to live and to die Jewish laughter.

How all this sheds new light on the life of ghetto in the Middle Ages!

By all means, the Jews sought to dominate and to remain masters of the battlefield. They, so greedy and if usually parsimonious suddenly become frighteningly generous when it comes to acquiring blood or to defend those who have martyred the en-Christian children.

During the trial of Trent, they were throwing money away unjustly and through. They already had the tactic that Drumont Erlanger accuses them in The End of a World; they were paying The lawyers were so expensive that the opposing party had difficulty affording them. find. In February 1477, they sent to Rome, by Milanese merchants, three thousand ducats. Already at In October 1416, they had brought two into the city mules laden with silver coins. To the Pope's nephew, who refused them, they offered five thousand ducats; the hard Sigismund had been tempted by the lure of several thousand liers of florins; to Bishop Hinderbach they offered the in place of a new palace; they wanted to give the pre-

Thirty-year-olds had handsfuls of gold; they hoarded The best lawyers in all of Italy. But the writings Christians prevailed against the gold of the Jews.

When the papal commissioner and the procurators of the Bishop of Trent had arrived in Rome, each

Following their inquiry, Sixtus IV appointed a commission to Six cardinals to judge this extraordinary case.
Poor Jews were indeed so mistreated in the Middle Ages that the Pope himself establishes a special tribunal for to hear their case, and that a prince of the Church should take openly defending them. Instead of victims, we don't sees only all-powerful schemers. Which does not prevent-
Will not look for Renan and others – these inventors of the scar-
the exegetical polette – to sing in all tones the patience and the tortures of Israel in the dark times of Barbaric Middle Ages. Comedy!

The trial was held before Monsignor Panvino, the au-editor of the Sacré-Palais, which we have already mentioned. The
The sentence was not handed down until June 20, 1478. After more than After three years of research, Sixtus IV approved the conduct from the bishop, in a Brief where he declares that everything has been It's a rite of passage and a reckoning!

As for the torture, it could not have been rigorous enough;
They also hesitated to decide what punishment they should receive condemn. Two servants were condemned to be
They were broken on the wheel, then burned; and as they were being baptized
Their heads were cut off before they were placed on the book.

Tobias was placed, half-naked, on a chariot which was paraded throughout the city: in this hideous triumphant march Phala, he was cruelly flogged; he was then tied to

* Bull of the 42nd of the Kalends of July 4418.

the wheel and since he still had a breath of life, we brüla.

Moses the Elder died in prison and thus avoided the supthe accomplice he deserved: his corpse was tied to the tail of an untamed mare, dragged ignominiously
through the city streets and left as dog food and to the vultures.

Samuel and Angel had to endure the torture they had inflicted on their victim: their limbs were gripped with pincers, then They were broken on the wheel and their corpses were burned. The torture of the wheel and fire was the lot of the other guilty parties: Vitale, Mohar, Israel and a few others whose complicity-
The city was recognized during the trial proceedings. All

Their property was confiscated and enriched the treasury.
audience.

Our sensibilities today are outraged by these cruel acts.
Punishments. But they were part of the customs of the time:
The Jews were not treated more harshly than others
criminals, and besides, we were only applying to them
a law in use among them, the law of retaliation; they had
It caused cruel suffering, and it was returned to them.

In the three successive trials! which had resulted in the condemnation of the Israelites, the matter had not been examined from a legal and criminal point of view. But the cult Saint Simon's teachings had quickly spread throughout northern Italy.
lie, and a canonization process soon became necessary-Saire. Sixtus IV, by his bull of 1480, sent to Trent three cardinals and two bishops; they conducted an investigation strict on the miracles attributed to the saint, an inquiry which was approved by the Pope. This is how it was regularized.

1. The trial of the Bishop of Trent; 2. The trial of the clerk Salire; 30 the trial in Rome.

the cult of Saint Simon. Gregory XIII included it in the Roman martyrology, under the slab of March 24th.

Thus ended this famous trial, the debates of which lasted for... breathed the whole of Italy for three years. On the side of the Jews, nothing had been spared to hinder the work of justice: high protections implored, shameful comartfully orchestrated plots, bribed officials, fake TV-Even with the fewest bribes, everything was used to wrest the guilty to punishment.

There is a striking resemblance between this trial and two others, much closer to us, who ended with the acquittal of the defendants: that of Damascus, in 1840, and that of Tisza-Eszlar, in 1883.
The same intrigues delayed the judge's pronouncement.
ment.

There is no doubt that the end would have been the same, if the judges of the 19th century would have been as successful as those of the XV*. These last two trials, moreover, mark their in a way the progressive stagnation of our society by the Semitic element; in 1840, the guilty parties were gra-keys after being convicted; in 1883, they were absolved. A further step has been taken: we no longer dare to touch

One hair of these stinkers and the world trembles.

Oh, the mockery!

These events have left their mark on the country.
indelible. The following letter bears witness to this: it was addressed to the author by the secretary of the bishop of Thirty.

"PROFESSOR,

"In response to your letter of February 26th, I will to give you the following information regarding the assassination committed by Jews on March 23 (Holy Wednesday) of the year 1475, at twenty-three Italian time (two hours from night) on the child Simon Unverdorben, approximately two years old.

"1° The tradition maintained here until now reports that he was killed by the Jews in the cause of Christ and his religion gion.

"2° The church of Saint-Pierre is one of: three parish churches-
The saint's body is preserved in a chapel, which was built on the northern side of this church, about a century after the child's martyrdom. More Later, it was restored by Mathias Galasso, of the army.
Trichian, in the Thirty Years' War. New res-
Measurements were taken there three years ago.

"3? The saint's relics are very carefully preserved"
In addition to the body in its urn, seven reliquaries are kept.
Quaires, the sacrificial knife, the glass from which the Jews drank the blood, the basin to collect it, the saint's little robe, two boxes filled with his blood. In the parish of Saint-Pierre, there are two chapels, one built on the spot where he was born (Bostolazzi Palace, Via del Fossato) and the other where he was martyred; this last place was the old synagogue qe Salvadosi, via Lunga).

"4? S, Simon is regarded as the second boss of the.
diocese and city. Its feast day is celebrated every year.
the fourth Sunday after Easter.

"5° Several works have been published on this martyrdom;
and our historians and chroniclers talk about it widely.

ment (sic).

Pirro Pineio; Croniche di Trento.

Alberti Annalia.

Bonelli — Monumenta, Ecclesie Tridentino

Mariani.
Opusculum Calphurnii and Zovenzonii by beato puero Simone Martyrdom ed, 1481. — In beatum Simonem et Epigramma,

ed. 1482.

De Ponte. — Super inquisition against Judæos in processu Beati Simonis.

"These works are very rare and are hardly ever found."
than in libraries, which do not lend them to anyone.

"The trial against the Jews was approved by the Pope"
Sixtus IV, by the bull dello XII Kal. July 1478.

"Hoping that we have satisfied your search as best as possible"
that it was possible for me, I present to you, sir, my greetings hasty retaliation,

"Thirty, March 16, 1889"
“Jos. RIGOKI

" Secretary, "

We sincerely thank the esteemed secretary of this letter which so clearly confirms our initial informationgnemenis.

CHAPTER VII

THE METZ CRIME
(1669)

We are very close to modern times. The event in question took place in France and was judged. according to our procedure, and by the great race of French magistrates of the 16th century. The greatest certainty The study is based on the facts in question. We give verbatim the account that was provided to us by the current librarian of the city of Metz; he had it copied in a book from that time kept in the library of this city; only the spelling was appropriate to demands of our time.

The greater the crimes, says the historian!, and the more They are difficult to persuade. That is either the reason or the reason that many people doubted that of Raphael, or because they hadn't known any at first the reason, or finally because no one had discovered itgreen is similar in our time.

It is nevertheless certain that the Jews were strong

1. Summary of the trial of the Jews of Metz, with three decrees of the Parliament declared them guilty of several crimes and parparticularly Raphaël Lévy for having abducted, on the main road of Metz to Boulay, a three-year-old Christian child: to repairtion of which he was burned alive on January 17, 1670.

has

has

prone to these kinds of crimes. Moses was forced to to explicitly forbid them from doing so, in Exodus, chap. xxt: Qui fuerit furatus hominem, et vendiderit um, convictus noxa, morte moriatur. If this crime was even among the Jews in the time of Moses, it is not necessary doubt that they had renewed it in the time of Christians, since they have always been their enemies declared. Baronius reports numerous examples of crimes and plagiarism followed by extraordinary cruelties on Christian children by the Jews. The chronicle of Nuremberg speaks of three abductions they made almost at the same time. One in England, the other in Frioli, in Italy, and the third in the city of Trento: You can still see the history — painted in the town hall from Frankfurt – the latter who surpassed the others in cruelty. For the abducted child, named Simon, was, by the Jews gathered in their synagogue, martyred the year-born 1472 (sic), in all parts of her body where Each of them took pleasure in landing successful blows gradually and at intervals, in order to prolong its dou-

...them even beyond his life if they could have.

These kinds of thefts and kidnappings are not simple crimes and plagiarism. These are species of deicides, since in mockery of the Passion of the Son of God
The Jews kill these innocent victims, after to have unleashed upon them all cruelty and fury which once animated them on Calvary. There is even Evidence at trial shows that when they lack opportunities to delight Christian children they use a crucifixes that they display in their synagogue or in their assembly houses, on which, the rods to the However, they renew the flogging they inflicted.
to Jesus Christ.

It would take entire volumes to describe all the impiety, all sacrileges, and all abominations that Jews commit every day in hatred of the Christian religion. But as I have not undertaken to
I only talk about the trial they had in Metz.
I will simply report the main circumstances
with the summary story of the abduction of which Raphael was convinced.

On Wednesday, September 25, 1669, at approximately one o'clock
In the afternoon, the woman named Mangeote Willemin, wife of Gilles le Moine, wheelwright from the village of Glatigny, in the country from Metz, was going to a fountain two hundred paces away from the village, to wash some clothes, followed by its son, aged three, who was wearing a cap red-haired and with blond, curly hair, which he
We must observe first. As she was at twenty-five or Thirty paces from the fountain, the little child having let himself
As he fell, the mother turned to help him up. But then
When he told her he would get up on his own, she continued her
He went on his way and washed his clothes, thinking that he would follow immediately, as was the custom.

About half an hour after this mother
Seeing that her child was not returning, she ran to the place where She had left it; not having found it, she thought that it had returned home, where she went immediately ask her husband, and also her father-in-law and her stepmother, where he used to go. Neither of them had seen him. Everyone began to fear that this child might not be led astray, and in this apprehension

They search for him in the village; they then return to the fountain with the local mayor, searching in the bushes that are nearby call the child by name from Didier, whom he had received at his baptism, they shout and turn around-
They lie, but without finding it.

The mother, accompanied by her stepfather and a another woman, having decided to go onto the highway
from Metz, about two hundred paces from the fountain, there she found the remains of her child's feet that she followed until, having lost them among the trail cartwheels and horses' hooves, she she went back to tell her husband who was running at that moment on the same path, and shortly afterwards having seen him coming towards him from the Metz side, a rider from the company of the gentleman Count of Vaudemont, named Daniel Payer, he demanda if he had not found a child; to which the cava-Lier replied ingenuously that he had found a Jew, mounted on a white horse, wearing a long beard black, and heading towards Metz. He added that he was wearing
In front of him was a child who might be three or four years old.
and that upon meeting him he had strayed from the main road
of the range of a pistol shot.

The poor father, grateful for the circumstance of the age, that the Jew had taken his child from him, short after him and ask at the city gate (gate of the (Germans) if we had seen him go by. A man named Thibault Regnault, a turner who lived nearby, told him that he had seen him come in. But that wasn't enough, because They didn't tell him where this Jew had gone, nor where he had carried the child

Nevertheless, the father learned almost in the same time, by an inhabitant of the village of Hayes, that this Raphaël Lévy, from Boulay, was a Jew. This inhabitant had met him that very day on the highway: he

he was carrying something in front of him which he was covering with his coat. The father, having inquired about his address, he immediately went to the Jewish Boy's house, where Raphael was staying when he came to Metz.

He asked for his child. But they pretended not to. to understand, and he was told that the master of the house was absent. He resolved to wait for him, and having He met a woman near the door, he also spoke to her to her, to get news of her beloved. To this instantly a Jewish girl, who was returning from the city, hurried to tell this woman in German that nothing was needed to say. The father, who spoke German, understood that he did not learn would take nothing, and returned home, thinking about ways to avenge this crime.

He filed a complaint with the criminal lieutenant on October 3rd. 1669, and this allowed him to conduct an investigation.

Before going into the details of the charges, let's note that Raphael was a fifty-six-year-old man, medium height, with black curly hair and a beard black and very tall, bold and enterprising. He had traveled to the Levant, Italy, Germany, and Holland moor and in other countries where they had called him Jewish affairs, for which he was the agent. He was born in village of Xelaincourt, located in the Metz region, and inhabited for several years the town of Boulay'. He remfulfilled the functions of rabbi and head of the synagoguegogue.

'The town of Boulay, which at that time was part of the Duchy of Lorraine' is located 25 kilometers N.-E of Metz.

pr———Á—— —— —— ———

On the day of the kidnapping, he had left around seven o'clock in the morning and had reached Metz around ten o'clock. His goal, According to him, the reason was to come and get a horn of Aries, for the solemnity of the Feast of the Trumpets which It was supposed to take place the next day. He also wanted to do it there. He bought oil, wine, and fish. He put all of that in. He mounted his son's horse and made it go ahead. stated that he then went out alone around one o'clock in the afternoon. noon.

From Metz to Glaligny, it is a league and a half; this
The village is located, moreover, approximately 250 paces from the
The main road from Metz to Boulay. The child had gone on This route instead of following his mother to the fountain. The im-
The pitiful Jew, having found it alone, took it and put it on his horse, deposited it in Metz into the hands of the Jews, and háta de retourner le même jour coucher à Boulay.

The Jews of Metz, warned that the criminal lieutenant informed of this abduction, they put everything in their power to save their Raphael. One of them, named Solomon, him wrote to come to Metz to justify himself, and to come there without to stop along the way, in no village, nor with any peasant, and finally, without speaking to anyone about the subject of his travel; these are the terms of the ticket that was found on him.

Upon arriving in Metz, Raphael was led by his corelilegionnaires at the town commander's house who wanted
He readily assumed his innocence and reassured him. But the place-
The criminal incumbent had already issued a decree against him, they were looking for him-Sheltering everywhere, and the gate guards had orders to not to let any Jew leave that day. Raphael made necessity virtue and went to prison where he was incarcerated.

The investigation continued. Eighteen witnesses were heard:
five testified that they had seen someone enter or go into the city of

Metz, Wednesday, September 25, the day of the abduction, a Jew who had a long black beard, had gone up on a horse and wore under his cloak, in front
him, a child about three years old, wearing a hat red hair and blond, curly hair.

At the confrontation, Blaisette Thomas, one of the witnesses recognized the accused as being the same as the one who...
The child was silent; the others were less categorical.
horseman who, on the plain, had met a Jew por-as a child, believed he could assure that this Jew was taller and fatter than Raphael; everything proves that This witness had been bribed. The accused himself admitted... even, in the interrogation of October 24, that there was no had no other Jew besides him in the field on the day of the abduction, because of their festival of trumpets, which the solemnity began the same day at five o'clock in the morning.
evening. "It is true," our historian remarks, "that for

For the same reason, the accused has always maintained that he had withdrawn to Boulay at four o'clock. But, besides that
The opposite is clearly proven in the information.
The act committed by the parliament of Metz was that the abductions .of Christian children passing for religious acts among the Jews, much greater than that of assister to the solemnity of their feasts, – they believe that well
Far from being missed by not being there, they would make a for lack of being there for the time they could to carry out a similar abduction. »

The Jews of Metz left nothing to chance in order to guarantee the access excused from the punishment his crime deserved. After the
In the confrontation, they asked the criminal lieutenant to provide "proof of these justifying facts, namely that the the day it was supposed that Raphael had abducted the child,
He was, at three o'clock in the afternoon, in the village of Ponds, which is two leagues from Metz and that of Glatigny, half a league away. And that at four o'clock he had arrived in Boulay accompanied by his son and the miller from the same place.

The King's prosecutor, to whom their request was communicated fucked, examined the charges resulting from the investigation, and without wanting to hear any more, condemned the accused to be burned alive, and to be, "beforehand, applied to the ordinary and extraordinary question, to know what had made of the child and the place where he had put him.” Howeverless, by sentence of November 8, 1669, the lieutenant criminal and the other officers of the same bailiwick, admire the accused for proving the facts by which He claimed to be justifying himself.

"The King's Attorney General, having been informed of this, brought for appellant, surrendered himself, and from the lentomorrow he made his requests so that he would be informed by amplification and permission for him to publish letters moni-
"Toires; which was granted to him by Parliament."

II

On November 11, the prison warden declared to registry, that he had surprised the accused throwing a banknote at the prison servant, that as a result he had searched the accused and found nine banknotes in his purse or in his pockets, another in his straw mattress, and finally one last in his bed. All these tickets were deposited at registry and initialed by the advisor assigned to the investigation. The maid, whose name was Margaret Howster, was also from Boulay. During the interrogations she underwent, She declared that Raphael's son had given her severalsir tickets at the prison gate to deliver them to her father, and that for this service she had received a . strong gratification. |

The tickets were written in Hebrew and German; the The Jews of Metz spoke German, not Hebrew; they They only knew how to read and write that language.

It was difficult to find a translator for these tickets. It was a young shoemaker, Louis Antoine, a Jew. converted, and took charge of it. His translation was accepted by Raphael, who only rejected that of the note thrown by himself to the servant; he also excepted in the others a few unimportant words.

The accused was asked to translate the note at several points. which he rejected; a translation was also requested from several Jews from Metz. They only reached an agreement in This point is that the note was written to the main of them. As for the rest, the various translations were irreconcilable; that is why they turned again to a man named Paul Duvalier, who had been Jewish and a doctor in Metz, and who, since his conversion, had retired to Alsace. M

He translated the same note, a translation which he genuine support for the accused, who for the time being remained Okay, except for the word "linked," instead of which he said he had written found; this had its reason, because that by this, he claimed to establish that the child was not dead, or if he was, to conceal knowledge of the kind of death that he had been made to suffer. Like the terms of These tickets are quite curious and even essential for the The accused's conviction will be reported here verbatim. according to Duvalier's translation.

A post written by Raphaël Lévy, during his imprisonment, at principal Jews of the Metz synagogue.

"Dear directors, I would like to know what has been concluded yesterday in Parliament, because the chief prosecutor of the
The court was inside and I would always be wrong; as well as I was told asks what happened in court and what the con-Troll! It's done here. The prison master's maid told me said that the Jew who brings me food told him that we had bound the child. Ah! write to me how things are tou-Hey my witnesses; write to me in detail, one way or another so that I may have some consolation, Send me some paper. Haman? Was this day in prison, said he would undo everything that justice had done;
For this purpose, please consider Parliament. I pray that... assist me, that I may escape this misery, and, if I were surprised and that I cannot complete the process in Metz with the controller and that I cannot speak with my dear wife and children.
that my dear wife and children may have a piece of bread, I will suffer death like a son of Israel and I will sanctify the name of God! I ask only-my daughter Blimelé, who is engaged and has not yet married, is being married off.
I abandoned my wife and children. I put myself in This misery for the community, the great God will assist me;
and desires a Jewish burial, otherwise I will not forgive point. "

This note — which the councilor filed under number 10 — is not dated, nor are the others. They contain almost all of them gave instructions to the accused, to inform him of them.
try to overwhelm with reproaches the witnesses who will shine confronted by the criminal lieutenant.

'This "controller" was a man from Boulay to whom the accused owed money.

3 ("that is to say, scoundrel. He thus designates the king's prosecutor. This "Vualification," a major insult among Jews, is the name of the favorite d'Assueras who wanted to have the Israelites slaughtered.

10.

————s— a Lau l5 0 000 xu? -- e

Ticket number 2 contains something special. It the door, that we send him a small straw, and we send him a sign to put it under his tongue when questioned Gera. It is added that this will not prevent him from speaking, and finally he is instructed to pronounce certain words hebreux, five in number; he himself declared that he did not They did not know how to interpret them, and the translators could not Read them well enough to explain them.

Ticket number 9 is even more unusual; it contains, Word for word, the following, according to the ac-'s own admission excused.

Note written by the leading Jews to Raphael Lévy during his imprisonment.

"If, in case (God forbid), they want to give you the questiontion you will say all this three times: I am a Jew, I am a Jew, long live Jew, Jew alive, Jew dead.

The accused was asked what all this meant, if These were not magical characters or spells. He replied that there were no spells and that it was a prayer formula.

However, the historian continues, the Jews of Metz – to give more color and appearance to the facts that they had asked in order to justify the accused – they used the same stratagem and the same excuse that the children of Jacob who said afterwards that they had sold their brother: Fera pessima comedit eum, devoravit Joseph. To this end, they published throughout the city and the villages in the surrounding area reported that the kidnapped child had been devoured by ferocious beasts; and to try to persuade him, This is what their conduct was, or rather, what their blindly.

They decided to expose the clothes and head of the enfant, in a wood a quarter of a league from the village of Glatigny; part of the neck was still attached to the head and the coasts. And so that it could be discovered more easily They spread his shirt over a bush three meters high feet. Then, lured by the prospect of considerable rewards, they hired several people to do meticulous work searches in the woods. A woman from Ratonsai, vi-A man from a village not far from Glatigny recounted that three Jews from Metz had asked him what people were saying about the child stolen. This woman replied that if the child had

It was devoured by the goats; we should find it in the wood some remnants of his clothes, and a Jew insinuated ha-
It is possible that we might also find there the head.

It was inevitable. On September 26, four por-dear ones who kept their flocks in the same wood found "the head of a child with the neck and part of the Costes, two little dresses one inside the other, a stocking wool, a red cap, and a small shirt lying down on a bush, all without being torn, nor stained-glanted.

At the request of Gilles, the child's father, and the pro-royal curator, Parliament appointed an advisor who transported to the scene and drew up a report of all |
The circumstances: Gilles recognized the clothes as being those that his son was wearing on the day of the abduction. As for Even with the remains of the child, he could not assure anything.
because his face was completely disfigured, although the
The flesh appeared quite fresh and bloody.
pig farmers also reported finding things in the state of which we have given a brief description.
"One of them added that it was not possible that this

The child would have been devoured by beasts: for, besides that the clothes were neither torn nor bloodstained, he had noticed that when ferocious beasts raptured
some sheep or other domestic animal, they man-
"They always lay their test first."

The child's remains were taken to the registry office and v were meticulously examined by two surgeons who formally acknowledged that the flesh was still red and bloody. This demonstrated that death was quite recent and had not followed immediately-the kidnapping which had already occurred two months prior and one day. He was therefore quite certain that death was not no point due to a wild animal, because we do not know that ferocious animals retain their victims to feast on it appropriately.

The accused, confronted with these remains, was again inter-
He was questioned about this deception. He did not want to confirm to come to the conclusion that he had been aware of it; he persisted in maintaining that he had not taken the child and to say that he was prayers to God every day, in order to turn away from such accusations; "because," he repeated, "peoples Christians, when they had lost some child, "They were accustomed to attacking Jews."

The investigation continued, lively and thorough: the neighbors of Gideon Levy, a Jew who lived in Hayes, testified that since the loss of the child, the Jews of Metz were they came to his house very often, much more often than before, when they came there at all hours even at night and in groups.

One of these neighbors made a much more significant statement. serious: he claimed that he had seen Gideon Levy enter in the woods, with a hood on my back, for some time before the clothes and the head of the infant.

Another declared that the same Gideon had asked him to do some research and had already indicated the place where he would find the remains of the misfortune-
The poor man was sacrificed. That is why Gideon Levy was arrested and constituted a prisoner according to a decree of parliament.
During the interrogations he was subjected to at that time, he he denied almost everything he was accused of; he only agreed-he had stated that, according to the order of the Jews of Metz, he had asked several people to undertake research, and had even promised them a hundred crowns, if they found something.

IH

The investigation continued.

Raphael Lévy was even charged by the witnesses that he had invoked them for his justification. From their declarations-rations, we learned that, on September 25, Raphael reve-born in the evening in Metz, half an hour after the bedtime of sun; he was alone, riding a white horse, wearing a coat—something he had tried to deny—and He was so disturbed and frightened that, upon leaving the village, He took the wrong path and got lost in the meadows. They were three of these witnesses who had put him back on his path.

Three other witnesses also testified that the same that day they had seen, in the street which is near the gate Germans, a Jew perfectly fitting the

It was the time of the equinox: the sun set around five o'clock.
half past six. At six o'clock, therefore, Raphaël left Metz and did not could have been at four o'clock in Bulav, as he had claimed.

Raphael's report: this Jew was carrying in front of him a child who had a red cap and looked about the age of three years. One of these witnesses, Marguerite Gassin, con-confronted Raphael on several occasions, declared the to recognize him as the one she had seen in the streets of Metz.

In repeated interrogations, Raphaël Lévy had replied with marvelous presence of mind; nothing-
At least, we find a significant contradiction. In During one of the last sessions, he declared that he had not been able to
to put the child on his horse which was loaded with barrels of oil and wine. Now, previously, on October 14th, he he claimed to have sent them on his son's horse.

There was no longer any room for doubt. Raphaël Lévy was con-condemned to be burned alive; which was carried out on January 17th vier 1610.

"The death of this man," said Drumont, "was truly-absolutely superb. He said goodbye to some of his coreligionists who had come to see him, recommended to them his wife and children, and, not content with their pro-Mass, he forced them to take an oath. He refused to drink the wine that was brought to him because he was not kosher, rejected the candle that they wanted to put in him with his hand, he gave the Capuchin a vigorous elbow to the head who exhorted him with a patience worthy of a better
he went out, shouting that he was Jewish and that he wanted to die
"Jew. Gideon Levy withdrew with the banishment."

As we can see, the inquiry by the parliament of Metz was excessive stively serious and nothing was neglected in order to discover the truth. Whatever the contempt of the Lorraine magistrates as for the Jews, they did not abandon towards them the strictest impartiality. And when you know what they were the magistrates of the 18th century, it is impossible that the

The slightest suspicion still hangs over a crime they declared were proven and they punished them according to the rigors of the law then in use. We were no longer in "a time of barbarism," and France was the most civilized country of the world: will the Jews dare to say again that they were never legally convicted of murder
Christian children?

Anything is possible for these audacious liars. That's how it is. that of Raphaël Lévi, the vile child thief, they
They failed, a hero, a saint, and a martyr. The Archives Israelites, a few years ago, proposed to him to erect a statue; they also contained some verses of M"* Merlieux, née Polack, in his honor.

Shade of Raphael, why your plaintive voice
Does your sad tone trouble me?
Why, leaving the heavens, does your fleeting soul,
Wandering, does she come to show herself to my gaze?
In vain my feeble voice of your sublime virtue Seeks to reiterate here the noble devotion.

You died a hero, and your heart was magnanimous
Bless with fervor the name of the Almighty.

Théodore Reinach, in his history of the Israelites,
he calls Raphael's death a "legal assassination," and among the salient events of the 17th century concerning the Jews, he cites the ordinance of Louis XIII and "the mar-
"Raphaël Lévy's tire from Metz."

The halo that is placed on the head of such a man,
clearly shows how Jews regard ritual murder:
this barbaric custom is certainly not the fact of a few fanatics.

CHAPTER VIII

IN 1791

According to the court records preserved in the archives from Zilah, in Hungary, and based on the drawings of Daniel Heczew, Protestant pastor of Peer and Obernotar, at beyond the Theiss, the following crime was committed near Peer, according to the bloody rite of the Jews.

On February 21, 1791, at daybreak, on the village boundary near Tasnad, in the ditch of a garden, the body of a thirteen-year-old child, who was carrying the His name was André Takals. He was the son of a poor widow. For some time now he had been coming to sleep in the at-a Jew's riverbank, and he was paid for it. This Jew, in Indeed, his name was Abraham, and he usually passed at night outside his home in a brandy shop that he had in the village; his wife was thus often alone, and it was to give her a guardian that he did Little André comes to his house every night. It's unbelievable. that the follower of the Talmud was concealing his true intention under a plausible motive, as the rest of the document will show history.

The body, easily recognizable, was returned to the mother. But the matter couldn't end there: the emotion popular was very excited and she needed to be given a food. The main inhabitants of the village and the con-

The magistrates conducted an inquiry and examined the something very serious. The child, having had to go through the That night at the Jewish woman's house, as usual, she was forced to He appeared and was questioned very severely. Here is his statement :

“The previous night, two Wallachians appeared at my inn and asked me for bacon and wine. I informed them that my Jewish identity prevented me to have some bacon and asked them to go to the neighborhood at a widow's house who sold them. It was night, and because From this the Wallachians asked me to do them to drive; I gave them the child as a guide. One of the Two Wallachians walked away with him, the other remained seated in the inn. Soon the first one returned, but without his companion. I then asked him where he had been left the child.

"In the village," he replied.

Then he asked me if I knew how to speak Wallachian.

I told him no.

Then he told me that he himself had killed the child.

He simultaneously snatched the child from my arms that I had...
He was milky and made me scream in terror. Then he ran away.
towards the hill where his comrade was waiting for him. »

Although presented in skillful colors, this the declaration was insufficient and could not satisfy - to act as judges, lovers of truth. Moreover, the
The people openly accused the Jews of being the perpetrators of the death of little André. The search was also...
They grew with renewed vigor.

Two doctors from Tasnad were tasked with doing the autopsy. One of them stated that the child had died of illness-

The night the child disappeared.
11

die; but it was learned that this man had received money Jews before the consultation. As for the other, he stated clearly that the child had died violent: he reported a neck injury, we had He severed an artery and drained the blood; some of it remained.
marks on the clothes.

On February 93, the child had been buried, but the Bicegespans, from the local area, understood that a new autopsy was needed.
was necessary; the body was exhumed on the 24th. An examination Further investigation revealed that the right arm did not contain not a drop of blood because it had been extracted by the elbow injury; the left arm had it
Just a few more drops. The spleen, the bladder, and the parts
Their genitals were torn off, according to the horrible custom Jews. So it wasn't the Wallachians who had killed the child, this detail showed it well enough; we know moreover-their claim that the Wallachians only kill by blows to the head and chest.

Bicegespans had the prov-naked, the Jew and his wife; and an interrogation was carried out.
Strict gatory. They brazenly denied it. Nothing equals the confidence and audacity of a Jew in the science of lie.

An overwhelming indictment was soon leveled against them, destroying the strange fable of the two Wallachians. The Jew had put forward, as a means of defense, his
He was absent from his home the night of the crime. That was true, he was not at home, but he had appeared at his house.

trade at the beginning and end of the night. A
A Hungarian, who was employed there, attested to this before three witnesses. — “He went to bed at the same time as me, he said, but when later I wanted to put in wood
In the fire, I realized he was no longer there. I asked-

I asked another where Abraham was, and he answered me that he
I knew nothing about it. With that, I went back to sleep.
In the morning, the Jew was lying down like us and he left his bed at the same time as us.” It was easy to deviateto know what had happened the night of the cunning rogue.

The Jews judged him thus; for as soon as they had convened
From the birth of this declaration, they gave to the peasant five two-franc coins and a lot of brandy,
to induce him to retract and declare that the Jew
Abraham had spent the night near him.

It turned out as they wished, and the witness was bought.
denied his initial statement. But the witnesses who
Those who had heard him protested at first, and sixty blows
The sticks taught him not to mock the judges.
and to make a less favorable impression on the Israelites. He confessed again that the Jew had not spent the night nearby of him.

The Jews are not easily deterred and continue-
They resorted to lying even more vehemently. So the court... to bring Abraham's eldest son, who was then five years old;
He was promised that no harm would be done to him or his parents, if he said where his father had massacred André.

Here is what he recounted with the innocence of his age:
“During the night, my father came to the house with a another Jew named Jacob, they were accompanied by Karolyer, the village rabbi. They seized André.
in his bed, they stripped him of his shirt, and obs-
They cut his mouth to stop him from crying out. Then Jacob
He tied his legs together and cut off one of his arteries.
on the RIGHT side of the neck; meanwhile, my father pre-
A vessel was created and the blood was collected.

The accusation was precise and there was no more room for hesitation.
pour. Despite this, the Jews remained in their denials, claiming that the testimony of a child five years could have no value. Which clearly shows that, on the contrary, the testimony had a Its great strength is that in the place where the child had declared that André was attached, one could see the marks of blood glantes: the ceiling still bore traces of the drops of Blood that always gushes forth with great force, at cause of the heartbeat, when a artery. The Jewish child's bed was also all stained with blood.

The little Jewish boy, awakened by the tumult of the murder, had said to his mother: i — Don't kill André, my comrade with whom I play such good games.

"It's not André," she replied, "but the devil."
who is going to be killed. Sleep, my child, and don't look:
This way you will not be tempted to tell others.

"I won't tell anyone," replied the poor little boy.

The judges asked him who had killed André.

"Jacob," he replied.
^ — However, he could not have done this alone.

— Someone else helped him.

— Who made the incision in the neck?

— Jacob.

— What was used to plug the mouth?

— With soil.

— Where was it taken?

— Under André's bed.

— What did they do when they killed him?

— Rabbi Karolyer sang a hymn taken from the prayer book. My father and Jacob accompanied him.

— What did they do with the blood?

— I don't know; I think the rabbi won.

After such details, would there still be any doubt? Permit? Who doesn't see that we are still here? times in the face of the horrible ritual of death? – But Let's see what happens next.

A Jewish woman, converted to Christianity, what the Jews did with blood Christian. She either didn't know how or wouldn't give any answer. The Hungarian magistrates were able to fill in the gap in his Silence while consulting the brochure of Paul Medici, a Jew Italian convert, a brochure that had just been translated into Hungarian £. It states that by using Christian blood Women tolerate the pains of acc- bed rest and healing from specific illnesses to their sex. To achieve this result, it is sufficient to mix the blood to their food.

Finally, we read in the register of the Evangelical Church ` of Peer: |

“The wife of the Jew Abraham had, during the night of the murder, raised the alarm to stifle any suspicion from the very beginning. With her small child in her arms, she ran to the night watchmen and told them with consternation that two Wallachians had come during at night, in the inn, to drink wine.

"These men had asked him for bacon, which in Because she was Jewish, she could not provide them with anything; she... had asked to go and get some from a neighbor, because that she herself could not leave her house. It was then that she had sent Andrew: the Wallachians had followed him, But neither they nor the child had returned.

"She begged them to come to her aid, for she was afraid

---

1 It was printed in 1783, by Paul Barat.

that the Wallachians would not return to destroy the whole house.

"That was the Jews' first plan to get rid of them."
"He felt no guilt, but he didn't succeed."

Finally, we must not forget the incident of the che-placement. We know that the little Jew's was filled with blood during the murder of the Christian child. They were questioned also the laundress who was in charge of the laundry in the house of Abraham.

"The judge asked him how many shirts he had the child of the Jews.

— Three, was the reply.

— How many went through the washing machine last time?

- A.

— Was she covered in blood?

- No.

"Now, when the Jewish woman was asked how much her
The child had shirts, she replied that he had
two. The laundress boldly maintained that he had three.

"It is true," replied the Jewish woman, "that the child had"
three shirts, but I set one aside, because that it was too worn out.

"Oh no!" cried the laundress. "They were all..."
three in very good condition.

Lies, ambushes, slander, false testimony,
Everything was done by the Jews to deflect the accusation the attack that hit them right in the face. But they didn't They were able to erase all traces of their crime: the story attributes to them the guilt they assumed.

The Hungarian magistrates did their duty by condemning-putting to death the murderers of little André. But they ee ee te – ——— –

were pardoned by Emperor Joseph II, the Freemason revolutionary, who, by that very fact, was to be a friend of Jews. The quashing of the Szolmack judges' ruling is not therefore not a judicial decision, but a pure act-Administrative matter. This requires no further comment.

CHAPTER IX

THE ASSASSINATION OF FATHER THOMAS (1840):

In the 15th century, the martyrdom of Blessed Simoncino (of Trent) occupied the people and the elite for a quarter of a century from then on; this martyrdom had a re-edition of fame, of nowadays: the assassination of Father Thomas of Calangiano is grimly illustrious in the dark annals of murder Talmudic. The well-known personality of the martyred man, the indignation of European residents, the effervescence of the crowd, everything contributed to bringing notoriety to this crime which the other misdeeds of the synagogue did not enjoy.

A book!, unfortunately quite rare, gives the a full account, from the mouths of the accused and the witnesses to the hideous ambush in which the Good Capuchin. Nothing strikes me like the precision with which this book recounts the twists and turns of the drama.

The Jewish character is fully revealed there with its be-black appearances of sanctity and its bricked-up slums of horrors and paving stones of betrayal. Oh! the ignoble ones! the

---

* Historical account of Syrian affairs, from 1840 until 1842, and the complete procedure conducted in 1840, against the Jews From Damascus, by Ach. Laurent, Paris, Gaume, 1846. The second The entire volume is devoted to the Jews. The documents were deposited at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; they have disappeared in 1870, under the ministry of the Jew Crémieux.

Perverts! How disgusting! Their machines don't raise...
dark tions!

Absorbed by Jewish gold, this historical monument has almost completely disappeared; only a few examples can be found than in places inaccessible to Israel's grasp. Tra-Produced in Italian and reissued several times on the other side monks, always the same perseverance, relentlessly pursued him to make disappear. A pamphlet by Father de Mondovi could-
The same subject, which was recorded in Marseille, is also untraceable.
viable, although it has had several editions.

This hunt has its meaning. We are not looking to destroying evidence in a trial when one is innocent crimes that they formulate.

Father Thomas was Sardinian; he was called from Calangiano.
named after the village where he was born, around 1780.
In the 19th century, he was known as Francesco Antonio.
Around the age of eighteen, he joined the Capuchins, and Having left Rome at the beginning of 1807, he sailed towards the missions in Damascus, where, for more than thirty years, He devoted himself to the well-being of his brothers, physician to the bodies and thaumaturge of souls.

His name quickly gained popularity. He had become the providence of all the wretches who gave themselves
Meet us in this grand, universal bazaar in Damascus.
It could be said of him, as of his divine Master, that he
he passed away doing good: even his shadow carried happiness and the sight of it alone brought a little balm to the aching hearts and sustained failing wills.

How many savage quarrels, how many cruel enmities were extinguished!
They were born under the blessings of his benevolent hand!
To this conciliatory disposition, he added a real talent
to alleviate bodily infirmities; and this quality
This did not detract from its value or the praise it received.

In his childhood, he had cultivated a passion for pharmaceutical science.
ceutique and field remedies had no purpose
He knew secrets. His long stay in the Orient had accustomed him to them.
to the diseases of this country and he had acquired a great experience for their treatment. He was the most skilled city vaccinator: high spirit and far-reaching, he had understood the full significance of the discovery of the document Mr. Jenner, and had become an ardent promoter of it. His reputation had spread beyond the city limits and one had come from a great distance to be vaccinated by the venerable capucin.

He lavished his favors on everyone, without distinction of race or religion: Christians, Muslims, Jews, Eu-Europeans, Orientals, all went to him with confidence and They returned from it comforted. The children of Israel in particular experienced the measure of his charity: as if touched by their deplorable blindness, the good father showed himself for them more affable than for anyone else, perhaps in the chimerical hope of tearing the blindfold from their eyes.
of willful blindness.

And it was this man, so holy, so charitable, so revered
that these disbelievers caused to perish in torment.
in memory of those who soiled their hands with this crime
. abominable, doesn't she deserve to be dragged to the gendarmerie?
Monics of history?

Here is a quick outline of the facts:

It was the beginning of February. Ahead of time

Jews were preparing for the celebration of their festival of Purim, which falls on the 18th of this month. We read in the Book of Esther that This festival was established to perpetuate the memory of the day when God's people were delivered from tyranny of the treacherous Haman. It remains to this day one of the most major festivals of the Israelite people: this is illustrated by disorder of all kinds, through a ridiculous abuse of the law strong queers and especially through the odious use of blood Christian. In 1840, the necessary victim was sacrificed at Damascus.

The trial documents tell us that one does not choose not exactly the father, but he was killed because he was the
The first one who offered himself as a sacrifice. With these people there is no nothing sacred, and friendship can only be for them a A means, not an end. May this story serve, in passing-health, a warning to Christians who do not fear not to get involved with the Jews of Israel. At the pre-
On the first day, they may fall under the sacrificial knife-ficator.

For the past two weeks, the Chief Rabbi of Damascus, Yacoub-el-Antabi was looking for a way to obtain a bottle of human blood. For this purpose, he had addressed to the Arari brothers, wealthy merchants, whose house A luxurious building rose in the middle of the Jewish quarter. Perhaps Would they have preferred to avoid this task? But Talmudic tyranny was upon them. They could not- were going to refuse this blood tax, without rejecting themselves even from within the synagogue. So they hastened to promise, that the thing would cost them a hundred purses', That is to say, 11,950 francs in our currency. This

»

'The Turkish purse is worth 500 piastres, and the piastre 22 centimes' and a half.

[^P pif are ed that Se cu PECORE

a considerable sum shows us to what extreme is pushed fanaticism among the Jews.

After receiving this promise, Yacoub warned two lower rabbis, the Khakam Michone Abou-el-Afieh and Khakam Michone Bokhor Youda Salonikli, to stand ready for the sacrifice where their presence was necessary. The main Jews of the colony The order to fly on the first call is also recurring. All the preliminaries were settled; they were waiting for the occasino.

On the evening of February 5, 1840, Father Thomas was... requested to vaccinate a child in the Jewish quarter. He went there immediately; but the child was too ill and one He couldn't be vaccinated safely. The father wanted to get rid of him. return to the convent. And as he passed by the house of Daoud Arari, — the most pious of the Jews of Damascus and a great friend of the old Capuchin friar—the latter is He was invited into the house. He did so without defiance. as usual. Already, upon hearing the news that the Father was in the Jewish quarter, had rushed to Daoud's house his two brothers, his uncle, and two of the leading Jews of the city.

They all rushed upon the unfortunate religious man, in a frenzy- They gag him, tie his hands and feet, and transport him to a remote room, to wait there the night and the end of the preparations ; meanwhile, Daoud began searching for a rabbi. He met Michone Abou-el-Afieh who was leaving his house after l'ásr!, to go to the synagogue:

"Come," he told her, "I need you."

1. An approximate average between noon and the sunset.

“I am going to prayer,” replied the rabbi; “I will come then at your home.

"Come with me," he continued, "so I can tell you..." something.

“He taught me then,” recounts Abu, who had become a Muslim. under the name Mohammed-Effendi, that Father Thomas He was at home and that, at nightfall, they would kill him. I told him I asked if the Khakam had indicated this person, or if he had only asked for blood to accomplish it- the application of religious precepts. — It is this which is fell into our hands, said Arari; as for you, do not "Don't worry, we'll be there. I went to his house."

He found the assassins gathered in the diwan. It was a room, laid out like all apartments of this kind in Damascus. "It consists of a platform made of earth with a layer of plaster on top, and occupying two-thirds of a long square. The platform that rises to the- above the other third of the apartment, approximately 75 cent- timers, and dominated by an arch at the point of separation The ratio of the two parts of the room is covered with: carpets, while the background and walls are adorned with necklines sins: the lower third, level with the ground floor The roadway is paved with marble featuring several designs. (Laurent). "Shortly after the mogreb, or bedtime" From the sun, they summoned the barber Soliman; and they ordered the priest to be slaughtered. But the poor man didn't... He didn't have the courage, and despite tempting offers he didn't could resign himself to it.

So, the most pious of the Jews of Damascus, the friend of the good Father Daoud, the Capuchin friar, the most esteemed Jew among Christians Arari, in short, began to saw his own throat. with a knife. But his hand trembled and he couldn't to complete his work. His brother Aaroun must...

lends assistance, while the barber holds the father by The beard. A scene worthy of Indian fanatics or... Savage cannibals from Central Africa! And us? We come into contact every day with the men responsible for these crimes. we touch at every moment the red hand of blood of our brothers. The historian would like to remain detached, but he cannot suppress a cry of indignation in the presence of such atrocities.

The blood was collected in a copper basin; then it was poured into a white glass bottle, called KhaLabieh, with a capacity of three to four ounces!, like those used in sacrifices of this kind. She was handed over to Khakam Abou-el-Afieh, who was present. with the mission to take it immediately to the Grand Rabbin. Usage requires it.

“That’s what I did,” Abou recounts; “I took the bottle, I went out and went to Khakam's house. I found him there- who was waiting for me in the outer courtyard; upon seeing me, He headed towards the library.

"Take what you asked for," I told him. He took the bottle and placed it behind the books; I went out and I went home. I don't know what was done with the body. and the effects of the father, since when I left we didn't have Nothing done yet. But when I saw Daoud and his brothers again and that I tell them that this matter would cause us intranquility, as a result of the research one undertakes would deliver, and that we had done wrong to address ourselves to "That one," they replied to me.

— We won't be able to discover anything: the clothes are conconsumed by fire, so that nothing remained of trace and the flesh will be thrown into the canal little by little, until nothing remains, through the servant. Besides, he added, I have a very good hiding place; I can put it there except to take it out little by little Little. Stop being alarmed and take care of yourself. rage. "

---

The Arab ounce is worth half a pound of French currency.

God's justice was bound to shatter all their schemes!

II

Throughout this horrific tragedy, the as-residents let contentment show on their faces.
wise: they would almost be guilty of sacrilege, if in the performance of a religious act they do not manifest-
They were not celebrating the most complete joy.

But deep in their hearts, fear was taking root; they had not-had not initially calculated the full scope of their en-criminal enterprise, and one of them began to say that they would-would have been better off sacrificing anyone other than the father Thomas.

The disappearance of this religious figure would indeed cause a
A tremendous noise. Rumors could have been circulating beforehand.
even if the traces of the crime had disappeared. The ca-Pucin had a servant, Ibrahim Amoran, greatly devoted, who was not going to fail to search for his Master. He had to be made to disappear. We took care of it.
that same evening.

Some of the interrogations will give us the minor details of this tragic adventure.

Mourad-el-Fath'al, Daoud Arari's servant,

Pressed with questions and fearing he might compromise himself,
address this request:

Has anyone confessed before me?

— Confessions have certainly been made; tell the truth
Your turn.

— When I returned to my master, he told me-Manda: Have you given notice regarding the servant? I replied
Yes; with that, he told me: Go back, go see if they've taken it or not, and what do we do with it? I went to Méhir-Farkhi. I found the door locked; I knockedpai; the maallem came to open the door for me: — We have him;
Do you want to come in, or leave? — I'll come in to see,
I told him. I went in, and I found Isaac Picciotto and Aaroun Stambouli; they were busy tying the hands of the patient behind his back, with his handkerchief, after him having bandaged the mouth with a white cloth. The thing is passed on the small sofa which is in the small courtyard outside where the latrines are located, and it is in these latrines where flesh and bones were thrown. They had barricaded themselves the door with a beam; and after Isaac Picciotto and Aaroun Stambouli had tied his hands behind his back, he was thrown to the ground by Méhir-Farkhi, Mourad-Farkhi, etc., that is to say by the seven who were present to the operation. There were some among them who watched had others do it.

"They brought a tinned copper basin; they put in his neck on this basin, and Méhir-Farkhi slit his throat. with his own hands. Youcef Ménakem-Farkhi and I, We were holding his head. Aslan-Farkhi and Isaac Picciotto They held the feet, they were sitting on them. Aaroun StamBouli and the others held the body firmly, to prevent him from moving, until the blood had finished flowing sink. I remained for another fifteen minutes, alternatingwhile he was quite dead. So I left them, and I I went to my master, to whom I gave notice of what had happened.....

—Did any of these seven individuals go out during That you were still there?
— No one before he was slaughtered and the blood drained.

— By what means was the domestic?

— I already said that I understood some of the words of Youcef Menakem-Farkhi said that they were gathered five in the street, near the door; that the servant came to askafter his master, and Youcef replied: "Your The master lingered at our house; he is vaccinating a child; if "If you want to wait for him, come in, you'll find him." He entered through this means and what happened was what I said.

— What was done with the blood, and who took it?

After some hesitation, the accused replied:

— The truth is that Aaroun Stambouli shed blood in the bottle he was holding in his hand. They used a new tinplate funnel, like those used by the oil merchants. It was Youcef Ménakem-Farkhi who took the basin to pour it into the bottle. After it was filled, Aaroun-Stambouli entrusted it to Yacoub Abou-el-Afieh.

Then efforts were also made to erase all traces of crime. It was like a second edition of the treatise- The lie that the father had suffered. Nothing was kept of him personally. that which their Talmudic faith coveted: blood!

III

The day after the two ritual murders, of which we Having just read the account, on the morning of February 6th, the people, who used to attend mass early on Father went to church as usual. At noon, No one had appeared yet, and the anxiety was large.

The convent door was forced open. Everything was deserted: the The previous night's supper had remained untouched on the table. He thus learned that the father had not returned and immediately... The sound replied that he had been murdered.

The French consul was notified and began the investigation. immediately sought help. The locals told all. high :

— Yesterday, Father Thomas was in the neighborhood of Jews, and there is no doubt that he disappeared there as well as his servant.

The Pasha, having been informed of the matter, had a search carried out on his side. dear to the religious man; it was in vain at first. But well- A very small circumstance revealed itself to the authorities that the suspicions of the crowd were not misplaced; vox populi, voz Dei.

The father was supposed to put up posters; Wednesday, day of his death, none had been asked, and two days later One of them was found on the door of the barber Soliman.

The father had taken them with him when he was left the convent for the last time, and there was no that those who had caused his disappearance who could to possess these posters which he was carrying.

The barber was arrested. He was given immense trouble.
to loosen the tongue, and it was only after several interrogations-
It was only after he decided to reveal some of the facts that he decided to do so.
which he had witnessed. He named some of the culprits.

These defendants were immediately confronted with their accusation.
sateur. They came, hypocritically hidden under the false appearances of the lamb, and said to their coreli-Legionnaire with an odious affability:

— How can you say, my friend, that you have
Have you seen them? Ask God to deliver you!

Seeing himself abandoned by his fellow believers and not expecting-Having received no further assistance from them, Suleiman entered the
The full confession. Daoud Arari's servant
He did the same; both testimonies corroborated this on all points.
agreed. All that remained was to conduct a search-tion to find the remains of the Capuchin.

What had become of them? Here's what the two witnesses. After the murder, the body had been dragged into the wood-burning room. It was a room placed parallel to the sofa we've been talking about; she milk separated by the liwan or summer divan entirely open onto the courtyard. This last room was identical at the first one; only she wasn't completely finished: debris of planks, of Joists, old benches. Some sections of the wall between the windows were plastered, and the ceiling was paneled, according to custom; as for the floor, it was neither Neither beaten nor flattened. "There," recounted the barber, "we de-
the scraps of his clothes were burned; then
The servant Mourad arrived; » we are told to « depe-
"To the priest." We asked how to go about it.
to make the pieces disappear; they answered us-rent: "Throw them down the drains." — We will describe it-camels; we put the remains in a bag, and as we went and gradually we went and threw them down the drains;

Then we returned to Daoud's. The operation was terminated.
born, they said they would marry the servant to their fees and that they would give me money....

— The bones could have betrayed you, what did you Made from these bones?

— We smashed them on the stone with the pestle mortar.

— And what about the head?

— We also broke it with the same instool.

— Were you paid anything?

— I was promised money, being told that if I If I were talking, they would declare that I was the one who killed him. As for The servant was promised a marriage, as I I just said it.

— And what was the bag like that you put The debris?

— Like all coffee bags, made of packaging canvas and grey in color.

— What did you do with the entrails?

— We cut them, we put them in the bag, and we threw them down the drain.

— Didn't the bag drip the contents? held in the entrails?

— A coffee bag, when wet, is not subject to let its contents drip out.

— Were you carrying it alone?

— The servant and I helped each other, or We took turns carrying it.

— When you butchered the father, how many were there? You? How many knives did you have?

— The servant and I were butchering it, and the seven others showed us how to do it. Sometimes I cut, and sometimes it was the servant; we We took turns when one or the other was tired. The knife was like the butchers' knives; it was the same which had been used in the murder...

— On what paving stone did you break the bones?

— On the pavement between the two rooms.

— But when the head was broken, the brains must have come out?

— We transported her with the bones.

— At what time did the murder approximately take place? and how much time passed until it was complete Bloodshed?

"I believe the murder took place around the letcha (a (an hour and a half after sunset). The father is remained above the basin until the entire effusion blood flow, for half an hour or two of an hour. When we had finished the whole operation, It was about eight o'clock, more or less.

These statements needed to be verified. The investigation, led by the French consul, Mr. Ratti-Menton, and Chérif-Pasha, was conducted with the utmost severity,

More than once, attempts were made to put the two witnesses in place. contradicting each other, but without being able to succeed. At theright where they said they had crushed the bones, it was noticed that the mosaic was sunken. On the plastered walls of Inside, there were three bloodstains; and furthermore a small, elongated drop on the wall of the jamb to the left of the door. All were still very appaannuities, although obviously one would have sought to make them disappear.

The most important part to explore was the canal where lay the sacred remains of the martyred man.

"This canal, which comes directly out of the house of Mouca Abou-el-Afieh, is quite long and quite tall in this place. The street water flows into it through a step-sloping passageway built under the sidewalk. It was in this passagea wise choice intended for rainwater drainage and which, at that moment, was obstructed, that an amalgame of earth and blood, all black, as well as a rag bloodied. To this conduit, which also serves as an overflowevening at all the pools that are available in the courtyards of All the houses come together in different several of the small conduits in the neighborhood.

"The bone fragments found in the first At that moment, they were leg bones with their joints. a kneecap, fragments of the skull, plus a piece of the heart; in the afternoon of the same day, another was withdrawn in the presence of the consul, several Europeans and a a large number of inhabitants, nerve fragments, a or two vertebrae, a piece of skin from the head, or A portion of the tonsure was clearly visible, the rest being covered in hair, well, two pieces of a black woolen cap, shaped like the skullcaps that European clergymen wear them (Laurent).

These remains were identified by Mr. Merlato, the consul Austrian, four European doctors, six doctors Muslims, a local Christian, finally by the barber ordinary of Father Thomas.

The crime was obvious; but the Jews did not They hadn't realized it yet. They had already done a lot. efforts to identify several individuals to researchcherish the remains of Father Thomas and pretend to have them found. When the relics of which had been unearthed we just spoke, they claimed that it wasn't not the remains of the Capuchin friar there, or that they had played a game for them It was a bad move to come and deposit them in this canal. As if that were even possible!

They were granted permission to make new research, and the trial was interrupted quite quickly For a long time. They took advantage of this to weave intrigues. in their own way and thwart the plans of justice.

They had approached a Mr. Chubli, who had... influence with the authorities, and had promised him 500,000 piastres if they obtained:

1. The cessation of all translation of Jewish books, because it was a humiliation for the nation;

2° The failure to record in the minutes of the procedure for translating and explaining books Hebrews made by Abu al-Afieh!, and moreover their descomplete instructions;

3. Intervening with the consul to obtain...

Pasha released Maallem Raphael Farkhi;

4° The adoption of measures designed to obtain a treatyless severe treatment in favor of those convicted, by the commutation of the death penalty to any other punishment tion.

Meanwhile, a complete reversal had taken place which was expected to create major difficulties for the justice system.

Among the accused was an Austrian subject. Austrian consul, Mr. Merlato, who from the outset... showed himself to be ruthless against the Jews, had himself watched to the incarceration of this individual, But the Israelite camp Damascus was not isolated: invisible threads connected it to the powerful Jewish societies of Europe. The latter they launched their campaign and quickly had to obtain good results, because, as early as March 7th, the Austrian consul changed his attitude, denied Chérif-Pasha refused to be judged by an Egyptian court. Let's get back to the topic of Austria.

See the chapter on the Talmud.

The French consul continued to do his duty, and to to continue the trial, despite the obstacles that were being placed in their path on his journey, despite the defamation he was subjected to, despite the Israelite gold that was offered to him.

“As soon as one examines it carefully,” said Hamont, what has been published about the disappearance of Father Thomas, on experiences a painful feeling... An honorable magistrate Trat, the French representative, insists to the lieutenants of Muhammad Ali so that justice may be done; And what happens? The Jews of Europe cry murder, To the murderer! They are defaming Mr. de Batté-Menton; the comcommunion of Jews protected by the Austrian consulate throws out cries of distress... and, because of children Israelis traveled from Europe to Egypt, a thick veil "8 were shot at this scene of bloodshed."

At one point, however, justice prevailed. Chérif-Pasha had conducted his investigation thoroughly and he was ticonvinced "that the Jews had murdered the "Christians, to have their blood." He was keen to honor that it was impossible to suspect his feelings even once instantly, and through his efforts the sentence was such that it should have been.

Sixteen high-ranking Jews had been implicated in This sad affair. Two, Youcef Arariet and Youcef Legnado.
died during the course of the debates. Four, Mouca Abou-el-Afieh, Aslan-Farkhi, Soliman, Mourad-el-Falh'al
They were pardoned because of their revelations.

The other ten were sentenced to death. They were:
Daoud Arari, Aaroun Arari, Isaac Arari, the rabbi Bokhor Youda known as Salonikli, Mébir Farkhi, Mourad

se

Farkhi, Aroun Stambouli, Isaac Picciotto, Yacoub Abou-
el-Afieh, Youcef Ménakem-Farkhi.
And it didn't matter to the pasha that his sentence was carried out!

IV

The one who, unintentionally, caused this sentence to be overturned, was our French consul, whose conduct had been so admirable rable, that she was showered with praise, a little later, at the French tribune.

He thought it appropriate—so afraid was he of overstepping the mark.
his rights! — to send the entire procedure to Ibrahim-Pasha, general of the Turkish troops in Syria, for having His approval. This delay saved the lives of the condemned.
Indeed, three European Jews, Crémieux, Munck and Mosés
Montefiore, delegates of the Universal Israelite Association,
They thus had time to reach the East. They presented-
They supported Muhammad Ali, adding something else to it.
It seems, a plea requesting a review of this trials, exactly like those of Trent, four centuries earlier. Which, at the time, caused four successive trials.

Mehemet Ali did not want so much, and defeated, — one
We can believe it without rash judgment, by Jewish gold,
— He pardoned the condemned. It was not enough. Moses, Montefiore and Crémieux refused to listen to speak of grace, because, they said, grace presupposes the fault. And they were right. The Jews are like the Caesar's wife, they must not be suspected:

They are such holy people!

So, Muhammad Ali had the word crossed out from his firman! thanks to which they were so bothered. Nevertheless, the firman remained such that it suggests fault. Here it is in all its Content:

"By the presentation and request of Messrs. Mosès, Montéfiore and Crémieux, who came to us as delegates fords of all Europeans who profess the religion of Moses, we have acknowledged that they desire their release. and safety for those Jews who are detained and for those who fled regarding the examination of the case of Father Thomas, the missing monk of Damascus, and his servant Ibrahim. And because of such a large population, It would not be appropriate to refuse their request, we order-not to release the Jewish prisoners, and to give to the fugitives, safety for their return. And you will leave the Craftsmen at their work, shopkeepers at their businesses so that everyone can take care of their usual profession; and you will take all possible measures to ensure that none that they do not become the object of mistreatment of any kind whatever share it may be, so that there may be for them full and complete Keep them safe as before and leave them alone. In every respect.

"That is our will."

(Seal of Mehemet Ali.)

Upon receiving this firman, Sharif Pasha had to put The Jews he had condemned to death were set free; that is which he did on September 5, 1840, seven months after they had shed the blood of the good religious man, their friend.

Theodore Reinach, the historian of modern Israelites, said to this subject without producing the piece, of course: "A firman of the Sultan denounced once again the falsehood of the odious and "Absurd calumny invented in the Middle Ages!" The firman of Mehemet-Ali, as we see, says nothing of the sort; but those who will read the The book of the Israelite knows nothing of it, and they will write: “These poor

Jews! How they are slandered! It has to be a Muslim who will defend them.

The Jews had obtained the freedom of the condemned and the silence of justice; nevertheless, their foolish pretensions- their aims were higher: they would have liked the proclamation their innocence. They did not, however, dare to push further. "Renew the investigation," said the head- Valier des Mousseaux, would have been folly on their part; for So, France, represented in the East by its consul, se füt vue, jusqu'à l' gouvernement si peu ch- Louis-Philippe's tormentors, forced to keep nailed under The eyes of the whole world, all those Jews, heads bowed. the eyes and beard in the victims' blood! And, the Convicted men subjected to the shame of a second investigation, that the whole of France had followed, even if they could have made a movement without splashing their highs and lows with this blood "Many protectors?"

In the cemetery of Damascus, a monument still remains. accusatory lie. This is the tomb where, on March 2, 1840, The remains of the sacrificed religious figure were solemnly laid to rest. out of hatred for the Christian faith, a tomb on which one wrote in Arabic and Italian:

[Here lie the bones of Father Thomas of Sardinia,] Capuchin apostolic missionary, murdered by the Jews,
February 5, 1840.

And the final word in this famous trial must be this a phrase often repeated among the people: "The The Jews murdered the priest and kneaded the flour with the blood of this unfortunate man. The viceroy did not want to follow up on this matter, because men can- "Health intervened."

They kneaded the flour with the blood of that unfortunate man! This is what the people of Damascus kept repeating; this is what they denied, which the friends of the still boldly deny Jews. Unable to deny the fact of the assassination, they su- They maintain that he was not executed for ritual purposes. interrogations preserved in the proceedings, their response-will; we will put some of these witnesses the reader is presented with the evidence and will judge for themselves whether Doubt is possible.

First, Isaac Arari admitted: "It is very true that we brought Father Thomas to Daoud's house: It was an agreement between us, we killed him to obtain his blood; after having collected this blood in a bottle, we put the bottle at Kha-Kam.

The consul asks Daoud's servant:

— What do we do with the blood?

— It is used for Fathir (the festival of unleavened bread).

— How do you know that?

— I heard them say that blood was for the unleavened bread.

A little further on, Colonel Hassey-Bey asks the even :

— Since you didn't see the blood!, how Did you know that it was meant to be used for unleavened bread?

We recall that this servant had been dispatched to the assassination... sinat of the servant, and had not attended that of Father Thomas, but only during the dismemberment of the corpse.

— I asked what the purpose was for which the water had been poured the blood, and they told me it was for the festival of unleavened bread.

— Was the assassination of Father Thomas not intended than religion? Was there any motive for hatred against Was it him, or did they want his money?

— I don't know the exact reason.

To a question of this kind, Rabbi Abou-el-Afieh asserted that the assassination had been committed "with a purpose religious, blood being necessary for the fulfillment of our religious duties!

— What is the purpose of blood in your religion?

— It is used in unleavened bread.

— Is this blood being distributed to believers?

— Ostensibly, no! It is given to the principal Khakam.

The same person revealed in another interrogation:

"The custom is that the blood that is put in the bread unleavened bread is not for the people, but for a few perzealous sons. As for the manner of the embending into the unleavened bread, I would say that the Khakam Yacoub-el-Antabi (Chief Rabbi of Damascus) remains in the oven the day before the Feast of Unleavened Bread: there, the zealous people They send him flour from which he makes bread; he kneads it himself. even the dough without anyone knowing he puts some in it blood, and he sends bread to those to whom the flour.

— Do you know if the rabbi sent some of this blood to other places, or if it was only used for the Jews of Damascus?

Daoud Arari himself confessed that they had killed the father "for the blood; because, he said, we needed it for the celebration-"tion of our worship."

— Rabbi Yacoub told me he had to send some in Baghdad.

— Had someone written from Baghdad to ask for it?

— He told me that.

This rabbi, seized with fear because of his revelations, did mahometan during the course of the trial. After this metamorphosis, which had given him the name Moham-Med-Effendi, he wrote a long letter to the pasha, which we have already given most of it and where we read again:

"As for blood, what use is it to the Jews?" This is not related to the celebration of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, thus that I have already stated this verbally. How many times Didn't governments catch Jews in the act of committing Such acts? That's what we see in one of their books entitled Sadat Adarkout, which relate several matters of this kind are the responsibility of the Jews. The author, he is true, calls these accusations slanderous and demonstrates the way in which these cases were handled against the Jews. Those who know Israelite customs They know that the more you cry libel, the more you should believe it. to the truth of the alleged facts.

Chubli raised an objection to Mohammed:

— You say the blood was collected for the festival unleavened bread; however, it is certain that blood, according to Their religion is considered by Jews as a an impure thing, even if it is the blood of a animal, they are not allowed to use it. There is therefore a contradiction between the idea of filth and attack-blood consumption and the necessity of human blood in the Unleavened bread. An explanation is needed that satisfies the reason.

— According to the Talmud, there are two kinds of blood pleasing to God: the blood of Passover and the blood of the Circumcision.

Your explanation did not sufficiently explain this to us. understand how a person's blood is used may be permitted.

— That's the secret of the great Khakams; they know = this matter and the way in which blood is used.

From what is said later, the reader will learn that Mohammed-Effendi did not tell the whole truth about of the secret of Purim. Indeed, he always spoke of the unleavened bread, as if the blood of adults could be used for it as well as that of children. This question will be This will be clarified in the chapter that deals with the uses of blood.

For the moment, it suffices to note, according to their deposition, that this murder of two adults has well done, like so many others, for a religious purpose, to obey the current law of the rabbinical and tal- Jews

Mudists. It doesn't matter that this trial doesn't reveal to us completely the use made of blood; we will know Moreover. And this will not be the least interesting chapter-feeling from this work which will astonish and outrage many people, who will rightly accuse our historians for having left them in the oblivion of these questions so important-load-bearing.

CHAPTER X

THE TISZA-ESZLAR CASE
(1882)

Hungary has almost become for the Jews of the scattering a new land where milk and the honey, so much do they gladly extort from the Christians that they have sworn to plunder. They multiply there with a rapid-astonishing. Thus, a village of 1,400 inhabitants, Tisza-Eszlar, which before 1848 had only about a dozen Jews, today own more than two hundred. And the The surrounding villages are afflicted with the same plague.

In Nyiregyhaza, a charming town of 30,000 inhabitants, where The famous trial of 1882 took place; there was hardly any over a thousand Jews, compared to 20,000 Hungarians from Calvinists and 10,000 schismatic Russniaks. And yet They are the masters of the country. They are the ones who have everything. trade is in their hands: they firmly control the traffic brandies and they completely monopolized the trade in cereals and tobacco which takes place on a large scale in these regions.

To give an idea of the domination of the Jews in This provincial town, it suffices to say that ten years ago, before the anti-Semitic movement had spread, the Israelites who made up barely 3 percent of the population lation, occupied not only the place of burgmaster, but they still had a majority on the council municipal. And even one of their own, the lawyer Heumann, had had the audacity to put himself forward as a candidate for the Reichstag Hungarian. Fouquet's quo non ascendam seems to be which became the beloved motto of these superintendents of finances of the universe. |

In vain does public opinion rise up against them and curse them;
They scoff at public opinion; in vain do the laws redouble their efforts.
Severity, they flout the laws and deceive those who have tasked with enforcing them; in vain the riot rumbles Surrounded by threats, they oppose the riot.
an inertial force that discourages and overwhelms her. By challenging-
In this way, they do what they want and no obstacle prevents them from doing so.
their rise.

They find a way to evade the charges which weigh on other citizens. That's how they escape to military service. When a Jew reaches the age of
At eighteen, he was sent to Galicia, where he remained for some time.
years later, he takes a wife; one presents her in his place
before the review board some poor cripple absolutely unfit for military service; this one is released, of course, and he hurries to hand in his liberation to the one for whom he was merely a front. The
The government knows all this and lets it happen. Nothing is It's strange how this tacit protection is granted everywhere to the Semitic element. And universal protection! which is meeting both at the sanctuary of justice and on the forum of public life.

Hungary sees it every day, just like France.
a horrible crime that was perpetrated a few years ago,
The village of Tisza-Eszlar is a remarkable example of this.
dockable.

This village is located several leagues north of Nyiregyha2a, not far from the Theiss. The small town is consists of three villages that are adjacent: Ujfalu, Totfalu and Ofalu, which in French means Villeneuve, Villeslovaque and Vieilleville. The inhabitants of the bourgade are mostly Calvinist Hungarians; Totfalu is inhabited, as its name suggests, by Slovaks who are Roman Catholics. Ujfalu is especially inhabited by Calvinists or Jews; it is in this part of the village where the victim and the most of the accused.

On April 1st, 1882, between noon and one o'clock, disappeared-knows, without leaving a trace, a young girl from this village, Esther Solymosi, daughter of the widow Etienne Solymosi'.
This disappearance took place in the vicinity of the synagogue.
gogue.

Everything about this suggested that this disappearance could be natural. At fourteen, in fact, one hardly thinks still to romantic adventures, and moreover the serious and Esther's good conduct amply defended her against such a supposition. Could one reason more logically- It was easy to conjecture that a mysterious sorrow had

The Solymosi family were Calvinists and lived in Ujfalu. about twenty Jewish families lived there: only one applied to manual labor; the others were involved in the brandy trade, bailiff positions or they were street vendors. details give an idea of the social situation of the borough where the crime was committed and where he was tried. Cf. Universe of June 30, 1883, and Correspondence of November 25 of the same year year.

carried & to commit suicide and that she was sleeping her last sleep- Better under the waters of the Theiss? Considerations The following will respond.

The young child was in the service of the woman André Huri. On the morning of April 1st, she had sent to the old village to do some shopping, including buying paint to beautify a apartment for Easter. She told him had even recommended hurrying, like Esther she herself told the merchant from whom she made this purchase This took place at the home of the Christian Joseph Kollmayer. between eleven o'clock and noon. She packed quickly her purchases in a small bag that she carried in her hand and He hurried along the road that led to his home, a not far from the village.

Between the village itself and the May group- among the houses where young Solymosi lived, there was a a fairly extensive plain: in the middle of this plain and not Far from the banks of the Theiss, stands the Jewish synagogue with the caretaker's house. The traces were found. of the young girl up to this place, but there they disappeared- They were completely blinded and no clue came to light which way had she turned her steps.

Towards the last houses of the village, she had ren- confronted his seventeen-year-old sister Sophie, who was in service at the home of another resident of Tiszar-Eszlar. She he joyfully told him about the happiness that came from him

arrival: her godmother had promised her a new outfit in cotton canvas and five two-franc pieces, with the-
which ones she could, on Easter Day, buy herself a
A pair of ankle boots. A young girl, whose hope is a
A new pair of ankle boots makes you so happy, don't even think about it.
hardly any reason to go and drown or to flee far from their native land.

Other people claimed to have noticed this look cheerfulness on Esther's face, the unlucky day where she was taken from the affection of her family. Let us mention in part-Judge Joseph Papp, whom she met opposite the village mill. She greeted him with a in a completely friendly manner and exchanged a few words with him words. This witness claimed that he had seen Esther commit

“on the road and that he had followed her with his eyes until the Jewish synagogue. Five or six other witnesses pose the Same statement.

From that point on, she was no longer seen. However, he
There were a lot of people in the plain and we should have seen her.
if she had continued walking forward. So it was it is natural to blame the Jews for this sudden disappearance; this is how the suspicions:

Esther's mistress, the Huri woman, waited in vain-upon her return. Tired and a little irritated by the delay equally inexplicable, she went to her sister's mother's house.
vante; there too, no news had been received from the young girl. The two women began searching for her.
All in vain. He had to return home without having Found nothing, and in the sadness of discouragement.
Huri woman stopped there.

But a mother could not so easily abandon the part. Aided by her sister-in-law, Gabriel's wife Solymosi, the next day, renewed her inquisition as fruitless as the previous day's. Nevertheless, this That day, the ray of light that was to be revealed to her was direct his steps.

As she passed by the vicinity of the synagogue
The guard Joseph Scharf addressed him, and without to appear the least bit moved, he asked her the cause of his pain. Then, palely, he added: "Don't Don't worry, woman; Esther will return alive or death. In Ajdu-Manas, there was also a disappearance of this kind. The Jews were then accused of having committed the murder of the missing girl; later, However, the young girl was found dead in the middle of the reeds.

A small consolation! The grieving mother did not give First, pay close attention to this strange way of to speak. But upon reflection, she soon realized that Some mystery lay hidden beneath this idyllic scene, and the With the help of her mother's premonition, she quickly acquired the conconviction that the disappearance of his daughter was a work Jewish, undoubtedly one of those infamous ritual murders which public opinion blamed the synagogue for.

On April 1st, she went to see the judge and informed him of Her suspicions. She wasted her time: the judge did not believe her. point and saw no basis for maternal suspicion nelle. An unexpected event would soon force him to to take the poor mother's complaints seriously.

The temple guardian had a sixteen-year-old son, named Maurice, and another, only five years old years, whose name was Samuel; it was the latter who camesaid the lock of hair. While playing with Christian friends, he decided to recount "that foreign butchers had massacred the young Hungarian girl in the synagogue gogue, saying he got it from his brother Maurice who had seen murder through the keyhole, and who had done it to him told. » The child's innocent voice shattered everything a scaffolding of precautions and rendered unnecessary a clever strategy.

The affair immediately took on enormous proportions. The Christian population, excited by this monstrous attack, took sides with the victim's mother, and New requests were made to the court of Nyiregyhaza, who finally decided to act and committed his Notary Joseph de Bary, in charge of the investigation. It opened on May 13th, that is, six weeks later the disappearance of Esther. The Jews had had time to take their precautions and to make all evidence of the crime.

However, the investigating judge knew perfectly well how to to make do in the chaos and bring forth the light of darkness under which it was hoped to bury this affair.

II

Only one witness had seen everything: it was the sexton's son from the synagogue, Joseph Scharf, who himself was at among the accused. It was therefore against his father that the The young man was supposed to speak. A terrible situation. which has few parallels in the annals of the judiciary. A The thought of humanity has prompted legislators to savemaintaining family ties in criminal matters Nelles: the son must not accuse his father, or of the Less can remain silent when a serious accusation weighs on them on that respectable head. In Tisza-Eszlar, the truth was - above these considerations. The young Maurice Scharf He went all the way, without worrying about the pain he was experiencing. They embraced the heart.

On April 1, 1882, he had gone to the synagogue to to close the doors after the faithful had left at the end of the morning services. Absorbed in a a disturbing secret meeting, the priests Solomon Schwarz, Abraham Buxbaum and Leopold Braun, as well as the Jewish beggar Hermann Wollner, were then on the temple steps. Young Scharf was bothering them. invited him to leave, ordering him to leave the open doors, because they intended to to continue their devotions. They spoke the truth, the crime of blood being truly sanctifying for them.

Maurice therefore returned to his parents' house, without having closed the synagogue door. He was then between eleven o'clock and noon.

Joseph Scharf, the witness's father, was strolling along unsuspectingly cementing in her home. Suddenly, Esther Solymosy emerged onto the road coming from Ofalu.

Upon seeing him, the synagogue sexton said to his son :

— The Sabbath candlesticks remained on the table; and our law forbids us to remove them ourselves at-today. Call that young girl who is passing by the go and pray that she will do us this service.

Maurice hastened to carry out his father's orders.

Esther, without suspicion, entered the fatal house. She removed the Sabbath candlesticks, and, going up on a chair, she placed them on a sideboard; then she lost "a few minutes chatting with the sexton's wife.

It was then that the beggar Hermann Wollner, who had seen the arrival of his prey, entered the house to to seize it. In a sweet voice, he invited the young girl to accompany him to the synagogue, where he wanted to entrust her with an urgent task. The young Solymosy mani-Festa hesitated at first, but she let herself soon to train. Picking up the bag as she entered had placed it on a table, she followed the beggar to-

She went to the synagogue and entered with him. She was not supposed to more likely to get out alive.

A few minutes passed. Maurice, feeling a sort of unease about what was happening had emerged In the courtyard: confused moans and several cries: "Help! Help!" drew his attention towards the synagogue. He ran there. The door was securely iron-placed inside. Maurice, astonished, wanted to have the heart clear of the matter and to know what was going on: he looked through the keyhole. He almost recoiled in horror.

Poor Esther had been brutally thrown onto the temple paving, stripped of her clothes "until his shirt; » Abraham Buxbaum and Léopold Braun, the maintained them lying on the ground. The priest, Salo-My Schwarz, armed with the ritual knife, was giving him a A gash on his neck. Blood began to spurt. Then Braun, Buxbaum and Wollner lifted the young woman's body Christian woman, bowing her head downwards, and carefully, Schwarz collected it in two red earthenware bowls the blood that escaped in a crimson jet. The precious The liquid was then poured into a large vase.

Once the bleeding was done, the assistants got dressed again the young girl, while Samuel Lustig, Abraham Braun, Lazare Weisstein and Adolphe Junger, coming out of interior apartments, reached the forecourt and surroundedwould have the victim's body.

Maurice Scharfs returned home and was able to tell his parents what he had seen. His mother advised him to remain silent. Absolute. This recommendation proves that she knew about What it was about proves that the murder had been preprepared in advance and that young Solymosy had just detomber in a Jewish ambush.

An hour later, Hermann Wollner reappeared at the home of the Scharf couple; he ordered Maurice to go and close the doors. The job was done. The Young Scharf hastened to obey; having arrived at the churchyard, he prohe cast a curious glance inside the synagogue. All traces of the crime had disappeared: the bloodless body the victim's body was no longer there, and not even the blood had left no trace. He dared not pursue his concern any further. He closed the doors and, returning to his home parents, he noted that Schwarz, Buxbaum, the two Braum, Lustig, Weisstein and Junger, walked away in the direction of their home.

The bloody tragedy is over.

Such was the scene of the Riluel murder, as appears interrogations of Maurice Scharf and his declarants rations before the magistrates. The investigating judge, Joseph de Bary experienced some difficulty in penetrating the secret that the young man stubbornly kept, by fear of his fellow believers, as he confessed in the continued. But little by little, the truth had unfolded despite his repugnances: lies, reticence, returns to Back then, nothing had confused the investigating judge, and he had managed, without violence of any kind, to obtain the truth entire from Maurice's mouth.

And from now on, the young man will not fail to heed the call of conscience, he will always proclaim the reality of murder and the accuracy of the details.

III

Other witnesses, without revealing all the circumstances-However, the erinem's pronouncements had confirmed the account of young synagogue caretaker. Let's mention the widows.

Etienne Lengyel and Jean Pekète: Esther's cries were having reached the outside of the temple. These cries, heard by These women remained unexplained until the moment
where Maurice Scharf lifted the veil and deciphered the enigma Joseph Papp, passing by the temple around noon,
heard someone moaning inside, and saw at the door
two Jews who were looking outside as if they had-sent keeps watch.

To make sure that the young man's answers were completely true and he had not lied, the Judge Bary brought him before him and addressed him thus:
“Maurice, you lied: Esther is alive and is in the
"The next room." – Maurice replied: "The one to whom His throat has been cut, he can no longer rise from death and Because of this, Esther cannot be here.

The crime was therefore obvious.

Towards the end of May, everyone believed that the young Esther Solymosi had been cowardly lured into an in-infamous ambush, that a conspiracy had been hatched at the advance between the members of the Jewish synagogue of Tisza-Eszlar, that the victim had been unjustly sacrificed trusted in the horrible customs of the Talmudic scholars, and that his carefully collected blood had been used in the making unleavened bread.

The tribunal itself could not escape these convictions.
actions that were obvious to everyone, given the clear evidence of the crime
was striking, Nevertheless the actions of the Jews con-led to inaction for some time, and it was after this that...
After much hesitation, he decided to take action.

The bloodletting had taken place on April 1, 1882. At the end of the
In May, nine defendants were already in custody.
hands of justice. On June 24, the investigation became more complicated-quait by the comedy played with the corpse stolen from the hó-Marmaros hospital, a comedy that we will shape in the following paragraph. It was only on July 95th, four months after the crime, the Salo- sacrificers my Schwarz, Adolphe-Léopold Braun, and Abraham Buxbaum were referred to the chamber of indictments charged as found guilty, "following unassailable testimonies and their own confessions precise, detailed, and corroborated by the circumstances, to have, on April 1, 1882, in the courtyard of the synagogue of Tisza-Eszlar, killed the young Solymosi, with the circumsclaim that death was caused by the cut made to the the victim's neck with the ritual knife of the sacrificer, and that the victim had been lured into an ambush. These are the exact words of the referral order.

On the same day, they were sent back to the chamber of Mr. Joseph Scharf and his wife were indicted. Lina, née Muller, Messrs. Adolphe Junger, Abraham Braun, Samuel Lustig, Lazare Weissteim, Emmanuel Taub, as accomplices to the crime.

In November, at least, the first category was addedgorie was the name of the beggar that had finally been discovered. The indictment reads:

“4? Hermann Wollner, aged thirty-six, Jewish, married, penniless, a beggar, homeless, not Unable to read or write, already convicted, imprisoned since November 23, 1882, as a result of the investigation.

Finally, a third category was created, where we read the names of Anselme Vogel, Jankel Smilowics, David Hersko, Martin Groos, Ignace Klein. The latter resThey were released on bail. They were accused of having obstructed the course of justice and attempted to annihilate The investigation has already begun.

We need to say a few words about the obstacles raised to legal action. It's phenomenal.

IV

One of Israel's favorite practices is... to buy the judges. They didn't fail to try it out in a circconsistency is also important. If Francois de Kornis, prePresident of the court of Nyireghyhaza, and Joseph de Bary they scorned the prizes offered to them and spat on the threats with which they are overwhelmed, keeping intact Their reputation for being integrated, others easily lend the ear to the compelling reasons that the Jews possessed in abundance. The conduct of all the magistrates in This affair is not worthy of praise.

The ordinary investigating judge was Melchior Booth;
From the very beginning of the affair, the minister had taken away his direction of the investigation. Shortly afterwards, he committed suicide-said. The Pesti Naplo of Pesth says about you:

"Booth was a man of a certain age and struggled" for a long time against financial difficulties. During
In the Tisza-Eszlar case, rumors were circulating that he had promised the Jews that the affair would be hush up, and the government learned at the same time that the Jews were pooling their resources secretly. The Attorney General of the Royal Court of Pesth immediately delegated his deputy to open a instruction against Booth. This instruction was for following the latter's suicide. The awakening was brought about by the
the fact that the Jews were always warned in advance of the place where the police were supposed to go to do their searches. The fact of seeing the sequestration on the contributions from the Jews and to see the substitute sent from Pest will deploy great energy in the new instruction appears to have been the determining cause of the suicide of the first investigating judge.

Other pitiful defections are reported: of all Over time, Jewish gold has corrupted many consciences.
prosecutor-lawyer (the Advocate General) Szeyffert, is conhe behaved in a cowardly manner, unworthy of his office; his his bias towards the Jews went so far that he wanted to to declare to the witnesses that their confessions had been torn away by violence. In any case, he sought to hindering Bary's work. An appeal to the
The Hungarian chamber, regarding this sorry fellow, remained without effect on the Minister of Justice. The Jewish press reserved all her favors for this corrupt judge.

On the contrary, all the insults were heaped upon the head of the upright judges. The investigating judge and the presiding judge.
The court's critics were mocked, defamed, and vilified.
in the bad newspapers, in the clandestine papers-tines, in the pamphlets. The Jews covered them with coarse mud and with revolting cynicism they attacked-restore their honor in order to tear them away from their

a responsibility they managed with too much fairness. More than one Sometimes, threats reached these magistrates. furious, but unable to stop them in their work.

Esther's mother herself was not spared from their intrigues, Joseph Lichtman, — whose brother col-carried everywhere the lie that young Solymosi had was found in the village of Nagyfalu, — wanted to force

1 The entire Nyiregyhaza bar association voted him public blame and —
He asked in vain for his removal.

the widow Solynoshi to accept as her own another young girl, subtly insinuating to him that the Jews would give a thousand florins, the day Esther would found, that is to say where the mother would acknowledge having found his daughter. Naturally, Lichimann brazenly denied-
This is done in court.

A Jewish woman made a similar attempt to cor-Breakup. One day she approached Esther's mother, telling her saying: "Dear woman Solymosi, how much money does not Wouldn't you receive it if your daughter reappeared? — The indi-
The poor mother's gnation put an end to this infamous thing trafficking. The Jews resorted to other means to to mislead public opinion and destroy the trial.

From all sides, they spread the rumor that Maurice Scharf, the main witness, was a maniac who
No trust could be placed in us.

They maintained a relationship with the imprisoned butchers secret and illicit correspondence.

They wanted to steal the trial documents by breaking in
by breaking into the investigating judge's house.

They changed the lock on the synagogue, in order to to demonstrate that it was impossible to see inside through the Keyhole. Quite a significant detail!

Finally they stole a young girl, dressed her in
They took Esther's clothes and had her fished out at their convenience.
in the Theiss. This attempt cost them 5,000 florins.

y

Immediately after the murder, Esther's body had been taken from the synagogue and hidden in a hut straw that was very close. He stayed there until the night of Thursday, April 6. As young Scharf had not Nothing was said yet, no one had the idea to go and look

The young girl disappeared in this place. On the night of April 6th, Hutelist, a Jew from Tisza-Eszlar, who until then had not implicated in the affair, he received orders to transport Tisza-Dada, a package, which contained the body of the
The young victim. He didn't know what he was carrying.

What was done with this corpse in Tisza-Dada?

Everything suggests that he was thrown into the Theiss. More Later, some fishermen found in the river mud a A woman's body, naked and headless. For most, it was the body of the real Esther: the Jews had detached the head from the trunk so that the cuts made to the victim's neck. But the Talmudic-
The saints refused to agree, and they led the authorities following them. The mutilated corpse of Tisza-Dada demonstrated the existence of a crime and not a suicide, as the Hungarian Jews claimed. Also concentrated are they focusing all their efforts on gaining recognition for the young woman?
Solymosi in a corpse found on June 19th in Tisza-Dober.

It was perhaps the fifteenth Solymosi. The first In the days since the disappearance, it was claimed that they were looking for her everywh
the missing girl: she had been seen in several places rights at once, at the same instant. A matter of overzealousness. The Jews had such a desire to save their dear corelilegionnaires that they easily found the young sacrifice-trusted; they had double vision voluntarily. Joseph Lichtmann, a grain merchant in Tisza-Eszlar, compromised in the matter, had, from the very first news of the disappearance and to mislead public opinion, telegraphed Lloyd of Pesth that the young Solymosi
had been found.

The newspapers in the pay of the Jews—and they are named—breux — only announced the murky affair to proclaim the girl's return. Without giving any details about the disappearance, they were wrongly publishing and misrepresenting towards news reports announcing today that the young Esther was found to be in good health in Warasdin.
tomorrow that his body had been found 40 leagues away.

Immense folly. This folly, taken to the extreme,
had dispatches like this one inserted, which we let us note in the /New free press of Vienna of the June 20:

"The intact body has just been recovered from the Theiss and perfectly recognizable from M'* Solymosi. A crowd Israelites, who rushed to the scene as soon as the first news reached them, have
His identity was confirmed.

Thus the Jewish reporters of this newspaper find intact and perfectly recognizable, the body of a young girl, who disappeared the day before Passover, that is to saysaid 80 days earlier. These details indicate the quathe nature of the telegram and the goodwill of those who they inserted it.

Let us excuse them, however: the corpse found in Tisza-Dober wore the very same clothes as M'* Solymosi Wasn't that the decisive proof of her identity? She she even carried on her arm the bag in which she was enclosed
the painting bought in Eszlar on April 1st, and, thing Strange! This painting after three months' stay in the water had not been destroyed by the absorbent power of this liquid.

This detail alone would be enough to prove that the corpse in question-
The tion was not that of Esther. We have many others evidence. This corpse certainly belonged to a a woman in her twenties, not a young girl

of fourteen years. The conformation of the demon- thorax
The fact that this woman was wearing a corset, Esther didn't notice.
had never worn it; the feet and hands were very small,
With her nails meticulously manicured, Esther was a peasant woman who he hardly took care of himself; his feet had corns, caused by the use of shoes, Esther would alwaysbarefoot days; this corpse was that of a person
Although she died of tuberculosis, Esther never suffered from poisoning.

Irine.

Finally, Esther was behaving in an exemplary manner —
like all the victims offered to the Talmudic Molochthat — and on the corpse, the autopsy found traces of sexual excesses; which was not at all surprising, since-that the deceased was a prostitute who died in hospital of Marmaros, a girl whose body had been stolen or bought by the Jews, to play this disgraceful comedy and to trade on something sacred, on the pain of a mother. They hoped that the widow Solymosi, upon seeing her daughter's clothes, she would throw herself tearfully onto the dear corpse and would pay no attention to the face that one presented himself to her embraces.

Nothing of the sort happened. The mother recognized the clothes perfectly.
of her Esther, but she stubbornly refused to recognize-to give birth to her daughter in this deflowered corpse. The false Esther was not recognized by any of her relatives; there was only _ Jews to certify his identity. Most of the me-doctors likewise refused to see Esther in the cadasubmitted to their examination.

Despite so much obvious evidence, the Jews intrihardly skillfully enough for a second test was deemed necessary, and five months later it was necessary to proto give in to the exhumation of the corpse.

According to a ruling by the Nydregyhaza court, dated

The exhumation, scheduled for November 22nd, took place on December 7th.
confirmed that the body was indeed the one that had been found on June 19th, in the Theiss. The result was disastrous for Jews: again it was declared that it could not be there Esther's body. The shape and arrangement of her teeth, the conformation of the head and bones, everything indicated a
a person aged at least eighteen; development of the belly, the shape of the body and other signs allow- - were going to declare that the person had even more eighteen years old.

Of twenty witnesses, two-thirds affirmed that-
The body found in the Theiss was not that of the young Solymosi. Those who recognized her were not of her private life and had only seen her in passing, without to retain a deep memory of his features. Several deceived in a very crude manner, believing Recognizing Esther by her blue eyes: the real one

Esther Solymosi had dark eyes, and, what is more Strongly, the corpse had black eyes as well. What a con- What trust can one have in such witnesses, who are... eager to assert, with eyes closed and without any control, What will please their constituents?

One last detail clearly demonstrates the falseness of their recognition. The unanimous admission was that Esther was more. smaller than her sister Sophie, and it only came to her eyes. Sophie's height was measured: it turned out to be... 144 centimeters; we could barely count up to the eyes 134 centimeters. However, the body of the dead woman was recovered in The Theiss was 144 centimeters long.

Unnecessary comments, aren't they?

The Jews' cunning failed on all sides. They had beautiful, spewing insults and invectives against the judges, the doctors, witnesses; they were able to momentarily unsettle those who were actively involved in the affair, but for those of us who judge this adventure in the calm of the distance, it is impossible for us to deny the bad- the true faith of the Jews, and not to condemn the unworthy comedy which they then played in Hungary.

But where did this pseudo-Esther come from?

We said it. The corpse of a prostitute, Flora Gavril had been stolen from the Marmaros hospital and, passing from hand to hand, it had come to sink opposite from Tisza-Eszlar. Many Jews took part in this translation: one alone would not have the courage to do everything If they dare, they share the work and everything becomes easy. The more compromised individuals there are, the more they hope to be safe; a matter of race.

Two residents of Eszlar transported the corpse in a car from Marmaros to Tartany. There he was handed over into the hands of Jankel Smilovics, who, for 800 florins, he promised to deliver it to the desired location. He- he prepared for this purpose for his friend David Hersko, who was driving a raft on the Theiss. This one promised, for 120 florins, to let the body flow in front of Tisza-Eszlar.

On June 14, the corpse was found dressed only in a shirt was handed over to him. Not far from Tisza, a woman in her thirties- A dozen years old appeared on the riverbank and reached the raft.

using a boat, and handed him a package containing
They had enclosed Esther Solymosi's clothes; they had taking care to keep them. In the evening, he hastened to put them on the body that had been entrusted to him, tied to his left arm, as recommended, the bag containing the paint, and plunged everything into the waters of the river.

Ten days later, Jewish sinners unintentionally threw—silently — one may well doubt it — their nets to

E [d pr =, if * * -- T x 5 - - Tl to Ü
2 = " ; €- 1 E .
a.. =a Ax i VA, * M Re du t AE wat s Poy uw uc" d T i cot e "e - > " 5 9 Wie: a T ica -r z. er
-d -= - ToGe a ora, 2 ea ae cee 2° -- a ave mm - 7, e
- - 7 £i gus -2.. ms n
= = a = A SEES NS P se Ls =. a COE dci sb - im + r 1 > t
e He a ÈS A ae Die eG Thue ad = + + -- me Xd Pe ds d rni.
ind AT NDA E "Le ar at To ae 2 —— ets,
1 =- > mh - 4 = Ltée - PIG gn eee it
A -- ns un el wh & ar M UNES ES aci — -- À 21i ung
has

*
Tam E, T. nale A mo * e ia in D STATE fe. iW
Ries DOES l=. =

+ = = —— in be c
-
-a -A > Dump. rae vs ~ 7 LI DERE l te — + i — cos bur = + [I wi oS me re-rmei-
- -

*
t. ATP ie a JUS avn mize peas dice

See oo US. dus fuus suse ge ea que lé
"dae Te ue ue, ft uec up meer dela
fuut Caes dox cup ce qup. A pint
ME S» nnde. d BS AE IR DINE Éd Et. 2425
Se uec. AE Se pee dm Wes See ei B at se

ee - ~ — = dm me to

SR OURS guul c RC net, SE Ce IL. est pius LS MAUR dx qup. o» This emusmug. "tac e con
- ?
GPS. Oer SD gy Ue ea die Sem cop ums. JS cm
— Q1 nu 7 ST ge caux smnesx ax apts 2 2 acntrèle, se du (9 * WX VL e nimes
gH SER MD o nael a din de leur
—HEIC. od mb Sn um Saree S pius (02003 RUM C LS os mod TILI II ATX wants.

eo ids & cca say of
To io HN 0Ctoconmsoni usm BELL wants barely

IT.
Cc 7 a, oae dà Doc meéchesde"-

-

—

AND.

/
*
4

Li

There

d

,
d.
"n
H
laugh
d

]

` t cc ae &oox RU ? Re JS

to (VM INS C TL AAS a M tov. AN: NN 4 i'm

those who were actively involved in the affair, but for us who judge this adventure in the calm of the distance, it is impossible for us to deny the bad-

the true faith of the Jews, and not to condemn the unworthy comedy which they then played in Hungary.

But where did this pseudo-Esther come from?

We said it. The corpse of a prostitute,
Flora Gavril had been stolen from the Marmaros hospital and, passing from hand to hand, it had come to sink opposite from Tisza-Eszlar. Many Jews took part in this
- translation: one alone would not have the courage to do everything
If they dare, they share the work and everything becomes easy.
The more compromised individuals there are, the more they hope to be in safety; a matter of race.

Two residents of Eszlar transported the corpse in a car from Marmaros to Tartany. There he was handed over into the hands of Jankel Smilovics, who, for 800 florins, he promised to deliver it to the desired location. He-he prepared for this purpose for his friend David Hersko, who was driving a raft on the Theiss. This one promised, for 120 florins, to let the body flow in front of Tisza-Eszlar.

On June 11th, the corpse was found dressed only in a shirt was handed over to him. Not far from Tisza, a woman in her thirties-

A man of about ten years old appeared on the riverbank and reached the raft.
| T from a boat and handed him a package containing

Esther Solymosi's clothes; we had had in the evening, he hastened to put it on Es had confided, attached to his left arm, had recommended, the bag containing collected could in the waters of the Mifs involuntarily threw-» ter - their nets at the exact spot where the body had fallen, and, full of joy, they brought back the remains of Esther Solymosi. And that was that.

VI

The conclusion of this case was a long time coming.

It seems we were afraid of the outcome. We needed some time to prepare it as the princes wished of the Jewish Quarter. It took time to choose the courtyard malleable enough to be led; it required some time to weigh on the minds of the judges; it required some time for the Jews to choose good defenders; it It took time to raise the necessary funds success of the large enterprise; it took time for to bribe false witnesses and teach them their roles.

The Levantine Jews even have a proverb that The entire nation knows how to put it into practice. Time saved. They say, the matter is closed. That was their tactic in the tragedy of Tisza-Eszlar.

Esther Solymosi! had disappeared on April 4, 1882: Four weeks later, the Justice system believed it had the assassins... sins. On July 29, 1882, the investigating judge sent the case before the indictment chamber, which conclut, in October, to the referral of the case to the Nyiregyhaza court. She herself was only seized of it nine months later.

The old proverb was proven true, and they were... Things dragged on. Then they complicated the matter of t Universe of August 5, 1883.

---

in such a way that public opinion no longer recognized itself in it. That's why they bribed adventuresses who... They knew how to pass for M''* Solymosi. There were Solymosi in will; it was raining. The same day, the JVouvelle The free press found her in Boglar, the Tageblatt supported that she had returned to Tisza, and the Universal Gazette The person from Vienna claimed that she had been seen in Nyiregyhaza.

But the living are subject to contradiction; the dead, They don't speak. That's for sure. We had some Of the living Solymosi, there were many dead ones. The Jews realized the expedient a little late, but they showed goodwill and sought to redeem quality over quantity. This new comedy had a dozen paintings: the last one was played with the corpse of Flora Gavril, the prostitute who died of anesthesia me at the Marmaros hospital.

We pooled our resources to pay the debts of the first judge of the investigation, Melchior Booth, whose suicide precipitated It broke a beautiful plank of salvation under the feet of the Jews. Then they vilified Bary, the new judge whose incorruptibility The ruptibility was frightening; the pro-Jewish press roused Europe around the body found in the Theiss; a The great professor of Pesth declared, by examination of tibias, in a third autopsy which took place 300 days later after death, that this corpse was indeed that of Esther; the accused retracted their initial confessions; the witnesses Those in favor of the defense crowded around the bar of the court. was ready; the trial began.

It began just 335 days after the dismissal of the accused in the pre-trial chamber, 435 days After the victim's disappearance, we had won everything. as soon as possible; in France, it would certainly have been dozing.

The Hungarians are more tenacious. As soon as the announcement The court had spread, the small town of Niyregyhaza It was literally packed. Journalists, reporters from all the European press, from Jews of every nation, anti-Semites from all countries, mere curious onlookers in Large numbers of people gathered there. In the crowd Several members of parliament were noted in the Hungarian Reichstag, among others Mr. Onody, who had just published a book on the trial during and Mr. Victor Islokzy, the valiant leader of the anti-Semitic party in Hungary, which had vigorous- The government has pushed this matter to parliament. ment had filed a lawsuit against him on this matter; he had just to emerge unscathed, which was a major humiliation brought to the Jews and their friends. These two members of the Hungarian parliament with several of their political friends Ticks attended the trial proceedings.

It was no small task. The trial, which began around mid-June, and did not end until August 3rd;
During this interval, there was a hearing every day.
holidays. There were 32 hearings, during which the witnesses for the prosecution and the defense, including the aforementioned confessions Teeth were recorded in 245 interrogations.
They all passed before the court. The figures show the importance of this process: how many people were moved lied by the actions of a few ragged Semites who,
in an unknown village, they had murdered a girl Christian. The entire Israelite nation felt responsible-sand and stood up to defend them.

This defense was fierce. Considerable sums were devoted to it.
enormous. Already, long before the time for debates had begun.
stunned, they had promised 200,000 francs to three leading figures of the Hungarian parliament, to make them accept the defense
The accused; false witnesses had been bought; the setup

The display of corpses had been costly. But above all,
During the course of the debates, money came from the cities Jewish women from Germany were plentiful in Nyiregyhaza. In six
In the following weeks, the post office delivered the following sums:

Sent from Frankfurt am Main... 80,000 marks.

From Berlin...... Pea ee oe css. 23,400 —
From Posen ..... VERSUM I OLOR US 14,130 —
From Cassel. oii es Ehre e EV + 1.420 —
From Bromberg....... rer ee at 500 —
From Breslau iris. . 4,350 —
From Mannheim........... ,....,... 1,400 —

That's more than 152,000 francs, paid at the cash register.
on behalf of several German cities, and addresses
sées to dealers, traffickers and money handlers Jews, whose comings and goings in the county were highly noticed.

To this initial sum, 55,100 francs must be added.
coming from Paris, Boulogne-sur-Mer, Marseille and Lyon; and 600 francs from London; finally, the reserve brought by the three delegates of the Alliance Israélite Universelle, reserve, the figure of which, unknown, was certainly considered maple. "There was," says Fromm in The Universe, "of what to pay the debts of all the Melchior Booths of all Hungary.” — These three delegates, who were passing themselves off as For reporters, one was from Paris, the other from Vienna, the third one from Frankfurt. The latter was equipped with a Letter of credit for 250,000 francs. The entire Jewish community had a vested interest in the acquittal of the defendants.

Alongside these fabulous sums, emphasis was placed on the influence of Catholics, and especially that of princes of the Church. They were once again invoking the famous bulls of Innocent IV, which the Roman theologians of the fifteenth century declared them apocryphal and which, moreover, did not in no way defend the Jews against the accusation of ritual murder: the Pope merely forbids Christians from They are unjustly molested. Nevertheless, the Jews they do not have a ritual trial that they do not immediately invoke the null authority of this writing, as if a pope of the 11th century could assert that such a Jew of the 19th century would be Incapable of committing such a misdeed! That's perfectly ridiculous. The Jews know this well, so they hasten to to call into question the current pope. The Jewish Archives from Paris asserted that the cardinal secretary of state had sent a note to the Rome Monitor declaring "The accusation that accuses the Jews to use Christian blood for their festivals Easter.

`

The statement was so precise, writes Father Olivier, that Public opinion was taken in by it without realizing it. authenticity. A first denial from the Moniteur de Rome alone was not enough to dispel the error: one was needed the second, which coincided with the final period of the trial from Tisza-Eszlar. The discussion had had time to to gain in scope and fervor: we had seen all sorts of people intervened, and the Bishop of Fulda was involved. met next to an anonymous abbot who was writing in Voltaire, while D" Justus of Paderborn con-tredisait in Le Figaro, the Viennese correspondent of Same newspaper. There are defenders who are worse than enemies and votes that were all too obviously bought ...are more disastrous than wise opposition.

The groundwork had been laid, public opinion was well overexcited and, above all, very confused; the trial commenca.

The court consisted of Mr. de Kornis, president, and The assessors, Messrs. Russu and Gruden. The seat of the

The public ministry was headed by the Attorney General. Mr. Szeiffert, who positioned himself more as a defender of Jews, instead of remaining in their role as accusers.

He was to be assisted in this task by lawyers who sat on the defense bench. They were M Eoet-Voes, famous for her legal acumen and her talent for im-Proposal, Szekely, Funtack, who knew so well how to insinuate his arguments in the minds of the judges, Neumann and Friedmann who had in their hands the marvelous arsenal of rabbinic casuistry. These last three were Jewish.

One hundred and fifteen witnesses crowded around the bar; the deposition written version of sixteen others was available to judges and twenty-seven voluminous files were to be submitted to the court.

These figures can give an idea of the confusion which was to reign in the minds of the men in charge to study and appreciate such an avalanche of documentaries ments. This confusion did not cease during the course of the debates, where the most scandalous and most im-

The predicted events occurred.

The Jews dared to produce witnesses for the defense which had only been found after thirteen months of searching; We had to put a good price on their loquacity. The mother testified against her daughter who had been sold to the Jews, and who confessed it. A carter whom his master had sent on an errand and only returned in the evening, claimed to have heard the woman Huri call Esther his maid, around three o'clock in the afternoon; then he he retracted and confessed that he had spoken that way to mis-to steal the gold that the Jews had offered him. Two others False witnesses committed suicide before the end of the trial. A policeman, bribed by the Jewish man, had undertaken a investigation without a mission and claimed to have obtained from Maurice Scharf's admission that his first statements were nothing but a pile of lies; he quickly forced to retract.

Several audiences were filled by the discus-
doctors' statements, who spoke of extravagant things gloves, completely unrelated to the matter. He was
It is perfectly established that the body found in Tisza-Dober
It was not Esther's.

At each new hearing, it was necessary to...
interrogate witnesses who recanted or confirmed were referring to old statements. Scenes from a violent extreme intensity testified to the paroxysm of rage
to which tempers had flared: the Grossberg couple spat in the face of another witness and were for
For this, they were sentenced to two days in prison. The prosecutor-
Mr. Szeyffert even went so far as to demand prosecution.
against Mr. Onody, his former classmate, who, in this quality, had criticized him for his bias, upon meeting him in the street. Scharf flew into a rage against his son, to the point of throwing himself on him to beat him and perhaps to render him unable to speak and accuse Thus the Jews, his coreligionists. Fanaticism has bonds more sacred than those of family.

The defense lawyers asked the witnesses brutales about insidious questions; they did not let them
Take a moment to breathe. One of them, Friedmann, pushed insolence and cruelty to the point of asking M"* Solymosi if she had cried at the moment when the
The clothes had been identified as belonging to his daughter.

"Do I know?" replied the unfortunate mother. "Don't rain-"
Am I not always re-evaluating? Is my life not destined for...
Crying ever since my daughter was murdered?

Amidst these upheavals and reversals,
Two notes dominate, high, unbreakable, unshakenlabels. One is the voice of the mother mourning her daughter and accusing the Jews of having murdered her. Invariably She answers all the questions as if it were the first time.
day: "Gentlemen of the court, this is my mother's heart
Who's to say that the Jews sitting in the 'defendant's bench
They killed my daughter. Jews came and offered me a lot money, if I can silence the voice of my heart.

I cannot.

The other note is the voice of the young Maurice Scharf.
who rises up to accuse the Jews of the murder of which he
He was the witness. He did not waver for a single moment, either in front of the court, either in the reconstruction of the scene of the murder in Tisza, despite the means of intimidation which We're using the defense bench, despite the violent insults with which he is heaped by the four main defendants;
despite the insults they hurl at him (one of them will (even spitting in his face); despite the acts of violence acts of violence which are committed against him require the intervention of the guard, with the weapon
white, to restore order.

Truth is found in the mouths of the simple and the
They were small. The violence of the Jews condemned them.

Faced with the witnesses' very precise allegations, the defense attorneys
They could only offer feeble arguments. Such a
The accusation, they said, stemmed from unspeakable hatred.
of race; the progress of civilization did not allow no longer stopping there, and only fools could to still believe in the existence of a bloody rite among the Jews; finally, the corpse found at Tisza-Dada was indeed that of Esther, although it had been demonstrated on several occasions-Quite obviously the opposite.

And they stopped there; they had nothing more serious.

All sensible men expected a condemnation-
nation.

Well! all sensible men were mistaken; this
It was an acquittal that brought this famous trial to a close.

On Friday, August 3rd, the sentence was pronounced: all
The defendants were dismissed from the proceedings, and They were even granted compensation. The costs of The costs of the trials were borne by the State.

There was a blatant denial of justice there: the reason
The state had crushed the law. The Rothschilds had threatened to destroy Hungary's credit if the case does not did not end in an acquittal. Minister Tisza, the Jewish servant, had himself done several times

Nyiregyhaza's journey to prepare for this was a secret. Rothschild was pleased with himself, hence the acquittal. This translated into a significant rise on the Vienna stock exchange. pronounced on the Hungarian annuity. This fact has its elosequence.

The final word in this trial must be this declaration. lion of a high-ranking person closely connected to the minister of the justice system saying to a member of the Reichstag: "Fromthe interest of the Hungarian state and the entire Austrian monarchy The female dog imperiously demands that one cannot demonto examine and ascertain the truth of the ritual bloodletting, because we are engaged on all sides with the Jews and under many reports, it is impossible for us to to move on from them.

VII

Another fact shows how much the Jews attacked They were at Nyiregyhaza's trial. The only newspapers Vienna spent, during the course of the debates, 1,000 florins for telegrams sent from Nyiregyhaza. The foreign press spent 20,000 florins. A telegram was sent. Phia, nearly a million words. The Ischia disaster, Note that the Universe has not so much occupied the telegraph than the vagabond Wollner and the swindler Weisstein.

It was therefore with immense joy that all this The press welcomed the acquittal. Happiness The success somewhat misled the pro-Jewish journalists. when they announced to the whole world that the dismissal The accused had been welcomed by the entire population. with the utmost calm.

Nothing could be further from the truth. On the contrary, the greatest Unrest was then sweeping through all of Hungary and the The people threatened to take justice into their own hands, by applying The guilty will receive the punishment of retaliation.

The trial had barely ended when the lawyer Eoét-Voés and his good friend, Prosecutor Szeyffert, had to to leave Nyiregyhaza in haste: they departed, accompanied accompanied by everyone's curses and pursued with blows of stones by the population who set fire to the Jewish houses and wanted to throw them into the flames young Israelite girls to avenge Esther Solymosy.

Almost immediately!, the shock was felt right-

'See the Correspondent of Nov. 1883.

249 THE MYSTERY OF BLOOD

than at the other end of Hungary, in Pressburg, a city of, however, very gentle manners and who did not obey certain training to no anti-Semitic slogan, but to a natural feeling of repulsion for the savages, sacrificial Tisza-Eszlar ficateurs.

The same was soon true in Prague, which nevertheless nothing in common with the Hungarians.

In the vicinity of Nyiregyhaza, especially, the exaltation was at its peak. The famous sexton of the synagogue, Joseph Scharf, having made the mistake of showing himself at Pesth, in the aftermath of his arrest, found himself besieged in a hotel by an angry mob.

And yet, we are no longer in the Middle Ages, we cannot accuse Catholic fanaticism. Hungary modern professes absolute freedom of conscience and too often shows a shameful indifference in this matter of religion. "Isn't there in Hungary," he rightly said a letter addressed to the Journal de Genève of July 26, 1883, are there not in Hungary non-united, Unitarians, and even Anabaptists? And do they complain? of our intolerance? And despite the progress of the famous 19th century, can we be glad that there is no longer elsewhere than in our country of ignorance, superstition and fanaticism ism?

It was necessary to wrest this people from its tolerant indifreference, all the horror of the Semites' conduct. The The consciousness of the people has awakenings that are unknown to them. that of governments.

The people of Hungary protested against the acquittal. scandalous, but the Tisza ministry remained impassive: the The Jews were happy, what more could they want?

In vain the lawyer of Ms. Solymosy, M. Szalay, after an eloquent plea on behalf of his client, he interjected-

AMONG JEWS OF ALL TIMES 243

did he appeal the judgment that dismissed her claims?
Despite his indications, his conclusions were successively rejected.
by the Royal Table (Court of Appeal) and by the Royal Curia (Supreme Court). The reason of state had spoken: he was There was no point in rebelling against his rulings; one had to resigned to being crushed,

end

EM

b»

V.

CHAPTER XI

THE BLEEDING OF BRESLAU
(1888)

Last July, a ritual bloodletting provided new fuel to the anti-Semitic movements
ticks that are emerging in Germany.

On July 21st, Max Bernstein, a young man

bland twenty-five years old, born in Koenigsberg, softa, that is to say-to say, candidate for rabbinical examination at the Talmudic College of Breslau, was on the promenade along the moats, in this last town. There, he noticed a handsome young child playing.

quietly. It was little Severin Hacke, son of a Catholic pharmacy assistant of the city.

And, as he considered it, a hellish thought germinated.
in the brain of the rabbinical softa; he no longer leaves

He stares at the child, wanting to make him his prey. Severin enters.

in a urinal, on the promenade; the rabbi candidate

He follows him there. And it's as he's leaving there that he approaches him.

In a soothing voice, he asks the poor little If he likes chocolate and candy. Yes of the child. Immediately, Bernstein gives him some pfennings and sends him to buy chocolate lozenges in a neighboring shop. Young Severin, thinking that It was a commission entrusted to him by the young monsir, conscientiously brings him back the purchase he has just to do. Bernstein gives him some lozenges, and the enbetting on him to follow her, she promises him cherries when they will have arrived at the home of the rabbi candidate.

)

The abduction was complete. All that remained was to drive the victim at the destination.

Bernstel and the child walk side by side: the Jew occasionally passes a lozenge to his companion and thus encourages him to follow it to the end. Finally, we arrives at the kidnapper's residence.

There, Bernsleim sat little Severin down on a sofa and orders him to take off his clothes, promising him strength sweets after the operation was completed. Enticed by The child complies with these promises. Immediately the candidate-The rabbi seized a penknife with a very sharp and long blade, and With this weapon, he sustained several wounds in the the genitals of little Hacke. Blood spurted out, and the The Jew collects it with blotting paper which soon becomes |. completely impregnated.

The child is frightened.

"You don't need to be afraid," said Bernsteily. The sedative; I only want a little blood.

When his desire was satisfied, the softa had the en- dressed again fant and sent him away, giving him some sweets, a few pfennings, and ordering him to remain silent about everything the adventure. The child still satisfies him on this point and tut. But a few days later, the father of young Hacke noticed the traces of the incisions, his son questioned, suspected the truth, and went to the gentleman's home BernsteilQ to ask him for explanations. Don't

Unable to find his accommodation, he went to the prefecture.
police to recount what had happened.

An investigation was launched. With the audacity that characterized-

The accused, having raised the issue of race, tried to deny it or take refuge under a nervous irresponsibility that is beginning to become fashion.

"If I did that," he said, "it couldn't have happened to me."
than in a delusion of the mind.

— So you yourself admit the possibility of this happening?
the president asks.

— Yes, since it was in all the newspapers.

At that time, the matter was still secret and no
The newspaper hadn't informed the public. The poor rabbi had indeed suffered a mental lapse, a lapse of reason liars who can no longer extricate themselves from the midst of complicated threads of their intrigues. His half-confession, his contradictions seemed suspicious to the investigating judges.
ters. Opposite the evasive Softa, they placed his victim. The Young Severin, for his part, showed not the slightest hesitation-tion, the slightest failure, the slightest deviation: with with the ingenuousness of his eight years, he recounted purely and simply simply the attack on the Jew.

The case came before the pre- on February 21st.
First chamber of the Breslau criminal court. The defense attorney for the accused, Mr. Sternberg, of the bar of Breslau sought to obtain a closed hearing, under the pretext that it was an attack on morals. The Jews wanted-they were, as usual, keeping quiet about the matter.
But the king's prosecutor carefully dismissed the motive alleged; for him, the real motive was a bloodletting ritual, a ritual bloodletting on a Christian child
tien, for the needs of the Israelite cult. Also demo-
He was sentenced to one year in prison.

Bernstein's lawyer tried hard to cast doubt on the such clear and precise allegations from young Hacke; he further claimed that none could be found plausible reason for the possible use of blood which allegedly shot the supposed victim.

The court, rejecting the claim of ritual bloodletting, has found Mr. Bernstein guilty of having carried out incisions on the victim's body and sentenced him to a simple three-month prison sentence. Furthermore, two of the judges who sat on the case were Jewish; This was certainly not a reason to increase the sentence.

One wonders why the court did not... We are fully entitled to the claims of the public prosecutor. We are obviously dealing with a ritual bloodletting. All external circumstances demonstrate this. Even the German newspapers, even the Jewish newspapers- Do vophiles, like the Berliner Tageblatt, find the A very lenient sentence, and do they believe the candidate? rabbi "capable of all sorts of ulterior motives".

"General astonishment and signs of disbelief," said the Reichsbote, welcoming the court's declaration that the motif is of no interest. We are thinking of the conto treat that a clear explanation of the motive had only put in In a state to judge the case soundly. It is all the more so It's incomprehensible that this point was left in the shadows. that the accused did everything to systematically extend a veil over the motives for his actions.

"The less the court concerned itself with these motives, the more:" There is great interest in it for the public. Because one finds, In many places, the belief that it exists among Jewish rabbis, a secret instruction from the Talmud, relative to the use of non-Jewish or non-Christian blood for a purpose ritual. That this instruction has been denied a thousand times in Jewish newspapers, that proves absolutely nothing; for they They deny everything that is disagreeable to Judaism. But No one can deny that the present case, considered

From this point of view, it does not acquire a very great importance "Rebuke."

The Gazette de la Croix also says with great Other German newspapers: "We do not attach any the importance of this matter in this respect that it appears to confirm the existence of a ritual superstition, which, on the Jewish side, has always been energetically denied, despite the famous Tisza-Eszlar trial and well

other similar incidents.

An examination of the intrinsic circumstances of the attack
moreover, there can be no room for doubt in the spirit of those who are initiated into the infamies of the synagogue gics.

The perforation of the part of the body on which The unmistakable sign was that the rabbi candidate persisted.
such as the domineering character of the Talmudic attack
dist. The circumcised men seem to have sworn all circumwax.

The method of collecting blood also strongly influences to think. It must have been very easy for Bernosleim to put the
He set fire to his blotting paper when it became soaked with blood:
He will thus have obtained the precious ash which is used today from today to the Jews to hide the Christian blood, ashes that they carefully preserve in the treasury of their synagogues gogues, which they employ in their religious ceremonies
gious, which they pass on to their foreign coreligionists Gers.

The Breslau attack must therefore be added to the long List of Talmudic assassinations. Begun with the
The list of the great victims of this ordeal continues.
up to the present day, and everything suggests that our ancestors nephews will not be deprived of the suggestive spectacle that exhibit fanaticism and religious blindness |

IH BOOK |

PHILOSOPHY OF FACTS

Digitized by Google

CHAPTER ONE

THE SECRET

But, one might say, if the bloody practices of the Jews
are as widespread as the ex-
Given the preceding historical context, why isn't it being discussed?
Never? How can such a horrible custom persist?

Is she unknown in the depths of oblivion?

That would be a child's question. It's perfectly natural.
that the Jews will not proclaim from the rooftops of the pres-equally repulsive descriptions; they will even do all their efforts to prevent such a belief from spreading in the field of advertising.

Let us outline the main means implemented in the Jewish world to preserve the mystery of blood
in the secrecy of the ghetto.

A first question arises. We said that Jews are obliged by rabbinic law to sacrifice
Christians in an annual sacrifice
wanted to prove this accusation with numerous facts historical facts that we have reported or pointed out.

But why doesn't the Talmud explicitly do so?
Reference to this law?

We have already noticed a line in the Talmud where it is said that "killing a Christian is an acceptable thing-
"unable to God." A Talmudic Jew will himself give us... to give a satisfactory answer.

During the trial of Trent, Moses was asked the old man:

— In what writings did the Jews learn these practices?
ticks?

"No document," he replied, "mentions these prescriptions."
tions: they are only known to the chiefs and the doctors who pass them on orally.

"That's the secret of the great Khakams," he repeated to us.
Mohammed-Effendi, in the Damascus trial.

The Jew Samuel speaks the same language; he adds that
The Jews of Italy have nothing on this subject in their written, but among the Jews who are beyond the sea
(the Jews of the East) these things are explicitly ordained born and fully explained in the books where the
The law is taught to them.

It is natural, in fact, that in the East one finds more complete and less altered copies of the Talmud.

It was there that it was composed, and the Jews were always there.
more powerful, more unjust, and less troubled, while whereas in the West it was almost always the opposite.
The children of Israel were often persecuted and hunted down.
like wild beasts: the popes, the kings, the emperors reurs have repeatedly had examined and condemned to fire their unholy books.

It was absolutely necessary to conceal it. So much the better.
Have dangerous extracts disappeared from the Talmud?
The code has been purged. But, frightening tenacity! The pages remained white, and when the father of the family, when the rabbi comes to this interruption in the text, he stops

he reads it aloud and explains it to the attentive listener
the doctrine that was supposed to fill the blank page. (Quoting) several editions of the Talmud where one encounters numerous of these places that remained white. It is not the same in this case.
In Eastern countries: the persecutions were less violent and the Jewish character was maintained there with all its elements. Nothing forced it to change and it kept all its savage hideousness.

In the complete rabbinic books, does it result from statements made by witnesses and defendants Thirty, we find all of them. The regulations relating to Bloody rites. That is the source of the hatred.
fierce hatred they harbor towards Christians, which inspires almost their entire religion. That's where they acquire the persuasion of being the true masters of the world that gave them left as an inheritance, if we are to believe their law. And that is Why not only do they have no scruples, but feel morally obligated to resume their well by all means and to cause the most damage-possible magic to their enemies, the goim, that is to say Christians, because they are enemies of God and unjust holders of all that has not yet fallen in Hebrew hands.

And from this hatred we move to a more important point-so much so, to the belief that the blood of an innocent Christian — because he is Christian and innocent — is absolutely necessary for the spiritual well-being of their souls; so that Among them, this one is considered the most pious and holiest.
who uses more Christian blood in his life.

They have strived to maintain this belief in the shadows, to hide it from the eyes of Christians;

^^

But the time has come to bring it into the light.
which he has lacked until now.

He

To hide their abominable superstitions, the Jews
they did not simply erase from their books the precepts that commanded them. They did more.
Often accusatory voices had been raised against them; a courageous pen had clearly formulated
the indecisive accusations; the four winds of heaven had The cries of the victims groaned in the ears of the believers. The opinion could be moved once again, and chase away shamefully the servants who have the foolish pretension of our masters say.

Several times already, in our century where the press
All-powerful, she stirs everything with the clamor she raises,
The Jews renewed their horrible sacrifices, and the
The press, usually so bold, fell silent in the face of the prevailing opinion.
Jewish reaction: the cry of abomination has expired on the lips where the caressing hand of the Jewish bankers poured a sweet nectar made from the tears of the poor and the bread of the disabled man. The almost complete silence of the European press.
European on the Damascus trial, on the Tisza- affair
Eszlar and so many others of the same nature remain incomgraspable, if one does not admit that it was made the humble vassal of the Israelite petty tyrants.

Independent newspapers, such as L'Univers, which They still know how to tell the truth, but we couldn't shed light on it.
complete on recent crimes. When they wanted

ER ER TO

Speaking, they stirred up such a chorus of noise around them.
repulsive curses, that their voice has been stifled,
that their most striking evidence has been obscured and annihilated. The same thing happened to men courageous people who dared to publish a truthful work on these burning questions.

Jewish influence, too often aided by conni-
The Christians' vanity has always managed to hide, at to subtract, to distort, to bury in oblivion and silence anything that could shed some light on these dreadful mysteries; it's marvelous that all the documents ments were not completely destroyed. We know in besides the fact that the new fashion is now in vogue historical charity, born with the Reformation and grown with Masonic liberalism, charity in the name of which We must proclaim the popes' sins at every crossroads.
and Catholic monarchs and carefully hide or to excuse the crimes of heretics, liberals and Jews.

But, thank God, they didn't manage to hide everything.
to destroy everything. In the Vatican archives, there are the mi-notes from the trial of Trent in 1415; Laurent published the documents from the Damascus trial of 1840, a marvelous trial-identical to that of the 15th century. At the beginning-
At the beginning of this century, a similar revelation occurred... part of a former rabbi from Moldova, who had become a monk Greek. In 1803, he published a book in Moldavian which was translated into Arabic and Greek under the title: Ruin of the Hebrew religion; Naples, Romania, 1834. This
The book had three editions, and, despite this, the revelations that it contains would be as if nonexistent, — thanks to the Jews who destroyed almost all of the copies
— if, in 1883, an Italian edition had not been published lienne, if in 1846, A. Laurent had not published one excerpt from the book we discussed regarding
the assassination of Father Thomas.

For the same reason, this book has become today
very rare; even if we know it was published, we know
by the knight Gougenot des Mousseaux, who quotes him often in his masterful work: The Jew, the ju-Daism and the Judaization of Christian peoples, Paris, Plon, 1861*. He recounts that he had to, in order to obtain the Laurent's book, available at over twenty bookstores,

As for me, I haven't been able to find a single example.
to please only the national library, from where it will disappear soon, if the rapacious hand of a Talmudic scholar can extend above.

Gougenot's work, also quite rare and out of print in bookstore, however, can be found more easily than Laurent's very rare and the ex-rabbi's impossible-to-find Moldovan. Despite extensive research, I was unable to find-to counter a Greek copy of the latter.

It is impossible that, without a secret and envious hand-
These recent works, so erudite, so curieux; we must be afraid of anti-Semitic documents that they contain, among other things those relating to this assassination of 1840, which caused such a stir in the East and In the West, it held the entire Syrian diplomatic corps in suspense.
and of Constantinople, and despite this still finds incredulous.

But there is nothing wonderful about it. Great is the
The power of gold: it opens many doors and closes many.
mouths.

We've just released a new edition.

III

It now remains to learn the means by which the Jews faithfully preserve among themselves the terrible a secret they keep so carefully hidden from others.
peoples.

The account of the Trento trial states that Samuel, when asked how he had learned the mystery of blood, replied "that he knew all that, no
for having read it in the scriptures, but for having he heard his schoolteacher, whose name was David, say Spring and directed the schools of Bamberg and Nurembergberg; that he had learned it about thirty years ago
born previously. As for his master David, he had gone in Poland, and no one knew what had become of him.

It is to be believed that this Spring, who taught the cerebloody monks, had practiced them before, in the ghettos of Bamberg and Nuremberg and that he con- He has continued to do so in Poland ever since. And that explains the belief that existed concerning Passover Jewish, among the Christians of Germany and Poland; This accurately reflects the frequent persecutions that they rose up against a race capable of such crimes appalling. The Jews blamed their ignorance on The Middle Ages was the cause of these infamous accusations.

Therefore, we hasten to invoke an authority of the 19th century, by offering the reader's meditations the curious page where the former rabbi of Moldova reveals this that he knew on his own about the secret concerning the mystery of blood.

"There," he said, "that with the help of Our Lord Jesus-Christ, I have revealed the barbaric mystery of the blood that garteeth the Jews. This mystery is not found written in their books... |

“I want to reveal one more thing that doesn’t is not found written in any book of the nation Jewish, at least in a clear and intelligible way. The Khakams, Rabbis, and fathers of families know alone and communicate these things orally to their children, by terrifying them with horrible curses, if they were ever to reveal the secret.

“Yes, they instruct their sons in this mystery of the blood, by imposing a sacred silence upon them, and in their urging them to always keep it in their hearts. they must only show it to their one son whom they recognizeare born capable of bearing such a weight; and they recommend never acting differently from them memes. No one should reveal this secret to a Christian, even if one were in the most dreadful adversity. It would be better to lose blood and life is about manifesting it.

“For my part, I fear God above all else, and I have I have no concern for the curses of my father, or the Rabbis. of the Khakams, of the entire Jewish nation: I want everything to clearly manifest, for the glory of God, Jesus-Christ and of the holy Church. And this is how I was revealed this bloody mystery.

"When I reached the age of thirteen — age which the Jews customarily place on the head of their children a crown which they call a crown of force – my father, leading me aside, alone with me, it taught me more deeply about the law: more and more Furthermore, he instilled in my soul a hatred for Christians,

as something commanded by God, to whom it belongs so pleasant that they must be sacrificed and their blood for bloody uses.

Then he added, kissing me: "My son, here is "that I am confiding in you my most intimate secret, as to a
"another self." And, placing the crown on my head, he completed the explanation of the mystery, repeating to meas long as it was a sacred thing, revealed by God and commanded the Jews. He told me that I was thus in possession of the most important secret of religion Jewish. Then he spoke to me like this:

“My son, I conjure you by all the elements of heaven
"and of the earth, to always keep this secret in your "heart, never to communicate it to your brothers, nor
"to your sisters, nor to your mother, nor to your wife, nor to any person-
"Sounds whoever lives there, especially to women. If it happens that you
"If you have eleven sons like me, you will not discover-
"You will not reveal this mystery to everyone, but to one alone; and this "will be the one you will regard above all others as the "Wiser and most capable of keeping the secret."
"That's how I do it with you now. You observe-"
"You will also see if this son is faithful and zealous in our faith."
"Throw it away, repeat it again: beware of revealing it to the "Women, neither to your daughters, nor to your wife, nor to "Your mother, but only to this son that you will know"
" worthy. "

Finally he said to me: “My son, whom the whole world rejects
"the burial of your body, refuses to receive you in
"her breast after your death, if, at whatever time this
"Even in the most terrible circumstance, you
"Reveal this secret of blood; you must make no exception"
"that for the one I told you about, even if you become-"Christian right, even if you believe yourself obliged by your own interest or for some other reason. Beware of

R

"to betray your father, by revealing this divine secret that I tell you manifest today. My curse would fall upon you at that moment and would be the companion of your life, just-
"Until your death and for all eternity."

"But now that I have acquired another father who is Our Lord Jesus Christ, another mother who is the Church
As a Catholic, I want to preach the truth according to the words From the wise Sirach: “Fight to the death for the justice. "

"And truly, I have already found myself, I am finding myself" in great danger to their lives, for having done this publication. But I have faith in the apostle's cry Saint Paul: “Who can separate me from the love of God?”
Christ? For sure, it will be neither death nor life.
My hope, indeed, is in the eternal Father, my My refuge is in the eternal Son, my strength in the eternal Spirit
nel. Glory to the Holy Trinity.

This is the striking confirmation of Samuel's confession was done during the trial of Trent. "The old men and The leading Jews, he said, keep this secret and they communicate it to each other through successive transmissions
sion: /nter se seniores et nobiliores? habent istud pro
secreto, et unus narrat alteri ex successione,”

And yet this secret, at least at that time and in the Jewish world, it spread with great ease
ity, since the German, Tyrolean and Italian Jews knew and commonly practiced it. The ex-historical question, which is at the beginning of the second book, does not

~
And

R

! Il sangue christiano, p. 33.

* The word nobiliores specifically refers to the physicians of the popes.
kings, emperors, and their advisors, their astrologers,
their bankers, most of whom were Jewish.

$

gives no reason to doubt that they practiced it equally lyrically in France, England, Spain and in the entire Western world.

In the various trials that were brought against the Jews,
The fatal secret escaped in fragments, and there is no
of a columnist who contributes his small stone to the building of which the revelations of the Moldovan rabbi were the culmination.
and the summit. In the following chapters we will see what a formidable ensemble these detailed pieces form!
followers of the same doctrine.

15.

CHAPTER II

THE RITUAL MURDER

During the trial of Trent, a witness was noted an even more singular gnage than the others: it is that where Ange recounts Simoncino's assassination. Ange had not
He did not witness the child's murder, and yet he recounts what was done there, in the same way as the disasters actors in this grim drama.

Serious consequences arise from this fact. We see
This implies the necessary existence of a single imposed ritual.
to all those who practiced the horrible mystery of blood.
A quick glance, taken at the facts recounted more
The higher level will help convince us of its existence. By-Everything shows uniform injuries, inflicted on the same people.
parts of the body, with the same savage and brutal fury-
tale.

If this is the case, we must conclude that the sacrifices
Bloody attacks were taking place at very short intervals.
and we must admit, what some ecclesiastical authors say-Siastics, which the Jews draw by lot each year, province and the city that must supply Christian blood.

No doubt, Ange had already witnessed one of these appalling immolations; without them, would he have been so successful?
Having known the monstrous rite, could he have described it with such...

of accuracy a fact which he had not witnessed, if he he had simply read the instructions for the ritual.

We will try to recreate this ritual. by providing an overview of the ceremonies which are repeated with each Talmudic assassination.

The search, the acquisition of a victim, that is the The first care of the priest. In this search, the Jews displayed consummate skill.

Long in advance, they set their traps, they were laying their ambushes. From the rapacious eye of the vulture, They scrutinized every nook and cranny of the country they inhabited. were. Sometimes the child who was supposed to serve their hor- The best sacrifice was chosen by lot; but, more often than not, it was chosen by the free will of the Talmudic scholars. It was necessary Indeed, this child possesses particular characteristics.

He had to be a virgin and innocent. For the sacrifice Pascal especially, we looked closely at the quality of the victim. They demanded—perhaps we should say: they requires — a male child, under the age of seven, and from a Christian family.

"Moses the Elder was asked if human blood, other than Christian blood, could be used in the rites Jews, and if it were required that it be the blood of a man and not woman, that it was the blood of a child and not of an old man. He replied that it was necessary- to know that it was the blood of a male Christian child, and not that of a woman; and that the victim should not "To exceed the age of seven."

This principle was not absolute, and has become less so over time. less so, in subsequent ages. We find in the splendor of the Paschal sacrifice of the children who had more of seven years old, and even young girls of twelve to fifteen years, especially among the most recent attacks. As the main concern of the synagogue is to procuring Christian blood matters little in reality that

This blood flows from one source rather than another. What all historical facts demonstrate to us is What is absolutely required is that the chosen victim be without A stain, without sin, is that the shed blood be pure. any mixing and any bad contact. Also, do not findThere were almost no adult victims of self-immolation. on the occasion of Passover, and regardless of age Children sacrificed, they always fall under the knife rabbinical before the storm of passions shook their hearts and made their muscles shudder. In these lastIn recent times, the assassinations committed in Hungary have especially practiced on young girls; this is undoubtedly due to to the fact that the Jews could attract them more easily in their homes, as servants, to the extent that The danger was less for them.

This desire to avert danger has always preoccupied the Jews in the performance of ritual murder. They perfectly reflected the disapproval that raised these savage acts, and this condemnation they They didn't dare wear it on their cowardly heads, they stained by all means to protect oneself from it. Skill with which they were preparing their attacks clearly shows that they .did not act driven by the zeal of fanaticism strange; no, they don't even have that excuse, because they ct

They were cool-headed, and they calculated shrewdly. the full extent of their assassinations.

Also, they rarely acted on their own and at Big day in the child abduction case.

They often had this filthy and odious woman executed work done by bad Christians whom misery condragged themselves to begging for Jewish gold. They traded on the The distress of these unfortunate people.

For a price they persuaded them to deliver an enChristian infant, predetermined for the fury of the synagogue gogue by the humility of its origin and the splendor of his innocence. Sometimes, it was even his own child whom the unfortunate bribed man delivered to the infamous executioners: to more easily lead him to this crime monstrous, they promised to respect his life his offspring, and to be content with a little of his blood. But the torture made them lie and, besides, who only knows that among Jews, promising and keeping are two?

It even seems that in some places the synagogue had designated female providers, reminiscent of the tri- Those '93-year-olds, those sad guillotine-lickers. These women, who were always accompanied by a grim reputation- They were the damned souls of the Jews, victims of witchcraft. Dark hags with hideous souls trapped in a body Bony and thin, they slipped among the Christians, They kept watch around their victim, until... that a favorable opportunity allowed them to throw on it their hideous claws and to carry it off into the pro- synagogue founders.

In the absence of reliable followers, the Talmudic scholars led They themselves carried out their ferocious raids. The story of their cunning varied methods to seize the coveted prey would require a volume; a hideous volume, stained with blood and betrayal- its sound, polluted by the impure breath of treachery....

That would be disgusting.

Haven't we said enough to clearly show the reader what the terrible religion of the ghetto was like, at Middle Ages?

Let's finish our task and summarize the appalling ceremonies of the Paschal sacrifice.

II

At what time period was the ritual sacrifice to be performed?

Samuel of Trent was asked if the Jews believed that blood had to be taken from a Christian child such Which day rather than another?

He replied that the child can be killed at any time. and collect his blood; but that blood is better and that sacrifice is more pleasing to God when it is made in the days leading up to Passover.

Even today, in the East, where the traditions of the Tal-

Musical instruments were born and were always better observed. Christian rumors against the Jews, regarding the assassinations always occur during Holy Week where sanguis melior est et sacrificium magis gratum Deo?. Moreover, as we have seen, a multitude of examples,

! Fol. LV recto of the proceedings:

* The Jews never miss an opportunity to mock this accusation every time it arises. Regarding the assassination From Alexandria, in 1881, the illustrated Universe (November 1, 1881) mocks the Romanians, because they seriously believed the rumors drawn from medieval archives, confirm a inevitably, the revelations of the Trent trial. It is during Holy Week that the Jews must to carry out the ritual murder; but however, as in At all costs, they must obtain Christian blood, this Murder can be committed at any time of the year: omni tempore potest interfici puer. So that the Christians 'They must always be on their guard.'

Because these assassinations usually occur during Holy Week for Christians, one should not not to conclude, as many have done, which Jews They act in this way solely out of hatred for Jesus Christ and Christianity. We will soon see, in fact, that The main goal of the Jews is to obey rabbinic law. nic: the Jews absolutely need Christian blood tien to celebrate their Easter in a holy manner, and secondariment insulting to ours.

Jewish Passover is celebrated on the fourteenth day of the March moon, Christian Easter is postponed until The following Sunday. Ordinarily, Passover falls on So during our Holy Week. But yes, pure supposition– In this case, our Easter took place at Christmas or Pentecost. the Talmudic murders would no longer coincide with She. This is based on statements made by the accused. of Trent: above all, they shed the blood of children Christians to obey their horrible laws.

EL so that this obedience may be complete and meritorious, For blood to be suitable for sacred rites, it is necessary accusers. "The Romanians are still at that point!" he said. The Rou-

"People still believe in this nonsense!" — Why do Romanians Would they progress more than the Jews? The latter have retained their infamous rites, why should conscience cease to proclaim them to the four winds of heaven?

-e mee me ae ee

that the sacrifice is consummated amidst REPORTS awful.

It was Samuel who stated this in his interrogation.
gatory of Sunday, June 11, 1415. "So that the blood Christian, he said, is suited to the object to which the Jews destined, it is necessary that the child die in the torments; otherwise this blood would not be good.” That is what happened to the blessed martyr of Trent, this that year, and to many other children, before or after the xiv? century. Aliter ille sanguis non is a bonus. We must However, an exception will be made for the festival of Purim.
where the victim may be an adult, and is usually exempt from the dreadful torments that mark the sacristan
pascal.

And what are these torments?

As much as possible, those that DODGE made for our Divine Savior.

Jesus Christ was tied to the pillar of the scourging,
was covered in spit, insults, and opprobrium, he suffered an odyssey of unimaginable suffering.

The victims of Jewishness are overwhelmed with memes torments. They too are almost always tied up to a column of flagellation. Gar — which shows well accustomed to this crime among them — the Jews possessed
They used the same instruments of torture everywhere. And, in Firstly, it should be noted that the patient was sub-attached wind, sometimes to a wooden statue placed there for this purpose, sometimes at a stone table still stained with blood
those who had suffered before him.

The torture began with a kind of flagellation.
Stripped of his clothes, the martyr was cruelly beaten with rods: on the tender, pink flesh imprintedmay the red bites of the whips, and the blood com-threatened to drip into the basins that were held meticulously below the tortured limbs.

Other, even more cruel injuries came to help this slow flow of blood. At times, the veins were open in several places on the body, sometimes pro-
The deep incisions tore through the limbs, sometimes, the
The flesh twisted under the brutal force of the pincers and the Blood gushed out as if from a squeezed sponge.

In Trento, this method of torture was particularly employee; — we have seen why. Let us report however- in the complete testimony of Angelus of Trent, to this subject.

He was asked: "What is the importance and the significance of the... description of the injury that was made to the right cheek of The child?

“— His answer was this: It means that Moses said several times to Pharaoh, from his own mouth, to ren- see the Israelite people.

"— What does the injury to the right leg mean?"

"— It means that Pharaoh and the people of Egypt those who persecuted the Jews were very unhappy in their journey!

Another injury frequently encountered in Talmudic assassinations are those which consist of to defile, to tear, to devastate the virile parts of the victim. When a child's body is found with this stigma, one can almost always conclude that the neck-the synagogue's guardian relentlessly attacked these holy remains.
glants. Note that the blood that was escaping from this

1 This explanation is very curious. So this is the Christian people assimilated to the Egyptian people: they strike him on the leg so that he so that it cannot pursue Israel.

The wound was collected in part in a special container. For-What? We don't say.

Ange, questioned about the cause of this odious prtique replied that "this injury signified their circconcision. Jewish children are circumcised in the middle There must be pain; Christian children must suffer. likewise, so that their blood may become suitable for but for which they spread it.

Samuel did not speak otherwise; his statements are entirely consistent with what we have just explained.

Often the rage of the executioners was not yet satisfied. They were tearing at the dying corpse, to drain him of every last drop of blood. That's why they imagined it in several places to pierce their bodies with a thousand needle strokes victim. This cruelty was perpetrated on several occasions, as reported in the acts of the martyrs of the synagogue gogue. "These pinpricks," say the Jews of Trent, remind us that the Egyptian people were struck in all its parts.” It really looks like the Christian child This represents the people of Egypt to them. This idea often breaks through the veiled statements of the accused; Perhaps they wanted, in the bloody sacrifice, to throw on the Christians the plagues with which God had afflicted the Egyptians, and following which he had instituted the Easter celebration.

When death approached, when the child, exhausted from torments, had scarcely more than a breath of life left, one The final ceremony was beginning, which also appeared to be essential as torture: was the child still sufficiently strong enough to endure this final suffering: we nailed to a cross, or simply to a wall; the The unfortunate victim was threatening to expire before...

Once this last formality was completed, we were satisfied. to spread out his broken limbs in the shape of a cross, and the The executioners ensured that this figure was perfectly accurate. The martyr absolutely had to breathe his last breathed in the same way as his divine Redeemer. This was probably to make the resemblance even more striking. , more obvious than if he were struck in the heart with a blow of lance, to extract the last drops of blood. The corpse had to be completely bloodless from the hands of these vampires.

No sooner had the victim breathed his last than the rabbi broke into a song of joy. That's what's still needed. noteworthy in these infamous ceremonies: joy was present. not only convenient, but required, and this joy a somber atmosphere was expected to erupt throughout the entire ceremony. denies it; the Talmudic rite has this ferocity.

But the child is weak and suffers pitiably; this poor little creature that would soften the heart of a wild beast, a the animal trainer of the amphitheater, looks at me with his eye drowned in tears; — never mind, be joyful.

But I feel the sting piercing deep in my heart Filled with remorse, I shudder with horror as I contemplate my work; — whatever, be joyful.

But the poor, innocent child utters plaintive cries. that stir my whole soul; I feel tears tremble beneath my eyelid and mingle with her blood; — It doesn't matter, be happy.

But in the end, I wasn't born to be an executioner, and This butcher shop disgusts me terribly; the smell Blood hurts my nostrils; — never mind, be joyful.

Be joyful! Be joyful! Without that, the sacrifice is meaningless. would not be pleasing to God, and all the curses Scripture will fall upon your head.

And carried away into the barren plains of the superstition, on the black wings of fanaticism, the Jew, even If he feels disgust and sadness in his heart, let him exult in song. of triumph and intoxication.

The child is calm and suffers patiently, he spits in his face and covers him with insults; the child screams and complains, he sneers; the child expires in the towers- As he dances on the scattered limbs of his victim which he heaps with insults and opprobrium. This is the work of the Talmud!

Repugnant work! Work of the damned!

And yet the Orthodox consider it an honor to be there to take part. These are the great men, the princes of Israel who occupy the forefront in these bloody scenes.

This is clearly visible from the trials of Trent and of Damascus. | : |

Because it would be a grave mistake to believe that these crimes were committed in secret and clandestinely;
Usually, a city's synagogue would gather at least its principal members; often she even invited the notables from neighboring towns. The rabbi was required to be there to attend; his presence was, so to speak, indispensable.

And we went to these feasts without being asked.

It really looks like it was a sweet show or a good opportunity for Jewish merchants. If he doesn't None of that, at least we must conclude that well
Their love for their religion was intense.

Every time a Jew had carried out the preparations of the ritual murder and that the victim was ready in her
In a cellar or some other secluded place in his house,
He hurried to tell his brothers the good news in Israel and invite them to the feast of horror. They
They came, taking advantage of the first shadows of night,

a precautionary measure that their cowardice demanded, and When not everyone could come, they made sure to send on their behalf, delegates, as is done for a
a ceremony that absolutely cannot be avoided.

The blood of the sacrifice remained in the hands of the father.
of the family; today it is handed over to the chief rabbi.
“Only,” says Moses the Elder, “the fathers of families”
They must obtain blood and use it.

They use them at Passover and in various circ-constants that we will soon make known. No-
We need only mention one detail here; it was Samuel who told us about it.
supplied.

“Fathers,” he said, “place great importance on part of the blood in the wine they drink on the evening of the Passover; but it is better and more pleasing to God that all members of the family drink it. That's why, at Easter in 1475, he himself made people drink it all his guests.

This revelation provides us with an answer to those who would object that this is not found in the stories ritual assassination, all the traits we have just described quisser quickly.

Not to mention that historians may have omitted many- A closer look at the details, Samuel's words tell us that there were differences in the practice of the rite Talmudic. It was sufficient to obey the essentials of the law bloodthirsty, that the head of the house drank only blood; As for the rigorous observers of this law, they find- were expecting the awful brew to be distributed to all the guests.

What religious rite has not varied with the countries and men? — The same was true among the Jews of the bloody rite: such and such a prescription may have to be neglected, but the essential features remain such that we have described them and no one could unTruir. We will prove it even better in the Next chapter.

CHAPTER III

CAUSES AND USES

Some staunch defenders of the Jewish people have claimed that our accusation should be taken into account Nothing, as long as the goal isn't fully revealed. of the bloody sacrifice and the customs to which were emfolded the horrible remains of this sacrifice. It is therefore the last important thing is to show in their complete The horror of what uses Christian blood was reserved for.

The Moldovan rabbi, whom he has already spoken about on various occasions reprises, gives us an important summary of these uses awful. His book is so rare and so little known that we we believe it useful to give in this chapter the part the entirety where he deals with the bloody mystery. Everything that will be in quotation marks without indication of authorship is his. We We supplemented his statements with testimonies. found either in the records of the Trent trial, or in ancient works by illustrious authors for their sincerity and honesty. Theofitus, the ex-Rabbi, it begins like this:

"The mystery or secret use of blood (it will no longer be: (a mystery now) that the Jews extract from Christians, by murdering them, is a rite they believe commanded by God and revealed in the holy Scriptures!

“Many scholars have already written numerous books to demonstrate with the Holy Bible the coming of the true Messiah promised by God to the patriarchs: which one is Our Lord Jesus Christ, son of the Immaculate Virgin Marie. Similarly, many books have already been written about to refute the superstitious belief of the Jews and their heresies. Among the authors of these works, many were born Jewish and had converted to the Christian religion Yours. But no one has ever spoken or written about this barbarian. the secret of blood that Jews keep and practice, secret by which their lives became worse than those of ferocious beasts. And if sometimes it falls into the hands of Christians, some book dealing with this secret, the Jews they don't answer frankly, but in a way evasive: they say they don't kill Christians and that their law forbids them to eat blood. Here is the which is why not only Jews in general, but even those who converted to Christianity They never say anything clear about this mystery. I suppose that converted Jews act this way because it is realThey don't know the secret, or perhaps they think... feel and hope that their former coreligionists They may one day convert. And they fear that the Christians, if they were to become acquainted with these barbaric customs Jews, do not refuse to admit them into their community nion. And perhaps because of this misunderstood charity Have they kept silent about this barbaric mystery?

Let's not forget that this is a former rabbi speaking; he knows the subject well. the beliefs of his former coreligionists.

* In reality, not all Jews knew about him. – Note from rabbi.

“But I, since by the grace of God I have already received holy baptism and that I find myself in the pro-federation of monastic life which is the life of angels, I despises Jewish pride. And for the benefit of Christians-

Well, I, who was Kakam and Rabbi, that is to say, master,
I, who knew all their mysteries well, which I maintain-
I kept secrets and practiced them when I was their Master, now that, by the grace of God, I have with
The holy baptism abjured their perfidy, I manifest or-
These secrets will be revealed with the following evidence.

"First and foremost, you must know that this secret of blood is not
not known to all Jews, but only to the Kakam, Scribes and Pharisees, who are called preservers of the mystery of blood. These Kakam maintain rigorous-They keep the secret as much as they can.

"These are the reasons for this use of blood"
Christian:

"1? Hatred against Christians, hatred in which They educate their offspring by instilling their bitterness in them.
from their earliest childhood. They truly believe that This is commanded by God, and hatred and the
The massacre of Christians is very pleasing to him. They verify-thus they heed the words of the divine Redeemer: “Whoever will kill you, believing you are offering a pleasing sacrifice to God! ";

"2° The false superstitions to which they are devoted. Indeed, the Jews make use of Christian blood in works of witchcraft, cabal, magic and other superstitions;

"3. Because the Kakam or Rabbis doubt that Perhaps Jesus, son of Mary of Nazareth, is really

'Saint John, 16, 2.

the Messiah awaited by our ancestors. So (they say)
we will save ourselves with the blood of Christians
We sacrifice ourselves, and thus we will avoid damnation.
eternal.

Let's develop each of these points in more detail.
motives, by examining them, so to speak, under a magnifying glass.

II

FIRST REASON: HATRED AGAINST CHRISTIANS

“But let us consider the first motive, that is to say, the The deadly hatred that all Jews harbor against the Christians. It is written in the second part of the Penta'teuch of Moses' that Pharaoh led with him six Hundreds of wagons against the fleeing Jews. On this passage historical, the kakam Solomon — whose commentary plunged the Jews into the deepest abyss of hell — posed this question: Where did Pharaoh find enough cheese? worth to pull the 600 tanks, so little before the Hail had killed all the animals in Egypt? — At that Question, the same Kakam replies by saying that he is It was also written that some Egyptians, having believed in the threat Moses had brought their livestock back to safety and that in this way they had been saved from the hail. He continues by saying that we must learn from this fact that it is It is necessary to crush the head of even the humblest snake. Therefore We must kill the Christians, even the best ones, since all

---

* Exodus, XIV, 7.

They are snakes! And that's how a law was passed essential according to which every Jew must kill a Christian in his life?, if he wants to attain eternal salvation. And, well that outwardly, the Jews could form friendships with the Christians, deep down and inwardly, they must hate them. with the utmost ferocity and to become excited by hating them with all their strength.

"And to confirm this unholy principle, they corrupt Holy Scripture by teaching the opposite of its true meaning, according to what pleases their perverse fantasy. So, regarding this passage from Exodus: “You shall not eat no meat that the animals have eaten before you, "But you will throw it to the dogs," the impious kakam SaloMy friend gives this explanation: “God really did comcommanded by Moses to sell this flesh to Christians, because Moses, when speaking of the cursed dogs Christians, so that it is well known that dogs are nobler than the Christians; it is written, in fact, "that a “Not a dog will bark among all the people of Israel, hence "We see that God distinguishes between the Jews and the Ezekiels." Then he cites other passages from the Bible to confirm this. that the Jews are God's noble dogs, corrupting the texts and adapting them to his strange and foolish brothernesis. That is why I say that in truth God has already rejected the gifts of the Jews, verifying the prophecy of Wise Solomon, who said that their gifts were sacrilegious and disgusting in the presence of the Lord.

'Here we have an example of falsehood, of duplicity with which the modern synagogue interprets the holy books and in draws conclusions consistent with his hatreds.

* “And ille Judaeus,” declares Moses the Elder, “magis laudatur apud ipsos el in fide judaica melior habetur, qui plus utitur mg sanguine pueri christiaui. " Horrible!

3 XXH, 31.

Out) THE MYSTERY OF BLOOD

In studying the Talmud, we have already spoken about this anti-Christian hatred that grows in the heart of all Good Israelite. We see that the rabbis are very resourceful.
a way to justify it, to validate it, to expand it, to
to become increasingly ferocious and also, alas! increasingly more fruitful. From century to century, one can follow that hatred unfolding in savage demonstrations and producing externally in a raw or refined form
according to the trends of the time.

In the Middle Ages, in the centuries when people knew how to strike with the sword, where men did not swoon in front of a few drops of blood, where morals were still barbaric, rivers of Christian blood flow for The satisfaction of this hatred, countless martyrs
writhe in the throes of cruel torture, the people are crucified with immense suffering, suffering of
The soul, suffering of the heart, suffering of the body: wear and tear
It gnaws at and plunders the poor, slander overturns honor.
In the past, intrigue undermined high fortunes, alchemy... poisons the waters, and on all sides rises an immense a cry of disapproval that rises to the heavens in a shudderappalling things; and finally, the Jews, the nation filthy, abandoned to all forms of dereliction, they slip down that at the bottom of the abyss they have dug, they are driven out, pursued, hunted like wild beasts!

Nowadays, although in a more veiled way, they indulge in the same depravities. The bloody sacrifice,
The martyrdom of small children, it seems! has disappeared in France, but other demonstrations there have intensified of rigor. Today more than ever, everything that Several indicators suggest that reality may not match appearances.

references,

anything bearing the name of Christian must be destroyed, no matter how much
The truth is: for them, all Christian flesh is flesh.
gun fodder, cannon fodder, pleasure fodder; all property Goi is property to be ransomed, to be dismembered. And then the the day when the Jew has absorbed all the Christian's possessions, he
He will demand his life and his flesh: blood for gold!

Wasn't that what set the guillotine in motion?
Bloody '93? Big words were used:
liberty, equality, liberation, social regeneration;
But perhaps in the end there was only one supreme agent.
It was the Jews, barely emancipated, who wanted to to satiate oneself with Christian blood, and to indulge in dear pleasure to see it spread by Christian hands, marked at the baptism of the seal of Christ. How many Jewish names among them The revolutionaries! It's as if we haven't revealed... the true causes of the Revolution and perhaps, in a
In the near future, some bold researcher will demonstrate-t-illa large share of responsibility that the element assumes Semite.

Today, hatred of the Jew remains as ardent as ever.
implacable, but it no longer operates in the same way-Niere. Customs are no longer the same: the Jews no longer
They kill more than the body, but they poison the soul. Since From childhood to old age, they pollute everything with their impure breath: secular and compulsory schooling kills the soul of small; the bad place, the cheap, bland coffee and defiles the virgin, the beardless youth who trembles at the first shivers of puberty; middle age fades and destroyed at the club, the gambling den, the seedy theater; the woman loses his honesty after reading a vile soap opera hidden in the folds of a newspaper with the frontispiece of which a Jewish hand fraudulently attached the epithet of a Catholic.

This is the work of Jewish hatred: in the absence of blood,
She takes the honor!

And yet, the descendants of those who whipped them formerly are ready today to kiss the mud of their moccasins. The Jews made them spit on this crucifixes that our ancestors surrounded with such a brilliant halo of respect; the Jews made them sell the portraits of those who distinguished their race and soon they will themselves be dragged through the mud; they have brought in the Jewish shops the showers of diamonds and rubies that adorn the brows of their mothers; they have delivered at a pittance for a little gold that was thrown to them with contempt gently and now these riches are displayed on the shoulders of the princesses of Israel, of the company of-
They must feel very honored!

O decadent ones, are you so ignorant of infamy?
of those to whom you cling with such frenzy!
A converted Jew will teach you this again; e-
What a deep-seated hatred festers in these diamond hearts.

“I want,” said the quoted Greek monk, “to report and explain-that certain phrases and words that Jews utter in hatred and contempt for Christians. Our churches are called-The filthy places, the Kakam call them c/oaques and pigsties. Christians are sacrilegious idolaters;
The Christian child is a nasty worm, the girl is a leech, and so on for the rest. They say the priests offer vain things to idols. While what Christians-They celebrate the Christmas and Epiphany holidays, the Jews cover their books during this entire time and They spend the night in the synagogue playing cards.
by blaspheming Jesus Christ, his holy mother, the saints and the Christians, and calling these two nights the nights Blind people. And truly, these are nights of darkness.

and blindness for those who close their eyes to the truth light. The blasphemies they utter when, in These nights, they cover their books in the synagogue.
These are horrible things that I cannot write about without horror.
and without defiling this page; the only thought I have pronounced, I am frozen with terror: I can only ask-
I seek forgiveness from God.

"And yet this book of blasphemies is the book
most important of the Jews. They teach them to their children from their earliest years; they insinuate them to the very depths of their souls with milk and the food. One could say that the alphabet of Jewish children is the book of blasphemies against Jesus Christ, the very The Holy Virgin Mary and the Christians.

"When Jews pass near or even in sight" of a Christian church, they are strictly obliged to say: Cursed be the foulest of the foul places, the disgusting place of the disgusting. In the Talmud, at this Regarding the matter, it is written that when a Jew, passing by of any Christian church, does not remember by the distraction of saying these words, and that he remembers them afterwards, he has to go back to say them, if he is not already more than ten paces away. In the case On the contrary, he can say them without going back on them. When a Jew meets a deceased Christian who is being carried on the ground, he must say: "Zn here is one today; tomorrow "May there be two of them." — Finally, Jewish hatred their hostility towards Christians is such that they are convinced that they only Christians are part of humankind "They are not men."

These revelations are consistent with the quotes that We studied the Talmud. It was in the study of this... sacred book from which the Greek monk, former rabbi, drew knowledge of true Jewish feelings. This conCordancy would be sufficient to assure us of his good faith. but he took the trouble to introduce himself to us What was his goal in writing his book?

“I beg those who read this,” he said, “not to believe that I write these things out of passion and determination against my nation. Indeed, — out of gratitude for Our Lord Jesus Christ, who in his infinite mercy The rope touched my heart and illuminated my mind with its grace. giving me the courage to renounce Jewish perfidy, — I cry out every day to my good Jesus with the prophet Jeremiah: Who will give water to my head and tears in my eyes to weep for the sins of my people? — This people, who were once beloved of the Lord, was full of grace and holiness, reigned supreme, He is now scattered, wandering, obstinate, in his dis Persion, ferocious, and plunged into the most detestable corruption. Yes, in truth, the Jew is corrupt, obstinate and traitor. And this is so true that when a Christian, go to his house, the Jew receives him kindly and courtesy. But when he left, the Jew was absolutely forced to say: "They descend upon the head of this Christian,

into his home and family all illnesses, disasters,
the disgraces, the accidents, the persecutions that have been,
are or will be intended for my family and my home.
It is an inescapable law that compels us to pronounce these words; and woe to him who does not speak them.

"I conclude by revealing and explaining the motive"
for which I write all these things. My goal is twofold:
1° when a Jew is reproached for his perfidy by All Christians, instead of being obstinate, will do penance.
will abandon error and convert to the Christian faith;
and so we will have confessors of Jesus Christ, and companions on our path to salvation; 2? the Christians-Look, seeing the unfortunate state of the Jews, their aberrations and the horrible punishments of justice divine, will not be scandalized by it, but, driven by a salutary terror, they will flee obstinacy into the
"They will sin and thank God they were not born Jewish."

A people who harbor such hatreds are always prone to all excesses, and we should not be surprised that the Jews had allowed themselves against the Christians
They had committed abominable crimes of which history accuses them.
Moreover, there were other, even more significant motives for acting in this way.
pressing issues that we will now reveal to drive.

The former Moldovan rabbi continues:

III

THE SECOND REASON: SUPERSTITION

"The second motive is based on superstitious belief-the Jewish belief that magic, spells, and other things are so important.
legends, of the cabal and other superstitious rites, opera-diabolical actions in which they use blood Christian. Here we can see the curse of God.
fallen upon the Jewish nation which was condemned because of his hardness of heart and his obstinacy in denying Jesus-Christ and not to recognize him as the Messiah.
These curses were already announced by God in Deuteronomy! : Percutiat te Dominus ulcere Egypti,

! XXVIII, 27, 36. Here is the complete text: Percutiat te Dominus scabie quoque and prurigine, ita ut curari nequeas: percutiat te Dominus ulcere pessimo.... sanarique non possis....

"These illnesses and curses have come to pass."
in the Jewish nation. When the criminals visit these patients and give them medicine, they aspergent of Christian blood in the hope of healing them.
Moreover, the Jews have another misfortune on their shoulders.
diction; it is the one that their ancestors invoked in Pilate's presence: "His blood be on us and on..."
"Our children!" Oh! How much this insecurity weighs on them!
tion! Poor nation!

Popular opinion is that the prophecy cited has carried out to the letter and that a special disease reigns among the Jews, a disease common to the race, a disease Horrible, perpetual, and incurable. And not without reason.
in our opinion. It is not possible for a prophecy to be so "Clear" should be understood in a sense only.
Goric. Moreover, the proof of this secret disease and incurable exists, and that proof is provided by the Jews themselves; it is found in a book composed by a Jewish doctor. We will not go into the details that only a medical book contains. That it
It suffices for us to note that a Jewish doctor from Paris, professor at a University, and professor of mala-skin diseases, which must therefore have authority in These materials, it turns out, are a very well-known, very widespread, very common among Jews, the fulfillmentulcere /Egypti et parlem corporis, per quam stercora egeruntur, scabie quoque et prurigine, ita ut curari nequeas.

Percutiat te Dominus ulcere pessino in genibus et in suris, sanarique non possis a planta pedis usque ad verticem tuum.

'Is circumcision useful?' by Dr. Fernand Castelain

In charge of the supplementary course on skin diseases, Paris, 1882.
p. 10.

the entirety of the prophecy of Moses and the existence
current of the terrible disease which God had threatened the deicide people.

Moses, in his prophetic threats, also announced dementia and madness. Despite this pre-
In this context, some have sought to argue that the Jews are more positive, more calculating, colder than the others
men; but it is no less true that the statistics Ticks have shown that "the proportion of the mentally ill is much greater among Jews than among pro-"Telants and Catholics." We wanted to explain this done in various ways; the clearest is that the ine-Moses' inevitable prophecy still hangs in the balance.
their guilty heads: Percutiat te Dominus amentia et cecitate et furore mentis!

The two prophecies about the secret illness and about the madness has been no less accomplished than the others which can be read in the same chapter of Deuteronomy.

And it is to remedy this incurable disease that they use Christian blood. Isn't that showing What kind of madness afflicts them, then?

Moreover, this is not the only disease that requires the use of blood. It is hardly appropriate in the
The lives of Jews do not include this criminal activity.
The blood of Christian children is, according to their beliefs,
An effective remedy for a multitude of ailments. Miscellaneous authors introduce us to some of these infamous superstitions.

Antoine Bonfinius writes: "By questioning, at through torture, the old men on the causes that led people to commit such great crimes, one might say

! Res ungarice, dec. V, lib. 3.

found four main things to which the Jews owed
This shame. The first was that they were convinced, according to the authority of the elders, that the blood placed on the
The foreskin, during circumcision, has the virtue of stopping the blood. The second was that they believed that this blood, mixed in with food, a particle capable of igniting A greater love existed between them. The third was that Both men and women at home suffered from menstruation. (sic) and that it was enough to drink the blood of a Christian -- they had tested it – to stop this inconvenience. The fourth was that they were thus carrying out an ancient decree, which remained ignored, which forced them to offer to God, in Somewhere on earth, Christian blood in their daily sacrifices. Tyrnau's crime, they said, had been committed because fate had chosen the Jews of that city that year to carry out the decret.

Thomas de Catimpré expresses himself thus! : "There is no doubt that every year, in every province, we draws lots to determine which city or town must supply the others of Christian blood. It is used as a remedy to heal the loss of blood; for from the curse falling on the parents results in the children the vein of the crime, the stain of blood, so that through this flow-unwelcome, may the impious people be tormented with a inevitably until she recognizes herself guilty of the death of Christ, may she repent and be healed.

“Furthermore, a highly educated Jew, recently converted to the faith, he affirmed to me that a kind of Jewish prophet, on the He had made this prediction to his family:

! De vita instituenda, lib. II, cap. xxix, art, 23.

"Know that you will not be able to cure yourself of the honor-
"the disease from which you suffer only through the use of "Christian blood." And the Jews, still blind and impious men, seizing upon this word, resolved to pour every year, in every province, Christian blood which was supposed to improve their health.

Others add other causes, or rather, more precisely, other inventions of the impious nation, which thus wants to more easily prepare super- minds for crime jealous of his children and cover it up under the pretext of what-that necessity or utility the odious hatred they bear in the Christian name. That is how they claim their Women cannot have happy childbirths without the Christian blood, and that without this precious remedy they would suffer excruciating pain.

The English author, who preserved for us the account of The martyrdom of Saint William in Norwich, said: "The blood of these children is cared for by Jewish women who believe they cannot conceive without it! As for those to those who do not live among Christians, they send...
Hardened blood, reduced to dust. This imagination
The diabolical must aim to exalt the imagination pregnant women, to remind them, through this memory,

'Samuel Brentz, on page 5 of the first chapter of his Skin of Serpent writes: "If there is a Jewish woman who cannot give birth and is In great difficulties, the rabbi, or the first Jew after him,
Takes a piece of pure deer parchment, and writes three different notes:
We put the first one on his head, another in his mouth, and the third in the right hand and immediately she gives birth. But What type of ink should be used to write these notes? That, they They hide it carefully. But I know by true and authentic-this is evidence that Jews sometimes buy or steal and mis-deal with the children of Christians, with whose blood these bill-Lets are written; which they do not consider a mistake,
"As I know very well."

to hatred against Christians and to communicate to their fruit the same affections, while they the "carry within them."

Apart from that, they sometimes provide reasons fantasies, sometimes necessities arising from magic.
In the trial of Trent, they go so far as to say that if they they did not put Christian blood in the unleavened bread, they "would stink strangely everywhere." Others say that It is a commemoration of the blood that God, through the Moses' ministry had a sign placed on the doors of the Israelites lists during the servitude of Egypt.

Many uses of blood probably come from the influence that magic has always exerted on cer-Jewish calves.

"Among the other doctrines taught in the synagogues-
"Gogues," wrote Rupert, "one must still admire the belief." to magic and the practice of this occult science. This belief and these practices go back, like all the others, to the sect of the Pharisees, as noted Saint Epiphanius, who reveals, by examining the maxims of this sect, how they were taught there and how they professed there the belief in the influence of stars. That's why they had imposed on the stars of Hebrew names corresponding to the different Names attributed to God by the prophets. The rabbis say that all the members of the great Sanhedrin of Jerusalem had been instructed in the art of magic.

According to them, the patriarch Abraham was a necromancer who taught his art to the sons of his conquests bines. David, like Abraham, was an astrologer and magician cien. »

From this propensity for magical beliefs, we discover slow a host of bizarre and ridiculous practices. But

This influence does not stop there, and it was the source of a multitude of abominations about which we have yet to speak a few words. For this, it would be useful to undertake a study on the Kabbalah; but this study would lead us too far.

The Kabbalah is, in a way, the mystical part of:
Talmud. It's a jumble of heterogeneous principles, where The most skilled Christian interpreter could not recognize himself to be born. The rabbis themselves do not all to understand it.

Let us just mention this short excerpt: “In the Health. Scripture says: The wise will shine like the bright lights of the sky. What do these mean?
Words? — They mean this: Those who maintain the power and strength of God with the blood — those They are the truly wise ones — they will shine like the stars from the vault of heaven.

“For although God has taken away our temple and our sacrificial meal, he left us something which elevates the soul even further and heals it better than Sacrifice is the shedding of blood before the face of God on a dry stone.

Such is the advice given by the Cabal. Also Should we not be surprised that the Jews were involved in all the occult societies of the Middle Ages, including witches, to the alchemists, to the astrologers, to all those men

strange ones who were searching in the throbbing entrails human victims, the secrets of the future, and in the pure blood of children, powerful remedies for all diseases.

He was a magician, this Simon who seduced so many people in Samaria and Judea, and who claimed that by calling upon her for help, through humble incantations,

the soul of an innocent child who died in agony,
He could get anything he asked for.

Those Jews who opposed him were like magicians.
to the progress of the Apostles, that this Barchochebas who . revolted against Rome, after having seduced the remnants of the nation.

They were magicians, mostly Jewish, who these Gnostics who taught the most strange and the most confused, which followed a moral degrading and criminal. In their assemblies, they had the horrible custom of killing and cutting into mor-
They had a child born of their disorder; they crushed his bloody limbs in a mortar; they seasoned
the flesh of honey, pepper, herbs and ointments to ward off disgust, and all took part in this abominable meal.

It was a Jew, the head of the synagogue in Alexandria, who led Valerian to persecute the Church. This Jew had initiated the emperor to the execrable mysteries of the demon within him advising to kill children, to cut their flesh into pieces and to draw from their entrails the means to
to live happily.

It was Jewish doctors who advised a Queen of Persia, ill, to have killed and cut in two Christian virgins, to have their memories suspended throbbing hearts, then passing through the middle of these hideous trophies, promising him a speedy recovery.

As we progress through the centuries of the Middle Ages
As we get older, and beyond, we notice that these prejudices have more of strength, and that they show themselves above all with more energy gie with regard to the nations that had the most relations with this treacherous people. The Jews had means secrets for obtaining a cure for diseases, the hon-

— ee

Children, riches, a splendid life. Christians if they were to resort to them in the art of malevolent magic, they were forced to renounce their religion, to misto say the sacred names of Jesus and Mary, to profane the sacraments, and especially the Eucharist, to invoke help of the demon.

Christophe Brouver! deplores the progress made by doctrines and the practice of magic, to great detriment of religion and society; he recounts with horror the ruin or death of a large number of people, death brought about by poison or other evil spells, and He introduced a potion that had been prepared for this purpose. The initiates, under the inspiration of the demon, brought in The composition includes several kinds of substances. like cat brains, children's entrails stolen from their parents and killed, poisonous spores of various plants and other dirty and obscene things. But, what's most horrible to say, is that the most often they mixed hos- with these infernal drugs sacred tie, at the same time as they blasphemed the name of Jesus. We will not describe the assemblies of these men, nor the shameful and disgusting actions that take place there nor the appalling lessons that were given there born from the art of harming other men and of to deceive. John, Bishop of Trier, finally managed to uncover the deceitful schemes. to open these hideous meetings, and he succeeded in preventing them for some time. Sixteen years later, however, he some remains still existed, and a woman who had given herself to the devil at the instigation of her comaccomplices, had the cruelty to kill his own son and make him the victim of his villainy. Later tortured by the

---

'Annals of Trier, in the year 1586.

Filled with remorse, she confessed to her crime and the diabolical art to which She had indulged herself.

Therefore, compared to so many others that resemble it As for the substance and the circumstances, it follows obviously-it is understood that these abominable practices derive their origin gin and their improvement of the synagogue, particular-linked to that time.

Spina, the Spanish historian already mentioned, also recounts a a very characteristic fact. A Jew had befriended a judicial officer, and, by means of a large sum of money, he persuaded him to give him the heart of a Christian the one he claimed to need to obtain the ford-suffering from a serious illness. The officer seized the heart of a Christian recently executed, after a conviction-nation to death. But his wife opposed him doing so. handed over to the Jew, because of the nasty reputation of this man; knowing that he was devoted to the operations of the magic, she advised her husband to give her a lesson of pork. The event justified his fears; for few Some time later it was discovered that this Jew was reducing to ashes the hearts of Christians which he could seize and the employed it to cast spells against the lives of Christians.

Finally, let us not leave the chapter of abominations. magical practices of the synagogue without mentioning a practice bizarre, more silly than malicious; it's the preparation for the Yom Kippur holiday, which is celebrated on September 7th. Every The man takes a rooster, the women a hen: they take turns-to encircle the animal around their head while reciting a few they pray and kill him; then they cut him into pieces and throw themselves out of their home. On September 9, they They rise early, leave their homes, and curse.

'Rupert. The Church and the Synagogue.

He dnd + pom - ix z = = £9 - Sx cde. 2 -- the first Christian they encounter while renouncing in-These words seem to speak: "God grant that you become "Like my rooster!" Women do the same to the the first Christian woman they meet. And, if he It's necessary; they wait several hours to meet. a person who takes on their curse. Having done so, they They return home full of joy.

We would simply laugh at all of this, if deep down we He did not hide an inextinguishable hatred against Chris-Tianism and what if these odious beliefs were not the source of monstrous crimes that history must just-to wither. One can never cast upon this race infamous, a rather burning stigma of shame!

IV

"OF THE THIRD AND MAIN GROUND: BELIEF OF THE JEWS"
THE SPIRITUAL EFFICACY OF CHRISTIAN BLOOD

"Let's now move on to the third exhibition."
the reason why Jews kill Christians and gather their blood — and the use they make of it.

"The first and main reason for this barbarity is the firm belief where the kakam are mainly or rabbis, that perhaps it is true that Jesus Christ, sons of Mary of Nazareth, whom their fathers condemned at the death on the cross is the true, long-awaited Messiah and desired by the patriarchs and the prophets. And this con-
Their conviction comes from what Jeremiah says: “O heavenly, fraternal

'IT, 12, 13. Obstupescile celi super hoc, et port ejus desolamini,

"Be filled with wonder. Weep, gates of heaven, and be “Inconsolable,” says the Lord, “for my people have done
"Two evils. They abandoned me, I who am a
"a source of fresh water, and they dug fountains for themselves"
"Half-open doors that cannot retain water."

"This prophecy is well known to the rabbis. Anne" Caiaphas knew her too: they knew that he was the true Messiah, this Jesus whom they condemned to death in saving Barabbas. The impious rabbis know very well what That is its meaning. But because of their pride and their
They are hard-hearted; they do not want to believe in Jesus Christ.
And so they created new commandments for themselves.
to save themselves with the blood of Christians.

This will seem strange to many readers. And However, there is no way to doubt that the Jews in
They must have come down there! Gougemot des Mousseaux explains
It's very good how they imperceptibly glided on this fatal slope.

"Aided by the foul advice of the priesthood and the

oracles of idolatry, he said, which human wisdom despises, it rejects the tutelage of the divine priesthood; it perverts the holy ideas of expiation and sacrifice, and said to herself: this human flesh that man eats,
This human blood that he drinks, that is the law of sacrifice in its highest and most perfect design. For he who prevaricose vein, the one who commits sin, crime, isn't it Is it not the being endowed with reason? Is it not man? The Therefore, no human being must always atone for sin.
The victim, therefore, will not be an animal without reason, but man himself. And his purification does not vehemently, said Dominus. Duo enim mala fecit populus meus: me dereliquerunt fontem aque vivæ et foderunt sibi risternas, cislernas dissipatas que continere non valent aquas.

it only works to the extent that the one who sacrifices identifies with the victim, as much as he makes her become what he himself ismeme, that is to say, his own flesh and blood.
However, eating alone accomplishes this work. Man
A religious person must therefore sacrifice and eat their fellow human being.
And that's how, both stemming from the cabal
Sabaean idolatry, the pagan idolatry of old, and the idolatry of Talmudic traditions, which persist to this day, have taken hold eternal truths to corrupt them, to perto turn it over and reverse its meaning.

Add to this blindness the idea that Jesus of Nazareth is truly the Messiah, unrecognized by their fathers, and you will have the secret of the ritual murder practiced by the Jews.

And how could the Jews not have this idea?
They have some skilled book commentators among them saints, from the true Bible and not rabbi nonsense niques: how could they not recognize the prophecies who announce the coming of the Liberator, how can we not Wouldn't they see that the era, marked by these pro-Phetia, has it long since passed? Yes, from century to century, they recalculated their accounts and their disappointments tou-
The repeated days have plunged them into a worrying doubt.

Those who in good faith sought the truth have opened his eyes to the light. Several times there were, among the Jews, large movements of conversion;
They are most noticeable during major events came to prove to them the futility of their hopes.

The others, stubborn in their error, are however They became worried about their safety. And that is why they sought to unite in abominable rites the religious
The teachings of Christ and the religion of Moses. They have no share in the graces he deserved through the shedding of his blood, the God-Man whom they crucified in the middle of the towers

ments; perhaps the blood of the innocent marked with Will baptism with the seal of the divine Redeemer suffice?
to assure them of the salvation they no longer dare to hope for. And we puts into law the obligation to shed innocent blood
one hundred, parodying as much as possible the Passion of Savior.

Because the main, the primary reason for the bloodshed,
It is obedience to the law. That is what is evidently apparent.
The trial of Trent.

They kill children to get their blood
Christians, and their primary concern in this act
What is truly abhorrent is obeying the law received from the ancestors.
The parody of the Passion comes only secondarily. When A witness in the trial is questioned about the purpose they... proposed in the assassination of Trent, he responds invalaughingly: uf sanguinem haberent. Throughout the course of the trial, despite the torture, despite the legal proceedings
The stronger the Jews, they attested that their main goal, if not unique, was the necessity in which they found themselvesneeded to have Christian blood to celebrate Easter.
La Civilta cattolica makes the following reflections on this subject:
sales:

"What good was their blood to them, that is?" that one thought. But that it served them for the salvation of their souls, saluti animarum ipsorum iudeorum, this is what a
A Christian could never have imagined it. Nothing could be more difficult.
It is indeed difficult to imagine this Jewish belief.
How! The use of this blood in food, in The drink, in circumcision, is a means of salvation for a Jewish soul! What? Christianity is not-Isn't this, in the eyes of the Jews, an abominable thing? Isn't it
This step, according to them, is a religion even worse than idolatry.

- nm

And what about Islam? Don't they boast of its use Christian blood in their food? How can that be done? blood, Christian blood, can it help in sanctification of their souls? And help him to the point of pushing, during For centuries, all the inhabitants of the O- ghettos laugh and from the West to expose their lives to grave danger and their possessions in order to have Christian blood to eat in bread, to drink in wine, to use in the circumcision — as we shall see — for the good spiritual matters of their souls?

"To give these questions an answer that does not While not entirely implausible, it is necessary First and foremost, remember this imprecation: Sanguis eius super nos and super filios nostros. It checks itself and will verify until the end of time this treacherous people and prevaricator, in the very manifest sense of the divine curse. But no one doubts that the Talmudists do not yet verify it at Passover and at the circumcision-Zion.

“Orthodox Jews use circumcision-sion of Christian blood, as a material remedy for Ja injury, they claim; but in reality, or at least especially as a spiritual remedy. Because if it is not As for a material remedy, why not also use... of non-Christian blood? One begins to think that The Jews seriously doubt whether the Messiah is not came; in this doubt, the Talmudists of Babylon, recalling the traditions of the true and holy synagogue, have, to ensure the salvation of their brothers by means of the blood of the divine Redeemer, invented the bloody rite of Passover and circumcision with Christian blood.

"Up to the present day, or at least until the 15th century, as Samuel of Trent declared, the Jews have inseigné que sanguis pueri christiani multum prodesset saluti animarum ipsorum tudeorum. This blood to be useful, ut prodesset, should have been that of a child beyond-under seven years old, that is to say, of an innocent person, that of a innocent male because, according to Hebrew tradition, The Redeemer had to be male and innocent.

"In summary, the main purpose of the bloody rite of Jews were not the contemptus and vilified of Christ, his Passion and Christianity, but salvation of their souls to be obtained by means of Christian blood em-folded at Passover and circumcision. This spiritual help-tuel originated, according to Kabbalistic and Talmudic tradition Jewish belief, in the manner of extracting blood: the The customs of the land of Babylon had decreed that this extraction was to be carried out on a child placed in the ma-the nary where Jesus was when he was killed; and it was only by a consequence in this way, not by the rite he himself, that they came to do this in contemptum and in vilipendium Jesu.

“The Jews, moreover, are of their own accord inclined to this contempt and disdain. But this cannot be the main obligation in their bloody ritual. For, if there were Therefore, it would be pointless to use a child's blood. rather than an adult and using it at Passover and in circumcision rather than in other circumstances Remarks. All ages, indeed, all eras, all circumstances would in themselves be good For the bloody rite, if the main goal of the Jews was an insult and an affront to Christ and Christianity, rather than the spiritual well-being of Jewish souls. Finally, if the insult and contempt for the Passion of Jesus Christ were the cause of this rite, why do Jews preserve-Would they carefully process this blood and sell it at a price? gold, instead of deleting it in contemptum and in contumeliam? It therefore remains demonstrated that the bloody rite of the Easter and Hebrew circumcision is a general law. a rale obliging all Jews in good conscience to serve the blood of a Christian child, first and foremost for sanctification proud and save their souls, and then, although secondarily, to bring shame and contempt upon Christ and Christianism.

'We have seen that this rule was not absolute.

y

Strictly speaking, it's not only at Easter and the circumcision, which the Jews use with Christian blood

although these are the two main circumstances where This job is done. They use it every time they
They may parody a holy ceremony of the Church.
The Moldovan rabbi also makes important points on this issue.
observations.

“When a wedding is celebrated among the Jews,” he said,
the contractors prepare themselves for it through a rigorous fast.
twenty-four hours, a fast during which one abstains even of water until sunset. Then the rahbin arrives:
He takes a hard-boiled egg, peels it and cuts it in half;
then he seasons it not with salt, but with a ash, about which we will say a few words, and when it is Thus seasoned, he gives half to each of the contractors. While they eat this egg, the rabbi recites a prayer whose meaning is this: May these two spouses might acquire the virtue of killing Christians,

€———————————————————————— RS ee et ne €———— Gens GE ne or at least the power to always deceive them and to

to enrich themselves with their wealth and their sweat.

“As for the ashes we spoke of, each will be surprised that it is used instead of salt. But the surprise-
The mystery will cease and be explained; for the ashes is not put in place of salt, but in place of Christian blood Keep it fresh. And it's actually modified Christian blood.
disguised. The blood that remains at the unleavened bread feasts, blood extracted by a horrible martyrdom of the most children young possible, used to soak a larger quantity or smaller quantities of linen or cotton, depending on whether there is more or less blood. Then we cut this cloth and we burns: the ashes are carefully collected and preserved in well-sealed bottles that are placed at the synagogue treasury. These bottles are by the following deliveries to rabbis who request them, either for use it themselves, either to ship it to the countries where no blood could be shed; and this, because it
There are no Christians, or if there are, it's because there are no Christians.
could obtain their blood, — because of vigilance from the police, or because Christians are standing on their guards and are not deceived as formerly. Finally, it should be noted that fresh blood was not born-necessary only in unleavened bread. Even in cases of necessity, When fresh blood is unavailable, it suffices to...

ashes we spoke of. Fresh blood is nothing-Less is always better.

“When Jews circumcise their children on the 1-
On the thirtieth day after their birth, the rabbi comes and takes a cup with a little good and exquisite wine. He pours into it a drop of Christian blood extracted in the midst of the towers

! XVI, 6.

ments, or a little of the aforementioned ash. He drops it there also a drop of blood from the circumcised child. And when It's all thoroughly mixed with blood; the kakam is submerged.
the little child's finger in the cup, then he introduced it-put it in your mouth, saying: "I told you, child,
"Your life is in your blood." He does this twice. The rab-Bin performs this ceremony, telling him twice that His life is in his blood; and he gives the reason that here is.

“The prophet Ezekiel said twice: ‘Live in your
" sang: Vive, dixit, inquam tibi, in sanguine tuo vive. »

"So either the prophet wants to talk about the blood of Jesus-Christ who delivered the souls of the holy patriarchs who were in limbo and were not baptized.
water baptism; and in this case the souls of the Jews would be saved by the blood of a Christian baptized with water, although the Jews themselves did not receive it this baptism. And that's one of the reasons why this Blood must be extracted from Christians with cruel twists of arms.
elements that depict the Passion of Jesus Christ.

“Or, on the contrary, the prophet Ezekiel wants to speak circumcised blood and then the Jewish child will be saved in by virtue of this drop of his own blood that the rabbi
"Mixed in wine with Christian blood."

The same details are revealed to us by the trial of Thirty in the interrogation of the Jew Angel. Already they gar-they would drink the blood of the Passover after reducing it to powder-siere; they already used this blood in circumcision;
Firstly, in order for the blood to be good, the child
He died in agony, but it also speaks there of of a ceremony on which the Moldovan rabbi is mute: a little blood was placed on the wound made by the knife of circumcision, pount de sanguine pueri christiani super preputiis circumcisorum; undoubtedly to help this wound close.

It was also the rabbis' responsibility to have Christian blood. Angel declared that he had never had cure to obtain blood for the circumcision of his children because the rabbi of Ripa, a man named Joseph, brought everything that was needed.

Ange also declared that if Christian blood were to be shed defect – what happened – it was replaced
through Armenian pills or dragon's blood, whose virtue was marvelous for closing wounds and stop the bleeding. Perhaps they were using everything
Time of the two remedies: Christian blood for salvation of the soul, of dragon's blood for the salvation of the body.
The fact remains that they will not succeed in making people believe that Christian blood was used by them as natural remedy; if it had been so, they would not have no need for the blood of a young, innocent child and died in agony.

In 1840, these monstrous practices had not changed
And the Damascus trial provides us with more than one proof of this.
as we have already reported.

Let us return to the story of the Greek monk.

"The Jews," he said, "still use this ash."
July 9th, the day on which they walk barefoot in the rain-regarding the destruction of Jerusalem carried out by Titus Vespasian. And they use it in two ways. First
They throw them into their temple: it is often imposed on them-
It's possible to get fresh blood for that! Besides, the blood Fresh air would be unsuitable for this purpose. Furthermore,

'We note some ritual murders that took place in the ap-close to this festival of desolation.

ne tc M dtiitt – re m

They season an egg as if it were their wedding day. On this day, all Jews, without exception, must eat a cooked, hard-boiled egg seasoned with the said ash. This food is called "scido ama"freikes".

“When a Jew dies, the kakam goes to his house, and preusing the white of an egg, he mixes in a little Christian blood here and a little of this ash; then he places it all on the breast of the dead man, saying the words of Ezekiel: “I “I will sprinkle pure blood on you, and you will be purified.” "Of all your defilements." Look at the corruption! EzeChiel said pure water and not pure blood. But, by virtue of these Words are used to persuade the Jews that the dead man will be received Without a doubt, in paradise.

VI

"Knowing various ways in which the Jews..." use Christian blood in their superstitious ferocity mentioned above, let us now turn to the other two circlesmain constants where they use them. We will thus see To what state of barbarity did the Jews plunge?

"They celebrate two bloody festivals: one on February 14th Friday is the festival of Purim; the other is the festival of Azvmes, that is, their Passover. In this, all the Jews must eat unleavened bread; and a certain quantity This bread is prepared by the rabbis with blood

'XXXVI, 25, Et effundam super vos aquam mundam et mundabimini ab omnibus inquinamentis vestris.

qe a — —— ——M — — ee mie de m Co Sn re Nu nce BG ==

Christian. All, young and old, even, young and old. Those who have barely finished teething must mana piece of this bread at least as big as an olive grain. This rite is called "Aufichuoimen".

The trial of Trent reveals to us in a way quite complete the horrible rites of the Jewish Passover. We will now give the account of Samuel, who was also their fully confirmed by the revelations of others accused. Here, following the official report step by step, is the

the way in which Jews use blood in unleavened bread.

The day before Passover, while the dough is being kneaded which will be used to make matzah, the father of the family —
He is always the one responsible for this task — takes a He adds a little Christian blood and places it in the dough. He puts some in more or less, depending on whether it has a larger or smaller one quantity; but it is necessary and sufficient that he put at least about the size of a lentil. He accomplished this cerecommunion sometimes in secret, sometimes in the sight of those who prayed trissent the dough. It depends on the confidence he can Granting them permission: if they are trustworthy people, he acts openly: he hides if he has reasons to be defiant.

In Samuel's house, they were his own servants vitiers who kneaded the unleavened bread dough; caril imIt was of little consequence that this was done by the hand of a man or by a woman's hand. Samuel added a few years In previous cases, he did not trust his servants and that because of this he placed the blood secretly in the dough. But in 1475, he was not afraid to do it in front of Bonaventure, his cook, who was in charge of the kneadingwise.

He then elaborated on his revelations about the ceremonies.
Easter. Blood is still used on the very evening of the Easter. Before the meal, the father of the family takes his place at

At the high end of the table, he takes a glass from which
There is wine; he places it before him and puts blood on it.
Christian. The family members surrounding him have Each man held a cup full of wine. In the middle
A dish containing three loaves of bread is placed on the table.
unleavened bread in which Christian blood has been placed. We also put in
This dish contains a little bit of everything we should eat in a meal.

The father of the family places his finger in his cup and the bathes in wine in which he has mixed Christian blood. And with with his finger he sprinkles everything on the table, saying in Hebrew: “Dam Izzardia chinim heroff dever [syn “porech harbe hossen maschus pohoros. » These words,
The official report states that these are the ten curses!
God pronounced judgment against the Egyptians, because they did not
They did not want to send his people away. Then the father of family says: “/ta nos deprecamur Deum quod immittat omnes predictas curses contra eos qui sunt contra fidem iudaicam. »

Their aim in this prayer is to obtain that these
May curses be sent upon the Christians.

Then the father of the family takes the unleavened bread and divides it cut into small pieces and give one to each person. Then he drinks the wine that is in his cup; all the others do
They do the same thing.
evening of the following day, that is to say the day after the Easter.

We felt it useful to draw a parallel between these rites and 15th century? The story that a converted Jew of the 18th century told us left on the Jewish Passover. There one will find a profound Resemblance: nothing varies among this unchanging people.

1 These words are poorly written, but in reality they express well, the ten plagues of Egypt.

Paolo Medici, discovering the Jewish Passover, recounts that "in the evening (of sero, said Samuel) they prepare the table.
In the middle, they place a covered basket (the Baccarat (of Samuel); in this basket they placed three loaves of bread azymes (in quo bacili, says Samuel, are very fleeting azi-(mate). By order of their rabbis, all Jews must
That evening, I drank four glasses of wine. Before each glass
The table is blessed and everyone drinks their glass of wine.
The head of the household takes the three unleavened breads and separates them.
first in two halves, then break them into small pieces ceaux and gives one to each of the assistants. (Father family)
lias, said Samuel, accipit dictas fugatias et unamquamque (divid:t unicuique.) They shout aloud: Here is the bread of affliction that our fathers ate in Egypt. And the head of family continues, in Hebrew language (dicendo hee verba in lingua hebraica, says Samuel), the story of the bondage and the ten plagues that God sent to the Egyptians-hold on (decem curses quas Deus dedit populo egyp-Tiano, according to Samuel). And while we're recalling the
For ten plagues, they pour a little wine; and they do this to Each of the ten words? The head of the family intones verse 6 of Psalm 518: E funde iram tuam in gentes qua te non noverunt; then a man from the house runs
At the window, take the basin where the wine of curses is.
and spreads it on the public road, taking care to pro-
"To unleash a thousand curses, especially against Christians?"

: Riti e costume degli ebrei. Turin, 1874, p. 152.

* Samuel tells the same story: Ponit digitum in ciatum suum et illum balneal in vino et aspergit dicendo hzc verba, the lyrics of the ten plagues or curses.

? Ifa nos deprecamur Deum, he said, quod. immittat omnes prædictas curses contra eos qui sunt contra fidem iudaicam intelligendo... christianos.

For sure, we see no essential difference between Passover ceremonies as told by the Jews of Thirty, in the 15th century, and the account given by Paolo Medici in the 18th century. Jean Bustorfio!, Bartolocci?, Basnage? rap-
They carry the same things with more or less detail.
From this, the veracity of the confessions collected in becomes clear.
the trial of Trent, since they are in all conformity to the accounts of other writers about the Passover of the Jews.

We anticipate an objection. Why, we will be asked-does none of the cited authors clearly mention-
The use of Christian blood? Were they unaware of it? Or, the Knowing, did they keep it quiet? The answer is not complicated-que.

If it is Basnage, it will suffice to note that his history is not only an apology, but a pane-his rant against the Jews: he even goes so far as to deny the undeniable fact of the assassination of Trent*. There is therefore no reason to to be surprised that he did not mention a rite that he had any interest in hiding.

As for Bustorfio and Bartolocci, their main goal, their scholarly works aimed to indicate and explain to search for Jewish texts, printed or handwritten, and there is no found nothing that had any connection with this rite, at least in the texts that came to their attention. Moreover, we know that among Western Jews the mystery of blood was always kept very secret and communicated only by oral tradition.

On page 153 of the Turin edition, Paolo Medici says

t Sinagoga judaica, chap. xvi.
* Biblioteca rabbinica, 2nd vol., p. 136.

s History of the Jews, vol. VI, ch. iv.

* It was against him that Father Benoit Bonelli wrote his dissertation-Apologetic work of Blessed Simon of Trent. Trento, 1747, in-4*.

that we add to the unleavened bread in the basket!, "a little of terracotta, of well-crushed brick, in memory of the servitude that their ancestors suffered in Egypt."

Leon Modena writes that in "a small basket they preparent a lamb and something else in memory of the lime and chalk that they manufactured in Egypt.” He does not say what this other thing is, but everything points to
to believe that it bears a strong resemblance to powder
of the brick that Paolo is talking about.

And this brick dust, that's blood dust
Christian coagulatus et durus, absolutely similar to brick dust, according to the existing practice in the time of Samuel. It replaces the fresh blood which people helped themselves in the ghetto when times were more favorable. And, if Paolo Medici did not penetrate
The great mystery is that we didn't look at it as a reliable person, a trustworthy person. But nothing is opposed-to ensure that this dust is not Christian blood,
On the contrary, it argues in favor of this opinion, and the Few writers who have addressed this subject agree to admit that the Jewish Passover rite of
The 18th century is in all similar to that of the 15th*.

It must still be the same today. The trial
Damascus informs us, in fact, that these horrible cou-
These laws were still in force in the East in 1840.
But as the difficulties of the times worsened, the secret
It became less and less publicized and remained confined to the
The only rabbis. They are the ones now, not the leaders. of the house, who deposit the blood in the dough, and of their
The loaves of bread are then sent to the faithful.

t A poco di lerra cotta di mattone ben pesto in memoria della Servitu che i loro antenati soffreono nell’Egitto.

The Purim festival ceremonies are no less hideous than that of Passover. The Bible teaches us to What occasion was this festival instituted? It was to celebrate Mordecai's triumph over Haman. There, they ordered great rejoicing and joyous feasts. We will to see what excesses the Jews have indulged in, now that they no longer rely on the right hand of the Lord.

"The festival they called Purim," said the rabbi mol-Dave, the Jews celebrate it in memory of their deliverance of the tyranny of Haman, through the work of Esther and Mardo-
This holiday falls, as we know, on February 14th.
in the ancient system of reckoning. The Jews then pledged to steal from as many Christians as they can, mainly the children. That night, they only sacrificed one of them.
by pretending to kill Haman. And while the body of The sacrificed child is suspended; they mock those around them.
by pretending to do so in Haman. With the collected blood, the
The rabbi makes certain loaves of bread kneaded with honey, in a triangular shape
gular, intended not for Jews, but for Christians Look, their friends!

"This is the place to warn that this ceremony, in front of
to be executed with all the fresh blood that is in the synagogue, it is not necessary that this blood be obtained through atrocious martyrdom. And this because of the blood that they collect is only used to make bread Sweet? This bread is distributed to the main families

t A correspondent from the Civilta Cattolica said in 1882:
“I myself, while I was at..., formed friendships with a Jewish rabbi from Wallachia, named AV.., who every year
I was really enjoying this triangular loaf of bread.

Let the Christians who want to eat the blood of their children
they hasten to establish trade with the Jews.

* The Damascus trial seems to contradict this assertion.

who must dispense it to Christians as a treat
Very precious. This bread is called Purim Bread.

“By the blood that the Jews shed on this day and in Others clearly demonstrate that what the prophet said has been verified.
Jeremiah (it, 34): Zn alis tuis inventus est sanguis animarum pauperum et innocentium; and even more clearly

what Ezekiel says (31:26): Who in sanguine comeditis... et sanguinem funditis. As it is true that in that night of their Purim is not found, in all the world, a Jew who is not drunk and even raving mad. They thus verify the prophet's curse: Percutiat te Dominus amentia et cæcitate et furore mentis; And palpes in meridie sicut palpare solet cæcus in tenebris, and non dirigas vias tuas. |

"Driven by this fury, the Jews steal on this day all the Christian children they can; they con- They serve in prison until Easter, which is not far off. Purim. So they kill them all in a more ferocious and more barbaric, and they gather all their blood: They use some of it in unleavened bread and preserve the remains for other circumstances where they will have need during the year. I explained how they did it. soak the tow and cotton, then reduce them into Ashes. These ashes? They are kept in bottles well sealed, which are deposited in the treasury of Ja synagogue, to send them to distant countries or to give them away to the rabbis when they request it for their rites'.

4 Deut. xxvii, 28.

* This is the famous brick dust that Leon Modena and Paolo The Medici say, the first out of malice, the second out of ignorance or caution, representing the forced labor of Jews in Egypt.

* We see in the Damascus trial that blood was also shed collected in a bottle and given to the chief rabbi.

"During this Purim festival, as I said, they did not have Christian blood is needed to make the sweet bread. And That is why it is enough for them to sacrifice a single Christian in Haman's memory. But if in this festival of Purim the Christian blood is only used to make sweet bread, and if it is not necessary that it be extracted through long and cruel processes torments, but not the same for unleavened bread. Indeed, for that one, it must be extracted in a atrocious martyrdom similar to that which the Jews inflicted to endure Our Lord in his passion. And that is why- What, they sacrifice children in their festival of unleavened bread?

"Let us conclude this Purim festival by explaining why-" The Jews make sweet bread in a triangular shape. “However, it is painful for me to express all the iniquities of my people, but I want to follow the The Savior's advice: You, do not conceal the mysteries. They do this to make light of the mystery of the Holy Trinity, which Christians believe in and venerate, And when they give this bread to the Christians, they blas- - They react horribly against this mystery and pray to God to humiliate those who believe in it.

“I must also point out that the Jews are They're happier when they can kill children, because that they are innocent and virgins and that they are a part- made them into figures resembling Jesus Christ. They sacrificed them to their Easter, to better represent the passion of Jesus Christ, who was a virgin and innocent. It is with good reason that the The prophet Jeremiah said: Among my people were found men who set nets to catch birds. Because of this shedding of Christian blood, the Jews were expelled from many kingdoms, such as Spain and other places, thus verifying the prophecy From Ezekiel: Blood will persecute you.

These are the revelations of the former rabbi Theophitus. It is not possible to call them into question, and what regardless of the seriousness of the accusations they raise against them. Jews, we must bow before these severe words which frankly bear the marks of truthfulness. No amount of hatred could incite this man to speak as he did; on the contrary, everything pushed him to hide under the veil of eternal oblivion of the infamies to which he had participated and whose disclosure exposed him to the terrible revenge by his former accomplices.

Moreover, there are testimonies, some older, some more recent. Recent evidence corroborates his account.

We have already given several proofs of this; we we would do again to anyone who would challenge the strength of the witness whom we have called. But the facts name- The many things we have recounted remain unanswered and would alone be enough to make everyone accept it The enormity of the crimes attributed to the synagogue is serious.

VII

These crimes, we have said, are caused by the necessity-
state of having Christian blood.

Yes, this is indeed the end of rabbinic worship. The vow Homicide, the death of a Christian, is a practice within this cult.
eating his blood; and the image of this sacrifice is only accepted when it is impossible to reach the reality. This is how, among the Jews, it is explained... dernes, the occult sacrifices of sheep and roosters
which we discussed in our first part.
immolates them instead of a Christian, and this act, the sacrifice-

AMONG JEWS OF ALL TIMES IF
.fiant must accomplish it with the thought that he is acting on a man, on a non-Jew, on a Christian.

But we can still see in these assassinations the
A parody of the Christian sacraments. It's the Greek monk which suggests this idea to us.

"I have said, written, that Jews murder Christians"
for three reasons: the first, because of the infernal hatred that they bring to Jesus Christ; the second, for the arts magical, superstitious, and cabalistic, because they know that the demon rejoices in human blood and especially of Christian blood; the third, by religion, because the Jews are now scattered without a priest of the descendants of Aaron; because none
A Jew cannot call himself a priest accepted by God, or at less because they don't know anyone who is like that;
because the Jews still find themselves without a temple where they may offer sacrifices pleasing to God, for he Their law forbids them to offer sacrifices to God
outside the Temple of Solomon for a long time destroyed; because, even if there were someone recognized as a priest of Aaron's lineage, he did not may offer sacrifices outside the Temple.

"From all this the Jews concluded the barbaric conseconsequence of ritual murder. And this, because they doubt that Jesus, son of Mary of Nazareth, is the true Messiah expected by them; and they believe that by the use of blood Christians, they will be saved.

"That's why they use it in circumcision."
to represent baptism. In their wedding, they mimic the same sacrament of Christians. In unleavened bread, they parody the Eucharist, in their death the extreme uncle-tion, in their sorrow for the fall of Jerusalem sacrament of penance.

"There you have it," he adds in conclusion, "everything explained." a mystery known to me, practiced and kept secret with great zeal and reserve throughout the entire time I "Jewish fu."

For us, it remains to be proven that the horrible customs, which have been of all times and all places, still survive to this day in the lowlands of ghetto. We will do it, after explaining the mechanicsnism that allowed everyone to enjoy the benefits of Christian blood, when it had been shed in a favored spot in the Highest (according to the style Jewish).

CHAPTER IV

BLOOD MERCHANTS

It was not enough to shed Christian blood in a city, in a country, the whole earth had to be covered in this beneficial dew. To this end, it a company of nomadic merchants had formed, peddlers who went from ghetto to ghetto to sell to distribute the Christian blood that everyone needed for to celebrate Easter in a holy manner.

And they sold it by weight in gold. The prescriptions Talmudic teachings concerning the use of blood were so severe conditions meant that fathers sacrificed their surpluses and often their necessary means to acquire the plot of land withoutglante that they were forced to share among their children. Infamous speculators were trafficking in the danger they had run to seize the coveted blood and they made their fellow believers pay for the fear that had transi their venal soul.

We have already seen in several places, including in Trent and Damascus, that the Jews did not hesitate to sacrificing large sums of money to satisfy their anti-Christian hatred, in the Paschal sacrifice.

Thus, we see that in the trial of 1415, they had raised up to one hundred ducats, the premium attached to the murder of a Christian child. We tell ourselves that their their devotion must have been very great, or whatever they wanted reward the courage required to perpetrate of such a crime. But such great devotion, such a broad Generosity is not in the temperament of the race Hebrew, and an explanation must be sought elsewhere. The Trial of Trent gives it to us.

The ducats, so liberally promised by Samuel and his accomplices, were soon to produce a hundred and a thousand For one. Traveling salesmen, itinerant vendors, which we have been discussing, would allow them to reto read this immense profit. They roamed the ghettos and sold blood at crazy prices, by the drop or by the pinted, depending on whether it was fresh and liquid, or old and coagulated.

Some readers may accuse us of exaggeratingration. We hope they will be kind enough to browse through the following: minutes of the trial of Trent, and they will quickly be convinced. that we have remained below the reality.

Here are some excerpts taken from the interthe rogatory acts that the judges subjected Samuel, the master from the house where the blessed man had been martyred Simon.

He was asked how he had obtained the blood for Easter, the years that had preceded the murder. He replied that he himself, about four years old previously, had bought in the city of Trento itself as much blood as a glass ampoule can hold similar to those used to hold water for bathe the eyes, which were of a very small capacity. This ampoule was about a finger's width long in its greatest dimension. The blood that... It had cost four ducats; it had been sold to him by a Jew. who bore the name Ursus. He didn't know from what place He was, but he remembered that he spoke German.

This Ursus or Bear — a nice name for a merchant of human blood — had credentials that demonindicated that the bearer was a legal man, a man in whom one could have complete confidence, because he legally practiced his profession. These letters affirmed that what he was selling was not counterfeit, that it was indeed of Christian blood. And so that no one might doubt it, these letters bore the following written in Hebrew characters:

Recommendation: "Let everyone know that what is "In Ursus's hands, it is good." And then, as legalization of these letters of credence, we read between others, this signature: “Moses of Hol of Saxony, prince-
"Pal doctor of the Jews,"

Samuel added that the blood that Ursus carried with him to sell it was enclosed in a vase, but it did not - could not remember if the vase was made of wood or something else material: the lower part of the vase, however, was of tin. In this vase, there was powdered blood, at approximately half a liter. The vase was covered-green with a sort of white wax on which one could read these Words written in Hebrew: "Moses, chief doctor of "Jews." Following this, Samuel wrote in his own hand.
and in Hebrew characters: "Samuel of Trent", showing that he too recognized in the push-
dark-colored siere the blood of a Christian child.

All these details are taken verbatim from the trial.
The minutes were kept in the Vatican archives.

which were also confirmed by the statements of others accused, as we shall see.

Israel, the son of him whom we have just heard, ra-tale "that after the murder there was talk of sending some blood to the brothers, but it was not specified which ones." He It’s easy to understand that these brothers — affines, says the Latin — were the Jews of other countries, to which Tobias, as it appears from the trial records, had sold blood of the Christian child, after having retained the quantity born necessary for the Jews of Trent for Passover.

Then he was asked how he had done in the time spent obtaining blood.

He replied that about four years earlier, he had seen in his father's hands a cup whose bottom was covered in thick, clotted blood. He added that his His father had told him that he had bought this blood from a Jew who had brought from Germany; but he did not know what it was this Jew.

Fearing that he had gone too far in this revelation From the great arcane, he sought to return to his pus; he does not succeed, after several denials faithfully reported recorded in the minutes, which are to be fully confirmed lying, what he had initially stated.

The physician Tobie did not refute these two testimonies. gnages. When asked how many years he had been in power to the family of Trent, he replied that it had been since thirteen about years, and that, during all that time, he had not He had never served, he had never heard of blood Christian. He lied boldly; but he changed his mind. soon, and here is what he said:

About four or five years earlier, he had bought the blood of a Christian child, as thick as a small walnuts, for a Rhine florin. The seller was a merchant- a traveling merchant who was to be named after Abraham. He bought blood, on Samuel's advice. For, without this advice, he would not have known if this was indeed the case. blood of a Christian child; but, that Samuel, after having Having seen the blood, he said it was indeed the blood of a Christian child.

---

ee To—To M — MM —To— e

The merchant Abraham carried this blood in a bag of red leather; he had some about the size of an egg. The blood was coagulated and divided into very fine particles.

The official report adds that Tobias gave the blood to Samuel, because he didn't have an oven like him. v bake the unleavened bread. In previous years, Before Abraham's visit, Tobit used unleavened bread. made by Samuel. The latter, in handing them over to him, did not He never failed to tell him: These loaves of bread are made like They must be; and the other understood, by this statement, that there was Christian blood in those cakes. As for As for Abraham, we don't know where he went next; but we believes it was in Feltre or Bassano.

The reader sees that the blood merchants, at the same At the time, there were several. The following statement from Even Tobie will introduce us to others.

He was asked how, in times past, Christian children who were being sold had been killed blood. He replied, that at the time when serenity The emperor was in Venice—it was six or seven years ago. years—he had found himself in that city. He was there there was a wealthy Jewish merchant there, from the island of Candia, who had brought a large quantity of blood of Christian children. He had also brought a lot of sugar.

No doubt after reading the letter of credence; for it is indeed It is impossible to distinguish the blood of one Christian from that of another. Tobie, although a doctor, admits he is incapable of doing so.

Since then, Tobie heard a certain Joseph Forbes say, who had come to Venice, following the most serene em-Pereur, that he wanted to buy blood from this merchant and that many other Jews were in the same intentions. For him, he didn't buy any, but he believed that all the other Jews had bought. There was then In Venice, a great multitude of Jews, who came following of Emperor Sigismund, to stock up on mar-goods; they avoided paying taxes, because they loaded their purchases onto the emperor's carts and passed them off as his luggage!

Tobias never spoke to the Jew of Candia, and did not know, for certain, his name and the place from his home. He was usually called the Jew of Zuccharo. He was a man of forty-four to five-forty years old, with a long beard and black hair, dressed in the Greek style, in a long black robe which fell to his feet, with a black hood which fell back onto the head. Hossar, a Jew from Venice, con-he often poured with him; he earned the nickname, Jew of the beard, by which he later became known throughout the city.

Another accused man, the Jew Angel, made himself known again another blood seller. He says that, four years ago-Before, he had bought Christian blood, as much as a bean and had paid four pounds for it, in good change. This blood had been sold to him by a man named Isaac, whose

He knew nothing else, except that he had just... Lower Germany, from the bishopric of Cologne, from a village

* Let us note in passing that the Jews we are shown computer- so unfortunate in the Middle Ages, were quite daring in this affair and that they must have been very well-connected at court to have per- to put this license and this sort of familiarity, —

His name was Naus. He was a man of about thirty years old, from of mediocre stature, bearded, almost thin, dressed in coarse cloth with a black beret on his head. Isaac wore that blood, to sell it, in a piece of linen or taffeta Red: this blood had coagulated and turned to dust. He arrived on a Thursday evening and stayed until Sunday. Next: Angel offered him hospitality in his house and During his entire stay in Trent he ate, drank and slept under his roof. This took place in winter, a shortly before Christmas. Leaving Trent, Isaac had to head towards Venice.

Ange was asked where he had lived before coming to settle in Trento. He replied that, for seven years, he had stayed with his uncle Enselinus, at the castle of Gaverdi, in the territory of Brescia.

As for how his uncle obtained the Passover blood, this is what he recounted. The first the year of his stay with Enselinus, a Jew from Brescia, Rizardus wrote to him to inform him that he was buying blood, and that he would send some to him. Enselinus confided everything this to his nephew, when he saw that he could no longer He hid it from him. And during the seven years he was there, every That year, on the eve of Passover, he would strip the unleavened bread. with his uncle, and they mixed a little of this into the dough blood. It was Enselinus who deposited it, in his capacity as head of family and as the law requires.

Finally, Moses, this coldly cruel man, whom we we have seen the martyrdom of Trent torn apart with so much a- loaned, declared that for ten years he had no longer worried about to obtain Christian blood, because, since that time, He lived in the house of Samuel, his nephew. He was not father of a family; and only fathers of families are obligated to obtain Christian blood and to use it.

But he added that twenty years earlier, when he lived in Spire, a little bit of a Christian child's blood
It was supplied to him by a Jew from Elsas named Rotpocht.
A few years earlier, in the town of Sbirter-Berg, which was his homeland – as much as a Jew can have a homeland – he received some blood from a Jew who lived in
He also kept quiet about this city and didn't remember the name. Fifty years earlier he lived in Mainz, and so he had obtained blood through Sves-Chint, a Jew from Cologne. He had always made of that blood the uses we have outlined.

He was asked what sign he used to recognize that It was the blood of a Christian child. He replied that those who had procured them for him possessed letters recommendations, issued by superiors and attesting that the bearers of these letters were people we could trust. That's how we knew that what they were wearing was actually Christian blood

Here.

After reading these faithfully translated extracts on the minutes of the Trent trial, it is impossible to re-accept the conclusions that will follow.

lI

By comparing the various statements above,
It is easy to understand what happened at Thirty around the year 1471.

It was from the depths of Germania that they emerged
the blood sellers, and from there this monstrous swarm was spreading out over the Jewish kingdom, that is to say over the known world. It's from Lower Germany, from Saxony, from Tongeren, from Bamberg, from Nuremberg, that descend-

These Jews, perfectly versed in the rites, were said to have been in Italy Rabbinical. Let's not be surprised. It's from this country from which came the Kabbalists, the Rosicrucians, the illuminers who have retained in their beautiful superstitions
A blow from Talmudic rites: the dark Germany of
The Middle Ages was the cradle of occult sciences, of Strange doctrines, savage rites. The rabbis had an easy time with this people devoted to the horrors of superstition.

As a result, ritual murders were more frequent there.
than anywhere else. Poland, Silesia, Bohemia, Bavaria is literally covered in the blood of little ones Christian martyrs, sacrificed in hatred of Christ and by obedience to the precepts of the Talmud. In these same regions, the chroniclers report each time.
page of popular movements against deicide race;
There, more than anywhere else, suspicions were vi-Vacuous and ardent, the anti-Semitic riots were relentless and intense. And it was just.

Because — we can say this without fear of being wrong —
There was hardly a year when ritual immolation is not accomplished in the place designated by fate, that which
It was either an almost deserted village, or a populous town.

The blood of the sacrificed victim was carefully collected and prepared for shipment to distant countries. We
It dried out and was reduced to dust.

"The blood that remains at the Feast of Unleavened Bread, has..." learned in 1803, the former Moldavian rabbi, blood extracted by a horrible martyrdom, serves to soak a greater quantity or a smaller quantity of linen and cotton, depending on whether they have more or less blood. Then they cut this flax, the they burn it and preserve the ashes in bottles well sealed, which they deposit at the treasury of the synagogue-

"Gogue."

It was probably in a similar way that the German Jews were preparing the blood that was to be, at a price gold, to be handed over to co-religionists who are too cowardly to commit the ritual murder themselves. The blood then acquired the appearance of brick dust red; it was, moreover, under this name or under that of Armenian pills that they pointed out to him in front of the . laypeople. They believed they had found a way to mislead the police forces of European states; and, in fact, they succeeded there-
They sired for a long time.

No doubt they were careful not to show them the letters of recommendation, which the leaders of the synagogue-Gogue gave them these letters before their departure.
were reserved for believers and even then not communicable Didn't they screw everyone over? Upon arriving in a city, they handed them over to the ghetto leader, and were recognized.
to be born of him, and, strengthened by his word, by his authority, went from door to door offering their gloomy wares say.

From the trial in Trent, it appears that the sellers of blood, although originating from diverse localities, come together-they often travel in small caravans, to earn the their destination. Thus, in 1471, we we find several German peddlers at once in the city of Trento. The Tyrolean valleys had them led to Italy; they stopped for some time at this a center of Judaism and from there they took flight towards the distant ghettos that lay in wait for them to come with impa-
They were overjoyed and exultant upon their arrival.

Smaller industrialists did not attempt exploration. They were content to wander through the cities from their country and to distribute their terrible commodity there, disgusting business.

Moreover, Germany was not the only country that had this monopoly and we saw a Jew from Candia in Venice to engage in this horrible, large-scale trade. This fact suggests that-Some thoughts.

The assembly of Venice, around 1468, shows us how-
The use of blood must have been widespread in the 15th century.
All these Jews, who had flocked there following the em-
Father Sigismund had come there to obtain...
Christian blood powder, including the merchant of Candia had a large supply. The Jews, moreover, vi-were then in great safety in Veneto, and freely went about celebrating their san- rites guinaires. But everything changed in the face of the assassination of B. Simon.

The trial notes, the investigations, the research,
Everything was communicated to the Venetian government, and Then it was discovered that many infanticides of the of the same nature had been committed by the Jews on the territory of the Republic. They were banished from it to ja-but.

The same crimes would be discovered elsewhere, if we was conducting a somewhat serious investigation. For us, What surprised us most while writing this book was the mass of ignored, yet perfectly authentic, documents However, they came into our hands. It must be said that the world remains in great ignorance of the truth A remarkable story.

Held on a leash by Israelite gold, the governments Christians themselves helped in the expansion of this ignorance, as if the Jews, who defend themselves so well, did not know how to oppress others, without the assistance of Christians. For us who wanted to go to the heart of the things, we simply say what we have gathered in the study of the irrefutable documents that remain in our hands.

Let's leave this digression aside and return to our motons. One should not believe that the blood markets Christians only had their day in Germany and in Italy. Various documents from the Middle Ages tell usonly for several centuries did the same customs persist. reigned constantly in France, Spain, and AnEngland, in short, throughout Europe.

Throughout the Middle Ages, child murders occurred renewed at almost regular intervals; at specific eras, the peddlers of pulverized blood were appearing within the communities Jewish women. They came with their red bags in one hand and their deep satchel of the other: the people, respectful, received a pinch of the precious powder and in return he was rolling the gold coins into the hideous man's purse street vendor.

This is what was done in the 15th century. And yet It was a century of enlightenment: we were on the eve of During the Renaissance, printing was invented, and... true America, the arts, letters, sciences prewere experiencing unprecedented growth. In Europe, then teemingslow the Enselinus, the Rizzard, the Samuel, the Moses Old, the Isaacs of Cologne, the Bears of Saxony, who all Their lives involve selling, buying, and using Christian blood.

The 19th century also claims to be a century light; and yet it is highly probable that the infamous

The trade in Christian blood still continues.

Until 1803, this is certain; we know it from the statements of the Greek monk that we have already quoted.
The blood was preserved in the form of ash in the treasury.
the synagogue; he was handed over to the rabbis of the country and even to foreigners whenever they had need. The ease of communication has eliminated the traveling salesmen and the blood of our martyred children can now travel, without risk or peril, 'under the e-pharmaceutical quest.

Let us conclude this chapter with a document whose importance
The criticism will not escape anyone's notice.

Here, according to A. Laurent, is an excerpt from a letter by Count de Suzannet to the French consul in Damascus, Letter written during the proceedings of the 1840 trial:

"One fact I would like to draw your attention to is this-here: about a year ago, a box arrived at customs,
A Jew comes to claim it; he is asked to open it,
He refuses and first offers 100 piastres, then 200, then 300, then 1,000 and finally up to 10,000 piastres (2,500 francs).
The customs officer persists, opens the door, and discovers a bottle of blood. To the question addressed to the Jew, he replies that they were in the habit of preserving the blood of their chief rabbis or important figures. He was left to go and he left for Jerusalem, the fact is known to the the presence of all the authorities and the customs officer who made the
The seizure is in Damascus.

Laurent adds: "Mr. de Ratti-Menton, having searched-
He went to the head of customs and learned that he was dead.
his successor, who had been his partner, only remembered that vaguely understood this matter; he only believed he could to ensure that instead of a bottle, the box contained

'Syrian Affairs, IT, 301.

a number of vials (10 to 12) containing a red liquid substance, and that it seemed to him that the claim-
The mant was the Jew from Damascus, Aaroun Stambouli, who had said that this substance was an effective drug in certain diseases.

Comparing this fact to the revelations of Trent, isn't it...
It is not permissible to conclude that this Aaroun, who, the year
next, murdered Father Thomas's servant, voya-was then used for the needs of the synagogue and that the horrible trade in Christian blood is still carried on nowadays?

CHAPTER V

THE GUILTY ONES

Faced with the countless scenes of carnage that we have recounted or reported, it is impossible to deny the bloody sacrifice; also the friends of the Jews, convinced Faced with this impossibility, they invoked another means and Did they think they could get away with it by rejecting these horrific mistakes?
Ribes not on the Israelite nation, but on some isolated individuals driven by a strange fanaticism
to these strange excesses.

Many Catholic writers were taken in.
to this spiel and, being good-natured, easily excused the Jews of the infamies with which they were charged.

The precept, "Thou shalt not kill," they say, was formal for all Israelites and no human life was not exempt from this protective law. As for what happened in the Middle Ages, or still happens in some country since the establishment of Christianity, the fanaism alone could have produced these isolated facts; for the precept divine, under Mosaic law as under Christian law,
is always the same.

Under Mosaic law, yes, undoubtedly; but this law is
It had fallen into disuse in the ghetto. What we find there adore, it is no longer the god of Moses, it is the dreadful Phoenician Moloch, to whom we must, as human victims, mothers, children, and virgins. The Decalogue of the Mo-Gaique gave way to the rabbinical precepts of The Talmud, which became for Israel the code of all truth.

"Everything it contains. (in the Gemara of Babylon, says Maimonides is obligatory for all of Israel. And one obliges every city, every country to comply to the customs established by the doctors of the Gemara, to follow their orders, to conduct themselves according to their instructions tutions, because the entire body of Ghémara was approved throughout all Israel. And the wise men who gave these institutions tutions, these decrees, established these customs, pronounced these decisions, taught these doctrines, sometimes formed the universality of the doctors of Irael, sometimes the majority. They were the ones who had received the foundations by tradition. of the whole law, from generation to generation, going back– "So much for Moses."

The authority of the Babylonian Talmud is so great and so respectable that, according to this same doctor, Anyone who violates its regulations must be put to death. and even without judgment:

“Those who violate the precepts of the Scribes,” he said, must be punished more severely than those who violate The Law of Moses. An offender of the Law of Moses may be absolved, but the violator of the rabbis' precepts must to be punished by death.... The first of the faithful to arrive must to put to death the Jew who denies the tradition of the rabbis... No witnesses, no prior admonition, no judges are necessary. Whoever performs this task has the merit "It was a good deed: he removed the scandal."

And note that the followers of the Talmud are not not an exception among the Jews, whom they make up at On the contrary, the vast majority of the nation. There are thousands and thousands of Talmudic scholars; the Karaites, the only those who reject this abominable book form a a small sect comprising no more than 1,200 members. Their action, because of their small number and their poverty is almost nonexistent; those of their nation keep them at a distance, and envelop them in contempt; a hatred almost as great as the one they bear to Christians.

We must therefore conclude that all Jews – then – that all remained faithful to the Talmud – surrender guilty of the monstrosities we have revealed.

Let's try to demonstrate this as best we can.

If we consider things only in themselves, we are already led to this conclusion. Indeed, if the The Talmudic assassinations were perpetrated by a savage sect. The fanatic, how could they have multiplied from the sort of in countries very far apart from each other, in Spain, *in France, in Italy, in England, in Germany Magne? How, with each reissue of these horrors, Would they have called in the representatives of an entire country? — One the sect consists of a few men selected from among a people, but it never extends to an entire nation. Note especially that the sect that practiced sacrifice- Bloody fice pleases only a few followers, if we consider it Let's believe the defenders of Israel. But it is impossible _ to do it.

Let's return once again to the Trial of Trent. If the The crime was the work of a few blind fanatics. Would all the Jews of Italy and Europe have embarked on this path? in the intrigues, as they did, to save the Accused?

Do Christians succumb to oppression? We pity them, given the temptation to commit a crime, but we let's do nothing to uproot them, by means unjust, to a justly deserved punishment. This is the the very essence of human character.

Jews are human beings like us, and, as such, when they are not blinded by fanaticism and the hatred, they must feel deep in their hearts a strong revulsion for injustice. If they trample underfoot this repulsion, if despite everything they want to save the coupables, it's that they recognize their solidarity, it's that they they themselves feel caught up in their guilt. One can only defend a criminal so well when one has participated -a little bit to his crime. All the Jews of Europe had parinvolved in the crime of their Tyrolean coreligionists, that is by themselves sacrificing Christian children, either by using pulverized blood in their ceremonies that peddlers distributed everywhere.

This astonishing solidarity would be enough to demonstrate to us that everywhere the Jews had the same hor- customs However, we find further proof of this.

still strong in the fact demonstrated by Abbot Chabauty!, the sustainability of a single government at The Jews were dispersed. This fact will undoubtedly surprise. many readers still poorly initiated into Jewish matters questions; let us show that however it is beyond doubt.

"[It is historically undeniable that, since their Dispersion until the 11th century, the Jews had a center visible and known unity and direction."

ee

After the destruction of Jerusalem, this center was found He spent a long time sometimes in Japhne, sometimes in Tiberias; he was represented by the Patriarchs of Judea, who enjoy They knew with great authority. "They decided the cases of conscience and the important affairs of the nation; they they led the synagogues as senior leaders; they levied taxes; they had officers called- the "apostles" who carried their orders to the Jews of the most remote provinces, which collected the tributes. Their wealth became immense. These patriarchs acted in an overt or covert manner, depending on the Roman emperors' policies towards the Jews. They disappeared under Theodosius.

Above these Patriarchs were the Princes of captivity, which they long contemplated in Babylon.

“Jewish writers make a big difference between the patriarchs of Judea and the princes of the exile. They claim that the first ones were only the lieutenants. of the second kind. The princes of captivity had the qua- the absolute authority and power of supreme leaders of the entire The dispersion of Israel. According to the tradition of the doctors, they would have been instituted to take the place of the former kings; and they have the right to exercise their dominion over the from all countries of the world.

The caliphs of the East, frightened by their power, their provoked terrible persecutions, and from the By the 11th century, history ceases to mention these leaders. of Israel.

The Jews are our masters! Paris, Palmé, 1882.

Did they disappear completely, or did they carry them away?

1 Theodore Reinach affirms this in his history of the Israelites.

Elsewhere, the seat of their power? This second hypothesis thesis is by far the most likely, being given the following documents:

I

Letter from the Jews of Arles to those of Constantinople.

Honorable Jews, greetings and grace. You should know that the king of France, who is once again master of the country of Provence, forced us by public outcry to become Christians hold on or leave its territory. And those of Arles, Aix and People from Marseille want to take our property, threaten our lives.
ruin our synagogues and cause us a lot of trouble;
which makes us uncertain about what we should do to the law of Moses. That is why we ask you to want Wisely, we should ask ourselves what we must do. Chamor, Rabbi of the Jews of Arles, on the 13th of Sabbath 1489.

He

Response of the Jews of Constantinople to those of Arles
and from Provence.

Beloved brothers in Moses, we have received your letter in which you make us aware of the anxieties and the
The inaccuracies you are enduring. We have been deeply affected by them.
of as great sorrow as yourselves.

The opinion of the greatest rabbis and jurists of our law is the following:

You say that the King of France is forcing you to make Christians: do it, since you cannot do otherwise.
but let the law of Moses be kept in your heart.

You say they want to take your property; make your en-merchant children, so that, through trade, they might...
They rob the Christians of their own.

You say someone is trying to kill you: have your children doctors and apothecaries so that they might destroy that of Christians, without fear of punishment.

You say they are destroying your synagogues: fail your enfanis canons and clerics so that they would destroy their church.

You say that you are subjected to many other forms of harassment: do your children lawyers, notaries and people who are ordinarily applied to public affairs, and by this means you will dominate the Christians, conquer their lands and sell you manage them.

Do not deviate from this order that we give you.
because you will see from experience that, lower than you Stay, you will reach the peak of power.

VSSVEF, Prince of the Jews of Constantinople, the 21 of Casleu! 1489,

Abbot Chabauty perfectly demonstrated the authenticity
The ticity and scope of these documents.

“It was,” he said, “a political and social policy.”
ciale, which they requested and which, in fact, they received Spanish and Provençal Jews. From then on, we can explain.
perfectly why, leaving aside all their documents scholars and rabbis from neighboring regions and even from within They, however, are addressing their concerns elsewhere, far away, in Constantinople.
because, and this must be true for us now, of all Clearly, their supreme leader resided in this city.
not only religious, but also political; there was the head of the nation.

This prince of Constantinople was the successor of princes of the Babylonian exile. He was there in the center of the dispersion and he enjoyed full authority: he
He ruled like a master and was punctually obeyed.
the line of conduct he outlined for the Jews of Provence has
has been admirably maintained to this day.

'The month of Casleu corresponds to the end of November and begins- |
December; the month of Sabbath, in January and February.

Therefore, we should no longer be surprised by the remarkable unity of throughout history among the Jewish people. For a long time it was believed that he there were in the world only detached members of the Israelite nation, but these members were linked by invisible threads to a powerful head and formed a
a single body where everything was concord and harmony.

This naturally explains the assistance that these members lent themselves to each other without loving each other; for it is known that the charity, that beautiful Christian sentiment, is unknown among the Jews. The orders of the supreme leader put everything in shake.

We must believe that the same was true for everything
This concerned the bloody rite. This rite was not so good practiced, was so widespread only because it was accompanied folded under the auspices of a single head. Since the Jews got along so well on everything else and walked Together, they could not disagree on a
This point is also important. Such a divergence would have broken harmony. Moreover, the entire nation accepted the res-responsibility for these crimes; we don't see why we would remove this responsibility from him, when so many facts, his-
Some, in fact, contribute to strengthening it further.

We will go even further. The same effects presuppose the same causes. Now, nowadays, the Jewish nation conducted exactly as in the 15th century. Would it be reckless-
It is wrong to assert that this same agreement stems from the same principle?

Abbot Chabauty proved otherwise, by several important documents where he tells us that the Jews obey today, as in the past, a leader occult, but unique.

This leader exists; he has the same power as the middleman.
age, he leads his nation along the same paths, and he is not

It's hardly possible to doubt that the same superstitions
Wild animals still exist in Israel.
Let's unravel it.

II

There is no room for doubt, as far as TO- is concerned laugh and Eastern Europe. The savage and bloody rite- the Easter celebration is still on full display there in all its hours rer.

The Jewish woman Ben-Noud tells us that, throughout her During her stay in Latakia, she only ate meat very rarely; and this is because the animals must to be killed by a rabbi, or at least in his presence. There was no rabbi in this small town and it was only when a "master" was passing through that one could slaughter a butcher's animal. Since the Jews, in order to obey their rabbinic laws, deprive themselves of eating meat for a very long time, how much even more so are they capable of celebrating the Easter as in the Middle Ages.

This is just an induction. But we will see it. soon took shape and transformed into an accusation formal. And first, let us remember that Ben-Noud told us already said that every year, at Easter, they sent From Aleppo to Latakia, two kinds of unleavened bread: mossa and the Mossa Guesira, where there was Christian blood.

The assassination of Father Thomas gave a terrible confirmation information on these already overly certain clues. One only has to read the statements of the accused and witnesses to con-to overcome that no significant change has occurred for several centuries, in the celebration of Easter Jewish.

Finally, even more recently, proof of the meme This fact is found in several letters written from Egypt to Civilta cattolica, and here is the translation:

"I take the liberty of expressing certain things to you!" ideas I acquired in the East about Jewish trials. While reading the Roman correspondence of fascicle 748 (August 29, 1881) I see that the rabbi of Paris, L. Wogué?

cries out loudly against the fabricated blood slander, he said, speak Christians; I see that he is unleashing his fury with rage against the Greeks of Alexandria in Egypt. And that because in this year 1881, the Jews had to pass
"These are bad days here."

In this correspondence, Cıvilta had slightly affected by the recent event of the murder of a Greek child, in the occasion of Easter. She had not at all affirmed the truth of the matter on which the trial was based. She she had simply recalled the Egyptian tradition regarding the ritual murders of which the Jews were accused,
His correspondent continued:

"Why is Mr. Wogué making so much noise this year? Wasn't it last year (1880) that he was not of this world? Or did he begin his me-A third of a journalist? Is it only this year that these riots against Alexandria, Egypt, have arrived in Egypt.
The Jews? No. But here's why he didn't do so much of uproar last year than today. Last year, Although an identical case had occurred in Alexandria, the

'This letter was written in December 1881.
* Editor-in-chief of the Israelite Universe.

Jews did not have to endure a bad
day. And that's because we barely knew In fact, the body having been removed from the Jewish street and taken to the hospital. Furthermore, the father of the murdered child was not in Alexandria; he was the captain of a ship-Cyprus. Jewish gold had the power to make the customary miracles, as you will read in the attached newspaper clipping.

This was a passage from the Zrompette* of April 2, 1880;
The local newspaper reported:

"Although the entire press agreed, as he it could not have been otherwise, to demonstrate that the
the death of the child from the Marine district was completely accidental and fortuitous; although the evidence of the fact, such as the autopsy of the corpse, the investigations and the depositions sites, have noted that there is not a shadow of guilt in this very unpleasant event, nevertheless Just yesterday we had to report collisions, altercations and brawls in all neighborhoods of the city... It's a disgrace that it's already been six days since

This riot reigns against a class of citizens who do not
It did no harm to anyone. The Prefect, the agents of The police, the guards themselves, provided evidence of caution... Let us therefore hope that through a new intervention
If the authorities intervene, reason will triumph over fanaticism.
of superstition and ignorance.

The Civelta correspondent continues:

"The deed was soon done thanks to three thousand sols-" data that came from Cairo. But if the matter was dormant
And once the fire was extinguished, those who were not persuaded were not persuaded.

'This newspaper was published in Alexandria in the Holy Square-Catherine.

had seen the corpse in the Jewish street: a cold cadaver of a child whose veins had been opened at pulse in the hands and feet and in the neck, without a drop of blood on the ground and on the corpse, without a single broken bone,
The skull being healthy and intact. That was a long time ago.
eyewitnesses, including the person writing to you.
Doctors and Jews saw the opposite. A true miracle!
Let us add that the father of the murdered child, having learned
The adventure began in Cyprus and ended in Alexandria. But it...
He was forbidden to go ashore and had to be content to see Alexandria from the port and leave immediately. And That's why, last year, the rumors and the low-
The storms were short-lived. But that was not the case.
this year. Here are the letters that were written to me from A-Alexandria.

Alexandria, 1881.

Once again we are in a fierce struggle with the Jews.
They killed another Greek child who was found drowned.
in the sea near the customs house. The whole town mobilized on the move and began to beat the Jews and to kill. Help was requested from Cairo, from where it was sent 3,000 soldiers. The city lived for several days in a veritable state of siege, which, although less rigorous, still lasts Today. And what did we do? Nothing. The parents refused. to hand over to the authority the body of the child and the people
The Greek supported the refusal; thus wisdom had to proceed.

The child, still bearing the marks of the blows, remained for several days displayed in his parents' house rents. Many Greeks, Latins, and others of all religions
The people came to see him and left indignant. The other"
That day, there were 5,000 of them in the square, demanding justice.
to the consuls, and the troops, what were they doing? They appeared frightened. A sad sign. The immolated child has finally been trans-forcibly taken to the Greek hospital, where several doctors mu-Muslims and Europeans have stated the opposite of what we believed it to be the truth. All the newspapers published their rapport. A man named Joseph Lévy wrote in La Trompette the words of Pope Innocent I and other sovereign Pontiffs declaring that it is slander to want to attribute to the Jews

Some atrocious acts? The turmoil is not yet over.
Several prominent Greeks addressed their consul and their patriarch. The governor was deposed yesterday. We have-sent from Cairo a commission for a proper trial.
The alleged culprits are being held in prison and we'll see.
the outcome of the case; what is certain is that the atrocious act Jews find credit this year with two-thirds of inhabitants. As I write this, calm reigns, but it is not than an apparent calm.

Here is what we read in another letter:

Alexandria, April 9, 1881.

The Jews have again killed a Greek child this year, schis-matic. 3,000 soldiers came from Cairo and put the city in a state of siege. Without it, the Greeks would exterminate all the Jews, about twenty of whom were fatally attacked.
The doctors, as was their custom, said that the child had been Drowned, not slaughtered. But all the Grees who saw him exposed
In his parents' house, they say he was slaughtered.

This murdered child was named Evangelio Fornaraki.

A commission was formed on this matter, composed of consuls of France, Germany, Austria, Italy and of Greece. Opinions were divided. The majority admitted the possibility of crime without finding it sufficiently established; she added that the suspicions that hung over the Baruch family were not enough to do to believe that the responsibility lay with her

'This refers to the alleged bull of 1247 published by Innocent IV and not by Innocent III.

* (were the false bulls with which the Jews of Trent had already tried to use it.

of the assassination, as popular opinion claimed.

The minority's conclusions were more rigorousreuses. Without absolutely admitting that it was a crime, She ruled out the possibility of an ordinary accident, and asserted that the greatest suspicions hung over the Baruch family.

The Greek consulate initiated legal action against The Baruch family, who were blamed for the assassination. The documents from the trial were sent to Athens, and the governor-
A Greek man had the Baruch family imprisoned. Since then, Some newspapers reported that she was acquitted.

Is that true? It's permissible to doubt it when one sees The Jewish Archives 1 affirm that this family was "released on bail, after eight or ten months of "Arbitrary detention." It is likely that the case has not The matter has never been clarified and never will be. The Jews They are very happy about it.

This fact, added to the enormous number of similar facts The genre reported in this work proves that the rile | The bloody conflict among the Jews of the East has not ceased. It famous in such a savage and barbaric way than in the 10th and 15th centuries.

What we say about the East, we must say about Eastern Europe, for Russia, Turkey, especially Hungary and Romania. How many times, towards the time During Easter, children disappear in these countries and even adults whose traces cannot be found! Europeans, who travel to these lands, the know well and could affirm that the belief Popular opinion accuses the Jews of these misdeeds.

Issue No. 19 of February 1882.

III

But, one might say, the Jews of Western Europe, the
The Jews of France no longer stoop to such infamies.
Civilization transformed them.

We would like to believe it. Unfortunately, for whom?
If you know the Jews, it's almost necessary to have a contrary belief.

Could it be solely the case of Crémieux and Montefiore?
going to defend and save the murderers of Damascus; not there Would it have been possible that the treasures sent from Europe on this occasion-sion; would there be only the attempted murder in Turin against the
Mr. Gervalon's wife, one could conclude that the per-current persistence of the paschal sacrifice, of ritual murder.
And there's much more.

What does this wine mean according to the ancient law of Moses?
Coscer, this Coscer bread, this Coscer grocery store, that is to say ritual, which we see announced on page four Jewish newspapers, especially as Passover approaches.

On March 16, 1882, one could read among the announcements of Jewish Archives: Groceries for the use of the Israelites Easter celebrations; Mrs. Haas is in charge of the bread.
unleavened bread. — And immediately after: Pro- factory Food products: products for Passover. — In the March 9th issue: Vin coscer (ritual) for Easter.
— In the December 8th issue: Recommended House-dee; kosher wine. — In the issue of January 19, 1882 and elsewhere passim, kosher wine, with the certificate of chief rabbi'.

'The blood peddlers also had certificates of their rabbis.

e
Of Or

The Almanac for the Use of Israelites, published by Blum (11, rue des Rosiers), is filled with advertisements of this kind.
It lists ordinary restaurants and restaurants rants "causcher". Several pastry chefs declare they supply the ordinary unleavened breads for Passover; and another said that he alone can provide everything that is needed for the celebration of Easter. Since there are ordinary unleavened breads, therefore there are extraordinary ones, which are not delivered into just anyone's hands. In the East too,
There is the Mossa and the Mossa Guesira; the similarity is striking.
pante £.

There is no classifieds page for Jewish newspapers.
which does not indicate, sometimes in one way, sometimes in another, sometimes in Hebrew, sometimes in the vernacular, the fabricants and the merchants where Jews can obtain the ritual bread and wine, that is to say, well prepared for Easter. And to confuse the uninformed reader
In Jewish practices, the word coscer is written differently.
rents ways: cascer, coscer, kascer, koscer or otherment.

And these announcements are not useless. Because all the bread unleavened bread, which the Jews need for Passover, comes to them from the same center. The Jews of Elbeuf, for example, the They receive it from Paris. In France, we do things the way we used to do things.
in Latakia, during the time of Ben-Noud: they sent him
From Aleppo, the mossa guesira, the unleavened bread with blood Christian.

O Jews of France, what do your wine and your bread mean?

Note that unleavened bread generally sells for 15 francs.
per kilo; doesn't such a price seem to indicate that they are paving the
The blood that was used to make it?

Let us add that children are often massacred in France, in approaching Easter in a mysterious way,

ritual, and, what's worse, your certificate from the chief rabbi?
This ritual and this certificate, after the revelations of the 15th and from the 19th century, make us think of wine prepared with brick dust or blood in powder form, like your modern law, not the old one, imposes it on Jews who observe the bloody rites of the Talmudic Passover.

Otherwise, what would this ritual word mean? Does it mean, By chance, that the wine is good and pure? But why So it must be certified as such by a chief rabbi! rather than by a good wine connoisseur? Don't the Jews Do they only drink good wine on Easter Day? And when Even pure and good wine is ever called cascer wine, ritual wine?

Note also that the same adjective cascer or ritual also occurs, especially in Germany, on the newspaper ads and shop fronts for the Passover bread. It is clear that this wine, that this Easter bread is prepared nowadays by rabbis. in a special way. Without that, it would not be It is necessary to have a bakery for unleavened bread special and a certificate stating that it is indeed what it It must be, since everyone knows how to make it.

It would be truly curious if Jews today, confident in our ignorance of their rites, they dared selling in public, in major European cities their bread and their Passover wine attested to be bloody by the legal letters from their rabbis, as had place in the Middle Ages, according to what we know of the pro-Council of Thirty.

That wouldn't be as strange as one might think.

Note that, according to the Damascus trial, the blood is hand-holding deposited in the hands of the chief rabbis.

at first glance. Indeed, it would only be today that the bloody rites of the Jews would cease to be obligatory gatoires or at least would cease to be necessary to their spiritual salvation.

However, these rites being, as we have demonstrated, not only obligatory, but necessary for their salvation spiritual, according to their foolish belief, one concludes that Every Orthodox Jew must still observe them. days; for this they use prepared bread and wine with Christian blood powder.

Israel doesn't change. All the revelations, the old ones chronicles, the trial of Trent, the book of Rabbi Mol-Dave, the Damascus trial, teach us the same depravities. The use of Christian blood is very ancient;

It preceded the total dispersal of the nation, it continued to this day by Talmudic laws and rabbinical, and it certainly still continues today
wherever there is an Orthodox Jew.

Israel does not change: as it was, so it is, so it will be.

CHAPTER VI

THE PUNISHMENT

What was the follow-up to the attacks we have sketched the grim picture?

She was almost always what she was meant to be.
turally. Facts of this kind, directed against lechris-Tianism when it was in its full bloom, could not fail to incite against their authors a inextinguishable condemnation, to arouse irremediable curses, to raise storms of unpredictable homicides cations.

And this happened repeatedly.

How many times the riot rumbled at the barriers of the ghetto!
The poor, those who suffered because of Judaism, those whose children were stolen, those who were robbed by wear and tear were gathering one fine morning when a new a vile iniquity came to lash them in the face, when a
The new martyr cried out for vengeance to heaven; they rushed on the shacks or the rich homes of Israel, they they set everything ablaze, and when they had extinguished Having calmed down, they returned to their quiet rest.
at work. These movements occurred spontaneously nement, as has happened again recently in Lower Austria. The people, exasperated, defying the slowness of justice, which allowed itself to be too subdued wind corrupted by Israelite gold, — he applied-even the horrible law of retaliation, showing, by its excesses memes, the path that civil power should follow for the safeguarding of the nation or the city.

The princes, the municipalities, did not always turning a deaf ear to these predictions; there is no country Indeed, why were the Jews not expelled one day or the other. In many cities of Bavaria and the
In Poland, Jews could not remain after the coup
dear to the sun, or were only tolerated at the time of fairs. And all these expulsions were due to assassinations-Talmudic sinats.

Let's mention two that are less well known.

At the end of the 12th century, when Philip Augustus ascended
The Jews were very powerful on the throne of France.
in our country. They had taken advantage of the forbearance of the early Capetians and had exploited the peace which enjoyed the kingdom. "After a fairly long stay they were so wealthy that they had acquired prayed near half the city (of Paris), and that at contempt for the will of God and for ecclesiastical rules (which forbade any contact between Jews and Christians) (look), they had in their houses a great many of servants, both men and women, born in the Christian faith,
but who openly deviated from the laws of religion of Christ, to Judaize with the Jews+.

'Collection of memoirs relating to the History of France, XI, 21.

That wasn't the only problem. The Jews couldn't enter.
in a country without dragging a whole deluge in their wake of pain and suffering.

They openly practiced usury, and by lending to a
At an excessive rate, they quickly seized the assets knights, peasants, bourgeois "in the towns, suburbs, and cities.” Number of debtors, whose assets had not been sufficient to
to pay off debts, they groaned in prisons; that is It's always the same thing: gold or blood!

— Give me your fortune, give me your life, give-
"Me, your faith," such is the eternal cry of the Jew against the Christian.

How happy they were to mock this abhorred faith.
In those days, they did it every day. The churches, Indeed, driven by harsh necessities, they had to

to pledge the vases and ornaments to the Jewish bankers sacred things. These wretches were handing over these holy things.
to their children who made sacrilegious toys out of them:
in the chalices, they dipped "cakes in wine” and used it for their orgies and their debauches.

During the reign of Louis VII, Philip Augustus had often outraged by these attacks. But, as he was young and showed in all things great submission to
He had, in accordance with his father's wishes, overcome his indignation.
in his heart, waiting for the day when he himself would master. . l

Furthermore, he had often heard young people say the great ones that were raised with him in the palace — and these words had never left his memory — that the Jews who lived in Paris secretly went down

---

* Collection of memoirs relating to the history of France, XI, p. 15.

every year in underground retreats, on the day of Easter, or during this holy week dedicated by our mourning, and that they were making a sacrifice where they immolated
they were a Christian for insulting the Christian religion.

"It was added that they had long persevered in this despicable practice! And that under the reign of his Father, we often seized the guilty parties to deliver them to the fire. St. Richard, whose body rests in the church of Saint Innocent des Champeaux, in Paris, was thus slaughtered and crucified by the Jews, and deserved by this marTyre, the joy of ascending into the kingdom of heaven...
The most Christian king, having therefore carefully informed himself and fully convinced of the truth of these crimes, and of many others committed by the Jews, under the reign of his ancestors, was inflamed with a holy zeal, and few of some time after he had taken the reins of government,
He issued an edict, according to which the Jews were to have left the kingdom on Saint John's Day. This took place at April 1182. The buildings were confiscated in profit of the crown; all debts were forgiven; Jews could sell or take away their property furniture.

Desolation reigned in Israel. The sons of the ghetto had so well imagined that the kingdom of France appeared to themheld that they could not believe that anyone would think of them to drive them out. Some converted to preserve towards their riches. "Others, more loyal to their former blindly and content in their perfidy, they sought to seduce with lavish gifts and beautiful pro-

1 This sentence from the columnist seems to indicate that the murders rituals were in use among the Jews, before the authentic examplestics that we have reported. This is, moreover, our conviction-tion.

masses the princes of the earth, the counts, barons, archbishops and bishops, wanting to try whether, by dint of con-their rebukes, their brilliant promises, their Protectors could not shake the will.
irrevocable decisions of Philippe...

"The unbelieving Jews, seeing the little success of their efforts and no longer being able to rely on the in-'influence of the powerful, which had always served them until-then, free to dispose of the will of kings as they pleased, did not see not without astonishment the magnanimity and the unwavering King Philip's firmness, and they were forbidden and as stunned.

They soon regained their composure and their aptitudes commercial studies; they sold their property "with "a surprising promptness." They took it away
price with them and left the country in July 1182. Philip was seventeen years old when he did this deed of the State.

He did not reap all the fruits to which he was entitled.
to wait. The false converts continued their relays
tions with their expelled brothers, and helped them return without a sound; the king himself soon moderated the violence of his edict, because he realized "that he had killed the hen" to the golden eggs.” Moreover, political affairs and the wars were bound to divert his attention from economic issues. So the Jews benefited.
wonderfully from this relaxation and again
Their businesses flourished in France until the great
expulsion of 1394.

Drumont told the story, let's just be content with the men-let's discuss the one in Trento, based on a documentary almost unknown.

II

We have just seen that in France, a canonical law The law forbade relations between Jews and Christians. The same was true in many other countries; when They could stay there, they had to wear a sign distinctive and to shut themselves off in their neighborhood. This allows them arrived in Trento, after the assassination of B. Simon; we We have proof of this in the following document, published recently by an Italian magazine! Our translation like that of all the documents reported in this book, press the text as closely as possible.

"By order and mandate of the Most Illustrious and ReverendRendissime Chapter of Thirty?

"The Most Illustrious and Reverend Chapter consideredranting the trials undertaken in the past against the nation Jewish so harmful everywhere, and particularly in this city and principality of Trent because of the misthe deplorable and strange barbarity that she exercised against the gloSaint Martyr and Innocent Saint Simoncino, and for which She was banished in perpetuity from that same city and princecapital of Trent, only allowing him the pure and simple passage, with the obligation to carry, sometimes to the head, sometimes on the chest, but in a vipossibly a prescribed sign, in order to let everyone know, in all the time, they were Jews passing through; consideredrant that, for some time now, it has introduced

---

1 Civ, cattol, of January 21, 1882.

* The seat was vacant, the chapter had the government of the city.

Se —

abuses and disorder, because these Jews mix cunning to a profound skill, to conceal various ways the sign that was imposed upon them, so that they They pass by with impunity, without being noticed or recognized.

"The Most Illustrious and Reverend Chapter, wishing to prevent these abuses and disorders, by following the example formerly practiced to the greater glory of the same Innocent S. Simon and by adhering to the other proclaimed-regulations and decrees published on this subject — by this edict, breaks and revokes all passports and licenses permits so much so that the Jewish nation may remain in some place that is, banishes in perpetuity the same nation no not only from this city, from this district, but also from the town of Riva, castles, villages, lands, cities and jurisdictions of the temporal domain of this bishopric and principal Citizenship of Trent; ordering in a manner that would selaughing and commanding that in the future no Jew would may, under any pretext whatsoever, remain or to linger in this city or in Riva, no more than in the castles, lands, towns, cities and districts of this episcopal temporal domain of Trent. They are allowed purely and simply the pure passage; and so that they to be easily distinguished from other nations, they will have to, from their entry to their exit from the cities borders of the said temporal domain, that is to say at Mattarello, Val Sorda, Romagnano, Buo di Vella, Pergine and Ponte di Lavis, to carry in the future, — instead of the yellow mark, on the right, on the chest, — the headdress of the a hat entirely yellow in color; they will be able to . cover completely with a strip or other moryellow cloth bucket; the essential thing is that this mark should always be worn on the head, in full view of everyone, in the aforementioned towns and places and in the countryside which surround, whether one travels by land or by water, on foot or on horseback or in carriages, which must allDays kept open and not closed. In all other respects of the temporal domain of the bishopric of Trent, located in Outside the specified borders, they will simply need to wear the ordinary yellow mark on the right side of their clothing, sign of the size of a thaler, placed outside and very visible, as prescribed in the past, of madenying that they are seen and known by everyone, and this under penalty of a fine of 100 thalers, the first

One-third will be allocated to the altar of Blessed Simon, the second to The tax authorities, the third to the informer; and, failing that, under a corporal punishment which will be carried out by the Illustris-
Most Reverend and Most Holy Chapter; declaring that per-
His mistake cannot be excused on the pretext of ignorance.
and even if the accused were not caught in the act-
In the event of a serious offense, prosecution will be initiated automatically.
trial, even on the denunciation of a single witness, provided that this witness is worthy of faith and that his honor-Rehabilitation admits no exceptions.

"And a copy of this decree will be posted at usual places, in all its substance and without anything change, as we did for the previous decrees
which deal with the same subject.

"Given at Trento, at the Castle of Good Counsel, 10 September"
September 1725.
“Jean-Baptiste, Antoine de Alberli, chancellor.
“BERNARDIN MANCI, secretary.”

This document clearly shows the extent of the execration that weighed on it.
about the Jews and how they had made themselves worthy.

III

Let us conclude with these borrowed reflections almost entirely in the C?vilta cattolica.

This book reveals the true reason behind many laws that the popes and Christian princes brought against the Jews; and he shows us why the Church defended and so often condemned the excessive familiarity of Christians with the Israelites. All these laws are ignored.
even good Christians in our civilized times
so savage, so scientifically ignorant, so philanthropic misanthrope, of such intolerant tolerance, and, one might to add, of truth so deceitful.

The most wretched fruits ripen every day to the great detriment of Christians and Jews themselves in countries where the Church does not make its gentle influence felt fluence. Everywhere, movements are stirring right now.
anti-Semitic remarks. And they are not simply due to newspaper articles, to empty pronouncements, but they spring from Talmudic assassinations which still perpetrate annually in the East and Europe. Eastern rope, they originate in wear and tear, the spoliations, the tyrannical omnipotence of the Jews of the West tooth. It is by the natural force of things that as of places, among the poor and illiterate populations, these The movements are excited. They are mainly due to the extreme oppression that the Jews exert on these populations lations in what is now called the struggle for existence. Therefore, there are not only religious reasons. who successively expelled the Jews from the various European countries: they do, it is true, hold a large

he takes part in this vile manhunt, but he does not We must not ignore the political and social reasons, commercial activities of major anti-Semitic movements, especially those who are preparing in France at the moment current.

With their persevering character, their profound cunning and invasive, the Jews, obliged in conscience to hate and to mislead the Christian world, have succeeded, in Russia and in Germany, to seize all the assets of peasants and common people; here, there is not a cordon-denying a Christian who can make a pair of sandals without to be the employee of the Jews, in whose hands is The entire monopoly on shoes has fallen; there, there is no a peasant who can sow a plot of land, if he does not sell to the Jews in advance the future harvest. Things are as they are. they have reached this point in Eastern Europe; they are not not far apart in our country.

Is it any wonder that simple and naive peoples, oppressed by a race hated and despised by all, rise up in their own defense with the courage of Despair that often crosses the line and creates persecutors Those who were persecuted?

These movements do not threaten to be as violent. in France and Italy, although, there too, relations tensions between Jews and Christians are acute. Italy, in in particular, as long as it remained under the wise legislation the Church's influence, was able to prevent the Jew, in the commerce, journalism, literature, he never set foot on the throats of the natives, as he did in Germany Magne and elsewhere. The papacy protected them, at the same time it was only when she put a stop to their abuses that they could live and not invade. But if they succeeded-tend to become as powerful as in Russia and Germany

Magne, it is likely that they will also incite against they the same movements intended to challenge their insolence. |

It's possible that this could happen soon.

The day the newspapers break the admirable harmony of silence in which they let the horrors sleep Jews, an intense trembling will make the children of Israel. But let them be reassured! A man of heart, a true Frenchman, Drumont, in a word, said to The entire nation is aware of what these men who are devouring us are.
Jewish France has passed by, greeted by applause.
comments from all those who still have a vibrant fiber at heart. But, even today, what effect does it have?

The End of a World will pass in the same way.

The idea stirrer pulls us away for a time from darkness apathy, to our sleep, but we are no longer of the
In the Middle Ages, the struggle bothers us and seems too much heavy on our weak arms. We will soon fall again.
in the silken bonds that embrace us and that per-
Its sound dares not break.

Where is the reader of Jewish France, the admirer of
The End of a World, which dares to close its door to Ephrussi and to Rothschild?

They are all cowards, they have no blood left in them.
heart.

O Drumont, will you found a school? Some audacious Oscar-
Will he venture in your footsteps? Will you take us to even continuing down the path you so generously forgement?

Perhaps the young will follow you. Yes, those who don't are not yet caught in the fatal gears of party politics, those who don't want to die,
They will rush into battle. You can count on them.

As for the others, they are already dead; they did not want to They understand the lessons of history and they are crushed miserably by this force that they spared.

In the 15th century, Bernardin of Feltre preached all his life against the Jews who had just been expelled from Spain and rushed to seek hospitality in Italy. In Geneva, On August 4, 1492, he prevented the receipt of several thousand of Jews, whom Ferdinand the Catholic had expelled, because he feared their contact with the Genevans. In Bergamo, he preached against the Jews with such bitterness that the Duke of Milan, fearing a popular uprising, He begged them to stop. But the preacher paid no heed. because he knew "what evils arose from too much Christians are very familiar with this unfortunate situation. "scum of the nation," And yet it was not then a question of receiving them at his table and in his living room, but to do trade with them. What would Bernardin say today?

This man was a fierce fighter against the Jews who They pursued him with their hatred. To defend the people against usury in Israel, he wanted, in several places, to establish pawnshops; but the Jews prevented him from doing so. always cherish their intrigues with the powerful sants. In Florence, four moneylenders made a deal with a Jew from Pisa and gave twenty thousand gold florins to consuls of the city, to maintain the monopoly on usury. This fact shows how important this was to them. privilege. It is so sweet, indeed, to strip the Christians of their privilege. hold!

The blessed man was not deterred by the persecutions. who attacked him. He had already instigated several riots. when it was written to him that Ferdinand II, King of Naples, was very irritated by his conduct; the blessed man replied "that he had defended the cause of the poor and of God, who condemns the iniquitous Jewish insults, and that he is astonished-it was born that the Catholic princes favored this nation impious, enemy of Christians, “gentem scelestissiman, “christianis infensissimam, Deo et hominibus exosam”.

Throughout the Middle Ages, bold preachers, well-versed in the maxims of the Talmud and the rites of the synagogue, thunder against the trade of the Jews and of Christians; Pope Nicholas V forbade them to have recourse to Jewish doctors; Clement XI, in 1708, renews this defense and forbids Jews from venore unleavened bread for Christians.

This clearly demonstrates the knowledge these pontiffs possessed. had acquired Talmudic rites. One of the felicities Indeed, for Jews, it is to distribute bread to Christians Made with their blood. The B. Bernardin of Feltre This also teaches us how dangerous it was to to be treated by Jewish doctors.

“A Jewish doctor from Avignon,” he said in a prediction In Siena in 1489, he declared that he was dying content. because by prescribing the wrong remedies, he had killed several thousand Christians. Many preferred They would have died rather than resort to him; they were healed by the Thanks be to God. A woman from the Borghese family resisted to her husband who wanted a Jewish doctor to treat the illness of one of their children; and that child recovers, Salimbeni, upon seeing a Jewish doctor at her bedside, She chased him away indignantly and was healed.

On several occasions, to free themselves from this exclusion: The sion that weighed upon them, the Jews fabricated false documents. papal bulls, forged decrees of the popes. They deploy the same

---

1. Compare this fact with what the Talmud commands the me: doctors.

skill in explaining holy books. and in the text mutilation. We have already reported on this. several examples; let's give this one again, borrowed to Bédarride!, head of the Montpellier bar association.

The Bollandists write: "/mpium medicum Hebrew Lazarum toti urbi (Faventie) auctoritate, pecunia et doctrina dominantm, ut (Cives) expellerent (Bernardinus) effect. » Bédarride translates: “We cited in Faenza a A Jew named Lazarus wielding the greatest influence in the city by his personal standing, his fortune and his science." Then he prints in a note: "Tota urbe auctoritate pecunia et doctrina dominantm » passkeeping everything else in silence: the impiety, the expulsion of Faenza, and the Christian blood he had collected at great cost of money, as the Bollandists add.

Let us quote the last sermon of B. Bernardin, at Cream. "Everywhere I preached the same thing, and my my most vivid desire is to be heard; because my paroles are inspired by the orders of the sovereigns who tifes and Christian charity. Know that canon law-niques expressly forbid you from forming friendships with the Jews, to enter their homes as servants, of you make use of their doctors and respond to their invitations. And yet, the Jew Leon, on the occasion of the at his son's wedding, he held a banquet for eight days at Cream, and many went to his table, to his parties, to his balls, his games. Today too, all the sick
They rush to be treated by Jewish doctors. How Can I keep these things silent? How can I preach the truth and conceal these offenses from God and canon law

The Jews in France, Italy and Spain, Paris, 1867
page 304.

niques? Not only are the usuries of the Jews not.
moderate, but they are so immoderate that they are strange-They exploit the poor and suck their marrow. And I, who live of alms and who eats the bread of the poor, I would be Silent when it comes to telling the truth? The dogs bark.
after those who starve them. And me, fueled by the Poor people. Should I remain silent while their livelihood is being stolen?
Dogs bark for their masters. And I don't bark-
"I wouldn't do it for Christ?"

That's energetic language. That bold voice, which grumbled so often during the 15th century, embarrassed
many times the Jews, and forced them to lower their loins Reille. Above all, she stopped their invasions.

Do we still have priests and monks to de-
Splitting God and the poor?

Let them show it by castigating the thieves as they
They deserve it. If they had done it, perhaps the Jews wouldn't have-Wouldn't they have invaded and demoralized everything in France?
perhaps they would not be guilty of the heinous assassinations that devastate Eastern Europe every year
tale. |

The laws and decrees of the popes are not repealed;

Why isn't the clergy the first to defend them? and to keep them in force?

Ridiculous! It's a schismatic country that applies only papal laws. The Jews of Saint Petersburg have were recently forced to close their pharmacies and the The Russian government forbade those in Kyiv from emplover of Christian servants. No one, we believe will not dare, after reading the preceding pages, to lament that papal laws be observed in Russia.

God grant that they will soon be everywhere and that may we be delivered from the bites of the terrible ena geance that wants to suck our blood and our existence.

CONCLUSION

So it is true. The belief that Jews kill little Christian children, carefully collect their blood precious, they make a horrible brew out of it, they knead it in their Easter bread, they make monstrous remedies trueux, this belief is not a "ridiculous nonsense" nor a "hideous invention of the Middle Ages" "Catholic fanaticism"; that is now the stern voice the grandeur of history that rises to proclaim to four winds of heaven, the unspeakable crimes born of these revolting customs.

And the persistence of these customs clearly demonstrates the opposition The unity of this work lies in the fact that it features high-ranking characters. — for reasons unknown — have criticized and pursued life from their lightning bolts.

The ritual murder of the Jews is not a barbarity of times past or a mistake of wild countries, including the The story, though distressing for humanity, does not put us in his heart only a slight emotion, weakened as he is by The distance of time and place. The blood trade Christianity is still very much alive today in the East. in Europe itself, perhaps in France, by hand of men, intimately intertwined with our lives, ever since the Religious differences no longer seem to bother Christians 2f.

Having become lukewarm, a reason to distance certain peoplenages that our ancestors would have ruthlessly hunted seized with blows from their boots.

Shouldn't we have told these degenerate Christians that these Jews whom they receive in their salons with so much eagerly, they come there, red with the blood of their brothers in the faith? Shouldn't these middle-altar boys, to these princes of the church, who do not fear-They do not wish to sit at the table of the children of Israel, that the The wine, poured into their cups, was "sanctified" by the blood of their flock. Shouldn't they have warned the Christian families against the free sending of bread sweet Purim bread, unleavened bread of Passover, a gift that Jews are required to do so for the principal families Christians they knew? Yes, the gifts of a enemies are always to be feared.

I! It was necessary to say all of this, and this book says it sufficientlyment.

No thoughts of bitterness or hatred guided the author. in this company. He only wanted to denounce public opinion, a hateful custom that will not cease that when it becomes well known and raises against those who are guilty of it, a condemnation Irreparable. O

This book also allows us to get a sense of the danger. of too much familiarity with the Jewish people. This unfortunate nation has customs and needs particulars; therefore, we cannot be too careful about our guards, keep these abominable things too far from us leeches, those insatiable octopuses thirsting for blood, of the honor, the gold, the body and the soul of Christians.

A conclusion is inescapable.

This is the one that was recommended by B. Bernardin de Feltre in his 15th-century anti-Semitic campaign? This is the one that the popes, the councils, the great and worthy bishops have recommended; it is the one that the peoples have repeatedly demanded it; it is the one that the Kings, emperors, and municipalities have many times accomplished.

This is the relegation of Jews outside of society Christian.

Many social needs implore this end of a an inexpressible unease; the crime of renewed bloodshed Even yesterday, in fact, we saw the growing need powerful.

No, these men who kill our children, to... adorn with their blood, use it in their food and to offer it to us in unspeakable gifts, these men can no longer live our life; they ask to plunge back into the depths of the ghetto from which they had not should never have left, and where we will send them back well-early.

END

Digitized by Google

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PREFACE. . . . + 6 © © © we mm ooo n

BOOK ONE

THE STARTING POINT

I. Human sacrifices among the Hebrews. . . .
II. Talmud: xou ea et xxu
WI. The accusation.

BOOK It

THE FACTS

I. Rosary of crimes... .
IT. Saint Richard of Paris (11 19). (o4 V Oe eg
HI. Saint-Hugues de “Lincoln (4225). . . . .
IV. Touching story of Saint Wernher (1287).
V. The Prelude to the Crime of Trent (1462), . .
VI. The Trial of Trent (1475). . . , ...
VII. The Crime of Metz (1669). . . .
VIII. In 4704 . . . .
IX. The assassination of Father Thomas (1840), ...
X The Tisza-Eszlar affair (4882). $3
XI. The bloodletting of Breslau (4888). . . . . . .

38

53 100
105 113
422
132
164
180 188

942

sd To o

244

BOOK III

PHILOSOPHY OF FACTS

I. The secret. 4:6. xo 4G “oe ou
II. Ritual murder. . . . .
III. Causes and uses. . . ...

IV. The blood merchants.

V. The culprits. . . . . . .

VI. The punishment. . . . . .
CONCLUSION. . . .

ÉVREUX, CHARLES HERISSEY PRINTING HOUSE

251
262
279
317 331
340
365

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

El "x (ue ^4

3 2044 023 309 909

JUNT01909

C002 0 T d3S

This is a reproduction of a library book that was digitized by Google as part of an ongoing effort to preserve the information in books and make it universally accessible.

Google Books

https://books.google.com

Google

About this book

This is a digital copy of a work that has been preserved for generations on the shelves o precaution by Google as part of a project aimed at allowing internet users to discover the line.

Because this book is relatively old, it is no longer protected by copyright law and is no
"Belonging to the public domain" means that the book in question has never been subject t Expiration. The conditions required for a book to enter the public domain can vary from co
These are all links to the past. They bear witness to the richness of our history, our cul too often difficult for the public to access.

The footnotes and other marginal annotations present in the original volume are reproduce
of the long journey the book has taken from the publishing house through the library to fi

Instructions for use

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize works in the public domain and make thus accessible to all. These books are indeed the property of everyone and we are simply However, this is a costly project. Therefore, and in order to continue disseminating thes necessary measures to prevent potential abuses by third-party merchant sites, in particula
technical constraints related to automated queries.

We also ask you to:

+ Do not use the files for commercial purposes. We designed the Google Books Search progra
We therefore ask that you use these files for personal purposes only. They may not be use any commercial purpose.

+ Do not perform automated requests. Do not send any automated requests whatsoever to the research concerning translation software, optical character recognition, or any other fiel
For large amounts of text, please do not hesitate to contact us. We encourage the use of works and documents belonging to the public domain and we would be happy to be of service

+ Do not remove the attribution. The Google watermark contained in each file is essential and allow them to access more documents through the Google Books Search Program. Do not de No cases.

+ Stay within the law. Whatever use you intend to make of the files, remember that it is
Be sure to respect the law. If a work belongs to the American public domain, do not assum other countries. The legal duration of copyright for a book varies from country to countr
The works whose use is authorized and those whose use is not. Don't assume that simply pos
Book search means that it can be used in any way anywhere in the world. The sentence to wh
The penalties you would face in the event of copyright infringement could be severe.

About the Google Books Search service

By facilitating searches and access to a growing number of books available in many languag contribute to promoting cultural diversity through Google Books Search. Indeed, the Google allows internet users to discover the world's literary heritage, while helping authors an online searches in the full text of this work can be found at: http://books.qgoogle.com

A c eC p " : :

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

PORT NO PET

| LEUVEN |

da ct e $ "
ws
fr [ia c You have » ar EL + ke. T 1
we not "LT aa À]

E

RON, Mae. A SL der) not to ten

THE JEWS

IN FRONT

CHURCH AND HISTORY

BY

THE CONSTANT RP

THE PREACHING BROTHERS
DOCTOR OF THEOLOGY AND CANON LAW
MEMBER OF THE ACADEMY OF SAINT-RAYMOND

[2 PARIS

GAUME & Cie PUBLISHERS P
3, RUE DE L'ABBAYE, 3 d

1897
All rights reserved.

Digitized by Google

2 RU s

ER quA. URL ee
"

Mr. P - $
" S LI DD
. . 7 ^
B ` ry * Ld `
m è . » a * +
* " ^ LI
to . + ^ P . . 2 B 4
2 4" .
^ ld
"Ld. +
* " has
5. : è
` . " . , . -
. % è 5 š
nx
- ^ ;
i * .
E .

© .
P. e; ` E
* " . . y .
`BE = LI. *
sj $4
. B " e A
* * N a FI . ' f * LJ
' .
$ LI
"
^ * " *
E ' f *a
° > A
" 4 * '
. = D [
` ^ `
yso
^ . * Fi]
,
` . è
'
DE os t "
,
` x ^
) ` . '
4.
. * *
* ze: *
P LI ` *
B, 0 * ? D
DEJ,
D
, zx .
'DD
"
. n ~ . . . '
* [I
i 4 * "
` i .
* . .
t " Ls .
to E].
, ' F
. » y . ' '
. + to .
g » 4 ` `
; 4: ME . D s
z.
» * D . . ` PE *
E ^ i *
, " '

```
* .
` " mi S a * +
. s to
'm.
» " .
' .
- * ^ .
* ^ w . $ D is Ed
has
. * ED ' -
LI L id ^
. " .
. " has
` ; s
+
~ 0 E . ` E 5 .
` " .
t. e . LI x * *
* * ^ LI Y
. - " IN ` » . E " : ` . % N . ; .
n. . . L] D . LI nj .
^ . FE e * 5 . So .
L] 2 A . k : Es ue
" i: . `
- L to . i ` n P . a " .
: ` " i : :
. ` . d .
SD
" * ' has .
` . « READ
B * * sa E
' . i P 3 * f
- 3 7 , " 1
" -+ E ' `
` ~ d . g
; - , R x " , " * , n A, es
NC a fs Ey . " .
$ .
` E: . " 4 `
" * n
* 4' 3` - +
. , i
LI LJ H
E . - . . "
` . ' .
E ` `
' * . » x
" oe? A " ' : d
```

' " ^
1 * . v wá
n. to E. v.
bc ` " , 5
4 $ $ “+ ' Li .
. % " .] ' DM
– m , , .
5 i P mx
C. * , Eg " i * a . P ś . r >
b
D.H.: . ,.
. . has :

THE JEWS –

IN FRONT

THE CHURCH AND HISTORY

| :
, gt
|
| : ;
– E x 4
xo © enun. n
. d |
: | , g |
| | | i :
"n š yy . – 2 * D |
4 E ` at ° = . :
l – Tr ,
Paris. – Salesian Printing House, 29 rue du Retrait. ne nc
Director: Father L. BEISSIÈRE. “° : M er
, : £c
t E i: i
»* *. *
|
me
i: gi
:
i

EM de®, sa ee nMMMNE – p

J

|

THE JEWS

_ IN FRONT

CHURCH AND LIST 8.

"^ BY

THE CONSTANT RP
^ OF THE PREACHING BROTHERS

DOCTOR OF THEOLOGY AND CANON LAW |
.. MEMBER OF THE ACADEMY OF SAINT-RAYMOND |

+ RI to
— 5

PARIS
GAUME & €i, PUBLISHERS
3, RUE DE L'ABBAYE, 3

1897
All rights reserved.

Seen and approved:

F. Jos. HÉBERT. Fr. Dalm. SERTILANCES.

of the Dominican Friars,

. of the Dominican Friars,
lecturer in theology.

reader in theology.

^el "dd
a KS S RP

cip V imprimatur:
M":

209259

Fr. Raym. BOULANGER

provincial of the Preaching Friars.

PREFACE

Our initial thought had been, of us abstain from this agreed-upon prologue, by which It is customary for every author to present themselves at his audience, and which is called a preface.

The usual and decisive reason for this
The exordium is indeed completely lacking in our work. BIN |
— For the author, this is about explaining why-
What he is addressing on a subject, what motive he had to write about it. But not everything is H today
What is the reason for speaking or writing about Jews?

The Jewish question, in fact, is not a
A question that eludes us.

The Jewish question is like the Cidipe's Way.

The path is not to be chosen; there is none.
than one.

There is no more choice but to return thereto counter the Sphinx. The monster is stationed, at The roadside, unavoidable for any traveler.

There is no need to choose which option to offer.
The enigma; all are condemned to hear it.
And, if the riddle is not solved, we have no
to choose the sanction for his failure; fate is predetermined. To be devoured is the outcome.
fatal.

But there is a solution to the Jewish enigma,
a top-down solution, forgotten by our short-memory generations, but whose Ten centuries have verified the accuracy and that which has been, R
all this time, the salvation of Christian society
yours. | |
Certainly, that which was acutely affected by the crisis, that . cross France and Europe, where they run the risk of perishing in the short term, exhumes from the past the solution that saved the past, and which he wants to preserve the future, that one doesn't need explaining itself, beautiful-
A blow to the reasons that led him to write.
And if the solution he presents is the same time, the defense and justification of the Church, to 'What need could a son of the Church have?'
To explain why he defends the Church?
would be much more about his silence than about his speech or his writing, which he would have reply. |
And the account at TA dede plus heavy, if the discreet nonchalant was, by tradition and by state, the defender of the Church.
So, he could BODIE, that was the place

| — m E
to remove from the book this routine of house that we have the habit of doing it to him and who, under the name of preface, foreword, notice, speech preliminary, introductory, holds the reader at the threshold, and the harangue, sub dio, the duration of a a quarter, or even, sometimes, half the volume.
It is true that such long sessions have not Nothing is mandatory. But why, if we have could. do uL not avoid all
session! | |
It must be acknowledged, however, that the party
The decision to take was serious.
First, it was necessary to break with an immemorial custom, that is to say, to begin with.
the least ambiguous of singularities.
However, singularity and flaws go so often from company, that we move away, instinctively, from one, to increase, as much as possible, its chances, of not giving in to Vautre.
And then, Silya's mediocre uselessness in saying the
the reason we have for writing to a reader that the knows in advance, a word on the plan of what we Written language has always had its advantages.
This is the travel map placed in the hands of the traveler. Thanks to these few lines,

Quickly drawn, he knows where he's going and he...
He is grateful that he approves of where he goes.

PE - To signal, to highlight the wisdom of PE-church in its legislation on Jews, such was the central idea of our work.

To carry out this plan, the first thing to doing was a review of legal texts.

But, like the light of the text and its more natural comments are found to-within its context, nothing seemed amiss to us.
better than choosing and putting online, in chronological order, the main papal constitutions on the matter.

These constitutions, sixteen in number, are reproduced in full at the end of our vol-Iume. It's the foundation upon which everything rests.

As such, the beginning of the book pa-was returning to its natural place. But there was
There are some drawbacks to consider, right from the start, offered to the reader, thirty pages of the-legal loophole. Such an enticement risked
It didn't really appeal to him much for the rest. We had every chance of securing a better reception, starting by speaking to him in French.

Larger fonts, adapted to these key pieces, will restore them to their right and will give them sufficient relief so that there is no misunderstanding about their im-lift. As such, one could never know to give too much credit to the writings of the Popes.

To begin the study of the law that governed the Jews, under the supreme direction of the Church, did not it was possible, without presenting and making known, |
First, the Jewish nation.

This was all the more necessary because

This strange people is unlike any other.
another people. It was necessary to show what puts him,
in such an extraordinary way, unlike anything else:
its miraculous preservation outside of all the conditions for the vitality of a people;
his predestination to the service of the Gospel,
divine reason for the permanence of this marvel. Aurea, that's what they record, almost always, the Popes, at the beginning of their Acts of legislators. Mentioning it becomes necessary.
done, at the same time, a part of the comm-silence their Constitutions.— This is the subject of our first chapter.

But, as the law stemming from this legislation- -
tion is a restrictive right, which places the Jew, host of the Christian States, outside and at the-
under the common law of these States, it was of all rigor to produce the grievances which provoked and legitimized this exception;
and, as the most notorious, the most felt, the more universally denounced of these griffs, a always been Jewish usury, with the insolent, the inhuman wealth it produces, he was
It is inevitable to talk about Jewish wealth.
We have documented the history of this wealth.

It was still about following the text, step by step.
of the Popes. One of the reasons for their prohibitionstions, which they return to and insist upon
The most important one, without a doubt, is that one.

But such customs are impossible

dude
social, which give to the Jew, on the fund
the morality of humanity, a physiognomy so particular and so odiously severed,
do not have their deep and lasting cause, at
...within this very people; do not hold, to a education, training, principles.

of conduct, quay are neither education, nor the . training, nor the principles of conduct of au-
another people. b

This intimate and permanent cause exists in

Indeed. It is a long and patiently written book.
composed by the doctors of this people _and which has become the soul of this people. This book', -
It is called the Talmud. It is the new law of the Jewish. ae |

This new law is not the complement.
ment and the honor of the old law as it arrived from the new law of the Christian — .
This is abolition; more than abolition, the reversal and, if zl on p mee the return- |
nement. | 9? TETN

It's not just evil.

What it establishes is the merit of evil.
Lying, fraud, slander, the Theft and murder are not simply absolved.
Out of guilt, they become deserving of 7 I am a Jew, at least when it comes to the Christian.

In the titles that the Church had to organi-to be a legal defense against the rules of driving, lifestyle habits and the se vile =

prized by such a people, it was impossible to forget that one. We might as well have found...

Here again, the text of the papal decrees, and did we not step out of our role for a single moment?
of commentator. . | m
We have devoted a few pages to the exposition of the doctrine and maxims of Talmud... uU xm |
A word on the character of the legislator was, moreover, nothing less than useless, when > it was a matter of appreciating wisdom and justice
| tice of legislation. Show that man | who disciplined the Jew by force _ undisciplined by morals, which opposed - all his bad instincts and all his evil-
Nails, wills, the inflexible barrier of a right,

of which all public and private interests claim-
They were imperiously protecting it, was I deny that he forbade all violence in his place, which, a hundred times, in history, the saved from popular fury and who, one hundred times too, she remembered, when she was ready to
to crush it, the hard hand of civil power; which, civil power itself, granted them, in his modest states, the most paternal and the most inviolable of asylums; which they had blessed this hospitality, to the point of obtaining, for Rome, from their lips, the name of Paradise of Jews; to place, at the head of a code of laws, a This portrait of the man who makes the law is...

— VII —

to create a very strong presumption, not only-lying for the justice of this law, but also for the gentleness and mercy of which the leaves susceptible, in the presence of excesses that she must suppress, the salvation of those whom she protected.

It then became easy to approach and review, following the natural order or They present themselves, the different parts of this legislation:

p That which affects the individual life of the of the Jew.

— The one that affects her domestic life.

— The one that affects his civil life.

— The one that affects her religious life.

— In the first section, we have
I met Le Ghetto and the brand.

There are many provisions of the law which governs these conditions of residence density and the movement of the Jewish individual.

— The second one brings us face to face with the Jewish family: Jewish marriage; power
the Jew's father; the Christian wet nurse of The Jewish child; the Jew's Christian servants.

— Next comes the civil status of Jew: industry, commerce that the law gives him
aceorde, the branches that she forbids him to use;
the professions that are permitted to him, those that are take it from him.

To the nature and scale of the matter, one guess what details he must have gone into the legislator and what a harvest of texts he has must have left it to be collected after him.

— Civil life offers a field extensive legislation and calls, on it, the multiple legal provisions, as much as life religious matters are settled simply, with pars-
law of decrees and ordinances.

Because the temple is everything in life.
religious of the Jew, and that, since eighteen
For centuries, the Jew no longer had a temple.

However, such a domestic ritual remains.
such a synagogue ceremony, which must have attracted to focus attention and submit to the discipline of the E-church.

A separate rite, which belongs neither to the household
niàlasynagogue, but which has, evidently,
in the minds of those who practice it a horrible religious character, that's the Ritual murder.

We finished our work with a Spoon study on ritual murder: for
For us, there is no doubt whatsoever about the real-
the nature of the fact.

We have therefore applied ourselves to
to prepare a legal and historical thesis, which results in giving a choice between two sides: either delete the entire story, of which no fact is better proven than the ritual murder; or accepting the absolute truth

of traditional crime, by which the race dei-:
cide perpetuates, as far as it is in her, Phorrible attack by his ancestors and reissues, on - Christians, almost always, on

Children, the crucifixion of Calvary.
"Here ends our excursion through the Jewish things and, at the same time, our book.

rx (Portentum hoc) longæ finis chartæque viæque. E

The Jewish nation

There is no more imposing fact in the world than the made by the Catholic Church. There is one that is also surprisingnant, the fact of the Jewish nation.

Here is a people conquered eighteen hundred years ago;
dispersed the day after the conquest.

This people no longer possesses anything that constitutes a little-nothing; nothing of his organism, nothing of the normal play of its institutions, nothing even of the cohesion of its elements, nothing that accounts for its vitality.

He no longer has religious power; he no longer has power-see politics; it no longer has illustrious races; it has:
no more hierarchy. Its genealogical tables, if carefully preserved for twenty centuries, are at all never lost; no hope of finding them again
trace. |

The main element of his life, the soul of his nation-its culture, its cult, disappeared with the temple and the priesthood doce.

There is neither an altar to offer the sacrifice, nor a priest to offer it. The altar has been overturned and no one can put back in place; the priest is the son of Aaron, and the Aaron's son is nowhere to be found. (1) The prophecy of his Hosea is fully fulfilled: The children of Israel... will have without king, without prince, without sacrifice, without altar (2).

And this people lives.
That's not all.

The remnants of this people who stubbornly cling to being a people, keep to the flames the lightning that made them this that they are. Humankind has been the emulator of Vespa-

(1) The most obscure of Jewish genealogies are precisely those of the priesthood, so important that any reconstruction of the Nation is impossible without them. Here is what he wrote about them in his Mé-Moires, Chancellor Pasquier. He must have been extremely well-informed.
having served as imperial commissioner, during the as-extraordinary appearance of prominent Israelites in 1806: "They (the “Jews) established, in a positive manner, and according to the authorities
"the most irrefutable, that any lineage from the tribe of Levi was "entirely lost since the last dispersal; that, since
"At that time, there was no longer a priesthood among them, since the "priesthood was inherent to this tribe, and thus, all power-
"Priestly authority was destroyed among them. This is, without a doubt,
"One of the most extraordinary events in the history of this people,"
"so faithful to its memories, so attached to its civil and religious customs"
"Gious, that the absolute loss of such a precious lineage and which "should have been subject to even more scrupulous precautions,
"that its preservation alone held the possibility of fulfilling"
"core, at some point in time, the holiest ceremonies of the "Jewish worship."

“Let us suppose, in fact, that the Temple of Jerusalem was rebuilt, which "Every good Israelite should always hope for the sanctuary of this
"The temple should remain uninhabited; the sacrifice could not take place there."
"to accomplish unless a miracle from God, who gave his Law"
"holy woman on Mount Sinai, did not come to reveal the true descendants of this tribe."

(Chancellor PASQUIER, Memoirs. Vol. 1. C. x.)

"Those who claim to be Aaronites are so through genealogies."

uncertain and would not dare to eat the livestock that the law forbade them assign.

(Dracir. — Harmony of the Church and the Synagogue.)

2) Quia dies multos sedebunt filii Israel sine rege et sine principle and sine sacrificio and sine altari and sine ephod ct sine theraphim.

$ | (HOSEA. — Ch. 111. V. Iv.)

~

€
LC

A^ EN

exl eee

his own and Titus's. The wandering bands of fugitives Israelis are hunted, harassed, chased, de-then eighteen centuries, throughout the entire human race,
as the nation was, by the generals of Rome.
In trials far less frequent than these, nations

* many times more considerable, powerful empires

who seemed, forever, safe from the blows of the of fate, the Egyptians, the Assyrians, the Medes, the Macedonians, the Romans have succumbed. Nothing can against Israel.

This is something that Rome, despite its poet, has denied.
The hour of the barbarian invasion, Israel verifies it gem days :

LEE E è òo è epu E AD T DSO

Ducit opes animumque ferro.
(Horace – Odes – Book IV – Ode 4)

Where does this resistance come from?

– But it comes directly from what you're saying,
we reply such that no difficulty arises barrasse. It is persecution that has preserved this little-ple (1). Persecution is the element of preservation
the most powerful in the world. Persecution
She re-tempers whatever passes through her hands. She makes the life into what was about to die. It draws unknown energies-naked from what lay there, desperate and hopeless. Do you want to to amplify the power of an idea, to place honor high
To make the blood of a race immortal, for a cause? Per-Seize. Israel, gathered into the arms of humankind,
It would have ceased to exist long ago. Persecuted Israel brave the centuries.

— But then, how did so many other vanquished,

(a) “The Jews have lived thanks to persecution; they are called "To disappear through freedom."

(Lxnoy-BEAULIEU. — Official Journal, May 25 and 27, 1895.)

Treated in the same way, did they fare so differently?

.ment itrouvés?

Were other elements used against them?
destruction? Were the iron and fire that were used...?
of another nature? Were there other exiles for them?
other chains, another right of conquest than for
The vanquished and the conquered of another blood? No.
If there is a difference, it is to their disadvantage. None.
defeated, as much as Israel, has known the outrages, the inhumane treatment, all the relentless crushing comments of the victor.

"But you won't deny it," the opponent continued, that persecution is a source of energy, and that, consequently, the sum of force that it determines will be directly proportional to the degree to which the persecutor will bear. Persecution is in the moral order, this that the pressure is in the physical order. Dispute-
You believe that pressure produces force.

— I absolutely deny it. The pressure means that a foreign force deploys, and manifests itself at its ren-against. But this force is so little the force of the press-sion that it is destroyed by it as soon as the latter exceeds. The man whose foot crushes an egg does not Obviously, this doesn't give the egg any strength. The pressure when it does not exceed the resistance of the pressed body, determines in him, an exhibition and a revelation-force; that's obvious. But this force comes Moreover, there was pressure. It was latent in the the body's internal organs that are compressed; the pressure whoever happens pulls her out and brings her to light. That's it.
The entire role of pressure.

So it is with nations, against which a
The conqueror pushes his hordes forward, implementing all the destructive elements at his disposal.

If, unlike the others, someone resists,

Of

It was not the pressure from opposing forces that created this resistance. Otherwise, it would have produced it in all of them, for the same reason each time. It's that she found in that woman a strength she hadn't not encountered in others.

This force was there, in reserve, dormant, ignored.

The pressure awakens her and reveals her to the world.

Why does the same force act as ten, against Did the Roman Empire destroy the Roman Empire?
while acting like a hundred, against the little people
She was Jewish, but she didn't destroy the Jewish people? That's... that, by a unique miracle, he found himself, at the
a small Jewish people, a force that exceeded one hundred, and, that, despite appearances to the contrary, he did not find himself
It was not, in the Roman aeolossa, a force equal to
ten. | | ME |
— And others came, who said; Well! this
The strength of the Jewish people came from a book; it is a particular law, written in this book, and which con-
He considered immortality to be his.

— But that's just postponing the difficulty, or simply to change the form. Because other nations have not lack of books, and, if we want to avoid this being the case here, than codes or law books, they had their books of laws. Rome had its Law of the Twelve Tables, and Athens, salo of Solon, and Sparta, salo of Lycurgus, and Crete, its Minos law, and the Medes and the Assynothing and the Egyptians, other laws, stemming from genius other wise men. (1)

(1) Faced with the same difficulty, Boissy d'Anglas did the same
He replied, in slightly different terms. He simply put, institutions instead of laws. He believed that the Jews should their exceptional and indestructible vitality to their institutions and He urged the new political state to grant itself immortality.
...by institutions of the same virtue. "Institutions become

"Over time, the only power of empires. It is by the only

Why didn't all these books save the few-people who read them; and why did the book of his law have
He saved the Jewish people, he said, to the Jewish people, to Within its political ruin, an invincible vitality?

This is where the word odious, abhorred, must be uttered.

"the power of institutions that can perpetuate the peoples
"Even beyond their dissolution... Look at the Jews."

The advice was easier to give than to follow. The institutions
Jews came from a source to which the legislators of 1789 were reluctant to draw from it. Moreover, managed with the perfection that God's hand had given them, one could say that the strength
The intrinsic nature of Jewish institutions has not been the principle of conservation.
champion of the Jewish people. First, he let the best of them perish -
. part. Of all the Mosaic Institutions, that of the family a.
She was the only one who survived. And then there is this desolate situation, to which:
can bring down a people, and where no institution can do it anymore to preserve; when, for example, this people no longer even has a form of a people. 'To assign the survival of the Jewish people to its institutions is the sophism of a rationalist, who sees, before him, .
the specter of the miracle that doesn't know what its first name is for
to avoid the unbearable appearance.

This is also true of Jewish institutions, to explain their survival-Jews, as well as the learned organization of the Church, TO explain-that his immortality.

It is there that a contemporary, quite different, moreover: de Boissy d'Anglas had the idea, very insufficiently supernatural, of placing the the secret of the Church's strength, the explanation of this indomitable resistance which has sustained it for eighteen centuries, victorious over the attacks quarries of all empires, and standing amidst their ruins.
“Certainly,” replied Dom Guéranger to the Duke of Broglie, “if the Church
"had had nothing to resist but internal sects and scandals,
"that its organizational strength as a society, many centuries ago"
"that she would have added to the list of things in history"
"Human beings whose time has passed. The Church is an institution"
"natural. It exists and will exist until consumption |
"for centuries, because the hand of God directly sustains it,"
"because divine grace supernaturally produces and sustains,
"In the heart of each person, the gift of faith. Suppose the hand:"
"God withdraws... let the Church be abandoned to the forces |
"natural qualities that are within it, as a human society; then reve-

"We must see, half a century later, what will remain of her, like >"
"Human society. You will look for the place it occupied and "You will find nothing but ruins there."

(Dom GUÉRANGER. — Essays on Contemporary Naturalismporain. T. 6. p. 109-110.)
Paris. — Julien Lasnier, Cosnard & Co.*
Rue de Bucy — 1868
Dom Guéranger himself does not hesitate any more on the character-

A am AAAAAAA NS

ne ea 7

that rationalism has erased from the vocabulary of all languages and that all rationalist erasures have This makes it more readable.

When an event occurs that goes against all the laws that govern facts of the same order, in the This vast empire of God's works is called this fact a miracle. m

Drop a piece of ice into the boiling water. If that ice is preserved there, the laws that govern ice The mechanisms that govern boiling water are found to be faulty: It's a miracle.

Empty a basin of water onto a bed of sand; if the water it is preserved, without loss, on the surface of the sand. the laws that govern water and sand are put into The problem is: it's a miracle.

Disperse a small people throughout the world. Ensure that there is nothing necessary within him. to the preservation of any people, nor the hierarchy social which is no less so, nor the public cult which more; let this little people live, in in spite of everything; that nothing is more visible to world, that the existence of this people, all the laws The first menads—of the survival of the Jewish people. There. Moreover, As before, he is simply continuing Pascal, Bossuet,

Saint Augustine, whose eloquence we will hear in a moment - _ quents: testimonies.
7 “These marvelous events are the miracles of history and they "form the main reasons for the credibility of Christia-
"nism. The attentive observer of human annals in recognition-

"Three will easily be born that surpass all others in importance."
" others.

"The first is the miraculous destiny of the Jewish people, starting from
"from the calling of Abraham to the destruction of the second "temple and ever since."
"The second is the propagation of the Gospel despite all the "obstacles that made it impossible."

"The third is the preservation of the Church, of its doctrine,
"of its hierarchy, of its morals amidst so many ruins and of
"€ revolutions i" all species.

~

(Same work, pp. 21-22.)

those that govern the lives of people are found to be failing.
It's a miracle.

That is to say, a law superior to all laws
of nature, a force superior to all forces nature has taken the place of laws and forces of nature. It is the law of nature's law-maker.
which is not subject to nature; it is the force of creator, the sovereign master of nature who can,
more than all of nature; it is the law, it is force of God.

This is how Bossuet understands it:

This was Pascal's understanding before, as Bossuet
On this point, as on more than one other, there has been nothing but the continuator and the commentator (1).

And Pascal, Bossuet, are, there, only the magnificent ones.
fictitious representatives of the reason of humankind.

Let us read Bossuet in the second part of his universal history. Ch, XX, XXI, XXII, XXIII, XXIV, we will see stated, described, highlighted,
the wonder of this people's prodigious existence,
surviving the most dreadful ruin ever to come and signify to a people the end of their destiny.

“God,” he said, “has found a way that there is no other way,”

"in the world, that this single example, to preserve
“the Jews, outside their country and in their ruin, more
"for a long time even the peoples who have conquered them-
"cus. We no longer see any remains, neither of the ancients.
"Assyrians, neither of the ancient Medes, nor of the ancient "Persians, nor ancient Greeks, nor even an-

(1) “When Pascal interprets the prophecies and lifts the seals
"of the Old Testament, when it explains the role of the Apostles among "The Gentiles and the marvelous economy of God's designs, |
"He is clearly ahead of Bossuet, the Bossuet of universal history-
"saddle. It opens up many perspectives that the other will explore and "will fill. Bossuet had read the Pensées. It was quite a pro"gram." (Sainte-Beuve)

To the

^

>»

, | - 0 -

"Ancient Romans. Their trace has been lost and they are "confused with other peoples. The Jews, who "were prey to these ancient nations, so celebrated-

"Breasts in history, they survived them."

What is this unique method that falls outside the order of means, by which, without exception, the peoples; through whom, in particular, so much has passed other peoples, contemporaries of this people, moved-

the victors, taking turns, of this strange little-ple? A miracle. We won't find, in the lan-gue, another word that suits him and is sufficient for him.
_ To pity what Bossuct writes is not still relevant, and, the most self-satisfied, in a century where those satisfied with this kind of thing abound have not yet reached this level of inflation.
However, we find ourselves less bothered by him than

by Pascal. 2

If decency, if respect for the letter forbids

^ Bossuet's disdain, at least with him, etc.

advantage, of never having compromised himself, of his
on the side, by rash advances.
Things are different with Pascal. Pascal has found, one day in his life, in the presence of the Jesuits. He has waged, against them, the most formidable campaign ever
The devil's enmity has stirred up enmity between them for three centuries.
that she never ceases to pursue them. Never
The terrible tear of French mockery has no better showed what she was worth in the right hands, Nowhere part of the better-aimed blows did not amaze these avid spectators of intellectual contests, which form
.at all times, the public of the educated.

This is what gives mockery its power, under the Pascal's pen, that is the art, which is unique to him, of to bring about, with his stroke, the irresistible completion of his logically, along with the Attic condiment of

The ODDO VT wood

his sentence. Neither Rabelais, nor Montaigne, nor La Fontaine have not brought irony to this level of perfection. The mocker Voltaire did not go near it.

Let our rationalists fall in love, even to the point of ecstasy, de Paseal, who mocked the Jesuits, this had not been done to surprise. There is little bad joy in the heart.
that goes as far as that one, whose mockery has given the task of feeding the malice of men:*
What was it like when the mocker was Pascal and, the
The Jesuits were mocked?

Unfortunately, pleasure was found there, as in many similar circumstances, mixed with lack of foresight.
Our exiles hardly suspected the difficulties they were being created. For, if they found Pascal so strong-willed, when he was putting the Jesuits on trial, how did he-

Would they time it, later, a man without influence, when he would attack the unbelievers, when he put in line these condensed pieces of evidence of the revelation which have become, under his pen, the terror of the irre- - religion and, until the end of time, condemnation without any appeal to disbelief?

To stick to the only point that interests us- resse, how, when Pascal will present, as a a miracle, the sixteen-century-old preservation of the people The dispersed Jew, will we contrast with the one we have just... to extol genius, even if his mind stumbles, For once, that he is completely out of the question And that he never knew the first word of what he said?

Let these dissenters, these intolerant people, tell us. of the miracle, what it seems to them, from this thought of Pascal and how they would manage to deduce from this, with the limited scope of the thinker, the absurdity of the middle-scraper: "It's an amazing thing and worthy of a "Strange attention to see the Jewish people survive" "for so many years and to see it always bet-

"able..... and, although it is contrary to be miserable- "able and to subsist, it nevertheless still subsists "Despite his poverty."

"Will they find that this is the observation of a fai- blue spirit (1)?

The Jewish people therefore still exist; the fact is evident. more than visible, undeniably compelling.

That there is no natural cause for the subsis- The question of this people's authority is no less clear. Anyone can be challenged to produce them One. It is therefore a naturally inexplicable fact. – Now, a visible, undeniable fact, which has no known natural cause, and which is the contradiction of The ones we know of are a miracle. Therefore, existence The Jewish community is a miracle.

This is the how of the fact: to have no com- how, in the known causes, not to find its comment mení qu'en dehors et au dessus des tous les comment, of reason and cause than in the omnipotence of God.

But, alongside the how of the fact, there is the inevitable diue- ble and insópardble. the reason for the fact.

No single work comes from the hands of God that has not The end; if this is the immutable law of infinite wisdom, that nothing proceeds from her by chance, except everything that It increases the creation, emerges from nothingness oriented towards a purpose, and finds its reason for being in its gravitation -towards this goal; how necessary is this order Moreover, when it comes to miracles? The work, is.

(1) No one felt more than Voltaire the embarrassment of which we Let's talk. Getting away with it through disdain, as with so many others, doesn't work for It seemed impossible... The thing would not have been accepted by the public. thought that the only expedient left to him was to complain Pascal: "Pity Pascal. Despise Houteville and Abadie, just as much."

"as if they were Church Fathers."
| (Letter to Damilaville, 1565.)

then, in such proportions that it prevails and subordinates gives the entirety of the other works. It is transsubordinating to all their ends and to all their laws; how could she fail to have her own end and his law? Wouldn't God ask wonders of his power than to make it the tomb of his sapea?

So why is Israel, which has no form of was the people miraculously preserved among the peoples? |

— Because of another people who, even less than He has no equal among the peoples; because of the Christian people. It is an extraordinary work, accomplished for a more extraordinary work. It is a A miracle that serves a miracle.

The miracle that was served is perhaps no more surprising that the miracle servant, but he is placed more naul and carries further.

Both peoples are Catholic, and the only one is uniTowards is its measure. But life radiates around The shadows of death spread over one and the other.

Both, however, are equally visible; But they communicate with the eye in a different way. On the one hand On the other hand, the perspective is clear. On both sides, Only the blind cannot see.

Given the second wonder, the people's wonder Christian surpasses in scope the first marvel, the marvel of the Jewish people. There is, from one to the other, the distance whose end leaves the middle behind; dis-moral titude, let us understand, and which comes from the difference-difference in the respective dignity of the two works.

Because, in practice, both are so arranged and united, they present themselves as a a single work; what links them is not a simple suture; they are mingled and interpenetrated; they evo-

— oe

They connect and operate with a single, simple movement. And yet, unity is not confusion. The dis-Tinction, this second half of the law of order, is, there, as clear as one could wish. The eye discerns the two works and follows the lines of their contours, at the same time as the mind apprehends them under the The high and common reason that unites them.

If the how of the work has found, near the free-thinker, the poor reception we saw, he would be It's surprising that the "why" obtained better from him. wise. For this reason he renews all his displeasures. Lords of the how, since he is a miracle like him: But he adds to it this unexpected additional disgrace: that He inaugurates a whole order of miracles, and that this order will; in a moment, so well envelop the mon-that the disbeliever will find himself bewildered therein, caught, whatever he does, by the net, and having no power to break the mesh.

. A new kind of laoeoon, which the divine holds in its knots and which curses without being able to avoid the embrace, the gentle bonds of mercy.

In this struggle against God, the only chance of to conquer what the son of Earth could give himself, would be to deny, at the same time; the two facts that create all his embarrassment, the fact of the Jew and the fact of the Church. -This would cause little stir in a century accustomed to to deny everything and to hear all the denials.

But these facts, out of proportion with everything that the world and history present facts, put at defies all negation. Before what awake man would court Would we dare to deny the fact of the Church and the Made of the Jew?

And, as soon as the facts are admitted; as soon as, each Considering this, you cannot assign either one or the other.

to none of these groups where the spirit of man has sorted, from generation to generation, the conquests of his knowledge; as soon as, turned and turned over in all directions -

CORTE

their faces, they refuse any known law of hatching- |
Given the evolution of events and the way things have unfolded, what remains, if not that the supreme and independent action of God has products, above all ordinary laws;
that she continues to support them at this level;
that finally, they had received from her, in the vast economy
a world apart, a place apart, which discerns and exalts them, and whose honor does not appear they are only bound to themselves.

And, since power had placed them so high, how wisdom, so admirable in lesser matters, to-would she have failed to make herself known in these trans- events descendants, placed by her, as reference points of all the others and became the last me of his artwork ?

And, since order is the expression of this sa-gesse, how could order be absent from what she placed so close to her, and how the service of the most great by the smallest, which is found everywhere ap-
It seems the order, would it fail to mark, to illustrate,
Here, as elsewhere, is order the rule?

[here, Bossuet and Pascal return to us with the kauauthor of their views and their style. Let us hear these two initiates of wisdom, to whom she seems to have revealed all its secrets. To those who wouldn't want it not to recognize, in God's most beautiful works, Such doctors could not at least fail to
to give food for thought.

“By preserving the Jews,” said Bossuet, “God is…”
"is waiting to see what he wants to do next"
"unfortunate remnants of a people once so favored"
"Ridiculous. However, their hardening serves their salvation"
".of the Gentiles and gives them this advantage, of trou-.

em Ph em

"to see, in unsuspecting hands, the Scriptures which

"predicted Jesus Christ and his mysteries. We "Let us see, among other things, in these Scriptures, and

"the blindness and misfortune of the Jews who preserve them" _ “wind so carefully. Thus we benefit from their "Disgrace; their infidelity is one of the foundations of "Our faith."

(Discourse on Universal History. Chapter XX)

“Those who have difficulty believing,” said Pascal, “in seeking
"They are a subject, in that the Jews do not believe."
"If it was clear," they said, "why didn't they believe it?"
"Not? And they would almost want them to believe, in order to
"not to be deterred by the example of their refusal. But,
"It is their very refusal that is the foundation of no-“Third claim. We would be much less inclined to do so,”
"If they were one of us. We would then have a plus
"A ample pretext. It is admirable to have rendered "Jews are great lovers of things predicted and
"Great enemies of achievement."

"It was necessary that, in order to give faith in the Messiah, he cut there
"previous prophecies and that they were por-
"conducted by unsuspecting individuals with diligence"
"Extraordinary loyalty, known throughout the world."

His "Here is the people of the world /e less sus"pect to favor us; and the most accurate one that is
"may speak for his law and his prophets and who
"Uncorrupted gates."
| | (Thoughts. G. XV.)

"They are clearly a people made expressly to serve-
"A witness to the Messiah."

(Thoughts, same chapter.)

"If all the Jews had been converted by Jesus-“Christ, we would have nothing more than witnesses above-
"pects; and, if they had been exterminated, we would not have..."
"We would not have had any at all." (Thoughts C. XX.)

EE EEE IIS t E

— 1H wee

A predecessor, by twelve centuries, of Bossuet and Pas-St. Augustine is no less of an authority in the question. (1)

If we allege that what decides, what he has– sentiment in human conflicts is not pre– precisely the absolute authority of men, but well their relative authority, that is to say the credit they enjoy themselves in the company of their contemporaries who listen to them, We reply that the eighteenth century has tasked with giving St. Augustine this renewal of cre– said.

Jansenism had placed, above all else, the ge– denied the doctor of Hippo. Everything was cut with his texts. Augustine decided, as a last resort, in high society, in the time of Louis XIV, everything as much as in the councils of Africa, in the time of Pelage. Nothing dissonant was tolerated from any point of view.
Which way he came. Augustine heard, everyone bowed down.

Philosophy did not wait to develop there, com–
Elsewhere, the accomplice of Jansenism. Such an al–
The link deserved attention. A coterie that doesn't Enslaving everything could not be neglected.

On the other hand, how can one not hold in high es– time a doctor, under whose cover they beat in breach, not only the Society of Jesus, this which was indeed something, but the Catholic Church entirely, along with its supposedly infallible masters,
The Bishops of Rome?

He who marries a party, marries, on the same day, all his enthusiasms.

Rationalism has therefore compromised itself with St Au–

(1) Although Voltaire understands the quality of Father of the Church either a title of contempt, as we saw earlier, it
It seems unlikely that he imposed this, even on his most docile followers.
a way of seeing things in the eyes of Saint Augustine.

Augustin, as he had compromised himself with Pascal. The tributes paid to Augustine by the philosophers of
In the 18th century, they created, in the presence of the great doctor, opposite these unexpected and unforeseen admirers, of the rights against which they cannot defend themselves and against which one will have all the pleasure in the world using it against them.

I know very well that it was St. Augustine in disguise, that the Jansenism presented to the freethinkers of the time and found the secret to getting her to agree. But the ga- The gifts given to Augustine lost nothing. For, what- no matter how much art one brings to it and however diligently one applies it. we do not have the power to accommodate, contrary to the True, that's the essence of an author. The enterprise would be as insane as altering his entire text. The enthusiasm for the disguised meaning is therefore disarming. The infatuation with the preserved meaning. And that's how - In the eighteenth century, every rationalist who respects himself You were forced to reckon with Saint Augustine.

The miracle of the Jewish survival was not highlighted by the great doctor, as much as it was later by Bossuet and Pascal. One quickly grasps the reason. The time that has passed since the last disaster and the complete dispersion of the Jews until the time of St. Augustine was only three hundred years old. Although quite another example of a subjugated people, surviving three centuries of its ruin, it had been lacking until then, to history, the rigorous and reserved spirit of Saint Au- Augustin, kept on guard against so many enemies, was holding him back of any statement that did not obtain assent. Moreover, the Jews had yet to have much vexations to be suffered, among the different nations to- what their wandering bands had come to ask asylum.

Even less did they know in those early days of their hegira, the carnage that the Middle Ages inflicted upon them reserved. If Constantine was severe with them, Julian... Combla and Theodosius, so different from Julian for the the rest, showed himself on this point to be the emulator of the Apostate.

The benevolence of the great emperor, continued by his sons, took on almost a protective character and favor increased, to the point of attracting, to the imprudent sovereign teeth, the complaints and remonstrances of Bishops.

And yet this vitality, unprecedented in the annals of the peoples, seemed quite marvelous to Saint Augustin, to make him exclaim from his pulpit in Hippo:

“The Jewish people are like Cain receiving a blow to the forehead”
"A sign that prevents him from being put to death." (1)
(Sermon on the Ps.go — Sermon for Epiphany 201)

If Saint Augustine did not pronounce the word mira-
He certainly gave some indication of it,
when he placed, at the forefront of the deicide nation, the si-Cain's brother. Perhaps there might even be there, in a meaning, more than the affirmation of a miracle. That would be the an early glimpse of the marvel, that is to say, the accumulation of miracle and prophecy.

But it is in the why of the prodigious conservitude of Israel, that is the purpose and the reason for being of the presence, in the midst of nations, of this extraordinary nation, it is in the explanation of its role providential and of his mission near the Church, that Saint Augustine freely indulged in all the lofty views of his vast mind; it is on this ma-game question of the philosophy of history, which it casts forth light in abundance. All those who follow him-
They will only have to collect it. We will hold

(1) Cain ille frater major qui occidit minorem fratrem, accepit signum, nc occideretur, id est, ut maneat ipse populus.
(Enarratio super Psalmos, P. 40.)

honored to think like Saint Augustine, and one is not-
It's not certain that there's a better role than to get involved.
Near the newcomers, the echo of the great doctor.
For those who draw parallels between texts, the masters of-which we referred to above, Pascal and Bossuet, have hardly done anything else.
So, let us hear for a moment from the Master of these Mai-
very: |
“The Hebrew nation was scattered among the "nations, to serve as witnesses to the Scriptures"
"who proclaimed the salvation of Jesus Christ." (1)
(City of God. Book VII. Chapter 32)
“Through their own Scriptures, the Jews make us
"This testimony, which we did not invent"
"Prophecies that speak of Jesus Christ... If, with this
"the testimony of the Scriptures, they remained in their "country, without being scattered everywhere, the Church, which is "scattered throughout the world, they could not
"to have, on all sides, as witnesses to the prophecies"
"who look to Jesus Christ." (2)
(City of God. L. XVIII. C. 46)
“Today the Jews are our servants: today-

"Today the Jews are our peddlers. Listen to how "The Jews are our servants. When we have "a matter concerning the pagans, and which we are showing today" “Today, in the Church of Christ, the fulfillment of

(1) Deinde populus Hebrieus in unam quamdam rempublicam, quie hoc sacramentum peragerct, congregatus est... sparsa eliam postea eadem gente pert gentes, pr opt testimonium scripturarum, quibus eterna salus, in Chr isto futura, priedieta est.

(De Civit Dei. — Lib. vrr. C. 32.)

(2) Eradicati dispersique per terram, quando quidem ubique non desunt, per scripturas suas testimonio nobis sunt proplictias nos non nxise of Christo dai ce ne rs Ie aV D ER UOS anat ea saan quoniam, si cum isto testimonio scripturarum, in sua tantum modo terra, non ubic essent, profecto Ecclesia, what ubic is, eos prophetiarum, which de Christo premise sunt, testes in omnibus gentibus habere non posset.

"what was predicted long in advance, concerning-
"bearing the name of Christ; Christ in his head and
"In its members, we take the books of the Jews
"so that these pagans cannot believe that we
"We fabricated these prophecies and we have
"Adjusted, based on the event, these announcements about the future."
(Sermon on Psalm 40) (1)

"The truth of our Gospel is evident."

"This tangible fact: that all the prophecies relating-
"those interested in Christ are in the hands of the Jews and "...that they possess them all. Through this, enemies
"they themselves provide us, in these writings di-
"vines, weapons to refute other enemies. They
"They are our booksellers, they resemble those servants"
"who carry books in the wake of their masters:"
"Some read them for their own benefit; others wear them,"
"and (2) the burden they bear is their entire benefit."
(Sermon on Psalm 56)

"What is the Jewish people today if not
"the keeper of the Christians' archives, the porter of

(1) Modo, fratres, nobis serviunt Judai, tanquam capsarii nostri sunt, studentibus nobis codices bearing, Audite in quo nobis

Judæi serviunt...Quando agimus cum Paganis et ostendimus hoc evenire modo, in Ecclesia Christi, quod ante predictum est de nomine Christi, of capite and corpore Christi, do not put our endxisse illas prodictiones, and ex his quive accident, quasi future essent, nos concripsisse, proferimus codices Judæorum; nempe Judiei inimici nostri sunt. De chartis inimici convincitur adversarius. i

(Enarratio sup. Psalmos. Ps. 40.)

(2) Propterea autem adhuc Judæi sunt ut libros nostros porte ad confusionem suam. When enim volume ostendere prophetatum Christum: proferimus Paganis istas litteras. And nc strong dictant duri ad fidem quia nos istas christiani composuimus, ut, cum Evangelio quod pradicamus, finxerimus prophetas per quos prædictum videretur quod praedicamus, hine eos convincimus, quia omnes ipsx litteræ quibus Christus prophetatus est apud Judæos sunt, omnes ipsas litteras habent Judwi. Proferimus codices ab inimicis ut confundamus alios inimicos... Codicem portat Judaeus unde credat christianus. Librarii nostri facti sunt, quomodo solent

"the law and the prophets, as a testimony to the pre-
"the teaching of the Church?" (1)

(Against Faustus. Book XII, Chapter 25)

These texts are but a few flowers, picked from

In our haste, we left behind an entire meadow.

backwards. Also, quoting everything wouldn't fit.

in our plan. But these extracts suffice. (2) served post dominoes codices ferre, ut illi portando deficiant, illi legendo proficiant.

(Enarratio in Psalmos. Ps. 56.)

(1) Quid est enim hodie gens ipsa (Judæorum), nisi quedam scrinaria christianorum, bajulans Legem et Prophetas ad testimonium assertionis Ecclesi, ut nos honoremus per sacramentum quod nuntiat illa per litteram?

(2 Between the Doctor of Hippo and the two great thinkers French, on par with these geniuses, presents itself, at the twelfth seat-key, Saint Bernard. It's just halfway between the pre-
The first one and the other two. We won't be surprised to encounter the same thoughts under his pen. "We must not persecute the “Jews; they must not be put to death; they must not even be…”

“Hunt them down. Ask them about the Scriptures. I know what has been "Prophetized of the Jews in the psalm and what is read there. God says
"The Church, instructed by its thoughts on its enemies, do not kill them"
"not for fear that my people (Psalm 58:11) should come to "Forget. These are living tableaux and high-ranking figures who put "in view of the Passion of the Lord. That is why they were dis-
"Persians in all the Alin countries, that at the same time they pay
"the punishment for their crime, that they may be witnesses to our Redemption"
"tion. Hence the Church adds in the same place: 'Disperse them by “Your virtue and deposit them, God, my Protector. (58. 12.)” Thus
"It happened. They were scattered; they were laid down, they are suffering
"a harsh captivity under the rule of Christian princes. They "will however convert in the evening (58. 15.) and, at the appointed time “They will be remembered (Wisdom 3:6). Finally, when the mul-
"The nation's fortunes will have entered, and then all Israel will be saved." “(Rom. xr. 25. 26.) says the Apostle. Meanwhile, there remains only that "He who dies remains in death."

There

(Saint Bernard. Letter 363.)
Non sunt persequendi Judæi; non sunt trucidandi, sed nec effugandi quidem. Interrogate these divinas pages. Novi quid in psalmo legitur prophetatum of Judaeis. “Deus ostendit mihi, inquit Ecclesia, super inimicos meos, ne occidas eos, ne quando obliviscantur populi mei. Vivi quidem spices nobis sunt repræsenaunts dominicam passionem. Propter hoc dispersi sunt in omnes regions ut, dum justas tanti facinoris ponas luunt, tests sint nostz redemptionis. |
Unde et addit in eodem psalmo loquens Ecclesia: Disperge illos

The two great marvels of wisdom and power-wisdom, which God has made the crown of his works, they are placed in such a position that one would try in vain-
further for those who would not be satisfied with this light.

It therefore remains that the fact of the Jewish people is to such a dimension and such relief, on the face of the world, that no one is permitted to ignore it and that,
Anyone who denied it would cast doubt on their sanity.

That this fact is inexplicable by the laws that govern-senses the facts of the same order; otherwise, that it is a miracle: |

That this miracle is the servant of another miracle of larger proportions and of which humankind can even less distract his attention: the miracle of the Catholic Church.

in virtute killed and depone cos protector meus Domine. the factum est; dispersi sunt; depositi sunt, duram sustainent captivitatem sub principibus christianis. Coneertentur tamen ad eesperam el in lempore erit respectus eorum. Denique cum introierit multitudo gentium... tunc omnis Israel saleus erit, Apostolus. Interim, sanc, qui moritur manet in morte.

II

Jewish wealth

This fact is more visible than the previous one, and, which par-
Even if he were to ignore the Jew, he would still remain, powerless to ignore Jewish wealth.

Let's explain ourselves, so as not to appear a a puzzle-solver and, what would be more serious, not we point out breaking with all the metaphysics of the School.

"You're completely in the realm of paralogism," he shouts at us.
metaphysician whom our strange assertion confounds.
Do you not know that before being such, one must exist?
that before a Jew can be rich, he must be,
and that consequently it is inevitable that we will not see
The Jew, before and more than the wealth of the Jew.

We will answer the metaphysician that he has everything.
reason, if he defends objective order,
as his vocation as a metaphysician compels him to do; but,
that what he said may not be accurate, and is not.

Indeed, not at all, in the subjective order where our
This statement poses a problem for us.

In that order, what comes first, what invariably leads the way, that's the phenomenon.

But the phenomenon of the Jew is the wealth of the Jew.
Wealth is the phenomenon of the Jew, like the hump
is the phenomenon of the camel, like reptility, if we can use that term, is the phenomenon of snake.

Scattered, crumbled, pulverized, mobile and unstable
as he has been since Vespasian, the poor Jew had no
He might not have been seen. At a stretch, he could have passed by.
Thus, through this world where he has wandered for so longtime, without getting the attention of men. But the
A rich Jew, more than rich; a master of wealth; the
The Jew, despite his billions, will not accomplish his race without being seen; it commands attention to more distracted; he carries in his hand, he reads to everyone, a document of presence and identity that does not allow us to Vignore; the social fact that it constitutes produces a such a protrusion, against the backdrop of humankind, that the eye cannot avoid it as soon as it opens; like the sky,
Like the sun, like a mountain, it imposes itself
to the viewer.

The fact of Jewish wealth is therefore what is less debatable in the world and we don't know that he has ever been discussed. As soon as this people lost its soil, this magnificent land, conquered from Canaan by her ancestors, so well distributed by Joshua, and so faithfulpreserved, by each tribe and tribal fraction, for fifteen centuries, as soon as it became mobile and wandering, the mobile and wandering wealth of this world, Gold, paper, that winged satellite of gold, belonged to him. Prenose it on whatever date you want, ever since Adrien
He has forbidden him the land of his fathers; choose for him,

In the series of social situations, the situation...
more difficult, the most thankless job in the name of...
With a wide variety of jobs, you will always find it sitting on bags of gold.

Men who deny everything have never denied this fact.
He was touching them too closely, and on too vulnerable a spot.
unmanageable; a passion too untamable, too rebellious
He kept a very imperiously close eye on them, preventing them from sleeping.
open, the mind too incessantly attentive; the condemnborn of a sincerity too incorruptible, for that the fact of Jewish wealth failed to be observed, proven, recognized everywhere and by everyone; so that he would not obtain |

not, of himself and by his own constitution alone, the most high degree of publicity that a human act can achieve-dre in men.

That a Jew should have impoverished such a son of his Christian faith
We will have mediocre things from the Gospel, no worries. Faith!
Who has ever spoken about it in the square and who has ever been on the sidelines?
What is its value on the stock market?

Likewise, since Christians convert
Why wouldn't Jews convert...
Christians? Aren't we almost done with this?
A silly past, where the so-called oracles of I don't know which infallible ones enslaved souls and left them
What place in the world is there for just one Creed? Au-
Today, the earth belongs to all Credo. All the sym-
They are all equal and have the same right to the sun. They are moreover, they were far surpassed by a professional a much simpler sion of faith, which is in the process of being suppressed plant and which will soon supplant all the Credo Facts and to be done: the negation of any creed.

That a Jew should have impoverished such a young woman of her honor daughter, placed in his service by an imprudent mother, Little importance will be attached to it; the fact will be denied, if the circumstances require denial, or, if there is no danger lies in cynicism, if nothing compels us to give the change and to test public opinion, we will scoff at this scurrying laughter, which rises so naturally to lips of our generation; that no evil

Fortune is sure to be found there, but who knows nothing?
to pay off their expenses, above the wreck of a pump-der.

What if the crime of the filthy seducer has found completed by the occurrence of maternity dishonorable, if he threw, on the public road or in the tour of a hospital, the fruit of degradation and the pain, (the annals of Israel are rich in facts)
similar), we will accentuate the sneer a little more-
He will lie, from scurril he will become cruel; after having cheered up by weakness, we'll laugh at stupidity, and There will be no feeding frenzy in this hunt for reputations.
comparable to that of this Christian woman, duped at the...
sure of his foolishness.

That Jews have crucified and still crucify

Christian children, we will do it, as before, depending on the needs of the cause, ignorance or Command denials. More than that, before any information, we will launch a campaign, for the de-defense of Israel, with an ardor that had never been seen to cover the reputation of any Christian. You will have
It is good to cite the most established testimonies of History, the most irrefutable. Legal evidence no indictment supported his conclusions;
We won't hear you.

Moreover, assuming these facts to be true, he thinks-
They wouldn't draw any conclusions. They wouldn't know being extremely rare in the long run centuries. And besides, what's the point of worrying so much, at Their opportunity? We have no immediate interest in that and direct. These children could only have been sons of very good Christians. Can we be greatly affected by the mis-Given the claims, is there really so much cause for alarm about falsehoods?

and unfortunate situations of good Christians?

Moreover, these are clearly rivalries and chasectarian squabbles; (one might say, parochial disputes, (If synagogues had bell towers) these are ways to act between fanaticisms of different origins and of various brands. One would gladly see inter-to come from gentler customs; more moderation
in the processes would certainly suit a time of advanced civilization. But who will boast of rowing-to regulate, to the desired degree, the passions of men, especially the least manageable and disciplined ones
Do they know about religious passions?

That a Jew stole, through paid complicity
or unpaid, a consecrated bostie, at a ca- altar
Catholic, that he defiled it, tore it to shreds, outraged it a thousand times
In these matters, we won't see the slightest grievance against The Jew. Indeed, of all the misdeeds of Israel, this is the one that we care about the least.

If someone were to say that this torn host has Having shed blood, we will feel a little more moved, but
of any feeling other than the one one would expect baptized men, most of whom recite in-core their Credo. So here we are again.
We will say, confronted with the absurd. We will not have
So, never done with this miracle nonsense.

No matter how much time passes, there will always be hopelessly backward, to whom no progress will benefit vira: worse than that, biased reactionaries, who will knowingly go against the grain of movement. There will always be enough foolishness in reserve among men so that no imposture fails to find the dose corresponding to No big deal.

08 =

Fury against the imposter, profound contempt for the dupe of the imposture, that's all she'll get out of it from his heart, to answer you, the baptized one who-will add tension to your story. And if you pushed it a little further Your man, you would find that this intolerant man miracle, is far from having given up believing in the Gospel
gile, whose fifty pages are hardly, in
In short, a fabric of miracles; that he even believes in this Eucharist, where he refuses to admit the intervention-the notion of a miracle, and which is, entirely, nothing but a vast and ceaseless miracle.

Therefore, to all the grievances of man against the Jew (for it is not only between the Christian and the Jew, that is, between humankind and the Jew, that lies the dispute and let the debate die down ;) "He is against everyone is against him (1); to all the evils social aspects of the Israelite, modern humankind attack-of little importance, most often,
Quite mediocre attention. Distraction, disdain, persuasion-flage, skepticism, all stitched together against a background of lighthearted good humor, which he shared with Voltaire at:
18th century, with Renan, in the 19th century, the wisdom of the life, such is the attitude of humankind towards the requisitory, always renewed from the past, always increased of the present, against the Jew.

But here is a charge that does not
It bears no resemblance to the previous ones. The attitude becomes any other; a change is taking place on the spot; you don't You won't find the same men anymore. A new kind.
human has taken the place of the first.

The Jews have been, in every century, and are today...
pru

(1) Manus omnium contra cum and manus ejus contra omnes, (Genesis, Chapter 16, Verse 12.)

Today, more than ever, the hoarders of wealth.
Here all foreheads darken; all eyebrows they frown; every uncircumcised man becomes serious; the distraction would be unwelcome; what more could be done?
severe ?

It is gold, the sum total of humanity, that is at stake.
Master of life in all other respects, skepticism loses
Here are his rights. Skeptics, moreover, as long as he tells you
It will please, sir, we are ready for anything. But it
It's about gold. There, no more skepticism. There, the kind of humain is of a dogmatism that you will never challenge-
But he holds on to it all the better because, there, less than Nowhere else does he have to fear overcrowding.
of the miracle. If there is a department of the world and of the story where you encountered little Revelation, little Of the supernatural, that is certainly the one. The heart of the Humankind says about this every day, all of this that humankind needs. Everything flows naturally from nature's foundations. It is not a work hatched and carried out at end among men, where the mysterious agent of a
the invisible world had less need to intervene.

So, obviously, with an obviousness that ispose, with a brilliance that rivals the light of the sun, at every stage of history, since its dispersion
Zion, Israel is the king of gold.

And yet, how many obstacles had not been placed in the way of...
sées, from time immemorial to the actions of the con-Israel's plans! Nothing had been forgotten by the so-Christian society against the rapacious instincts of the host
It was strange that she had done it to herself. For it is, by far, at home Christians, whom Israel most loved to shelter,
Exile. The son of the Gospel is fundamentally hospitable.
It is part of this wonderful charity that he has taught by the Master, and which is the foundation of his life. Even to such an unsettling visitor, mercy

= Jg

Christian woman did not withdraw the ray of her sun (1).
But what army of prohibitive laws did we not have?

Not surrounded, besieged the newcomer! What se-
Questions, what incapacities, what ineptitude!

The Church, so indulgent, so averse to constraints-tes, had spared nothing, in this place, of the most se-veres measures.

Civil power, with its less tender heart, had raised the stakes against the Church and took its precautions further.
tions. He never took his eyes off his Jew, a single ins-
so much. |

The main gate, open onto the farm and the Christian depredation, trade, had obtained a special guard for him. On all points that he approached, the Jew's trade had been limited, regulated-lied, controlled.

Usury, that other consequence of Jewish rapacity, was spied on, hunted, surprised in her darkness, punished by terrible punishments; in particular, the punishment
Israel's most feared event: confiscation.

However, at the same time as all the constraints enserwould have this people, whom all manner of indignities overwhelmed, Israel, equally undeterred by the thousand threads of the pro-inhibitions that, through the torrent of outrages, passed,
as if by magic, through all obstacles
and accumulated Christian gold in his coffers.

..... populus me sibilat, at mihi plaudo Ipse domi, simul ac nummos contemplor in arca. (2)

said the miserly man from Ilorace. The Jew was there in his entirety.
Horace had composed, without thinking about it, the motto of the Jew for all ages!

(1) Estote misericordes sicut Pater vester misericors est; Who facit oriri solem suum super malos et bonos.

: | (Saint Matthew. Ev. Ch. vr.)

(2) Horacc. — Satires, Book 1. Sat. 1. Lines 66-67.

—ÀÀ s

But then came a day when a wiser, formed Europe

to wisdom through experience, reasoned that Here it is: |

Jewish covetousness, Jewish enterprise, conspiracy-Jewish union against the wealth of my people, has not that one cause, and that cause is none other than the legislation prohibitive, troublesome lation, with which it is surrounded.
(This was the application to a particular question, of the argument cited above).

It was the repression of this people, they had said, this are all the severe measures that surround it which are the final word on its vitality. There are, as many bars there as there are bars barriers that halt its expansion, consequently, as much obstacles to its assimilation; this constraint isolates it and this isolation preserves him.

We have seen the full scope of this reason. It is the same one that reappears here.

But perhaps one might flatter oneself that it is worth da-advantage and finds there, thanks to specific conditions ciales, a more justified use. Let's resume the study, ct so that we might better appreciate its value, donnons-lui, par quelques comparse, tout le relief which includes.

Do you see this majestic river flowing through the plain? Powerful dikes rise up on each-one of its banks. You always thought that these dikes contained the river and prevented flooding donations. Well! You were mistaken, and here they are.
the grimly written proof of a handwriting that all
The eye can read. The river swelled, it surged and burst.
Its dike, and there it is, devastated everything. Look at the ruins left in its wake. Without the dam, the river would never have-but this violence did not occur, nor did it create these disasters. It is the . constraint of the dike which increased the pressure of the waters; and, accumulation of forces, determined by

This barrier caused everything to crumble. Don't look any further.
There's another reason. The whole cause of the problem lies there.

Look at this wild animal, behind its bars. It's from this
It is not iron that stops him, but rather his ferocity that comes from him. There is no for another reason. See this pig and this ox roam free;
When did you find them ferocious? So it would be-
There are tigers and bears, without the bars and without the cages. And, if you are not sufficiently convincedcus, the proof was given, not eight days ago.

A tiger broke through its cage bars and devoured a child.

— Certainly, what you tell me about the en-
'Fant is horrible, and the overflowing of the river is a
A terrible misfortune. But what is seen, once, by day of the breaking of the bars or the breaking of the dike, would be visible every day if there were no barreaux, nor dike. By a distraction that has nothing to do with gold-Dinaire, you mistook the effect for the cause and the cause for the effect. Such candor certainly deserves to be acknowledged.
come to the aid, and there is no appearance that she will delay.
a great deal, if one sheds some light on it, to recognize, that it is not the dike that causes the river to be ravaged geur: but the ravaging impetuosity of the river which makes that there are dikes: that they are not bars
from the tiger's cage, or the muzzle on the bear's snout,
which make the tiger and the bear ferocious, but well
the ferocity of the tiger which means that the tiger has bars to its cage and the ferocity of the bear which gives it a muzzle on its snout.

Thus the prohibitive laws of the Church, the pro-
the inhibitions of the Christian princes, had not only made
The Jew was rapacious; but the Jew's rapacity had made that the Church, that the Christian princes, should bear, maintain, reinforce prohibitions that do not
The rapacity of the Jew was never enough.

Well! The Revolution didn't see it that way.

MNE: o

She judged the rapacity of the Jew with profound insight.
of spirit that we admired, just now, in the . solution to the difficult problems of the dike of river, tiger cage and muzzle
The bear. 7

— But, finally, what were the results? Because that's That's where we need to get to; the final word on the matter lies there.
rouve. ,

If the results obtained are good, all the reasoning-Comments on calculation errors are falling apart. The worker is justified by his work. The Revolution triumphs. It
She has secrets that defy ordinary perceptions.
Where the Church, for sixteen centuries, was attuned to the Revolution
The solution saw clearly from the first day. She alone found

The answer to the riddle.

— Alas! The results are plain for all to see. The Revolution, which managed to conceal so many others, can't even think about disguising that one. So, the fruitet the wages of the mercies of the Revolution towards the Jew, it represents half of France's fortune. passed from the hands of the French into the hands of the Jews. Is it well done? Isn't it a complete success? Will anyone be found to say that the Revolution doesn't know how to do things?

"But you are triumphing falsely," replied his defender. sir. In order for you to win your case, you will need to- would show that the phenomenon is new; that this that you attribute to the Revolution has never been seen before her. But, if you find yourself under the pro- regime- The same fact, equally exorbiting, just as disastrous as under the liberal regime Regarding the new law, what criticism do you have? to the Revolution? It unified the law. It erased the social disparities. She simplified things, by

This abolishing prohibitions that resulted in not pro- Hibernian, by removing protections that do not pro- They were doing nothing.

— I reply that he will always remain with the Revolution the shame of his presumption.

There is no petty vanity in claiming not to have that to appear in order to put an end to all abuses, and to to find the next day, in front of oneself, as many abuses as one had made a point of turning them away. But what if... Revolution adds to this, aggravating several of the past. to create new ones for the present, and to sow them A nursery for the future?

And, getting back to our Jews, let's admit that they have succeeded, many times, under the prohibited regime tif, to gain control of a good part of the for- public access, there would still remain some difficulty A frenzy between these administrative failures, between these bitter setbacks for the police of the past, and what arrives today.

When Philip Augustus expelled the Jews, at the com-

At the beginning of his reign, they possessed the first of the lands of France, and they had so monopolized the
the kingdom's currency, which they had left, he did not find himself in it.
It's almost gone. This was happening under the pro- regime prohibitive. — Yes, but under the prohibitive regime, it is their
It had taken four centuries, since Charlemagne, when they gained a foothold in France, up to the reign of Philip Augustus.
which banishes them (1). For a result that is not

(a) There had indeed been an expulsion decree under Philip I”, great-grandfather of Philip Augustus, 1096. But the measure had Little application. The Jews knew how to stop its effects. A few Barely a few years had passed when the decree became a dead letter. It was then the fate of many others that befell him. We hope-would always believe that the severe measures would bear fruit; that the punished people would correct themselves, or a more attentive police force would have The best reason for their malice. In short, they were few worried, sometimes even favored under the Carolingian dynasty; and the less, they did not take a century under the regime of common law (r).

Another difference. "M
The tolerated Jew could still be turned away. This

The harshness of the early Capetians was more a threat of repression, but only effective repression.

One might wonder how Charlemagne, sovereign so Christian, who has no equal in the nature of his power except Saint Louis, in this respect, treated the Jews so differently from Saint Louis.
One could reply that Charlemagne's immense empire was more resistant to Jewish plots than the France of Saint Louis.
Add to that the personal authority of the master. It was rarely considered...
To defy Charlemagne, we knew, from the experience of others, that A very dangerous profession. Charlemagne also had, like all the great men of the Middle Ages, designs on the Holy Sepulchre cre. Could he have deliberately involved the employment of Jews? Nothing prevents to suppose. A Jew was part of the embassy he sent to Aroun-al-Raschid! Napoleon, who was equating as much as he could, Charlemagne, initially, was somewhat favorable to Jews. Several of his historians attribute to him, in this affair, with a different nuance, of course, the same thought as in Char-Lemagne, the acquisition of the land of the Jews. As for the successors of Charlemagne, they for a time entertained the illusion of continuing his role. To continue in his manner must have seemed to them the condition, not to mention the great man's ascendant, which imposed, in
In a way, whoever succeeded him, his mode of action. The attitude of power, with regard to the Jews, therefore remained the same. Any other

This soon became the attitude of the Jews towards the authorities. They did quickly the difference between the hand of Louis the Pious, of Charles the Bald, and that of Charlemagne. After a few years,
They had taken such liberties and displayed themselves in such ways, that Agobard denounced them to Louis the Pious in a report Insolentia Judo orum. The weak emperor paid little heed to it.
Charles the Bald had enough on his plate without that one.
saw, in Aquitaine, his first government, deliver Bordeaux to the Normans in 848. The Jews used it there with their recognition ordinary session. They never treated their benefactors. Charles the Bald saw in this only an opportunity to...
to increase his favor. The Jews, too, did not want Dismayed in gratitude. The Jewish doctor. From Charles the Bald, Zedekiah paid for his trust by poisoning him. 877.

| | (Xunalist of Saint Bertin)

(1) What is happening in France is happening in Austria, where our law revolutionary, transplanted by our conquests, has flourished since for a long time, to the great advantage of the good people living along the Danube.
The Jews own a third of Hungarian territory and the Rothschilds
they alone possess a quarter of Bohemia.

(NirTI. — Christian Socialism, etc., page 206)

Tolerance was conditional. There is no tolerance.
which is not; which means that all tolerance is, of Its nature is temporary. To the public authorities, who judge the suitability of the times, which in turn... predict the circumstances, to assess whether there is a need to remove or maintain tolerance.

The general legal system is stable. Who benefits from it?
takes root, by that very fact, in the society which He's part of it. There's nothing precarious about his situation. The Banning becomes impossible.

And this second difference leads to a third,
The fatal consequence of this is that there is no
there is more than one remedy for the ever-present invasion Jewish health: a revolution.

The Jewish question has not produced a single one under the long centuries of the prohibitive regime? The powers
The public had everything they needed for the
to prevent. They couldn't always prevent the riots, uprisings, bloody violence.

There was, many times, bloodshed. But what is blood spilled by a riot, even the most furious, next to the one who knows how to bring about a Revolution?

And the sacrifice of many men's lives is not that some of the evils that every revolution brings after her.

And the new Revolution, which is on the fringes of the first, will soon leave the mother's womb that it overloads and is no longer sufficient to carry her. The in-Isracl's escape is progressing with dizzying speed.
It is not necessary for the Jew, in order to seize the second half of French wealth, the time that he put into conquering the first (1). Another is

---

(1) Everyone knows the word of the Jew Stern, in the circle of the Rue Royale: "In ten years, I don't know how a Christian

"will do it to live."

the action of the strong who no longer have any obstacles and of the weak which begins. We shudder at the thought of the short delay which could separate us from the fatal outcome. And, all
With trembling anticipation, we speak, we write, we try everything,

Because we must speak, write, and try everything. Those who accuse wise men, a Drumont by for example, to incite France, to provoke them-even the social disruptions they are announcing,

They have all the spirit of ostriches who stand very reassured, when the head is well placed in the thickest part of the bush, they convince themselves that they have put in the powerlessness to harm, the hunter that they are in the powerlessness to see.

Moreover, events are pushing us, the whip
by hand, faced with the inevitable choice between two evils,
And, of these two evils, the revolution is certainly the least.

Because, if the Revolution doesn't happen, let's have the courage
To tell the truth, if she doesn't hurry up and arrive, it's the
the course of things continues, and the course of events
inevitably leads, in the short term, to possession of all French gold, of all French soil by the Jews. Under these conditions, it is impossible for all the rest, which obeys gold (1) does not pass into their Hands. You can't do anything in politics without them.

Already, the State is not venturing any action, however unprofessional, without their permission.

Then they alone will be the entire state; and that can promise themselves a Jewish state, thirty-six Millions of French Christians? Jew's colonists, attack-bound to the soil of the Jew, slaves and outcasts of the Jew, exploited by the Jew, oppressed by the Jew, skinned alive
by the Jew, that's all they can foresee.

(1) Omnia obediunt pecunie. |
(Ecclesiastes, Chapter 10, Verse 19.)

mM BQ an.

This is the future that awaits them. They are the brilliant destinies, including those of their fathers, less happy, they only greeted the dawn. It is blossomingcomplete surrender of this much-celebrated freedom, that will not have unnecessarily watered, continuously, pen-
for twenty years, intermittently, the rest of the century, the blood of several million French people. That is,
After many others, the supreme charter that is in way to grant us, as the crowning achievement of all Its benefits, the French Revolution.

HI

Jewish Law

We could, right now, review
submit the repressive laws one by one for our study.
decreed by the Church, against the Jewish race. The right to The Church's role in this repression is established by the decisive reason that always breaks, to some degree that she finds it, the resistance of minds; reason of the fact. The fact presents itself there, clear, precise, vivid. We he neither discusses nor negotiates with him, he takes matters into his own hands.

It reflects the conviction; it's a statistical record. It is A number. You don't attack a number.

With the repressive laws, Christian society has She suffered, she suffered greatly at the hands of the Jew, but she was able to defending herself against the Jew; she was not dominated by the Jewish.

She could do even better.

Each time the Jew, who had become insolent through the brake release, through the intermittent movements of a indulgence, too softly complacent or too blindly trusting, she disregarded the law, she carried too much.

boldly laying hands on what the law protected, she has used the extreme means that his law reserved for him; She addressed the root cause of the problem; she... duit the Jew.

With Revolutionary law, Christian society is open to the Jew, invaded by the Jew, conquered by the Jew, bound hand and foot, at the discretion of Jewish.

The Church's attitude towards this people; the attitude Popes, custodians, dispensers, respondents of the Church's action, is therefore already found, at the point where we are, more than justified.

But there's more.

In his campaigns against the Christian, in the multiple actions and gestures, such as social supplanting The Christian suggested to his dishonest activity, Israel was not a simple transgressor, of the kind of all those whom the public authorities repress all days; Israel observed a law; Israel proceeded regularly; Israel was deeply convinced that he was doing moral and meritorious work. What others dare, in defiance of the demands of Their conscience, however, carried it out under the dictation of his own. Where anyone else violated a right, he did so. Where anyone else violated a right he was exercising a duty; more than that; he was fulfilling a duty.

— But what law could prescribe that a Jew steal the Christian, to crucify his children, to corrupt and to dishonor his daughters? Jewish law is the Deca-

The Decalogue is so much the law of the Jew that We, sixteen centuries younger than the Jew, we do not
we made it our own, by receiving it from his hands;
We possess it only through him. Now, the Decalogue prescribes so few of these evils that they appear on every line,
the express condemnation.

— Yes, but another law was given to Israel,

as AI s=
not by God, that one, nor by Moses, God's minister, but by the rabbis, ministers of the devil, a law so little similar to the first, in that it is its absolute ren-payment.

The elements were already present in TP company
Jewish woman, when the Messiah, whom she did not recognize, brought her-
He kept his Gospel secret and spoke about it before the most high-ranking representatives of this society, with a vehement
a change of language that contrasted sharply with the peaceful background out of his usual speech. He, so used to blessing, bursts forth
This time, it's curses. There are some, one after another, eight well counted in the terrible twenty-third Chapter of St. Matthew. "You have," he told them, "a tradition that nullifies God's law. "Jrritum fecistis mandateum Dei propter traditionem ves-tram. » Matt. XV. V 3. Woe to you. Væ vobis.

Matt. XXIII. V. 13, 29.
This was the false Pharisaic tradition, an enemy of the true and ritual tradition of the Sanhedrin, of that which had been received, at the same time as the law, from the mouth of Moses. Now, this new and bad tradition pre-
. was based on sound and old tradition. This ferment of Pharisees, as Jesus Christ elsewhere calls them, raised with frightening vigor and corrupted the doctrine schools. Everything related to science and education, among this people, it became infected.

It was this cursed tradition that the masters of pestilenee collected after the ruin of Jerusalem.
They wrote down and codified its maxims, and formed this second law, outrage, blasphemy and destruction of the first, which is called the Talmud.

We don't need to recount the history of this book.
hendre takes into account his morals, by listing his prescriptions, would still exceed the requirements of our plan.

Extracting a few articles will be more than enough for but which we propose to put in to view and denounce the immorality of this law.

“We decree that every Jew must, three times cha—
"that day, curse all the Christian people and pray
"May God confound and exterminate him, along with his kings."
"and his princes. Above all, that the Jewish priests not
"They never fail to do so, three times a day, in
"the synagogue, and that they abhorred Jesus of Nazareth."

(Talmud: Ordin. I. Tract. 1 Dist. 4)

“God commands the Jews that, by all means,
"By cunning, by violence, by usury, by theft, they seize—
"related to the property of Christians."

| (Lbid.)

"Every Jew is commanded to keep the Christians
"for brutes and not to treat them otherwise"
"Just animals without reason."

(Ord. 4. — Tract. 8)

"Let the Jew do neither good nor harm to the infidel."
“But as for the Christian, there should be no means or in—"A trade he doesn't use to take his life."

(Ordin. 4.—Tract. $.—Dist. 2)

"If a Jew sees a Christian near a precipice.
"He is obligated to push him to do it."

(Ordin. 5. — Tract. 8)

"The Christian state is more execrable than any other state"
"unfaithful. It is a lesser sin to obey a
"A prince who is more loyal than a Christian prince."

(Ordin. 2. — Tract. r. — Dist. 5)

"The temples of Christians are houses of "Perdition and dens of idolatry. The Jews have
"The duty to destroy them."

(Ordin. 1. — Tract. 1. — Dist. 2)

"The Gospels of the Christians, which have as their true

"Name: The revealed innocence and the exposed sin,"

"must be burned by the Jews, notwithstanding the name
"of God that they contain." (1) |

Therefore, it was not due to moral failing, failure-lance, which is the ordinary department of repression-sion, which makes of it such a thing and so indispensable element of social defense, why deprive oneself of it and sign his death warrant would be the same for a so-company; failure, which the public authorities of none, as evidenced by the records of crime and penalties nationalions; a formidable weakness among individuals, but which becomes a public scourge when it affects groups of men, when she creates, in such mi-

social spaces, habits of violation, traditions of contempt for the laws; it was on principle and by duty that the Jew was a transgressor; in principle and out of duty he robbed and killed the Christian (2).

(1) Are there any other, even more detestable prescriptions, if possible, dictating methods of persecution of a certain kind more extreme and which would not be included in the Talmud? Serious authorities affirm it, and the matter does not seem deniable. after the depositions of converted Jews, and, in particular, of rabbis. A German author has just written a book for the to prove. We don't have it on hand. But, failing that, In the text, here is what the Ossereatore Romano reports, in a bibliographic article:

"The main merit of this writer is that of a moon, of a
"irrefutable proof, according to rabbinic doctrine,
"the most dangerous and subversive passages of the Talmud"
"and of the Arach are not written and are taught only from "Orally."

(The Jewish law of secrecy, summer,
(by Baron LANGEN HERMANN-BEY BRIE, Leipzig, 1893.)

(2) That the atrocious law did not remain a dead letter, all History is there to attest to it. The Jew claimed to be persecuted; he did like all his peers, in a similar situation: he changed the roles. The Church has never shed the blood of a Jew. It has done everything ee which was within her so that not a drop would spill out of the one whom criminal justice cannot spare without putting everything is at risk in society and in the state.

The Jews have shed Christian blood in torrents, in times and places where they were masters. Where the Christian powers held them. bridled, that is to say, almost everywhere in Europe, while qua-

It was in the presence of this doctrine of evil, of this—putting evil on the agenda—which found themselves the public authorities of the Church.

But this Talmud is not as important as you think. "Give it," an Israeli lawyer replied. "It's the sim-" It's a veritable outlet for the bile of a few rabbis.

For three centuries, they managed, despite everything, to spread it, so much so that They took it to heart. They practiced ritual murder in in spite of the stern guard mounted around them by the whole society Christian of the Middle Ages. A good number of facts, legal- "Proven," responds those, far more numerous, who have escaped the eye of justice. As for the open-air massacres, where hatred, free from all restraint, can flourish, we We find more than one example in the early centuries of the Church. What characterizes these massacres is that they were not the effect of a surprise, where popular fury prevents the repression of powers. It was under these latter conditions that the Jews were massacred by Christians during the time of the heroic uprisings and the plague black. Things turned out very differently when the victim The Christian was the executioner, and the Jew the executioner. The authorities took always in the lead. Always the ringleaders of the massacres were the nation's spiritual leaders and its temporal leaders when it They did. The Acts of the Apostles provide examples that no one A Catholic cannot deny it. One of the most brilliant after those, It was that of the Homeric martyrs under the emperor Justin. One sees there a Jewish king proceed, without provocation and against all law of people, to the destruction of a harmless people, whose only crime was to be a Christian. We cannot recount all of this here. It is a very long story. It is famous throughout the East. A contemporary, Assémani, took care to record it. Those who would be eager to know her and could not go back to This source will provide the main details in the history. Rohrbacher's universal. (Book 44, year 524.)
In his dialogue with Tryphon, Saint Justin said to this Jew: “As far as you are concerned, not only are Christians "driven from their possessions and property, but also from

"The whole universe; nowhere is there safety for their lives." And A little further on: "As for what concerns you, every time
"You have permission, you dip your hands in our
" blood. " :
(Dialogues with Tryphon, No. 110.)
The fact was so notorious and so difficult to forget, that Saint Justin also records it in his first Apology, where,
However, the Jews were only mentioned incidentally: "You the
"You know, the Jews are our most bitter enemies; as long as they
"They had the power, they put us to death just like you did."
"Do it yourselves. In the last Jewish uprising,

D

the misguided expression of a people's resentments, exasperated by misfortune, some scribes, badly
Those who were well-informed became overly accommodating interpreters.
There's a long way to go from that to a moral code. Only ignorance And hatred was able to see it there. Only they could to take, at this point, the change in the scope of such a book and to do, from the delirium of a few individuals, the
the basis of an indictment against an entire people.

— Igriors and enemies? Where did you get them?
So, found? It would be good to produce someones. Such accusations are not made lightly, and
The right of whoever hears them is to ask where they come from come.

Could it be Moses Maimonides who is this ignorant man?
And what about this hateful person?

Will you blame ignorance on the man of whom not one
The rabbi, the Jews say, has never equaled his knowledge; to his rival, in reputation, of the first Moses, which holds, in the
The dispersion of Israel, the same place as the other DEAD to his cradle.

Will you accuse of hatred against Israel the one who... is the most illustrious son and remains his idol?

“Barcocebas was putting to death through torture all the Christians who "refused to renounce their faith."
(1st Apology. C. 31.)
Not only were the Jews persecutors, for their own
They took note, but they became the instigators of the persecutions.
pagans and gave themselves no rest until they had armed the em-
The worst Romans against the Christians. That is still what they reproach them for.
Saint Justin: "The persecution that the Gentiles inflict upon us has
"This has been unleashed by you: the responsibility lies with you."

"More than to themselves."
(Dialogue with Tryphon. C. 17.)
When Saint Polycarp was condemned to be burned alive, the most eager to procure the wood for the bonfire and to build it were the Jews. This is evidenced by the letter from the Church of Smyrna. to the Church of Ephesus, adding the reflection "very instructive, that they were only doing what they were used to doing everywhere and always. Precipue Judeis alacri animo, ut solent, ad ista jucantibus.

AG ==
Well! Listen to Moses Maimonides: "All that
"The Babylonian Gemara is obligatory for "All of Israel. And every city, every con-
"to conform to the customs established by the "doctors of Ghemara, to follow their decrees, to
"to conduct according to their constitutions; for the body
"The entirety of the Gemara is approved by all of Israel."
"And the wise men who gave these constitutions, these
"decrees, established these customs, pronounced these decisions,
"taught these doctrines, sometimes forming the universal-
"The community of the doctors of Israel, sometimes the majority. This
"They were the ones who had received, by tradition, the foundations-
"The entire law, passed down from generation to generation,
"Going back to Moses: Peace be upon (Maimonides Morse. Preliminary Disc. of the Hozaka). (x)

" him! "

So there is no possible ambiguity. It is not

---

(1) We read in a treatise of this Talmud, Tr. Bara-Matzia: “The
"The Bible is water; the Mishnah is wine; the Gemara is hippocras."
Or again: “The Bible is the salt; the Mishnah is the pepper; the "Ghemara, the spices. Whoever sins against Moses may be "Absolved; he who sins against the doctors deserves to die, in "stercore. bullienti. He who is concerned with Scripture does something "of indifference; whoever takes care of the Mishnah deserves reward;
"Whoever takes care of the Ghemara, of all actions, makes the most
"inertial."
Now, the Mishnah and the Gemara are the Talmud. The Talmud does not balance, therefore, not only the Bible; it Penleve. The Bible is not nothing near the Talmud. Gravius plectendi sunt qui contradicunt verbis scribarum quam qui verbis Mosayce legis; quibus who contradixerit, absolute potest; qui vero eerbis rabbinorum contradi-
"erit morte moriatur. |
(Talmud. Ord. 4. Tr. 4. Dist. 10.)
Now, the Talmud is nothing other than a collection of the words of the rabbis.

. eosque (suos filios, Judei] instructs and informs not metuunt, quod, magis in libro contentis eodem (Talmud) quam expressis in lege Mosayca credi debet.
(Honorius rv. Constit. Nimis in partibus.
Anno 1287. Ad calcem. Page 320.

@

As an individual, it is as a people that the Jew defines himself. It attacks the Christian and seeks the Christian's ruin. That is An enemy people of another people. It is an armed people. against a people. It is a people who want to overthrow, to supplant a people; whoever wants to, because it is his right; more than that, because he sees it as a duty; because his law commands it and his Rabbi, doctor of law, leaves him no doubt, on the meaning and obligation of the law.
Therefore, how does the right, how does the duty of those who are in charge of guarding the people, of whom we wants ruin, wouldn't it be to contain it, by all means. means at their disposal, the people who plot it.
How could they not do everything that is within them? to render powerless against evil, a race of men my so clearly, so openly resolved to evil; who hides so little of her bad deeds that she inscribed them in his law; who takes care to ren-
to make any misunderstanding about the sinister purpose impossible that she proposes; which means that it must be clearly understood that any idea of peace would be a pipe dream and that the A declared war is, forevermore, a war to the death.
From then on, anyone who claims to be from this people dedicated, at the same time, to surveillance, to measures police, to all the exceptional laws that the only His nationality is used against him. (1) |
And any outward sign that will indicate this nationality-ity will, at the same time, become its denunciation.
Among these signs, religious rites have always been the least ambiguous. But the Church and the Christian Prince-

---

(1) "As long as the Jews remain Jews, their emancipation will be "Generally impossible."
(Excerpt from the report of the Association for Civilization) religious, moral and social of the Jews in 1831, cited by Goschler. German Catholic Encyclopedia. Vol. 11.
Pages 452-453.)

of

They will know how to create others, if needed. They will not Such an enemy must not go unnoticed, and for that the hand might seize him, at the hour of the misdeed, he it is absolutely necessary that the eye follow, wherever its They won't wear it, his incurable will to evil
to do.

But this Jew is indifferent. He occupies in his religion, just the place that so many Christians hold-
They are in their own. Circumcision or Baptism means,
By itself, little, and if there is a fetishistic workshop, even more so Christian, like the baptized person who approaches his wild beach, you will find, without going as far, such a ban-
a circumcised man who is no more Jewish than the imprudent one Christian tooth who seeks his ruin at his com-counter. (1)

I reply that one should not be too quick to believe to this indifference. Whatever he may or may not do
To do so, the Jew always remains an enigma. The Talmud
He himself will tell us why in a moment;
we have not yet exhausted all its revelations
tions. .

But this skepticism, or, to put it better, this.
atheism, even if well and duly proven, that the ra-
The sound of disarming would still remain, however, insufficient. Giving in to it would be a grave imprudent act.
density.

If the situation is not clear, if your eye seeks, without being able to encounter it, the line of des-the distinction between the Jew who ends and the atheist who comp-

(1) “In a meeting of prominent Israelites, for the reform of the
"The worship of Judaism was discussed at length... all arguments were made
"A bunch of considerations... we only forgot one, the law"
"of God. I don't even know that the name of God has been pro-
"noted only once, no more than the name of Moses or that of
"from the Bible." >= .

(Tu£oponx RATISBONNE. — History of my conversion. P. 21.)

At the beginning, you will still have to conclude without fear
To make a mistake, the following dilemma.

Or this man remains Jewish, and then he is found liable, as such, to all the prohibitions which reach the Jew.

Or this man is no longer Jewish, and, if so, what is he? This man is neither Catholic, nor Protestant, nor Muslim neither a Muslim nor a Buddhist; for he goes neither to church, nor at the Temple, nor at the Mosque, nor at the Pagoda. There remains that he be a skeptic, or even an atheist. But, If he is an atheist, there is no longer any rule for his mind. nor moral compass for his heart. His interest is his only law, or, to use a less circumscribed word, which encompasses and better expresses all the movements false, perverse, disorganizing, destructive, which can emerge from human viticultural activity, His selfishness determines everything, dictates everything, puts everything in shakes, in its being. Now, there is, in this egoism, a more comprehensive code of perversion, of nuisance, of social subversion, which is evident in all the articles, facts and to do, from the Talmud.

And that is why, such an ancient legislator (strong in (rule with morality, that one), put the exclusion of Lathe among the fundamental points of the state constitution. Every notorious atheist found himself decreed to banish, by that very fact.' And yet This legislator did not know the Gospel. Do it. to relive, and add, in the light of its high reason, the divine light with which the sun has risen upon ours, Do you think he became more tolerant of the atheist as a result? The psychological, pathological state that the atheist accuses Nowadays, does it appear less dangerous, for the modern society, which was not, for ancient society The atheist whom Solon banished?

And if the ban did not appear to the legislator pagan, an excessive punishment for the public offense that what constituted atheism in his eyes, what Christian forwould find a downfall bad, at least bytielle, from civil life, coming to strike the atheist who us elbows and which gives us from time to time, by the court records and cri- statistics My, the reassuring information that everyone knows? Who would accuse a habitual suspicion of intolerance? power over him, and creation for him of such a well-deserved and exceptional right?

Especially since it's not just with beliefs, that this fool (insipiens as the ap- David (repelle) is out of favor, it's with the raihis own decision to wage open war. It is true that the Revolution sees it differently. It inaugurated a reason that was unknown before her. But there's still something that can be done to this brand new one reason, before the common sense of the centuries, of which she claims the inheritance, or is required to recognize the fu-

the uselessness of his services, to bow before claims, including all titles known to date of today, are the presumption and the arrogance of those who display them.

It is from the leader and in the name of that old common sense, that the true and normal attitude of any society which abor-
The atheist's position will always be that of legitimate defense.
And it is, likewise, within the bounds of this common sense, all as much as the right of its symbol, that the Church, that Prince Christian, his son, should not kiss to stand before the atheist Jew, the barrier he opposes to Synagogue Jew.

If there was anything to be done, it would be to raise it even higher, or better yet, create it a wise uselessness, by infinitely pre- substitution

Dh

subject to the radical measure of the Athenian legislator:
banishment from the soil of the homeland signified to the one who wants to banish God. (1)

But now a son of Israel opens his eyes to the light. I don't need to describe the tenderness of the welcome.
that the Church holds close to him. It is that of a mother who has.
found his son. There are no limits to his transports. At her home, as at the home of the Father in heaven, there are There is more joy for the repentant sinner than for ninety-nine righteous people who do not need repentance. She will immediately take charge of all the interre-temporal nets of this new son, compromised near the her own, through her generous conversion. (2) She will put him

(1) We need a complete reversal of the ideas we are in.
They arrived, only to find such a simple proposition fanatical.
The elementary principle of the preservation of states is intolerance.
The rancidity of conspiracy, now, every atheist conspires, and this, from the
the worst way, since it attacks the basis of everything: beliefs.
The worst destroyer is not the one who tears down [the roof or who
"The one who undermines the wall is the one who undermines the foundations. "Now, the “Religious beliefs,” said Cicero and Plutarch, “are at the "Society is to society what foundations are to a building; it is easier
"to encounter a foundationless structure that a society without

"beliefs."

(2) The confiscation has been alleged as a grievance against the Church, consented to by her, the property of converted Jews. It could not of a more unjust accusation: "The Jew who became a Christian," writes "Beugnot ceased to be subject to the taxes that weighed on those "of his nation; he therefore diminished his lord's fief accordingly. "But such an act was forbidden, and the overlord believed he was compensating "this reduction of fief by the seizure of all the Jew's property. "He would then give her whatever portion he deemed appropriate."

This must have been, apparently, the work of a few lords. since an ordinance of Charles VI, dated April 4, 1392, states that Jews who convert will not be deprived of their property.

Montesquieu even claims that a custom had been introduced to On this subject: "A custom was introduced which confiscated all property "Jews who embraced Christianity. This custom so "Strange, we know it from the law which Vabroge (the edict of “Charles VI). Quite futile reasons have been given for this: it has been said "that we wanted to test them and ensure that nothing remained" "of the devil's slavery. But it is clear that this confiscation-"tion was a kind of right of redemption, for the prince or "for the lords, taxes that they levied on the Jews and of which "They were frustrated when these people embraced the Christians" sheltered from the wrath of the synagogue they prepare for him, of all kinds of downfalls, of all kinds of-all the more or less acknowledged exclusions of which the little-the place he abandons is preparing, in turn, to strike him per. And yet, it will not eliminate everything. of a Suddenly, as far as she's concerned, all the prohibitions-tions of the past. There will only be exceptional ga-

[d

"nism. In those days, men were viewed as

"Lands."
(The Spirit of the Laws. Book 21. Chapter 20.)

That Montesquieu and Beugnot neglected to include the Church Montesquieu was not implicated in these odious methods: that he even used sarcasm to insinuate that she wasn't there foreign; that he mocked this slavery to the demon, of which he did not devail nothing to stay with the convert (who obviously could not (hardly entering into the concerns of the secular plunderer) this is not meant to be surprising. Beugnot is openly hostile to the Church. Montesquieu paid it more than one tribute, and more particularly in that famous twenty-first book of his "The Spirit of the Laws." But Montesquicu is attached to the philosophical coterie-phique. He wouldn't want to irritate her. He knows she is the dispenser of the renown. He thus obtains forgiveness for the homage he has paid to the Church. He knew how to place it in such a good spot. The author of "Persian Letters" This owes too much to the party to displease him without compensation. Heroism is above his virtue.

But let Monsieur l'Abbé Léman, who quotes Beugnot and Montes. who, misses one of the finest opportunities to increase the triumph-Given the Church's cause, one has some reason to be surprised, Mr. Léman listed the protective measures for the Church at the Jewish quarter. And now he's passing over in silence one of the most badges, the one containing the response made to Beugnot and at Montesquieu. He certainly hadn't read the beautiful cons-the institutions of Paul III and Clement XI. It is, in every respect, very Regrettable. Mr. Léman is praising the Church with the Testimonies from his enemies; nothing better. But it would be good to sometimes mix in those of friends, and, of friends such as the popes, in order to oppose them to the accusation of the enemy who is lacking rarely do they manage to get close enough to his favorable testimony. What weapons did Paul II and Clement XI place in his hands! Judge for yourselves:

"Desiring that the Jews and all infidels would convert to
"the Catholic faith, and that the pretext of goods, previously
"possessed by them, never become an obstacle; from our “our own movement and our certain science, etc., we stat-
"Let us kill, that every Jew and every infidel who wishes to convert
"under the said faith, his movable and immovable property will remain
"unlacts and whole, and that, even if he lived under the

: *

DNE o pue

ransoms that could eventually lead him to af-to get through her life. Above all, she will know, without holding back anything-to overcome his tenderness, to subdue him, almost as much as in the past, to the surveillance regime that the pr-intensity is imposed. She will only part with it after she has matured. experience, that after unparalleled proof of sincerity-the innocence of his novice.

That's because prior to this experience, she has another one, of very old date. Data, which do not deceive, keep her convinced of the native perfidy of the race, (1)

It's because the only day of the year she prays...
Officially for this people, Good Friday, she regime of paternal power; etc., etc. »

"Given at Rome, in the year 1542, Paul III."
"We therefore... by the content of this document, confirm,
"We approve and renew the previous inserted constitution"
"in ours and everything and everything it contains, and
"Let us decree and command that, in times to come and perpetuate"
"It is essential that all those to whom it belongs observe it."
"Given at Rome, in the year 1704, Clement XI."
Clement XI added new, more favorable provisions.
still to converted Jews, the bull of Paul III.
(See the text of the two speech bubbles in the supporting documents.)
Paul III and Clement XI, moreover, are merely expressing a in a more official manner the immemorial traditions of the Holy-Siege: "It is a dishonor for Christians," wrote Inno-
"one hundred and three, to leave a Jew, who left the darkness for the "light, in need, amidst their opulence, and of
"to thus lead him, through their avarice, to return to his former "Mistakes."
(Letters. Book r1. Letter 206.)
In another letter, the same Innocent III recommends a Jew converted to an abbey in England by praying to the monks for him to provide food and clothing.
(Letters. Book rr. Letter 234.)
(1) Canon 1v (against the Jews) of the Council of Agde, begins
thus: “Judcei quorum perfidia frequenter ad vomitum redit etc.” »
But there is something better than the decrees of provincial councils. We
We have registered sixteen constitutions under "Supporting Documents".
pontificates. Fifteen times, the Jews are described as perfidious.
We are not talking about many equivalent expressions:
The malice of the Jews, the dishonesty of the Jews, etc... The word perfidious, applied to the Jews, it was more than official; it was, so to speak, technical.

one of

does not defend itself, in the presence of the most brilliant, of the most touching spectacle of God's mercies, to call this people /the perfidious race of Jews: Oremus et pro perfidis Jude@is; et, qua la diffé-Despite other pleas, she did not soften her heart.
knee, to that of the Jews, because of the treacherous and degenerate evenings of genuflections during which they insulted the lower-the Savior's words.

It is, finally, this Talmud, which they deny, on the day of their conversion invites them to hypocrisy, and, in particular– relatedly, to that of conversion, so that, in pretending to deny it, they might well not to be that more complete observers, added–
both to all the practices of which they reserve one more discreet use, that of a trickery to which the art, however accomplished, of the common imposters does not reach not, but which was not found to exceed the port–
the treacherous genius of the sons of Israel.

For it is written in the Jerusalem Talmud, treatise
From Berakhot, Chapter 9, verse 3: “The Israelite may adopt “another cult, without apostatizing, when the conversion
"sion is driven by need, not conviction–"
"tion (x)."

From the above, it would follow that the repression
The rights of Jews were, in reality, only a limited right and softened; that the full right would have been to refuse the land and water to a people willing to use so strangely
gement of hospitality; and, in the event that this hos–

(1) Simonini, initiated into all Jewish secrets and revealing their plans to Abbot Barruel, wrote to him among other details:

"...7' That in order to better deceive the Christians, they pretended
"themselves being Christians, travelling and passing from one country to "another one, with fake baptismal certificates, which they bought
"Of certain avaricious and corrupt priests."

(Simonini to Barruel. Letter of August 1, 1806.)
(Original in the Vatican archives. Copy in the Fribourg archives.)

would have been surprised to seize the pre–
a prime opportunity to cross borders again
to such exceptionally dangerous enemies.
Having found the secret of being both confessed and ca–
chés, admitted by the text of a law that dictates the hypo–
crisis, and hidden by hypocrisy itself, is not Certainly not an ordinary perversion. There's everything there.
the genius of evil.

Indeed, more than one Christian prince made use of this right. The Church blamed none of them. It is always so careful to avoid any interference in their affairs which are not his!

It goes so far that he sometimes refrains from things that affect her in one way, when they re-
They retain, through another, secular jurisdiction! Nothing does not equal its delicacy in leaving intact, to this one, even if-
She sometimes suffers from it herself, all the rights which belongs to him. Now, the right to eliminate everything that is, in a serious and permanent manner, a principle of disruption, for the society it governs, has never was challenged by the civil authorities.

The Church, which often sees evil before princes, because it is placed higher, put, for the good souls, in the name of the consciences that depend on it, to make the sovereigns understand that there was a serious interest religious and social resistance to the repression of Jews; it is It is remarkable, however, that she always refrained from advising them to banish them.

But when, of their own accord, not seeing other security for their people, the Princes in When they went to this extreme measure, the Church did not allow them any help.
made no reproach.

Innocent III reports to the young Philip Augustus the danger created in the Most Christian Kingdom by the molelegacy brought by his father and ancestors to the re-

iunc uus
pressure from the Jews; he does not speak to him of expelling them.

Philip Augustus chases them away; not a word from Inno-one hundred and three to indicate, to insinuate even, to the young king, that he oversteps; that more moderation would have been preferable. He therefore does not find the measure excessive.

If one asks why he, the Pope, did not app-doesn't explain to his states (because he, too, has states) we can give more than one reason. (1)

The first is the great and exceptional misery-cord that forms the particular character of power of the Church. Certainly, the other powers have not beware of eliminating mercy from their councils.
If they realize their mission and if they possess the Christian understanding of their office, they do not will never fail to involve her, in a wide me-Sure, everything that emanates from them. But we can say that it abounds in the power of the Church. From this precious oil, like that of joy, the Church has was anointed, to the envy of any other sovereignty, Onexit te Deus oleo pre consortibus tuis. (Psalm 44)

The second is that the Church thirsts for conversion. sion of these lost souls. They have a particular character who recommends them to him, a brand, on the front, that No eye can read like hers, and that makes her eager for their return. However, every conversion having, for the ordinary beginning, the illumination of the intelligence, the chances of conversion will in raihis direct proximity to where he will hold the lost one, of light. And then, contact also has its effect, which sometimes precedes that of light; it is this the gentle warmth of charity that penetrates, and more than one times, subjugates whoever is placed near the Church; it's that sweet sound of the heartbeat maternal which sets her own in motion and communicates to her that life, because it is from the heart that proceeds the life, Ex cordon vita procedit (Prov. 4. 23.)

The third reason is that the Jewish people are the ancestor of the Christian people. There is, therefore, a question. of filial piety. For this is the particular characteristic of This virtue, the ability to resist everything. Like a father who has gone astray in come to develop distorted feelings towards her son, the the tenderness of this son, if he is a true son, will know how to sustain all assaults. Torrents of outrage will pass, without shaking it, nec flumina obruent illam. (Cantithan the Songs. 8. 7.) And, if things in vewere brought to this extreme, which he was obliged to do in order to ensure his security by restricting his father's freedom, of tighten, within the necessary limits, the expansion dangerous from a harmful activity, he will not forget never, under this constraint, did respectful considerations and tender with an attentive delicacy. One will feel — always a son who stands guard around his father and who defends him more against himself than he needs to unsplits against him.

Finally, this providential role, more than providential, miraculous of the Jewish people, vis-à-vis the Church, that we admired from the beginning; this profession so com-

---

(1) The banishment of the Jews is not unheard of in the government of the popes. Several resorted to it, among whom,

Saint Pius V. See, among the supporting documents, the papal bulls. who pronounce the banishment of the Jews.

complex, so divine, of librarians of our Scriptures, of from our archives, curators and colporteurs
authors of our titles, pioneers of our Gospel,
how did the Popes, precursors of our Apostles,
Had they failed to understand? What they saw,
and so well done, see Saint Augustine, Pascal, Bossuet.
so many Christian doctors and thinkers, how Did he escape the Popes' notice?

And that is what was alleged, first of all, to the Christian

— 58 — |
held in arms, Pope Innocent III, when his pre-First care, at the beginning of the fourth crusade, was to ensure the safety of the Jews. The memory of excesses that had marked the previous crusades was still fresh in everyone's minds.

These were his first words:

“They are,” he said, “living witnesses to the truth of the “Christian faith. A Christian must not extern-
"to undermine, or even oppress them so that they do not lose"
"Not, himself, knowledge of the law."

From such masters, the excesses of rigor were little to fear. But, we do not,
Here, we can only glimpse this clemency. It's a simple sketch of the clemency of the vicars of Christ in-towards Israel. We still need to conduct a more in-depth study.
complete, to remove any right to accuse their juicetice, to silence those who would want them, to such an extent, merciful, that they would have handed over, as nowadays, we have done, bound hand and foot, to their
Thank you, the entire Christian community.

IV

The Pope and the Jew

In the Jewish question, the entire grievance of society modern, or rather, of the Revolution which is blade, against the Church, comes down to this: the right of exception-tion to which Isradlite was subjected; a set of restrictive, harassing, intolerant measures; a code of harassment, written against him; finally, under cover-their alleged repression, the real and atrocious op-pressure from this unfortunate people,

To this allegation, we were able to counter three answers, only one of which would suffice for full justification-Church cation.

Leaving aside many of the misdeeds sown on the throughout history, many social crimes, including the Proof has been provided with overwhelming evidence.
we produced one, which doesn't even cause not the proof; of such notoriety, that the discussion does not might think of approaching him; one, whose cry of pain

of the human race is the irrefutable and incessant te-testimony:

The Jew is the hoarder of gold; the Jew is the invader-builder of public wealth; the Jew is the plunderer-author of humankind.

If one objects that this influx of gold, towards the
The fact that he is Jewish simply proves the high intelligence of the Jew.
and that his wealth is merely the legitimate price of su-
In light of the precedence of his genius, we respond that fraud, that usury, that fraud, that alteration of foodstuffs and currencies, which art, in all its forms, of seizing the property of others, translates, throughout Jewish history, through a series of in-discussed and uninterrupted, which form a body of dea permanent bed, so obvious that it would be childish to undertake its demonstration. To make, of this art, a
The intelligence department would certainly agree.
strong to all practitioners of the profession; but, until a complete and unlikely overhaul of our dictionary tionary and of our entire language, the intelligence con-will continue to exclude from its concept and scope of activity:
where she can frolic, the flight of the next.

Indeed, nothing is more free than this superiorrity. If it existed, on one point, we should, it would seemble, find it almost everywhere. Now, follow parallel-for eighteen centuries, Israel and this Europe Christian, within which he passes, without mis-first; where his action and Christian action are held always so distinct. The great intellectual works tuelles, do the monuments of genius belong more to the latter than to any of the Latin peoples, Germans, Slavs, whom he hosts? I am not afraid.
to say that they belong to him less.

If we say that business matters, the enterprises industrial enterprises refer to a specialty of in-intelligence, to a practical side of this faculty, where Is-Raël could prevail, and who would be the special lot of his race: I reply that, even in this limited field and in particular, his successes do not seem to stem from a native superiority; that the activity is more intense and more fruitful, that, consequently, practical intelligence which evolves there, is precisely the characteristic of the race of Japheth. That is the fire she passes for having stolen from heaven.

: Audax Japeti genus
Ignem fraud mala gentibus intulit.

(Horace. Odes. Lie. 1. Ode. 3. 9. 27–8)

Shem's race is left there, by her, well in back. |

If it were alleged that the Gospel must have been there for something that was among his conquest's favorites,
The sons of Japheth felt themselves grow through their contact with him and their genius and their ardor, we would be far from emba-
To reassure them would strengthen my thesis instead of weakening it.
This, indeed, is the true fire, not stolen from heaven, that one, but sent from heaven, on the day of the pre-First Christian Pentecost. From there, the true and im-his intellectual superiority over everything he has touched and who did not commit the crime of extinguishing.
Spiritum nolite extinguere.

(Saint Paul. – I. Thess. C. 5. V. 19)

Therefore, it is not through the proper use of intelligence, it is through misuse of will that Israel created, creates again and will always create this financial exorbitance candle, whose incessant reappearance is the incessant calamity for anyone who lives with him (1). Now, evil

(1) We do not intend to disagree that the love of gold has particularly developed the intelligence of the Jew, in the work of the acquisition of gold. All love sharpens the mind in the direction it...

door. That's what led people to say he was the best teacher:

— — —

use of will has a term which he calls {and which to him
The answer everywhere is: repression of the will. If this bad escape, misdirected energy, appreh-
In an individual, the repression will be individual-dual; if, in a race of men, the repression will be of the breed. This is not something that can be justified.
It is established or proven; it is an axiom. It is the law of elemental, above all others; instinctive, before being ra-stunned; animal, before being human: the law of the - conservation. |

The Church is therefore simply applying it by repressing it.
Jew. Whoever takes offense at Her in this matter, takes A scandal of justice and common sense. How so? This which surprises no one, when the fact is repeated, a thousand times, in the courtrooms of all human justice systems,
would become a scandal when one encounters it at |
The Church?

The astonishment would then be all the more inexplicable.
that the Church's right to repression increases by - the presence of a criminal species, the others
Courts of justice, thank God, never have to deal with them.

Human courts do not have to reckon with the Crime elevated to the status of law. And as for the crime elevated to the status of duty,
The judge who met him would no longer call him.
erime: he would consider it madness and proceed with it consequence. | |

Yet it is in the face of this enormity that
The Church was there, and calling it mad was difficult.
A comprehensive code of public wrongdoing was between the hands of the criminal and assigned moral value to his actions. The deployment of all the necessary measures

“When it came to the son of Cythera
"He said he would show her everything."

(THE POUNDED — The gods wishing to instruct a son) of Jupiter. Fables. Book XI. 2.)

NE o GAE

Didn't it seem dictated by the nature of evil? What Can he be too harsh on fanatics who attack tend to the order published in principle, which are done as An order for the overthrow of the order? What if, at the Despite these legitimate hardships, you did not perceive Shouldn't you consider moderate repression?
To conclude that the Church's justice was very gentle?
However, it is actually this moderation that we encounter-
It is everywhere and is never contradicted. We believe-This would be a weakness of the Church for this people. That is where, certainly, a first and imposing prejudice in favor of his mercy.

An even worse prejudice is that she has insistence on repressing on the spot when it could banish.
What less treatment did he deserve, on the part of the Church, a relentless enemy, which carried in its hands
the sworn charter of his hatred for the society governed and defended owed by the Church? It is there, above all, that the issue is raised.
all day long, the clemency of the vigilante and that the character-
land of armed power to crack down, keeps him in hiding of any imputation of excess, in the appeal, made by he, the great restorer of the troubled order, of which No company has found the secret to doing without this world: punishment.

Because it is a matter of rendering justice, the Church is involved carne there, entirely, in its power. In all society, the first and supreme dispenser of justice
Tice is power. It is in its name that she surrenders.

Each time, therefore, in matters of prosecution and of public vengeance, we say, the Church: that is,
in a particular and preeminent way, the Souver-Rain Pontiff, whom we designate. There is, undoubtedly,
Conversely, the action of the dispersed Episcopate,
But this action has no official character, it does not obtain
of definitive authority, as much as the supreme power

Seeing answers from her. That is what they attest to, more than everything else, the adjustments, that each one imposes on him whenever it deviates or exceeds, this supreme power-
See. For it sometimes deviates and exceeds.

The cases are rare; but they do occur.
We'll see some examples of this later. Nothing

Nothing like this happens to the authority to which everything is subject.

It was therefore the clemency of the Popes that we
we advocated; when we put it into view, there was no
that for a moment, CHI's commiserations towards Israel.

And the feelings, where we sought their source,
the desire for the conversion of this lost soul, filial piety towards an ancestor, even one embittered by misfortune, even unjust towards the one who loves him, these were the feelings– Popes' statements.

But it is from this hand, so filial and so paternal all at once, it is from this heart so compassionate towards the stray, that will bring about the repression of straying.

What a guarantee of his moderation! What presumption!
tion in favor of his mercy!

But what must ultimately remove from all suspicion...

picion, in matters of rigor, the Popes, complicit guardians of suffering from this people in the reversed sense, it is the general nature of their action, in their relations of temporal rulers with the Jews; it is their way of dealing with them, whenever justice does not
did not engage with them, every time
Christian peace and social peace did not oblige them not to defend against heinous attacks and malicious enterprises, the subjects more specifically– entrusted to their care, the people of the States– Romans.

And first of all, no Pope wanted to hear about nor even undue pressure to obtain–

Read –

to nir their conversion. The forced conversion seemed to to– days, to the leaders of the Church, an attack on the rights of .]a conscience. They knew, moreover, that it eng–
to fall, ordinarily, the worst thing in this world: hypo–
.erisie. —— |

“We must,” said Saint Gregory the Great, “call them to
"the unity of faith," he gently persuaded them,
"by making them hear the voice of charity." “violence is likely to disgust those who are afraid of the– "Heart and charity attract."

This saying of Saint Gregory has become like the text of all the recommendations of the same the kind that his successors had to do in circ-similar constants.

These circumstances were numerous; just as numerous merciful interventions of the Papacy. We cannot think of recording them all of them. Let us simply recall one, one of the most imposing and among the most cited by historians, that of Innocent III: |

“Following in the footsteps of our happy predecessors”
"memory, of Calixte, of Eugène, of Alexandre, of
"Clément, from Célestin, we defend, to whomever
"that is, to force a Jew into Baptism: for he
"He who is forced is not supposed to have faith."

And it wasn't just the adult Jew that Rome defended against forced baptism; there, as elsewhere, the weakest had found themselves the most rescued; the pre-
The Church's primary concern had been the Jewish child.

It seems that, given the civil easement, by Church law, as the normal condition of the Jew, a certain right over the Jewish child, had to pass in the hands of those of whom the Jew was a slave. The right

Romain delivered the slave's child to the master. But,
| ain

Lad =

On this point, as on many others, the Church had,
From the very first day, it broke with Roman law.
The Church, which for a long time tolerated Christian slavery, the Church which maintained, as long as its right prevailed, a a kind of Jewish servitude, which survived all the others hastened to make the new way known whose servitude she understood. Shackles that... none of them affected the family. Freedom of marriage, the father's rights over the child, were as respected, in the slave's home, as in the home of the free man. The master's hearth could circumscribe-to write, to encompass, materially, the slave's home; -
He never absorbed it.

The Church therefore allowed the Jew to circumcise his son and to elevate it in her worship. Whatever grief she may feel. portàt, however piously moved she may feel- a title on the fate of so many souls, deprived by destiny from their birth, part of a string of magnificent destinies whose baptism opens access to the regenerated of the Gospel-Gile, never once did she have the idea of invading to save. To aim for wisdom beyond God, and to arm oneself with violence to tear from the entrails of world, at the price of peace, daughter of order, an evil that God himself permits, never occurred to him to the es-taken. 2

. There, therefore, as elsewhere, paternal right remained in its entirety. Everything that the Church allowed itself and that one what he should have expected from his love of souls was to come from there introduce a gentle interpretation, the principles of which The generals gave him the basis and that did not alter in no way does it affect his integrity. Every lawyer knows that the law of-dies intact, when the interpreter imprints this a slight inflection that inclines it towards a greater forward direction the subject's tage. This is what we call elaborating on the meaning of fairies, and that the style of law expresses

by the well-known axiom: Favores sunt ampliandi.

If favor ever had to be called, in the eyes of the Church asa suite, large amplification, it was indeed that one, at the re-guard of which, she considers so little all the others: the entry of a soul into the kingdom of God.
Not only for this reason of baptism, she did not absorb the mother's share of authority in the other The father's authority, but, when he wanted to share, she admitted that the second authority could prevail over the first.

That maternal dissent could do nothing against The father's will was self-evident. The merciful-God's interpretation added that, in the presence of such a high interest, paternal dissent would give way to the mother's will. The mother of a Jewish child could to have his son baptized, despite all opposition from the father.

The merciful jurisprudence of the Church went further. Increased in her rights when she was fa-Eligible for baptism, the mother found herself in turn defeated by a lesser authority, when she was there 'Conversely. In the event of the father's death, the grandfather's option The decision to baptize the child prevailed over the refusal. from the mother. But, ultimately, these are simple nuances of interpretation that do not reach the heart of the matter of parental rights over the child. By the fact that it-interprets the law, the legislator maintains it and takes care that he takes the time to clarify its meaning shows how much he.

the concern that he remain safe. (1) |

— But, say the lawyers for the Jews, all your allegations and purported evidence are so undeciives that they have not advanced the issue

(1) This part of the law will be more fully explained when We will be discussing the Jewish family. The texts will find a better place there.
their place and we will not fail to produce them.

one step. You'll only end up creating problems for yourself.
Barras, and you're so far from finished with the difficulties,
that we claim, we, are beginning.
Because, if the Father's right is that the child not be baptized against his will, and if the Church recognizes this Right, why doesn't the Church leave between the
The Father's hands, the baptized son, against his will or without his knowledge of the Father? The case is one of the least fanciful. He has even seemed quite unlikely to your legislator, for that it was necessary to outline the course of action to be followed when he would present himself... In fact, he did present himself, more than once time, and its last appearance is quite recent, quite notorious, so that the thought doesn't occur to anyone to compel the person making the claim to call upon witnesses.
gnages. The fact, which dates back fifty years, has retained all the fresh news from day one; at the unlike so many events that are old the
the day after their appearance, he regained all his youth.
after half a century.

We touch upon Mortara's story as if it was from yesterday (1). We hear, as if he were-
The outcry from public opinion was about to erupt.
European. The political events that it determined-mined, and which are by far the most considerable of Contemporary history is unfolding before our eyes.
They are few enough from another era, so that the most Young people of our generation are not entirely sure to see the end of it. The opinions of many men, and The most insightful among them go to nothing less than

to find, in the canonical bravado of Pius IX, lc

(1) The child Mortara, raised under the care of Pius IX, became priest. Entered the Congregation of Canons Regular of Saint Augustine, he is currently superior of the Hospice of Great St. Bernard Pass. We know that living at this altitude is... doomed to an early death. Father Mortara is therefore simply-
He is a hero. The care of Pius IX has not been in vain.

final word on the fall of temporal power
Popes, and, if we were to believe the less alarmist reports enlightened or more hateful illusions, this decay-ance would itself be nothing more than the prelude to annihilation.
The decline of the papacy.

We reply that, however skilled they may be,
they feel they are, however initiated they may be into all the sophistry
The lawyers for the Jews do not testify to the legal wrangling.
not, in this case, of a deep knowledge-the law. What they find so enormous is the simple application of one of its most basic principles comments. Long before he had and could have the thought of being a lawyer, the humblest student in The law knows that many things are done against the law.
which, in fact, nevertheless hold the best rights.

As one could twist the principle and derive from it such disloyal conspiracy against us, we Let us hasten to say that there is nothing in common between this rule of law and the all-too-famous morality of fact accomplished, on the scandal of which we would not want,
For nothing in the world would he dull public opinion. He will not In this case, it is not a question of any possible injustice and must repair; there, the fulfillment, the subsistence of This fact, is not and cannot be a justification for his continued presence.
It is something which, once done, cannot be undone.
Multa non sunt facienda que, nihilominiis, facta subsist. This is how the legal adage is formulated.

Physical order will help us understand the or-moral order, and, beyond the moral order, the divine order.

Setting fire to a house is one of the things more defended than can appear in the columns of an eode. Therefore, whoever passes beyond, constitutes themselves cri-Minel, as obviously as it may be. But, which would not take into account the fire, under pretext that he is lit against all rights, to con- would be considered insane.

Whoever baptizes a Jewish child, against the wishes of his parents, violates a right. But one that would not take into account the baptism, under the pretext that it was conferred against the right, would show even less sense than the spectastoic leader of the fire in his house: by reason that sinning against God's wisdom is more foolish that it is a sin against the common sense of men. Now, we Let us learn from the wisdom of God that whoever is baptized receives a divine character which he can no longer lose; that at the same time, a fire was kindled within him, that The Church is obliged, not to stifle as quickly as possible, as one can, at least, try to do for the fire that the arsonist has just lit, but that there are deseeing it imperative for her to defend, by all means means against anyone who would attempt to extinguish it. Spirilum nolite extinguere.

Because of his baptism, the Jewish child does not cease to be the son of the Jew: but he becomes so from God and from the Church, and, if conflict arises between God and the Jew, It is clear that divine fatherhood must prevail over human fatherhood. And, if this point is so evident- how would a simple Christian do it? doubt for the eminent elected official who governs Christian society yours and who is, moreover, the vicar of God.

But the matter is not only dealt with between the representing God's rights and a family head who would be so blind as to claim to oppose him. his. |

This king of souls and spiritual things is found | then, in the presence, no longer just of the Jew, master to his home, except the right of God; but of the prince tempPorel, less defenseless than the Jew, a born defender of all the rights of the time and to which the sword was put in hand for this defense.

If this temporal sovereign is Christian, as in In the Middle Ages, the spiritual sovereign had no embarrassment to approach him; his case is won in advance; his rights are written along with the whole Gospel, in the conscience of this powerful one; the sword of the prince, minister of God (1), will assert outside, the right of which his consscience carries, within it, the affirmation.

If this sovereign does not have faith, or, what amounts to practically the same, if he leaves her at the door of From his praetorium, the Pontiff doesn't even have the thought to address him. He is witnessing yet another injustice. among those whose lost and darkened people of this The world has been feeding it, ever since the heads of state have, civilly and politically, he denied the Gospel.

But if the Pontiff finds within himself, the sovereign the time he needs, the question becomes one of Extreme simplicity. It no longer belongs to any particular era or... date; no hypothesis complicates it. It is tran-It is posed, at the moment it is born. Whoever poses it, resolves it. The one who files the appeal receives it, and the hand that signs it The ruling is the same one that will enforce it.

It is not from a Pope that one should expect sub-wretched customs that divide a conscience of gour-governing. If the secular Christian power transgresses, when he leaves man's faith at the palace gate of the sovereign, one gets used to the idea of a pontiff who would only enter the city of this world in abandonment. nant, at the threshold, with the dogmas he guards, the God whose altar he serves? In his worst days, (because it has had bad ones) the papacy has never established a precedent, an ambiguous one, which allowed No one expected anything like that from her. Who

(1) Non sine causa gladium portat, Dei enim minister est. (SAINT PAUL. – Epistle to the Romans. Chapter 13. Verse 4.)

What was expected of Pius IX? If someone held in This Argus is a complete failure, a product of pusillanimity and... disloyalties, placed near the throne of the sovereigns, and which That's called opinion, it's certainly Pius IX. He did then, what he had done and had to do so many times; He went straight to his duty. The clamor of rationalism They slowed in both worlds. The echoes of them They exchanged words like thunder, across the Ocean. Pius IX responded with that admirable smile, which did not scarcely quilted his lips, and no other smile hu-No hand surpassed in serenity. Better fortune did not anything could happen to him and he didn't have to make any effort to drop the word with which Christ armed his lips of his vicars, the day after his resurrection; that Popes are passed down, from Saint Peter onwards, as the honor and strength of their power, and which, through-towards exile, prisons, bloodshed, he conquered all that that the powers of this world have opposed him with brutality Tality and dementia, invincible and glorious No possumus.

So, whatever our modern-day counterparts may think, the decree of Pius IX, and the legislation of the Church, of which he - was the application, are neither the ignorance nor the ab-absorption of the law: they are simply the order of the law. Superior law places inferior law under its jurisdiction. laughing; Jus superius preejudicat juri inferiori. So He wants a first law that dominates and governs all The others: the law of order.

Done, the word of the Protestant Basnage, expressing the the most interesting and highest relations of the Papacy with the Jews, remains in all its vi-Rity: The Popes grant the Jews full freedom of conscience, |

(Basnage. Hist. des Juifs, tom. IX, 2nd Part. liere 9.)

ced un:

The Popes did more for the Jews. What they have invariably refused, to all other dissidents, the freedom of worship (in the sense of synagogue rites) (remain a cult) they granted it to the Jews. They did not They could not tolerate it any more than the destruction of the synagogues. that they could not endure the Jews being led to baptism-Tisterium: "Saint Gregory the Great condemned the bishop "of Terracine who had taken from the Jews of his "diocese, a synagogue which they owned there according to "The laws."

The rescript of the great Pope established the law for the future. The opportunity often presented itself, in the course of history- to defend the Jews against invasion, the profanation, the destruction of their synagogues. Not one The Pope did not contradict Gregory the Great.

The pontificate of Alexander III was one of those where The Jews suffered the most. The fervor of the crusaders This had stirred up passions. Destroying a synagogue. when we went to recover the desecrated Holy Sepulchre by the Infidels, seemed to be the most logical thing to do, and it seemed to be becoming, by force of circumstances, a . a source of blessings for the pilgrim.

Alexander III restored sound principles, by reprimanding condemning fanatical acts. He took action against the servants few eloquent of his cause, the guard of all the synagogues. (1)

(1) A pope even greater than Alexander III was Innocent III.
It can be said that the glory of the Holy See has never risen.
higher than with this great man. Nothing better than to gather, under his pen, all the doctrine and the jurisprudence of the Holy See on the matter: "They are," he said, "the witnesses "living in the true Christian faith. A Christian must not
"not to exterminate them, nor even oppress them, so that he does not lose
"himself the knowledge of the law. As, in their synagogue-
"They must not go beyond what the law allows them to do."
"This allows us, therefore, not to disturb them in the exercise-
"Thank you for the privileges granted to them. Whatever they like "It is better to persist in hardening their hearts than to seek-

~

Nothing demonstrates better how these traditions of tolerance persisted among the Popes, as recorded,
Made in the seventeenth century by the Protestant Basnage, synagogues of the Roman states: "We have," said-
"He wanted to gain a more accurate understanding."
"the number and present state of their synagogues,
"in the Ecclesiastical State. We count neaf to "Rome and nineteen in the countryside, thirty-six
"in the March of Ancona, twelve in the heritage
"of St. Peter, eleven in Bologna and thirteen in the Romandiole... This count shows that there are "still a considerable number of synagogues,
"in the place in the world where the Roman Church reigns

"With the utmost authority."
(History of the Jews. Vol. IX, Part 2. Chap. 52).

"dear to understanding the oracles of the prophets and the secrets of "their law and to come to the knowledge of Christ, they have not
"no less right to our protection. Thus, as they demand"
we help, we welcome their request and we take them under the aegis of our protection, guided by the clemency of Christian piety; and, following in the footsteps of our predecessors of happy memory, of Calixte, of Eugène, of Alexandre, of Clé-
Regarding the matter of Célestin, we forbid anyone to force

“a Jew at baptism: for he who is forced into it is not considered to have “Faith. But if he agrees to receive it, let no one presume to…”
"To obstruct. No Christian should allow himself to obstruct ways
"in fact, with regard to them, seizing their property or changing their "Customs, without legal judgment. Let no one disturb them."
on their feast days, either by hitting them or by throwing at them stones; that no one should impose them, during these days, works they could do at other times. Furthermore,
"to oppose with all our might the perversity and the "Human greed, we forbid anyone to rape"
"their cemeteries, and to exhume their corpses for money.
"Those who violate these prohibitions will be excommunicated."

(Book 2. Letter 302.)

Thirty years later, Gregory IX, a relative of Innocent III, great Pope and great canonist like him, renewed, almost in the same terms, the prescriptions of Innocent III concerning the Jews.
The reasons for intervening were the same, namely, the violence.
that the Crusaders, upon their departure for the Holy Land, believed themselves forced to act against the Jews.

A ARAA

At AA

But Basnage's unsuspecting statistic for-would raise the objection in more than one mind, and, at Instead of focusing on the intolerance of the Popes, the to bring back in the opposite direction, against the laissez-faire attitude of Excessive tolerance, which was not expected,
in such a place and under such a regime.

And then, how, on the other hand, to reconcile this in-invasion of papal lands by Jewish synagogues, with the legal texts, known to all? If, at the ter-
According to the law, it was forbidden to destroy the synagogues.
existing gues, there was, similarly, defense rigorous in building new ones; and, when we would pick up or repair those that fell from the ve-Tusté, the act of this permission marked that one would refrain from any enlargement and embellishment-lying, and that we would limit ourselves to pure restitution and simple of what had existed. (1) How, then,
explain the prodigious number of synagogues, recorded by Basnage? Could it be the Popes?
would have had little regard, on this point, for the observance of the law, and, pushed]to a good-naturedness to the point of closing his eyes on the flagrant violation of their orders?

The first response is that temporal sovereignty of the Popes, dates only from the end of the eighth century, that it had been permissible until then for Jews to do settlements in Roman territory, outside of all control of the Popes, and that they had used this manner-lit, all the more so, since, more than a century
during, Julien's almost uninterrupted protection
the Apostate, of Theodosius the Great and of Theodoric te

(1) Judeos de novo construere synagogas, ubi non habuerint, pati non se debt; verüm, si antiqug corruerint vel ruinam minentur, ut eas reædificent potest œquanaimer tolerari; No autem ut eas exalt, aut ampliores aut pretiosiores faciant
quam antea futisse noscuntur. |

(Cap. Judaei 3 and cap. Consuluit 7 of Judæis.)

Grand (1) had covered them; that, later, pen-
During the seventy years of exile from Avignon, the Papes had almost no effective authority over the States of Italy; that finally, the latest acquisitions of Popes, who doubled the territorial area of These states were formed during the course of the sixteenth century.
Jewish synagogues existed there. Faithful to their
The Popes maintained these rules as they had been established.
found. (2)

But a better answer that goes further that all the facts are that Papal law, which governs-
He knew the synagogues, and was among those who suffer dis-thinks. As soon as a serious reason called for this dis-
I think the Panes were far from being inexorable.
There, as elsewhere, we found the same gentleness.
recognized and so much so, proclaimed by their government.
The Holy Father is always a father to those who approach him;
ct, whoever is admitted to live under his seal
will know how to miss feeling it. Infinite condates-descendants of this paternal lineage. A group of sons

(1) Cassiodori. Opera. Letters. Book v. Letter 37.)

(2) It must be acknowledged, however, that several, pushed to the limit through the overflow of Jewish influence and through worse misdeeds Furthermore, the number of synagogues was counted.

permitted the means of repression. Among them was Paul IV who wanted only one per Jewish community: "Ut in singulis civi-“tatibus terris et locis, in quibus habitaverint, unicam tantum “synagogam, in loco solito, habeant nec aliam de novo
"construere possint."

(Const. Cum nimis absurdum. 1555)

Saint Pius V and Clement VIII, who granted only three cities of residence for Jews in the Roman States, Saint Pius V, Rome Ancona, Clement VIII, these two cities along with Avignon, carried to a proportionally small number the number of synagogues. But the severity of the popes is not easily sustained. It is not in the nature of their power. The Jews succeeded without It was difficult to sway her. It was necessary, therefore, for Clement VII to Basuage, that is to say, in the space of less than a century, the synagogues, made so rare by this pope, could rise to the figure enormous, according to Basnage.

of Israel, he revealed, on one point of the Roman states, that the Popes had no difficulty in allowing the nascent community, the construction of a synagogue-gue. |

They even found more than one advantage in it.

First, since they agreed to welcome the Jews, it was advantageous to have them as good Jews. The cult religion has always been the primary element of the mo-the realization of man and, with some precaution which obliges, against him, the Israelite, even the most extreme-Quite rightly, the Popes have always known enough long on the heart of man, to feel less threatened by the Jew faithful to his prayer and his rites, than by the irreligious and freethinking Jew.

Another security measure, with regard to the Jew, It was because he became known as a Jew. We will see the Popes attach such importance to this notoriety that they will not back down from the measures we have the most criticized aspects of their legislation. That's where even accused of odious vexation. The synagogue, by grouping them together in front of everyone, he pointed them out, in the most natural way possible, and without giving pretext containing no recriminations whatsoever.

Finally, the leader of the new alliance has always loved, as clearly and solemnly as possible, and above all The most frequently heard testimony is that of the elderly woman. The lec-official reading of the Old Testament, at the ambo of a synagogue, delivered it to him under the conditions better than he could wish for. It was the opposite a living proof of what he had people read from the pulpit its churches.

But here, a surprise might arise, flank-
It stems from ignorance. Ignorance always works confronting astonishment head-on: one is only astonished by Because we don't know. Let's not miss the news and

e

098 =
always a precious opportunity to do, to the astonished, the
The best of alms is the alms of light.

How, we are told, does your Church, your Popes,
If they were so hospitable to the Jew, were they so little so, in-towards the Protestant, who has so many advantages over the Jew?
To stick to the point at hand, com-
ly, so easy in the question of the Synagogue Jewish, were the Popes so intractable in the question of the Protestant temple? It seems that the
The most basic fairness dictated to the guardian of the law
new, to welcome whoever presented themselves, with a parl, however reduced it may have been, of new law, better than the intransigent one who didn't even want to hear it pronounce the name (r).

To this objection, the answer is already given by me-tied. We have said that the situation of the Jew, vis-à-
'The Church's face, was that of a misguided father, facing of a son's piety. Filial piety is studied at all the delicate care that paternal misfortune brings about.
The Protestant's situation is quite different. Quite the-

(1) Our reply to the objection will be particularly useful to such a reader who might have had dealings with Basnage. Here's how this the latter explains the difference in attitude of the popes towards the protest-and of the Jew. However calm one might suppose the judgment of the minister-In this situation, one could not expect his complete impartiality. One could only assume will judge. "Why do popes favor Jews? Preferable-
"Lying to the Reformed? Answer: The popes have less grief"
"and violence against the Jews, because they are more
"older than them and that they are not powerful enough to
"To overshadow them. The jealousy of princes only intensifies when..."
"against a nascent republic, or against a troublesome neighbor"
"Someone who expands or wants to reclaim provinces. We leave
"to live peacefully the weak nations that cannot
"to harm. The reformers are attacking papal authority head-on;

"They are formidable neighbors. We therefore maintain constant vigilance."
"to weaken them. There is nothing in the condition of the Jews that "excites the jealousy of the popes. Far from gaining anything by losing them, "They are interested, through the management of their income, in keeping them-
"Server."

~ AN

(History of the Jews. Volume 1x. Part 2. Chapter 19.)

A ERO
This too will be the Church's way of acting. The son will not
The father doesn't chase away the lost father from the home. The father chases from the home, the rebellious son.

And then, the Protestant goes to the church, to tell him that she is not the Church and that it is him, Protestifying, which is the Church. In terms, in a Given the situation of this violence, it is difficult for the Constrictors live willingly and easily together
ble. To reduce everything to one word, which, in reality,
It contains everything: the Protestant protests; more than that,
It is protest; living protest. We endure.
an opponent's oral or written protest;
does not tolerate a living protest.

The Jew, for his part, does not protest; he remains silent; his role is made up of abstention and silence, and the Church advises on that he doesn't get out of it.

Indeed, his synagogue is not entirely wrong point as it is, from every point, by the fact that it pro-Teste, the Protestant temple.

The synagogue is only false for the time when the -
The Jewish place. By a faculty of optics, may God give him given, the Church refers it back to the centuries in which it was true. From being obscure, the synagogue becomes Then, all luminous, the Church has only to collect-
- to read this light in order to increase one's own and in to double his treasure.

The third sign of the Popes' clemency, in the reports to which their office and events obliged them, along with the Jews, the third guarantee of impartiality, gentle and merciful rectitude
their justice within the system of repression they fled obliged to organize for the defense of Christians
Look, that's the constant care they took, to cover

the Jews of their guardianship, whenever the fu-Popular anger erupted against them. These bloody

*

Such episodes were not uncommon in the Middle Ages. The crsades were the main occasion.

This was in Spain, during the reign of Ferdinand-
It was in the name of the Great that these strange acts of faith began, deeds in the blood of the Jews. This prince accomplishes marvelous exploits against the Moors. He pushed, further than any of its predecessors, this liberthe ration of Spain which was to be completed, four sieges Keys after him, Ferdinand the Catholic. In his the people, spurred on by the infidel, readily confused the Jew with the Moor, and, the Jew finding himself the premier under his hand, mingled as he was still with the nation, the Castilian could not see a better start to the crusade against the Moor, which led to the extermination of Jewish.

The Jew, moreover, he remembered, had been the inintroducer of Islam during the time of Pelagius. The People have long memories for everything that represerves their freedom.

Driven out several times by the early Catholic kings the Jews had been recalled and showered with gifts favors by Vitiza. They rewarded him for it, in his great-successor, by the call of foreigners. The Catholic soil of Spain, undermined by treason Jewish, was handed over to Moses (r).

(1) Ferdinand the Catholic, who completed, after seven and a half centuries of bloody battles, the repair of the harm caused by recklessness de Viliza, could hardly ignore the Jewish betrayal born of this imprudence, and cause of all the misfortunes. Likewise, Nothing could have been less necessary to legitimize the act of banishment. of the Jews, signed, in Granada, in March 1492. The fall of Granada brought about more than one revelation. The proof was then in hand. Undoubtedly, the Jews, enemies of the Cross, were just as much and more that the Muslims had done everything in their power to to preserve for Muhammad the most beautiful province of Spain. He did not It didn't need to be any more. But, assuming that Ferdinand, more occupied with politics rather than studies, it has not gone back, in history, up to Vitiza, (the history of Spain not being written from its

CEN iie

From generation to generation, the old Christians
The people of Spain had told these things to their sons.
Nothing could be explained, therefore, like the reprisals of these oppressed people of three centuries, who, many-
The victors did not intend to break halfway their chains.

And then, before and apart from national grievances, time) there is no doubt that Ximénez knew everything about the antiquities of his country. Ximénès, a man endowed with every superiority, also A great doctor and a great minister, he had accumulated all knowledge of his time in his prodigious mind before applying it to the creation of Spain's greatness. There is no doubt that this souvenir had no part in the promulgation of the famous edict of 1492.

The ruin of Spain under Pelagius is not the only historical fact risk which shows what predominance and high fortune Jewish people have a fatal flaw for a Catholic nation. Casimir the Great did, for Poland, in the fourteenth century, what Vitiza had Made for Spain in the seventh century. In love with a Jewish woman, named of Esther, he was, for the whole nation, more prodigal than the As-Suérus of the first. He called the Jews, befriended them, their Poland gave them the upper hand in all matters.
It became like a second Promised Land. But who has ever seen
The Jew, overcome by the benevolence, abdicates the hatred he bears for the Christian Well? Poland, ruined, devoured by its host, succumbed, after to have carried this breast cancer for four centuries. And today, the
The rodent remains attached to the living flesh that remains on it.
thanks to the Catholic faith, and which contribute to the survival of this nation torn to pieces, a sort of 'analogous miracle' to that of the preservation of the Jewish people. That is why, when They protected Jews from summary justice and always
The popes, in their condemnation of the massacre, never concealed the danger.
social and political significance that their presence represented for nations Christians, and how important it was to sovereigns not to never take your eyes off it.

One of their main defenders, perhaps the most famous,
the man whose authority in the Church has not been surpassed, Innocent III did not hesitate to say, openly, what he thought of them and applied popular proverbs to them: a rat in a bag; a snake in the breast; a burning coal in the clothing. Here are his words: “Qui, tanquam misericorditer, in “nostram familiaritatem admitsi, nobis illam retributionem impen-

“dunt quam, (juxta vulgare proverbium) mus in perà, serpents in “gremio, ignis in sinu, suis consueverunt hospitibus exhibere. »

(Decree. Book V. Title VI. Chapter 13.)

E

has

The Jew, all things considered, presented himself to them, more odious than the Saracen. It was not the Sara-Zin was the Jew who had crucified the One of whom we was going to reconquer the tomb (1).

But, however legitimate all may seem these indignations, and those of the Christian, and those of the Castilian, the Popes did not grant them these victories times. Alexander II wrote. Warned and put in de-led by their chief, the Bishops settled in a position of towards anger. The Pope's aegis covered and saved the unfortunate Israel. |

What Alexander II did, all the Popes have repeated. learning at each popular uprising of the same genre. Alexander III, his glorious namesake, was there distinguished among them all. He had no less to do in

(1) Moreover, there was no shortage, in the Catholic world, of Authoritative voices to remind Christians of these things. No one He did so with more eloquence than Peter the Venerable. That is perhaps, throughout the Middle Ages, the man who had the most impi-He had graciously denounced all the iniquities of the Jews. He did not conclude than to the confiscation of their property. But, given that the people he took justice into his own hands, which was not the intention of Peter the Venerable It was difficult to dwell solely on possessions and not go further down to the individuals.

“What is the point,” wrote the Abbot of Cluny, “of going to attack and…”
"Following the enemies of Christian hope into foreign lands"
"near and far, if the Jews, detestable, blasphemers, a hundred
"times worse than the Saracens, can be near us, in the middle of
"We, with so much freedom, so much audacity, so much impunity, blas-
"to ephemerate, to trample underfoot, to cover with insults, both Christ and all "The holy things of the Christian religion? How can the zeal of “Does God devour the children of God if they leave in peace the "More implacable enemies of Christ and Christians? If necessary

"To hate the Saracens... how many more should be abhorred,"
"Hated, the Jews!... May the ill-gotten wealth of "Jews be done, or seized in whole, or confiscated in his
"a better part, and that the Christian army, which, to fight
"The Saracens do not spare their gold and lands, they save, less
"Again, the treasures of the Jews, so fraudulently amassed."

(Letter from Peter the Venerable to Louis the Younger. MIGNE. — Patro-Latin logy. Vol. 189. P. 369. Letter 36. — See the Latin text, (to the supporting documents, after the Constitutions of the Popes.)

exc ee

France. At the end of the twelfth century, Alexander II at the decline of the eleventh century. The Christians of France, leaving for the crusade, they considered it unwise to leave-to send Jews back; to thus deliver, for a long absence, lands and families to enemies whose ill intent they all knew. Furthermore, since we were doing so much as going to kill infidels
a thousand leagues from his country, wasn't he quite simple
To kill, first of all, those who were readily available?
Alexander III wrote to the Bishops and Princes.
Those who had protected the Jews; for example, the Viscount of Narbonne; he congratulates them. To the Bishops, he
It also recalls the horror that the Church has always bloodshed and their order that its severe prohibitions
tions make no exception for the blood of the Jew.

The end of the crusades was not, alas! the end of these atrocities, and unfortunately, Clement V did not obtain, at suppressing them, the same success as his predecessors of Better times. It would be difficult to say everything there is to say.
Jews perished in France and Spain under the sword
and the fire of the Pastoureaux.

But, if the voice of the Popes was little heeded by the fewples, greeted as she had just been by contempt kings, less than ever, she failed to make herself into a king.
tender. These horrors provoked all the more the anathemas of Clement V, which they passed pres-that before his very eyes. The massacres were such in the South, a stone's throw from Avignon, which the Langue-Doc was almost entirely depopulated of Jews. Everything that escaped the sword, crossed the Pyrenees, almost always,
to find the same welcome there. There was nothing more no place for the Spaniard, as for the Frenchman, to be ten-to Israel; indeed, was it not from Spain?

The gne that the Jew had come to us? The Castilian sword
This would, as usual, finish off the fleeing bands, and

It was wonderful when a few shipwrecks survived.

to the carnage.
The Black Death offered even more excesses to combat-

There are more forms of fury to suppress than fanaticism.
popular, fueled by religious sentiments.

She made people forget about the Shepherds.
There is no more somber date in all of Vhis-

The Jewish people. They were going to do nothing less than make them authors of the plague by blaming them for poisoning
the waters of Christendom.

There is only one thing in the world that surpasses the absurde (1), it is credulity that he encounters. The inter-
The intervention of Clement VI thus had the same fate as that which had,
Forty years earlier, that of Clement V. But, no
She spared no effort in this one, more than the first.

“The Pope,” said a recent historian of the Jews, “was the
"the first who, amidst this carnage, spoke out"
"against popular uprisings, and sought to
"To enlighten the lost multitude... he showed that the

(1) When we say absurd we do not mean here that the im-

Attributing the crime in question to private Jewish individuals was absurd.
("is the complicity of the entire nation that was. To establish it on presumptions drawn from the Talmud and on the hatred of the Christian who characterizes the race, obviously did not have legal rigor intended for the practical conclusions that were drawn from it.

But above all, what made this uncomplicated universal obvious-
The problem is that the Jew, poisoning all the waters of Christendom tenué, was poisoning himself. That is the argument used by Clement VI to defend them. But that the horrible plot had been
The fact that such a Jewish group exists is something that seems impossible to deny.
in the presence of official documents kept in the national archives national and produced by Drumont. There are few historical facts that present themselves with equally strong evidence. We must not forget that the consequence of the arbitrary rejection of proven facts is the introduction of skepticism into history, and, because everything, in this world, is tied to history, it's the inauguration and the installation, at men, from the complete intellectual darkness.

(See Drumont for the documented history of the conspiracy)
Jews and lepers for the poisoning of the foundations taines, in the year of grace 1021. — Jewish France. T. r. L. 11.

Chapter 1. (Page 177. — Marpon, 69th edition.)

= M e

“Jews had been victims of the plague like the “Christians; he enjoined the archbishops, bishops and to all ecclesiastical authorities to contain
"the furious and those suffering from the Church's punishments"
"who would disobey."

(Depping. Hist. des Juifs. p. 263-7-71)

It was in the form of a papal bull, that is to say, by the act the most solemn one to which the Papal authority resorts, that Clement VI intervened. Nothing was spared, therefore, by He, of what could save the Jews. If they perished, the vigilant and generous pontiff remains more than abunder their death, and one can say that, on her robe white, no more than on that of any Pope, not a drop of Jewish blood leaves no stain, before history.

Finally, amidst their anxieties, in the presence of an evil impossible to ward off and restrain, a the only thing left to the popes, to exhaust the means of salvation: opening asylum to the persecuted their states. They did not fail. At all times Therefore, the Jews had found refuge in Rome. Rome escaped the popes when misfortune was unleashed on their protégés. But what never escapes the Popes, that's mercy. They were not rather in Avignon, which became the new papal city, for the Jew, a second Rome.

"The beginnings of the fourteenth century," he wrote “Beugnot, were marked by the translation of the Holy-"Siege in Avignon, an event that seemed inevitable-
"to see influence only on the affairs of Christendom, and "which, however, was not without results, with regard to
"Jews. Also, as soon as the establishment of the bridges-
"It was decided to move to Avignon, and people flocked there, from the East-

"A loincloth, from France, from Germany, a swarm of “Jews that trade, as much as the hope of re-

~

00

"Positive, it attracted them. Clement V received them with open arms."
(History of the Jews of the West, Part 1, p. 158)
Note that Beugnot is not suspected of bias towards the Popes. An author who is Even less so is the Jew Halevy. Here is what he writing :

"The transfer of the Jews to Avignon was very useful"
"to the Jews of other kingdoms. Avignon became
"the refuge of persecuted Jews throughout Europe"
"Rope."

(History of the Jews, page 89)

Before both of them, the Protestant Basnage had said, to the praise of the Avignon Pope who fit the most for the Jews: "Clement VI received them in Avignon during
"that they were burned elsewhere."

(History of the Jews. Vol. IX. Part 2. Chapter 19)

Nothing shows better how much the Spirit that animates
The Holy See is superior to all forms of mobility.
in this world, how much Roman traditions persist remain unchanged, despite all differences and the differences in character, methods, and actions men who receive and transmit them, that what Alexander VI did for the Jews expelled from Es-loincloth by Ferdinand the Catholic.

Alexander VI was Spanish. Alexander VI was,
In addition, political and skillful. These two attributes are all Humans in power do not ordinarily have,
the administrators who own them, to a large extent Sympathy for the weak.

It was hardly expected that the one, whose
They inspired actions, steered the barque of the Church
as so many illustrious incompetents did who held,
Before and after him, the helm of the Church. What
This should therefore not have been a surprise to his contemporaries.
of Alexander, when they saw him being welcomed in Rome, with the same paternity as its predecessors, the Jews banished by his compatriot Ferdinand.

(
"
"
¢

^,

^ BY

"
€

^,

\

~

€

^

EC

"
"
"

"
"
"
"

Let us also cite the testimonies of the enemies:

“Alexander VI,” said Basnage, “instead of mistreating The Jews received them with great charity. Chasseized from Spain by Ferdinand the Catholic and fuGifs everywhere, they didn't know where to rest the soles of their feet. Those who landed in Rome were poorly received by their harsh and barbaric brothers, who would have let them starve to death, if Alexander "They had not been rescued."

(History of the Jews. V. IX. Part 2. C. 31.)

“The Jews expelled from Spain,” wrote the Israelite BeDarride, found refuge in the Ro- States hands. Alexander VI, who then occupied the Holy Roman Empire. The seat did not merely receive them, but he also... donna even reported protective marks tion”.
(The Jews in France, in Italy)
(and in Spain, p. 307)
"Exile from Spain," said Halévy, "brought about a great number of Jews in Naples. Strong complaints having arisen raised, the viceroy of Naples informed the emperor reur, who ordered their expulsion. They did not leave Not Italy, and most went to Rome.
(History of the Jews. p. 46).
Two other testimonies, both from Juit, come to attest to this humanity of the popes towards Israel never contradicted himself.

"

"
"

"Despite some temporary exiles which were

Having come to strike them in certain Italian states, they had always managed to recover, and the Saint-

The seat always offered them refuge.
(Bedarride. p. 363).

"The force of truth carries away Basnage (protests-

"so much so) when he praises the constant humanity of the pa-
"payment to the Jews who have paid them — times"
"Ingratitude."

(Drach. Harmony of the Synagogue and Church development)
T. 1. p. 236)

The constitutionalist Grégoire, less suspect than everything else, contained in one word:

"The Papal States were always the earthly paradise-
"The rest of the Jews."

Motion in favor of the Jews |

by Grégoire, deputy of Nancy. Pp. 15 and 16.

We can conclude no better than through the testimony-official and solemn signing of the council of the Grand Sanhedrin Drin, assembled in Paris, February 5, 1807, by order of Napoleon.

. “The deputies of the Empire of France and of the
"The Kingdom of Italy, at the Hebrew Synod, decreed,
“May 3rd: |

"Filled with gratitude for the successful blessings-
"sifs of the Christian clergy, in past centuries, in favor of the Israelites of various European states:
"Full of gratitude for the welcome that various
"Pontiffs and several other ecclesiastics have "done, at different times, to the Israelites of various
"country, while barbarity, prejudice and ignorance-
"France united, persecuted and expelled the Jews"
"from within societies;

"Stop: that the expression of these feelings
"will be recorded in today's minutes,"
"so that it may remain, forever, as a witness-
"A genuine expression of the Israelites' gratitude"
"of this assembly, for the benefits that the gene"rations, which preceded them, received from the Eccles-
"Systics from various European countries;

"They also stop at a copy of his feelings"

~

"

Pa

t,

has

"will be sent to His Excellency the Minister of _“Cults.”

Finally, this was not the least of the considerations of the Providence towards the Roman Pontificate, nor the least the title of the popes to the reparations of history, that the
The last Pope who had temporal states, received from a delegation of Jews from Rome, a statement similarly official and solemn recognition of their birth.

We are missing the text of their address. But the fact That's certain. He will not go unnoticed in history.
It will be featured there as one of the crown jewels of virtues and merits, so rich, moreover, in the immorsuch as Pius IX.

Now, these notions gathered on the legislation-
As a result, we can confidently approach every detail of the legislation.

y

The exceptional rights of the Jew in Christian society

LEGISLATION MORE SPECIFICALLY AFFECTING LIFE INDIVIDUAL

Portalis wrote in 1806:

“The Jews form a nation everywhere in the "nation. They are neither French, nor German, nor “Nor English, nor Prussians, they are Jews…(1). By assimilating

(1) “The Jews are neither Germans nor Slavs, but a people
"Apart from that, an autonomous people..." (Declaration of the Jewish Students of Prague, quoted by Mr. Denis, Member of Parliament for Landes. Chamber of Deputies, Saturday, May 5th 1895.)
In the same session, Viscount d'Hugues recalled the declaration ration made by the chief rabbi Dreyfus, of German origin, of the distinction between the two races, Jewish and German, Jewish and French-French, Jewish, English, etc... (depending on the country the son lives in) of Israel) and the claim, for the Jewish race, of the right to keep the heritage of his ancestors.
This is not a new phenomenon, since Saint Augustine wrote-

"without taking precautions, the Jews to all others" “Frenchmen, a crowd of foreign Jews were summoned,
"which have infested our border departments, and we
"has not operated, on the mass of the Jews, more ancient-
"Newly established in France, the happy changes
"that which was hoped for from the naturalization system which "had been adopted."
(Memorandum on the Juice issue).

There was a long way to go, according to this opinion of Minister Portalis.
delIntérieur, to that issued four years earlier by Portalis, State Councillor, while the spirit of the past...
The tionary had all his strength and dictated like a master, the Code text: "By taking care of the organization of various cults, the government has not lost any Given the Jewish religion; it must participate, like the others, to the freedom decreed by our laws. The governmentnement felt it necessary to respect the eternity of this people etc... |

Portalis, April 5, 1802.

Four years of observation had been enough for the return-to completely capture the spirit of the great jurist. The present-the stem of eternity was eclipsed by the data temporal aspects of the experience (1).

The Jew is therefore neither French in France, nor German neither manned in Germany, nor English in England, nor Prussian in Prussia; he is Jewish everywhere(2).

what we gather in the nineteenth century was done in the fourth century
From the mouths of Portalis, Mr. Denis, and Mr. d'Hugues: "They
"They remain everywhere and they are Jews everywhere; they have not ceased
"To be what they were."
(Homily on Psalm 58)
(1) Let us add to the returns of the spirit of Portalis, those of the spirit of Napoleon. Napoleon still holds, by far, the principal place principal in all matters and issues dealt with under his reign.
(2) "The entire Jewish religion is founded on the idea of nationhood."
(Archives of Israel. P. 333. Year 1864. Lévy-Bing.)

But if you are not French, in this France where you live, whose soil you want nurse, you, yours and, your sons, com-
How can you claim to enjoy, like a Frenchman, blood and race, the fullness of French law French? The rights of a people have been violated to govern this people, and not, to govern foreigners.

— But I am a naturalized French citizen. Here, in good order and due form, letters delivered to me, which in

*

are authoritative.

— You mean, instead of living in Germanygne, as you have done, for half a century,
a century, or more, you now live France; for that is all it means, that is to which simply amounts to, your so-called naturalization-tion. It was not possible, in your person, to naturalize Fran-Saïs, a German, for the twofold reason that you
You were not German before the naturalization process.
And that you will not be French afterwards. Before and After that, you are Jewish and you will never be anything else.
something that is Jewish.

Moreover, if you wish, in all sincerity
which one might want something and which you you are not incapable in every respect, (of that, by (example, that you bring to the pursuit of gold)

that you could not, however, be naturalized.
Because the public powers of a nation do not naturalize

"The Jews, forced by necessity, submit outwardly"
"to the authority of non-Jewish states, but they can never con-
"to feel like becoming an integral part of it... They cannot erase"
"from their minds the idea of the Jewish state, an idea that we see
"on every occasion, to emerge strong and vibrant from all their "Actions."

(Extract from a memorandum against the Jews, signed by thirty-six members of the Romanian Chamber.)

This document is cited in the Archives israélites 1x. Pp. 410 to 417 1868.

than to nationalize, that is to say, to receive, from a a new element, the strength of a people. Now, your Talmud forbids you from nationalizing, and, your an infallible oracle, which no son of Israel disputes
The authority, Moses Maimonides, tells you that the Talmud is mandatory for anyone who carries gout in their veins
the blood of Israel.

So you are a nation or a fragment of a nation landlocked within another nation, and, therefore, you are not not of that other nation; for who has ever been or been able To belong to two nations at once? Not being able to have both.
holding two nationalities, you also cannot Accumulation of two rights. The two questions are related.
nent, or, to put it better, are one and the same; lincompatibility of nationalities is the incompatibility of rights.

And, besides the reason for the anomaly, which is quite sufficient-to eliminate this accumulation, another would be da-Advantage, if possible, is the breaking of equality civil and social issues that would result and of which, without any compensation for others, you would be taking everything for yourself
the advantage, |

You would first have the benefit of your right to Is-Raelite; you hold on to it so tightly that, for nothing in the world,
You would not agree to sacrifice him. That is, obviously, that you find it beneficial. And you would have, in moreover, the benefit of the full national rights of the people who would welcome you onto its soil.

What he grants to such other foreigner, in order to obtain of him, this sacrifice of his former attachments, this merger into unity, legitimate and agreed price of the acquisition the fraternal welcome extended to him and the lasting hospitality The blue that is offered to him, you would like to obtain it. without any response from you. Don't you see that You award yourself two shares, you newcomer.

to leave only one to the ancient master, to the one which has a hundred generations of ancestors on a soil where you don't know anyone and you've barely arrived to gain a foothold.

— But such social situations, you will say, do not are not without precedent, and this, not in the centuries remote from history, but in the everyday life of more modern among peoples. Nothing less incredible. that this enjoyment of a particular, added right to general law and combining with it. This does not- This does not affect the rest of the citizens at all; the function-operation of common law, does not engender, in a country, the shadow of social disorder.

— That's true. I sensed your idea, I entered- I saw where you were going with this; I see it now. Absolutely. That's the privilege you're talking about.

But this privilege is granted only to the elite of a nation. And how would you be the elite of the nation? you who do not consent to be of the nation (1)?

And besides, the privilege, privata lex, only applies to a few points, always quite limited, of the law. It de-becomes excessive and unbearable as soon as it exceeds these boundaries. It then forms castes, these hypertrophies morbid social orders, which have always been as harmful to a country as distinctions and gra-Hierarchical donations are beneficial to him. But a a right that forms not only a caste within a nation, but a nation within a nation, which little merely supporting the idea?

Finally, at the home of the individual who enjoys it, or, what is the same thing, in his ancestor or his descendant-dant, a privilege is always, on the part of a people, the reward and representation of eminent servants vices inflicted upon this people. The public authorities, . interpreters and representatives of all citizens of a The state, therefore, acquits this private individual. public recognition from a nation. Now, you You would greatly oblige me by giving me the list of services vices, rendered by you or by your ancestors, to the nations that made you sit at their hearth, that you feed with their bread. Alas! God willing, the The simple absence of services was the true and real expressure on your private and public relationships, of Your entire social situation, in relation to them. What we noted, during the news reports that We had to take, before talking about you, is Something else entirely. It's certainly what it looks like. the least to services. What if we did A more comprehensive study? I'm not talking about exhausting the A subject that is sadly inexhaustible. But what we we have recorded is quite sufficient for the Christian nations- that yourselves have some idea of what they owe you, so that they know what you have provided their past and what you can use to enhance their future. This is certainly not for that kind of benefactor. public, that the law of nations invented privilege.

(1) In a text cited above, Innocent III speaks of privileges of the Jews, which they must be allowed to enjoy in peace. But privileges are understood here in comparison with other infidels and even with the heretics, who are far from obtaining, in the Church, a measure of tolerance as broad as the Jews; for life For example, an external religious order.

Therefore, simply by virtue of the fact that you live within your rights, that you remain a nation within a nation; you you exclude from the common law of this nation; a Legislation aside, to regulate your relationship with her, is a necessity that must be imposed. The nature of things and the elementary principles of social order, the exigent. It is not up to you to avoid it. The only reversal of meaning published, if it allies, One day, the heads of a country's rulers and

It becomes the rule of business, and will be able to exempt you to undergo it (1). | |

But history intervenes and presents us with an object-considerable tion. History always has the right to be heard and, if this right could be increased, the body that she has chosen, in the present question, to add- would certainly. It's Mr. Franz de Cham-

Pagny.

In his fine book, Rome and Judea, Mr.

Franz de Champigny begins by giving a state

(1) The reasons we allege against the admission of the Jews

under common law, were produced and reproduced, for three years, in the Constituent Assembly, by the last proponents of good meaning, opponents of Jewish emancipation. It is only the
On the eve of her death, the delirium to which she was prone carried her off, Finally, on this stubborn common sense, on this instinct for self-preservation who fought, until the very last moment, within the body of the France, against the inoculation of death.
“The word Jew,” said Maury, December 23, 1789, (the day of the pre-(first deliberation), is not the name of a sect, but of a a nation that has laws, that has always followed them, and that wants to follow them again. To call Jews citizens would be like
"If we were to say that, without ceasing to be English and Danish, the "English and Danish citizens can become French citizens. The “Jews have lived through seventeen centuries without mixing with others peoples. They must not be persecuted; they are human beings,
"They are our brothers. May they therefore be protected, as individuals"
"vidus, and not, like the French, because they cannot be
“citizens.”- |

The Jews returned to the attack fifteen times. The orators
The most eloquent and influential spoke for them; twenty-Four members of the Constituent Assembly took to the podium, including Mirahandsome, Robespierre, Barnave, Grégoire, Talleyrand, Mounier, of Sèze. It should be noted that all twenty-four were Freemasons, proof of the already established identity of the cause of the Jewish culture and Freemasonry.

Finally, weary of the war, convinced that by resisting longer-at times to the lawyers of the Jews, they would contradict all their principles cipes, that they would break with Rousseau, the social contract, the rights of man, with all that had made them and all that they had done themselves; on the eve of their separation, the constituents voted the admission of Jews to the rights of "active citizens". Everything was consummated: the decree for the impending enslavement of the French
It was signed. He's doing it right before our eyes. A little more, and everything French people will only have the freedom of choice left, or else leave the the soil of France or to inhabit it as a serf of Israel,

<
€
"

~ m

"

H

of the religious, political, civil, social situation
of the common people whom he will pit against the co-Romain Losse. He is mainly concerned with doing us good.
to know the Jew's relations with this Rome, of which Judea has been the subject for a century, after having been her ally and friend, for another century.

And he believes he cannot give a better idea of the kind of these relationships, by saying that the Jews
they then lived under common law, and, as ter-
As a point of comparison, he adds: in a situation and under a fairly similar political and civil regime
ble to those whom, in our country, mo- law has created for them
derne, introduced by the Revolution (x).

But in order not to wrongly assign responsibility to someone a bility as worthy of respect as that of Monsieur de Champagny, it is important to observe what the fact of putting modern law, as a comparative term, is now forward.
reason, in no way implies approval of this right.
To give an idea of the past, through its comparison

(1) "To make known their relations with others
"Peoples, the Jews of that time, there is not, it seems to me,
"A better type than the Jews of today."
(Rome and Judea. Vol. 1. Chapter 1v. Page 107.)
"The Jewish nation, at the beginning of the Roman Empire, was,
"No doubt, like all the nations of the empire, dependent and
"subject; but within the limits of this dependence, it does not
"It lacked neither importance nor freedom."
(Same work, Vol. 1, p. 116.)
"Then, as today, in the Roman Empire, as in
"In modern Europe, the Jews had obtained, along with tolerance
"For their worship, freedom for their persons."
(Same work. Vol. 1. P. 121.)
"This freedom, which, in the nineteenth century, brought about the triumph of Jews, therefore, had their prerogative from the first century onwards.
(Same work. Vol. 1. P. 123.)
"I was therefore not wrong to assimilate the situation of the people
"Jewish, in this century, is like her in ours."
(Same work. Vol. 1. P. 141.)

HAS

7

with the present, is not, at all, to enclose in the same moral and historical assessment, the past and the present. Has Monsieur de Champagny, in to a certain extent, however small, left on- To seize and prevent through the revolutionary spirit? something would not be impossible; there are so few con- contemporaries, and, among other contemporaries, so few of secular people, who have the good fortune to escape, from a ma- complete denial, to this contagion.

But Monsieur de Champagny is, in view and at known to all, more Christian, by far, than revolu- his lutionary, and, his quality, his Christian convictions certainly do not allow her to find good the situation of Jews in France and Europe, by the Revolution. Given, the commitments of Mon- Sieur de Champagny's stance towards the Revolution, brought back to their true scope, let's continue reading part of the erudition of Monsieur de Champagny, which is not of ordinary value and which, thank God, has nothing to disentangle with the Revolution.

Nothing prevented Rome from granting to Jews, what Monsieur de Champagny calls the common law. It is important, however, not to take- to change the subject of this common law term. It was the The rights of the allies and the vanquished. The immense multitude that he governed could, in a certain sense, earn him this common law name. But the citizen's right Roman law always remained the sole right of Rome and of her sons from the very beginning. She agreed, as the highest of his favors, to particular to bind, sometimes to cities. But a people, so allied And if he was a friend, all the more so to a vanquished people. he never entertained the illusion of aspiring to it.

Below this reserved right and, as soon as it concerns- knows the conditions of social and political life concordant gifts to conquered peoples, Rome had no reason to impose an exceptional right on the Jewish people.

First, this resulted in an administrative complication.
nistrative, whose common sense of the Roman legislator, to his eminently practical mind, was careful not to to unnecessarily cause embarrassment. The Jewish people do not could pose a danger to Rome. Carthage destroyed, Mithridates defeated, not one of the peoples absorbed by his conquest, or tributaries under his scepter, could not give a shadow of worry to his all-powerful domination.

And where, moreover, would they have come from, assuming they possible, the shadows of the sovereign people, vis-à-vis the
The Jewish people? Could it be their religious dogmas? But there was nothing in these dogmas that attacked
what dogmas could still be preserved
The decadent religion of the Romans. Jehovah was far away.
to be the negation of his Jovis. Neither one nor the other in Jewish conception as well as in the con-Roman conception, saw nothing below him.
that it might be the one who escaped his empire.

The one about whom Horace wrote:

Reges in ipsos imperium est Jovis
(Horace. Odes. Lie. rrr. Ode r. V. 6.)
closely resembled the one David had written:
Deus Deorum locutus est.

(David. Psalm 49. V. r.)

There was even a lexical resemblance to names, which did not contribute to suggesting identity.

The absolute incorporeality of the God of the Jews, the absence of any image, sculpted or painted, that represents it

sentàt, the elimination of all idols, increased the

the respect that this religion inspired in every Roman,

adding to it the higher admiration of the wise
of Home. Pompey, Caesar, Cicero, the entire Ro- elite Maine, sensed, there, a religious superiority, which left, far below her, all the elements grotesques of national theology.

Jewish nationality, so powerfully constituted that she presented herself, was no more a a threat to a people who no longer feared anything. The Parthians, the Germans, the Dacians, the Mareomani, at that hour, they were still only swarms of annoying flies that fluttered and buzzedwere born around the colossus.

Impregnable at all its borders, how -

Did Rome take into account the potential temptations? independence to which they could yield, in an hour of distraction, the subjects, voluntary or No, that she held in her iron hand?

If she did not fear the Jew on her own soil, (and, The outcome of this people's revolts revealed, tragically- (ly, the little she had to eradicate) even less did she have to provide herself with security guarantees against the numerous Jewish settlements scattered across the facing his vast empire.

Of these colonies, she had found several, already established in Asia, Africa, and Greece. could realize, through the experience of others, of the slight inconvenience of using it in hospitals linked with this people. These nomads, who, since For several centuries now, the winds of events had been carrying everywhere, had exerted no influence anywhere harmful ones, of which, so generally and so sadly, their Their descendants have afflicted modern nations. It therefore did not seem to the Roman Senate that this It was a bad move to set the future by leaving everything at first free to new swarms. Furthermore, the long friendship of the descendants of the Maccabees and of the people Roman gave a particular advantage to these immigrants grations. He entered into the art so learned, into the plan, so deeply conceived and so patiently sustained, of the conquest of the world, it was of the wisdom of this Roman Senate, praised by the Holy Spirit, with its constancy, Consilio et patientia, (Mach. L. 1.), of to leave, on the one hand, their laws, their customs, their religion, to the subjugated nations, and to open to them, on the other hand, across all areas of the vast Roman domination,

the entry of a broad and liberal hospitality.

Rome did not fail. We know with what eagerness-
how and on what large scale the Greeks used it.
They encountered so few obstacles that in less than a century, they had made the intellectual conquest of their conquerors.

Grecia capta ferum eictorem cepit...

(Horace. Epistles. — L. II. Ep. 1. V. 156) (1)

Just as eager, and perhaps just as numerous immigrants were the Jews. Except for a few bourrasques, born here and there, from the whimsical brain of strange masters that Rome began to give itself
After Augustus, one could say that their life there was easy and sweet (2). They also made their conquests there. What

(1) Seneca, while describing the Jews in a very harsh manner, expresses himself, regarding their influence, in almost the same terms that Horace, regarding the Greeks: “Cum interim usque eo scele“ratissimæ gentis consuetudo convaluit ut per omnes terras jam “recepta sit: eicti eicloribus leges dederunt. »

(Seneca, quoted by Saint Augustine. City of God. Book VI. Chapter 11.)

(2) There were, however, some periods of disfavor, at the time of the Republic. Year 138 BC, twenty-four years after the first treaty of alliance, between Judah Maccabee and the people Roman, an edict expelling the Chaldeans, spread, by way of analogy and solidarity, to several Jews already settled in Rome.
Let us listen to Valerius Maximus: “Cornelius Hispallus, praetor of the “foreigners, on an edict of the consuls M. Popilius Loenas and C. Cal-
"Purnius ordered all Chaldeans to leave Rome and..."

What interest could Rome have in hindering them? If the
The Greek conquests were considered quite good, so that we might submit to them without resistance, how could we not have-
were not considered better, those of Is-'s son Raël? The dissolution of Roman morals, of which the progress was already proving so frightening, wasn't it?
no more effectively stopped by the majestic dog-the matism of this one that speaks of slight skepticism of

That one? Didn't she find a stronger barrier in The Bible, only in Homer?

While the Roman state had nothing to fear from the Jew, the

"Italy within ten days, because, through a false
"Interpretation of the stars, they cast, in weak minds and "Ignorant, the darkness that benefits their lies. Of
"Moreover, it forces those who strive to return to their country"
"to corrupt Roman morals through the false worship of "Jupiter Sabazius."

(Valère—Maxime. L. 1. C. 8. N° 27.)

The word Sabazius had long remained an enigma. See there the designation of the God of the Jews, would not have exceeded in the eyes of Many criticisms, the limits of a fantasy. The discoveries of Earlinal May put an end to all uncertainty; two Latin authors, exhumed by him, they expressly name the Jews. Here is what said the first, Julius Paris: "The same Hispallus made return
"in their country the Jews who, by the power of Jupiter Sabazius,
"They had striven to corrupt Roman morals."

The second is Januarius Nepotianus. Here are his words: “The “Even Hispallus drove out of the city the Jews who were trying to…”
"to make their beliefs accepted by the Romans and overturned the
"Private altars erected in public places."

(Epitome Valerii Maximi. Scriptores Vetores. Card. Mai.
T. 111. P. 7. P. 98.)

Jupiter Sabazius was therefore not with Valerius Maximus, as with Julius Paris, that the Latin corruption of Jehovah Sabaoth.

Apart from these acts of severity which were merely episodes, the situation of the Jews in Rome, was all that could to desire and more than a people who live on a soil can hope for foreign. Let us hear, on this subject, from one of the most serious historians of Home: "There are Jews, even among the Romans; often
"Although their development has been halted, they have nevertheless increased"
"to the point that they obtained the freedom to live according to their own laws."
"They are separated from the rest of men by all habits"
"of life, but, above all, because they do not honor any of the "Other gods."

~ Pa

(Dion. — Hist. rom. L. xxxvir. C. 15 and 16.

The Roman individual was no more threatened than his government, by the somewhat original neighbor and strange that the East was sending him from the shores of the Jordan.

If the Jew's instinctive covetousness armed him against all surrounding wealth, if he already aspired to this supermaturely acquired gold, which he soon conquered and which has remained with her ever since, despite the restrictions legal actions and illegal harassment, unwavering-acquired knowledge; if he then began to deploy,
in this enterprise, the luxury of deceit of which its sons have passed on and preserved the traditional
In terms of inheritance, he found himself facing competitors.
who yielded to him in nothing, in covetousness, to
to embark on the pursuit of fortune, as if in ease of conscience and disloyalty of means, to get out to secure the conquest; he had no shortage of imitators
not. :
= To resort to cunning and dishonest schemes,
The Greek seems to have hardly left himself on this ground.
to be defeated by the Jew; one can even say that his re-
The reputation of being deceitful remains, par excellence, and with all the profusion of testimonies that can to have literature and history available, the privilege of first.

Add to that greed, malice, and evil-infidelity, all the social vices of the Jew, had not yet taken into account the incredible development that we have given them
We have known. The Law of Moses and sound traditions their elders had maintained it at a moa quality that the modern Jew has never rediscovered. The Jew
The ancients inherited the blessings of the patriarchs.
Modern Jews pass on, from father to son, the curse-
tion of Calvary. |

Above all, no one suspected, at the time, what has been seen since; the hatred and all the evil it ins-worse, erected into a moral system, formulated in ma-Codes of conduct, enshrined in law, transcribed and fixed in an official code. The Talmud did not exist. The

The Talmud, too, whose first drafts do not date only from the second century, only originated in the opportunity and out of hatred for the Christian. It is for the spo-the bond of the only Christian, for his humiliation, for its enslavement, for its destruction, that the rab-.
bin legislifer. Of any other cult, of any other nation-
In terms of nature, it's not even a question, except for give them a marked advantage over the cult and over the nationality of the Christian.

For all these reasons, the Roman, initially an ally, con-
then seeking, nc could have no particular grievance-to fight against the Jew. But, for reasons of a similar nature-common sense, which is simply a matter of common sense, and whose in-
The believer, just as much as the believer, can appreciate
In addition to value, there is, for the believer, a reason for... another order, the light of which delights him; is that, by this tolerance, more than anything else, Rome, pioneer and unwitting preparer of the Gospel Gile, gave his providential assistance to the magnificent that fulfillment of God's plan. The admission to his home, the fraternal welcome, on all points of his vast empire, of the people who were, in the same time that she and in a higher order, the pre-
The Messiah's cursor, the Savior of the world, were part of it.
tie of a logic whose conclusion appeared in the combinations and resolutions of men, but whose hidden premises had been laid, from date
eternal, through the intelligence of God.

This was, no doubt, for the same purpose and by one of these mysterious suggestions that passed by, without No Roman had any suspicion of it, of God's counsel

in the councils of Rome, that the last great men of the Republic and the first emperor who raised his power upon its ruins, were the prodeclared detectors, the benevolent signals of the people
Jew. Pompey, Caesar, Augustus, showered him with gifts.
of their favors (1). Thanks to the warm friendship of

---

(1) As soon as the civil war had broken out, through the crossing of the Ru-Pompey had taken the government of Rome. In reality, he himself was the entire government and the authority of the consuls merely gave official form to his wishes. He then had four decrees signed in favor of the Jews by Lentulus and Marcellus, consuls of this year:

“As for the Jews, Roman citizens, who have co-
"Forbidden to practice Jewish ceremonies in the city of Ephesus:"
"Sitting on my tribunal, I declare them free."

(Decree of Lentulus reported by Josephus. Jewish Antiquities.
L. x1v. C. 10. No. 19.)

“As for Jewish Roman citizens, having and practicing-
"I was observing the sacred Jewish rites in Ephesus, sitting on my tribunal,"
"I declared them free from the militia."

(Decree of Lentulus and Marcellus of December 17, 46 BC)
- J.-C., reported by Josephus, in the same book x1v of the Anli-
Jewish people.) | |

When Caesar had carried the war into Egypt, Hiraean the Great-priest and Antipater, father of Herod the Great, who had in hand The entire civil government quickly sensed the ultimate outcome of the struggle; they came to Caesar's aid and contributed greatly to the victory that delivered Egypt to him. It was in Alexandria, on the battlefield, which he signed, with his victorious hand, the de-following crets.

"Caius Caesar, emperor, dictator, consul. We order,
"both out of considerations of honor, virtue, and friendship, and
"For the good and advantage of the Senate and the Roman people, Hircan,
"Alexander's son, he and his children, will be high priests and..."
“priests of Jerusalem and of all the nation, according to the laws and the "rites, according to which their predecessors exercised the priesthood"
"Doce."

(JoskrrE. — Ant. jud. Liv. x1v. C. 10. n° 5.)

“Caius Caesar, Consul V, decreed that these possess and for-
"They conquered the city of Jerusalem and that Hircan, son of Alexander,
"High priest of the Jews and their Ethnarch, yours in his power-
"See as he wishes: let something be reduced to
"Jews of the second year of the tax on their income, that one does not
"not to make them do forced labor and not to pay any
"tribute." |

(Josirnr. — Ant. jud. L. xiv. no. 6.)

“Caius Julius Caesar, imperator and high priest, dictator 11, For these powerful people, it was no longer just the law of the commun, it was the privilege that became the condition and the regime of Israel. Dictators and emperors gave all orders so that the Jew, whether resident or dispersed, suffers no hindrance in the accomplishment of its religious observances. They provided for the preservation of They ensured the maintenance and upkeep of its worship. with as much diligence as the priests of the temple,

"To the magistrates of Sidon, to the Senate and to the people, greetings. —"
"If you are well, I am well too, as well as
"The army, I am sending you a copy of the decree recorded in the acts"
"publics in favor of Whircan, son of Alexander, high priest and
"ethnarch of the Jews, so that you may put it in your archives"
"public. I order that it be engraved on a copper plate,
"In Greek and Latin. — Here is the decree,
"Julius Caesar, Imperator II and sovereign pontiff, arrested, with the "Advice, the following:"
“Hircan, a Jew, son of Alexander, has appeared, now and before,
"In peace and in war, faithful and very attached to what
"We are watching, as several army generals have also said"
"attested. In the war we just had in Alexandria, he "came to us with a reinforcement of fifteen hundred men,
"and, when I sent it to Mithridates, it divided between
"All for his bravery in combat. Consequently, I want
"that Hircan, son of Alexander, and his children, be, in perpetuity,
"Jewish officials and sovereign pontiffs according to the laws of "their nation, that he and his children may be our allies and be "Placed among our closest friends. I also want to,
"that he and his children enjoy all the privileges which,
"According to their own laws, they belong to the sovereigns who-"lives or that we have granted them out of kindness. If it arises
"later, some difficulties with Jewish institutions,
"I decree that the high priest should be the judge. I do not want "to the point that we force the nation to provide winter quarters for "troops, nor that any kind of tribute be demanded of them."
(JoskeuEg. — Jewish Antiquities. L. x1v. C. 10.)

The main cities of Asia, left to their autonomy by Rome municipal authorities hastened to issue decrees conforming to those Romans: Halicarnassus, Sardis, Laodicea, etc.
(See Joseph.)

Nothing proves better the privileged position afforded to Jews by Caesar, that the mourning they had for his death. They stood guard of honor-night, several nights, around his funeral pyre. "pe all the foreigners who demonstrated on this occasion, the Jews were most noted: ... Præcipucque Judæi, known as Suetonius, who etiam noctibus continuis bustum frequentarunt.
(SUETONE. — Cæsar. C. 84.)

to the non-interruption of this sacrifice, whose will divine willed faithful duration, until consummation-the next tion of the unique and immortal sacrifice. They wanted the collections of two drachmas, by Jewish, and their regular sending to the Temple in Jerusalem, were done in complete freedom and security. A lender rohand not having held a sufficient compunction of this will had to defend itself in Rome and nothing was needed less than Cicero's eloquence for the sa-Ver. | |

Such, in its main features, was the situation of Pagan Rome's attitude towards the Jew and the explanation of the lithe privileges which he enjoyed there, the favors which he was showered with,
the Jew. (1)

The situation of the peoples who have enlightened the Gospel. As harmless as the Jew was,
for the Roman state, he becomes a danger.
continuous for the Christian state. Nothing of what was

From the very first days following Caesar's death, the consul Dolabella left for Asia in pursuit of his murderers.
Here is the decree he issued, at Hircan's request:

“During the magistracy of Artemone, on the first day of the month of “Lenecon, (October or November according to I. Etienne), Dolabella,
"emperor, to the Senate, to the magistrates and to the people of Ephesus,
" Hi :

“Alexander, son of Theodore, ambassador of Hircan, grand-
"Priest and ethnoarch of the Jews showed us again that those of his "nation cannot serve in the troops, because, the “On Sabbath days, they are not permitted to bear arms,”
"to travel, or even to procure special foodstuffs"
"which they can use according to the laws of their country. I tell them-"
"Think therefore of all military services, like my predecessors"
"They have exempted them. I allow them to live according to their laws; of
"to gather together to offer sacrifices and perform other acts"
"of their religion, and I order you to make known my "Wishes to other cities."

(JoskernE. — Jewish Ant. L. xiv. C. 10.)

(1) “The Jewish religion was treated, for as long as the empire lasted,
"as an authorized religion and placed under the protection of the "Laws."

~

(Scntrer. — Geschichte des Judischen Volkes)

in the Jew did not reach the 'Roman' state; all that is in the Jew's frontal attack on the Christian state.

And first of all, Jewish dogma clashes and undermines
all Christian dogma, except perhaps for one article, whose denial by the Sadducees has, more than one very serious foundations of conviction, maintained the affirmationmalion, among the Pharisees. Moreover, the Catholic Creed-nothing is spared; for the dogmas
of the Trinity, the Incarnation, and the Redemption understand everything else, and the Jew denies, hates, they loathe each other equally, the Trinity, the Incarnate
tion and Redemption.

Jewish nationality is the enemy of nationality
Christian. The Jew refusing all fusion, all assimilation with the people of whom he is a guest, cannot to constitute for this people, that a principle of weakness, Because, while unity is strength, division is Weakness: more than weakness; an imminent danger for the nation that carries such a solvent in its breast. No fiber of patriotism connecting the
A Jew to the nation that welcomes him, betrayal is always Ready in her heart, she is just waiting for someone to ask her help.
to put her heart into her work. She didn't even She doesn't need the latter. Instinctively, she searches her accomplice. She puts the traitor's soul up for auction, and,
Except for the fish market, which she carefully avoids, she sells herself to the auction and in any case provokes the aequia merchant who will find himself rich enough to trade a Conscience in exchange for a handful of gold...

The Jew, even when conquered, did not hate the Rohand like Roman. The Jew himself taken in by the pity on the Christian, admitted to all the comforts of home, Christian, has hatred of Christians.

Rome, mistress of the world, had little to fear from the turbulence and the Jew's enterprises, if he took

The Jew fancifully embraces being enterprising and turbulent.

The Christian state, by which the earth is measured, of which Three, four, five rival states touch the border. has everything to fear from the Jew. Greedy selfishness sees nothing Moreover, before him, the impossibility that Varrétait everything to. the hour. To pit two Christian states against each other, two - parties in the same state, is a most realistic thingbles and offers to the covetous desires of Israel, ever ready at the feeding frenzy of the vanquished, the best opportunities to to salise.

The Jew is a general danger to the Christian state. the peril of detail for each individual it contains this state.

We have taken some idea of the morality of the Talmud, we know what it allows every Christian to expect from the Jew. In this struggle for interests of life, which fills almost all the years of Man, from his cradle to his grave, what Defense remains possible for the one who sees, always a wrongdoing, often a crime, in the act of plundering of his neighbor, against the one who, with his law in hand, He considers this stripping a right, he looks at it more once, as a duty, and it can even happen to see in this an act of high virtue? Do you think the eye of the policeman, however open we may suppose him to be, and the rod of the executioner, however severely the justice system may use, will suffice to restore difference and rebuild equality? Is it conscience and principles, which are part of it? the basis, have not always been, and will not always be days, in the society of men, the first and irreplaceable guarantors of fortune, honor, and The lives of men?

Given that restrictive and exceptional law is similar to... posed little problem for the Roman state, with regard to the Jew, its contemporary, as much as it has necessarily become, imperatively obligatory, in relation to the Jew who is ours (1).

As for the service he performs, near the faith of Christian, the Jew who bears the Scriptures, right of exception- The law of common law or common law are absolutely irrelevant to it; Neither adds to it nor subtracts from it. Never. legislator, however severe he may have been towards Israel- He didn't even think of snatching the Bible from his hands. Edicts against the Talmud, yes, they were not spared.

and, would to God, that the Christian powers had been there They achieved all the success their zeal deserved! But we could hardly express to the Jews, in a manicer better, all the joy we felt in them see owners and avid readers of the Bible, that in by forbidding them or by dedicating them to proscription, this
The Talmud, which was blasphemous and put it to nothingness (2) all truth and virtue,

The legitimacy and necessity of an exceptional right being well established, it is clear that the person themselves of the Israelite was the first to feel the effects
facts. |

The first human right is the individual right.
because the individual appeared first on the face of this world and that he brought with him what God had given him

(1) “It cannot be unreasonable and unjust (read, i! is born-
"cease), to subject to exceptional laws, a kind of "corporation which, through its institutions, principles and customs-
"My [account] remains constantly separate from the general company."

(PORTALIS — Memoir on the Jewish Question. 1806)

Portalis had to appease two powers, the Revolution, of which he defied ideas and, humiliating his own pride, by putting himself... so much so, caught red-handed in contradicting himself. He finds grace before both by softening his style and by writing not unreasonable and unjust, where it would be necessary and strict Justice. But the intelligence of his thought is complemented by that of circumstances from which his euphemism arose.

(2) Irritum fecistis mandatum propter traditionem vestram.

(Morning, — C. xv. V. 3)

. conferred, at the moment he created it and of the same
The hand that created him, the sacred dowry of his rights. Nothing of what is to come after will not deprive him of this Essential heritage. None of the companies that will Being born will not take away any of this right from him. They combine it-will agree with theirs, as knowledgeably and skillfully as possible that they can, but they will distract so little something, that after having been its complement and its completion, they will constitute its salvation-

guard and will become its bulwark against all aggression
sion that would attempt it; they will stand,
near him, weapon in hand to defend him.

Society aims to perfect the individual.
to which it occurs, could not better inaugurate this work of improvement, which by repressing in her client, if she finds them there, the tendencies towards evil whose expansion and evolution lead, by the most Sadly, due to the force of circumstances, decline and decay-the effect of everything that they endure.

In this way, she neither compresses nor restricts her freedom;
It increases it, to the extent of the forces it has in it.
raises in his enemy, the evil instinct. And, finding himself the friend and promoter of freedom, how could one not Wouldn't it be a matter of law, which is merely the field, me-
Safe, open to the world and the frolics of freedom?

In fact, society is encountering these tendencies towards evil
And, if she had doubted, for a moment, their reality, she would not have to remain a spectator of the spontaneous play of some human activities, to re-to come from his illusions. Hence, one of the first rights of society, perhaps, the one who walks at the head of everyone has the right to repression.

But to suppress evil, one must see it. Hence, the first element of repression and the law which
The legitimate exercise is surveillance. Hence, the day

Even where society is formed, we witness its genesis.
sudden emergence of this harbinger of all coercion,
of all repulsion, of the overflowing evil, through sorrow
which represses; the thought: |

Therefore, no individual has the right to find the police surveillance. It is clear that this surveillance-Lance does not go so far as to follow all the steps of the one who
The company is keen to maintain that it is harmless. The company then
It would no longer protect the law, it would crush it. The na-the nature of things, moreover, and the complexion of being social services have provided for this, through the best guarantee of which they can defend the institutions against their Abuse, impossibility. A police force, pushed to such extremes, would create as many overseers as overseers, and who conceives the game, the journey across the world, of a soa company resulting from such elements?

But, in ordinary law, social surveillance must be equal and uniform for all. That's my right, to me, citizen, who lives in the city, of a in a normal way, without cutting corners on the common ground by no exorbitant outburst, not to be more controlled that one or that one, neither is held in suspicion, that such an individual, similar to mine, who evolves alongside me. But, if one of these exorbits occurs and persuades the State that such indi- This individual, or any particular human group, requires more attention. requires more careful monitoring than the ensemble- deble of the social mass, the individual or group de- they were deprived of the rights they enjoyed; the eye of the governor- their treatment becomes more severe; the restrictive law or exception begins to replace, for them, the common law.

But, in order for the State's eye to be more particularly- open, on this individual or this group, it is necessary that he may discern them.

For the general supervisor, who constitutes the po-. Overall, this discernment has no reason to be. Whether it is this or that citizen who passes from- vanl, she doesn't care; they are all equal and united- Forms. Identical, so to speak, in terms of law, They are no more different from each other than a grain of sand. sand from the grain near it, or a drop of water of the drop that falls beside him.

But, for the exceptionally monitored individual, this indifference- The rence no longer exists: it is essential that we can to recognize; and, like the features of a human face are not enough, much less so the traits of plu- several faces if it is a group; it will be necessary other means. These means have always returned in pairs, each time such social cases have presented to governments; internment for the residence (1), the brand for circulation.

These were the means that the Church and the States Christians of the Middle Ages worked with Jews.

We have no reason to complain about what an exorbitant amount of money!

---

(1) Long before the official legal institution of the Ghetto, the Church had forbidden, under the most severe penalties, cohabitation the separation of the Jew and the Christian. The necessity of a Ghetto resulted from this, for, if the Jew could not live under the roof of the Christian, what would remain? Did he want to create a separate quarter for himself so that he could reside there? with men of his nationality. Let us cite a few cannons of a The 11th-century Spanish Council of Poyae, in the diocese of Oviedo, held in 1050. The spirit of the time and the country is reflected there in the the kind of sanctions that are imposed by law. Moreover, the opportunity to Legislation concerning Jews was more common in Spain than in no other part of Christendom:

"No Christian shall remain in the same house with the "Jews, nor shall he eat with them. If anyone violates this constitution—
"He will do penance for seven days. If he does not want to,
"and if it is a person of importance, he will be deprived of the "communion for a whole year; an inferior person will receive
"One hundred lashes."

(Lanne. T. 1x.)

enormous, and what a perilous, threatening kind of exhorbitance, the Jew presented and will always present on the foundation of Christian society. The Church, the States Christians of the Middle Ages felt that the first The duty arising from this situation was to keep a watchful eye on things. tactfully attached to this parasitic growth. In this, the Church and Christian states only did follow the basic laws that govern social security order of States.

And, the eye of the Church, the eye of the State, not being of indefinite power, and needing, for to discern and recognize oneself, to be helped by They established two signs: the Ghetto and the livery

YELLOW.

- THE GHETTO

The Jews had not waited for the institution of the Ghetto, a place to gather and build a separate life. in the cities that granted them hospitality. Free or compelled, subject to the ordinary law regime or restrictive law, always and everywhere the Jew loves to live next to the Jew. He feels supported by the pre- in the presence of his brother from Israel. He understands him and he is understood. He lends it to him, he obtains it, assistance and services. In any city populous enough to have Of the neighborhoods, the Jew had his own. As much as he could, He built a synagogue there and practiced there, under the conduct of a rabbi, what he could from his cul te (1).

---

(1) Even today, in almost all the countries where they enjoy under the revolutionary common law, the Jews freely of their choice, a separate neighborhood. Thus in Vienna they are can-

But the Jew's claim was to live there, free of his movements, to avoid being subjected to any partisan police peculiar of not being subject to any control and to any constraint, not to incur, on this soil where he had carved out his small piece of homeland, another surveillance than joint surveillance.

Such a claim was unacceptable.

Leseulfait d’un groupement permanente de hommes, of language, customs, particular habits, attracts the attention of public authorities, puts a State in guard, obliges him to a system of guarantees that he does not Don't give anything against others.

If you add different rites and a cult to On the other hand, the reasons that will dictate measures to the State order and security will take on such force, unless one has lost the very meaning of memory- In the name of the sovereign, no sovereign will be able to appeal to him under the authori milking.

Under these conditions, the neighborhood inhabited by these men becomes like a citadel, from which, the strangeger (because the guest retains all of this character) hence a kind of enemy (2), will make its sorties, when it will want, where he will bring back all the prey that the The happiness of his hunts will have been put in his hands. He is It's clear that keeping him in custody, monitoring his movements, to anticipate its intentions, to warn its companies is no longer solely the right of the one who receives it, it is the imperative duty of every government which

He has an understanding of what he owes to his people.

tonnage of one hundred thousand, in Leopoldstadt. Thus, in Pressburg, they continued-
They are now choosing to remain voluntarily in their former ghetto. After Having given the most picturesque description of it, Drumont adds:
"A Christ, bending under the weight of the sword!..... indicates the place"
"Where does this free ghetto end, where the Jews remain voluntarily?"
(Jewish France. Vol. 1. Book 1. Page 25.)
(2) The Latin language had only one word to signify enemy and stranger.

Moreover, the mere fact of the accumulation of two rights, neither of which prevails over the other, nor does either establish limits to the other, is a social anomaly of which we we showed the disorder. Now, that the Jew wanted the political and social establishment of this disorder, we did not put it in less light, in showing that the Jew enters the Christian city,
with its language, its customs, its habits, its rituals, his cult and that, more than anything else, he intends to

to exercise one's rights.
Why did pagan Rome not hinder or hinder

The Jew was little known during the last century of his republic.
and in the time of its first emperors (1) we

We gave some reasons.
But we have not placed less emphasis on this.

those which obliged Christian Rome not to
to use it similarly with him, and the first law that it had to wear, to melt under cover and ensure its security was undoubtedly that of the Ghetto.

(1) Tiberius expelled the Juts; but this disgrace was short-lived. The affirm-
M. de Champagny's statement that the Jews had, in Rome, until Constantin, a civil status equivalent to common law, retains its truth. The regime of coercion and repression is not represented only by rare and brief interludes. Disgrace
The Jews under Tiberius, moreover, testify to the power they had acquired in Rome. Four thousand Jews were exiled to the Sardinia, says Tacitus: ut quartet inillia... in insulam Sardiniam veherentur.

(TAcirE. — Annales 11. 85.)

However, according to Suetonius, these four thousand constituted only the flower of their youth; it wasn't even entirely contained there, then-that some were directed towards other provinces: Judaeorum juventutem, per speciem sacramenti, in provincias gravioris coeli distributes.

(Suetonius. — Tiberius. C. 36.)

What would the total number of the colony have to be if the flower of its youth could provide six thousand and perhaps ten thousand heads!

A text by Cicero is even more significant. The number of Jews, residing in Rome, must have been quite considerable for him to be able to write: “Mulliludinem Judxorum, flagrantem nonnunquam in con“cionibus, pro republica, contemnere, summe gravitatis fut. »

This law was therefore not properly the agglomeration-tion ct the Jewish relegation on, such a point of the city; This settlement was already established (1). The Church had not than to rejoice in it; she was exempt from imposing it. But he still had to discipline, regulate, and sub-to place this residence under a specific police force and this separate life, this small city that the Jew had made in the grand style. She was careful not to neglect it. She didn't even hesitate to be severe there. Quine s'y It didn't look right; I found the hand ready to bring him back to order. The provisions of the law prevailed over everything, and They added practically everything that was needed, to make it perfectly clear that they would not remain Not a dead letter.

Let us, however, hasten to observe, before speculating on it-to identify none, that they were far from making of the Ghetto a residence odious to its host.

If there is one place in the world where all accuracy in applying this legislation is assured.

(1) Juvenal speaks of the special quarter of the Jews. The word Ghetto, that which did not yet exist, could not be there. But the thing was there

East :

... Substitute ad veteres arcus madidamque Capenam:
Hie nocturnal ubi Numa constitutes bat friend,
Nunc sacri fontis nemus et delubra locantur Judah...
(Satire HI. v. ro.)

In the decree of the magistrates of Ialicarnasus in favor of the Jews,
It is stated that they will be able to build oratories on the banks of the sea. This indicates a special residential area. The Jews

'They usually chose from a suburb.
(JoskPng. — L. xiv. — Jewish Ant.)

The even greater authority of the Acts of the Apostles, concord with that of Josephus: "On the Sabbath day," says Saint Luke, "we..."
"We paid tribute outside the city gate, near the river, where it seemed "that there was competition in prayer." The word sabbal indicates a synagogue and the Jews; the word out of the watch, the residence they they always chose whichever area they preferred and which became their neighborhood:
a suburb.

aad - z CE CERN
- MOUNTAIN

Rome. Now the Jews called Rome their paradise. | | |

"Rome," said Mr. Sauzet (Rome before Europe)
p. 304) was, at all times, "the refuge of the Jews and they they themselves named it, their Paradise, in the Middle Ages Age. "

When, at the beginning of his reign, Pius IX
removed some of the constraints of the old law,
and made it easy for the Jews to take up residence
In all parts of the city, few benefited from this condescension. Almost all of them stuck to their ghetto. That's what one of their fortunate transfu-Father Ratisbonne, in at the same time as he denounces the blatant contradiction of their conduct and their complaints. For those who the open gates of their ghetto did not decide to Even as they emerged, they still declaimed against the tyrantdenie des Ghetto.

From the beginning of his reign, he wrote,
Pius IX placed all the districts of Rome at the disposal of "sition of the Jews and, however, they persist in not
"They don't leave the Ghetto and they stay there voluntarily."
"Attached. The Israelis commit, obviously,
"An injustice and an ingratitude, when they rebel"
"Today, against an institution that saved them"
"formerly" (1).

Jewish Question p. 86.

We cannot even consider listing them all the papal decrees concerning the Ghetto.
We are not, here, producing a compilation, but a simple legal study. We record the law,

(1) These hateful declamations were undoubtedly only the work of Jewish individuals, because there was an official address from the Commun-A Jewish woman expressing her gratitude to Pius IX. We have some spoken in its time.

that is to say, the succinct and clear expression of the actions,
repeated a hundred times, by successive legislators
for many centuries; it is more the spirit of the laws that the laws themselves that we aim to make con-to be born. Putting all the texts online would be a sur-
This is not a burden that our work entails. We
We would then be addressing a specific category of readers.
we want our readers (if God's blessings)
they give us) they come from all walks of life
where truth delivers, are composed, if possible, of all those who were prejudiced on the matter
False. They're everywhere; there's no intellectual clan.
does not isolate them; no scientific selection limits them.

Here is how the Dominican Ferraris sums it up the laws and decrees of the Sovereign Pontiffs on the Ghetto.

“All Jews must live in one and same place; and, if the said place is insufficient, in two, or three, or more, which touch and communicate quent; which have only one entrance, nor any other door output than input” (1).

The corollary to this right was that no Jew could pass take up residence elsewhere, nor establish one's residence in the middle of place of Christian dwellings.

To establish a separate residence for the Jews, and to give every Jew the right to live outside from this residence, was to strike the law of uselessness; elected-

(1) Hebraei omnes debent habitare in uno eodemque loco, and, if ille capax non fuerit, in duobus vel tribes, aut quod satis sint, contiguis, ad quos unicus tantum ingressus pajeat et a quibus non detur exitus.

The main ordinances from which Ferraris derives this right are, the constitution of Paul IV. Cum nimis absurdum, and that of Saint Pius V, Roman Pontiff. But there are many others, without to count the canons of the councils, which are even more numerous.

(See supporting documents.)

to enforce the law with the law, to destroy with one hand what one was building on the other.

Moreover, the word, omnes, does not include equi-invokes and leaves no room for the slightest whim of a complacent interpretation.

But, on the other hand, the Ghetto was still affordable to the Jew; any obstacle that might have arisen from a will foreign and to position itself between the Jew and his Ghetto, was overturned, in advance. Every new arrival of the sons The wanderers of Israel found their refuge ready. Bold was he who had dare to argue with him!

He can force the homeowner to do it to receive. (Paul Sauzet, Rome before Europe, p. 304).

But this privilege he has, of being received, despite Any opposition, in turn, leads to a downfall new, whose previous advantage is far from being the compensation. This dwelling, the owner of which is obliged to surrender the enjoyment to him, the Jew cannot to possess himself.

To acquire the land, to possess it along with the fruit it produces duit, and the roof that covers it, is a right that only The fact of being born confers on every man placed on this soil. This right precedes, within him, all those that will come to him.

later, from the family and the city. Except for exclusion by law-legitimate, pronounced by the competent authority, he uses, to acquire this possession, by any honest means to acquire whatever he likes and, this condition being met, he possesses what he has acquired, the most legitimate of all rights. He who excludes him from the possession of the land So he strips it, and we see immediately that he cannot without the most serious public order concerns.

What were those of the Church?

She had several, and of more than one kind.

The possibility of expulsion, to which the Jew, Impatient of the yoke, could force him, was the first.

We saw above that, character and the given the principles of Jewish conduct; his reception and his usual stay in the Christian States, It was an act of pure mercy. But a chance of the future, which it was highly imprudent not to to take into account was that it would happen, someday, at the bene-to benefit from this mercy, to prove unworthy of it and that it became necessary to take it away from her. Under threat of this necessity, not to let it take root, in the ground, to the one to whom one might be obliged, something The day of clearing the ground was a legitimate and wise act. foresight.

On the other hand, the more precarious situation that arises from it-sultait. for the Jew, kept his instincts awake conservation and, constituted a kind of warning, in a continuous state, which reminded him of his obligations; his rapacity and his other bad passions were better for it contained; a check was placed on this insolence native, which he has so much trouble repressing, and to which, Too much security would have offered dangerous opportunities. It is good to remember that this insolence took, Meanwhile, proportions such that a writer Agobard, a famous ninth-century cleric, believed it necessary to file a complaint with the world and published the book: de Insolentia Judæorum (1).

This decrease in self-confidence and 'in the future, if necessary to their modesty, was the excellent fruit of the incapacity that was created in them. She increased, from this repeated reminder of dependence, including the multiple relationships, from tenant to owner-

(1) "Put a modern, even Parisian, translation to this

"protestation; write a book entitled: On poise and tou-

"Fart of the Jews and you will have a brochure of the most immediate "News."

(Drumont. — Jewish France. T. 1. L. 11. C. 1. P. 144.)

to be silent, find themselves, by force of circumstances, the ineviable opportunity.

A reason of a different order and of a greater scope considerable was the nature of land ownership.
in the Middle Ages.

Provided you are aware of the organization-
The tion of feudal society, you will quickly understand the
the added distance that the Church found there to put its Israeli settlement among the landowners.

Any share taken in the possession of the land marked,
In the Middle Ages, the occupation by the owner of a degree of the social hierarchy. It is so minimal portion of land which would have made the Jew the overlord of a Christian, sometimes even of a Bishop or a abbot, and who, on such and such a date of the year, had placed the Christian, or the abbot, at the knees of the Jew (1).

The very idea of such a reversal, the mere event-
The normality of such situations outraged the Church.
there was no way she would not be resolved to put into practice to ward them off. Had there been no other reason that she, that she had not hesitated for a moment, to to ban the Jew from possessing land (2).

---

(1) In 1774, a Jew, Liefmann, Calmer, having acquired through per-
Through its intermediary, the barony of Picquigny and the vidame of Amiens, claimed to confer the prebends of the collegiate church of himself Saint-Martin de Picquigny.

(2) The exception of the law went further for the Jew. The loca-
Even the ground itself was forbidden to him. Granting him hospitality, We could do no less than grant him the lease of the home. But that was all. He couldn't think about taking in a rental-tion the smallest piece of land, even if it is adjacent to his home. The privilege that the Jews of Alsace obtained in 1784 was a of the greatest favors of the edict of Louis XVI.

"That they may never receive Christians on any land in "location, and, if similar concessions have been made to them;
"That they be dismissed."

Nullo modo est ipsis concedenda licentia conducendi predia a christianis and concessa revocanda.

(Ex variis declarationibus sanct: Inquisitionis. Ferraris.)

However, it turned out that the task was strangely assigned to him facilitated, and this, by the most unexpected cooperation due. While the Church provided for the The Jew did not take root in his land, the rabbi did not neglected nothing, on his part, to protect him from same links. Z{ commands him by the Talmud, not to could acquire land, trade with his brothers scattered.

In this respect, the rabbi's aim was very different from that of the Church.

This was to guard against ambitious schemes and, as a consequence of the domination of Israel, which the Church cher-
It was necessary to hold it in a simple encampment.

It was to lead him to this domination that The rabbi wanted him free from the ties of the land. The Messiah The long-awaited son could finally appear. It was necessary that every son Israel was ready to fly to Jerusalem, to take up residence there under the orders of the liberator, and to march in his wake. to conquer the world.

Lulled by these illusions, deluded by the chimera of these hopes, the Jew could have little difficulty in to accept the condition of existence, in rigorous appearance, which seemed to constitute for He was forbidden from using the ground. Instead of imposing a In a violent situation, it seemed, on the contrary, that one would put on its slope and that we went to meet its vows. Where the Church, where the Synagogue found their counting, without any consultation, he easily convinced himselflying, without further ado, that he would find the his own.

If the Church, if the rabbi, deemed it advantageous that he
He was ready to leave; he, a citizen of the universe, because he
He belonged to no nation, he, a nomad of all country, was no more concerned than they were about ties held him back, the day when the temptation of a new land-

new, the prospect of a deal, the smile of a Luere, would give wings to the feet of the vagabond
and new prey for the researcher's covetousness
gold.

Add that land ownership entails cul-
and that culture is, of all occupations who share the activity of the children of Adam, that which is the least susceptible to fraud.

Farmers should be proud! Their profession is the most honest that any human hand can to work. Fortune doesn't make things happen overnight.
all its opulence in the rough furrow traced by their
soc. But also, nothing is as pure as the gold that she counts on their sweat.

That was not the Jew's concern. He did not like them.
delays to wealth; he needs to earn big and ga-
to act quickly, and, if any dishonesty, any ruin
Christians become entangled in these pushes towards profit;
There are no limits to his satisfactions. It's the con-exquisite dementia of his financial successes.

So, for the ban on soil, no more than Regarding the Ghetto's confinement, the Church did not... a violence against the instincts of the Jews. Their only The grievance against her was that she regulated what they would have preferred to retain the discretionary power.
This obedience to the possibilities of disorder their was odious. Because, in the end, there was nothing more to it.
in the alleged tyranny of this legislation so much decried!- | |

The unexpected agreement of the Church, the rabbi, and the Jewish, their client, recalls a kind of concert performed by a particular musical method. Each execution-cutting gives his grade, without worrying about the execution-
so close, most often even without knowing him;
and the resulting overall work is admirable.

The only conductor knows everything and does everything contribute to the effect he wants.

Thus, the great conductor of the harmony of
The world knows the partial effect of each note and everything the overall effect of the concert, and with regard to the Jew, what he wants, what he prepares, what he brings, because it is part of his immense plan of vas-
Your aim is preservation, until the end of the time, it is the unfailing presence, within the nations, of the traveling people, whom he made his herald,
It is the universal dissemination, for the preparation of the Gospel, of its imperishable Jew.

Built on these foundations, the Ghetto was therefore not a prison. The Jew and the Jewess would come out of it and go back in-treated with complete freedom. But it was necessary that every evening, at curfew time, or, in style of Roman aedility, at the time of Ape María, the excursions cease and that every Israelite, restored to his
He stayed in his cottage, secluded and patient, until daybreak.
of the following day.

For this police regulation to be enforced
Assured, a doorman was automatically appointed to close the gate and opened the Ghetto. This officer published the list of all persons placed under his care and cons-thus tested, documents in hand, the observance or the infraction tion of the law.

Nothing is more rigorously necessary than the state-implementation of this service, so that the law does not become a dead letter and did not translate, practically, by pure and simple mockery of the legislator.

This resulted, moreover, in a triple advantage.

1° The State always had full knowledge of the
the number and identity of its Jews, which made Its monitoring is effective and easy.

2? The feeling of this surveillance, which cannot-was going to abandon the Jew, he maintained him in the spirit of fear, the only one who could, to the necessary extent, make to make him a moral being, and to make his tolerance possible.

For the Jew is a people of fear. He has received it, said Saint Paul, with the spirit of bondage: Spiritum servitutis in timore. Having not accepted the law of love, the fear, which had governed him for two thousand years, is now gone to him. measured to lead him to the end of time. We one might even say that it has increased in him: the intention- the extent of his propensity for evil having been found to be softened blue or triple what it was at her fathers' house. Because the The will and the work of evil are the measure of fear of those who want and do evil.

3 Finally, the night has always been, ever since we read- Who is guilty of evil, the first accomplice of the wrongdoer? makes evil hate the light. Whoever acts badly says od lucem. To remove this accomplice from the man, whom we all had reasons to believe he was prone to wrongdoing, was of an ele- commentary wisdom and could not fail to produce an immense social advantage.

This seclusion affected both indiscriminately sexes. So, if we read, in such and such an edict, that of Clement XI, for example, writing in Italian by the car- Dinal Gasparo, prohibitions bearing more special- regarding women, we would be mistaken in con- concluding, therefore, that there is freedom to go out and circulate The defense was aimed particularly at the men. women, because it was from them, much more that transgressions came from men. Anxiety, instability, curiosity, have always held a large place in physiology and pathology of the woman. On all these points, the man is left out, by them, far back. And then, seduction, the call to shameful passions, prostitution, the sale of flesh, were always, among so many others, the means to harm the Christian, preferred by Israel. To no extent. At that time, Jews never ceased to be present in society. Christian, public corrupters. The statement, by Drumont, from their most recent works, shows that, in this respect, the sons have not degenerated from fathers, nor daughters, of mothers (1).

If someone were to ask us how these Jewish women confined indoors, having only one locked door as a result, placed under the guard of a doorman who will- ` nait the keys, could leave the Ghetto, we ren- we would see in Juvenal.

Quis custodiet ipsos
Custodes? and ab illis incipit. .

(Satire VI e. 3948-349)

The Jewish women were right about the Ghetto doorman as Jupiter prevailed over the gatekeeper of the tower of Danaé.

.... Goneerso in pretium deo.
(Horace. Odes, Book LIT. 16)

The job they were going to do held little appeal for them.
to put it there, if necessary, and if the guard was vulnerable-rable, a different price than gold.

The same edict does not forget to mention these misarable collusion.

"The doorman will not be punished for each transgression."
"capable of the same fine of ten scudi, for each-

"that woman he will bring out and, in addition, of the pri-
"Valorization of his office" (1). |
Such was the organization and legislation of the Ghetto in Rome. That's what the Popes had decided, and that which constituted, on this point, the canon law of Jewish.

It goes without saying that this right was subject to variations,
when it was applied outside of Rome and the States Romans (2). It was never in the habits of popes to take away much from the freedom of action of Temporal sovereigns. Contents of the general directionrale, in matters that fell within their jurisdiction, they left, to each individual, the policing of details, which is not,

(1) Essendo pervenuto a notizia della Santità di nostro Signore,
I grew up inconveniences when I was born and because I grew up Quantità delle donne Ebree che escono di note dal ghetto et si trattengonon nelle Osterie et che vanno a passeggiare per piazza Navona ed altri Inoghi... ordiniamo et commandiamo, a tutte e singole gives Ebree, di qualsivoglia età, che non ardiscano, per qualsivoglia causa, uscire dal Ghetto, trattenersi fuori di quello, dopo l'ora solita etc..
(Dato dal nostro palazzo, questo di 5 agosto 1712. G. Card.
Gasparo.)

that the discreet application of the law, which counts
as many variants as social environments and ca-
scrapers of sovereigns,

G) Il portinaro, in ogni caso di transgressionne, incorrerà incontinent, the medicine pena di seudi dieci, per ciascheduna give this esso farà uscire, ed inoltre, the privazione dell'ufficio.

(Editor's note.)

(2) Ghetto cities were determined in the states rohands. They were Rome, Ancona, and Ferrara. When the territory papal authority had increased from the Duchy of Urbino, all were maintained ghetto that was located there: "They cannot have a home in
"no city or locality in the States of the Church, except Ancona,
"in Rome, in Ferrara, and, by virtue of a Brief of Urban VIII, in
"The Duchy of Urbino."

Domicilium in nullis civitatibus ac locis ditionis ecclesias-lice possunt habere, nisi Ancônæ, Rome, et, ex Brevi Urbani VIII, in ducato Urbini. |

(Ex declarationibus S. Inquisitionis. Ferraris.)

Therefore, every city in the Roman states needed the authorization of the central power to create a ghetto. But it is hardly doubtful that the desire expressed by the municipality of a city, to possess it.
one, did not obtain satisfaction. The popes, respectful, until the scruples, civil liberties, have always left to the cities, the
a larger share of initiative in their own government.
The prevailing public spirit of that era did little to encourage cities to do requests; such requests must have been very rare.

The number of Ghettos was indefinite and depended of the appreciation of each head of state. Many of cities, and, among the most important, had none
No. Not for those places, and generally for any locality.
who did not consider the application of the law of Ghetto, the second element of the report, the wheel or Yellow band, acquired more importance and could-would even become indispensable.

Also, a Jew subjected to the Ghetto, like a free Jew of the Ghetto, they had to, whatever the cost, resign with the strange insignia.

I say: whatever the cost; for there was no
Moreover, this second constraint, like the pre-mine; she had no advantage for them. She was an uncompensated inconvenience. It is permitted, tou-However, to be considered as a small compensation, the assurance of protection by the public force, in cases of vexatious, improvised street tactics,
and whose repression is not subject to any time limits.
such a scenario was nothing short of a pipe dream in the Middle Ages,
and hasn't even fully become so in time
modern. | s

The more visibility the Jew had, the more visibility of the humiliation, and, the agent of power, more quickly informed, often instructed by his own eyes, could faster to provide assistance to the patient (1).

(1) 11 It must also be recognized that the brand could, in addition-to go on, to serve to provoke humiliation. But we know, through very recent events, which show that humiliation knows very well how to find the Jew

But, apart from this potential benefit, we don't can conceal the fact that the hindrance and inconvenience of the mar-that did not remain considerable. To speak the
In the style of law, the odious prevailed by far over favor in this branding issue, and the will of marked subject, towards the power that marked, not
It could only be mediocre. But also, how to par-to come in a different way, without taking one's eyes off the strange social companion that merciful hospitality of the Church did to the Christian and that so many imperious-
What reasons justified this constant surveillance?
How can circumspection and distrust of each had she been warned, put on her guard, a particular person threatened guards, as she had the right to be, when she There, before her, was found the hostile man, the insly, intent on surprising her, and who was supposed to Why pay so much for this surprise? Because hostile and insidious-Gods, the bearer of the mark was indeed such, and that,
not by circumstance, by some unfortunate accident
of nature, that the failings of the human race
make encounters occur among other human individuals;

but hostile and insidious, by nature, by principles avowed conduct; principles translated into laws and rules seemed to be in code. It was, especially, when he wandered about across the world, when he was on every road,
when he approached every crossroads, when he invaded
he raised all the markets when he made his offer and was looking for prey to exploit, it was then that it was necessary to know him. There was little to fear.

unmarked, and that the police are, therefore, his only resource against Public fury. — Example. — Ephrussi at the 1894 Derby.
The absence of the badge, which, thank God, did not have any effect on Ephrussi,
the consequences that could be feared, could do, another times, the police, not warned as quickly, did not arrive in time and found, in the hands of the crowd, only, disjecti membra Judai.

when he stood in his ghetto. But not all of them did not undergo the salutary discipline, and then, who would have had the idea of imposing it on those who had fixed their home, the constraint of never leaving it?
Who would have conceived the inhuman project of rivering to a point from the soil, a race whose destiny made it wandering to tra-to the world? The Ghetto then became a prisound. But hospitality, even granted by misery-rope, and to whatever minimal dose of tolerance it
She comes back, she has always stood strong above everything something that resembles a prison...

The impossibility, moreover, even more than the human-nity, would hold the most resolute wills in check there read. Only one thing would remain to be done if we didn't saw no other way, to change, diametrically, the so-solution; to substitute leave for prison; or better yet-
'core, to tell the stranger who presents himself, that one has the re-regrets not being able to open his door to him, and that is, in the end
In short, the party that more than one state has deemed wise to
to take, vis-à-vis the Jews.

Moreover, the mark of the Jew was far from having disappeared-cultural to Christian law. Even less so, presented itself-
It appears in history as a new form. During-that it was introduced into Christian lands, towards the on-
In the thirteenth or twelfth century, there were already thirteen of them.
Ptolemy Philopator had used it against his Jews (x).

There was, however, one difference that deserves to be mentioned and the Church certainly had to win, near the Jews, by comparison. It was already something that the mark, under Ptolemy, was an ivy leaf and that the marked Jew found himself, by the sole fact of the

---

(1) Ptolemy Philopator, with his restricted states and subjects to the conquest, did not have, against the Jews, the same guarantees of security than the Romans. This explains the difference in its processes.

brand, reduced to the level of a clownish clientele of the God of wine. But what about the manner of the brand? The Egyptian thought that it had become part of The person would find it harder to distract themselves from it.
To that end, he found no better method than the imprint by the hot iron. It's the same with a red-hot iron, which they used to brand them, eight centuries later Later, the caliph Abdallah. Under no domination, the Jews encountered no more intolerance than under that of the first successors of Muhammad. Also Well, were they simply continuing the traditional practices?
principles of the founder of Islamism.

Muhammad, for a moment favorable to the Jews (1), did not-had not been long in changing his attitude. The last few years
The things that happened in his life show him to be their sworn enemy. Also,
However harsh the conditions may have been to the children of Israel, by the Christian society of the Moyen-Age, there is no possible comparison between these the hardships and fate they encountered among the Muslims- - mans. The Idols, moreover, in some corner of the world that the Jews were going to find, do not treat them were no better. This explains the tenacity of these latter always return to this Christian soil, of which They were always getting beaten up. The prohibitions they found there-the humiliations they suffered there seemed to them-saltent, a light thing compared to the treatments that They held in reserve the intolerance of the infidel.

The Muslims of Spain were initially, more than their coreligionists in the East, tolerant towards the Jews. They owed everything to the horrible perfidy of this people.

We have already seen how the blind Vitiza,

(1) It was natural that he should begin there, having had as his master a Jew and took, in Judaism, the elements of the Qur'an.

The penultimate king of the Visigoths, had broken with the strict and beneficial traditions of his predecessors. By the most impolitic and shortsighted about-face, not only did he lower all the barriers of- before the Jews, but he came to fill them with all favors.

There is no people in the world greater than the Jew, or- He quickly forgets a benefit. Since the great betrayal of the Calvary, the genius of Iscariot has infected the race. There is the blood of a traitor in the heart of every Jew. Their recognition-birth towards the sovereigns of Spain is reflected-sit by the call of the Arabs of Africa.

The Muslims did not follow this example: they They, for their part, had for the Jew the gratitude that the Jew had not had for the Christian. Throughout the Under Moorish rule, the Jews obtained, in Spain, a tolerance from which they derived enormous profits (1). But the hour of justice finally struck for the traitors. When the sons of Pelagius had recovered this land of their ancestors, steeped in the blood of a thousand victories, They were careful not to forget that all that blood and that The less glorious of the first disasters was only the painful price for which they Pa DIERUM a hospitality too blindly generous.

The Jews, welcomed onto their lands, had not found There's nothing better than selling their guests.

(1) That no alert was interrupted, in Spain, during Seven and a half centuries, the Jew's sleep, near his bags of gold, That is not what we claim. So that the Jew, I do not say Not treated well, but merely tolerated, becomes the insolent Jew, It is far from taking seven centuries. Therefore, it could only be, from From time to time, a salutary lesson brought him back to something like modesty, the onset of this insolence. Once, However, they did not stick to the lesson. Around the middle of the twelve- In the 10th century, an Almohad prince notified every Jew in his states to embrace Islamism or cross the border. The flow of emi- the gres, received by Christian Spain, was then pushed beyond the Pyrenees and became the scourge of France.

Having regained their freedom, they no longer wanted one of them.
alone, though he was marked from head to toe, on that soil, if painstakingly recovered through their valor.

In the eleventh century, under Pope Alexander II, Fer-Dinand the Great, who pushed the work of liberation so far-ration, threw a swarm of them out of Spain, their man-
They had no choice but to seek asylum wherever they could.
They had little choice. They crossed the Pyrenees and settled down.
They settled in Languedoc. They recognized the new hospititude, with their particular kind of recognition, and became, for France, the leaven of all the Albigensian sects. Apparently, it is from This period dates back to the advent of Christianity in the lands of Christendom.
ment of the yellow wheel (1).

It would truly be very unfair, very forgetful of the lessons of history, so that the scourge of the atrocious wars that devastated the South, pen-for a century, was not the full justification of Christian priests who resort to this measure of safety.

It may suit our modern people, and, more specifically-our Revolutionaries, to declaim against this which they call the caste spirit, and the contempt for human rights. No one is surprised by their to hear this language spoken. Indifferent to things religious, and, by the most inexplicable of contradictions

(1) What was part of the particular law of some Churches, became Later, general canon law, with the fourth council of Lateran. It is ordered there "that the Jews shall wear some mark-
"that, on their clothing, as was already the practice in some "provinces."

(LanBr. — T. 11. P. 233.)

In the middle of the twelfth century, the Almohad prince who offered the choice between conversion and expulsion, forced the con-greens that remained with him, to wear yellow clothing and a turban Yellow, so great was the reputation of this sovereign good faith of the children of Israel. Jewish perfidy was known by-All.

hatred, to excess, of a religion that does not

It did only good; their only regret remains.
that the Albigensians and Jews were not yet finished with the Church. That would have spared the Revolution so much trouble.
Solution; many people would have gained sleep from it of many nights. For the work is far from going by train that they would like and the wrecking hammer still has very little biting on the granite slopes of the old Catholic Church.

And yet, the most illustrious son of this Revo-
The revolution (1r) did not preserve for the Jews for long the
the first sympathies that his mother had inspired in him.
Napoleon, who was initially so favorable to them, who granted, in its fullness, the common law
He soon returned from this first experience.
tenderness. The prohibitive law of the Middle Ages reappeared, in another form. The decree of March 17, 1808, provoked by a report from Champagny, dated August 15th 1807, that is to say, barely seven months after the full admission to common law, contains a series of measures, which place, on every Jew of the French Empire
This, the mark of the Jew. All the past comes back to life, except the yellow badge. On July 20, 1808, a new right increased the reporting; that relating to the names of Jews (2).

“Napoleon,” Drumont observes, “seems to have "These measures were guided by a single line of thought,"
"The desire to see his Jews. In this, the sure instinct

---

(1) The father of this same Revolution, illustrious in another way,
He showed little favor to the Jews. He is not a class of men, for which Voltaire made such a significant contribution, the rich his well-known vocabulary of insults. We'll have everything, with a word, recalling that his mockery extended even to their circumcision. He delighted in calling them depreputates.

(2) The Jews made use of multiplicity and change names to escape conscription.

"His marvelous genius did not deceive him. Everything
"Any Jew one sees, any known Jew is relatively
"Not very dangerous."
i (Jewish France T. 1. p. 316)
The Restoration was less harsh on them. The severity
Napoleon's leniency became a reason for him to be indulgent.
In this, she was on the wrong track, as in many others.

That's another matter. The reasons for good government are
They take on a higher plane than petty rancuniers. “However,” Drumont always tells us, “we |
"I could still, more or less, know the number" “Jews. The costs of religious services being their responsibility,”
"They were all registered on the consistory's roll."
"In 1830, Rothschild abolished this measure and made everything
"An impossible census. The religion of Moses was
"Now employed by the state."
(Jewish France, Vol. 1, pp. 941—342)

One more word from our eloquent author. It will be the conclusion of this chapter. "If," he said, "you were to oblige,"
"Now, Jews must wear a yellow badge,"
"You would be doing a lot of people a favor!"
(Jewish France, Vol. 1, p. 157)

VI

Legislation affecting more specific-domestic life

§ 1. — Marriage

There is nothing, perhaps, in all things Jewish-anyone who, less than the family, was affected by this exceptional right that the force of circumstances imposed on the Church, much more than the Church imposed it on the Jew. If there is one thing that the Church has always kept away of his government, it is, without a doubt, the engineerrence. Now, the Church knows that the family was made by God, the originator of all things; that Moses, the delegate, God's representative added, on behalf of God of particular dispositions, which constitute the special law of the Jewish family; that there is no such thing as this right, like political rights and ceremonial rights the nation's monastic system, which abolished itself from itself same, from the day when there was no longer a temple and of form of people, that, the Jewish family remaining, her right remains with her and follows her everywhere She will.

Undoubtedly, the Church offered itself to elevate and perfect-to convene the Jewish family, if the latter, docile to his invitations and letting themselves go in the wonderful course of things, wanted to become the Christian family. In

In this case, the Jewish family lost none of the good elements elements with which it was endowed: what increases has never-but impoverished of nothing, to benefit from the increase-
The Church would only have applied to the family of Israel, the great law laid down by the Master, at the head of the new order; law, for which one would search in vain-
the exception, in everything that has been affected by the cross, anointed by the blood of the Redeemer: “I do not I didn't come to destroy, but to perfect. No, I came.
soleere sed adimplere. |

| ` (Matthew. V. 17).

Christian marriage, taking away from the marriage of Moses its imperfections and weaknesses, did not mutilate, did not
It did not restrict in any way the domestic rights of the Jew. It did not restrict him.
he added. The Jew, refusing to be, by his accession to the Gospel promoted to this complement, its right prece-His tooth remained intact. He never came to thought of the Church to contest it and to disturb him there.

But, above all, what the idea could not, even a for a single moment, to cross the mind of the Church, was to into forbid marriage to Jews. This is only in spirit of the Revolution, and after the emphasis on freedom which she had the secret of making all tongues swell spoken by men, that the enorriddled with this aberration.

In 1784, Louis XVI issued an edict concerning the Jews of Alsace. The goal of this excellent sovereign was, evidently to soften, for them, the alleged ri-gueurs, to which the right of exception, so wisely designed by the Church, they had kept them submissive until then.

Reading the document is enough to convince you.

But one article in particular was more restrictive on its own,
that all the previous restrictions, and that we have-
would have searched in vain in any code of the centuries past, bearing the signature of a Christian prince (1).

“Art. VI — We expressly forbid
"to all Jewish men and women currently residing in "Alsace, to contract, in the future, no marriage
"without our express permission, even outside of the "States under our domination, under penalty, against the .

"contractors, to be immediately expelled from the said"
"Province." | :

We might be surprised to see an edict from Louis XVI, whom we attribute to the Revolution lution and placed under its heading. We are not used to it-study of Louis XVI, during the twenty years that his reign provides to history, the idea of a servant of the Revolution. What the two names, Louis XVI and the Revolution seem to express, clearly-

(1) Prussia, in 1722, and Bavaria during the same siege-
They took similar measures with regard to the Jews. The marriage Jews were left there at the mercy of the authorities. Hence one will perhaps conclude that the Revolution was not the first,
the idea of this tyranny. The conclusion would be utterly bad. The entire Revolution is already present in the
The Protestant Reformation, and Prussia was, after the Treaty of Utrecht, the predominant political representative of this reform.

As for Bavaria, Josephism in the East, Febronianism in the
In the North, Jansenism in the West and South held it as a block-Quarry. All these sects, or, to put it better, all these variants of the same sect, instilled in her the Protestant spirit, that is to say-to say revolutionary, which motivated them. Launoy, one of the first Jansenists, contemporaries of Jansenius and Saint-Cyran, had made a treatise on the king's power over marriage which was condemned to Rome, December 1, 1688.

Article v1 of Louis XVI's law was merely the application of the doctrine of this sectarian.

Clearly and unequivocally, it is the victim relationship to the executioner. Who can explain why Louis XVI took from the service near the one who was preparing to do everything for him to take, including life. And yet it is sad-
the fact that Louis XVI served the Revolution.

Is a dealership anything other than a service?
However, Louis XVI conceded everything to the Revolution until-that, having nothing left to throw at him as prey, the
The insatiable beast threw itself upon him and devora.

There is no doubt, however, that he has great-
It cost Louis XVI dearly to put his signature and to affix the royal seal to the bottom of a legal measure, equally unprecedented. The astonishing discordance it acsail, with all that his ancestors, the most Christian kingshold on, they transmitted to him public law, they had to offensqueeze until it tears, the ear so precise, in terms of of fairness, of the most honest of sovereigns. But his Ministers were already, almost all of them, disciples of Rousseau, imbued with and enamored of the social contract. MaLesherbes, who had not yet mourned his mistakes at the foot of the scaffold, was, more than any member of the royal council, supporters of the new ideas, and, Malesherbes's influence over the king's mind was immense. He seems to have had the most part in the decision that was taken (1).

In the presence of men whose philosophical coterie whose reputation for virtue had reached the heights of its power and genius, the very common intellectual faculties The good king could not hold. For that, it would have been necessary,

---

(1) Malesherbes was a friend of the famous Jew Cerfbeer, who played a a leading role in this whole affair. A significant parta significant portion of this Jew's descendants converted to the Christian faith yours, among others, Cerfbeer of Mendelsheim which became a celebrity of Catholic apologetics.

a prince of superior intellect. This was not the case. of Louis XVI; and, the strength of character, which could have to serve as compensation, perhaps still yielded to the vigor of intelligence, in the unfortunate soulrain. |

Louis XVI was therefore following the trend, with a sort of half-hearted conviction, insufficiently reasoned, to persuadant that, since the new order of things which The advent was being prepared, and its supporters included... men like Malesherbes, it was impossible that he It did not contain anything good. It is from then on that the miministers, and, more specifically, the Chancellor of State, began to become a power alongside the king, until they were the only ones to govern, leaving the king with the paltry honor of reigning, and thus realizing the famous formula that was supposed to hold such a place in modern political law: Ze The king reigns but does not govern.

So, the Revolution, already in control

business, through the presence and influence of students
Rousseau brought about the weak and short-sighted.
Louis XVI signed this revolutionary measure:
That was the first step. Eight years later, on the eve of her death and almost at the foot of the scaffold, she had to have his name placed at the bottom of a document, of beautiful-
a stranger blow, with a resounding impact and a far more sinister in scope; /a Constitution ci-Clergy Island.

But what is the relationship between subordination?
Jewish marriage at the king's whim and the system Revolutionary policy? Because, among the services that the Revolution boasts of having restored to men
She may not place any higher than that one of the extermination of good pleasure. How, from
So, was she able to become the inspiration and the initiator?

*

of a legal provision that went further than

Teut never led any despot, the absolutism of the pleasure?

I would tell you and prove it to you, if that were the case.
the place, where the good pleasure was revolutionary, of very old, dating back to before the Revolution, and one of the most shameless lies of the latter, when she believed the time had come to raise his flag and to take-definitive possession among men, was to
to make them believe that she was going to deliver them from the good pleasure.

Let it suffice for me now to show that the an essential dogma of the Revolution, the principle of sovereignty rain, from which everything stems in her life, leads straight to the de-harmful belief that its first political apostles... came to make the royal dupe of the Revolution sign-tion, the subordination of marriage among the Jews of Alsace
at the whim of the State.

The flaw in the Revolutionary system was not the lack of rigor in deductions; his teachers were excellent logicians, and the founder of

At school, Jean-Jacques Rousseau surpassed them all; he there is no conclusion, however enormous it may be, that has never made this intransigent reasoner back down Giant. All the evil is at the starting point. All the falsehood and the unjust one who forms a procession, and whose line is intermittentnable, is based on the monstrous principle stated at the beginning:
the omnipotence of the State.

Once the state is constituted by the social contract, so Rousseau, all law and all rights come from the State and are reabsorbed into the State; because every law and every Right can only be law and right by the will of the people, represented by the State.

Look within the individual, within the family, within the cited, in all its elements and social compounds

that both contain, you will not find not a right that pre-exists the State. It is absent from the world, a clean slate of all rights; he emerged from the Social contract, sudden emergence of all the

rights! | |
The State therefore disposes of man as it pleases; can to make of man whatever he pleases. That the State
If he needs a man's life, he will be able to do it.
to kill whenever he pleases (1); for this man has the right to life that he derives from the State. The State
It is taken back from him; he returns to his property. Nothing more natural, nor more legitimate. The State merely lends What he gives: dispossessing himself is forbidden to him. His
The concept does not allow it.

It is good that a man should die for the people, he said.
Caiphas. (Saint John. Ch. XI. V. 50.)

— But this man is innocent!

— That's not the point. Innocent or coup-

(1) It will be said that this is precisely what the State does in war.

No, the state does not kill men in war, and if men do

If someone dies, the state is absolved of that death: its will is not involved.

nothing, and, a fortiori, his good pleasure which is nothing but the excrosismorbid ence, putrid podemia of this will.

In the true political system, which has always been that of The Church and Christian states, the state does not take life for itself, the property and all the rights of men, but the State relates himself to this life, to these possessions, to these rights; the State has no reason to be, that the security of this life, of these goods, of these rights.
And so, a contract, which doesn't need to be written or signed and which, in fact, never has been, a contract that any political society-tick carries in its entrails and which is not, for a moment, Less ancient than it is the State, which protects and defends everything.
will himself, if he is ever endangered, be protected and defended by those he protects and defends. And if he happens to rain gentlemen who perish in this defense, it is so little the State that kills them, that death comes to them solely from the hand of their enemy, that is to say of the one who does and aims to do the exact opposite of what he wants
The State. The State, for its part, saves as much as it can, and cries when it Death arrives, the death that saved him. The State does not kill or have killed in reality his subject than in an unjust war. But who can ar-
To fight against unjust acts by the State, in order to establish the law of the State?

This man can only live if the State supports him.
allows one to live. If, for such and such a reason, including the State he did not have to answer to him, this right to life, which he held of the State, is withdrawn by the State, he does not have a complaint to raise; he dies with the best of rights (1).

This morality (for it is one, listed in the Eco-
the) is commonly applied by Freemasonry nonsense, which is, as she repeats every days, and proves it in every way, the same something that the Revolution. A man becomes a gene: we cross it out, without further ado, as we would ra-ture a word that clutters a sentence.

If the revolutionary state is simply, and of at first glance, without any external circumstance which come, without any additional fact that creates a situation in particular, the absolute master of man's life;
no more master, and more absolute, can he not manquer of being, of everything that connects us to being human.

There is no human property to which the State does not have more righteous than man; more than that, to which no no man can claim any right, in competition with the State (2).

The State can, therefore, whenever it pleases, defend to the man to get married.

In the East, the procedure is more summary, and

---

(1) "The nation has the undeniable power to lose even a innocent. "

(Restif de la Bretonne, 1787. Nights of Paris. Fifteenth night)
(p. 377.)

(2 As regards the properties of private individuals, Louis XIV, precursor and grandfather of the Revolution, is of a clarity that leaves nothing to be desired: "You must be convinced
"that kings naturally have the full and free disposition of "all the possessions that are owned, both by people
"of the Church, which is used by secular priests at all times,
"like wise stewards, that is to say, according to the common good"

"of their state."
(Louis XIV to his son, as T. 1. P. 58.)

not without a certain benefit to morality, as We will have occasion to observe this in a moment. But such radical methods have not yet taken hold. course in our Western customs, to the discerning individual Through him, the State will be content, until further notice, with to mean that he must refrain from taking a wife.

But, on the other hand, the Revolution, no more that Rousseau and Voltaire and all the Fathers of this The Church does not believe that continence is possible at The man, this devoted servant of the State, is in reality, to all the disturbances; most of the time, to crimes against nature, which, if it depends only on the Revolution-tion, will become moral works, since they are the rigorous and the fatal consequence of docile obedience the subject's right to the State; that according to the Revolution and His doctors, we can't go any higher than the State. and, that, moreover, it is the will of the State, it is the sovereignty of the people that it expresses, which makes the moral. |

But, fortunately for humankind, the ancient
The common sense of men has not been confiscated by the Revolution. For a long time to come, he will continue to defend funny human brains against intel- intrusions lectuals of the Revolution. What has always been hon-Thanks to him, Nète will continue to be honest, and this that was deemed immoral, will remain despite the Revolution and all its decrees, irreformable immoral.

The Church, which starts from as high as the one that started from low Revolution, the Church never had the lofty pretensions-tions of the Revolution: The Church never told the
She acknowledged,
she proclaimed, she preached from the rooftops (1) that these

(1) Prædicate super tecta.
(MATTHEW — Chapter 10, Verse 27.)
IO

rights that pre-existed him, individual rights, rights of the family, rights of the city. God created them before
She. Because since he creates nothing without order, he creates nothing.
Nor is there anything without law. Law is merely the expression of sion of order and the resulting requirements, Nothing comes from the hand of God that does not present itself with its right. The supernatural right, which the Gospel brings, the positive Christian law, which the Church institutes, merely complete and perfect the preceding right, the
a right whose nature predates the Church and older than the Gospel, endowed man at the time of his appearance in this world.

No vent solvere sed adimplere. We don't keep any destroy what one wants to perfect.

The preceding right is the basis. Pulling out the pierres of the base to raise the building higher, is a architectural theory that did not seem plausible enough to the Church, to try to implement it. She sticks to it to the ancient and traditional principles of art. She knows that everything that will be built according to these new and strange rules, will not need a storm to fall, which it will roll down of its own accord, in a short time, and will bury beneath its ruins, bewildered and only belatedly enlightened, its reckless builders.

— We are not surprised to hear you pró-
"You are attacking the Church," the enemy replies; "that's your job." But We are forced to tell you that you are exercising it, in the circumstances, in an absolutely unfortunate way-reuse. There can be no greater distraction than the your.

You find the Revolutionary State abhorrent, which imposes celibacy on a tiny fraction of its subjects.
to a handful of men, confined to a province,
etily a eighteen hundred without, in a whole half of the world, the Catholic Church imposes it on all its Priests!

And that is what they did not forget to represent to Louis XVI and the Jews of Alsace, in the observations respectful that they submitted to him.

"The Jewish people, guided by their nature and their "Religion is constantly multiplying, while a
"A considerable part of the Christian people will be annihilated-
"to resist in cloisters and refuse pleasures"
"Of marriage."

Nothing was less new than this objection, to the date from which the Jews drew their defense. Not Teus-Did they not feel they had found it themselves, that it was coming from everything that surrounded them. It was only the echo weakened by the declamations of the entire eighteenth century. What they expressed, in chancellor- style Lerie and, with relative moderation, the philosophers
They had been using it as an insult for fifty years.
and anger from one end of Europe to the other. And they don't they did not limit themselves, like the Jews, to simply pointing out the fact,
They denounced the perpetrator. This attack on nature not excused by reasons of state, as in the case Jews, the Church committed it without any reason and against all reason, for eighteen hundred years.

These men, who, along with the austere Jansenists,
their cronies were giving passes to the filthy Malthus's theory; these shameless perpetrators of the most ignoble passions, these advocates in the name of the law, at the name of morality and public order, of the most abject

the selfishness of the human heart, accused the Church of im-to address celibacy.

In this they erred, as in many other things.
And, with no more excuse than elsewhere. What they put in its full daylight, it was their unforgivable ign-rancidity and not the injustice of the Church. The unjust,
It was them. Ignorance, ordinarily, mitigates the injustice.
tice; she really takes it to the extreme when she goes up to the-

taken from the muddy depths of the heart's perversions. It-
This was the case for our men; there was no other their source. Descended from generations of believers, they did not have the excuse of those who were born in the mistake. Involuntarily, we thought, upon seeing them to these tumults of the soul of the limpid (1) so eloquently described by the Holy Spirit and which cover all the voice from which salvation comes. If they had remained capable-
They were unable to hear; the voice of history would have taught them that the Church has never imposed, will never impose, on no one, celibacy.

But what then, they say, is this order of the subdiaconate, flanked by its inflexible law of continence, and, in these harsh conditions, a way
Obliged to the priesthood, throughout your entire Western world?

We reply that continence, inherent in or-director of the subdiaconate throughout the glorious patriarchate Western cat, does not have the origin and kind of oblimoral judgment assumed by those who disguise themselves
The concept is clear. Celibacy there does not stem from a law that imposes; it is born from a vow that chooses. If you want Call this vow, law, free to you; neither theology nor
The law doesn't contradict it, strictly speaking. But it's a law that the subject made, himself and for himself that the law will bind. That is the wish (2).

"Hactenus liberi estis," said the Bishop to the candidates who introduce themselves.

"So far, you are free."

— But that's also what the legislator says, when

(1) Impii quasi mare fervens quod quiescere non potest et redundant fluctus ejus in conculcationem et lutum.

(Isaiah, Chapter 5, Verse 20.)
(2) “Making the law and obeying it voluntarily is not the most
"A high expression of freedom?"
(LACORDAIRE. — Memorandum for the restoration of the Brothers Preachers. The concept of a vow. C. 1.)

He presents himself with his law. Until now, you have been free.
But once the law is in place, you will no longer be free.
Today, because of my silence, you will cease to to be when I have spoken. Whether you like it or not
If you don't want to, it will have to be done through the law.

Okay, we reply, we contradict ourselves.
The less you help us, the better. The difference
We lacked something between the vow and the law; you...
You will bring it.

So far you are free:

But instead of the subject that the legislator addresses, will no longer be free tomorrow, no matter what he does.

You, who are going to run to the wish, if you wish, you

You will still be free tomorrow; therefore, stay.

But, on the other hand, if you want: go, forward Tomorrow, you will no longer be free. And yet you will accomplish tomorrow, very freely, what you would have liked to accomplish very freely today—
of today. He who does today what he wanted yesterday, does not submit to a yoke; he does not do what another
He wants; he does what he wants. Now, how, in what does not infringe upon any foreign rights, any prior rights tooth, neither innate nor acquired, will you prevent a man to do what he wants? Then you would be the one who the tyrant, and you would be all the more so, because you
You would present yourself wearing the mask of the liberator. Such were the liberators of the Constituent Assembly.

And, since this question of priestly celibacy ca—
Catholicism lies on our path, which we are told to per—put a pause in front of her. None of them deserve it.
Moreover, nowhere will less time be wasted.
There are a thousand things we don't fully realize.
that history is in hand. Catholic celibacy is part of it.
One. So, a word about his story.

When the Apostles encountered Roman society, sea

the first and best won over by their word were married men. I say the best, because that then everything that remained outside of marriage was below marriage. Celibacy, among... Christians, it is said, a moral superiority and an honor. Among the pagans, celibacy was a sign of degradation. donation and an infamy. The reasons for the difference are immediately obvious, provided one has the first notions of pagan morality and the morality of Christians.

As soon as the first churches were founded, it became necessary to... bishops and priests to these Churches. The Apostles They did not hesitate. They conferred the priesthood and the episcopal see. Copat is shared by many married Christians. And it goes without saying to say that then they left them their rights as spouses (1). They urged them, no doubt, to reconcile what they owed to the honor of their news and so high functions, with what a modest companion was rightfully expecting from their initial commitments, to change, as much as possible, for the latter, the role of wife in that of sister. But, neither they tou- they are attached to the substance of the rights, nor do they discharge-

(1) It is only the legal question that we understand to speak, that is to say, of the rigorous and absolute compatibility of the priesthood and even the episcopate with the custom of marriage. Jait, few married men were ordained priests in the West, without that we had previously obtained from them and their wives the promise of continence. One might find it difficult a single example of a married man promoted to the Episcopate, of which The woman did not consent, from that very day, to become the sister. We We still find these promotions of married men, in the Episcopate, in the end of the fourth century, as evidenced by the example of Saint Victor, whom Saint Martin ordained bishop of Le Mans, around 390. Victor was married. Saint Martin asked his wife if she consented to her husband becoming a bishop. The woman understood immediately understood the meaning of consent and committed to continence.

(Acts of Saint Victor of Le Mans in the Acta sanctorum. Aug. v. 146 and following. — Dom Pro. — History of

The Church of Le Mans. — Bepe RABAN Maur. — Vic de Saint Victorius, son and successor of Saint Victor.)

The elected official bears the weight of duties. The rights and the duties existed; nor did the Church confiscate rights, nor does it absolve one of the duties created by rights.

When, later, virginity, sown by the Gospel gile e! by the Eucharist, would have begun to give its fruits throughout the world, the Church says: What What was not possible originally becomes possible for me now. I can find in virgins the re- necessary for my priesthood. Therefore, to no one at fashion I will not impose virginity; but as my saerdoce belongs to me and I give it to whomever I Vax, I will only give it to whom from now on would have to remain a virgin. It was indeed a law that The Church posed, like the famous decretal of Saint 3irice bears witness to this, but a law that only bound her- She didn't ask it of others, she asked it of herself: I oblige myself and others as much as I am able, those who will come after me, to order only those.

But whoever will be ordained will be ordained, that is to say, who will want, in order to be ordained, to freely promise the celibacy.

Thus, all rights remain respected.

You want marriage? Go to the wedding. You'll be there. You have a right. But my priesthood will not be yours. accessible. In this respect, you will not be deprived of a right. My priesthood is mine, I give it to whomever I want.

You want celibacy, which is better than marriage. since I restored to it, with its true meaning, its A wonderful honor. You are entitled to it, and, therefore, the The doors of my sanctuary are open to you. you will not, however, by virtue of this celibacy alone, have the right to enter. My priesthood is a free gift, And were you an angel descended from heaven, that his granting or refusing it would remain in my full power-

see. But if you are among my chosen ones, (what God (if you wish!) I would not have made you, against your will,

The chosen bachelor. You will be, of your own volition, the bachelor-to keep quiet and, from mine, the chosen one.

— But suppose that one day (supposition 'out theoretical and whose realization seems unlikely to (fear) suppose that the sap of virtue, devaue less generous, no longer provides to the church, in the virgins that Catholic nations bring forth from their homes ranks, the sufficient base of his priestly recruits, Without a doubt, the Church would resign itself to doing to lower his priesthood to the less pure ranks of married Christians.

And, in fact, that is what she is doing in the East.

For numerous reasons, we have not:
It should be remembered that the Eastern Churches do not provide '
not this heroic contingent, which is and will remain the - glory of our West. The sovereign Pontiffs there Will they find a reason to deprive us of divine gifts?
the Christians of these regions, to remove from them this which is the irreplaceable condition of life, in the a society born of the Gospel, what the priest alone can do there confer: Penance and the Eucharist, the forgiveness of Sins and the food that comes from heaven? God does not Please! They don't make laws about death. When Sirice carried, for the Western patriarchate, the one who has never ceased to be his honor, the saint's fervent desire
The Pope was that all the Churches of the world should stand or rise to the height she assumed, and took their place under his glorious discipline. The calaMites, the humiliations that overwhelm Christendom of the East, mother of so many virtues, under the Athanasius, Basil, Gregory, and Chrysostom, do not leave there-
Soon, the flowers would bloom, though they were too rare.
of virginity. What did the Pontiffs of Rome do? They relax, for these Churches, the law which they have not ceased-rent to keep themselves bound, vis-à-vis their own.

Continuing to forbid itself, in the flourishing West,
the admission of the married Christian to the priesthood, they conceded to their desolate brothers (1) of the East. Who
The law makes one free from the law. It is up to his wisdom to distribute it.
depending on the times and places, the maintenance and dis-think (2).

The Church is therefore justified: The Church has never infringed upon the sacred right, that the only right of the Conscience takes precedence, in the order of rights, over the right so solemnly proclaimed by God, at the origin of things (Gen. CI 28), by right of man's blood, to the will of nature, as the oppressed called it mes of Alsace. The idea could come to the pupil by Rousseau. Already an adult, in 1784, the Revolution, was preparing, from then on, the lavish, the noisy, the deli-
The Declaration of the Rights of Man. That was it.
It's a good prelude to removing an entire class of men a right which the entire old regime con-Densé would not have had the thought of defrauding a single person, the right at the wedding.

From marriage, let's move on to paternal power.
What does Church law say about the Jew?

(3) The concession was only for the priests. The Episcopate
The Eastern tradition of celibacy persisted, which led to the development of Greek monaste
the recruitment fund for the Bishops, and for the regular clergy of this country,
The secular clergy were defeated. The same downfall would befall our Western secular clergy. The day when his glorious celibacy, if beaten into breaches, would fall under the blows of the enemy.

(2 The mistake many Catholics make is to look at the priestly celibacy as a matter of divine right. Hence the confusion in which a large number fall by when they reason about these questions. Priestly celibacy is instituted by the Church and falls under fully, as such, under the jurisdiction of the Church.

4

194 =
$ He. — Paternal power

Power is the lifeblood of any society.
Paternal power is the vital principle of society.
domestic or family society.

The Church, which left the Jewish family untouched,
He was careful not to interfere with his father's authority. All the accusations that have been made against her, in this regardjet, therefore, rests on nothing solid, el, c'est to fully expose their inanity, which he im-door to study, to assess from a legal point of view,

some facts of Jewish domestic life, where the accusations sators sought a pretext for grievance, where some
Those involved claim to have found grounds for complaint.

First, the Church does not baptize any Jewish children.
despite his parents.

Hebræi filii, liberi arbitrii usum non habentes,
invites parentibus baptizari non debent.

“Jewish children, who do not have the use of their "Free will should not be suppressed despite
"Their parents."

(Benoit XT and Constitut. Postremo Wise No. 45) -

Therefore, paternal rights remain intact.

But, if there is disagreement between the father and the mother,
The Church takes the side that favors the child.

Hebraeorum filii infantes baptizari possunt, si ad
baptismum offerantur a patre etiam invita maître.

“Jewish children may be baptized, if they "are presented for baptism by the father, even if ill-
"Thanks to the mother."

(Same Constitution — 15.)

So far, no difficulty. Do not hold Taking into account maternal resistance does not weaken the

The Father's power. Quite the contrary, we would not know it.
to assert further.

But, if it is the mother who wants to have her child baptized
What will the Church do if the child is born against the father's wishes?
If she performs the baptism, it seems that this
This time, it undermines the father's power. That's whydepending on the side she will take.

Possunt infantes baptizari if offered to a master
sine patris consensu.

“Children can be baptized if they are of-
"Born by the mother, without the father's consent."

(Same Constitution)

And yet, one can say that the paternal power
.nel, properly understood, no longer has to suffer from this provision, which is from the previous one

The Church does not understand the following paternal power
the notion that the majority of them had of it pagan legislators. These made the woman
A slave. The only Germans, if one were to believe them.
Tacitus, would have had another right and kept it intact
Women's freedom.

Under no regime or legislation,
The Church does not accept that a woman can be a slave, and so inferior to the Christian wife that the woman of-dies in the Jewish home, however humiliated she may be.
The law of fear that humiliates everything, the Church knows well that Moses did not bring for her from Sinai, the-domestic enslavement.

Paternal power, as nature intended (the
the only one that conforms to fairness, the only one that the occurrence evil has not distorted and which can serve here as The basis for a legal conclusion is therefore tempered and limited by women's rights, and it is this right of the woman, the right to put her child in possession of incomparable value, despite the resistance of father, whom the Church recognizes and respects. But he does not

There may be, in this case, the right of the Father wounded by the Church.
There is no right against the right. There, where the right of Yes, it belongs to the mother, according to the most plausible explanation.
the most consistent jurisprudence of the most equitable of judges, there is no, there cannot be a right to no one who can prevail. The Father's right finds its limit in another right. It's the story of all the human rights.

Let us now turn to the child endowed with reason.

Hebræus septennio major si Catholicam religionem
amplecti se velle ostendat et de hoc denuncietur, avocari et interrogari debet de causa qua motus est...
Judex Catholicus, which Rome is... ejus voluntatem...

explorabit, ut Hebræ&i consilio clare perspecto, eum
luto, jubeat, aut ad Ghettum remitti aut catechumenis recenseri.

Hebræus puer, si baptismum petiisse denuncietur, sed rationis usum non habere reperiatur, parentibus is returned. Si autem ratione præditus inveniatur and baptismum petat, sive completo sive non com-pleto septennio, baptizandus erit etiam invitis paren-Tibus. | |
“The Jewish child, aged seven, if he declares himself to be a Jew—
"I want to embrace the Catholic religion and inform you of it"
"who, by right, must be summoned and questioned about the
"Because of his approach. We must instruct him from the "Christian faith with great diligence, so that one
"know by what spirit he is led to desire his en-
"entry into the Church... The judge of matters of faith,
"whoever is in Rome must examine the will"
"that the child expresses, and, this will well and due-
"The judge must, in all safety, be fully appreciated
"or have him returned to the Ghetto, or put him on the roll
"of the Catechumens."

in 197 =

"If a Jewish child requests baptism and
"that he is not found to be sufficiently gifted with ra-
"His son, we'll have to give him back to his parents. But if we
"He observes the sufficient use of reason, he must-
"will be baptized despite his parents, whether he has reached or
"No, not the age of seven."

(Same Constitution passim.)

This time, doesn't the Church have more than its right?
did not behave, having set foot in the domain of faa thousand, and paternal power, hitherto intact, continues-
Will it remain intact?

Yes, we reply, paternal power remains whole and under cover; its border has not been violated; it remains in full and due possession of what belongs to him.

We were saying earlier that there was no Right against right. The elementary axiom returns here.
with all its strength. If the child's right is to do and to receive all that the preceding provisions allow him to do and receive how the exercise
Would this right constitute a violation of the Father's right?

But that is precisely the child's right.

That's his right from a Christian point of view. — That's his right from a natural point of view.

I'll start with the Christian perspective, because that it is within the Christian community that we take the Jew. This refers to a Jew, living in a Christian country, who became host of the Christian Society. That's what's needed always be careful not to forget in a study of the Jewish law, as dictated by the Church. It leaves the Great Turk, or the son of Heaven, or the Mikado to settle the af- to do with their Jews. It only legislates for the his.

It was at the age of seven, that is to say, at the advent of his reason, of which the seventh year marks, the most or- Dinner-wise, the date that the child begins to be, sui juris. To be sui juris (1) means to enter into possession of session of rights. Because the very notion of law is, to belong to no one but oneself, in the material world and the sphere in which the law is exercised.

And what do these initial rights cover? Because obviously- He didn't have them all from the start. Others came- will subsequently increase and supplement this initial domain.

These rights pertain to himself.

The word, sui juris, is untranslatable into our language. which we could not render with the same conciseness, The range and the energy, means, first and foremost, to have rights over oneself, over one's person. But over what? part of oneself, first of all, carries the right of the one who Does it become sui juris? On the part, where has this just erupted light, the effect of which was to make him master of himself, responsible for him, the one whose, at the moment of para- before, another was master, and another answered: on his soul.

But the first right one can have over one's

(1) Theology and law were divided into seven-year stages, the successive advent of man to the different categories of rights. At seven years old, the advent of individual rights, and, in particularlinked, to what is its essence and becomes the reason for all the , others: the right of the soul or of conscience.

At fourteen, the advent of domestic rights, by the the right to marriage which is likewise, in this sphere, the basis and the reason for all rights. At twenty-one, the advent to civil rights, because it is around this age that the reason for The man reaches the desired maturity, and his mind, culture sufficient to deliberate on matters of general interest and to to obtain one's share in the government of the city.

This is not the place to assess these basic legal data. canonical and civil law of the Middle Ages, relating to the person. One can However, it must be said that, like everything in this world, it is debatable. their wisdom has by no means been sufficiently refuted by the fumblingaspects of modern law on the same subject. Up to certain titles clearly established against them, possession remains theirs, otherwise in the realm of facts, where everything has been turned upside down, at least in the reason for the facts which survives the disappearance of the facts.

soul, it is to lead it to its end, and, this, by the paths that lead to this end, and that, guided by the initial light, we recognize ourselves leading to this end.

But the right to lead the soul to its end is the right religious. It is only through religion that one canleads the soul to its end, since the end of the soul is God. Helier, with all his might, gave his soul to God; in this world, through the acts that produce and establish, as far as possible in time, this link for the time; in the other, by the eternal bond of the immutable Union: that's the whole religion.

So, when the child presents himself at the Catholic Churchlic, that is to say, to the sovereign director, moderatrice, dispenser of religious matters of the highest order ancient, the most imposing, the most luminous and the most resplendent religion in the world, the Church gives rights to the child, taking into account their demarcation firstly, and, after due and mature observation, that The one who makes it knows its meaning and scope, in following up on this approach. It is only possible that she Then let him pass directly to the Father. In this species there is no has more rights with the Father: this right was only provisor; the child's right was awaiting its moment: it took his place and succeeded him.

We must not forget that the Church, which opens its The right speaks the Catholic Creed, but sees no truth religious outside of this Creed (1). She is not only the world's first religion, by the mathe significance of the situation she has achieved there: the first, again, by a preeminence over all another, which would simply exclude equality; it is the first, as what is true is first, eminentment, infinitely, first. Compared to what is false.

---

(1) The official text of the teaching of canon law opens by the symbol.
(Decretals. Page 1.)

What is called religion, compared to her, is an imposture; she religion alone is in the true sense of the word.

This is what the Church thinks of itself, what it cannot help but think (1). How, then, to the human soul, whatever it may be, the soul of a child as an adult soul, exercising its religious right, the Church, so sure of itself that it could not self-doubt, a religion that is aware of being the only one If it were true, would she refuse to open her arms?

Such is the right of both the Church and the child, by virtue of The Revelation.

But nature alone carried it within itself, and the promulgated in every intelligence, by the elecommentary on notions of justice that she deposits there, and which There, as Saint Paul says, are the law of him who has no No law. The right, the duty to go to God, through the paths that intellectual light shows to man is not a right that grace bestows upon him, a duty that grace imposes upon him. Grace offers ways better; better light, to discover, an extra boost of strength, to follow the paths: she conwill lead man to that ineffable intimacy with God, which is the crowning and the culmination of all her gifts and which nature cannot attain; but she will create neither the right nor the duty of man to go to God; this right and this duty existed before her.

So, the Rationalist (I'm talking about the one who justifies (his name and who truly listens to reason) cannot, in this species, to misunderstand more than the Christian, the children's rights.

(1) Catholicism is essentially intolerant.
(CoxzaLvi. — Memoirs.)

No more than this idealistic rationalist, less than him again, so to speak, the concrete Rationalist and real, which we have at hand, and which would seem often only calls himself a Rationalist because he is breaking with reason, could not, without to deny, without contradicting oneself a hundred times, to give precedence by paternal power, which no one, more than he, must assess, must not proclaim and defend, to or-trance, against any power that would confiscate-what about the child's rights? What will become of it if the father prevails against the child, this free thought of which no-Is this man so idolatrous? Who should, more than to be indignant, yes, a thought completes what one can call, in all the truth and scope of the A word, a man's thought, is made a slave, is put to the irons, by the enterprises of a power that the pre-The first act of presence of this thought, finds itself armed against her and who seems to have waited for her first An appearance only to enslave him?

— But one case remains, where paternal power the Jew seems to have been completely misunderstood and misprized, where its rights seem, to the enemies of the Church, odiously trampled underfoot by the Church: that expressed by the following text of the Constitution of times cited from Benedict XIV.

Hebrwæi infantes, si valid baptizati fuerint, ingitis parentibus, eis restituendi non sunt.

"The Jewish child who has been validly baptized,
"against the wishes of his parents, he will not be "rendered."

We have already encountered this on our journey. that very delicate point of the question.

The general attitude of the Church towards the Jew, the

the eminently human nature of his power, in his relations with this people, briefly recalled and described in broad strokes by us were like a signal, almost an invitation extended to the opponent.

II

There are objections that are in the books and that Only scholars derive anything from it.

There are others who shout at the top of their lungs in the crossroads and whose world is deafened. From this last-Denying the genre is Mortara's objection. Postponing the re-The answer, in such an encounter, would have been to take the mine of a vanquished man. There could be no better way to to lose his case. So we responded, session tenant. '

Some observations, however, will not come point in overload and will be, perhaps, for whatmore, more prejudiced or more demanding minds, the apppoint that was lacking in the complete intelligence of the Truth. Let's not bargain with them for this help.

"You take me," said the Jewish father, "the child who is at Me. You don't have to say, like before, that he came to you, by an act free of his own will his; there is not yet, in him, a suspicion of reason; He has just been born.

— No, replies the Church, this child no longer belongs to | you, or at least, it belongs to me more than to you; and, if there is a conflict, in practice, between my rights and those you consider your own: my rights, susuperior to yours and of a higher order, prevailwill be on yours, inferior and of a lesser order high. The question is, in a way, mathematicalthat, before being legal.

Baptism, validly conferred, made this child mine; it is a truth of my symbol, and my sym-.boleestindivisible. — If I abandon such a truth, I lose all the others at the same time, and I don't have All that's left is to disappear from the world where I'm no longer useful.

nothing; for I have no other reason for being there than my symbol. My symbol made me who I am. The
The day I lose it, everything slips away from me; my mission is finished; I cease to be the Church.

— But I had a right earlier, and I didn't exercise it.
no longer. I don't know if I've given it up. I was told
So, stripped of your possessions, and you are clearly the victim of the plunder.
since you are exercising this right on my behalf.

— I have deprived you of so little, replies the Church, that I did everything in my power to prevent it Don't deprive yourself. It's despite all my efforts.
to maintain your possession, that you
You find yourself dispossessed. But you are, in fact, dispossessed; duly and properly dispossessed, and, if you persist in to portray oneself as a victim, not of fortune, but of injustice tice, I'll ask you what you would say about
The following reasoning:

I owned a house; I had one hundred thousand francs, at such and such a bank. A fire burned down my house. A A crook robbed the bank and took my hundred thousand francs. It is you, the public authorities, who have taken me all my possessions.
. — But you're exaggerating, replies the power-public. I did everything in my power, so that no one Don't burn your house and so that we don't carry it away.
your one hundred thousand francs. If I hadn't been there, there's a good while you mourn your hundred thousand francs and that you had lost, in addition to the property which Everything else that remains escapes you. If I Had it not been for that, the fire that burned down your house would have Furthermore, you burned your harvests, whose abundant yield will help you rebuild your house.

— But you should have prevented the harm of this arsonist and thief.

— A thousand times obliged, sir, for the high idea that

You have my power. Unfortunately, reality remains far below what you have dreamed for me. I have not yet found the secret of ob-to address all the defects of secondary causes.

God himself doesn't do that. Would you have the thought to find it below his job description, or the requirement to ask me what you don't ask God?

This is the Church's response to the child's father.
Baptized Jew.

"I can certainly give orders," said the Church,
and I have not failed; but I do not hold in hand
all wills. I can punish the offender;
I have even, in advance, established punishments to chastise the infraction. But the punishment I will inflict on the transgressor, will do no more than your child bap-
If the perpetrator is not a Christian, let the punishment for incense-
The diary will not rebuild your destroyed house.

So, you are not being robbed by me. There is no
The word "spoliation" should not be uttered here. In rece-
You have accepted the hospitality shown to me on my lands, that every time there is a conflict between your
My right and mine, it would be mine that would prevail.
It's clear that you couldn't think about living at Me, under different circumstances. So you had divested, in advance, by a tacit contract, of what You're escaping right now. So, I'm not defrauding you.
You're welcome. You knew and you consented. We don't do No insult to those who know and consent. Not scientific and voluntary.

fit injuria.

'$ Hl. — The Christian wet nurse
of the Jewish child.

An integral part of the Jewish family, of which PÉ-
The church had to study the condition and regulate the law, was the male and female servant; he or she whom the Jew employed, in a stable manner, in the work of his house and who lived under its roof.

The Church did not want the Christian to be the servant-author of the Jew.

She wanted even less for the Christian woman to be her maid.

The woman, being weaker, more easily suffers all ambient influence. The Church was well aware of this and the apprehension this weakness caused him, the con- deplorable sequences that it might have had were, For many, the main reason for this special prohibition.

These major alarms of the Church, regarding - the woman committed to the service of the Jew, were born, above- everything, of a particular kind of service which carries, further than any other, with the intimacy of relationships, the perils of domestic service, the service of the wet nurse. It even seems that, here, the word service is no longer sufficient. It's a kind of association with the office and the functions. tions of motherhood, which mixes the associated with things the most veiled, the most mysterious and the most sa- family creations.

The Church therefore paid more special attention on the wet nurse of the Jewish household and did, from what the concerns, a particular point of its pro- legislation hibitive. |

“Let no Christian woman,” said Saint Charles Bor- "Romeo, in his first council of Milan, could not "to fulfill the duties of a nanny in the house" of a Jew; that she cannot even, outside of her own home "His, if not when an urgent need arises, of which the Ordinary" "will be judged, will request it."

Ne Christiane mulieres, Judæorum nutriees, in eorum domibus, esse ullo pacto possint; neve, extra eorum domos, nisi cum necessitas, Ordinario probanda, postularit.

(Ex primo Concilio Mediolanensi
(sub sancto Garolo Borromeo.)

We like to borrow this provision of the law to a council of Saint Charles, because of the authority which is attached to the name of the great archbishop of Milan. The disciplinary regulations concerning Jews hold a considerable place in the acts of this Council, and highlights the importance that Saint Charles attached to the question. The edict of Saint Charles does not, moreover- theirs, that reproduce what had already been decided, in various Constitutions, Innocent IV, Clement IV and Paul IV (1). — Pius V, Innocent XIII, Benedict XIII they were expected to return to it and amplify it through regulations.

new, supporting new sanctions, the statutes of their predecessors.

What one sees, from the outset, through the prohi- papal pronouncements and the apparent severity they revealed tent, it is the respect for the Christian character.

The body of the Christian, faith teaches us, is the Temple of the Holy Spirit. "Do you not know," he wrote “Saint Paul, that your members are the temple of "Holy Spirit?"

An nescitis quia membra vestra templum sunt Spiritus sancti? |

(1. Cor. — Chap. VI. — Verse 19)

The same faith tells us that the body which has not been Washed clean by baptism, the dwelling place of the demon remains.

(1) Innocent IV. — Const. — Impia Judæorum.
Clement IV. — Const. — Cum above.
Paul IV. — Const. — Cum nimis absurdum.
Pius V. — Const. —Romanus Pontifex.
Innocent XIII. — Const. — Ex Injuncto.
Benedict XIII. — Const. — Alias emanarunt.

(See ad calem these different constitutions.)

—To join in the terms of intimacy that include the functions of a wet nurse, the body of a Christian woman with the body of a Jewish child or any child who- The Church seemed to be approaching the attack which would put the Holy Spirit in commerce with the devil. There was something there that reminded me of what the Church had to defend, even more severely, as adding the evil of sacrilege to the evil of fornication or adultery, the carnal commerce of Jew to Christian or from Jew to Christian (1).

In addition, there was the greater danger to avert. for her as for any other, of religious perversion- gious, abandoning the Christian faith, and, finally- ment, during his conversion to Judaism. The Christian wet nurse It was particularly exposed there. The function of the wet nurse, by placing the one who fills it closer of all things secret and reserved, the put inevitably in contact with religious rites Ticks. All contagion comes from contact. It will be no longer anything to fear for the one who is more than in contact, which is, so to speak, mixed with the elements contaminated items...

And then, such a religious rite will compel her modesty to... care, which loses its delicacy, for a mother,

(1) But what made the desecration even worse was adding-The most horrible of outrages was the obligation that the Jew claimed to make the Christian wet nurse throw her milk into the latrines, the days she had received communion. It was necessary that the The fact was well established and undeniably publicized so that the Church made it a special point of its prohibitive law and registered it in its codes, with the hardship it entailed. On the list of crimes that Jews are reputed to commit and that are subjected to Among the most enormous, according to the justice of the Inquisition, is this one: "If they force Christian wet nurses who have received communion to "spreading their milk in the latrines, etc."

(Gregory XIII. — Const. — Antiqua Judæorum, year 1553.)
(Clement VIII. — Const. — Cum Hebræorum malitia, an 1593.)

(See the text of both constitutions in the supporting documents.)

but who retain all their repugnance for a foreigner, especially when the foreigner is Christian; for example, the religious rite which was fulfilled in the child on the eighth day of his birth.

Always kept close to the teacher and the head teacher from the house, she will also have much more frequent-ment, the opportunity to hear their blasphemies, con-to the Blessed Sacrament, against the cross, against all holy things and all religious symbols Christians. She will have much more at hand, the li-Talmudic, blasphemous and destructive verses devoid of all sound morality, cynical and infamous, to more than one of their pages. These are as many details on which the legislature is careful not to remain silent lateur. |

The inquisitor will have rights over them and must proceed against them: | |

"If they possess Talmudic or au-
"Three Jewish books condemned."

“– If they mock the Blessed Sacrament, the "crosses or other religious objects."

(Greg. XIII. – Clem. VIII. same constitutions) |

So many daily dangers, created at the wet nurse's bedside.
Christian.

But what had attracted the attention more than anything else was particular attention of the Church on the Christian wet nurse the Jewish child's, it was the frequent provenance and, if one may use such a style, in pa-strange material, the strange making and exploitation of the tation of this wet nurse. |

"The Jews have pretty peasant women as servants-"
"them, whom they impregnate, to serve as nurses"
"rices to their children, and make those whose

"young peasant women give birth, at the box of the en-

"Foundlings."

(Official report on the Jews of Bordeaux)
in 1733, cited by Drumont. – France Jewish, Volume I. Page 229) (1).

It is primarily to prevent these infamies that the in-prohibition, in the Jewish home, of the Christian wet nurse,
It had to become stricter. It exceeded, in rigor, those who only looked at the computer servants naires. The Jew's first violation of this the prohibitive part of the law was reserved for the Inquisition, which did not happen, for those concerning the simple servant or the simple servantess.

We have already mentioned the inquisitorial case monstrous, the wet nurse forced to milk and throw her milk in the latrines, on the day of a communion.
But this enormity was not required for the In-
The search had to proceed. The mere fact of using a A Christian wet nurse was enough. Of her own accord, and without prior declaration, the case was transferred from the jurisdiction of ordinary courts to that of the tribunal of the Inquisition.

And, if we may be permitted, given the opportunity, to observe, at a slightly slower pace, the interior of

(1) Five centuries before the magistrates of Bordeaux, Innocent IV wrote to Saint Louis: “Faciunt Christianas filiorum suorum “nutrices in contumeliam fidei Christianæ cum quibus turpia
"multa committunt."

(Ex. Const. Innocent IV. — Impia Judæorum, cited throughout (entirely in the supporting documents. Page 309.)

At the end of the same century, Honorius IV wrote to the archbishop of York: “Admittunt autem in suis domibus Christianas, ad ipsorum infantes et pueros educandos et tam iidem Christiani quam Christian: Judais cohabitant eisque convivunt; sicque, dum opportunitas suggests, et pravis actibus tempus favet, Judaeorum mulieribus Christiani, and Judii Christianorum fo minis, infausto commerce, commiscentur.

(Honorius IV. Const. Nimis in partibus 1287, tota ad Calcem.)

BN 170 —

the family, constituted by marriage according to Jewish law. We even ask, because of the proximity and from the analogy, to add a word about the family stemming of the marriage of natural law. We will then be able to to judge the magnitude of the benefit that it brings to humanity nity the Gospel, in the institution, or, to better to say, in the restoration following the initial plan, in the reminder of her dignity of marriage Christian.

Perhaps the most significant aspect of this benefit, that's the precise line, erased by the anti-- debauchery that, restored by Christian chastity, between the mamarriage and fornication.

This magnificent intransigence of the new law, recalling marriage to its original sanctity is thus formulated by Saint Paul.

"A woman has no power over her body,"
"But man; and man has no power over
"her body, but the woman. Mulier sui corporis potestatem non habet, sed vir. Simulate autem and eir “sui corporis potestatem non habet, sed mulier. »

| (Cor. – Chap. VII. V. 4)

In the marriage of Jewish law, in the marriage of natural law, the glorious formula is not found Not, at least not with the sharpness and precise lines. which seem indispensable for its perfect application. Divorce and polygamy, then possible, destroyed- The sense of rigor makes the beneficial aspects precarious. results. _

Let's say the husband still has full power over the body of his wife or wives; but the women, or women in general, do not have the same power over the husband's body – the wife, if he is content with the divorce, that is to say, successive polygamy; for, How does a woman have complete power over her body?

of a man who can send her back, today, and in take another one tomorrow; – the women, in the posimultaneous lygamy; for, if the husband has power over the of all his women's bodies, it is clear that each one does not can have the same power over him. It will be necessary that this Power should be shared. Women will not even The consolation of equality in this sharing. Because the idea of a sum of acts, distributed, in equal amounts, between Several women, it doesn't even cross my mind. because it is absurd.

It is impossible, therefore, not to see how much, under such a system, the distance separating the marriage of fornication, is reduced; how much the passage of one to the other will be easy, or, to put it better, the fronta third, poorly defined area, blurring between one and the other, how much the notion of the difference between one and the other will disappear at the same time.

Nothing about passion is easy, nothing is quick to... to speak of the heart, like illusion, which persuades the impospatient of enjoyment, that the free woman that he coveted, can be considered, by him, as a wife, whom he will only use once or several times, and from which he will subsequently choose to abstain, either by breaking with her, which seems absolutely- a divorce, either by no longer using her, the wife of the polygamist having no rights over her husband's body, or, such an imperfect right, and so poorly defined, that it is equivalent to the nullity of the right.

Fornication could thus always be disguised, and, the relationship between a married man and a foreigner Free-ranging, more immoral than simple fornication similarly disguised his disorder; he took, the subtle casuistry of passion helping, color of a legitimate act, before one's conscience. When the fiction is so easy and takes place so readily in the Legal theory, we'll soon stop worrying about it. In practice, we quickly get rid of this subtlety and the use of the free, highly willing woman, For his part, to the accommodations of this morality, as if it were something one has on hand, something one doesn't- a robe belonging to no one, and which one acquires, as well as a field without an owner, due to occupation.

This explains how the notion of the im- the morality of fornication, that it was an accepted practice of a free person, or forced use of a slave, had almost disappeared from the ancient world (1). Without In doubt, it had persisted more among the Jews, thanks to the Mosaic law and the continuous renewal-

---

(1) What seemed above all to be of an unassailable correctness, this which did not cast the slightest shadow on the best republic the practice of virtue, was the custom of the exposed woman, otherwise, of the courtesan. "What if someone wanted to deny the young men "The love of courtesans," wrote Cicero, "I could only..." "To find it extremely severe. It's not just a matter of license." "of our century that he would constitute himself censor, but rather of the "customs of the ancestors and things that have always been "Permitted."

Verum si quis est qui etiam meretricis amoribus interdictum juventuti putet; is she, quidem, valde severus, negare no possum; sed abhorret non modo ab hujus sæculi licentia verum etiam a majorum consuetudine atque concessis.

(Pro Ceelio. No. 40.)

Cicero had just said, in the same speech: "In the opinion of "Everyone, we grant our amorous pursuits at this age of life. Nature itself- "Even the adolescent's desires are pushed outwards... That one "Grant what is needed at this age; let adolescence have its freedom; "That we don't deny pleasure everything."

| (Pro Coelio. No. 12. No. 18.)

Horace, who had more than twenty mistresses, said no less that the care given to his education by his father had preserved modestly and purely, not only from any wrongdoing,
but beyond reproach:

—— ee IIO. purus and insons

ut me collaudem, si vivo....

badges Ua EE ptu aote Pudicum,
Qui primus virtutis honos, servavit ab omni
Non solum facto, verum opprobrio quoque turpi.
(Satires. Book 1. Satire vi. V. 69. — 83.

"vi

shaping public opinion through the preaching of prophets. But the access to sophistry, which presents it-was considered a negligible or slight prevarication, de-always died easily, in the carnal heart of the Jew (1).
With God's messenger gone, we found ourselves in pre-the presence of an advisor who never disappeared, and whose incessant suggestions were quickly proven right fleeting exhortations from the unfortunate moralist. If one did not profess, quite, morality Paganism regarding the matter; they had few scruples.
to embrace its conclusions and comply with them,
in practical terms, to all its errors.

And when I say pagan morality, I don't mean Paganism in its darkest days. The heroes Homer's works belong, historically, to the best their times of natural law. Among the heroes of Ho-Mother, the wisest and most virtuous is Ulysses.

It is true that Horace himself wrote elsewhere:

Me pinguem et nitidum bene curata cute vises,

Cum ridere voles, Epicuri de grege porcum.

(Epistles. Book 1. 1v.)

How can these two texts be reconciled? It's obviously difficult.
But that was the least of Horace's concerns. Libertine as he was,
Horace was more skeptical than libertine.

The earliest of Horace's biographers has given us, on his customs, details such as can only be quoted in Latin:

“Ad res venereas intemperantior traditur. Nam speculato “cubiculo scorta dicitur habuisse disposita, et, quocumque « repexisset, ibi ei imago coitus referretur.

(Vita e vetusto quodam exemplari descripta.)

(1) The First Council of Jerusalem expressed itself thus on the fornication:

Visum est Spiritui Sancto et nobis nihil ultra vobis imponere oneris quam hæc necessaria.

Ut abstineatis your ab immolatis simulachrorum and blood and suffocate and fornicalione, a quibus custodientes vos, bene agetis.
The need to abstain from fornication, because of its immo- intrinsic reality, was therefore not universally recognized, since the canon of the council instills it and he feels obliged to restore, on this point, sound moral principles: hæc necessaria.

(Acts of the Apostles. — C. XV. V. 28 and 29)

Everyone knows that, in this virtue, nothing has was more praised, more celebrated, than fidelity to Penelope, whose brilliant and immortal Calypso cannot to detach the heart of the proud conqueror of Troy. Now, according to Homer's testimony, which is inexhaustible in the...
Praising this virtuous man, Ulysses shares the bed of the goddess throughout the duration of her captivity on the island (1). And when, later, he defeated all the artifices and all the prestige of Circe, that's Mer-:
Eure himself, sent by Jupiter, who commands him to Don't hesitate to take the rest of the last night in the sorceress's bed (2).

Telemachus, who puts to death the maids of the
His father's palace, he doesn't do it, because of the dissolute nature of it.
of their trade with the suitors, but, for the unjust act of having delivered to others what should not be done would belong only to the master. No doubt that Ulysses would not have considered the use of his services as entirely legitimate boasts and that he would not have considered himself, in that respect, any more unfaithful to Penelope, that when he granted her indulgence from a long series of nights to the passion of Calypso.

Although higher than that of the pagan household, even at the best dates of Paganism, the mo- level
The ral of the Jewish home was always, in many ways, numerous families of this people, far from offering sufficient guarantees for the modesty of a young girl.

And, if this were the case with the Jew of the Mosaic Law,
What about the Jew of the Talmud? Who would prevent this-to make, of such a healthy and strong young girl, who lives in his service and under his roof, a kind of wife

(1) * EX06vveq & dom TOYE puYS omztouc yrapupoto, Tepréobnv PtAÓTNTt, nao! &)XfX0tot gívovtes.
| (Odyssey. Ch. v. X. 226. 7.)
(2) 'H dE ©” bnoddetouoa xe)voetat eovnüTvat*
"Ev6a ob unxév ÉnettT' anavyioacbat Beod evvijy...

(Odyssey. Ch. x. V. 296-297.)

secondary and temporary purpose of feeding the en-Fans of the main wife? Hasn't he prepared everything?
for its justification, the distortion of the example
Patriarchs? And, as for eliminating them from the family, Abraham, the child of this unfortunate woman, did he not
Was Ishmael driven out? It is true that the patriarch sent him away
The mother with the child. But what prevents him from to keep the mother if it suits him, provided that the child's sustenance is ensured. Charity can-Isn't the Christian church there, and, could it be-
What better opportunity to take advantage of it?

Moreover, the son of a servant or a cap-
Live was born a slave according to ancient law (1).
As such, it could be sold, whole or mutilated.
depending on the variations of business opportunities.
The fate of the one whom our Jew has placed around the Wouldn't Christian hospices be preferable?
His mother, who remains at home, believes in his worth:
besides the fact that he has just provided excellent care to one or more of his children, he made, of the one whose
He took on honor, a kind of inseparable element.
of her domesticity. Where else can this evil-Happy, raped, and made a mother by a Jew? What Will she find a welcoming place in Christian society? Who will take her as a partner?

And then, the dangers of apostasy will increase in every way.
the difficulties created by her dishonor. Reduced to always living with these enemies of his faith, of com-many troubles, hassles, vexations, per-sections perhaps, will she not be freed, if she embraces the worship of his masters. Instead of evil Treatments, that's all the favors that await him.

Elms seed juvenemque superbum
Servilio enixæ tulimus....

(VIRGIL. — Aeneid. Chap. III.)

For this Jew is a descendant of those zealots who, at to say of Jesus, they were going around the earth and the seas to gain a proselyte (1). The defection of this Christian will be welcomed as a triumph and her seducers will not know how to bear witness to it.
to give their consent. Who knows? Perhaps even a husband will the synagogue take it upon itself to make him or-
To forget, amidst opulence, the anguish of his humiliations past.

The Church could therefore not, within the prohibitions
which she surrounded and restricted domestic law
Jews, do not make a separate place for the wet nurse.

'She was the resident nanny she had the most to preserve. His concern, however, was careful not to forget-forget the outside wet nurse. The dangers of this last-
The lower levels were less. But the high levels still remained.
the impropriety we have been discussing, the desecration,
the kind of sacrilege that no Christian could
to fail to see in this communion of blood;
such a profanation, from the perspective of faith, that there was no
that an extreme necessity, a matter of life and death death for a neglected human being, who could take him away-towards this character (2).

We still need to talk about the law that governed the home
Jewish the condition of male and female servants naires.

---

(1) Væ vobis, scribe and pharisaei hypocrite, who circuitis mare et aridam, ut faciatis unum proselytum.

(Saint Matthew. Ch. xx111. V. 15.)

(2) This consideration is one of the sources of the obligation which It is the responsibility of Christian parents to have their child baptized as soon as poss their children. One is not excused from sin by a necessity that Yon does it himself, differently, out of a necessity that is not necessary. And this applies equally to the mother as to the nanny. For both of them, it's a matter of urgency.
to have to feed a Christian rather than a slave of the devil.

$ IV. — The servants of the Jewish family.

In this question, very similar to the previous one
- and that only a single nuance separates them, nothing less than—explained that Christian law. He continues to proceed with extreme simplicity. It is absolutely opposed to the idea that a Christian should serve a Jew.

Deducting a certain degree of severity in
The Church believes, as before, that the reasons for this are... high impropriety, this social inferiority, accepted by the Christian near the Jew. There is, in his eyes, a
The disorder was such that she couldn't even bear the thought of it.
The Jew, even a decent and normal one, the Jew faithful to his mission, the Jew who follows, in ancient times, the tra—
These are the descendants of Abraham, Moses, and David; this Jew is servant in relation to the Christian. It is from this Jew that Saint Paul, giving its prophetic meaning to history
The story of Sarah and Hagar, said: “The son of the servant
"will not speak of the inheritance of the son of the woman li—“bre (1).” Who would have gotten used to the idea of seeing this Ishmael, son of a servant and a servant himself, who had nothing to receive a share of the inheritance, to be served by Isaac?

But the Jew whom the Church had before her was found—was far from being the Jew St. Paul spoke of. He was the ancient servant of the Gospel and the law of grace, rebelling against the Gospel and against the law of grace.
He was the blasphemous Jew. He was the deicide Jew.
Could one even consider letting a Christian accept or to be dominated, in some form or another of such a Jew (2)?

(1) Non hæres crit filius ancilla cum filio liberæ.
(Saint Paul. — Epistle to the Galatians. Chapter 4. V. 30.)
(2) Let us enclose all these texts and all the authority of the popes in

Therefore, the Christian will not be a servant in the – house of this Jew.

“Ne Judæis Christiani in famulatu esse possint. »

“That Christians cannot constitute themselves ser-
"Wild Jews," said St. Charles in his first:

Council of Milan.
Here, as before, St-Charles is only the echo of all the anononic law of the Middle Ages.

Zion grants the Christian the opportunity to serve,
by the hour, or, more difficultly, by the day, at The Jew is forbidden to eat with the Jew, in order to that it remains proven that this work, carried out for the Jew, does not constitute the Christian his servant, nor-does not even raise any question about the superiority of his social status vis-

with regard to the Jew.
“Ne Christiani, si in diem vel horam, Judæis ope-

“ras suas locaverint, apud illos cibum capiant.”
(St-Charles 1st Conc. of Milan).

If it concerns the preparations for their Sabbath and their During holidays, the Church forbids Christians to pay, even just one moment, the smallest service to the family Jewish (1).

a word from the man who was the greatest canonist of the Middle Ages Age and at the same time one of the greatest popes in history:
"The death of Christ," wrote Innocent III, "made Christians
"free and slave Jews: the Jews must therefore not
"To rise up against Christians."
| (Letters. Virr. Book. P. 121.)

The Christian emperors had preceded the Church and laid the groundwork for his right: “Nefas æstimamus religiosissimos famulos impiissi-

“morum emptorum inquinari dominio. »
(Ex Theodosian Code.)

It is true that this was a matter of servitude and not of service. But Valentinian goes further and seems to forbid even the simple mercenary service: Judais, Christian: legis nolumus serve personas, ne, occasione dominii, sectam venerande religionis immutent.
(Appendix ad codicem Theodosianum.)

(1) La sanctita di nostro signore (Clement XI)... ordina e com-
Manda a tutti Ebrai li quali dimorano in Roma, di non farsi

RE t. "ERBEN

But in this latter case, it is rather a matter of law religious, which we will discuss in due course.

In the same spirit, and for the same reasons-
In its views, the Church opposes any mark of honor, to any honorific appellation from Christian to Jew.

That the Church does not overstep its bounds in this is proven by... made possible by the care that the Church will, moreover, take of to protect Jews from all insult.

"That they cannot allow," said Benedict XIII, (Constitution Alias emanarunt March 22, 1729) that the "Poor Christians call them, Lord" – Nec se a pauperibus Christianis, Dominos, vocari perinittere possint (1).

The Dominus of that time would translate today, quite 'Exactly, sir. From which we must conclude that This point of law, applicable to times and places for which it was enacted, would be difficult to put in
It is practical in our contemporary society.
having become public in spirit, in France, that none of those who move freely within French territory, not to be below the name of Sir. And then,
What would we put in its place?

Would we call him a citizen? But that would be a step too far.
thus equally of the meaning of the Church and the spirit of his right, the Jew not being and not being able to be, for
She, a citizen of Christian society.

Served by Christians, particularly of their fans or fans,
This is the last day of the holiday to light it up
The light, for the food supply, is not Christian.
possano andare a servirli.

(Cardinal Gasparo, April 2, 1708.)

Clement IX is merely recalling and renewing the ordinations here. of his predecessors, whose constitutions he cites.

(1) Benedict XIII likewise only renewed the ordinances finances of his predecessors, among others, that of Paul IV conceived in almost identical terms:

“Ne se a pauperibus christianis, Dominos, vocari patiantur. »

(Constitu. Nimis absurdum. July 1555.)

Will we simply call him by his name? But we may be unaware of this name. And, besides, this style is not employed only in intimate matters, which is not the eas; or, from master to servant, which is even less so; for example, if a baptized beggar meets the Circumcised Rothschild.

But it must be acknowledged that there is, between this temperowing, the fruit of new customs, and the tributes that our Christian gentlemen will carry to feet of the great financier, a gap whose observation and the findings are not exactly to the advantage of the latter. This is not the place to give them their trial. Well, it's already been done and done. Done. The indictment of Jewish France leaves little room for doubt. something to say to the newcomers. But it is always permitted in the face of this spectacle of great Christians who sent, to express his astonishment and sadness Christian.

Among these characters, we encounter old Franks, which they claim date from the baptistery of Clovis. A peculiar way of treating the sons of those which aroused such anger in the novice Royal of Saint Remi. He, who could not find the fathers deicides good only for the frame of the Franks, that what would he say if he saw the sons of the Franks, kneeling beforebefore the sons of the Deicides? |. |

But, did they only go back to Godefroy de Bouillong and in Saint Louis, which makes it easier for them agree, who can absolve the servility of the sons of these Crusaders, who liberated the tomb of Jesus-Christ, towards the sons of those who have con-

led, through the condemnation of Pilate, to the hor-
the pains of the path and the tortures of the Cross? |

In the same vein, the Church forbids

Christian "to use it with the Jew, on the footing of the familiarity.
Nec familiaritatem habere (Benedict XII.
— same Constitution)

And, because eating together puts you on the slippery slope
The Church forbids Christians from familiarity "of "Eat with the Jew."

Nec comedere (Benedict XIII. — same Const.)

Even more so, "playing with him," the familiarity generating there more easily and quickly:

Nec ludere (Idem. — cod.)
For the same reason, and for other more serious ones
"To dance with them."

E Ne Christiani cum Judæis choreas agent (1). — (Saint Charles. Council (from Milan)

"For this reason, let them abstain from revelry."
their wedding” where they would find at once all the things previously forbidden; the meal, the game, the dance.

Ne Christiani ad nuptias Judaeorum accedant (Id. — cod.)

These are the main provisions of cano, regulating the relationship between Christian and Jew, in the domestic life. Let's move on to civilian life.

---

(1) And yet Saint Charles was not a contemporary of the balls from the Faubourg Saint-Germain. What would he have thought of these comrades?

of these embraces, of these choreographic embraces of Jew to Christian Link and from Christian to Jewish?

CHAPTER VII

Legislation affecting more specific areas civil life

$1. — Residence. — Traffic. — The expulsion.

One of the fundamental points of civil liberty, And, perhaps most importantly of all, is freedom of residence or domicile.

We have seen that Church legislation regulates— was naming the Jew's residence, and was imposing conditions on it. constraints and what were the reasons for this constraint. It seemed to us that, in these disprohibitive positions, it was less about civil liberty that individual freedom, which was targeted by the lawlegislator (1). But, it still remained that, more

(1) Freedom of residence is listed under the heading of freedoms civil rights, in the law of most modern peoples. Our division of freedoms into: individual freedoms, domestic freedoms or less hampered and constrained by the discipline of his In the ghetto, the Jew enjoyed the right to reside.

But the Jew did not have this enjoyment everywhere. Many cities did not grant it to him, even with the restrictive right of the Ghetto. The temporary states the Church's records were, without comparison, those where In this respect, the Jews received the ` more favorable.

The Popes, however, refrained from opening them the gates of all their cities. Those where the Jews were able to have Ghettos, were distinguished from the others very and nominally designated. The number was relatively limited. This was largely due to the infinite respect that the Popes always had for the other municipal autonomy of the cities. It was another kind of freedom.

civil, that one, and of paramount importance, of a a scale that surpassed all others. Let the Municipal life and spontaneity are no longer possible.
movement, initiative in the organization, play free in administrative operation, in the management of local interests, to all the cities of their States, was a principle of government, whose papes never wavered and whose very spirit the spirit that animates the Church did not allow them to stray from ter (1): “For where this Spirit is,” says Saint Paul, “there is freedom.

Ubi spiritus ibi libertas. (77 Cor. Ch. Irr. 9. 17)

Whether or not to receive Jews into one's home was a part of this municipal right to which the Church made itself such a scruples about touching. However, the concession one that, civil liberties, nonetheless remains highly rational and constitutes, for our work, an element of clarity, which we

We didn't want to deprive ourselves.
(1) See our book The Pope and Liberty in the chapter:
The Pope and Civil Liberty.
(Victorion Bookstore. Paris. 4, rue Dupuytren.)

once done by the cities and confirmed by a long possession, the Popes would probably not have perceived
It was just an administrative whim, as can be the case to occur to small local authorities, less defensive-
due to their weight, against political vicissitudes,
pit arbitrarily changing the established order.

Outside their states, the Popes left the Christian princes, the doges of the republics, the postates, consuls, sovereign councils of free cities, judges of reasons, arbiters of opportunities, for this which concerned hospitality to be granted or refused to the Jews (1).

Whether harsh or condescending, these provisions, a times taken became, by their nature, an integral part of greatness of Christian law. For, if they aimed, more directly, the temporal interests of the city, they were inspired by the principles of the Catholic faith and porwere contained within them, consequently, all | The Spirit of the Laws of the Church.

(1) However, there was such a pope who made more full use of his sovereign right over souls. Saint Pius V, for example, extended, from the Papal States to the whole of Christendom, the provisions taken by his predecessor Paul IV. One of these provisions had as its subject the ghetto: “Volentes... quod... omnes in uno and eodem and, if ille capax non fucrit, in duobus vel tribus vel quod satis siut, contiguis; and ab habitationibus christianorum penitus sejunctis, per nos... designandis vicis, ad quos unicus tantum ingressus pateat el quibus solum unicus cxitus detur, omnino inhabitent.

(Const. Cum nimis absurdum. Pauli IV. § 1.)
Our igitur cupientes ut constitutio, statuta etc. (Pauli m perpetuis futuris temporibus observer, . praecipimus and mandamus omnia in posterum observari firmiter, non solum in lerris et dominiis nobis subjectis, sed ubique locorum.

"We therefore desire that the constitution and statutes etc. of “Paul IV (concerning the ghettos) be observed in perpetuity” In future ages, we ordain and command, that all points are rigorously observed, not only in the lands and estates subject to our authority, but everywhere and in any place.

(Constitutio. Romanus pontifex. Pius V. Year 1566.)

This is how, in a large number of cities, the situation is similar in the United States. Tonomes, in Strasbourg for example, Jews could not-were only allowed to enter during the day, to attend to their business-res; to stay there only a determined number of hours born, and had to go out, every evening, to the sound of the trompe, before the doors close.

(Halles. — Jews in France. p. 103)
In some cases, they did not even obtain this right. than for a price. In Augsburg, one florin per hour; in Bremen, one ducat a day.

(Israeli Archives. — 1848. — p. 402)

The concession of the ghetto or any other kind, more or less constrained by residence in a city, was far, moreover, from entailing complete freedom of circumculation in this city and discreet relationships-naires with its inhabitants. Besides the recording of the night, which we have spoken of, more than one happened at times to the Jews, to be required to shut themselves in during the day; to such a date of Christian holidays, for example.

The fence would sometimes even last for a week. Thus, there were penalties prescribed against all A Jew who dared to appear in a street or on a public square, from Palm Sunday to the festival Easter.

NE (Depping — P. 56-57) (1).

These measures, however, are not part of the law of the Church. This right clearly inspired them, but they are not included in its code.

...But it's no longer just the spirit of the law canonique, it is the very letter of the law that one finds in the following provisions:

“Jews are forbidden to enter the houses of

\

(1) In several Christian states, however, this enclosure did not began on Holy Thursday and ended on Easter Monday.

"public girls or to receive them in their own.
"Every matter, between them, must be dealt with on the "Threshold, within police range."

Ne de cetero auderent, quovis prætextu et quæsito colore, etiam emptionis et venditionis bonorum, ingredi domos meretricum..... . neve dictas mulieres ad eos, pro similibus negotiis emptionis et venditionis, accedentes, permitterent domos et apothecas suas ingredi.

(St. Pius V, by the Cardinal Vicar, May 20, 1566)

Following this prohibition, one would not expect hardly encountering the following: "The aceticism of the neck-
"Winds of women and any conversation with them"
"is forbidden to Jews."

Hebræorum accessus, ad monasteria konaa
nullo modo permitti debet, ad alloquendum cum illis...

| (Sacred Congress of Regular Bishops)

Nothing would seem to differ as much as the patterns who inspired these two laws. And yet they have a meeting point where they mingle and no longer than one. This point is Jewish avarice.

At the gates of the convents of nuns, as at that of the brothels, the Jew will only strike to re-to feed on this avarice. In these, he feeds her with flesh human beings sold; in those of human bones sold. He sells the first one, to vice, and the second ones, to piety.

The horrible profession whose name the professed was the most infamous of the Latin language, Leno, could not

It was unlikely to suit the Jew. He found in it doa significant advantage.

First of all, he made handsome profits from it. It was a highly lucrative profession.

Secondly, for him, it was one of the means the least complicated and safest ways to do harm to the Christian.

number

This simplified the dreadful industry for the Jew, that's because he had, on hand, a commodity which The ghettos were still largely supplied, and whose flow the brothel so delightfully facilitated.
Jewish woman, daughter of a carnal people, the Jewish woman, whose Gospel-Gile had not raised the moral standard, the Jewess cunning and deceitful, by virtue of her race, pale, as None, in the whole game of seduction, was won over.
a unique place in the annals of prostitution tution (1).

The Jew would therefore go there to debate the price of his den-real and, in addition, secure a share of the profit in the flow rate of the second-hand dealer. And who for-would tell how many other variants of fi- operations financial matters he could link to this vile commerce (2). li

'Obviously, there was reason, for the Church, to inter-

come energetically; nowhere will his shackles be found.
were more legitimate: nowhere did his defenses carry weight.
were less likely to be false.

In the convents, the Jew would go to sell relics.
and religious objects. No one, more than he, was ever provided.

Among a thousand ways to obtain it, the one that... the one he liked the most, and the one he deprived himself of the least, was the sacrilegious devastation of the churches.

(1) In public squares and in brothels,
You encounter more Jewish women than Christian women, taking into account of the proportion that exists between the two populations.

(Jewish Archives. Year 1867.)

(2) A modern variant of these operations is revealed to us by a writer from Le Monde, particularly well-versed in business Jewish women. Here is what Mr. Hermann Kuhn wrote about the Jews.
from Galicia: "Speculators from that nation have organized themselves there
"(Jewish) who marry several times, in different localities"
"rents, with beautiful young Jewish women, to sell them afterwards,"
"in the East and in Africa, and deliver them to houses of "Debauchery."

(Le Monde. November 1, 1869.)

“How much gold they have amassed,” wrote Peter the "Venerable in the 12th century, for all that cunning
"allowed them to wrest from the Christians, and by all
"what they bought, furtively and at a very low price, from
"thieves accustomed to passing things through their hands"
"So many objects that are so dear to us! That a vo-
"they should indeed come to steal incense at night"
"Evenings, crosses, consecrated chalices, he will escape"
"to the persecution of Christians, by resorting to “Jews, and will find, among the men of this race,
"an unfortunate security; not only does he "prepares for new misdeeds, but it delivers, to the "Satan's synagogue, everything he knows how to take away from
"The sacred place of our churches."

Arcas auro sive argento cumulant de his quc, ut dixi, furtim a furibus empto, çili pretio, res carissimas, comparing. Si fur nocturnus Christi Ecclesiam fregerit, si sacrilego ausu, candelabra, urceos, thuribula, ipsas etiam sacras cruces vel consecratos chalices asportaverit, cum Christianos fugiat, ad

Judæos confugit, et apud eos, damnabili securitate - securus, non solum latibula fovet sed et quæ sacris Ecclesiis furatus fuerit Satane synagogis vendit.

(Petri Venerab. — Epist. XXXVI, ad Ludovicum Juniorem regem Francorum — Migne — Patrologia Latina — T. 189. — P. 566.)

The Church therefore forbade Jews access to the courtyards. women's winds.

The severity with which she treated everyone, in the disdiscipline that regulated this particular kind of relationship, found herself doubly motivated when it came to the Jews(1). Between their low condition and vile habits

---

(1) Everyone knows with what care the Church watches over the inviolability of religious enclosure and the discipline of relations people cloistered with the world. She is not content with

of those who were subjected to coercion, and the situation The contrast was high compared to those it protected. such that the Church could not fail to emphasize the separation and raising its barrier.

But, above all, the indecent trade that the The Jewish practice at the gates of these cloisters did not leave no compromise is possible with this severity.

Just think of all the deceit, all the scams, all desecrations, crimes of all kinds of things, which could be connected, and which were connected were almost always involved in this dreadful industry.

First, the encouragement given to the main mode acquisition.

Peter the Venerable has just told us what he was.

Then, the classification as commercial commodities, of objects which Christians only approach with veneration; the foul practices to which these strangers These merchants were pleased to use them before resell them to Christians (1); the false loutes sort, in the manufacture of which this indecent trade gave an opportunity; false to steal the secret ordinary sanctions, it is by way of excommunication that she pro-yields. See chap. v — Session XXV of the Council of Trent, which reguards the nuns' enclosure.

Item Bonifacius vir1 Cap. Periculoso and Saint Pie v Const. Decori el honestati.

(1) Modesty forbids going into details. Pierre le VeneRable only dares to express herself in veiled terms:

“Jesus Christ feels in these vases, rapit sco Es to feel them- "to read for themselves all the insults of the Jews. For as I "I learned it from men whose testimony cannot be refuted, these "execrable men, for the insult to Christ himself and for the "Ours, apply these celestial vessels to uses to which we "I dare not think, so far are they from being expressible. — Sentit plane, in his que non sentiunt. sibi, sacratis vasis, Judaicas adhuc contumelias Christus, quia, ut siepe a veracibus viris audivi, iis usibus eclestia illa vasa ad ejusdem Christi nostrumque dedecus nefandi illi applicant, quod horrendum est cogitare e detestandum dicere. (Idem — eodem loco) of their origin (1): false to prove their authenticity when they had it, fake, on-everything, to create one for them when they didn't have one not.

And it is there, in particular, that the genius of the sacrifice-The legend was fully on display. They offered bones the veneration of donkeys, dogs, and pigs Christians. This was the height of their joy, in at the same time as the triumph of their art, to do to succeed in these atrocities.

Therefore, nowhere did the Church owe more honor of God and his saints, no longer owed it to her-even, to stand in the way of Jewish perfidy.

$ He. — Civil liberty, which comes after “the "Freedom to reside," that is "Val- freedom" to come and go, to move around the country where we live. »

The Church does not appear to have greatly constrained its Jewish on this point. Provided the traveler left, well and duly adorned with its yellow badge; provided that,
in the towns where he stopped, he conformed to the residence rules, planned for his stay, he does not
It was not up to the Church that all the city gates and towns do not open before him; that all the portcullises not to be raised, not to all drawbridges were to lower themselves, that all the mountains would not be called ns, and that all the valleys not be filled-sent.

But, like Christian prince, like lord, like municipality, such a provost, such a bailiff were not always
They were as tolerant as the Church. They extorted money, more once, the Jew who appeared at their doorstep.

The Church refrained from intervening; it was the right of These intolerant people are intolerant. The invariable attitude-
The Church's fundamental principle, with regard to the law, is respect.
the right in question, without ecclesiastical law, or,
In other words, canonical, since it did not come from The Church, however, was Christian law, proceeding of Christian powers, settling matters that had their distant relationship with the Christian faith, without oa remonstrance from the Church. He did not
It was possible that he was not a Christian right.

Princes, lords, and cities alike,
etc., they extorted money from everyone. The Jews
They were not the only ones paying the tolls. We cannot However, to disagree that the Jews were not the favorite clients of the seigneurial tax office. We doubled, we tripled the tax, in their honor. But it was still the right of sovereigns to impose, on such categories higher fares for different types of travelers.

The particular situation of the Jews increased ve right and designated them for higher ransoms.

First, the Jews were not in possession of the civil status of the native inhabitants. They enjoyed so much

(1) It was necessary to obtain authentic forgeries of fraudulent manufacture-duleuse, to substitute them for the real ones, which would have put them on the trail of the thief.

little of common law, that one can say that the exception tion was their rule. It was therefore quite simple that the exception suffered by them, for everything else, continued to burden them on the specific point of tolls.

Add to that the fact that they weren't even domiciled in the terms of this common tolerance, which apply that abroad ordinary and is part of the law of people. It was understood, and it was important that they com-
They took it, and it was brought back to their memory, for little that they forget it, that they were guests of pure mercy (1). |

Being burdened with allowances was the consequence and the a sign of this social inferiority, on the foot of the-
which they had agreed to live, of which the least relaxation, in the maintenance and the demands,
It made them lose their memory so quickly, and then brought them back to life.
in them, those insolent Jews whom Agobard, all formed that he was at the School of Mercy, denounced to Christians, as the most intolerable of disorders social classes of his time (2).

It was also a way to slow down this increase.
of their wealth, which no restraint could stopter, and thus prevent, to their advantage, measures far more rigorous, before which we cannot re-
The most pious princes, indeed, did not back down.
saints like Saint Louis: partial confiscation or the total of their oppressive fortunes.

How could the Church have frowned upon these?
wise preventative measures, which spared some re-exorbitant pressures, where the terms of the strict justice is so difficult to define, is more difficult to to observe, and where the arbitrary power of a despot can so easily... to overstep the bounds of the law.

And then, the violence perpetrated by the victims of Jewish usury were often faster than these high ones and, already, very rudimentary justice of the powers that be.

These were the horrible extremes that the Church loved.
especially to see them overcome. The heavy tolls...

(1) Ex sola misericordia, pietas, Judwos, Christiana receptat.
(Ex Const. Innocent IV – Impia Judxorum – 1244) See

to the supporting documents.
(2) Ceperunt autem efferri quadam odibili insolentia Judi, comminantes omnibus injuriis nos alliciendos ete...
(Agobardus — Epist. Ad Imperatorem Ludovicum primum.)

were going to contribute a great deal. The Church did not blame them So no.

But what the Church never approved, what always did, in defiance of his wishes, too often powerless, these are the outrageous, ignominious details nieux that were often added to the payment of these tariffs. The term "body toll" refers to the entire set of these abuses.

What made this type of toll less bearable-ble, was not the most money he was spending to serve the Jew; it was usually less expensive: but the Jew was forced to redeem himself at the price of his dignity and his honor as a man.

For example: Toll of the land of Malemort:

"On every ox and pig, and on every Jew,
"one plot of land; on each thirty of the same livestock, six
"Under thirty."

(Abbot Joseph Léman — The entrance of the Israelis in French society — Ch. I. p. I1).

The Church came to teach man to respect to kill the man so that it would then be possible for him to to love her. How could such things have been accepted by her? What treatment was inflicted on the man that the Jew was covering up? Was it appropriate for him to complicit, through his silence, in a fanaticism that went beyond all bounds and went so far as to challenge the Jew If he has the qualities of a man?

The Jew was therefore not free to wander as he pleased.

But it was also so that he would remain more of a wanderer, that this was how they treated him; so that he would become attached less on this ground where he was allowed to pitch the tent of his night; so that he would be more alert to cross the border the day when the sovereign of his adoptive and pre-

— 194th
Cairo, his homeland, would mean that he had to leave the earth where it played the role of a parasitic and harmful plant and that he would try the equally precarious hospitality, using the equally limited patience of another sovereign and of another people.

For this execution, only the will was needed.
of the master. The Jew welcomed by him, remained still-days at his discretion. The law was, in that instance, remarkably simple.
which exempted it from being included in any code.

However, there were cases of expulsion, provided for by the law, which brings us back, with the precision of writing, the study of Church legislation, affect-so much the civil life of the Jew.

After the right to have a roof over one's head, on the soil of a country,
After the right to move about freely, a third right civil law is that which consists of being able to consider this country as his own, and, except for crimes committed and punishment incurred, to find in this country, all peace for the present and complete security for the future; to live there residcalm and secure against any threat of eviction sion. b

Here again, the Jew enjoys, in Christian lands,
than a greatly diminished right, if indeed that, reduced to these terms, to this minimum, we can still call it a right.

First, he still lives under the threat of execution-Summary: we have just seen it. But it is,
Furthermore, subject to specific conditions of existence-
tence who show him, still hanging on his head,
the execution that threatens him. Unknown to him, these con-editions will make his expulsion an act of justice regulicre, which will keep the door closed to all subterfuge and will leave no room for appeal. Informed of this Whatever is demanded of him, the Jew knows in advance the fate that Wait, if he refuses this demand.

Here are some of these condilions:

1. If a people converts to the faith, its sovereign can remove from himself anything that would hinder the acquisition abandonment of this faith, and, at the slightest sign of hos-utility and aggression, expel Jews and all Infidels from which the aggression would originate.

It is the right to truth, against which nothing can prevail. may prevail. When one is faced with the action of the Church and the Christian sovereigns who Secondly, it must never be forgotten that the total base, the primary and ultimate reason for this action is This one: The Church alone possesses religious truth. Everything that contradicts this truth, everything that pretends religion, in divergence and competition with The Church is simply a religious error.

However, there will never be equality between truth and error. reur. Hence the famous remark by Consalvi, a diplomat of his profession, as such, predisposed, by nature, to all the temperaments that business entails; in consequence, as unsuspecting as possible in the Question: "The Catholic Church is essentially intolerant.

Constantine had, from a long time, preceded Consalvi, in this simple and brief profession of faith Catholic. The day after the Battle of the Mil- Bridge vius; he was signifying to the Jews their expulsion from all land of the empire where their presence would be a danger for the faith of Christians.

Moreover, the war waged against the Church by the Jews, the persecution of his apostles, the incitement of the punks public attacks against his followers had not ceased a moment, since the stoning of Saint Stephen.

One could even say that the Jews had not held foreign to any of the persecutions exercised created by pagans, since the origin of the Church until his triumph. What they had done against Saint Paul, pursuing him from city to city, ameu-They had so much against him all the people continued until Diocletian, against all new apostle, who continued his work, against all neophyte, whose word this Apostle was making known to the Church a new recruit.

It was a blatant fact; Constantine had been ter-less than anyone else, mixed up as he was with good hour, by the trust of his father. to all things of the empire; and, by eliminating, as much as possible, the element-Jewish man, if not of the entire Roman territory, which would have been difficult, at least from the political centers more importantly, he was simultaneously doing a work of justice for the past and the present, a work of foresight for the future, and, inaugurated for Christian society, on the question, the published law which was supposed to govern it penfor fifteen centuries.

(Capite — Observation — of Judæis. — Sepe malorum C. 28 — Qu. 1.)

20 In every Christian state, whatever the date of his coming to faith, the Jews who outrage this faith, especially if Christian blood is mixed with the outrage, are, by that very fact and jointly and severally, liable to the expulsion.

(Capite — Quia super. — Capite de Etsi JuDaos — And Judaeis.)

Thus they were driven out of York and Norwick in England, after the ritual murder, legally proven, of two Christian children.

(Polydorus Virgil — History of AnEngland. L. 16.)

Thus they had to leave the March of Brandetown, targeted and convicted of having slashed a consecrated host, from which blood had flowed; and, moreover,

-admitting themselves that they had ritually killed several Christian children.

Surius — De rebus in orbe gestis — Year 1510).

9. If they incite sedition or if they carry out any other way, harm to Christians.

(Const. Christianis — Cap. de Paganis)

Thus they were driven out of Antioch under the emperor Phocas (1). St. Gregory the Great disapproved of the violence perpetrated against them, particularly the effuZion of blood; but he did not blame their expulsion.

4» Even if, without inciting any sedition, (Const. Christianis) become so numerous, in a State, that the Christian finds himself at their mercy; if they afare making their way to a threatened point in the territory of a nation, and that a treason on their part is to to dread.

The Church always starts from this fact, certain for her, that the Jew, solely by virtue of being a Jew, is predisposed posed to treason (2). It is not for nothing that the most solemn place in its liturgy, at the foot of the bloody cross of her Master, at the hour when she presents to heaven, for all, this blood from which she draws holding the ineffable prize, where she excludes no one of his prayer; at this hour which is, above all others, at the hour of her mercy, she does not believe she can

(1) It was similarly on the occasion of a sedition that nearly Two centuries earlier, they had been driven out of Alexandria, under the episcopate of Saint Cyril.
(SOCRATES. Book 7, —)

(2) “It is elementary justice that Christian princes should not be born
"negligently do nothing to suppress and render powerless the fraud—
"the deceitful and insidious way in which the Jews use it in "contracts with Christians, to also put an end to their avarice"
"Always ready to prey on the possessions of Christians."

Omni denique diligentia principles in eo uti equum erit ut, frau—dulosam et insidiosam Judieorum cum Christianis contrahendi ra—tionem et eorum facultatibus inhiantem avaritiam, compressing

and coercive. © (1st Council of Milan — St. Charles.)

implore this mercy for the Jews, without adding—to add to their name the epithet that justice demands: Ore—
mus et pro perfidis Judaeis. |

The Church should think carefully about this before writing a
"That word, at that time, in that place. It was necessary."
that this truth was, for her, quite obvious, and quite
The reasons for giving, at this time, to Its proclamation, such a solemn occasion.

But he never thought of the Church, nor of the Christian princes, sons of the Church, to use the means immoral as imagined by Revolutionary Philosophy, to establish as an Edict the strange expedient, and to do so—to enact the Edict by a sovereign. — The sovereign who
He was Christian, however;
but the sinister Reason that was to dethrone and deca—
Piter, in a short time, was playing a pleasant game.

to deprive, on the one hand, of a son of St. Louis, the sense of his faith, and to make the other, an accomplice in his works,
the chosen victim marked with his hatred (r).

In these critical circumstances, the crowned sons of the Church, which sectarians have not obsessed with and distorted the mind, they use the means acknowledged by the Church.
When a man or a group of men becomes dangerous to the State, to the extent defined by The laws are the right and often the duty of the Head of the State, to put an end to the danger, by transferring, out the borders of the State, of the one or those who constituting they are positing the peril to the State — This is how Ferdinand and Isabella expelled the Jews from Spain in 1491.

(Const. Granat. Pragmat. 5 and 6 Jtem Concil. Toletatum. Cap. 8)
9» If they do not want to comply with the laws.

(1) See, in the previous chapter, the Edict of 1784 for the Jews of Alsace, and the clause that subjects their marriages to the king's pleasure.

Nihilque turbulentum tantibus legibusque contrarium.

(Const. Christianis)

Thus Freic expelled from France in 1180.

Contrary to the prescriptions of Canon Law,
make laws of the kingdom, by the adoption of our kings, they took servants and sersales, drawn from Christian families, and, adding showing contempt for the faith, in contempt of the law, they forwere trying to Judaize them.

(Jean Mauclerc. Gener. 40)

6. If they were to achieve such an increase in the wealthy... that it might result in suffering or danger for the nation whose gold they allegedly seized.

The prince, according to Roman law, can expropriate the subject, for reasons of public utility — In this, all the rights of all peoples are in accordance with the Roman law. But, equity dictates that the prince should incompensates the individual whom he dispossesses. The individual He possesses it before him. The prince must remember that.
and put him in a position, at least equivalent, to the one he takes away from her (1).

However, if the prince has evidence, or pre-legal suppositions, equivalent to evidence, that the property from which he evicts the owner is, in all or in part, fraudulently acquired by the ousted party, the Prince can proceed by confiscation: confiscation
total, if all the property is due to fraud, confiscation

+

(1) Expropriation and the corresponding compensation only concern landowner. This was rarely the case for Jews. In
In the case of movable property, only the illegitimate possessor is expropriated, and So there is no basis for compensation: it's confiscation. It was the ordinary case of the Jews. Likewise, like movable property in The question is almost always gold or silver; it would be replaced... to replace gold and silver with other gold and other silver, which se-
That would be purely and simply ridiculous.

proportional to the fraud, if it did not occur
that in part and has not tainted by its dishonornetété tout l'avoir de l'expropriée.
(Isern. — in Constit. — Siquis in posterum — title of Judah).

One thing, moreover, mitigates this in the case,
What makes this measure extreme is that the Jews are only admitted into Christian society by Mercy... The plan of the Church that welcomes them is to be of use to them, by facilitating their access to faith
Christian, but no, that they could harm herchildren of Jewish perfidy.

(Lege, Si quis — from Sepulchro — from Religione and sumptibus funeralibus).

Thus, the most just of sovereigns, holy Louis confiscated, in one fell swoop, a third of their goods.

§ II. — Commerce

The right to buy and sell is a considerable part of maple of civil liberty. The sum of all the exchanges that the needs of life bring about between the men and which are done, most commonly, by way

The act of buying or selling is called commerce.

It is in this vast field of business that he import-the most significant aspect was that the restriction of the prohibitive right reached He gnit and tightened the Jew.

Nowhere are the opportunities and temptations offered to.
His perfidy was no more abundant (1). The care of

(1) Here is what we read in a petition addressed, in 1760, against the admission of Jews to common commercial law, by the six body of merchants and traders of Paris:

The Church should have: 1° reduced the opportunities offered to covetousness, by prohibiting certain branches trade routes; 2° - to make the temptations less strong tions, by the difficulties placed on the road to the con-views.

Remove the Jew from the field of business where fraud

"The admission of this type of man can only be very dangerous“gereusc. They can be compared to wasps, which do not enter "in the hives only to kill the bees, to open their bellies and “To swallow the honey that is in their entrails: such are the Jews
"to whom it is impossible to attribute the qualities of citizens.
"The French merchant conducts his business alone; each house
"trade is in some ways isolated; while the Jews, this
"are particles of quicksilver which, at the slightest slope, reunite-
"They form a single block."

"The merchants of Dijon heard things in 1894 as the.
Parisian merchants in 1760. Nothing interesting like the rap-
The two texts are similar. We have just read the one about the Parisians.
Here is the one from the people of Dijon. It is to the Bishop that these latter appeal.
niers. The text of their petition to Monsignor Oury is as follows.

Your Grace,

"The Church has always cared for the Jews. History bears witness to this."
"On every page."

"On the one hand, it's true, the Councils, of the Popes, like Saint “Gregory the Great, Innocent III, Alexander III, Urban II, have re-

"commanded to show them great mercy and "have protected their religious freedom, their synagogues, their
"Books and their lives. |"

“But, on the other hand, history also tells us that the Church has never…”
"ceased to be distrustful of the perfidy of the Jews, perfidis “Judaeans, according to the liturgical word. Never, according to the ordinances-
"decisions of the Popes and Councils, which we summarize, it has not ad-
"provided that a Jew could come into possession or participation"
"of what is an essential function in Christian society;
"that a Jew, for example, could run a school for Christians"
"Look, sitting on a magistrate's seat beneath an eru-
"cifix, to contribute to the drafting of the laws of a Christian state, rem-
"to take jobs in the army, own land and exchange-
"To manage properties, to be a pharmacist, a hotelier, etc."

"She always ordered the burning of the Talmud, the code of injusticetice; she always tried to relegate the Jews to quarters
third parties reserved.
“More than once, (in Spain, for example, and, in particular, in “Dijon, in 1290, in 1308, and in 1395,) the Church was in agreement with the "civil power to expel overly arrogant Jews and for the
"to bring back to justice and public order, too often, to res-
"institutions. ;

"Undoubtedly, the Church is primarily and mainly concerned with..."

A TO

~ PA

Having easy access was the first step to take.
The Church was careful not to fail to do so.

A path that she seemed able to open for the Jew was this agriculture so highly praised by the sages of Israel
(1) and which had been so dear to its patriarchs. The agriculture, which is not commerce, by its nature, about-
However, most commonly, it relates to a business.
But it's a trade that holds up, that puts desperate, the dishonest dealings of a cupide. The origin of the venal matter prohibits the fraud to intervene in the manufacturing process and allows him to little chance of slipping into the exchanges.

Almost everywhere else, an artificial construct intervenes, between the material of the commodity and its sale in the square, which means that pres-eternal questions, but according to the thought of an illustrious child of

"Dijon, by Lacordaire, there are moments where eternity and time
"touch each other, where the infinite and the finite meet, where the temporal and
"The spiritual must unite. We are in one of those times."
“The strength of our enemies is great; it comes from us. We Let's provide them with the money they use to fight us everywhere.
And always. Our natural allies, the merchants, the workers, the Catholic industrialists groan and are not defended.
"That is why, Your Grace, in asking, along with the Church, that religious freedom be left to the Israelites, an important group carrying from Dijon, believes he also enters into this same spirit of the Church, imploring, as in the past, its protection against the perfidy of the Jews. We therefore beseech Your Grace to address a letter to his diocesan members, and especially to the houses nuns, to advise them to be wary of Jews in their business, to obtain supplies from Catholics and to employ these in preference to Jews and Freemasons.
"If a letter seemed too solemn to Your Grace, a
an official, very forceful communiqué, addressed to the religious week-
"Gious, could take its place. That would be Christian Charity"
"Well-ordered."
"Your Excellency, in the hope that our just petition will receive a Having received a favorable reception, we humbly place it at the feet of Your Excellency, with our respectful regards.

(Excerpt from the newspaper Le Monde)
(1) “Non oderis laboriosa opera, neque rusticationem creatam
"ab Altissimo."

HAS

A^ Pa

q
¢
€

m~ A PR

q
LC
LC

LC
€
LC
€
LC

mA Fm oe ^oa, ^ A PR

~ ^,

"
€

~ m

(Eccl. C. VII. Y. 16)

that every large-scale merchant is an industrialist. These are So, two doors, instead of one, open to fraud. Both are closed to agriculture: either The half-open passage is so narrow that it discourages the dishonest man who would even think of trying to tempt him.

What kind of fraud could creep into the sap that the the hand of God leads to the ear of corn and produces the confeclion of the grain?

And, once the grain was gathered and put in the granary, what Fraud will alter it on the path it follows, from the producer-seller to the buyer? It is true that one can alter a heap of grain by fraudulent mixing, and we know, from all the noise surrounding a recent scandal, that Jewish fraud is on par with such an exploit. (1) But the same scandal has shown us, in the same cost, how much, in this case, it is easy to discover the fraud.

From this point of view, the Church had no reason to forbid Jews from farming, and perhaps there is no there are no formal texts that prove that she has them had never excluded (2). But there were other reasons,

(1) Damage to wheat shipped to Russia during the famine of 1893.

(The Dreyfus Affair.)

(2) There is even a text from Pius IV which authorizes them to do so, or even, as a
of owner, provided that the land owned by them does not exceed the value of fifteen hundred ducats:

And ultra domos in clausura existes, quas per vos acquisri, forsan contigerit, quicumque alia bona stabilia seu prædia, urbana et rustica, usque ad valorem mille et quingentorum ducatorum auri, tenere possitis, bonaque ipsa Christianis et colonis ctiam partiariis, vel sub certa annua pensione, prout cum illis convenietis, locare.....

(Constitution of Pius IV)

Although the Pope does not mention culture, by the Jew himself,
It is confined within the concession; it would be absurd to grant it.
the possession of a field and to remove from the owner the right to
to cultivate it.

Moreover, the Pope, who allows the land to be cultivated by a sharecropper or a farmer, allows, all the more so, for one to cultivate oneself;

independent, for the most part, of the will of the Church, which kept the Jew away from any overly close relationship with the ground. We have, above, given several of these reasons and pointed out, at the same time, how many the cosmopolitan instinct of the Jew was found, in this question, with the views of the Christian legislator.

What remained was what is properly called commerce,
at all its degrees and in all its forms, with all the preparations and manufacturing processes that precede it and whose collective name is likewise
general and dedicated to industry.

Here as there, the entrance became as pure as could be.
targeted at fraud.

In the industry.

The hand of God, which draws the lifeblood from the earth.
challenges any fraud, to intervene in their trans-

training. This is not the case with the weaver's hand.
who holds a trade. The apocryphal thread, of the same cou-their and of the same size, identical in appearance, to all the others, can, most easily in the world, be to make a passage between the worker's fingers and take place next to the authentic thread.

In commerce.

nothing difficult to discern, for the common people
buyers, such as the difference in quality and va-

He who gives the most does not take away the least.

Let us observe further, so as not to introduce an element into the story-anything that could distort it, such as the right, for the Jew, to acquire and to own land in the Church State, was so a transitional phase that did not have time to be incorporated into the laws.
N w appeared like a flash, between two extreme bubbles-severe measures taken by the predecessor and successor of Pius IV, Paul IV and Pius V. II lasted, at most, two or three years. The re-
The results were quite deplorable, since it led to the expulsion of all the Jews of the Roman States, decreed by Saint Pius V.
He conceded to them only Rome and Ancona.

their industrial products. There are few fields
open to human affairs, where dishonesty finds game easier and more unlimited career.

The Church will not leave its children exposed there.

She forbade Jews from making fabrics and the Sale of new goods. Everything is included:
under the following terms:

Prohibitio mercaturæ rerum novarum, Judæis, tum
in statu, tum extra statum Ecclesiasticum, degentibus.

(Benedict XIII. — Const. — Alias emanarunt.
March 22, 1729)

Done, the ban was issued by Benedict XIII, re-
thus renewing the defense of his predecessor Innocent XII, (Const. Ex injuncto), to all the Jews residing both inside and outside the States of the Church, to trade in new things. At the strongest Therefore, they could not manufacture; for one cannot manufacture-than to sell.

But satisfied with the generality of the law for beau-across other industries, Benedict XIII specifies one which was always, which was then, more than ever a
a source of wealth for Italy, the weaving of silk.

The multiple preparations and manipulations,
that this industry demands, open before it, a thousand entries into fraud; and the high prices of its products
On the other hand, this makes it an extremely popular trade.
creative.

These were two excellent opportunities instead of one offered to the Jews. They could deploy all the resources of their genius. And Jewish avarice and the per-Jewish fide found a place to evolve. To both, he
It was important to block the passage.

Benedict XIII provided for this. He forbade the Jews all this which, directly or indirectly, is related to the making
and to the sale of silk:

[ ]

Inter alia statuitur, quod Hebraei, which, in detrimenttum mercatorum Christianorum, bombycinos folliculos (vulgo cocconi vel bocci) to Christianis emere and mercari, ac sericum texere pannosque sericos contexere præsumunt, in posterum, id nullimode possint; express declarando, quod, sub novarum rerum mercimonii prohibitionem eis factam, tam texturam et confectionem serici eujuscunque generis vel speciei, quam emptionem et venditionem, etiam indirectam, novi seriei, sive contexti sive non contexti, ac folliculorum bombycinorum, quos Gallice, cocoons, Italice, coccone seu bocci, appellant, comprehendi et understanding esse, intelligence, cum Judi sola arte stracciaria seu cenciaria, ut vulgo dicitur, contenti, aliquam mercaturam frumenti vel hordei aut aliarum rerum, usui humano necessariarum, facere solum possint. |

“We decree, among other things, that the Jews

"who allow themselves to do so at the expense of the shopkeepers"
"Christians, to buy from Christians and to put
"in trade, small skeins of silkworm
"which is commonly called coccont or bocci, and of
"They will not be able to smooth the silk and make fabrics from it."
"no longer, in any way; declaring expressly-
"sement that, by prohibition, made to them, of the com-
"Merchant of new things, we understand,"
"both the texture and the making of silks of all
"of every kind and species, whether buying or selling,
"even indirect, of new silk, whether woven or not
"smooth, and those of the small skeins of silkworm"
"which are called cocoons in French, and in Italian,
"cocconi or bocci; the Jews having to be content with the
"The workshops of secondhand dealers and ragpickers, as we know them
"commonly called, and only able to make one

"defined and limited trade in wheat and barley or
"Other things necessary for life."

(Benedict XIII. - Cont. Alias emanarunt, which renews the Constitution of Innocence
one hundred XII. Ex injuncto).

The word aliquam mercaturam specially designates and exclusively the purchase of the provisions necessary for the maintenance of the family. To allow the Jews, what one today we call the food trade silence was far from the thinking of the Church. Of all the of the concessions she was willing to make, that one was One of the last ones, indeed. We'll see later.
that some Christian princes were not as severe. There were more than one reason for interest general which forced them to separate, at least Ironically, on this point, common habits ordinary powers and rigors of the law.

By these specific provisions, concerning the sole, Benedict XIII warned of three evils:

The deterioration and poor quality of the tissues, due to
to the use of fraudulent methods: |

The concentration of power in the same hands, of the branch-
the most lucrative industry and commerce sector:

The accumulation, in these hands, (hands of strangers,
(in the hands of enemies) of all the riches of the country.

It provided three corresponding goods:

Jo A nearly universal loyalty in the fabriccation.

Lemal delafraude Juive, when her career was given to herborn, was not only the alteration of the products Jews, followed by all the free ways of theft and bad faith, which the commander used in his operations Jewish mereant. Jewish fraud begat fraud Christian.

The most dangerous pitfall of loyalty to honor

A shrewd man in business is disloyal to such or several of its competitors in the same This kind of business. How often the fear of conditions lower, at risk of loss, where he fears finding himself, Didn't she soften the heart, couldn't she make him... To erode the conscience of the honest merchant?

2° Freedom of trade.

Monopolistic grabbing always oppresses the trade. Inevitably, all the trade of a country ends up being at his mercy, when evil takes hold of the proportions that we saw him more than once. We we can judge by what is happening nowadays, under the false banners of our Revolutionary freedom. Jewish hoarding of food has become, by admission of everyone, in France and throughout the world, the scourge scandals and the ruin, at unequal intervals, of everything a merchant who will not be Jewish.

3. Finally, deliverance from an oppression that returns in the previous one, but which deserves attention particular, because the oppressed, less equipped for the resistance, you feel the weight more, at the same time that it is the immediate and hasty life: the crushsmall fortunes.

Of all the tyrannies of capitalism, this lastThe last one is the most painful. It is the infallible and prompt consequence of the accumulation of wealth.

It is, in fact, a matter of experience that the accumulation of Wealth imposes little expectation on rapacious hands. who once confiscated the sources. There are Jewish fortunes, worth a billion or more, which have not It took him twenty years to train. And he is no less no-

to tell that small purses, depleted, are of much, the main and predominant element of these insolent opulence.

The only trade permitted to the Jew was that of Old things. It was the flea market, the secondhand shop.

rag shop.

However narrowly defined it may seem, this field
However, the scope of business remained broad enough to per-to allow the Jew's mercantile cunning to frolic there.

It is true that there could no longer be a question there.
of alteration or sophistication. But, among these Old things include both vile and precious ones;
truly precious and seemingly precious-
his. As it remains easy, for a skillful and unscrupulousgreedy merchant, to deceive people about their va-Theirs! What opportunities offered to the deception of seller and to the deception of the buyer!

And then, there's a certain appeal to old things. There's the passion, the mania, the near-madness of the antique dealer.
What a great new source of bargains! Com-very few buyers, even among those we call amateurs, who parade their being, will be capable-unable to judge, to within a century, the age of such a fragment from the past!

That's not all.

A new industry is emerging. You are informing us...
You dare to make new things, well!
We will make old ones.

The lords of the manor in the eighteenth century, having read the
The ruins of Volney were suddenly seized by such
They had a taste for ruins, which they needed at all costs.
There are sympathies that arise from contrast; those-
They came from a resemblance. Dismantled, devastated-consumed by pleasure and debauchery, ruins themselves and precursors of ruins, he appealed to these dilettantes of death, having ruins before your eyes. Add the
The need, for jaded people, to give themselves pleasures unheard of, which no one had thought of before them.

AI

Tearing down their castles would have been a somewhat extreme. It was also a task reserved for them. They They would have regretted depriving the Revolution of it. Here is how it was remedied. A specialty of architecture took place, which the consirducators of the Colosseum and the Parthenon, that of built-ruin builders.

The Jew did as much for the antiquities of his fri-Perie and his old shop. In any matter where the false is mixed, the son of Israel has always passed ma-
tre. Thus multiplied under his fingers, the venervaluable relics from the palaces of Charlemagne and Aroun-al-Raschild. Apelles took up his palette again, and Phidias his scissors, at the back of all the shops and at the back of all the Jewish ghettos.

It was not the Popes' fault that the Christians were not-
They feel protected from these scams. But the Popes do not They cannot do everything, and, however prodigal they may be were of their service, some merciless war they have done so, on all the lands where they evolve,
to the treachery and folly of men, he remains will always be, in the full era of the Gospel and although may make his wise men, many deceitful ones for
to take the fools, and even more of them, fools

to be taken.

SII Professions

If Jewish trade was strictly regulated-commented on and brought back to narrow limits by the prohibitions legal principles, the civil professions did not find the Church less attentive nor its legislation more in-
It is necessary. There, as everywhere, she was concerned about the de-defense of Christians. On this ground, as on all others others, she kept her sons armed against the perfidy of sons of Israel.

Canon law of the Church and Christian law Princes forbade Jews from a large number of these professions.

The prohibited professions were:

1° That of a professor in Universities.

How would they have taught in the Universities Catholics, men to whom the Church does not permitdid not even include the private education of a Christian Hey?

Nequeunt docere Christianos scientiam aliquam - vel artem. "They cannot instruct Christians" "In no science or art."

(Ferraris. — Ex variis declarationibus, resolutionibus, atque responsis Sanctæ Inquisitionis Romane.)

The reason for the law is not difficult to grasp. If the Food spoils, and so does science. If the A merchant can deliver merchandise to the buyer. deteriorated and lying, the professor can deliver to the student a pernicious science and a false art. Now, Whether near or far, science and art are linked to faith: and, just as a pure science and a sound art serve always the faith, clear its avenues, smooth its voices, call the soul to its heights (misit ancillas suas ut vocarent ad arcem. — Proverbs — IX — 3) a sophisticated science and an unhealthy art constitutewill likewise, solely due to the falsehood that infests them. harm or a threat to the faith; there will be always danger, more or less imminent, for the purelay and the firmness of the beliefs of whoever will receive it teaching.

But another, more general reason, had to to follow, like many others, this first law of the Church on the teaching of the Christian by the Jew; the reason that Saint Charles expressed, in these terms, in his first council of Milan:

“Ne dignitatem vel publicum officium, quod ad Christianos pertinere aliquo modo possit, Judi obstinate.

"That Jews cannot obtain dignity or office" "publishes that look at and are of interest, in any way, "Christians."

I] It is true that someone who gives a private lesson is not for this purpose invested with a public office or a didignity. But, if the letter of the canon of Saint Charles dedies unharmed, in this particular case, there is no not of the same mind. The Church, of which Saint Charis the faithful agent and interpreter, does not want, that under no circumstances, not even once in Passerby, let the Jew be superior to the Christian (1). Now There is hardly anywhere in the world where superiority is more pronounced. The same power dynamic is that of the teacher towards the student. Therefore the Church, which does not, from Jew to Christian, a single act of professorship, out of respect for the character of the Christian well, will admit much less, the profession of professor. | |

And so that the Jew couldn't even think about it, she will ensure that he never has the indispensable in his hands key sand of any teaching chair in its Schools:

“Jews cannot be promoted to any of the "doctoral degrees in Catholic Universities"

"liques."

---

(1) Ne filii liberz filiis famulentur ancillae, sed tanquam servi, reprobate to Domino, in cujus mortem nequiter conspirarunt, saltem per effcctum operis, servos se recongnoscant illorum quos Christi mors et istos liberos, et illos constituit esse servos.

(Letter from Pope Innocent IV to St. Louis)
Year 1243)

(See the full text of the letter with supporting documents.)

Judæi non possunt promoveri ad gradum aliquem doctorates in Universitatibus catholicis.

2nd The Medical Profession.

First, for the general reason that we have just to express.

The doctor, as a doctor, takes on a certain character a position of superiority over the patient:

Hebræi medici ne ad curandos Christiansos admittantur. (Gregoire VIII Const 68. — Alias pic memoria).

“That Jewish doctors not be admitted to
"To care for Christians."

The Church therefore did not forbid them from this profession than with regard to Christians. The reasons for his intervention-
The saying, in fact, only applied to them. There was all the less reason to proceed with an absolute defense
read and universal, which the Church only permitted dif-
it was practically the Christian doctor's responsibility to go and treat the Jew.
Therefore, the sick Jewish man needed his Jewish doctor.
The Church hastened to grant it to him. There was no no longer there, nor the degradation of the sick person, nor; above all, a reason for exclusion which we have not discussed in-core and which held, by far, the main place in the concerns of the Church: the perils to-which, in absolutely intimate and tou-Trustworthy people, Jewish perfidy exposed trust of the Christian (1).

Likewise, the sick man was not the only one who had to to fear. Nothing remained safe in the family. Whoever enters it before will soon know.
secrets are revealed, and opportunities are created to do wrong.

(1) The Council of Valladolid, in 1322, indicates the first and the the most immediate of these dangers. He forbids Jews to practice the me-
"It has been observed," say the Fathers, "that they were doing..."
"The use of treacherous arts and poison with Christians."

mentables. It was a Jewish doctor who removed the petit Simon, the famous martyr of Trent.

3” The profession of pharmacist.

The reasons were the same; and, even stronger in-core, from certain points of view.

In addition to the risk of poisoning, there was the risk of pre-magical preparations. We know, from the authors, that Jewish doctors, pharmacists as well as me-
doctors, and mixing magic with both professions

Zion, composed potions for the use of ladies Roman (t). The new reason we bring The exclusion of the pharmacist therefore applies equally. for the exclusion of the doctor, since the Jew was almost always the combination of the two professions. There I had all the more reason to suspect him of magic, because Several boasted of having her intervene in the cures. The invocation and worship of demons were, in general, one of the eras for which the nation. We will see shortly that, among the The misdeeds of the Jew were reserved for the justice of the Inquisition. One of the cases mentioned is the crime of magic. The fact was

(1) “The Jews have almost always been, in magic, the great

"Masters of the Middle Ages." (Eliphaz Lévi – History of Magic)

"We know that the Jews were in possession of selling
"philanthropy to Roman ladies, and they still practice it today"
"Medicine throughout the East."

(Bail. The Jews in the 19th century - Pages 91–94)

Doctor and magician thus went hand in hand. The name of Chaldeans, which the Latins preferentially give to magicians, is Far from excluding the Jews, it includes them; on the contrary. These had had the Chaldeans as their masters during their long stay in Babylon, and, moreover, the head of the race, Abraham, was Chaldean. So Chaldean and Jew were one and the same. In matters of magic The Romans did not make the distinction.

"The Jews claim to be the most skilled doctors"
"of the world, but their medical science is nothing but a sham, en-
"Chants, amulets, and practices borrowed from magic"

(St. Chrysostom. – Complete Works)
T. 11 – P. 338. – Ed. 1865)

So it's real. We don't legislate against pipe dreams.
Ho, the hotelier profession.

The reasons are easy to guess after what we have just said of the pharmacist and the doctor-cinema |
There was no need for any special law in the villages those of the Ghetto. In the others, within the Church's domain,

The exclusion of the Jew from all residences meant that he
There was even less reason to legislate on hotels Jewish series.

This provision could therefore only concern the Jews from other Christian states. From which it followed, that it was more a part of the Christian law of the principals those that are part of the canon law of the Church. But there, as Elsewhere, canon law contained the seeds of Christian law. What the Church regulated for the Jewish guest, possible everywhere, showed quite clearly what she thought of Jewish lbotelier and quite clearly suggested the mar-
The matter to be continued. That was all the civil authorities needed.
Indeed, he himself knew enough about it that the wisdom of the Church earned his respect and inspired his acts.

It's time to eat and drink
do not say no to Christians... do not say no to none
Ospizii o nelle locande, se non foss per viaggio.

(Editor of Cardinale Ginetto Pignatelli)

“Let no Jew be permitted to eat or drink,
"to keep watch at night with Christians, nor to take-
“I stay with them in hotels or hostels,”
"If not for reasons of travel."

How could the Church, which did not tolerate the Jew ate, drank, kept watch at night with the Christian, and who made exceptions only for travelers, would have-
She saw, with a clear eye, the Christian sovereigns, the cities Christians, grant them hotels?

5th The profession of magistrate (1).

Nothing honorable about it, and which designates so much to the consipublic degradation than the office of magistrate. Everywhere
The Gospel restored justice and the magistrate to honor.
is the foremost figure in civil order. No other that the sovereign neither precedes nor surpasses him.
How to proceed, superior to the Christian, at this degree, the Jew, serf of the Christian? For the Jew is indeed a serf, in the social order created by the new law. That is the term legal which expresses the full reality of its con-edition.

Judo sunt in servitude apud Christianos, non quidem penali, sed civili.

(Benedict XIV. — T. 2. Const. 28. — Pos-iremo mense.

“The Jews live in servitude among the Christians,”
"not as domestic slaves, but as
"civil serfs," wrote Benedict XIV in the mid-18th century.
century.

What would he have said if he had seen a quarter of the courts of the Most Christian Nation, of the eldest daughter of The Church, occupied by Jews?

The magistrate must have a love for justice.
such, says Saint Thomas, that one finds in him, as an embodiment of this justice, justitia animata.

(1) The Talmud took care to give an exact idea of the justice-
the kind of remark one might expect from a Jewish magistrate: "If a Christian
"and an Israelite comes before you for a dispute, if you
"I can ensure that the Israelite prevails in his case, according to Jewish law,"
"Do it, and tell the Christian: This is our legislation, or else,
"Following the Christian law, help the Israelite win and tell the Christian-
"Here: That is your law. If, on the contrary, you cannot
"to make the Israelite win, one way or another, we will em-
"will use tricks and frauds against the Christian."

(Taken from the Babylonian Gemara. Translation by the Review)
Jewish Studies guarantees the exact, precise and highly scientific fi(disintegrated). It is the enemy's testimony against himself, the most unassailable as it may be.

How the treacherous Jew, officially, solemnlylyrically, and, knowingly, designated as such,
Will justice ever be animated by the Church?

6. The profession of arms. | ~

More specifically, ranks in the army;
nothing expresses command like authority military, and nothing abnormal, indecent, to eyes of the Church, like the Christian commanded by
the Jew.

But the military state, absolutely speaking and abstract-tion made of any grade, still finds, in the sense of | Church, the Jew deprived of the indispensable qualities-
the requirements it demands.

At its core lies patriotism. Who can attack it?
to this cosmopolitan, for whom, the people he will serve the foreigner, that is to say the enemy?

Then there is honor, and of all honors,
the most incorruptible, the most gold-proof who can be found in men.

What is there, in /aeare Jew, from the point of view of selflessness; in the case of the perfidious Jew, to the point from the point of view of honor, which can withstand the bait Gold?

The Church that gets to the heart of things, the Church that does not does nothing halfway, therefore will not deliver the interests of homelands with such precarious guarantees. Not only She will eliminate the Jewish officer, but she will not want to a single Jew in a Christian camp (x).

(1) Besides, we have better things to do than produce the numerous reasons dictated the prohibition for the Jews,
In Christian countries, for certain professions, it's about hearing them to be presented by those involved, seated in the dock.
by the Jews themselves.

In 1489, the Jews of Arles had received notification of the order of king who gave them the choice between abjuration or leaving the kingdom. They wrote to their Supreme Council sitting in Constantinople. Here is the reply they received:

The permitted professions were those of banquier, — supplier to the kingdoms, — of jeweller, — printer, — broker, — col-carrier.

The social basis of these professions and the reasons respective permissions that authorized them,
were: Jewish wealth and Jewish cosmopolitanism.

For many, both reasons argued in favor of Ja times; for example, for:

1° The banking profession.

Wealth is the almost indispensable antecedent sand, of this profession. The advances of funds are,
More than anything else, what we want to be sure of finding,

at the money changer's window. To have many Having capital readily available is therefore, for the banker,

“You say that the King of France is forcing you to become a Christian- |
"Here; do it, since you can't do otherwise; inais"
"Let the law of Moses remain in your hearts."
"You say they want to take your property; do your Child traders, so that, through trade, they
They strip Christians of their possessions.
"You say your life is being threatened; have your children mede-" pharmacists and apothecaries, so that they may take the lives of Christians, without fear of punishment.
"You say that you are being subjected to other forms of harassment; do your children lawyers, notaries and people dedicated to business public; by this means, you will dominate the Christians; you
"You will take their lands and you will take your revenge."
"Do not deviate from these orders and you will see that you
"You will reach the pinnacle of power."

(VSSVEF — Prince of the Jews of Constantinople, the 21 of Casleu.)

With regard, in particular, to the profession of arms,
a very recent event has just made the most resounding
A tribute to the wisdom of Church law. The noise makes The controversy surrounding Captain Dreyfus's betrayal does not allow anyone to ignore what a Christian nation can expect from the
The loyalty of a Jewish soldier. That would provide all the necessary experience.
to bring about a change in the laws on this point. But
All laws come from the Revolution, and who would dare, in France,
I'm not saying to oppose an opinion, which would be the height of imper-
tact, but cause the slightest displeasure to the Revolution?

t

€
€

> F

€

~ PR

€
<
€

A PR PR

€

^

a necessity that is imperative. From this perspective alone, Jewish wealth gave the Jew an advantage that few No competitors could challenge him. No one was more suited to the job.

However, the Middle Ages doubled, tripled, dec- This aptitude is appealing. Land wealth, in fact, was almost the only one known in society of that time. The only Jew was an exception. Excluded from the On earth, he turned to gold. The share, of many Major, of the kind, was in his hands. Often same, the dependence one had on the Jew, for the movable wealth, forced to its advantage, the barrier of land wealth. Guarantees of Reimbursement to the financial advisor. And so, the most Were they given to him as a pledge of beautiful lands?

The knights pledged their castles, to to fill their purses before the crusade. What true utility would not have been the Jew in these parties urgent and compelling circumstances, if wear and tear has not would have infested his loans, if his rapacity had not poisoned- Has his services been affected?

If the Jew's wealth facilitated his advances of ar- Gentleman, his cosmopolitanism made him equally well-off, money transport.

But without requiring as many carts and oxen that the currency of Lycurgus, the transport of gold still presented difficulties.

Nothing stops the Jew when it comes to wealth. He invented the bill of exchange.

This substitution of paper for money, pregnant with such perils, which carried within its depths so many ruins, It also offers such advantages that one cannot to resent the Jew for having endowed the world with it modern. I say the modern world because it is He was the one who benefited the most from it. But the invention dates back to

from the Middle Ages, from the time when the property of the Jews, less covered by law than nowadays, pou-
at any moment, they could be taken back from them to return, through direct or indirect means, in the hands of victims of their wear and tear. It was these possibilities feared that the financial genius had come to provide
of the Jew. Just when we thought we had everything under control, the ri-Jewish woman passed through her fingers. A letter from change, surely directed, five hundred leagues away, frustrated the prince's tax authorities and the hopes of all The oppressed. One kept one's misery; and the Jew, his gold.

20 The profession of kingdom procurer.

Like the previous one, she found, in the ri-
the Jew's business, a preparation and facilities that did not allow competition or imposed
The choice. There are only colossal fortunes, such as that we see them in the hands of some Jews of our time, and which were always, more or less dis-simulated, those of these powerful men of Israel; there is only princely opulence, (more than princely, then-that they reduced the princes to begging them),
that might be sufficient for commercial operations
of this magnitude.

Jewish cosmopolitanism contributed no less
to their success.

The wealthy Jewish capitalist had, three hundred leagues away,
five hundred leagues from his current homeland, his correspondent
Pondant, a big capitalist like him. He wrote to him.
The foreign capitalist, sure of his brother's credit in Israel immediately set to work. The operations were driven by the activity generated by the prevention sion of an enormous amount. In a few days, the con-
They were organized and lined up on the roads.

Arriving at the destination inevitably involved something slowness. We did not have, at his service, the railway lines steam and steam. But the importance of the service increased- was growing precisely from this difficulty of the communes Information. Today, the depopulation of a country by A famine has become almost impossible. In what- a few days, five hundred leagues, a thousand leagues, of ends of the earth, the products of a more favored land- The streams rush in and pour forth. It wasn't like that. In the Middle Ages, an insufficient harvest put everything at risk. the population of a vast, suffering state, and a A poor harvest was causing men to die by the thousands. The Jews were of great help in these matters. poignant circumstances.

If this were argued against the Church and the princes Christians, if their methods were accused of ingratitude customary towards these saviors, we would draw a conclusion- a sion that would far exceed the scope of the pressures mice, and we would show that we are not present at the es- took all the terms of the question.

The Jew, the only one strong enough to lead, with a cele- relative rarity, an operation upon which salvation depended of a people, derived incredible profits from it. Provided With only the necessary leverage, he made them pay dearly. the rental of this lever. We resigned ourselves to it. The necessity- The city was there; its law is not one that evades. and whose execution is postponed. It was endured, and, the Jew, with her. But the saved Christian did not absolve the dishonesty of the Jewish savior. He knew of- to die dishonest and oppressive, even in the emi- services they rendered; moreover, they surpassed themselves in them. to be himself, the brake having lost its force in the the only hand that could hold it.

When God brings good out of evil, he does not prevent the evil of remaining evil and attracting, whether late or not, the lightning that will strike him one day, the same Divine hand that will have brought good from it.

When a Christian prince used avarice Jewish for the salvation of a people, he did not prevent this avarice to remain even when a hated evil ble; he carefully preserved, for the future, and the passable necessity- seated, some right against her. Moreover, there remained, against the Jew, the excess of the file which was enormous.

The Church and the Christian prince were therefore

Ultimately, free to act and quite justifiably confident in maintaining, or even increasing, their severity.
The only difference is between the severity levels of the Church and those of God, that the latter can to wait for eternity; those of the Church and the prince Christians need more haste. They have no-before them than time.

3» The profession of jeweller.

Since the gold was in the hands of the Jew, it was na-turel that its implementation and the sale of the work re-came to the Jew. It was all the easier to let-to serve the Jew in this branch of commerce, that fraud
which slips, so nimbly, into so many other ne-gold, had a difficult entry into that one. Gold and silver gent, worked and ready for sale, must be verified Trusted before the sale. Everything has to go through the eye of the State, which only gives its mark to good knowingly.

4. The printing profession.

Wealth still prepared the Jew for it. To set up a Printing has always been expensive. It was.
much more, at a time when the processes were rudimenlaires, throughout this sixteenth century, beyond from which she barely goes back.

If it is objected that printing is not closed to fraud, and the worst kind of fraud, the kind that corrupts the texts, guardians of truth; ipsos custodes, di-Juvenal would say; we reply that this evil deed-

true is much less that of the printer than of the publisher (1). Only the following will go from the printing press to the public alterations bearing the publisher's approval. That is to him that alteration would remain easy; he would not have,
For this reason, only the source can be altered. That is what the Church or the Christian prince did not put the Jew in a position to do. We're happy for him to be a printer; but no, publisher nor bookseller.

9» Finally, the profession of broker and peddler.

The cosmopolitanism of the Jew predisposes him so much that his exceptional vocation is immediately apparent here,
and avoids the need to insist further.

Section IV. — Administration of Justice

Here again, the Jew was subjugated, like all the re-would seek, to a particular right.

To get an idea of the main provisions of This right, let us follow, in order, the series of persons what the administration of justice entails.

1. The judge. — We have seen that the Jew was excluded from the functions of judge, and for what reasons.
20 The aeocat. — The legal profession is an of-public file. As such, it falls into the category of those from which canon law excludes Jews.

(See above the text of the Milan Council)
3 The witness. — The Jew's testimony is not admitted against the Christian. There is, however, an exception, when the Christian himself produces the witness The excluded-the Jew's sion, done in favor of the Christian, has become a right for the Christian. However, everyone can renounce

(1) It is from the publisher that the Italians Dien E Editore—Traditore.

his right. This is the case of the Christian who produces a te-less Jewish.
(Decretals. — Book V. — Title 6 — 70)

However, the Christian's testimony is always admitted against the Jew.

| | (Cap. 21 — de Testibus)

In these provisions, concerning the witness, the Church
two thoughts: to maintain the superior situation of the Christian; to protect him against Jewish bad faith;
everywhere and always, warn Juive Vinsolence and de-
To arm Jewish perfidy.

4. The accuser. — The Jew cannot be accused-
The author publishes; it is a public office. But he can still-days to be a private accuser, that is, a plaintiff. The
To forbid him would be to exclude him from justice.

5. The accused or the defendant. — There, no reservations for the Jew. The field is open to him as wide as to person: wider, it must be said, than anyone else;
because there are offenses prescribed for the Jew, which are not not, which cannot be for the Christian. He is the privileged in the indictment, so to speak,
And that's only fair, after all the titles he has earned.
conquered by privilege.

In addition, there are three courts or jurisdictions that may have Jewish causes:

19. Ordinary courts, for offenses or crimes... common law matters.

Widely accepted to be part of a
In society, Jews are required to comply with the order of this society, and, if they disturb it through offenses,
They are liable to the penalties prescribed by the defense.
of this order.

Their tendency was, and indeed was, to dear-
to seek, by all means, to evade this judgment common rectification, ill-disposed towards them, and of

to bring back, as much as possible, to the realm of their own, where indulgence and benign interpretations affect them were. This is what Boehmer observes in the com-commentary already cited from the decretal, of Hereticis;
but this is only to conclude that a
A strong reaction against this trend.

"Let them not be received anywhere," he said, "except at this "condition; which, moreover, by the force of the cho-
"its, is implicated in their quality as subjects:"
"that, in all civil actions, they comply with the "Common law."

Non aliter recipient quam sub hac lege, (quamvis
etiam hoc per se, ex natura subjectionis, subintelliga-
tur) ut suas civil actions ad jura loci communia component.

(Daohmer. — loco cit).

2» Their own courts, for offenses or crimes-
my against their laws.

The determination and delimitation of criminal sanctions,
in the terms of which their punishment must be rendered closing is planned and recorded by the legislator Christian.

For example, although stoning is, according to the Moses' law, the punishment for adultery, it goes without saying that a Jewish group, established in a Christian country, even with synagogue, cannot stone criminals of adultery (r). :

3° The tribunal of the Inquisition.

First, for all cases common to Jews and to the Christians, that this tribunal reserves.

(1) We take the example of adultery, however it may seem to fall under common law offenses or crimes, but Divorce, which was permitted for Jews, could lead to complications.
which would require separate judges and specific case law-ciale.

-

Then, in certain cases, specific to Jews, containing offences that could not be committed only by them.

We have already mentioned some of them, when talking Christian wet nurses. Here are the others:

1° If they deny the truths in which they believe common with Christians (1).

The Church could not, as long as they were not baptized ses, to demand of them the profession of its symbol. But having accepted them as Jews, and the principal points
the core of the Jew's belief being clearly defined, she had the right to demand that they not affirm-They mass nothing contrary to this belief. And, as . everything that involved belief in dogma fell under the purview of the In-search, solely on the basis of a statement contrary to their dogmas, they found themselves, if not according to all the rigor of the law, at least, by analogy any future cases, referred to this court.

But, on the other hand, there can never be too much of clarity in matters of justice, the Church had provided that no ambiguity was possible and, Consequently, no escape route was offered to the coup- blue. She had added this special provision of the a right that overcame any pretext of ignorance and pre- any other bad excuse from the offender would have been used.

20 If they invoke demons and sacrifice to them.

Corruption, through the Pharisaic Tradition of the Talmud, from the first tradition (Aabbale), so faithful- The knowledge transmitted from Moses to Jesus Christ had...

Generated the second Kabbalah, antithesis and contradiction complete from the first.

As the first Kabbalah came from conversations Moses' intimate relationship with God and transmitted the teachings the oral teaching of God, the second was born of com- intimate communications of the rabbis with the devil and transmitted the teachings of the demon (1). This is what created Jewish affinities with Freemasonry and what is established at this time between Jews The Freemasons, the close solidarity that each knows (2).

Such a kind of wrongdoing was self-evident. ct by its sheer enormity, to the repression of the Inquisition. However, the Church still held on, here as elsewhere- theirs, so that no argument could be made based on her silence. She It is reserved for him by a positive and express law.

3. If they instruct or incite Christians to these practices (3).

---

(1) Si quis Judæus ct infidelis in iis quæ circa fidem cum illis. sunt nobis communia, veluti: Deum unum et seternum, omnipotentem, creatorem omnium visibilium et invisibilium, et similia, non esse, asseruerit, prædicaverit vel alicui privatim insinua-

truth.
(Gregory XIII. Constitution. Antiqua Judæorum improbitas, 1981.)

(1) Si diemones invocaverit consulueritve aut corum responsa accept; ad illorum sacrificia aut. preces, ob divinationem aliamve causam diverterit, aut quid eis immolaverit, vel thuris alteriusve rei fumigationes obtulerit, aut alia quievis impietatis obsequia prestiterit.

(Same constitution.)
(See also, on this subject, Gougenaud des Mousseaux, pieces supporting documents, at the end of his book: The Jew.

“People rarely put some alleged sorcerer on trial,
"that there was not a Jew involved and, everywhere, they were accused"
"Knows of all kinds of evil spells."

(Baïz. — The Jews in the 19th Century, Pages 91-94. 2nd edition.)

(2 The highest council of Freemasonry, composed of Nine members, must include at least five Jews. The Jews are there They thus find absolute masters, the majority always being assured.

(3) Si christianos, verbo, facto vel exemplo, aut alio quovis modo, nefaria hujusmodi docuerit, vel ad ea perpetranda perduxerity, perseverance, attack. —

"The Jews, the most faithful custodians of the secrets of the Kabbalah,"
"have almost always been, in magic, the great masters of
"The Middle Ages."

(Erinnaz-Lévy. — Dogma and Ritual. Vol. 11. P. 220. 2nd edition. 1861.)

Their personal sin was then compounded by sin more considerable than the one they were leading the Christian towards, betraying his faith, whom they considered a son of iniquity twice as bad as them (1). Prostituting his to the demon baptism and all the consecrations that followed it is far more serious than abdicating, at his feet, his only dignity. of man, increased by a rite, whose vaTheirs has become entirely material since the Gospel. Add to that the fact that this rite loses even more of its meaning. in the one who does not add the feelings of the heart; However, this is now, by everyone's admission, the case of the most Jews, with regard to circumcision.

And then, to engage the Christian in such observations Wasn't this putting his faith in grave danger and

To place him on the slippery slope of apostasy?

4° If they utter blasphemies against the faith (2).

The Church does not force them to profess the faith
Christian, demands that at the very least they respect it.
Had only hospitality and rights been at issue delicate issues that arise from it, that, not to insult the reli-group of those in whose home one lived, was of The most basic decency.

But there were many other reasons, including the gra-
The speed and the evidence are too striking for it to be neo-essay to insist on it.

5° If they cause a Christian to apostatize (3).

(1) Facitis eum filium gehennæ duplo quam vos.
(Ev. Saint Matthew. Ch. 23. V. 15.)

(2) Si Salvatorem ac Dominum Nostrum Jesum-Christum, purum hominem vel etiam peccatorem futisse, Matrem Dei non esse Virginem, vel alias hujusmodi blasphemias que per se hæreticæ - diei solent, in christiane fidei ignominiam, contempt aut corruptionem impie protulerit.
(Same constitution.)

(3) Si, cujusvis eorum, opera, auxilio, consilio vel favore,.
aliquis christianus a fide desciverit, quamque semel susceperat abnegaverit, vel ad Judæorum aliorumve infidelium ritus, cere-

They could not have done anything more outrageous for the Church, nor anything that would wound her more deeply.
6. If they prevent the unbelievers from converting to the faith (1).

The attack was minor, but still significant.
among those who cause the most sadness to the Church.

monias, superstitions vel impias sectas, transierit vel redierit, seu in haresim aliquam inciderit, aut cui, ut fidem Christi abneget seu in hæresim incident, opem, consilium, auxilium vel favo-

rem, quomodocumque praestiterit.
(Same constitution.)

(1) Si quis catechumenum, vel quemcumque ex Judæis vel infidelibus, Deo inspirationne, ad fidem christianam montere volentem, post declare nutu, verbo, facto, aut quocumque alio modo, ejus voluntatem, a fide vel fidei instructede, aut a sacri baptismatis. suscepte retrahere, avertere vel dchortari, aut, ne ad fidem veniat, neve regenerationis lavacro abluatur, quoquo modo impediversit.

CHAPTER VII

LEGISLATION PARTICULARLY AFFECTING RELIGIOUS LIFE

The Church's attitude towards Jewish worship,
It could only have been the simplest: this cult did not exist

not.
No temple; no sacrifice; no priest. Dis

So, where and how to find a cult (1)?

There had only ever been one temple, that one of Jerusalem. Yet not a stone of it was left on stone. Even its ruins had disappeared:

...... Etiam periere ruina

(1) “After the capture of Jerusalem, the legislation of Moses was found abolished; for it forbade the Jews to practice their “religion anywhere but in one place. It is therefore forbidden for them, "Today, to make the sacrifices of the law, to have a temple" "and an altar, to celebrate the ceremonies, to purify oneself, to atone" "the sins, to obtain propitiation; and thus, they fell back" "under the anathema of Moses, by the very fact that they wish to observe- "towards a part of their law, since Moses declared it execrable,

"Anyone who does not observe the entire law."
(EUSEBIUS. — Demonstration of the Gospel, 1. 6.)

€

~ PR Pa

Or, if some section still projected its informed on the imperfectly level ground, this debris painful was almost unaffordable for the son of Israel.
It was necessary to pay, and often very dearly, to obtain it.
eher and cry there.

There was no sacrifice possible except in this temple, whose trace had been sought in vain;
on an altar, of which one could not have found a fragment.

It was impossible to find a priest.
alone. The priesthood was to be transmitted through blood;
To prove oneself through a well-established genealogy. Now the the blood of Israel had become mingled. No more tribes, no more separate families. Utter impossibility of to trace back the slightest current that clung to the source.

And, had we succeeded, through diligent research, in finding-to see, for one alone, the lost thread, which we had not yet nothing was done, since the only altar, on which he could
He lacked the ability to sacrifice.

And, had the altar come, of itself, to meet the priest, that we were no further ahead, since he was not than a vulgar and vile stone, the only temple who was supposed to sanctify him, no longer covering him with his shadow.

Jewish synagogues have therefore never been temples. They certainly have a religious character, defined and consecrated by their ancient purpose and that Their present infidelity could not, in any respect, their retake.

Deceived by these appearances, public opinion has become accustomed to killed by considering them as temples. But to make them
The existence of real and effective temples is not within the purview of opinion; it does not even depend on it that the synagogue, that is, to a clearly defined extent and Definable, a supplement to the temple.

The synagogue existed concurrently for a long time, with the Temple, without any Jew ever having taken the change based on their essential and absolute difference. On-
The living Temple synagogue remained, except for the false interpretations of the law that are given there, this.
that it was, during its coexistence with the Temple. The
The disappearance of the Temple did not change his condition.
The Synagogue gained or lost nothing that day;
what she was like the day before Titus's fire, she] remains the next day and always. There is only his doctor who has changed. Moreover, this change dated back further. The doctor was detestable for a long time-
Time before punishment. Even the names terrible things about the Savior did not designate him as a new product.

So what is a Synagogue? – One of teaching.

And, as teaching goes, by its very nature, straight to religious dogma: that religious dogma is its soul; that it cannot do without religious dogma;
that the teaching from which religious dogma would be absent would no longer deserve the name of teaching and ife would never be considered as such, if the sound notion of things would not fail in men, if everything did not turn upside down in their minds, at the time and to the extent that the meaning
They abandon religious matters, the Synagogue is, primarily and necessarily, a chair religious education. The rabbi is a teacher of theology: occasionally, a casuist; sometimes,
a justice of the peace; but his role ends there; to extend it

To do anything else would be pure fantasy. (1)

(1) “The rabbis do not derive any authority from the law of Moses.”
"fighting on their co-religionists, and this title, known only -
"Since the dispersal, it constitutes only a mark of deference"
"given to doctors of the law, who distinguish themselves by their

But all religious teaching begins with the Prayer. Whoever conceives a lesson in religion, that does not pre-does not yield a glance upwards towards this sublime and pre- object the first of all religions, whose lesson can only be praise, and who is called God?

Prayer will therefore be found in the synagogue. After Prayer, the theoretical lesson in religion; the explanation
Scripture, the repository of truths revealed by God.
After the theoretical lesson, the practical lesson, or the predication.

The Church took great care not to deprive the Jew
of none of these three elements of religious life. Conse-precisely, she never touched or allowed anything that one She touched the religious roof that covers them. She always severely blamed the Christians who were destroying the synagogues, and she did, when she could, reconsdemolish the destroyed building at the destroyer's expense. We we had the opportunity to find out what she thought and you-milk, in this order of things, and how, in the
In the early centuries, this thought and this will had translated into laws. (1) |

"Merit. They have no jurisdiction; one only addresses oneself to
"They did so voluntarily, as if versed in the law."
(BEDARRIDE. — The Jews in France and Italy. P. 420.)
“If there are no more Levites, priests, or pontiffs, who are there?”
"So, rabbis? Nothing more than accepted doctors of law."
"by their fellow believers to recite prayers and perform
"certain religious and sometimes judicial formalities, for "which, in Judea itself and at the time when the law was the “with closer observation, the elders of each family were judged | "Sufficient."
(Chancellor Pasquier. — Memoirs. Vol. 1. C. x.)
“Our rabbis are not, like your priests, ministers”
"necessary for worship; the office of prayers is not carried out by "their organ. They are not the confidants of our consciences;
"Their power can do nothing for the salvation of our souls."
(Dracu. — Harmony of the Church etc. P. 121.)

(1) Que nuper de Judaeis et synagogis eorum statuimus firma permanent; scilicet, ut nec novas unquam synagogas permittantur extruere, nec auferendas sibi veteres pertimescant.
(E. Codice Theodosiano. — Lib. 85. Tit. De his qui super religione contendunt.)

No doubt, the Church did not allow Jews

they build, wherever and however they see fit, new synagogues. The matter was too serious, for that the appreciation of opportunities did not remain
reserved for his judgment: indiscretion, in this zeal,
On the part of the Jews, the injury, in rights, on the side Christians were likewise to be feared. The E-
The church had to ensure that, on neither side, the justice was not to be suffered; she was careful not to fail in it.

But each time a synagogue requests was well-founded, that all rights were intact, and that he
It depended solely on her; the Church took nothing away from the Jew, of the condescension she showed to everyone.

This condescension had to remain unconvinced.
hardly and held back very little on its slope so that the Synagogues flourished in the Church States.
the figure noted in the seventeenth century by historians Nothing Protestant, Basnage. Allow us to to quote again a text already known but which a A new reason arises to recall, because of the
a new element of defense than the apology of the Church
It is found there.

"We wanted to enter into a knowledge
"more accurate regarding the number and current state of their "Synagogues, in the ecclesiastical state. We find them there."
"Nine in Rome and nineteen in the countryside,"
"thirty-six in the March of Ancona, twelve in
"the heritage of Saint-Pierre, eleven in Bologna and
"Thirteen in Romagna. — This count makes
"to see that there are still a considerable number of "synagogues, in the place in the world where the Church
"Roman reigns with the most authority."

| | History of the Jews. Vol. IX — Part 2

tie C. XXXII).
This testimony is invaluable, written in a Protestant style.

aunt. Unfortunately, the sectarian couldn't resist going there mix in its wrong note. It is easy to make it disappear-traitor and the advantage of an enemy's confession will remain complete.

To say that there are still a considerable number of Synagogues in the place in the world where? Roman Church reigns with the most authority, is to insinuate that the self-

the Roman Catholic Church has been working to decrease this number. However, the exact opposite is true.
the truth.

The Church has been, for a very long time, the de facto master, in Rome, and by Rome we must understand the entire territory-Roman history, that is to say, more or less, all the portion of Italian soil which has become, by right, his territory under Pepin. Does Basnage think that there had, in the time of Saint Gregory the Great, that is to say, of the first pope who had in hand, if not official-ment, at least in practical terms, the necessity of things, an effective temporal power, the 90 synagogues that he List them? And if they weren't there, as there are So many reasons to believe it, by what authority,
with what agreement, or at least what tolerance-
How could they have been built there? Under what government?
Were they able to be preserved there?

Could this have been done without the consent of the sovereigns of country, that is to say, of the Popes, since from Greece-Gore the Great, that illustrious remnant of the empire, that heart of the Roman colossus, did not actually know of it no others (1)?

(1) From the date of Justinian's death, the sovereignty of the emperors
The claims about Rome were no longer merely nominal. Their assertions
They did it until the end, but it was nothing but an unfortunate approach.
to remind them of their powerlessness and to increase for them, if possible was, the contempt of Westerners. The de facto authority of the popes was it sufficient for them to take the initiative of the concession?
The construction of new synagogues? One wouldn't dare say so. Besides,
The prudence of the popes often prevents them from doing everything they

And why the preservation of the old synagogues?
gues, and even, where appropriate, the moderate concession
Were the Popes so little averse to new ideas?

We have already given a first example above.
reason. The decision having been made to have Jews in one's household, there was every advantage to having them good, and the only Jews, relatively good, that were possible,
They were religious Jews.

If it is objected that this religion was false,
since the coming of the Messiah; we're not done yet with the reason of moral superiority, due to the practice-than a cult. She continues, nevertheless, to to present with great force.

The sincere and practicing professed of a false religion gion, (no doubt there are such ones) will always be, simply because he is religious, an element of security-Public order and social tranquility. Always, he will bring its added strength and prosperity to the society that will have taken him in and made him its own; while, to a corresponding extent, the irreligious one does it to him will withdraw. Whatever current interest this truth may offer, This is not the place to elaborate on it. Let us say this in passing, however; that if, by admission For everyone, justice is the primary element, constituting tutif and conservative of any society, he is not of The slightest evidence that the sense of justice does not maintain It does not hold in souls, if they are not constantly ra-led by religion to its eternal source, and which The practice of justice is even less supported in the works, if religion does not hold presents to man the eternal sanctions that await, in another

They can. But in the absence of initiative, it does not seem, at least, that... doubtful, that from the beginning of the seventh century, one does not neither in Rome nor in the Roman suburbs could do anything of substance maple without the consent of the pontiffs of Rome.

life, devotions and betrayals, heroisms "or The cowardice of this present life.

But, however important this advantage may have been, the Church in drew another of a higher order and which was going to di-directly to the victory of faith. Asylum and defense of the Jewish religion, the synagogue was transformed, by The Church, in the vestibule of the Christian religion. The For her, Jewish pulpits became pulpits of Christian apostolate. To borrow the style of the present to things of the past, synagogues were as many ready-made frameworks for the Christian catechumenate of Jewish people. The rabbis had trained them; the rab-bins supplied the Church with recruits; The Church would find them there to enlist them and prepare for his militia (1).

Add that the Jew, made a good Jew, as much as he as much as possible, insofar as it depended on the Church, offered a subject much more suited to Christian Evangelization.

The Old Testament is the avenue to the New; one moving from one to the other as one moves from one living room waiting, in the master's private apartments. The only obstacles are those placed in the way. through ignorance or bad faith, dw visitor. The synagogue undermines both: ignorance of the mind, through the teaching of the law; the deloyalties of the heart, through the practice of good which it inculque to those who know the law.

This is the method Jesus used near this Samaritan woman whom he brought, with such a sweet gradalion, from the darkness of his half-kindness to the splendors of the new law.

(1) The Christian preacher succeeded the rabbi at the synagogue and gave a course on evangelical demonstrations there. He collected, or at least watered the harvest, where the rabbi, without there thinking and, above all, unintentionally, had sown the seed.

From the incomplete Judaism of his country, he led her to the complete Judaism of Jerusalem and, of Judaism from Jerusalem, in the perfect light of the Gospel.

Before making her Christian, he first makes her good Jewess.

“We love what we know, because salvation comes from the Jews. » /Your adoramus quod. scimus quia salus ex Judeis est. |

| (Ev. St John — Chap. IV — verse 22)

Salvation comes from the Jews; therefore follow, woman, the the way through which salvation passes. From Sychar, go to Jerusalem, in order to go from Jerusalem to the Gospel!

So the Church founded and organized, for the Jews, a a work of Christian instruction, which could go and find them ver in their synagogues.

This form of apostolate was not new. The ansome of our catechumens had known him in Better times. Jesus Christ had inaugurated them in their homeland during the days of his public life. How many times Did he not enter the synagogues of the Jews to to announce the good news to them. The apostles followed-They follow in the master's footsteps. Among their Acts, described by Saint Luke, the one who invariably presents himself first, every time a Jewish colony inhabits the

The city that the apostle addresses is the visit to the synagogue.
ford.

It was therefore decided that:

“Each week, the word of God would be preached
"to the Jews, and that the prelates would have to provide for them,"
"wherever there are synagogues; that this
"The sermon would be delivered by a Master of Theology,"
"or another suitable preacher, instructed in the lan-
"Hebrew, if possible; which one their pen
"would seek the Scriptures of the Old Testament."

Hebreis, qualibet hebdomada, Verbum Dei est.

prædicandum, et id curent Prælati, in terris ubi sunt
eorum synagogæ, per aliquem magistrum in sacra theologia aut alium idoneum virum, hebraïcæ, si
fieri potest, linguæ peritum, qui Scripturas veteris Testamenti exponat.
(Greg. XIII — Const. Sancta Mater 1584
— And Clement XI — Propaganda Constitution
— 1704 — ad Calcem)

"In addition, there will be a preacher or catechist."
"in particular, for children of both sexes, which "will instruct them familiarly and answer all
"Their questions. For these instructions, the children, se-"
"will have been taken aside, in a meeting that will not be
"that of their parents and other people, of age
"More advanced."

Pueri ac pullæ, seorsum a parentibus atque aliis majoribus natu, conceionatorem audiant qui ipsos familitary institute and interrogantibus benign satisfa-ciat. |

(Ex primo. Conc. Mediolanensi jam citato)

— But, the opponent objects, the Church did not offer only his preaching, to the Jews of good will lonté: she was not content with simply approaching her Apostle and to make it accessible to people, she imposed.

— We reply that the Church was at home and that one is always master in one's own home. She didn't find herself not in the presence of spiritual subjects, that's true; the Jews were not her sons, and she did not impose on them not to be. But the Jews were his guests, and, from guests of pure mercy, welcomed as such, under special conditions that had not been granted to them to ignore; that it had been the right of the Church, to impose-to serve, firstly, to make observed, then.

The educated and catechized Jew remained free to adhere-to accept or reject the faith that was preached to him. Nothing more.

expressly forbidden to force any of them to baptheme. But they could be forced, and they were forced, to
In fact, to come and receive the preparation, to hear the exhortation at baptism. The law enacted for the constraintdre should find them all the less resistant, that she carried within her, if not all reason, at least,
the most serious reason for the hospitality that is granted to them-yielded. It was, above all, the desire and the hope of to lead them to the truth, which determined the Church, libre, moreover, to repel them, to welcome them and to
to tolerate them on his land.

She knew these places well enough to know what His sons would suffer because of their neighbors. But, having learned from Saint Paul that the return, at full speed-Cail, for these lost souls, would be the culmination of salvation.
all: Quod si delictum eorum divitiæ sunt mundi et diminutio eorum, divitiæ gentium: quanto magis plenitudo eorum (Saint Paul ad Rom. — C. XI); these sa-
The ordeals seemed light to her and she was sure of seeing them valued as such by children trained in his school and animated by its spirit.

Between Israel, which demanded land and water, and the Church that granted them to him, the first clause of the
The contract concluded was therefore this: "All means "that the Church will deem suitable to lead. Israel to the "professions of the Catholic faith may be, and will be-"
"will, in fact, be employed by the Church. (1)

It is evident, moreover, that Christian preaching tienne in the synagogues, did not wear the least-infringement on the religious freedom of the Jew, since it neither eliminated nor hindered any of the his religious acts in the same synagogues. The

(1) See the end of the third chapter: The Juice Law.

The Christian preacher had nothing in common with the intruder, nor even of the troublemaker. He was waiting to begin, who reset, nothing more to do at the rabbi's.

Another provision that could have, first of all,
While appearing more intolerant, it didn't actually hurt.
Moreover, this freedom.

The Church prescribed the observance of the holidays for Jews.
Christians: |

“The Jews who live in Rome are obliged to ob-
"Service of holidays observed by the Church."

Hebræi, in Urbe, obligantur ad observationem festorum que servat Ecclesia. (Paul IV — Const. — Cum (nimis absurdum)

This was the rule for Rome in religious matters, generally obtained the force of law throughout the Church.
It was inevitable that this would be the case, in the circumstances...
tact. Whatever the place and method of application, of the present measure, the discipline that it put in vigor was obviously more akin to canon law than Christian civil law. Therefore, one conformed to it. everywhere.

The reader who misunderstands, and, even more so, the one who cares little to understand, one might conclude, from this text, that the Church obliged the Jew to all the external part-laughter at the Catholic cult, to which its faithful were bound. Nothing could be more inaccurate and there would be best way to distort the thinking of the Church.
The terms used by the legislator express nothing of a similar kind. Paul IV does not say that the Jews are obliged to celebrate Church holidays but, & their observance, which is quite different. — That means to say that they must not disturb these festivities; that they are required to do nothing outwardly contrary to their celebration; that they need, in all things;

avoid judging by their clothing, their attitude, their actions and gestures, underlying clothing and attitude, the actions and deeds of the Christian; for example, and all especially, that they must, outside, abstain servile works which, on those days, are abstaining from Christians.

I say, outside; for the prohibition does not extend to inside the houses. The Jews can continue, There, to be Jewish and to behave like Jews. It is about So simply, for the Church, it's about ensuring its worship; not at all to hinder that of the Jews.

(See the Constitution of Paul IV. — Cum | nimis absurdum etc. & 5. — Parts supporting documents)

And, as evidenced beyond any doubt, is the attentative protection whose observance is covered by the Church of their sabbaths: “Let no one,” wrote Innocent III,
"Do not disturb them on holidays, either by...
"striking, either by throwing stones at them; that per-
"The sound does not impose on them, during these days, any ou-"
"erages they can make at other times..."
"Those who violate these prohibitions will be "Excommunicated."
= (Innocent LIT. — Epit. 302)

The sanction that the Pontiff affixes to his ordinancenance, shows the importance he attaches to it. He doesn't care about it. could not be more severe. Innocent III, moreover, did not than to renew the edicts of his predecessors, in partparticular, of Alexander III.

The prohibition against Christians participating, even from the furthest away, to these festivals, for example, to make the apclose to the objects, to provide lighting, to allighting the lights, etc., was not contrary to these Protective measures.

We have already given, during our study on the

~

Jewish family, some reasons for severe discipline and almost meticulous to which the Church subjects the services of all kinds, from the Christian to the Jew. The ter-religious rain, on which we find ourselves, in this
At the moment, it suggests new ones of a completely different kind.
They are of great importance. They belong to the special category.
of services that the discipline had to regulate here,
or to prohibit.

For the Church, this was a matter of peril to the faith of its children. It's not just about making approaches, providing even, more directly, matter and elements of the rite, was, in the eyes of the Church, a participation to the rite itself. These distant helpers were found in the situation of the worker who makes a toiletry item or the merchant who sells it. Neither one Neither party is responsible for the abuse that will be committed.
The conduct of these Christian men and women was therefore not guilty, either by herself or by the the nature of things. Even the most severe themselves do not would not have considered it seriously reprehensible. She
It became so through the prohibition imposed by the Church.

As for everything concerning faith, and from such a distance as it
The Church has always been sensitive to this matter.
extreme. In such a state of affairs, there is never
For her, too many guarantees; she doesn't put any limits.
born to his precautions.

The reason is quite simple. Faith is the root.
Cut down the trunk of a tree, nothing is irreparable.
lost ment; new shoots will spring up; the na-
The tree will repair its losses; flowers and fruits will reappear in their time.

But pull the root out of the ground, it's all over, it's the Taking possession of death: that is sterility in everything Never.
It should therefore not be surprising that, overall services that it forbids to Christians near the Jews, the church had done, services related to the Synagogue gogue and to any religious rite whatsoever —Ja ma-

a third of a special and more severe prohibition.

We have a duty to oppose the Jews doing-
"sent their fires being lit by the Christians in particular-
"lightly on the Sabbath day; even though they "would acknowledge these services through a donation to
"Pious works."

Non debet eis permitti, ut a Christianis .accendatur ignis, in suis domibus, preserlim, die Sabbati, etiam si offerrent eleemosynam locis piis erogandam.

(Ex declarationibus sacra inquisitionis, 1592-109 7-1612-1616-1628. Ferraris)

All the more so, it is forbidden to Christians to attend the ceremonies and predicates of Jews in synagogues, particularly at the rite
of their circumcisions. | E

“Che niun Christiano dell' uno et dell' altro sesso, di qualsivoglia qualità e dignità che si sia, Ardisca d’entrere nelle Synagoghe o Scuole degli
Ebrei, ad hear the loro prediche, ad assiste alle loro circumcisioni o other ceremony, a receivevere da
essi azimelle by qualsivoglia pretesto.

(dictum St Officii — December 21, 1608)

The final words of the Edict define it as an offense
the fact, for the Christian, of receiving from the Jews Unleavened bread, at Passover time. It is certain that no religious character was inherently attached to the gift or acceptance of these unleavened breads. The unleavened breads
They are simply bread made differently.
It is not a question here that he received any benefit-
Jewish diction, nor even having passed through the synagogue. The ac-Acceptance of this bread was, ordinarily, a simple matter of curiosity, especially on the part of children.

But the Church never believed it could push things too far.
circumspection, as soon as a religious, non-ca- meaning Catholic, of any act or action whatsoever
of his faithful, remained possible and could do to cast the slightest suspicion on the purity of their faith.

There is something safer than banning
To enter is to close all the doors. The Church he was going for the safest option. Nothing was too much for the safety of his son.

Moreover, on this point as on all others,
the Church's prohibition did not prevent the Jew
to be free in everything that the accomplishment required-
the most complete and meticulous of his domestic rituals.

The Church did not hinder the Jew, neither in the making nor in the eating of his unleavened bread, nor in the observice of no domestic detail of the celebration of her Easter. She would only have vetoed one attempt at A cult that would have been reminiscent of the temple. But nothing of the sort-
There was no need to fear blabbering; the Jew didn't even have any.
thought.

But there is one point where the Church was careful not to
She must not forget any of her strict measures, where she had to place herself.
"where she has indeed placed herself in the way of Jewish worship, with an intolerance that did not include mesure and which no one could think of reproaching him for -
Dear energy, that's the one we still need to talk about.

It is a religious rite of the dispersed Jew, of a character-Exceptional land, which emerges, with terrifying relief, from the category of ordinary rites; which has acquired, in History, a sinister celebrity; we want to talk ritual murder or human sacrifice.

The Jew, to whom the very text of his law rendered the sacrifice of the bull, the goat and the alamb, substituted a victim who recalled his blood-

crifices of old on the high places, and made, in Moreover, an element of his cult, of the most horrible kind satisfaction from his hatred.

In remembrance of Christ crucified, to give to the crime of Calvary, until the end of time, with a
a horrific memorial, a kind of indefinite prolongation,
He sanctified, whenever he could, each year-anniversary of the deicide, through the immolation of a Christian Here.

As he once wanted, without blemish, the lamb of his Easter (1), he also takes care of the purity of the victim: his preferences are for the child. He She's even preoccupied with finding him handsome; she likes him.
in body as in soul, everything should be irreproachable

ble; so that nothing is lacking in the excellence of an act religious figures, of whom he makes an exquisite part of his worship,

To speak ill of the Jew and remain silent about ritual murder, to... would omit what is essential in the case.
We don't like the shadows and we've done everything to leave nothing behind. To get the most out of it.
The present question is our most fervent desire. Nowhere
The light of history is no longer necessary, because that nowhere has the lie done more, to create at night.

Thank God, we don't have to look far.
this light. It is with his torch in hand that we
we have, so far, followed in the footsteps of, across the world, our tireless pilgrim. Ready to leave him, we do not we would know how to deposit it in a better place, to remain there in a fixed manner, the road light. If it is a point from which its gleams spread better and continue to illuminate with an overall radiance,

(1) The Jews no longer eat the Passover lamb because "it no could only be sacrificed in the Temple.
(Buxronr. — De Synag. jud. 10. 18.)

the paths covered in the long race, that is,
Certainly, that which we touch.

This question, moreover, does not have the complication that one might believe him. It all comes down to theory.
general historical certainty. Apply it to Ritual murder and the conclusion will follow of itself:
Your case will be judged. The rest is just a...
A walk through the facts. They all introduce themselves, in conditions and with a physiognomy pareilles; their proofs are the same. Who has de-
He showed one, he demonstrated them all.

But there is nothing stronger in all of history
that this demonstration.

Let us observe, first of all, that ritual murder is in full possession of the story.

And it is not only that, as such a historical factrisk who first acquired this possession in the annals of a country, to then pass through a path of annexation, so to speak, to the other countries under the law of its certainty. That is the ordinary mode acquisition and possession of the domain of history by the facts, and this method is sufficient for everyone, so that this possession remains peaceful, safe from any attack. Except for the skeptics who dispute everything, nobody she disputes it.

But the ritual murder is, on the spot and of the first by hand, immediately and without communication or annexation, in possession of all the stories: in possession from the history of France, with the child Saint Richard: in possession of the history of England, with the child Saint William; in possession of the history of Esloincloth, with the crucified child of Saragossa, saint Dominicule; in possession of the history of Germany Magne, with the young Saint Werner of Wezel; possession of the history of Italy, with the holy child Simon of Trent.

Only one of these facts, established in a single story local, and then passed into all the others, in by virtue of this public faith, which is the basis of relations tions of the peoples and of which no suspicion succeeds to shake the testimonies, would have all the certainty which ordinary historical facts enjoy; one does not have Nothing more was required for these. No one has Their titles were found to be insufficient, so they are held in these conditions and the best of rights, for proven and indisputable.

Who, then, will be able to say what the degree of certainty is? to which will arise five facts, (there are many others, but five are here in such abundance that each includes); what amount of certainty will produce five facts, pressed tightly together, and whose certirespective study, sufficient for each, multiplies by the certainty of the four facts which surround itnent. Isn't that what we can call, with a a style that history hardly uses, but which gives itcomes eminently in the circumstance, a certiStudy to the fifth power?

However, this is what happens with the act of murder. ritual, performed without any concert, across five theaters: repeated, concurrently, in five national histories nales. | mE |

Only one fact in each case would be needed, so that This prodigious certainty was acquired by everyone.

What if each story contains several?
and affirms them all, equipped with liters of the same value, and as one affirms what is most indubitable to
world. | |

I ask if there is any historical criticism that can demand more. Can one even imagine that the thought come to someone to undertake something against a similar possession?

The eighteenth century, however, ventured into it.
But what didn't the eighteenth century attack?

And what objections did the tenth-eighth century to the acceptance of what unanimously, twenty generations of French, English, and Spanish people,
Had German and Italian women accepted before him?

Religious passion, they said, is the scourge of Religious history. It either blinds or it corrupts.
the historian who writes it. There is no genius or consciousness of history-
No matter how hard you look at it. Deceived or deceivers, it's a an alternative from which no one can escape.

In these terms, the testimonies of all the historians
Nothing in the world constitutes a valid title.
They are no longer the ones who own it; it is the reader.
He who possesses something against them is prudent; he must revise and to verify everything they claim.

But, in this respect, we will reply, the certainty his-'Toric makes water from all sides and there is not a single done in all of history that could escape the ship-question. If religious passion leads history astray, the others passions will in turn lead him astray, primarily these high-flying and far-reaching passions, including the
the game constitutes the drama of humanity and whose scene
The world is a stage.

But there is no man in the world, mixed up like
as an actor or as a writer, to the things of history, who is not, in addition to his small little passions of no one, no family, no parishioners, already enemies, more that one would not want, calm and impartiality of the historian, affected by one or another of the three major These passions are: political passion, passion for school, religious passion.

How many times, by all three of them together?

But politics, school, religion, that's the whole field of history.

Let's take, for example, political passion. What Your method of criticism prevails, and the greatest, the most resounding events in the world become- They create, at the time, just as many problems.

Are you quite sure, for example, that the battle of Pharsalus was conquered by Caesar, or even that there was Was there a Battle of Pharsalus? Certainly, if there ever was one passionate people in the world, these were the mixed-race men to these facts and who affirmed them. Who can answer that they did not stage a battle at Pharsalus At their convenience? And if denials were to occur, If an independent voice dared to speak, wouldn't they loud enough, with enough control over the noise, to cover the dissenting voices, to stifle, from the cradle, these Impertinent and powerless testimonies? When one In fact, passion has the final say in things; we must go To the very end. We can only stop where passion leads us. stops; and who could accurately indicate on a map, marpinpointing on a map, the precise point where passion arches rest?

Or, if the battle of Pharsalus seems to occupy you too much space in history for us to be able to impose it to be aware of the world's issues, the number of actors involved, and - witnesses not including it; the imposture being found thwarted in advance, by the impossibility of the concert between the imposters, let's take another fact very close to the prefirst and who was no less than him, agitated, frantic with passion everything around him. |

Caesar's death, our skeptics will tell us, is... a pure invention of Antoine and Octave. There was, . Through them, so many advantages to giving free rein to such noise! Caesar fell, struck down by a sudden stroke. Anle at the foot of the statue of Pompey. That's all the reality. Antoine couldn't find anything better than to... to riddle with blows from his stylus, to run to the rostrum with his bloody toga and to create the furies of people against the alleged murderers, of whom all the

Their crime was being enemies of Antoine. They believed him.
This was not the time for denials, it was the time to flee.
and to the quickest. A rioting mob hears nothing: Brutus and Cassius ran at the first opportunity bucket and Antoine's deception, aided by this escape and soon after the victory, took possession for the posterity. |

Thus it became established in history, never to be again.
To go out, the fable of Caesar's assassination.

Our people haven't considered that if passion can deceive an individual, or cause an individual to deception, on a private matter, passion cannot deceive humankind, nor make any humankind deceives, on a matter of public order; because, on a .
In such a vast field, the passion of some encounters all-days the opposite and contradictory passion of others.
This one neutralizes that one, and possession remains to what constitutes the difference, that is to say, to the truth.

This is what gives it a historical truth.
world.

De Maistre's saying: 'history is a constant cons-aspiration against truth, is just a joke by a man
He was so excited, he didn't even believe it himself.
It was a literary trope that came to the end of the pen of the great writer, and lent his happy highlighting the thought he wanted to emphasize.
Joseph de Maistre could not accept the heavy the prosaic nature of a sentence like this: The way which the modern historical school uses with history
is a way of doing away with historical truth.
That's what de Maistre meant. But how many Doesn't his alert turn say it better?

History is even less about this conspiracy

M

that it would be at the same time, on the same ground, to at the same time, the agent and the victim of the conspiracy-tion. One does not conspire against oneself. That's what Joseph de Maistre knew better than anyone else,
and that which gives meaning and measure to his hyperbole

Oratory. Eloquent men instinctively use of all the means of eloquence. Who more than Was Maistre endowed with this instinct? Religious passion Therefore, it has nothing to do with a matter of such proportions. considerable, also widely and powerfully seated in history, that the ritual murder of Jews.

Once established, this fact requires no support or conTreforts. Its very historical composition proves its truth; it derives its strength from itself; mole sua stat. Everything that happens to him will be for him the result of... perflu.

And yet, this superfluity is far from being indifferentto the cause and to appear there as a negligible quantity This fact, so certain in itself, presents itself as the cover and with the countersignature of the public authorities from all countries. And, what is less insignificant Again, these are the terms, under which appear each of these powers. It's Philip Augustus, it's Saint Louis, in France. It's Saint Henry, it's Maximilian, in Germany. That's Saint Ferdinand. In Spain. It's Henry III. In England. It's Gregory XIII is the Italian equivalent of Sixtus V.

To question the integrity of these men is something difficult. -

First, there are three Saints among these men.

We Catholics are honored with the adto at least instill probity in those whom we place fools on our shoulders. Who, for example, can have some notion, even the most rudimentary, of the characterland and the history of Saint Louis, and demand that one

Does it prove the probity of Saint Louis? Indeed, if he does He advised us, we would send it back to Voltaire.

And Voltaire, who spoke so well of the virtue of saint Louis, it was probably not the case. The opportunity presented itself, expressed differently, on that of his cousin saint Ferdinand, of that other admirable Christian knight, who routed so many Moors and who feared more the tears of poor Tee than all the armies of the Moors.

It is difficult to recognize dishonor by these signs.

clear man.

And Saint Henry II, the chaste husband of Saint CuneGonde, he had found, in its marvelous purity, The advisor, without any disloyalty?

Henry III did not rise that high, for virtue, which his royal contemporaries of Franthis and Spain. But he was, by everyone's admission, one of the best and most honest kings of Englandland. | |

Maximilian I left throughout Germany, and particularly in Tyrol, his favorite province, to to which he bequeathed his ashes, a reputation for righteousness which still lives.

Finally, if anyone doubted the fairness of Sixtus and of Gregory XIII, he would give, from his ignorance in history, such abundant proof, that it It would be difficult to add anything. We would not have, with He had no need of our Catholic masters; we... we would see them being educated near the Protestant Ranke.

— But these men were simple-minded, Little culture, prone to credulity. Nothing more It's easy to surprise them. Emerging from the night of the Middle Ages... Age, they held, from the milieu from which they came, a intellectual deficiency that delivered them, feet and With their hands tied, they denounce all imposters and those who expose them.

of herself, to our distrust, everything that can... to come from them.

— It's right there, in one of its many- | its variants, the style of convinced pity of our modern, for their ancestors in science. Indeed, If there is anything in the world worthy of pity, it is pity. of these people. It is impossible. better way to interCast the roles.

We should, for a moment, bring these powerThese students of Pierre Lombard, gifted with intelligence, of Albert the Great, of Thomas Aquinas, of Duns Scot, Bonaventure, and put them in the presence of our scholars of journalism and the Review. The tourOurs would be short, and the first exchange of blows would quickly return our self-satisfied selves, in the feelings of legitimate modesty, which they would have wisely made of Never go out.

To rely on the strength of the body, such a precious foundation of the vigor of the mind; of what compassion
These robust men would not be moved, honor of the human race, if we were to have them slaughtered before their very eyes,
a few hundred of their sickly descendants!
This debility is a strange predisposition to genius.
Physical! That's not how Juvenal meant it:
A healthy mind in a healthy body.
"A healthy body," he said! "That is the order of wisdom and..."
the harmony of God's works.

Everything, therefore, contributed to making our voluptuous ancestors, men of high intellectual worth, truly superior minds.

We cannot track everyone's every move, nor can we track each other between them.
take a record, even the most brief, of their works. What confusion would await their detractors!

One will answer for all. Is there among our government men, who, before arriving

Those in power were almost all lawyers.
Is there a magistrate or minister who took it upon himself to write
The establishments of Saint Louis? If we are told that it is the work of Étienne-Boileau — Yes, answer-shall we, as the Napoleonic Code is the work of Portalis; but on the condition that he does not an article that had not been weighed and discussed with Napoleon.
Do we think that the most just and righteous of our kings, the judge of the oak of Vincennes, let putting one's name at the bottom of a code, without being aware and without realizing a perfect complex of his con-held(1)? ..

These men were therefore as educated as they were honest-
These men, each in their own way, represented honor.
of a great people, and their affirmation is none other
something that the word of this honor.

And it is under the guarantee of the authority of these men, the considerable fact presents itself, the fact,
unparalleled in his possession, including some writings vain lights, a few daily purveyors of sloppy prose, in the pay of some tabloid newspaper

(1) Saint Louis made his will before leaving for the second crusade. The main legacies included therein consist of Books: there are some for Dominicans, some for Franciscans, for the monks of Royaumont, and a more considerable lot for the religious community of Compiègne. It was the distribution, as testamentary, from the private library of the saintly king, Saint Louis. would not have thought of touching a public library.

Obviously, Saint Louis was not one of those ama- bibliophiles sellers, who buy books to fill gas cylinders for the sole purpose to be seen from behind in a living room cabinet. If Saint Louis He acquired books, it was to read them. He had not been for nothing the student of Vincent of Beauvais, the most learned man of his century. He had amassed an ample store of knowledge, at that school. He nurtured this knowledge and, for this purpose, he employed the means of all those who do not want to see flee, in the near future, Their minds, all they know: books.

€

ws

or of such a Review born yesterday, want to strip The story? E

But we have just uttered a word which is the Last of all, it requires further investigation. Everything here, in fact, rests on authority. There is no has only one source of evidence, only one fund from which so that the historical truth can be brought to light and made visible Toric, the authority of testimonies. We are not not in the land of mathematics or metaphysics sique. What is asserted does not carry weight, like a an idea or a figure, its evidence in its Intrinsic analysis. All certainty comes from the Outside, and outside there is only testimony, and On the surface of the testimony, there is only one mark The good quality of testimony: authority.

The authority that commands the mind, (for it cannot (it is only a question of that one here,) renders its decisions in two courtrooms which transfer, one onto the other, the support of verdicts of their magistracy: the court and the school. There are the legal authorities and the scientific authorities. fiques.

We say scientific authorities.

For, although history does not derive its light from...
elements, nor compounds that pass through his hands;
although it does not demonstrate the truth
because she affirms, from the very bowels of this
In fact, it remains nonetheless a science; because that the principle of certainty of fact, discovered by her apart from the fact, but to which it is closely related—
The fact is, it is a certain principle: that the deductions
tions get away with an equally rigorous logic—
reuse than those that accompany the deductions
mathematics and metaphysics; that the conclusions
they follow with the same clarity; and that, by not—
By shedding this light on the facts, it gives them a

—9392— |
a fixity that discussions will no longer shake (1); that
The assured and definitive result will be, for the mind,
a system on which he can rely, like
It relies on the hypotenuse square theorem
or the thesis of the immortality of the soul.

But, above these authorities which apply to everyone,
For both believers and unbelievers, he is an authority.
which is valid only for the Catholic believer, the authority of judgment of the Church.

No doubt, every time she intervenes, the au—
Church authority, does not become, by far, the pre—mine for the latter, and that he should not, without hesitation, to prioritize it, before any other, in terms of promptness and the firmness of the commitments, which he grants to the truth.

To give him an example, these are the rights of this authority that we will state and assert the first ones. Also, before providing for the di—set of the foreigner, is it more than just to drive out the famine among his own people. If anything could increasing the priority status of Catholics, this se—would give us the opportunity to double our merits, nearly of them, through the unexpected accumulation of services. There is, here,
There are more and better things to do than prove the murder to them.
ritual. To restore to them the meaning of their Christian faith, is of a far greater importance, especially since it is to decide for them, at the same time, the question of ritual murder.

Nothing is as frequent and sad an encounter as Catholic convictions and consciences are insufficient well illuminated. The sense of the supernatural has become

(1) We mean the substance of the facts; as for the
In incidental circumstances, there are few who can obtain and who obtain, in effect, this unshakeable fixity which is the condition-tion of historical certainty.

so weak in a large number, it's like a pulse of a patient whose groping hand the doctor has.
It's hard to even notice the movement. It's unheard of with how easily such a Catholic commits, in the concurrent versations; indeed, in such a written page;
sometimes, in a given page delivered to the printer, the dis-
the temptation to forget, that the Catholic Creed remains, Above all, the intellectual treasure of his mind,
his inviolable reserve of truth and the obligatory verifier of any statement presented to him; with what calmly unconscious, he will let it fall from his lips
such rationalist discourse has taken hold in the public sphere, which he gathered along his way, and of which he increased the light fund, from which he draws, without further re-to keep, the daily nourishment of his conversations with the world; what smiling complacency he holds ready to the apostle of false science, who comes, with a parconvoluted path, declare reverie, creation of minds weak or haunted minds, what's more venerable in the immemorial Catholic tradition.

Yet they have not withdrawn their submission to the Church and to be treated simply as weak in faith, would be, for some of them, the ultimate achievement of the insult.

In reality, they are not, generally, among those who
They do not, as much as one might think,
At first glance, cheap of their Credo. This does not they are not rebels; they are not even
They are shaken in their obedience; they are ignorant. They ignore the titles of the Church, and the value of these titles.
very. And that is why, when they side with the opinion of the freethinker who frightens their poor minds by the assurance of its placement, through the air and the rhythmic tone of his superiority, through the incisive prose of his brochure and from his journal, beware of mistaking them for heretics who unmask themselves; they are nothing but Ignorant people who betray themselves. They don't know that The Church has long affirmed its opposition to improvisation.

doctor, or, if they know, they have no idea of the scope of this statement.

In the present question, Jewish journalism, the noisier these days, by far, will put by requisition the ban and the arjére-ban of its publicity dishonest. They will deny it in every style; they will support it.
his denial of all lies.

"It is the stupid obscurantism of the Middle Ages that "put these absurdities into circulation. This dates back to a
"A time when all accusations were valid"
"against the Jews, where no calamity could establish-
"to focus on a corner of Christendom: plague, famine,
"inclement weather, disturbance of heaven and earth, without which
"A Jew would not have signed his agreements with her. The lu-
"Modern media have done justice to these creations"
"Fantastic, ignorant of the past."

Art, however, will not be lacking in the defense.
and Isracl's lawyer is far from always being a man talentless.

The Catholic subscriber to the unbelieving newspaper does not hold

-= not in front of this noise. Likewise, the mere fact of its
The subscription gives a pretty good indication of what its resistance. It is clear that his religious convictions-His will have little part in it. If he possessed them so much dimly lit and unlit, they would have provided shelter from the attack by making it unapproachable to the aggressor.

And then, it belongs to a century where the noise of things is everything, and their truth is very much on its way to being nothing.
Therefore, how can all reason and all truth not be Wouldn't they find, at the end of the uproar, what deafened him?

He therefore harbors no doubt about the perfect innocence of the accused Jew, no more than on the fanatical aberration of twenty generations of Christians

Look who's accusing him.

He completely forgot, in the midst of this dizzinessdissement, quite often even, he never had suspicion that the Church had opened an opinion on the question; that she had expressed this opinion very loudly; that an official and significant act of his authority had conveyed this message to the world.

He doesn't even suspect that the Church has canonized the victims of the ritual murder of Jews, that is to say, that in proposing them for Christian worship, she placed, on her au- such, along with their bloody limbs, the Acts, written in his own hand, of their martyrdom. There is an office and a public cult of Blessed Andrew of Rinn, mar-

Tyrol was invaded by the Jews. There is a church and a place of worship.

public of Saint Simon, martyred by the Jews in Trent. The Church even went further in this regard. than in ordinary beatifications; which she does not the fact that for the canonized, she did it for this beatified- trusted; she inscribed him in her Martyrology.

But, to fully grasp the importance decisions and the scope of high-level pronouncements of the Church, in the cause of Saint Simon of Trent, a succinct summary of the history of this cause becomes. almost necessary. We have every ease in this, having than to transcribe. Benedict XIV himself made this summary in his bulla: Beatus Andreas, February 22, 1755.

"In the year 1483, the blessed child, Simon de “Thirty was cruelly put to death by the Jews; in "Hatred of the faith; he was not yet three years old."
"This atrocious crime, so much and such great disruption"
"were born, the Jews put into practice such-
"the machinations, to escape the punishment of the wicked-»fity and divert from them the just animosity of Christians, whom Sixtus IV could not refuse to put in before his intervention to suspend the worship public (r) that we had begun to return to the Blessed- Simon, until they were brought into full view Miere, that he had indeed been killed by the Jews, out of hatred of the Christian faith. The brief of Sixtus IV has been cited by us in our work on canonization of Saints. (Liv. r. – Ch. IV. – No. ị)

"When the evidence had then become clear and the evidence establishing this had been produced, that it had been clearly demonstrated and the death motive which had pushed to give it; that he would have been similarly cons-determined that the murderers were Jews, as It emerges from the trial which is currently being held, in the secret archives, at Castel Sant'Angelo, as well as we have mentioned in our work on the Canonization of the Saints. (Lv.III — Ch. — XV — No. 6), Pope Sixtus V issued, in the year 1588, a brief of concession for the celebration of Mass and the recitation of a proper office, in honor of the Good-happy Simon, in the city and throughout the whole dio-Caesar of Trent, granting, in addition, an indulgence plenary prayer to all those who have confessed and received communion, will visit on the same day the church where his Relics... |

"...Between what we have conceded for worship:
of Blessed Andrew and what our predecessors
decreed for the worship of Blessed Simon,

(1) This suspension of public worship by Sixtus IV does not invalidate in nothing in the argument drawn from public worship, as proof of historical truth-risk of ritual murder. This first public cult was born from a popular movement. The regular procedure had not taken place and the judgment of the Holy See had not yet been issued. It was issued. under Sixtus V. It was only from then on that the beatification of Blessed Simon counts as a judgment of the Holy See, and,

Since then, everything has remained beyond discussion and unshaken.

Jable.

"There is, however, this difference, that the name of the Good-“Happy Simon was enrolled, by order of the Pope” “Gregory XIII, in the Roman martyrology, as
"we reported it in our Book I of the ca“nonization. Chapter IV. — No. 4 (1). »

Therefore, there is a judgment from the Church in this act.
of his authority, which is called a beatification. This judgment is of a lower order than that implied by a Decree of Canonization. There, Papal Infallibility intervenes and renders a judgment that cannot be overturned. Such is not no, it must be hastened to say, the scope of the decree of Beatification. But it remains, below the first,

the most serious thing the Church can do in the ma-

(1) Sub anno 1485, fut ab Hebræis in odium fidei Christi — sævissime occisus beatus Simon, Tridentinus puer, qui nonduin expleverat tertium ætatis suæ annum. Ex inhumano hoc scelere tot tantæque turbo derivarunt totque ae tantis artibus usi sunt Judaei ad promeritas poenas declinandas avertendumque a se justum Christi fidelium odium, ut Sixtus IV refugere haud potuerit, quin ea in re intercederet prohibendo, ne qui antea publicus cultus beato Simoni praestabatur, ei amplius exiberetur, quousque perspicuum evasisset eumdem in odium christiane fidei fuisse a Judieis trucidatum.

(Sixtus IV. Brief relatum a nobis fut in nostro opere de canonizatione sanctorum. Lib. 1. C. 4. N* 4.)

Cum vero subinde palam oninia facta flouisent, allatisque probationibus demonstrata, una eum nece, ejusdemquæ inferendæ caused, atque constitisset etiam Hebraeos interfectores leak, velut evincitur ex processu, which, vel tunc temporis, in secretiori archivio castri Sancti Angeli servatur, quemadmodum monuimus in nostro opere de canonisatione sanctorum (lib. 3. C. 15. No. 6) a Sixto V pontifice, anno 1588, datum fut breve concessionis miss: celebrandæ ac officii proprii, in civitate universaque diecesi "Tridentina, in honorem beati 'Simonis, definita die recitandi, superaddita indulgentia plenaria omnibus which, confessions sionis ac communionis sacramentis muniti, die eadem sacra, visited Ecclesiam in qua ejusdem reliquie coluntur..........

Inter ea vero, quie vel ipsi pro beati Andre» cultu indulsimus, vel predecessores nostri pro cultu beati Simonis decreverunt, hoc unum discrimen est, quo nimirum, jussu Gregorii XIII pontificis, beati Simonis nomen in martyrologium romanum fut illatum, uti prænotavimus in nostro libro 1 de canonisatione C. 4. No. 4. |

(Ex bulla Beatus Andreas. Feb. 22, 1755.)

third. The decrees of.
Beatifications granted by the Popes. Not only
Not a single one has been reformed, but the idea is never coming to no one, that no reform should ever modify none.

If we contrast the suspension of the cult of the Blessed-Simon, as reported by Benedict XIV, answers us-

gifts that no decree of the Church had yet inter-had come. There was simple tolerance on the part of Rome.
Until the decree of Urban VIII, which established the legislation of the Church on the matter, the worship, even public, of people considered holy by the people of such and such a city, from such a region, dead, as they say, in the odor of holiness, could enter with the simple authorization-The lion of the Ordinaries. The Pontiff of Rome had not again brought back to himself this communicated part of his jurisdiction. Since Rome reserved these rights to itself-
the decrees of Beatification also remain im- |
mutable in fact that the decrees of Canonization are,
by right.

If the Church did not want, for any of the children or games-people martyred by the Jews, and of whom we have cited a few names, moving from beatification to ca-nonisalion, it is not due to the insufficiency of their cause. Benedict XIV expresses the Church's motives, during the aforementioned Bull. We will not know-one could read the exposition without admiring the wisdom of the great Pope.

This is, no doubt, to make any mis-
Gregory XIII's grasp on the thinking of the Church proceeded, with regard to the little martyr of Trent, to a such an exceptional act, that it only appears this only once in history and that we don't know he had
There was never any question of renewing it. Gregory XIII inscribed the child of Trent in the Martyrology, and this, no

under the title of Blessed, but under that of Saint, on the date of March 24th.

"At Trent, the Passion of Saint Simon, little innocent
"cruelly slaughtered by the Jews, in hatred of Christ"
"and who, afterwards, shone with many miracles"
"keys" (1).

To conclude that a decree of canonisation, would be excessive and would carry, beyond the Terms of the text, the rights of the case. The subject matter does not include this equivalence. Canonization is an act of papal infallibility, and infallibility-Bilitude has no equivalent. It is a communication of divine science. An abyss always remains between the highest degree of human science and the Divine science. From what the Popes indicate that they could proceed with the canonization, the canonization

The implicit does not follow. In such a high and extraordinary-
As a matter of religious matters, it is not about what the Popes could do, nor what one would have reason to think, what they want to do; we should only look at what they font. `

But it remains that, beneath the infallible decree,
their testimony is, beyond comparison, the most important-
health that can answer, in this world, for the truth of a fact, and that the act which expresses this testimony, is the act of the supreme spiritual authority of the Church.

Therefore, denying the reality of the stated fact will not constitute
The author of the negation is not a heretic, but she is.
will demonstrate recklessness. However, there are a hundred reasons to to believe that such a Catholic, who accepts denials Jews on the martyrdom of Trent or Rinn, do not would not, for anything in the world, endorse this recklessness

(1) Nono kalendas aprilis, Tridenti, passio sancti Simonis, pueri, a Judiis sævissime trucidati; qui multis postea miraculis
coruscavit. | (Ex martyrologio romano.)

wit. But he is unaware or distracted, and remains frivolous,
in his ignorance and distraction; from this frivolity,
who passes, without him being aware of it, from his life socialite, where she reigns supreme, in the questions and in the most serious matters of life Christian.

That he committed a similar enormity in such another sphere of certainty, which he denies these great historical and geographical facts that he is used to to accept, without believing himself to be, therefore, estranged from the criticism, based on the simple ordinary testimony of men; for example: the existence of Beijing, where he never went, or that of Charlemagne, of which ten Centuries separate them; the world would not be satisfied certainly not to call him reckless; one would say to him erüthat he is exaggerating.

Swearing is not the style of Y Church.
But he would be drawing the wrong conclusion, using the euphemism of his charity,
that he is not under a very severe reprimand, and that he does not actually and duly incur all of this what could, in a similar case, be thrown at his head

The brutal frankness of men is rather ungraceful.

This, then, is the rule for Catholics.

In all religious matters, the word comes first to the Church; they owe it to their character, to their profession
sion of Christians, to place at the head of their appreciation tions, the authority of this word. Now, the question pre-sente is indeed, if ever there was one, a religious question gious.

It is fundamentally linked to the sanctity of the Church.
These are the Saints of the Church, and is it possible,
in religious matters, of a more religious nature than holiness?

Silon objects that, in the sphere where it discipline of the intellect, the authority of the Church deprives only the Catholic has the right to be a heretic,

We reply that the right to be reckless is not not of those from whom there is great profit in enriching a charter of liberties; that advantages will be found there more than mediocre; that far from having been granted by the Church, this right is not even on the list of human rights, of which nothing, however, seems-knows how to rigorously exclude it, and where he would have completed, for the greater honor of the Revolution, the work
moreover, so prosperous and so well managed by her,
of the emancipation of humankind.
Let's now turn to the natural order. This is the do-
. Maine of all; baptized and unbaptized alike move about there on common ground; there they deliver their oracles, the legal authorities and scientific authorities.

Neither of these is lacking in our thesis.
and we do not hesitate to state that, with difficulty
one would find, in no other cause, more imposing ones.
health and more decisive factors.

The legal authorities

The sovereigns, named above, who drove out the Jews and placed, at the top of the list of reasons for expulsion.
The Riluel murder, they all proceeded legally.
For some, the matter is recorded, in pro-

near terms in the Chronicles of Time.
"Diligently King Philip Augustus in-"War (inquire) Whether it was true or not,
"Before he did any more."
(Scripta rerum Francicarum. T 17- P. 350) Similarly, Thibaut, Count of Chartres, having to to crack down on several Jews, guilty of one of these murders, only handed them over to the executioners after they would have been convinced.

For those who know the language of the Middle Ages, this only The word expresses the entire legal procedure.

When Henry III persecuted the Jews of England, For a similar crime, Matthieu Paris takes care to indicate that he proceeded legally. (Matthew. Paris. Year 1255)

Moreover, one could say that the legal word- "Meni" here becomes a pleonasm. There is no need that no historian explicitly records that heads of state, judging cases of this gravity, proceeded legally. Besides the means Age had a superstition about legal matters; he is not a sovereign, respecting and wanting to make res- to respect his authority, which surrounds him with all the pre- possible guarantees, in such important cases bles, which will, in the next moment, enter into history, the soundness of his judgments. Only tyrants who do without it. However, we have not yet yes, to say that St. Louis, St. Ferdinand, St. Henry, Phi- Lippe-Augustus, Henry III of England, left, After them, the reputation of tyrants.

If we do not simply rely on such presumptions strong, and that formal trials are required, Equipped with all their documents, we confess our powerlessness to make them return to the flames of the in- fires, in the rubble of earthquakes, to the ruins accumulated by all the ravagers of pro- Vinces, of which each century has at least one, and of which such a century, debtor more burdened towards justice of God, presents two and three, on its course.

To stick to France, let them address their requests to the Albigensians, to the Pastoureaux, to Jacques, to the Protestants, to the Jacobins, to the Communards.

Among these looters, there are habitual offenders, for a good name-
Bre, courts of justice, an instinct that leads them Right to archives. That's where the files are piled up.
that the trial documents or the pieces of conviction, thievery and dirty tricks
the street, next to those of the financial enormities of the Bank; reserve fund and counterproof of history oil, placed under the guardianship of the states. Oil offers, in this century, our ex-convicts have received unprecedented advantages naked to the scoundrels of past centuries: we anoint the walls; and they set them ablaze. But, lacking these expeditious means, exquisite fruits of our civilization
In the past, it was always easy to move things along quickly.
reduced to ashes, piles of dry bundles, which the
Time seems to have taken care to prepare for this.
If it is, in the sack of a city by brigands, the share
the most enticing, for the reasons we gave Earlier, it was also, by far, the easiest.

In truth, there would be almost no criminals that one would not have been condemned without due process, if it is not considered legally convinced that those whose ar-Public records keep the interrogations. Where are they?
those that were written for posterity by the clerks of the
The trial of Verres? The praetor of Sicily was, however.
In this respect, in an exceptional situation,
since we still have the lawyer's pleadings.
Cicero! But the speeches of a lawyer are not the pieces of a trial. Verres remains the most innocent-a hundred men, in front of the posterity, if necessary.
documents from his trial to convince him.

The Jews were therefore legally condemned;
First, because history testifies to it; second,
because the Christian kings, who persecuted them, were the most just that history has ever known; that they are even in possession of, for their worship of justice, of a particularly and exceptional renown, and that they remain, on this point as on many others

others, the perfect model of sovereigns.

But we still possess the records of two ca-its, judged according to all legal forms, according to © rules that no human court has ever surpassed, has not even equaled, neither the meticulous forecasts, nor the punctual observance: the cause of Blessed Andrew de Rinn and the cause of the blessed Simon of Trent.

We just learned from Benedict XIV that
The records of this latter case were preserved.
of his time, in the archives of Mont St. Ange. The Revolution, which destroyed so much in its path, has con-
To meet all expectations, those were respected.

It must be said that this was the time of his first fits of rage
had passed, when she set foot on Roman soil.
Duchâteau St Ange, the said acts have migrated to the shelves of the Vatican Library, before the old fortress-
The Papal court did not fall to the Piedmontese bands.
The foresight of Pius IX saved this treasure with great care.
other blows. It is in these Vatican archives that the
The editors of Civiltà Cattolica borrowed them.
and enriched the April 1882 issue with their learned Rome. Anyone who wants to go and find them there is free.
ver, and, if this second-hand piece (and again, of (Jesuit hand!) does not sufficiently reassure cer-
Some exceptionally demanding men in this order of things, such scholars of modern training who They only want sources, they can, when they want them will want to go back to these sources. Leo XIII did not per-
He doesn't just grant access; he makes the first move; he invites.
all the world's scholars come to draw from it.

— But the Jews persist in denying the reality of these murders.

— I reply, first of all, that not all Jews have denied; that history has recorded several confessions.

The leader of the Jewish murderers of Lincoln, in 1255, who lent his house for the assassination, confessed to his crime, (Matthew Paris — Year 1255).

Many others confessed in other cases,
as other historians have testified.

— I then reply that those who denied it have not
He didn't play a completely new role that day. It was, at almost invariably, that of all the guilty parties whose mind is haunted by the image of a pyre or a scaffold and inspire the answers. The judges never held
We cannot take these denials into account.

We praise them too much, and the story remains, with us.
They fully agree.

And then, why did the Jews who attacked the have they not drawn unjust conclusions from this or that judgment?
not resorted to the logical and regular means of repair Evil; the rehabilitation process? Nothing, however.
of lesser unprecedentedity in the annals of the courts. The E–
The Church gave them a striking example.
has rehabilitated Joan of Arc. Certainly, if a company
It presented difficulties, and that was indeed the one. But Nothing stops the Church when it comes to justice. The E–
The church marched. It is reaping, at this very moment, the fruit:
A belated and exquisite act of this generous repair! For–
Why didn't the Jews do the same? They didn't di–
They won't be deterred by the legal fees.
all means to make people laugh at their expense, this se– would, without a doubt, be the best solution: and they will have Certainly, the wisdom lies in abstaining from it.

If the denial of the Jew retained, here, a shadow of porch–
and demanded further requests from us,
we would add that the Jew is accustomed to men– dream. It is the wisdom of the Church, it is the wisdom of peoples, it is the universal experience that has created

the proverbial and liturgical expression: the perfidy of Ju– daique (1). |

Better still. We could place before the eyes of the accused, the page from his Talmud which recommended to him commands to deceive the Christian, more than that, who in does, for him, meritorious work (Talmud. Ord. r. Tr.
I. Chap. 4).

If a lie that deceives the Christian, in the everyday life, the lie that makes some Christian gold coins in the Jew's pocket, is,
For the Jew, a meritorious work, what will become of men–
A dream that will save the Jew's head?

Scientific Authorities

History is a science, we have established that.

The basis of this science is not the intrinsic notion

The sequestration of things. A fact does not say whether it is true or false by the perception or analysis of its essence.
The intimate complexion of the exact fact and the fact confound is the same, and, the same too, the writing of the document which is proof of both. All the cer-
The nature of the fact comes from outside, and everything that comes from the outside, whatever form it takes, under whatever
The name it presents itself as can be summed up in a
The word: testimony. But the full power of testimony rests, in turn, on a primary foundation which is the rock of construction: the authority of the witness.

That is where the masters truly are masters.
The famous phrase: "the master said so" which has caused so much
Our moderns laugh, astonished that the absolute, which is

(1) In sixteen papal constitutions that we have placed
The supporting documents are mentioned fifteen times, specifically terms, of Jewish perfidy.

the idea, could depend on the contingent which is the maì-Keep it there, its whole truth. The scientific authorities-factual matters, which do not decide on metaphysical things and mathematical, astronomical and chemical, decitooth of historical events. — What are these au-Tortious? MM

— These are men — men of science
historical — men of historical probity
— men of historical discernment.

Now, for no other historical reason, we do not
we find men; of higher historical science-risk, of the highest historical probity, of the highest historical discernment. — These are Popes Sixtus V
and Benedict XIV. — They are the Bollandists.

The Popes. — Their historical knowledge

We don't need to teach anyone that the Papes have always been among the most learned men men of their century. Before presenting themselves to the Catholics-lic, with the authority of their supernatural character and of the preeminent office that God entrusts to them, in this world, for the salvation of humankind, they present themselves to all, Catholics and non-Catholics, Christians and infidels, with the authority of such a universal science-clearly and unanimously recognized that there would be more

It would be absurd to contest it. That would be to undermine the reputation of... the most deservedly impertinent statement.

And, as the Popes know best, after the theo-logic and law, of which they bear the scepter and dictate Oracles are history. The Popes did not be-care of the science that measures spaces or that com-
They know numbers well. It matters very little whether they know them.
geometry and algebra, astronomy and chemistry.

We do not mean to say that they disdain these sciences
these; even less to remain silent than many Popes in were highly ornate; that several, including Sylvester II, for example, that they have not risen to a height which They were the pride of their century. But they did not that a very distant relationship with their mission in this world and with the ministry of salvation which God gives them charge. History tells a completely different story.

Revelation, of which the Popes are the custodians and the interpreters, whose gifts they bestow upon the world, is a fact. And this fact, the most striking in human history—manité, was placed in such a way in the middle of it, that All the others radiate from him, as from their own homes.
they all come back to him, as if to their center.

To say that Sixtus V and Benedict XIV have a renown-
To be a woman of science, among the Popes, would be an insult to the least learned readers. The contemporaries of these men, including Protestants and Philosophers | phes, placed, by circumstances, opposite one another and
On the other hand, they bowed before their marvelous
to know. | |
The Pontiff's authority moved them only slightly. Phi-Philosophers and Protestants have little cult of authority religious. But the scholar's light did not find, Near them, the same indifference. The high science of Montalte, the prodigious erudition of Lambertini, have were held in high esteem by all, and obtained, from several, a tribute that has not always remained mute. Voltaire himself commented on this last point.
his contemporary, in terms of admiration.

— That among all the facts of history, these two Pa-

pes have particularly studied those about whom they write-

were, for the perfect knowledge of which, they would have-they possessed all the satellite knowledge that orbits around

of them, and of whom the sacred college provides the most distinguished representatives, that much is obvious.
That's their historical science for you.

Their historical integrity

It can be said that, in general, the figure of the Popes presents itself, in history, with this reflection of honor sharpness which constitutes the first charm like the
The first honor of the human person.

With a few rare exceptions, which show that
The Popes, taken from a human perspective, do not escape
to the great law of human failings, the Popes have always been the most honest men of their time. Without going back any further, into the past, the Popes of our century could answer for everyone.
and, among those who most resemble them,
among their ancestors, we will place, without surprise
no one, Sixtus V and Benedict XIV.

The comic scene of the Conclave, in which we made actors
The first is a purely fanciful anecdote... which they never believed, nor did the contemporary Chronicler neither the poet who tells it, nor the jokers of the postritual that repeats it. Indeed, it is repeated. We have not renounced again throwing this pointed remark through the seriousness of a history lesson, to be put in a beautiful hu-
a college audience at the expense of a pope ct of the truth. The story, so accurate, so serious, of the Pont-
The decree of Sixtus V has long since been fully justified
This ludicrous slander is a tactic. If one had a
The criticism to be made of Sixtus V would certainly not be that he had used undignified means, including a good reputation
The path of righteousness must have suffered. The rigidity, which It is merely excessive uprightness; the hallmark has remained.

distinctive of his public life and would earn him, at mcil-
Their title, a completely opposite criticism.

But how did these men who showed themselves, everywhere, of unwavering integrity and above above suspicion, even if they had failed to be honest in science?

Their historical discernment

We use the word discernment to avoid that of critic, and, because at the present time, this the latter represents a distorted notion of true clarity Clairvoyance in history. Thanks to the actions of what-troubled spirits, neither testimony nor demonstration does not fix, men with tumultuous passions, who disdainfully report back to the past, the irre-softened by their admiration for the present: thanks to new and outrageous methods which they wanted to make the method of science and which are only the unpredictable-In the course of science, historical criticism has taken a position tion very close to historical skepticism.

We therefore use the word discernment, because happier than that of a critic, he escapes the tra-investments which afflict the lan-His time may come, but until now he has remained intact. -

The popes' prudence is no less good.

. renown for their probity and their science, and the dis-

circumscription, which has ceased to be a synonym for criticism, has always been and will hopefully continue for a long time-time still to be the first and best part of caution. z

The Popes, therefore, have not failed to be, in history

as elsewhere, men of the highest discernment-The most intelligent among them have taken this further. master faculty, and, if there are any that count among Those are undoubtedly Sixtus V and Benedict XIV. the finesse of the first, which has remained as famous as his fairness and his energy, the moderation of the second, whose ardor religious passions of his time did not disturb

The calm never returned, only increasing, for one and For the other, the dose of this discernment. With what
At maturity, such men had to deal with the matters
'more delicate than the Church government could sustain-to apply this discernment; that is what makes it more than unusable.
tile to say.

The Bollandists. — (1)

We go from the Popes to the Bollandists, because that after the Popes, they are the men who hold
The most space in the question. We will close the debate.
with them and we will leave, in their company, the reading
a person who would like to learn more; so informed Whatever he may be, he could not, if he also wants to become sa-Beforehand, choose the best school and the best teachers.

However, we do not intend to estimate indifferent, many other authorities including could stud theirs. It can be said that all the These authorities were the scholars of the Middle Ages. Those who did not
They did not report the facts, nor did they record them.

Q0) Our praise of the Bollandists stops at one neo-Bollandian school which seems to depart from the traditions of old Bollandists. The question at hand, moreover, has nothing to do with it.
to see with this divergence and novelty of mind, and we do not
We do not know that any of the Young Bollandists have yet had the the idea of questioning the rigor of the conclusions of the ancients on ritual murder.

as historians, did not accept them, of the latter,
with eyes wide open and in full knowledge of cause. And, much to the chagrin of those who are unjustifiably self-trusted, to the more than gratuitous disdain of some modern-Born of the craft, these medieval scholars remain authorities. More than just pronouncements and sneers to strip these great minds of their meaning of the esteem of centuries.

The sixteenth century, which witnessed all the protests Talions hardly understands it, in this sense, even from the
The mouths of the Protestants. They continue to admit them there.
everything that the past attributes to the Jews, including the
ritual murder.

The serious seventeenth century did not — not even with the school of historical skepticism that is founded there In France, having considered quibbling over history on the The Jewish question.

The serious attack only began with Voltaire. That is to say, with The Least Serious of Men. At Ultimately, it is merely a skirmish in the vast campaign that the leader of philosophism is waging against the Church. But how can the truth of history, no more than any, to be shaken, by all that puts into circulation: of prose and verse, a man which gives as an epigraph to all his works, the faBest word: Mentions!

In vain does he lead an entire phalanx into war who rushed to his call, and whom he formed into his militia. The weakness of the weapons is written on the flag of the ardefeat is sealed in advance by the word of rallying.

But the worm that killed the party in the eighteenth century, is like the worm of hell: "It does not die." Any reorganization of disbelief that attempts the will find its root cause.

*

The late recruits who will reopen hostilities will have nothing more pressing than to claim to Voltaire (1). His praise will fill half of their proclamations. Fools, who do not see that they They pronounce their own death warrant! To the mendreams which they will not deprive themselves of, we will recognize the perfect pupils of the master, and to the little truth which the remnants of their good nature or the impossibility of They will always save some wreck, we will not addtera more than the light faith which is bestowed, out of love of peace, every showman who takes a buwriter's scoundrel, for trestles, and, honest readers, for a crossroads publication.

Let's return to the Bollandists

The historical science of the Bollandists is provenbiale.

Formerly, who had said, Benedictine science had That says it all. Today this comparative term is ob-past, it must be said, Bollandian science.

Historical probity

The character of Bollandus, Heinsius, Pa-Pebrock and their collaborators or successors is above all attack. All is honor in the lives of these men. Integrity is, moreover, a

(1) Scholars, even those hostile to the Church, no longer invoke . hardly has Voltaire's authority. But everyone understands that he

These are not scholars; they are pamphleteers and journalists.

virtue which so universally distinguishes the learned that one would have difficulty finding an example that would demonstrate it.
mente. Anyone who has encountered, in their life, a sa-before, who deserves the name, breathed, on the same day, that scent of honesty. And it would be difficult to deny to the Bollandists the quality of true scholars. The de-denial would not be accepted by anyone and would not relate-
It would be more accurate to say that the confusion lies with its author.

To rely on their status as Jesuits would be, or ridiculous childishness, or a joke of the worst kind taste. It's been a long time, thank God, since anyone has done Moreover, to such unserious denigrators, the honor of
to hear them.

And then, there's always the famous axiom, which throws
In the midst of this embarrassment, the most determined detraction:
Nemo malus nisi probetur. “We do not consider it bad
I will only go to the one who has proven to be bad.
If disloyalty had inspired these men, then it would have been necessary to...
would at least show the trace in their writings.
Certainly, the field was vast and gave rise to fraud
What to strive for. Well then! Let us follow all the worst-yours, in sixty folio volumes, and that one mounts there-
To be, on a single page, a single trace of disloyalty!
Was their science found to be flawed, or their integrity would remain out of the picture. Of all the trail decorations... of those who have been attacking the Jesuit for a century, none have...

core reaches the Bollandist. He remains master of all the tributes.

Historical discernment

He lived up to the standards of science and integrity.
If we had one criticism to make of our critics, it would be this
It might be that we have, at times, overstepped the bounds of the rights of history (1). Having nothing in common with the School skeptic, whose aberrations we have already mentioned,

In examining the testimonies, they pushed the setruth beyond what truth requires (2). It is, in.
Everything, a point where you have to know when to stop, and the rights the truth is not that of certain minds, re-resistant to truth, who never know enough of him evidence. * se %

But regarding this flaw, if there is one, it is clear that The opponents have no advantage to gain. We are not concerned about that.
finds someone stronger, to conclude against them. In a
A delicate matter, if ever there was one, and one that required more than no other, with all due circumspection, this extreme se-
The truth did not prevent many from passing, and this, many times, under the pen of the Bollandists, the affirmation of ritual murder.

Everything we just said about the Ritual murder, Drumont said it in another way.

'The authorities we are invoking, he has pro-duites.

Furthermore, we are very willing to recognize that he added his own.

Drumont is a man who is extremely well-informed about the question. To be convinced of this, one only needs to read the last chapter of his Jewish France (3). Drumont is

(1) This is precisely the criticism leveled at the new Bollandists.

(2 We have even seen such a Bollandist struck with dismissal for excessive severity.

(3) The facts he cites therein are supported by irrefutable authorities gables. We couldn't bring them all back. The goal that we what we were offered did not include it. To whom does philosophy-Sophie of law and history, nor the minutiae of law, nor
The menus based on history are not suitable. We are returning

An honest writer. All his pages, even those
Or he is mistaken, they exude this honesty.

Nowhere does the surprised man remove anything that is to the honest man, and, in the error of writing-In vain the reader who notices it, does not find ma-
a place for forgiveness.

So, that Drumont was —' in more than one detail, unrelated to the question, or not pertaining to it that incidentally, we do not contradict. That means that Drumont is a man and that, as
As such, he cannot escape the sad law of humanity.
voiced by David: Omnis homo mendax "All

"Man is fallible" (x).

"But yes, because a man can make a mistake and"
He was mistaken, all his testimony is rejected, that's why is made of human faith. All the testimonies
The best-established ones come only from men who can-wind deceives and which, almost always, in fact,
are deceived. The whole story collapses; nothing is found
I don't know what to do anymore. The present wavers like the past, and collapses with it; and the future that seeks its base in both, no longer finds a way to ass-It's nothing but rubble. The world is returning to... chaos; everything becomes the same and indecipherable.
enigma.

But, finally, suppose Drumont's authority is sufficient compromised to be declared null and void and not
No longer counting in history, there remain all those that he

Done to Drumont, those who would like to have the list (incomplete) (still at home) ritual murders that history, well and duly informed, places the burden on the Jews. They will find there, in in particular, very close to us, and with all its evidence, the murder of Father Thomas, Capuchin, and his servant, by the Jews of Damascus, in 1840.

(1) Fallible and not ICU ee is the true translation of mendax ae David.

invokes and which are absolutely independent of the
His own. These are the authorities that should be approached.
discuss, overturn with good texts and arguments victorious ments. That would be infinitely better than to endlessly complain about Drumont. That would be much better, especially, than bringing him to fighting in a duel, which is another weakness of This human being, susceptible to human weaknesses. But
This in no way affects the soundness of his thesis.

The cartel man can be attacked (which God spare him!) that not the slightest scratch will pass on the marble of the monument erected by the great writer. There has been much shouting and much more to come.
Again. Nothing will work. — Drumont's Jews are The Jews of history. Men come and go, but the truth remains.
remains !

Seen and approved: Imprimatur Br. B. HEBERT, Fr. Raym. BAKER,

of the Preaching Friars,

(Fr. D.) SERTILLANGE Prior provincialis,

of the Preaching Friars.

SUPPORTING DOCUMENTS

To avoid overloading the notes, a text that the nature of our work requires Concise milk, we transport here some documents which ultimately demonstrate the exceptional and privileged situation to the Jews in the Roman Empire. The compenetration of the people to whom God had

He entrusted the truth to the people to whom he gave the empire of the world, marked a plan
so obviously providential, that every detail who accuses the realization of it becomes one of great historical importance. There would be It's a mistake to neglect it. This mixture of two races so different, and seemingly so resistant to each other, prepared the pre-preaching the Gospel and was the first element of the catholicity of the Church.

Letter from Augustus to the proconsuls of Asia.
in favor of the Jews. (We don't have the text) of this letter; but its content is not - dubious. It is found in a letter from Hé-(Rodez-Agrippa to Caligula.) Here is the text of this last one: Dues
“I could cite several examples-
"ples that demonstrate goodwill"
"From Augustus, your great-grandfather, towards us: I —"
"I will limit myself to citing two. Here is the .
"First: He learned that they did not respect
"the sacred first fruits. He wrote to the governors"
"neurs of the Asian provinces to leave the-“Jews, as an exception, gather in "their roocsuyar; For these meetings had not
"not for the purpose of drunkenness, orgies. This -n'é-
"They were not gatherings either"
"seditious individuals designed to disturb the peace, but
"contrary to the schools of wisdom and of "justice, where men practice the "virtue, collect each year pre-
"mice intended to offer sacrifices, and
"send them to Jerusalem, through the intermediary-
"Diary of a holy delegation. He wanted"
"so that the Jews were not prevented from
"to hold these meetings, to do these col-
"read and send them, according to the custom of "Their fathers in Jerusalem."

(Philo, Legation to Caius. P. 1035)

"
"
"
"
"

E

"
"
"

"

"
"
"
"
"
"

"

"

"
"

Josephus extracts the following passage:
"Caesar to Norbanus Flaccus, greetings: that the Jews, in whatever province they be established, may freely and without hindrance to send, according to their ancient custom, in Jerusalem, of Par-
"gent for the temple."
(Josephus. Ant. Jud. L. ro. C. 6.)
Herod Agrippa continues:
"I transcribe the text of a single letter"
who will give you, Lord, faith in my words. It is by C. Norbanus Flaccus and reports the recommendations of Augustus.
“C. Norbanus Flaceus proconsul, to the Greetings, Ephesian magistrates.
“Caesar wrote to me to leave the Jews in wherever they may be, practice their meetings following their old practices and collecting money for the send to Jerusalem. He wants us not to The obstacle is pointless. I'm letting you know.

I order that this be carried out.
(Philo, Legation to Caius. P. 1036)
“Catus Norbanus Flaccus proconsul, to Magistrates of Sardis, greetings.
“Caesar wrote to me that he wants the Jews, |

wherever they may reside, be kept without disturbance in the possessionsion where they are, to send money to “Jerusalem. I am writing this letter to you because "to notify you that the will of the empemy own is that this order be faithfully executed. E (Josephus. Ant. Jud. L. XVI. C.

During Agrippa's long stay in the East,
to complete their subjugation, the Jews often resorted to him so that he would apcould, by his authority, ensure the full execution of rights established in their favor. Two letters recorded by Josephus testify to lakea favorable reception that the powerful friend of Auguste complied with their request.

"Agrippa, to the magistrates, to the Senate, to the People of Ephesus, greetings.

"We order that the guard and Pemploid of sacred money, which the Jews send"
"in Jerusalem, according to the custom of their "nation, belongs to them, -and that, if what"that after stealing it, he had recourse
"to asylums to find safety, one
"take it out and put it back in the hands
"Jews to make him suffer the penalty"
"that sacrileges deserve."

“Mare Agrippa, to the magistrates and to the "Senate of Cyrene, greetings. |

“The Jews who remain in Cyrene…”

"having complained about this, that still
"that Augustus ordered Flavius, governor-
"governor of Libya and to the officers of

"
"
"
"
"
"
"
"
"
"
"
"
"
"
"

this province to leave them in a complete freedom to send sacred money
in Jerusalem, as they have always done accustomed to it, one finds people so malicious-heavens, rather than wanting to prevent them, under the pretext of some tributes which they claim that they are indebted and that they should not indeed; on which we let us order that they be kept in the enjoyment of their rights, without them
may be disturbed there; and if he is found that in some city they had entertained sacred money, let it be returned to Jews by those who will be appointed for this subject."

(Josephus, Ant. Jud. L. XVI. C. 6.)

A monument that stands out from all others

the others, is the one where Augustus gives to God of the Jews, the biblical title of Most High.

"
"

"
"
"
"
"
"
"

“Caesar Augustus, High Priest, vested tribunician power orders this which follows:

"As the Jewish nation has always been,
both now and in the past, faithful-attached to the Roman people and especially everything, under Caesar's rule, my father, and in particular, their high priest Hircan; he pleases me and at my advice, of the opinion of the Roman people, that the Jews

live under their own particular laws, like

"

They did it under Hircan, priest of the God –

Most High; that no one touch the ar-that they have consecrated to God; that they so that they can send it to Jerusalem and... the
to put in the hands of those who have responsible for receiving it; that they not be con-traigne point of appearing in court the Sabbath days nor the day before that day since nine o'clock. That anyone will be convicted of stealing their Scriptures

sacred and the money they dedicate to God,
in their synagogues or in their cash registers, either treated as sacrilegious and that his property be confiscated for the benefit of | public treasury.

"I order that the decree they made,
for my kindness towards all men and for the services that their rendered C. Marius Censerinus, that is filed with this present decree in the famous temple that was dedicated to me
Ancyra by the Asian community.

"If anyone violates this — order that he be severely punished.

Engraved on a column— (Knowledge | of the Jewish Sabbath in Rome:

Cultaque Judæo Septima sacra Syro.
(Ovid — Ars amatoria 1 Verse 67)

SENT 289 iere

These sixteen papal constitutions, the principals
principal rights that the law possesses over the Jews,
are the text of our teaching book. Therefore, they had to have their place and that they would not pass unnoticed there cues.

424%. — Innocentius Papa IV. — Illustri
Regi Francis (Lud. IX).

Impia Judæorum perfidia, of quorum cordibus, propter immensitatem suorum scelerum, Redemptor noster velamen non abstulit, sed in ewcitate, which contingit in parte in Israel, adhue manere permittit, prout concome, non attendens quod ex sola misericordia, pietas ipsos christiana receptet, et coha-

. bitationem illorum sustineat patienter, illa committit enormia que stupori, audientibus, et, referentibus, sunt horrori. Ipsi enim in- . free Domino Jesu-Christo, who conversio_nemeorum'ex sualonganimitatis assuescentia expectat, nullam pr:etendentes verecundiam culpæ sux, nec reverentes honorem fidei Christianæ, omissis seu contemptis lege Mosaica and Prophetis, quasdam traditiones seniorum suorum sequuntur. Super quibus in Evangelio Dominus objurgat dicens: Quare

= eos transgredimini mandateum Dei et irritum fecistis propter traditiones vestras, hominum doctrinas et mandatea docentes. —

$ 1. — In hujusmodi namque traditionibus (Quæ Talmud Hebraice nuncupantur, and magnus liber est apud eos, excedens textum Bibliæ, in immensum, in quo sunt blasphemix in Deum et Christum ejus ac beatam J Virginem manifests, inextricabiles fabulæ, abuses erroneæ ac stultitiæ inauditæ) filios suos docent, ac nutriunt; and legislated and Prophetarum doctrina reddunt ipsos penitus alienos, verentes ne, veritate, quæ in eadem lege ac Prophetis est, intellecta, aperte Unigenito Dei filio venturo in carnem testimonium perhibente, convertantur ad fidem ct ad Redemptorem suum humiliter revertantur.

So. —And, his non contenti, faciunt Christianas filiorum suorum nutrices, in Contu_meliam fidei Christiane, cum quibus turpia multiple commits. Proper that Fidelibus is verendum ne divinam indignationem incurrant, dum eos perpetrare patiuntur unworthy that fidei. Our confusion has caused this.

g 3. — Et licet dilectus filius Cancellarius Parisiensis and Doctores regentes Parisiis in sacra pagina, de mandato felicis recordationis Gregorii Pope Prædecessoris nostri, tam prædictum abuseis librum quam alios quosdam cum omnibus glossis suis perlectos in potestate, ac examinatos, ad confusionem perfidy Judworum, publice coram Clero and Populo incendio coneremarint, prout in litteris eorum perspeximus contineri, quibus tu tamquam Catholicus Rex and Princeps Christianissimus, impendisti super hoc auxilium congruum et favorem, pro quo regalem excellentiam, dignis in Domino laudibus, commendamus ac prosequimur actionibus gratiarum.

— 291 — |

S 4. — Quia tamen nondum Judæorum ipsorum abuse profana quievit, nec adhuc dedit eis vexatio intellectum, celsitudinem regiam rogamus, and obsecramus in Domino Jesu-Christo, ut qui excessus hujusmodi detestables and huge commissos in contumeliam Creatoris and injuriam nominis Christiani, pie inccepisu laudabiliter prosequendo, facias debita severitate percelli. And tam predictos abuseis libros, reprobatosque per Doctores cosdem quam generaliter omnes cum glossis suis qui per ipsos examinati et reprobati fuerint, mandes per totum | Regnum tuum, ubicumque reperiri poterunt, igne cremari.

S 5. — Firmiter inhibendo ne, de cetero, nutrices seu servientes habeant Christianos; ne filii libere filiis famulentur ancillae, sed tamquam served reprobati to Domino, in custody mortem nequiter conspirarunt saltem per effectum operis servos recognoscant illorum, quos Christi mors, et istos liberos, and illos constitutes esse servos: ut proinde sinceritatis tua zelum possimus in Domino laudibus commandere.

— 292 —

(Datum Laterani. 7 Id. Maii. Anno primo, 1243).

$9. — 1267. — Clemens Episcopus servus servorum Dei. Dilectis [filiis Fratribus Predicatorum et Minorum ordinum, Inquisitoribus lhæreticie pravitatis, author ritate sedis apostolicy, deputatis aut in posterum deputandis, salutem and apostolicam benedictionem.

Sr. — Turbato chord audivimus and narramus quod quamplurimi reprobi Christiani, veritatem catholice fidei abrogantes se ad ritum Judæorum damnabiliter transtulerunt. Quod tanto magis reprobum fore dignoscitur quanto, ex hoc, Christi Nomen sanctissimum, quadam familiari hostilitate, securius blasphematur.

S 2. — Cum autem huie pesti damnabili, quie, ut accepimus, non sine subversione prædictæ fidei nimis excressit, congruis et festinis deceat remedies obviari, universitati vestræ, per Apostolica scripta mandamus, quatenus intra terminos vobis ad inquirendering contra hæreticos, auctoritate sedis Apostolicae designatos, super præmissis, tam per Christians quam etiam per Judæos inquisita diligenter et fideliter veritate, contra Christianos quos talia inveneritis commisisse tamquam hæreticos procedatis.

= dg

S 3. — Judaeos autem, who Christianos utriusque sexus ad eorum vitam execrabilem hactenus induxere, aut inveneritis de cetero inducentes pæna debita puniatis, contradictores per censuram Ecclesiasticam, appellatione post posita, compescendo. Invocato ad hoc, si opus fuerit auxilio, brachii scecularis.

(Datum Viterbii. 7 Kal. Augusti Pontif. nostri. An 3).

3 — 1274. — (Hane constitutionem innovavit, ipsismet terminis, Gregorius eam tantummodo sequentibus verbis insertis ampliando:

Turbato string narramus quod non solum quidam de Judaice cecitatis errore ad lumen fidei Christiane converted ad priorem reeerst esse perfidiam dignoscuntur, eerum etiam quam plurimi ete... etc...

(Datum Lugdun. Kal. Martii. Pontific. nostri. Anno 2.)

4. — 1278. — Nicolatis (III) Episcopus servus servorum Dei Dilecto filio Priori Provineiali Fratrum Predicatorum Ordinis

in Lombardia, salutem et Apostolicam benedictionem.

Vineam Sorec velut electam plantavit dextera Dei Patris et omne semen verum seminavit in ipsa, angelica custodia sepivit illam, lapides nocivos abjecit ab ea. Hanc of Ægypto, in luto et latere, sub jugo Pharaonis oppressam, in signis et prodigiis transferens, dux itineris ejus existents, in terram promiseis adduxit. Vinea enim Domini exercituum, Domus Israel est; viri Juda delectabile germen ejus. Hane ita mire translatam, quasi adhue rudem campum vomother legali proscindens, prophetali doctrina subaravit, ut and ipsam ad maturam frugem, id est, ad regenerationis gratiam præpararet.

Sr. Sed proh dolor! peccatorum spinis obsita, nullum imbrem gratie spiritualis excipiens, qua sperebatur ut uvas educeret, labruscas eduxit; unde sperabatur judicium processit iniquitas; unde justitia india clmor. Hæc est vinea in qua fiei arbor, scilicet synagoga Judæorum, plantata Evangelica veritate description: cujus, plantator, Christus, coetus apostolicus cultor exists. Haec, triplici tempore, quasi tribes annis, ut fructum producer and expectata, infructuosa reperta, cultori succidenda prædicitur. Nam, nec tempore circumcisionis ad profectum deducta est, quia circumcisionem anime non quierebat, nec sanctificata per legem, quia per eam tantum carnalia sequebatur; nec tandem justification per Evangelii gratiam, quia gratiam recipere noluit, quin potius, latorem grati justum unjust peremit, and, quodam modo, indurationem Pharaonis excesses, omnis curantis and curo refutavit antidotum, adeo ut nec verbis, nec signis, nec sacramentis, quinimo nec ipsius Christi and Dei corporali presentia molliretur. Multifarie enim multisque modis, olim Deus loquens antiquis ipsius Synagoge patribus in Prophetis, novissime in fine temporum, locutus est ipsis et nobis in Filio, quem constituit, heredem universorum, per quem fecit et sæcula ; sed omnem escam abominata is anima ejuice; and idcirco justo Dei judicio reprobatam exterminaett eam aper de sylva et singularis ferus depastus is eam. Ablata is sepes ejus, prosternata macertes et in direptionem posita it deserted; nec inventus est amplius in terris locus ejus. Verum quia miserationes Dei super omnia sua opera prædicantur, qui omnes salvos fieri, and neminem vult perire, which ipsum pro nobis et ipsis, Hostiam salutis exhibits Deo patri: qui exaltatus a terra, ex-

iiam cl EEE cele 20M

pansis in cruce manibus, ad se cuncta trahere Evangelica voce praedixit. 2

$2. — Noss, licet immeriti, vicem ejus tenentes in terris, which etiam J udaicam perfidiam a sua misericordia non repellit ;'libenter pro populi illius obcæcatione, labores appetimus, ut affectum nostrum divina prosequente clementia, cognita veritatis luce, who Christus is, a suis tenebris exuantur. Porro quia Judæorum ipsorum, quasi per universum mundum, divino judicio, prævisa dispersio, ipsos ad recipiendüm sacramenta fidei, ac doctrinamconvene in unum convenere non patitur; necessitate our wishes- - urgent orders, for various items. world parties, various seminars eligère per quos semen verbi Dei, prout posibile. est, spargamus in singulos, quorum salutem universality and singularity affectamus. Ad te igitur, inter alios, sub spe divine gratiæ lie our converted oculos, cum tui Ordinis claritate reluceas et credaris, ubilibet, per opera utilia et exempla laudabilia, fructuosus, and ex data divinitus gratia scire te confidamus et posse, et fructus uberes in Domo Domini germinare, discretioni tua per Apostolica scripta mandamus, quatenus confidens in illo, cui proprium est gratias' spirituales enlargiri, tales umbrarum tenebris obcæcatos, in commissa tibi province, per te

| | Te 20) e

`- ac alios fratres tui Ordinis, quos ad hoc, honestate morum, experta scientia, probatis virtutibus, circumspectione provida, and experientia comprobata, idoneos esse cognoveris, et quorum industria atque doctrina, divinis donis, a Domino fæcundata, intrepid pro Catholica fide reluceat et sui claritate non JA stumbles, sed tenebrosas mentes radiorum re- | percussione clarificet, and obstinatas cervices reprimat perversorum, Judæos eosdem in terris and locis in quibus inhabitant generaliter and singulariter convocando, semel and plu- . ries, ac toties repetitis instantiis quoties proficere posse putaveris, prout melius fieri poterit, przedicationibus, salutaribus monitis and discretis inductionibus, Evangelicis doctrinis informans, ipsos studeas juxta datam tibi a Domino gratiam, fugatis tenebrarum nubibus, ad viam reducere claritatis, ut renati font baptismatis, reluceant in lumine vultus Christi, and exinde Chorus Angelicus delectetur. Tu quoque ac hi, quos ad tanti negotii persecutionem duxeris eligendos; perennis bonus premium nostramque benedictionem et gratiam, vobis, de bono in melius, vindicetis.

S 3. — Et ut affectum, quem ad salutem

statusipsorum gerit mater Ecclesia percipiant _ per effectum, tu illos ex eis, quos ad suceptionem sacri baptismatis gratia divina per-

–

duxerit, Prelatis ac Dominis locorum, in quibus tales habitare contigerit, ex parte nostra affectionately recommendes ut Deo gratias in recovery of drachmæ deperditæ, et filio prodigo redeunti vitulum exultationis et gaudii exhibitentes, eos caritate foveant, Fautoribus muniant, benigne pertractent, nec ipsos, in personis aut rebus, per Judæos vel alios indebite molestari permittant, quin potius, in omnibus favorabiliter ipsis assistant auxiliis opportunis.

S 4. – Sed, so strong (quod Dai!) aliqui ex ipsis, i in eorum obstinata perfidia perdurantes et, velut aspis surda, aures incredulas obturantes, ne tui et illorum, quos ad hee salutis opera deputabis, vocem audiant, ut de tenebris ad lucem exeant incantantium sapienter, tuas et per te ad haec deputandorum fratrum eonvocaliones aspernantes reffugiant, of istis (si tales inveneris), which sunt, in quibus locis, and sub quorum dominis commorentur, nobis rescribere non omittas, ut

circa relevant hujusmodi, de salutari eorum |

remedy, sicut expedire videbimus, cogitemus. Ut autem, from premissis, avidis nostris conceptibus, juxta nostra desideria satisfiat, attend nobis intimare studeas, quality commissum tibi negotium prosperity and qualem fructum seminata repromittant.
Datum Viterbii 2° nonas Augusti, Pontif. nostri. Anno I (See in Raynaldi, year 1286, a letter from Pope Honorius IV to the archbishop than Canterbury concerning the Jews).

`~

oO. — 1288 — Nicholas IV. Constitutionem “Turbato chord” in Clemente IV editam and to Gregorio
tam ipse suam, ipsismet terminis, facit,
additis tantum, in fine. $ 2° his verbis:
contra h:ereticos 3 “eontra faultores quo-
that receptors and defenders eorum
"procedere studeatis."

6 — 1320 — Papa Joannes XXU Venerabilibus Fratribus, archiepiscopis Bituricenci eiusque suffragancis.

. Dudum felicis recordationis Clemens IV, blasphemiis Jud:orum innumeris, abusenibus multis and detestabilibus blasphemiis contra Salvatorem and Dominum Jesum Christum, ac precelsam et gloriosissimam semper Virginem Mariam, genitricem ejus, in quodam libro contentis ipsorum; plenius intellectis; and demum and pie memory, Honorii, Romani pontificis prædecessoris nostri, assertione veridicæ relationis audita, quod, ipsorum Judæorum damnata suggests perfidia, nonnulli fidei Christianæ cultores tam mares quam mulieres, in certis articulis, cum Judseis judaizabant eisdem, et, alia multa, tam Christiani and Christiane quam Judai supradicti committebant que in gravem nostri

me

contumeliam Redemptoris and detrimentum fidei Catholicæ redundabant; iidem prædecessores, videlicet, Clemens Tarraconensi, and, post modum, Honorius, Eboracenci, archiepiscopis, qui tune érant super his, per corum, sub certa forma, contra dictos Judæos, litteras, dixerunt; and, insuper, bonæ memoriæ Oddo, Tusculanus Episcopus, in regno Francie, Apostoliew sedis legatus, quia quosdam Judæorum ipsorum libros, who Talmud nominantur, per se et alios fidei zelatores inspectos, reperit errors innumrabile abuses and blasphemias continere, contra Judæos pronuntiasse dignoscitur supradictos, prout in eisdem litteris de .pronuntiatione, quarum tenores fecimus annodried up presentibus, continetur. |

Our igitur, ad quos specialty pertinet fidei orthodoxæ defensio, in debite considerationis pollio recensentes, quod tam pestilens tamque perniciosus morbus, which adhuc in diversis perdat partibus, non est aliquaheld in contempt, do not, process temporis, inficiens fideles, damnabilius convalescat: sed, potius, ad præcidendum radicitus illius pestiferos palmites, ne in discrimen ipsius fidei dilatentur, solicitis studiis procedendum; fraternitati vestre, dictorum prædecessorum inhærendo vestigiis, in virtute obedientiæ districte, precipiendo mandamus, quatenus Christianos omnes et singulos, per vestras civitates et dioeceses constitutos, tam in cathedralibus et aliis Ecclesiis ipsarum civitatum et dioecesum, per your vel alios, quos ad hoc duxeritis deputandos, quam in preachingibus and sermonibus vestris, quos propter hoc, frequenter fieri volumus and mandamus, monere curetis and eis districtius inhibit, ut a præmissis omnibus et singulis aliis, in litteris eisdem contentis, studeant penitus abstinere, eos, ab iis, per spiritales poenas, from quibus expedire videritis, calllatione postposita, compescendo; and alias super his, contra Christianos and Christianas eosdem nec non et contra pr:efatos Judaeos, ut a pre:emissis blasphemiis, erroribus, imprecationibus et falsitatibus ac aliis, que in litteris continentur eisdem, omnino resilient, juxta statuta canonica et per alia congrua et canonica remedia providendo. And, nihilominus, a Jud:eis, in, civitatibus et dioecesibus consists of tibus supradictis, legem seu librum hujusmodi, quem Talmud, ut predicitur, vocant omnesque alios ipsorum libros cum additionibus ct expositionibus eorumdem, faciatis vobis integraliter assignari, eos ad hoc poenis, of quibus expedire videretis canonicis, compellendo; Talmud sayings and libros, eis prius cum aliquibus of Minorum et Prædicatorum Ordinum Fratribus ac aliis prudentibus and peritis viris, quos in lege Domini noveritis eruditos, diligenti examinatione discussis, vel illos ex eisdem, quos blasphemias vel errors aut imprecationes seu falsitates reperitis continere, igni comburatis, invocato ad hoc si opus fuerit auxilio brachii secularis: attentiveus provisuri, ut una simul, in dicto consilio sic provide, sic consulte, in hujusmodi negotio procedatis, quod, in eisdem civitatibus et dioecesibus vestris, mandatum nostrum hujusmodi, circa Talmud and librorum assignmentem hujusmodi, vobis integrates faciendam, uno eodemque tempore, celeriter effectum executionis debite outputtur, ne Judæorum ipsorum fallacia dictos libros quomodolibet valeat occultare. — Tenores autem litterarum et protestis prædictarum tales sunt:

Clemens Episcopus, servus servorum Dei, venerabilibus fratribus, archiepiscopo Taraconensi et suffraganeis ejus, Salutem et Apostolicam benedictionem..

“Damnabili perfidia Jud: orum, propter ingratitudinis vitium, olim merito reprobata, and synagogæ dato libello repudii, suæ visitationis tempus agnoscere contemnenti, ccecus ille populus, qui peccatum peccavit, juxta Jeremiae vaticinium instabilization is effective tus; imo, vagus and profugus super terram, velut fraticida Cain, who ejectus fled easily

Domini; quasi major ejus esset iniquitas, quam ut posset veniam promereri. Hujusmodi namque miserabilis populus, Patris aeterni Filium Dominum Jesum Christum, quisecundum carnem factus ex semine David, prout ante in Scripturis Sanctis promiserat per Prophetas, frater ipsorum erat et ad participium hereditatis aeternæ illos vocare venerat, tanquam ad oves qui perierant domus Israel; non solum nequiter negaverunt, dicentes in sua despicientia: Non est Deus: verum etiam, cessum, flagellatum and cruxifixum impie occiderunt, ejus sanguinem super se ae suos detestabiliter imprecantes.

Verum, cum dispersiones Judæorum ipsorum adhuc noluerint intelligere ut benefaciant, cum ipsis satis humaniter agitur quod inter Fideles absque gravibus customiliis vivere permittuntur. Sed ecce prava ista generatio, dum cohabitationem ejus pietas sustinet Christiana, dum ipsam, ex quadam benignite receptat, se ingratam inde constituted and harm, reddens pro gratia contumeliam, profamiliaritate contemptum et pro beneficiis illa stipendia quœ mus in pera, serpens in gremio, and ignis in sinu, am hospitibus, juxta vulgare proverbium, largiuntur.

Dolentes quidem audivimus et narramus, | quod Judæi de regno Aragonis, lege veteri

| - 304 -
protermissa, quam, per Moysen suum, contulit majestas omnium Conditoris, quamdam legem aliam, seu traditions quam Talmud vocant, falso, tradidisse Dominum confingunt; in cujus amplo volumine per orbis latitudinem destinato, quod textum novi et veteris testamenti excedere dicitur, abusenes fere innumerable and unstable, blasphemiae contra eumdem Dominum nostrum Jesum-Christum et Genitricem ejus beatissimam continent: quorum relatio vel auditus, sine interventu pudoris et horroris gravissimi, vix potest ab aliquo sustineri, curses quoque gravissimie, ac imhorrible precations, quæ, ab eisdem Judæis ingratis et perfidis contra Christiaour daily broadcasts, in dicta lege seu traditione damnabili sunt adscriptæ. Quid will it please? Hujusmodi et alia detestanda, quæ in dicta lege vel traditione profane sunt damnabiliter annotata, præcipua esse censor causa, propter quam predictus fatuus et: infidelis populus in sua stetit perfidia obstinatus. |

Quia vero, his et aliis abuseibus eorumdem, quie ut accepimus nimis excrescunt, . non sine detrimento Catholice fidei, quoscumque Fideles sed nos precipue which constituti sumus in specula, ut resistamus ascendentibus ex adverso, decet tam congruis, quam festinis remediis refragari, fraternitati vestre per Apostolica scripta, in virtute obedientiæ firmiter precipiendo mandamus, quatenus adversus predictos Judaeos super premissis to be prudent and virile insurgent, carissimum in Christo filium nostrum Aragonum regem illustrem, and omnes barones, nobiles and ballivos regni and terrarum ipsius moneatis, and inducatis wait barones, nobiles and ballivos eosdem, ad hoc per censuram Ecclesiasticam, sinecesse fuerit, calllatione post posita, compellendo, ut a Judaeis sibi subditis totum Talmud, cum suis additonibus and expositionibus and omnes eorum librosfacient exhibiteri. Quibus exhibitis, illos ex eis, qui de textu bibliæ, et alios de quibus nulla sit dubitatio quod blasphemias vel errors contineant seu etiam falsitatem, Judæis restituatis eisdem: ceteros vero, sigillis vestris, ut expedit, consignatos, in aliquibus tutis locis, quibus vobis videbitur, deponatis custodiendos fideliter, donec super his consulta sedes Apostolica computer in posterum, quod de ipsis (senserit) fieri opportunum. "T |

Volumus autem, quod tam examinationem librorum quam hujusmodi restitutionem, consignatureem and depositionem ceterorum, in presentia et de consilio Fratrum Prædicatorum and Minorum, aliarumque personarum, | que licenciatæ sint et provide, faciatis; . provisional attention, ut condicto consilio cum predicto rege, aliisque idoneis personis, prout fuerit opportunum, commissum vobis tam pium et salubre negotium taliter ordinetis, ac ita prudenter et caute procedatis in ipgo, quod id, ubicumque contingat fieri, simul and eodem tempore fiat, ne Judæorum ipsorum fallacia dictos libros quomodolibet valeat occultare, sed nostrum in hac parte potius mandateum executionis votivæ pulchritudinem consequatur.

Ad hee autem dilectus filius noster Pauread. dictus Christianus, from Ordine Fratrum Predicatorum, lator presentium, creditor non modicum profuturus, tum quia ex Judaeis trahens originem, et inter eos litteris Hebreweis competenter instructus, linguam novit et legem antiquam ac illorum errores; tum etiam quia de sacro fonte renatus zcluim habet fidei Catholicæ, et eruditus occurrit laudabiliterin theologica facultate — Praeceptum igitur nostrum in hae parte implere taliter studeatis, ut exinde dignis laudibus et fa- | voris augmento vestra sinceritas habeatur. _

Datum Viterbi, Idibus Julii. Pontificatus nostri anno tertio, sub anno Dominicæ incarnationis 1267 — Item:

— Honorius Episcopus, servus servorum

= 307 — .
Dei, Venerabilibus Fratribus Archiepiscopo Eboracensi et ejus Suffraganeis, Hello. And Apost. Benedictionem.

Nimis in partibus Anglicanis, prout accepimus, Judæorum damnata perfidia in nostri contumeliam creatoris et detrimentum >
. Catholice fidei, nefandis actibus et horrensay operibus relaxavit habenas; ipsi etenim librum quemdam, maligna fraud compositum, habere dicuntur, quem Talmud vulgariter nuncupant; abominations, falsitates, multimode infidelities and abuses continuenentem. In hoc quippe libro suum continuant studium et circa ipsius nefaria dogmata ipsorum prava solicitudo versatur. Illius, unaware per, letiferæ doctrinæ, proprios, ab annis teneris, filios deputy, ut hujusmodi veneno- | sis pabulis imbuantur, eosque instructe et informare non metuunt quod magis in book contentis eodem, quam expressis in lege Mosaïca credi debet, ut iidem filii, Dei Filium fugientes, per devia infidelitatis, exhorrifying and ad veritatis semitam non accesdant. Præfati quoque Judei, non solum mentes fidelium ad eorum sectam pestiferam allicere moliuntur, verum etiam eos, which salubri ducti consilio, infidelitatis abjurants errorem, ad legem Catholics fidei convolarunt, donis multimodis ad apostandum inducere non verentur: quorum aliqui, dolosa Judæorum ipsorum seducti malitia, publice illis cohabitant juxta ritum et legem ipsorum, in parochiis, in quarum Ecclesiis renati sacro fonte Baptismatis exstiterunt, sævam, imo, nequissimam vitam ducunt, in nostri Redemptoris injuriam, fidelium scandalum et derogationem fidei Christianæ; ac etiam nonnullos ex talibus iidem Judæi ad alialoca nequiter destinant, ut ibi tanquam incogniti ad suam perfidiam revertantur.

— 308 —

“Ne omittit Judeorum ipsorum nequitia, quin orthodox fidei cultores, joke die sabbati ac aliis solemnitatibus eorumdem, invitet ac instanter inducat ut, in synagogis ipsorum, officium auditor, illudque juxta ritus sui consuetudinem solemnizent, rotulo involuto membranes, only libro, in quibus lex eorum conscripta consistit, reverentiam exhibentes, quamobrem plerithat Christicolæ eum Judaeis pariter Judaïzant. Præsumunt quoque prefati Judei Christians in their family retinere, quos in divine majestatis opprobrium, diebus Dominicis et festivis operibus occupari servilibus, a quibus est potius abstinendum, nefaria jussione compellunt. Admitted autem in suis domibus Christianas ad ipsorum inFantes seu pueros educandos, et tam iidem Christiani quam Christiane Judæis cohabias a guest; sicque, dum opportunu-

— 309 —

nitas suggests et pravis actibus tempus favet, Judæorum mulieribus Christiani et Judei Christianorum foeminis, infausto commerce commiscentur. Alii etiam Christiani vicissim in domibus propriis sæpe conveniunt, ut dum simul commessationibus et potationivacant bus, erroribus materia præparetur. Singulis quoque diebus in orationibus vel verius execrationibus suis, in maledictio- ' nem Christianorum, damnabili presumptione prorumpunt, aka nonnulla committendo nequissima, quæ noscuntur in offensesam Dei, and animarum Christianorum dispendium redundare. Verum et si nonnulli ex vobis sæpe sepius fuerint, prout assertur, requisiti ut super his remedium opportunum curarely adhere, id tamen efficere neglexerunt; de quo tanto propensius admirari compellimur, quantity ex debto pastoralis oficii se paratiores et efficaciores exhibere lenentur, ad ulciscendas nostri Salvatoris injurias, and hostium fidei Christian: conatus nefarios reprimendum. |

“Cum itaque non sit tam pestilens et periculosus morbus aliquatenus contemnendus, ne, quod absit, relictus neglectui, tract temporis convalescat; and adversus aunt tamque damnabilis temeritatis audaciam promptis, teneamini consurgere animis, and ad ejus repressionem omnimodam efficax

- of. EEEE

neus DIO –

studio operamque solicitam impertiri, ut frenatis hujusmodi perversis ausibus, Catholice fidei dignitas gloriosis proficiat incrementis, fraternitati vestre, per apostolica scripta, districte precipiendo mandamus, quatenus super praemissis et singulis præmissorum, per inhibitiones et poenas spirituales and temporales, aliosque modos, of quibus, expedire videritis, in prædicationibus vestris ex his and iis, and ad hoc temporibus congruis, for your vel alios expressendos, studeatis juxta officii vestri debitum, ita effi- . eaciter and solicit providere, ut morbus hujusmodi, peradhibendæ medicine remedy, amputation; Vosque proinde æterni regis clementiam, premium consequi valeatis, ac nos vestram curiosam solertiam, and diligentiam vigilantem, dignis in Domino laudibus attollamus. Quod autem in hac parte feceritis nobis, per vestras litteras, plenius intimitis.

Datum Romæ, apud sanctam Sabinam 14 kalendas Decembris. Pontificatus nostri anno secundo, anno Domini 1285 — Item:

— Oddo, miseratione divina Tusculanus Episcopus, Apostolice sedis Legatus, universis presentes litteras inspecturis, salutem in Domino. i

“Noverit universitas vestra quod nos, Parisiis, anno Domini 1248, Idibus Maii, super quibusdam libris Judæorum qui Talmud appellantur, presentibus magistris Judæorum et ad hoc vocatis, definitivam sententiam protulimus in hunc modum: |

“In nomine Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti. Amen. |

Exhibitis, auctoritate Apostolica, a magistris Judæorum regni Francie quibusdam libris, which Talmud appellantur, quos inspeximus and per viros discreets et expertsos in talibus, Deum timentes et zelum habentes fidei Christiane, fecimus inspici diligenter; quia eos invenimus, innumerable errors, abuses, blasphemias, and nefaria continue nere, qua, pudori, referentibus, et audientibus sunt, horrori, in tantum, quod predicti libri secundum Deum, sine fidei Christianæ injuria tolerari non possunt; of consilio bonorum, quos ad hoc duximus specialty evocandos, pronuntiamus prædictos libros tolehikes non esse nec magistris Judæorum restitui debere, and ipsos sententiality condemnamus. De aliis vero libris, nobis non exhibitisa magistris Juda orum, licet a nobis, super hoc plurals fuerint requisiti, vel etiam non inspectis, plenius cognoscemus loco et tempore, et faciemus quod fuerit faciendum. “Nomina autem illorum, of quorum consilio, prædicta sentia lata fut, sunt hæc: Venerabilis pater Guillelmus, Dei gratia Parisiensis Episcopus etc... quorum ifgilla apposita sunt præsentibus, una cum nostro, in testimonium hujus rei. — (Subdit Joannes XXII) — Datum Avenione, 2 Nonas September — Pontificatus nostri anno IV

(1320) —

7 — 1554 — Julius Papa Ill, university and singulis Venerabilibus Fratribus, Patriarchis, Archiepiscopis and Episcopis ac dilectis filiis, aliis locorum ordinariis Salutem et Apostle bened.

Cum, sicut nuper, non sine animi nostri molestia accepimus, licet, alias, Venerabithe nostri brothers, Sancte Romane Ecclesise Cardinales, hæreticæ pravitatis in universa Republica Christiana Inquisitores Generathe, certum Hebraicum librum, Ghemarot, Thalmud, nuncupatum, nonnulla indigna and legem divinam orthodoxamque fidem offendentia continentem, de mandateo nostro, damnaverint and igne comburi fecerint; nihilominus inter ipsos Hebreos adhue esse dicantur diversi libri, diversas contra Christum Redemptorem nostrum, euntre sanctissimum nomen et honorem, blasphemias, et ignominnias continentes.

.S r. — Nos, iis premissis, opportune procedere volentes, vobis et vestrum cuilibet, hereby committimus and mandamus, quatenus singulis Universitatibus Hebræorum, infra limits jurisdictionis vestræ consistentibus, ex parte nostra intimitis et notificetis quod, elapsis quatuor mensibus, a die intimationis and notificationsts hujusmodi, omnes et singulari libri, in quibus nomen Jesu, Salvatoris nostri, quod Jeseri Hanossi dicitur, cum blasphemia aut, alias, ignominiosis nominatur, tam in eorum synagogis et locis publicis quam privatis domibus, aut alias locorum, diligentissime exquirantur, and which libros hujusmodi, penes se, quoquo modo, habere reperti fuerint, debitis pænis, tam pecuniariis et confiscationis bonorum, quam, si eorum contumacia aut qualitas delicti exegerit, corporis, etiam ultimi supplicii, ac alias, prout a fide Christi apostantes, irremissibiliter, puniantur, et, nihilominus, eisdem quartet mensibus elapsis, per vos vel alium seu alios, quos ad hoe duxeritis deputandos, libros hujusmodi cum omni vos diligentia inquiratis et studiose investigetis, inquirique et investigari faciatis, et eos, quos hujusmodi libros penes se habere reperietis, poenis, quibus apostantes præfati puniuntur, omnino and irremissibiliter puniatis.

S 2. — Non permittentes, de cetero, eosdem Hebraeos (qui in memoriam Passionis Dominicae a Sancta mater Ecclesia tolerantur,

es ae
ut aliquando mansuetudine nostra allecti, | ad verum Christi lumen, divino afflante Spiritu, convertantur) a quibusvis etiam Apostolica auctoritate fungentibus, occasione cujusvis sortes librorum, apud eos existentium. (dum modo blasphemias, ut prefertur, no contineant), nisi de nostro espresso mandato, quomodolibet vexari aut molestari. Quoslibet contradictors and rebels, acvobis, in premissis, non relatives, per sententias, censuras et poenas ecclesiasticas, ac etiam pecuniarias; arbitrio vestro moderandas et applicandas, ac alia opportuna juris remedia, appellatione post posita, compes- — cendo, ac legitimis, super his habendis, servatis processibus, sentias, censuras, and poenas praedictas, etiam iteratis vicibus, aggravendo, invocato etiam, ad hoc, si opus fuerit, auxilio brachio secularis.
Non obstantibus etc..... "EN
Datum Rome, apud Sanctum Petrum, sub canceled Piscatoris die 29 May, anno millesimo quingentesimo quinquagesimo quarto, Pontif. nostri, anno 5.

(Raynaldi an r340 Constitution of John XXII on the Jews.)

— 315 —

8 — Paulus IV Episcopus servus servorum
Dei, ad perpetuam rei memoriam.

Cum nimis absurdum et inconveniens existstatus ut Judaei, quos propria culpa perpetue servituti, submisit, sub prætextu quod pietas Christiana illos receptet et eorum cohabitationem sustineat, Christianis adeo sint ingrati, ut eis pro gratia customiam reddant et in eos pro servitute, quam illis debent, dominatum vindicare procurent, Nos, – ad quorum notitiam nuper becomes eosdem Judæos, in alma Urbe nostra, et nonnullis sancte Romane Ecclesise civitatibus, terris et locis, in id insolentiæ prorupisse, ut, non solum mixtim cum Christianis et prope eorum Ecclesias, nulla intercedente habitus distinguished, cohabitare, verum etiam domos, in nobilioribus civitatum, Terrarum and locorum in quibus degunt, vicis et plateis conduct, and good stabilia compare, and possidere, ac nutrices and ancillas, aliosque servientes Christianos mercenarios habere et diversa alia in ignominiam et contemptum Christiani nominis perpetrare præsumant, considerantes Ecclesiam Romanam eosdem judæos tolerare in testimonium veraz fidei Christiane, and, ad hoc, ut ipsi, sedis Apostolicz pietate et benignitate allecti, er-

— 316 —

rores suos tandem recognition and ad verum catholicæ fidei lumen pervenire satagant, and propterea agreere ut, quandiu in eorum erroribus persistunt, effect operis recognoscant se servos, Christians vero liberos, per Jesum Christum Dominum nostrum, effectos flee, iniquumque exist ut filii libere filiis famulentur ancillæ.

S 1. — Volentes, in premissis, quantum

cum Deo possumus salubriter providere, hac nostra perpetuo valitura constitutione, sancimus, quod, de cetero, perpetuis futuris temporibus, tam in Urbe quam in quibusvis aliis ipsius Romane Ecclesise Civitatibus Terris et locis, omnes in uno and eodem, ae si ille capax non fuerit, in duobus aut tribes, veltot quot satis sint, contiguis, and ab habitationibus Christianorum penitus sejunctis, per nos, in Urbe, and Magistratus nostros, in aliis Civitatibus, "terris et locis predictis, designandis vicis, ad quos unicus tantum ingressus pateat, and quibus solum unicus exitus detur, omNino lives there.

S 2. Et, in singulis Civitatibus Terris et locis, in quibus habitaverint, unicam tantum synagogam, in loco solito, habeant, nec aliam de novo constructe aut bona immobilia possidere possint; quinimo, omnes eorum synagogas, lend unam tantum, demoliri and devastate ac bona immobilia, quæ ad præpossident sense, infra tempus eis per ipsos Magistratus præfigendum, Christianis vendere.

S 3. — And ad hoc, ut pro Judais ubique dignoscantur, masculi biretum, feminæ vero, aliud signum patens, ita ut nullo modo çari aut abscondi possit, glazed color palam deferre teneantur et adstricti sint, nec super non delatione bireti aut alterius signi hujusmodi, pretextu cujusvis eorum gradus vel præeminentiæ seu tolerantiæ excusari, aut per ejusdem Ecclesie: Camerarium, vel camre Apostolice Clericos, seu alias illi præsidentes personas aut sedis Apostolicæ Legatos vel eorum Vice-Legatos quovis modo, dispensari aut absolvi possint.

§ 4.— Nutrices quoque seu ancillas autalios utriusque sexus servientes Christianos habere vel eorum infantes per mulieres Christianas lactari aut nutriri facere.

S5. — Seu Dominicis seu aliis de praecepto Ecclesie festis, in publico laborare only laborari facere.

S 6. — Seu Christians quoquo modo grave aut contractus fictos vel simulatos celebrate.

S 7 — Seu cum ipsis Christianis ludere aut comedere vel familiaritatem seu conversationem habere nullatenus presumant.

$ 8. — Nec in libris rationum et computorum, quæ cum Christianis pro tempore habebunt, aliis quam latinis litteris et, alio quam vulgari Italiano sermone, uti possint, and, si utantur, libri hujusmodi, contra Christianos, nullam fidem faciant.

S 9. — Judæi quoque prefati sola arte strazzaria seu cenciaria, ut vulgo dicitur, contenti, aliquam mercaturam frumenti vel hordei aut aliarum rerum, usui humano necessariarum, facere.

S 10. — And who ex eis medici fuerint, etiam vocati et rogati, ad curam Christianorum accedere aut illi nequeant interest.

S 11. — Ne se a pauperibus Christianis Dominos vocari patiantur.
S 12. — Et menses, in eorum rationibus

et computis, ex triginta diebus completis omnino confident; dies which ad numerum triginta non ascenderint, non pro mensibus integris, sed solum pro tot diebus quot in effect fuerint, computentur and juxta ipsorum dierum numerum and not ad rationem integri mensis, eorum credita demanding; ac pignora eis, pro cautione pecuniarum suarum, pro tempore consignata, nisi transactis prius, a die quo illa eis data fuerint, decem and octo integris mensibus, vendere nequeant, and postquam menses prædicti effluxerint, if ipsi Judei pignora hujusmodi vendiderint, omnem pecuniam quæ eorum creditis superfuerit, domino pignorum consignare.

S 13. — Et statuta Civitatum, Terrarum, and locorum in quibus, pro tempore, habitaverint, favorem Christianorum concernia inviolability to observe etiam teneantur.

S 14. — And, if circa premissa, in aliquo quomodolibet defecerint, juxta qualitatem delicti, in Urbe per Nos, seu vicarium nostrum aut alios a Nobis deputandos, ac in Civitatibus, Terris et locis predictis, per eosdem Magistratus, etiam tanquam rebelthe and criminalis the Magistatis rei, a toto populo Christiano diffidati, nostri et ipsorum vicarii ac deputandorum et Magistratuum arbitrio puniri possint. — Nonobstantibus etc... |

Datum Romæ, apud Sanctum Marcum. Anno Incarnationis Dominice Milesimo quintentesimo quinquagesimo quinto. Pridie ldus Julii, Pontiff. our first year.

i

9. — Pius Papa IV — Universis et singulis utriusque sexus Hebricis, in Alma Urbe commorantibus, et commemorari solitis, viam veritatis agnoscere et agnitam ecus-

to say.

Dudum congratulated Paulo Papa IV predecessore nostro, zelo religionis Christiane moto, litteræ Apostolice, circa vestrum aliorumque Hebræorum vivendi modum, sub data videlicet, pridie Idus Julii, Pontificatus suianno primo, emanarunt, quarum, ut accepimus, pretextu, per calumniam, et cavillationes nonnullorum, vestris facultatibus inhiantium, litteras ipsas, in multis, preter ipsius predecessoris intentionem, interpretantium, your diversimodi vexati et inquietati fuistis.

Sr. — Quare nos, considerantes quod Sancta Mater Ecclesia, Hebræis quos in memoriam passionis Dominicæ tolerat, multa plerumque concedit, ut Christiana benegnitate allecti, errorem suum recongnoscant et ad verum, quod est Christus, lumen tandem, convertantur, plurimorum etiam prædecessorum nostrorum vestigiis inherendo, statui vestro opportuna providere volentes, ac litterarum praedictarum tenores, præsentibus, pro expressis habentes: Motu proprio, non ad vestram vel alicujus vestrum aut alterius, pro vobis super hoc nobis allate petitionis, instantiam, sed de nostra mere deliberation, and ex certa scientia ac of Apostolicæ potestatis plenitudine, vobis omnibus et singulis, ut dum ab uno loco ad alium iter agere contigerit, possitis, in ipso itinere, biretum seu pileum nigrum deferre, ea tamen conditione ut, si ultra unam diem, uno in loco, moram traxeritis, postea solitum biretum glauct coloris gestetis, Apostolica auctoritate, tenore præsentium, concedimus ac indulgemus. — Volentesque quod, yes locus pro vestra habitatione assignatus, ammore and capax, ac negotiis gerendis and thank youbus exerndis aptus and commodus sit, intra illum your contineatis; alioquin, in alio capaci, commodo, vobis assignando, vel priore, - quantum opus fuerit, ampliando, seu jam per dilectum filium Guidonem Ascanium Cardinalem Camerarium jam ampliato, and, forsan, cjusdem Guidonis Ascanii, seu ab eo super deputandorum arbitrio, in posterius amplifying.

S 2. — And, ultra domos in clausura existentenyours, quas per vos acquisri forsan contigerit, quacumque alia stabilia bona seu prædia urbana and rustica, usque ad valorem thousand and quingentorum ducatorum auri, tenere possitis, bonaque ipsis Christianis, and colonis, etiam partiariis, vel sub certa annua pensione prout cum illis convenietis, locare, ac etiam, sine aliquibus fraud and monopolio, culture terrarum et animalium cujuscumque generis aliarumque rerum, societates cum eisdem Christianis contrahere, and /quascumque artes et mercaturas quarumcumque mercium and rerum humano usui quomodolibet necessariarum, etiam olei, frumenti, vini, hordei

ceterorumque fructuum. (Nisi tamen superiores hujusmodi commerce et emptiones, publico Edicto, omnibus etiam Christianis negotiantibus interdixissent) exercised, .and ubi etiam hac vobis, a vestris debitoribus —, in solutum data fuerint, illa recifather, acceptaque quibusvis personis, etiam Christianis, vendere, et, cum illis, pro aliis bonis, permutare et, prout volueritis, alienare. |

S3. — And cum Christianis conversationem, familiaritatem honestas, non tamen eosdem Christians in vestros famulos habere aut quomodolibet tenere. And of pecuniis, for your and vestrum quemlibet mutuatus, pro interest time usque ad datam litterarum prædecessoris hujusmodi decurso, juxta capitula, vobis antea concessa et tolerata, exceptis tamen casibus jam decision vel per transactionnem vel sentiam qus in rem judicatam transierit, finitis, quos in suo robore permanner omnino volumus, nisique, arbitrio. nostro, nova revisione digna videbuntur; alios vero circa, juxta modum ex ejusdem predecessoris ordinatione vobis datum, and donec alius modus vobis, per nos seu nostrum et sedis Apostolicæ camerarium, præfectum pro tempore, statuetur, dummodo tum interest of vestro interest not required tis,exigere.

S4. — Etpignora, that a Christianis quomodocument for your contiguous accipi, of illis, lapsis decem et octo mensibus integris, postquam vobis consignata fuerint, per publicam substation, public official assistance, and party legitima intimatione facta, and alias juxta morem et modum, antequam dictæ litteræ emanassent, in præfata Alma Urbe solitum, vendere, et illorum pretium, pro concurrenti summa vestri crediti, relicum, if quod superflueret, illorum dominis reddendo et consignando, vel in manibus officialis deponendo, vobis retinere, and, de illis, nullam rationem illorum dominis seu cuiquam alteri, reddere teneamini, sed velut de propriis bonis libere disponere valeatis, plenam and liberam, eisdem auctoritate et tenore, facultatem concedimus.

, S5. — Et insuper volumus ut vos, sub statutis et decretis generalibus Almæ Urbis præfatæ, quæ tamen privilegiis et concessionibus vobis indultis contrarie non sint, understands hendamini and she observes teneamini.

S 6. — Etne, ob certi loci, intra quem habitare debeatis, assignmentem et, intra illum, domos conducti necessitatem, ab illarum dominis, ultra debitum modum, pregravemini; and domorum domini, in locis praedictis, Illas vobis, pro justo pretio, per Camerarium prefatum declarando, locare teneantur, ne-

what illud what modo augere vel alterare valeant.

$7. — Preterea, si i avobis, vel vestrum singulis, vigore Apostolicarum Prædecessoris

litterarum, bona stabilia que possidebatis

vendere coactis, aliqui hujusmodi bona eme- .

runt, et illorum, etiam sub pretextu cautionumber of evictione, seu alias per calumnias, requisitarum, non prestitarum, vobis nondum persolverint, ut pretia conventa vobis, absque alicujus cautionis præstatione, integre persolvere, aut bona ipsa stabilia per eos empta, in eo status, quo erant tempore emptionis una cum fructibus per eos perceptis, restitle holder. Omnesque libros rationum vestrarum, and alias scripturas publicas et pri-

vatas vobis ablatos et ablatas, seu depositos

and depositas, quibusve sequestris, super illis

factis, sublatis, vobis restitui mandamus, vosque ad reddendum rationem aliquam of contractibus seu instrumentis, etjam blackcurrant et extinctis, nullatenus teneri neque adstringi me decernimus.

S 8. — Et ulterius, vos, omnes et singulos, D omnibus and quibusvis delictis, criminibus etiam, tam contra dictas Pauli prædecessoris

quam contra, ejusdem Pauli Pontificatus tempore pendante, quorumvis SRE Cardinalium, aut aliorum quorumcunque litteras, etiam libros non exhibendo aut, aliàs, ipsis

litteris non parendo, excessibus and transgressionibus, quantumcunque gravibus and enormibus, for your use ad prwsentem diem commissis; except duntaxat criminibus homicidii homidioque majoribus, ac lesx majestatis and falsæ monetæ, falsificationis litterarum Apostolicarum, et in contemptum. fidei Christianæ commissis; and juxta format instrumenti per vos, in camera Apostolica, cum dilecto filio Donato Matthæo Minali, generali Thesaurario, modo facti seu celebrati, quoad poenas tantum cuicumque, præ'terquam party, applicandas, and that, hactenaked, depositatæ seu exact: non fuerint; And salvo, in reliquis, jure cujuslibet tertii; nec no a quibusvis residuis vigesimarum and talearum, et aliis quibuscunque, tam civilium quam criminalium, cameræ Apostolicæ debitis, auctoritate and tenore premissis, absolvimus et liberamus.

S 9. — Et, insuper, volumus quod, pro futuris transgressionibus, ratione exactionis vestri interested, quarrels with their accuser annum tantum habeat, ad prosequendum suam accusationem seu querelam, quantum sit, respectu poen:, ut supra, applicandæ; quod vero attinet ad civil interest ipsius querelantis, vel accusentis, vel cujuslibet alterius. tertii, nulla alia sit præfinitio temporis, nisi ea que a jure communi statuta est.

S 10. — And, pariter, quod vestris creditis, tam preteritis, quam presentibus et futuris, ea solum opponatur prescriptio que præfinita is a jure communi, et, quod pro toto eo tempore quo quis pecuniis vestris fruitur, intelligence interested in currere, computing tamen, diem pro die, mensem pro mense, and, pro transgressibus vestris, poen: sint arbitrariæ, de cetero, except tamen illis casibus pro quibus certainly? poen: sunt statute a jure communi.

S 11. — Prseterea, vobis permittimus quod possitis tenere apothecas, extra ghettum seu septum hebraicum, quantum tamen fieri poturit, contiguas, et, in illis, ab ortu solis usthat ad occasum, exceptis diebus festivis, permanner and mercaturam ac artes vestras et bancam, aliaque vobis permissa exercitia, exercise, dummodo, come night, your ad vestras, solitas intra claustra, habitationes reducatis. |

. S 12. — Ceterum, ut fraudibus occurratur, mandamus ut vos rationes, quas cum Christianis habueritis, characteribus lingue vulgaris italicæ, scribere teneamini; aka, vetris libris seu rationibus, aliàs quam, ut præfertur, scriptis seu notatis, nulla prorsus fides adhibeatur; possitis tamen, ad libitum vestrum, privatos libros in usus vestros conscriptbere lingua vestra hebraica, dummodo ex eis Christians non conveniatis; although, no solum vos in Alma Urbe præfata commo-

rants, sed etiam ceteri, extra illam in aliis quibusvis locis moram trahentes, which in eadem negotia et commercia aliqua habitualrint, pro illorum modo et qualitate, teneantur and obligati sint in solutione compositionis, per your nuper cum Camera Apostolica.. fact.. aliisque omnibus oneribus per vos sustinensay and fiendis, juxta ratam, eis per taxatores imponendam, compete and contribute, ac demum instrumentum conventionis, per vos cum camera Apostolica sive ejus Thesaurario, sub die octava Januarii presentis anni, initæ, cum omnibus in eodem instrumento contentis, from verbo ad verbum, prout jacet, auctoritate et tenore præmissis approbamus, ratificamus and confirmamus, omniac in illo concessa vobis damus and concedimus and condonamus, atque præmissa omnia et singula, in presentibus nostris litteris contenta, inviolabiliter observari.

S 13 – Sicque, per quoscunque Judices et commissioners, quavis auctoritate fungentes, etiam Palatii Apostolici Auditores, sublata eis, et eorum cuilibet, quavis aliter judicandi and interpretandi facultate, judicari et definiri debere, ac quidquid secus, to quoquam, quavis auctoritate, scienter vel ignoranter, attentedried up contigerit, irritum and inane decernimus.

Non obstantibus ete .... (1)

(1) This Constitution of Pius IV had very little force of

10. – 1566. – Pius Episcopus, servus servorum Dei. Ad perpetuam rei memoriam. | |

Romanus Pontifex, Christi vicarius in' terris, nonnunquam ea qua pro zelo religionis, a ceteris Romanis Pontificibus prædecessoribus suis concessa dicuntur, ut illibata persistant, approbate and confirmat, prout in Domino conscience healthiness expedire. _

S I1. — Dudum felicis recordationis Pauread, Papa IV, predecessor noster, zelo fidei Christianæ motus, certum modum vivendi: et habitandi Judaeis prescriptit, prout in quadam ejus Constitutione, cujus tenor sequitur and is talis, videlicet.... (vide supra).

S2. — Our igitur cupientes ut Constitutio, statuta, et ordinationes hujusmodi, perpetuis futuris temporibus observer, motu proprio et ex certa nostra scientia and not ad alicujus alterius, nobis super hoc oblate, petitionis instantiam, sed ex mera our deliberation, constitution, statute and ordinationes hujusmodi, et, prout illa law, since the duration of this pontificate was only five years. provoked a strong reaction, as we will see from the text of the following constitution of Saint Pius V, who was one of the first acts of his power; but above all, by that of 1569, which exceeds in severity everything that the popes had decreed up to that point subject of the Jews.

concernunt, omnia et singula in dicti Prædecessoris nostri litteris contenta, and india secuta quicunque, auctoritate Apostolica, presentium tenore, approbamus, innovamus and confirmamus and robur perpetuæ firmitatis obtinere decernimus, volumus et, sub interminatione divini judicii, precipimus et mandamus ea omnia in posterum observari firmiter, non solum in terris et dominiis nobis subjectis, sed etiam ubique locorum. |

. 83. — Et ad omnem, circa colorem birreti per masculos et signi per feminas deferen- |
, dorum, hujusmodi submovendam hæsitationem, declaramus dictum FOLDERS esse qui vulgo, gialdo, dicitur.

S4. — Mandantes, in virtute Lo Obedientiæ, omnibus singulis venerabilibus fratribus Patriarchis, Primatibus, Archiepiscopis and Episcopis, quatenus, in civitatibus et diœtheseibus propriis, praesentes nostras litteras publicari and observari faciant.

S5. — Et omnes Secular Principles and alios dominos and magistratus temporales rogamus, requirimus, and obsecramus, per . viscera misericordiæ Jesu-Christi; eisdem in remissionem peccatorum nihilominus injungentes; quod, in præmissis omnibus, eisdem. "Patriarchis, Primatibus, Archiepiscopis and Episcopis assistant, et suum favorem et auxi-lium præstent, ac contrafacientes, poenis etiam temporalibus afficiant.

Non obstantibus etc....

Datum Rome, apud Sanctum Petrum, anno Incarnationis Dominice, milesimo quintentesimo Sexagesimo sexto.

13 Calendas May Pontificatus nostri Annot. .

(NB — Subinde, in decursu Pontificatus Pius V, Judæi, in ditione Pontificia, expulsi sunt, ut patet ¢ ex (sequenti Constitutione.)

44. — 1569. — Pius Episcopus, servus servorum Dei. Ad DORE rei memoriam. |

Hebræorum géns, sola geese: a Domino electa, quæ, divinis eloquiis infusa, cœlestium mysteriorum particeps esset, quantum ceteris omnibus gratia et dignitate excelluit, tantum postea, incredulitatis su: merito contempta et neglecta, in praeceps meruit deturbari; quod adventiente temporis plenitudine, perfida et ingrata, suum Redemptorem indigna morte peremptum, impie reprobárit.

_ Amisso namque sacerdótio, legis auctoritate adempta, propriis disjecta sedibus, quas tanquam lake and mel fluentes, clementissimus and benignissimus Deus jam inde, a prima ipsius gentis origin, illi præparaverat, terrare orbem, tot jam saeculis, pererrans, invisa, probris contumeliisque omnibus objecta, foedas et infames quasque artes,

quibus famem tolerare possit, haud secus

quam vilissima mancipia, cogitur attrectare. Sed Christiana pietas, hunc ineluctabilem casum in primis commiserans, illam humanius satis apud se pasta est diversari, ut scilicet crebro, illius intuitu, passionis Dominice memoria fidelium oculis frequentius obversetur, simulque ex exemfolds, doctrina, monitis, ad conversionem and salutem (quae reliquiis Israel, Prophete oraculo, futura est) amplius invitetur, a qua, si, Christianorum sedibus explosa, ad eas gentes, that Christum non nórunt, diverteret, magis, alien magic redderetur. Verumtamen, illorum impietas, pessimis omnibus artibus instructa, usque eo procedit, ut jam, pro communi nostrorum salute, expediat tanti morbi vim celery remedy prohibere. Nam, ut tam multa usurarum genera omittamus, quibus Hebræi, egentium Christianorum substantitiam usquequaque exinaniverunt, perspircuum satis putamus, eos furum et latronum receptores esse atque participles, which quathat res ab eis subreptas et interversas, non modo profanas, sed etiam divino culyour servients, do not internoscantur, aut ad tempus deleted, aut alio transferred, aut omnino transformare conantur; pleric etiam, specie tractande rei proprio exercitio convenientis, honestarum mulierum domos ambientes, multas turpissimis latrociniis precipitant: quodque omnium perniciosissimum est, sortelegiis, incantationibus magicisk superstionibus and maleficiis dediti, quam plurimos incautos atque infirmos Satane præstiglis inducunt, which creates- of the event prænuntiari, furta, thesauros, res abditas revelari, multitaque praeterea cognosci posse, quorum ne investigandi. quidem facultas, ulli omnino mortalium is permitted. Postremo, cognitum satis et exploratum habemus, quam unworthy Christi nomen hæc perversa progenies will do, quam infesta omnibus sit qui hoc nomine censorship, quibus denique dolis illorum vitæ insidietur. — His aliisque gravissimis rcbus adducti et augescentium, daily, ad Civitatum nostrarum perniciem, scelerum gravitate permoti, cogitantes preterea.

supradictam gentem, lend mediocre ex

Oriente commeatus, nulli Publice nostræ usui esse, nostris vero populis, which præserüm a Nobis aliquanto remotiores sunt, conducibilius fore, illius nomen, flagitia, miserias, aliunde ad se relatas, audire, quam ullo caritatis stimulus eam in suo Deinceps sinu, ut antehac, confovere.

E5303 ee |
Sr. — Auctoritate presentium præcipimus, ut omnes et singuli utriusque sexus Hebrzi, in omni ditione nostra temporali, and, sub ea consistium civitatum, terrarum et locorum, Domicellorum, Baronum, aliorumthat Dominorum temporalium, etiam merum et mixtum imperium, ac vitae necisque potestatem ac quamcunque aliam jurisdictionem atque exemptionem hapentium, of ipsis omnino finitebus, intra trium mensium spatium, postquam presentes littera hic fue-

rint publicatæ, omnino excess.

S 2. — Quibus preteritis, quicumque, sive incole, sive peregrini, ive present, sive futuri, in quacumque dictates ditionis. civitate, terra, vel loco, etiam Domicellorum, Baronum, Dominorum and aliorum exemptorum praedictorum, whenocumque inventi fuerint, rebus omnibus spolientur et fisci juribus applicentur, mancipia Romanæ Ecclesie fiant, et in perpetuam servitudinem assertur, dictaque Ecclesia illud idem jus in eos, quod ceteri Domini in servos and mancipia, sibi debeat vindicare; Urbe Roma and Ancona duntaxat exceptis, ubi, eos solos Hebreos, which nunc eas habiso much, ad predictam memoriam amplius excitadam, persequendasque cum Orienttalibus negotiationses, mutuosque commeatus cum iisdem, permittimus tolerandos; cum eo tamen, ut nostras et prædecessorum nostrorum, alias canonicas de eis Constitutiodo not observe; sin minus, in pcenas omnes que dictis Constitutionibus continues nentur quasque in hocinnovamus, eo ipso incidant. Futurum enim speramus eos, which presertim nostro et hujus sedis conspectui proximi sunt, noxæ metu, a maleficiis tempperaturos et interdum, aliquos, uti antehac, nostro quoque hortatu, satis multis contigit, lumen veritatis cum gaudio agnituros; sed neutri ad alteros, nec in alium dictates ditionis locum, ullo tempore demigrent nec proficiscantur, neque quempiam ex proscriptis ad se recipiant, si servitutis jugum et supplieia voluerint evitare.

Jubemus igitur, omnium provinciarum, civitatum et locorum dictates ditionis, legatos, governors, presidents, praetores and magistratus, ac etiam locorum ordinarios, nec not domicellos, barones, dominos and examples ptos supradictos, ac quoscumque alios ad quos id pertinet, ut quisque pro se, nulla alia a nobis expectata jussione, aut mentis decla'atione, omnia prædicta, quam primum exequantur; and caveant diligenter, ulli, posthae, Hebrai, ad ipsas provincias, civitates et loca, etiam domicellorum, baronum, dominorum et aliorum predictorum, ex quacumque causa, amplius accedant. Quicumque vero etiam de iis qui Rome et Anconæ nunc sunt, excursion quarterly proximo, in "venti in quacumque dicta diparte, etiam quas dominii temporaliter eorumdem dominicellorum baronum, dominorum et exemptorum sit, statim Ecclesie predicts mancipati, in servitutem perpctuam conjiciantur: quorum etiam cervicibus graviores poenas impendere significamus, ut ceteri, eorum example, discant quanti fuerit hanc nostram prohibitionem temere neglected.

Non obstantibus ete...

Datum Rome apud Sanctum Petrum.
Anno Incarnationis Dominice 1569, quarto kalendas Martii, pontificatus nostri anno 4.

12. — 15581. — Gregorius Papa XIII Ad perpetuam Dei memoriam.

Aliàs piæ memoriæ Paulus Papa IV, prædecessor noster, edita perpetua constitutione, inter alia saneivit, ne medici judei, etiam vocati and rogati, ad christianorum ægrotantium curam accedere aut illi interresse possent.

S. 1. — Quam constitutionem, postea, Pius Papa V, predecessor noster, per suas litteras approve, innovate and confirm, and robur perpetuate firmitatis obtinere decree

lives ae voluit, and, sub intimatione divini judicii, præcepit et mandavit, omnia in eadem constitutional content, in posterum firmiter: observari, non solum in terris et dominiis SRE subjectis, sed etiam ubique locorum. | | | mE

S. 2. — Quia tamen Nobis, non sine magna 'animi molestia innotuit, ea minim observari, sed multos adhuc ex Christianis hominibus esse, qui dum suos corporum languores illicitis mediis, et præcipue Judæorum ac aliorum Infidelium opera, sanari cupiunt, veræ salutis animarum suarum et corporum simul immemores sunt, et, quod valde dolendum est, in damnationis de | maximum possible incident, Medicis Judæis et Infidelibus hujusmodi, ad ipsorum - curationem vocatis et adhibitis; undefit ut, and Judæis ac aliis infidelibus magna detur delinquendi occasio, et simul salutare præceptum negligatur, ab Innocentio, Papa III, - similiter predecessore nostro, in concilio. generali quondam emissum. and deinde a prædicto Pio V innovatum, quod omnes medici, cum ad infirmos in lecto jacent vocati essent, ipsos ante omnia monerent, ut idoneo confessori omnia peccata sua, juxta ritum SRE confiterentur, neque tertio ulterius die, visitarent, nisi longius tempus infirmo confessor, ob aliquam rationabilem causam, super quo ejus, concessisset, et eis per fidem confessoris in scriptis factam constaret quod infirmi, peccata sua confessi flee. |

S. 3. — Idcirco, Nos, tam Judæos qui - adversus mandatea hujusmodi apostolica committere audeant, quam Christians who illos ad se accersunt, vel medendi license concedunt, et viam ad delinquendum eisdem aperiunt, coercere volente, supradictas predecessorum nostrorum constitutiones, auctoritate apostolica, tenore presentium, approbamus, confirmamus and innovamus, ac inviolabiliter observari mandamus, atque hac nostra, in perpetuum valitura, constitutone, eisdem constitutionibus et præceptis, pro firmiori illorum observatione, addentes, universis utriusque sexus Christi fidelibus inhibitmus and interdicimus, ne posthac, Ju`dæos vel alios Infideles, ad ipsorum christianorum aegrotantium et infirmorum curam, vocent seu admittant, aut vocari admittive faciant concedant vel permittant.

S. 4. — Mandantes, propterea, omnibus and singulis venerabilibus fratribus nostris Patriarchis, Primatibus, Archiepiscopis and Episcopis, necnon dilectis filiis aliorum locorum Ordinariis, et quibusvis parochis aliisve animarum curam habentibus et exercisentibus, sub indignationis nostre, ac alias, arbi-trio nostro, infligendis pœnis, ut presentes nostras litteras, in suis Ecclesiis, que in illis civitatibus vel dioecesibus constitutæ sunt, in quibus Hebraei vel alii infideles moram trahunt, quam primum ad eos perlatæ fuerint; and, deinde, singulis annis, initio quadragesimalis jejunii, publicent aut publicari .

| = 336 = |

faciant. PEN

$. 5..— Et quod, si quis, post earum publicationem, etiam quomodolibet exemptus, ac cujuscumque status, gradus, ordinis, conditionis, et præeminentiæ existents, adversus she faces ausus fuerit, sacramenta ei Ecclesiastica nullatenus ministerntur, nec etiam a regularibus exemptis, et, sic decedens, Ecclesiastica careat sepultura; quæ quidém omnia, parochi ægrotantibus significare, apto tempore, non omitant, presertim cum Judæum vel Infidelem medicum ab eis admittedsum esse cognoverint; and, aka, ipsi locorum Ordinarii, contra hujus mandati transgresssores, debita animadversione, proceeding, Judaeosque ipsos nihilominüs, juxta Pauli and Pii, Pontificum predictorum, litteras, contra ilos editas, pro earum transgressione. punishing.

Non obstantibus etc... MEE |

Datum Rome apud Sanctum Petrum sub - annulo piscatoris, die 3o Martii, Pontificatus nostri anno nono. — 1581.

13— Gregorius Episcopus, servus servorum Dei. Ad futuram rei memoriam.

Antiqua Judicorum improbitas, qua divine bonitati semper restiterunt, tanto execratior consistit in filiis, quanto ipsi ad cumulandam patrum suorum mensuram, in Dei Filio repu- - diando, until in mortem nefarie conspirarando graviusdeliquerunt; who owns, am effecti majoribus nequiores, propriis sedibus expulsi, atque in omnes dispersi orbis terrarum regiones, servitutique perpetuæ man-. cipati, non majorem in cuuntoam editione clementiam quaminChristianorum provinciis, maxime vero in Apostolicæ pietatis gremio, invenerunt, which pro corum conversione laborans, cos misericorditer excepit, atque in cohabitatione una cum filiis suis sustinuit, ad veritatisque lumen allicere, pio semper studio, conata est, rebusque ad vitam necessariis juvit, injuriis et contumeliis prohibuit, multis denique beneficentiæ sue privilegiis circummunivit; illi vero, nullis beneficiis manusuefacti, nihilque de suo pristino scelere remittents, Dominum nostrum Jesum Christum, in coelo triumphantem, adhuc in synagogis suis et ubique persequuntur; Christian quoque members infensissimi, non desinunt in Religionem Christianam horrenda facinora quotidie magis audere.

S 1 — Quibus Nos, ne pietatis nostre puriheap polluatur, aut a foedis mancipiis, Christo, Christianorumve nemini, impune illudatur, obviare volentes, statuimus ac etiam declaramus, Inquisitores hæreticæ pravitatis, libere posse procedere, in omnibus causis and casibus qui sequuntur.

S2 — Si quis Judzus, aut Infidelis, in iis quæ circa fidem cum illis sunt nobis communnia, veluti Deum unum et æternum, omnipotentem, creatorem omnium visibilium and invisibilium, et similia, non esse, asseruerit, prædicaverit, velalicui prrvatim insinuaverit.

$ 3 — If demons invocaverit consuluritve, aut eorum responsa acceperit, ad illorum sacrificia aut preces, ob divinationem aliamve causdm, diverterit, aut quid eis immolaverit, vel thuris alteriusve rei fumigees obtulerit, aut alia quævis impietatis obsequia præstiterit.

S 4 — Si Christianos, verbo, facto, vel exemplo, aut alio quovis modo nefario hujusmodi, vel ad ea perpetranda perdxerit, aut perdcere attentaverit.

& 5 — Si Salvatorem ct Dominum nostrum Jesum-Christum, purum hominem vel etiam peccatorem futisse, Matremve Dei non esse Virginem, and alias hujusmodi blasphemias, ir

quæ, per se, hæreticæ dici solent, in Christianæ fidei ignominiam, contemptum aut impious corruptionem protulerit.

S 6 — Si cujusvis eorum opera, auxilio, consilio, vel favore, aliquis Christianus a fide desciverit, quamque semel suceperat abnegaverit, vel ad Judaeorum seu aliorum Infidelium ritus, ceremonias, superstitions vel impias sectas transierit, vel redierit, seu in haeresim aliquam inciderit, aut cui, ut fidem Christi abneget seu in heresim incidat, opem, consilium, auxilium vel favorem, quomodocunque, præstiterit.

S 7 — Si quis Catechumenum vel quemcunque ex Judais aut Infidelibus, Deo inspirante, ad fidem Christianam montere volentem, post declaratam nutu, verbo, facto, aut whoever alio modo, ejus voluntatem, a fide vel fidei instructede, aut a sacri baptismi suspected of retrahere, avertere vel dehortari, aut, ne ad fidem veniat, neve regenerationis lavacro abluatur, quovis modo, impediverit.

S8 — Si quis apostatas hereticosve, scienter, domui suæ acceptaverit, aluerit, commeatu juverit, seu quovis modo cibaria ubicunque præbuerit, aut dona vel munera dederit vel misery, aut de loco ad locum deduxerit, seu associaverit vel deducendos, seu associandoscuraverit, autsumptus, ministraverit, duces committeesve illis adjunxerit, vel ne ab eis

Hi.

_ perpetrata deprehendi aut investigari queant, fecerit. Quique dictos Apostatas aut hæreticos, scienter, aliquo modo receptatruth, defenseit, aut eis opem, consilium, auxilium vel favorem, HI MO RACE præstiterit. |

|... 89. —Si quis libros hereticos idi thalmudicos aut alios Judaicos quomodolibet damnatos, aut aliàs prohibitos, tenurit, custodierit . veldivulgaverit vellum quæcunque loca detulerit, aut, ad eam rem, operam suam accommodaverit.

$10 — If Christianos deriserit, redeemeonisque nostr: hostiam salutarem, in ara crucis immolatam, Christum Dominum, ludibrilliance and despectui habens, whenever, maxime vero in sacro Parasceves die, agnum, sive ovem aut quid aliud cruci affixerit aut appenderit, in camque conspuerit scu quodcumque contra ipsam fecerit. AE

Srr. — Si nutrices Christianas, contra sacro- . rum Canonum statuta, diversorumque Romanorum Pontificum, predecessorum nostrorum sanctiones, adhuc retinuerit; aut eas retinens, die qua sanctissimum Eucharistiæ sacramentum sumpserint, lake, uno vel pluribus diebus, in latrinas, cloacas, vel alia loca effundere coegerit. |

Non obstantibus etc....... meE

Datum Rome, apud Sanctum Petrum,

m |

Anno "inea cmationis: Dominice Milesimo

| quintentesimo octogesimo primo, Calendis Junii, Pontificatus nostri anno decimo.

1% — 1593 — Clemens Episcopus, servus

. servorum Dei. Ad perpetuum rei memoriam. |

Ceca et obturata Hebræorum perfidia non

. solum ingrata est in Dominum ac Redemptorem humani generis Jesum Christum, Dei Filium, ipsis promissum, and, ex semine David, secundum Carnem natum, sed neque etiam .sanctc Matris Ecclesise ipsorum conversionem patient expectantis, magnam erga eos misericordiam agnoscit; quinimo, pietati Christianæ, pro gratia, injuriam reddens, “no cessation daily early committere enormous excessus, tot detestanda patrare flagitia, in prejudicium ipsorum Christi fidelium, which eos, in testimonium veraz fidei etin memoriam passionis Dominicae, atque ut tandem resipiscant, benign tolerant and recipiunt, ut nos, gravibus querimoniis, ea de causa, - ad nos perlatis impulsi, cogamur, pro.debito pastoralis officii, opportunum. aliquod huic. malo remedium adhibere.

Sr. — Sane jampridem, felic. Record. Puread, Papa IV, sub data Pontificatus sui, anno

nn

first, editam constitutionem, prudenti ac salubri consilio, certas præscripsit leges quas Judæi, in terris ditionis Ecclesiaticæ degentes, servare tenerentur.

S2. — Easque, postmodum, recolendæ memoræ Pius Papa V, itidem prædecessor, sub data videlicet, tertio decimo Kalendas Maii, Pontificatus sui anno primo, non solum innovavit, sed etiam complura indulta et privilegia, quorum obtained, Judai se tuebantur, abrogando, eamdemque Pauli prædecessoris constitutonem adversus illos restituit, ac firmmiter observari precepit, ac demum, per alias suas litteras, eos ab omnibus ditionis temporalis Ecclesie Civitatibus, Terris et locis, Urbe Roma and Ancona exceptis, perpetuo exulare jussit, prout in eorum litteris latius continetur. |

83. — That, cum, optimum suadente ratione, a sancta hac Sede emanaverint, ipsi tamen Jadæi, successu temporis, paulatim ab hujusmodi vinculis se eximere attempted, ac, forsan, ab aliis prædecessoribus nostris, which, ut eos, ab eorum caligine, id agnitionem veræ fidei allicerent, mansuetudinem Christianæ

pietatis non denegandam eis censuerunt, aliquas super hoc, tolerantias, sive indulta extorted. Quibus postmodum, contra piam eorumdem praedecessorum mentem et intentionem, prave abutentes, eo tandem sunt progressi, ut adversus divinas, naturales, humanascus leges, magnis and gravibus usuris pecuniarum, quas presertim a pauperibus et | egenis exigunt, monopoliis illicitis, foeneraticiis pactis, fraudibus, dolis in contrahendo ac fallaciis, plurimos cives et incolas ditionis temporalis Ecclesiasticæ, ubi commorantur, misere exhauserint, bohis spoliaverint, ac tenuis potissimum fortunæ homines, præSertim rusticos et simplices, non solum ad extremam inopiam et mendicitatem, sed propemodum in servitutem redegerint, multa preterea and quidem graviora scelera, flagitia, and ipsi commiserint, and perdito cuique ac nequissimo, in facinoribus patrandis, suam libentissime operam and quamcunque potuerunt opem presiterint.

= BAG ime

S 4. — Nosigitur, his et aliis gravissimis of causis adducti, hujusmodi nationem, plerisque ex nostris Populis, apud quos experientia docuit eam multo plus detrimenti afferre quam boni ab ipsa sperari queat, consuimus omnino expellendam, et tamen, ne a Nobis prorsus ejecta, ad gentes quæ Christum non norunt divertat, atque a via salutis, reliquiis Israel prophetico ore premise, longius recedat, eam ab Amplioribus quibusdam aut nobis proximis civitatibus, ubi facilius, legum vinculis and Judicum severitate in officio continue neri possit, duximus non repellendam. Ac proinde Nos, eorumdem Pauli et Pii prædecessorum. vestigiis inherentes, primum quidem eorum constitutiones et litteras, quarum tenores prxesentibus haberi volumus pro expressis, harum series approbamus and innovamus, illisque perpetuæ, inviolabilis et inconcussæ firmitatis robur adjicimus. |

$5— Deinde vero, usu be ipsa edocti, quuse eisdem Judivis, prater illorum formam, pia and benigna eorum which secuti sunt prædecessorum nostrorum indulgentia permissa fuerunt,

ea, ut sperabatur, mini profuisse, quin-imo, contra mentem concedentium, malitia Judæorum, in damnum Christi fidelium retoryour extitisse; omnia and whoever, if that for-

san a sim. memoriae Pio IV, Sixto V, etaliis

Romanis Pontificibus prædecessoribus nostris, sive de eorum, ut assertur, mandato, in favorem eorumdem Judæorum, tam in Alma Urbe tantum, quam in quisbusvis aliis ditionis temporalis Ecclesiæ, civitatibus, terris, oppidis, ct locis degentium, etiam, super hoc ipso, ut ubibilibet eis commemorari liceat,- in genere vel in specie, etiam Motu proprio, vel sub prætextucausæ actitulionerosi, etiam vim contractus inducentis, aut aliàs concessa di-cuntur, privilegia, permissiones, indulta aut

`

capitula, quorum etiam omnium et singulo-

rum tenores, pro expressis and ad verbum inserttis, habemus in ea parte qua praedictis eorumdem Pauli et Pii predecessorum, necnon præsentibus nostris litteris adversantur, aut, ultra illas, aliquid concedunt, harum serie revocantes, brittle, abolent, irritaque cassa and nulla decernentes.

S6. — Hac nostra, perpetuo valitura constitutione, praecipimus and mandamus ut omnes and anyone Judæi utriusque sexus, in quibusvis ditionis nostr: temporalis universe Civitatibus, etiam Bononiensi and Beneventana, Oppidis, Terris, Castris and locis, etiam sub eadem ditione Consistentium, Baronum et Domicellorum, quamcunque jurisdictionem, | præeminentiam, titulum, insignia seu exemptionem habentium, ad præsens reperiuntur, debeantomnino, intra tres menses, a die pubcationis presentium litterarum, in Romana Curia faciendæ;numerandos, ex cjusdem diti-: onis temporalis and status Ecclesiastici finitebus dissesses and alio commigrasses. Quin potius, tam illos quam alios, si qui, fortasse, ad predictum: status accedent, jubemus in posterum, a tota ditione præ&fata, non solum, nostris, sed etiam perpetuis futuris temporibus, sine ulla spe reditus, exulare, ita ut, quicunthat Judæi, sive incole, sive peregrini, præsentesaut futuri, in quavis dictae ditionis Civi- . tate, Oppido, terra vel loco, etiam Domicellorum and Baronum hujusmodi, when any, post lapsum trium mensuum predictorum,

no ee

inventi fuerint, rebus omnibus spolientur, eathat Fisci juribus applicentur, eorum vero unusquisque, which, ætate, and corpore, viribus satis firmis, ad eam poenam sustinendam repeatrietur, ad triremes, quoad vixerit, sit, eoipso damnatus.... Idque in toto statute predicted ubique servetur, (UrbeRoma and Avenionensi, and Anconitana Civitatibus, duntaxat exceptis) ubi, eos qui, ad presentens, ibidem vel alibi, intra predictum statutum degunt, si ad dictas potius civitates, quam alio serecipere maluerint, et prædictis de causis, et ad prosequendas cum Orientalibus mercaturæ negotiationes et commerce, et quia illos, presertim, who nostro et hujus sedis conspectui proximi sunt, pre formidine a maleficiis temperaturos, atque interdum, aliquos lumen veritatis facilius agnituros speramus, censuimus toleranback.

S 7 — Verum, his ipsis, quosin tribes tantum praedictis civitatibus commorari permittimus, universis et singulis Judaeis, præcipimus, ut Civitatum predictarum in quibus, pro tempore, habitaverint, statuta, favorem Christianorum concernia, necnon Edicta Ordinariorum et Magistratuum, precipue vero nostras ac predictas Pauli et Pii quinti predecessorum, and alias Apostolicas et cano-: nicas, quæ circa ipsos Judæos aliquid disponunt, constitutiones inviolabiliter observe.

Datum Rome, in Monte Quirinali, anno Incarnalionis Dominica, millennia quingente-simo nonagesimo tertio, Kalendis. Martii, Pont. nostri anno 2, 45 — 1593 — Clemens Episcopus, servus servorum Dei. Ad perpetuam rei memorian.

Cum Hebræorum malitia novas, in dies excogitet frauds, quibus perniciosa volumina librosque impios ac plane detestabiles, tam antiquitus damnatos quam recens conscriptos, in vulgus proferat.

Sr. — Nos et ipsis exitiale, and Christiano populo periculosum rati, hanc eorum nequitiam conniventibus oculis tolerare, ac, pro nostro pastorali officio, opportunum huic malo remedium adhibere volentes, adducti explo complurium Romanorum Pontificum Prædecessorum nostrorum, presertim felicis Recordationis Gregorii IX, Innocent IV, ClementisIV, Honorii IV, Joannis XXII, Julii il, Pauli IV, and Gregorii XIII, who seepiusimpium illud, Talmud nuncupatum, etalia similia reprobata et detestenda scripta et volumina, damnaruntet retineri prohibuerunt, seu alias, ex Christiani Orbis Provinciis and Regnis, pio zelo exterminarunt, omnes et singulos eorundem Prædecessorum super hoceditas litteras, | quarumtenores presentibus, haberivolumus

pro expressis, harum series approving and innovative.

$2. — Attack. illis hæc addentes, omnibus

and quibuscumque Universitatibus Hebræorum, eorumque singulis, tam in temporali SRE edite quam etiam extra, ubivis locorum, et in quibusvis Christiáni orbispartibus, constitutis, perpetue prohibemus, ne quosvis libros et codices i impios Thalmudicos, sepe damnatos, vanissimos, cabalisticos, atque alios nefarios a predecessoribus . nostris prohibitos et condemnatos, neenon opera: commentaria, tractatus, volume and scripta. quecumque, tam lingua: Hebraica quam quavis alia, hactenus conscripta aut versa, edita aut impressa, ac in posterum conscribenda et vertenda, edenda velimprimenda, continentia seu continentes tacite vel express, hereses. vel errors contra sacras veteris Legis et Testamenti scripturas; necnon contumelias, impietates, blasphemias, contra Deum, sanctissimam Trinitatem, and Salvatorem nostrum Dominuni nostrum Jesum Christum and until Sanctam Christianam fidem, ac Beatissimam ipsius Genitricem semper Virginem Mariam, and beatos Angelos, | Patriarchas, Prophetas, Apostolos alioscus Sanctos Dei, Sacratissimam Crucem, Sacramenta novæ Legis, Sacras Imagines and Sanctam Catholicam Ecclesiam et Sedem Apostolicam ac contra Christi faithful, præsertim Episcopos, Sacerdotes, alias Ecclesiastices personas, atque etiam contra nuper ad ejusdem Christi fidem conversos et neophytas et alias, contra Religionem Catholicam; vel in quibus etiam impudicæ et obscenæ narrationes memorantur, etiam sub 'pretextu quod expurgata fuerint, donec ex- ` purgentur, sive quod de: novo typis excusa fuerint, mutatis nominibus, vel etiam sub obtained seu tolerantiæ aut permissionis, ut praetendunt, Secretarii aut cujusvis persone | sacri Concilii Tridentini, aut Indicis Librorum prohibitorum, per recentis memory Pium Papam IV Prædecessorem nostrum, editi, vel cujusvis Indulti Apostolici, aut licensed by SRE Cardinales, etiam Legatos aut Camerarium, seu Cameram Apostolicam, vel Nuntios etiam cum potestate Legati de latere, aut locorum Ordinarios, seu Inquisitors heretice pravitatis, forsan, quomodolibet concedes, aut quovis alio quæsite colored, light, bright and retinere, emere | vel vendere; autevulgare ullo modo audeant vel praesumant. |

S 3. — Omnes vero et quascunque facullt litteras, permissiones, Indulta, tolerantias, legendi, tenendi, etiam ad tempus -

certum vel incertum, vel ad effectum, prædictas, and, sub similibus et aliis prætextibus, anyone, ut præfertur, prohibita scripta, volumina, libros et alia supradicta, quibusvis Judæis, in genere vel in specie, a prædecessoribus nostris et dicta sede Apostolica seu ejus Legatis, etiam de latere, vel nuntiis aut Inquisitoribus hæreticæ pravitatis, aut locorum Ordinariis, vel quibusvis aliis, qua vis dignitate vel auctoritate fungentibus etiam SRE Cardinalibus, up to Camerario seu Camera predicta, sub quibusvis verborum formis and conceptionibus, and whichbusvisetiam derogatoriarum derogatoriis formulis, ac vim contractus inducentibus irritantibusque et aliis decretis, etiam Motu proprio et ex certa scientia, deque Apostolicæ potestatis plenitudine, seu ad quorumcunque Principum, etiam Regali, Ducali, vel alia anyone præeminentia fulgentium instanttiam, vel eorum intuitu, concessions, auctoritate and tenore pramissis, revocamus, irritamus and annullamus, ac pro revocatis, irritis ac penitus infectis, in perpetuum haberi volumus. |

S 4. — Districtius inhibitentes, tam quibuscunque ex praedictis, quavis auctoritate et facultate suffultis personis, ne hujusmodi licentias, tolerentias, indulta, quoquomodo, concedere, quam Judæis, ne illis, sic per hereby revocatis, aut posthac, forsan, of facto concedendis, uti, aut earum pretextu, aut alios quomodolibet libros prædictos retinere, light, deferre, emere, vendere, aut de novo edere præsumant.

Ep SSF

S5. — Quinimo, si quos ad præsens habank eos statim, intra decem dies, Rome, in Officio Sanctæ Romane et universalis Inquisitionis, extra Urbem vero, intra duos menses a die publicationis presentium numerdos, locorum Ordinariis, seu Inquisitoribus -= hæreticæ pravitatis, a quibus postmodum, absque alio mandato nostro, nulla interposita mora, comburantur, exhibits, tradere and consignare omnino tenantur et debeant.

S6. — Præcipientes, tam ipsis Judaeis quam quibuscunque Typographis, Biblio- | polis seu mercatoribus et aliis quibuscunque Christifidelibus, etiam cujuscunque status, gradus, ordinis vel conditionis existentibus, sub poenis amissionis librorum et publicationis omnium bonorum, Fisco ejus principis, in cujus ditione libri reperti fuerint, applicandorum, ac aliis etiam gravioribus et corporis afflietivis, arbitrio Diœcesani and etiam Inquisitoris, siin ibi fuerit, statuendis | ac moderandis, nec non, quoad Christianos, etiam excommunicationis majoris late sen-

attempt per unumquemque contrafacientem,
| | | | | 23

ss

351

eo ipso, incurrendæ, ne hujusmodi libros et alia scripta superius prohibita, ut præfertur, retinere, habere, light, edere, typis excudere seu printere, describere vel exemplare, advehere, emere, vendere, donare, commutare, aut alias, quomodolibet, distrahere vel alienare.

S 7. — Neve quisquam, etiam sub niedi: tis et aliis poenis, contra faores Apostatarum afide et hæreticorum, a sacris canonibus andConstitutionibus Apostolicis inflictis, ipsis Hæbræis, pro habendis, scribendis, seuimprimendis hujusmodi libris, vel undecunque, advehendis seu transferendis, aut pro eorum- ` dem legendorum licentia, de cetero impetranda, opem, auxilium, consilium vel favorem prestare aut Kies GEM (HOCH modo, audeat......... DOTT

Non obstantibus etc...... o

Datum Romse, apud Sanctum Petrum, Anno Incarnationis Dominice milleimo quingentesimo nonagesimo tertio, pridie Kal. Martiii. Pontificatus nostri anno secundo.

16 — 1704 — Clemens Episcopus. Servus servorum Dei ad perpetuam rei memoriam. 7

Propaganda per universum Terrarum Orbem Christiane fidei, cujus illibatumac perenne depositum Romana, in primis, servat Ecclesia, pro commissi nobis Apostolici muneris debito, jugiter intendentes, dum in remotissimas quasque parts Evangelii praecones ablegare satagimus, in eam simul curam diligenter incumbimus, ut quicunque, disjectis infidelitatis tenebris, ad verum justiti: solem who Christus est, agnoscendum, eo adjuvante feasting, nullis, quoad fieri potest humanarum rerum et obstaculis impediantur; sicque ad Catholicæ Ecclesiæ gremium, ex omni natione quæ sub coelo est, eo frequencyior quo facilior, expediatur accessus.

Sr. — Quamvis enim, non temporalium rerum commodo, sed æternæ potius hereditatis intuitu, ad suscipiendam Christi Fidem Unfaithful allies oporteat, quin etiam, edoceri præcipuam Christiani nominis gloriam, in eo maxim sitam esse, ut terrena despiciat, existimetque omnia detrimentum esse propter eminent scientiam Jesu Christi Domini nostri, nihilominus rationi congruum et piæ

Matris Ecclesiæ institutis consentaneum arbitramur, ita paternam nostram, erga eos who, adhucin Fide parvuli, lacte potius quam cibo Solido nutriendi sunt, providentiam temprare, ut infirmiores quique a Christianæ religionis proposition, amittendarum facultatum, a potius miseriæ egestatis, horrore, non retrahantur; cum potius juxta canonicas sanctiones, eos qui ad Fidem veniunt, melioris conditionis esse oporteat, post Baptismum, quam, antequam fidem susceperint, haberentur, et in illis etiam impleri debeat Christi certa promissio: Querite primum regnum Det et justitiam ejus et heec omnia n cientur eobis. |

S 2. — Quam quidem ob causam, cüm plures Romani Pontifices, Prædecessores Nostri, pro tradita sibi divinitus, in iis, quæ ad ejusdem Sante fidei, favorem and propagationem relevant, Apostolica potestate, multa, in Neophytorum commodum, privilegia con- ceasent, alüs quoque additis ordinationibus, quibus etindemnitatiipsorum, and Chris- -tianæ religionis dignitati, et faciliori simul

Infidelium conversioni consultum foret; præcipue vero, felicis record. Paulus Papa III Apostolicam constitutionem edited in hec verba:

S83. — Paulus Papa III, ad Deepens rei memoriam. — Cupientes Judæos et alios In-faithful quoslibetad Fidem Catholicam converti, et pretextu bonorum per eos ante possessorum, ab eadem Fide non distrahi, Motu proprio, et ex certa scientia nostra, auctoritate Apostolica, tenore presentium, hac in posterum valitura constitutione, sancimus, quod cuicunque eorumdem Jud:eorum et Infidelium, addictam Fidemconverti volenti, etiamsiin patria potestate constitutus fuerit, bona sua quæcunque, tam mobilia quam immobilia, intacta and illeesa permaneant; Itautetiam filiiifamilias etin patria potestate, ut prefertur, constituti, legitima et quacunque portione bonorum, patrimonialium aut maternorum, eis de jureseu successione bonorum, eis alias debtorum, per eorum parentes fraudari aut privari non possint neque debeant, scd eis integre, etiamsi, contra voluntatem parentum suorum, ad Fidem ipsam conversi fuerint, etiam eorum parentibus viveibus, debeantur.

S 4. — And, si bona ipsa ex usura aut illicito quæstu fuerint acquisita, et note sint personæ quibus eorum fuerit, de jure, facienda restitutio, (quia non dimittitur peccatum nisi restituatur male ablatum), illa eisdem personis omnino restituantur; personis vero non extantibus predictis, quiabonaipsa essent, per manus Ecclesia, in pios usus convertenda, bona hujusmodi, eisdem Judæis et aliis Infidelibus, in favorem suscepti baptismatis, tanquam in pium usum libere, concedimus, eaque apud ipsos sic conversos Judaeos et alios Infideles remanere decernimus. Prohibited sub. divini anathematis poena, quibusvis tam Ecclesiasticis quam secularibus personis, ne ullam super bonus hujusmodi, quovis quzsito colore, molestiam inferant aut inferri patiatur; sed magnum se fecisse lucrum existimement, dum tales Christo lucrati fuerint.

S 5. — Et quoniam, ut scriptum est: Who habuerit substantiam hujus mundi, et viderit fratrem suum necessitatem habere et clauserit eiscera sua ab eo quomodo Charitas Dei manet in ipso? if ipsi, conversionis tempore, inopes aut indigentes fuerint, omnes, tam Ecclesiaticos quam sæculares, per viscera misericordie Dei nostri, exhortamur ut ipsis conversis manus porrigant adjutrices: ipsi quoque Diœcesani, non solum Christianos ad subveniendumipsis exhortentur, sed etiam, tam de redditibus Ecclesiarum,prout poterunt, quam of his que, ad pauperum usus, peripsos convertenda, devolvuntur, hujusmodi Neophytas maintain non-negligently, ipsosque to detractionibus et contumeliis paterna affectione, desplitting.

S 6. — And, quoniam per gratiam Baptismi, Cives Sanctorum et domestici Dei efficiuntur, et longe dignius existit regnare spiritu quam nasci carne, eadem Constitutione statuimus, ut civitatum et locorum, in quibus sancto Baptismate, pro tempore, regenerabuntur, vere cives sint, et privilegiis ac libertatibus and immunitatibus, quæ alii, ratione nativitatis and originis of duntaxat, a tur, gaudeant.

S 7. — Curent insuper sacerdotes Baptizantes et alii de sacro font eos suscipientes, tam ante baptismum quam post, illos in articulis Fidei ac legis novæ præceptis, Catholicæ Ecclesiæ ritibus, to diligently instruct, and, tam ipsi quam dicecesani operam dent, ne cum aliis Judzis seu Infidelibus, saltem per longum tempus, conversentur, ne, sicut when contigit, ab infirmitate curatis, modica occasio ad pristinam damnationem recidivam efficiat.

§ 8. — Et quoniam, experientia teste, compertum est, mutuam ipsorum Neophytorum inter se Conversationem ipsos in Fide nostra fragiliores reddere, ac saluti ipsorum plurimum officere, hortamur locorum Ordinarios, ut, quantum pro incremento Fidei viderint expedire, curent and studeant Neophytos ipsos cum originariis Christianis matrimonio copulare.

§ 9. — And prohibiting eisdem, sub gravibus poenis, ne mortuos, more Judæorum, sepelian, aut sabbata aliasque solemnitates and antiquos sectæ ritus, quoquomodo, observe, sed et Ecclesias et prædicationes, prout alii Catholici, ffequentent, et, in omnibus, Christianorum moribus conform reddant.

. .810. — Contemptores autem prædictorum... Dicecesanis seu Inquisitoribus hæreticæ pravitatis deferant, et, invocato, si opus fuerit, auxilio brachii. secularis, per eos taliter puniantur quod aliis transeat in exemplum... |

Non obstantibus etc.. E cr s
Datum Romæ, apud sanctum Petrum, sub . Annulo Piscatoris, die 21 Martii, millenios quintentesimo quadragesimo secundo, Ponttificatus nostri anno octavo. ZEN E
, .S8. 16. — Nos igitur, ne tam salubris Constitutionis memoria, temporis diuturnitate, deficiency, and observantia, neglectu cujuspiam, obsolescat, aut etiam, Fidei hostium dolo, notitia, converted volentibus, suprimatur; of _ nonnullorum Venerabilium fratrum nostrorum SRE Cardinalium et dilectorum Filiorum Romane Curie prelatorum, quibus hujusmodi negotium commisimus expendendum, consilio, atque etiam, motu proprio, ex certa scientia, ac maturity deliberatione nostris, deque Apostolice potestatis plenitudine, eamdem pre insertam constitutionem, omnia et singula in ea contenta, tenore præsen-

Pie

tium confirmamus, approbamus, and innovamus, eamque, ab omnibus ad quos pertinet, inviolabiliter observari, perpetuis futuris nn debere, statuimus and mandamus.

S 17. — Simulque, ad omnis dubitationis umbram penitus removendam, eadem a memorato Paulo Prædecessore statuta, clarius. explanatory and, quatenus opus sit, etiam amplius extendentes, bona quaedam adventitia, whatever modo talia censantur, ad filios familias Christianam religionem profites, utpote, to Patric: potestatis jugo, quo parentibus infidelibus subdebantur, Sacri Baptismatis beneficio prorsus exemptos, pleno jure spectare, neque, super illis, usum fructum aut . aliud quodcunque jus, prefatis parentibus, quamdiu in lnfidelitate permanserint, ullo modo competere; econtra vero, parents ipsos aliosque quoscunque, who, converted eorumque descendentibus, alias, fed seu dotem prestare quocunque titulo, etiam in subsidium, tenerentur, ad eadem alimenta - seu dotem illis subministranda pariter teneri et obligatos esse post conversionem eorum, similiter, tenore presentium declaramus, atque, etiam ex integro, statuimus, deCernimus and Mandamus.

S 18. — Et, quoniam Infidelium, ac, pre ceteris, Judæorum malitiam, eo usque, in odium Christiani nominis, processisse, pluries compertum est, ut bona sua occultando, seu in alios transferendo, vel alias, de illis, inter vivos, vel etiam, in ultima voluntate, available, Filios aliosque consanguineos ad Christi fidem conversos, eorumdem bonorum successione, ad quam, ab intestato, legitimate admittendi flee, aut etiam, spe successionis ejusdem, fraudare attempted: idcirco nos, rec. mem. Gregorii Pope XIII, Prædecessoris nostri, who, per suas quasdam, sub annulo Piscatoris, die September 13, 1581, Pontificatus sui anno decimo, datas litteras, hujusmodi malo, utpote in Fidei Christiane detrimentum cedenti, occurrendum merito censuit, vestigiis inherentes, Judæos quoslibet, sicut et alios Infideles, bona sua et jura quecunque in praejudicium filiorum aut aliorum consanguineorum, which, aka, ipsis ab intestato decedentibus succuri essent and Christianorum susceperint religionem, whatever mode, alienare its occultare vel diminish, inter vivos aut in qualibet ultima voluntate non posse: sed potius eadem bona and swore to everyone (tradita, statim post baptismum, legitima quibuscunque, alias, post obitum competeret eorumdem) integrated keep teneri and obligatos esse, tam ipsos quam alios bonorum eorumdem detentores vel occupatores; ad illa seu eorum rationes, quoties opus fuerit, exhibenda, and of eisdem Inventarium legitime faciendum, and of utendo and fruendo, arbitrio boni viri, cavendem, opportunis juris et facti remediis, compelli posse; atque in eorum bonis et juribus, si in infidelitate deceaseint, ipsorum filios seu alios quoscumque Consanguineos, ut prefertur, Christianos, eodem prorsus modo and swear, nulla etiam obstante ungratitudinis, aut alia quantumvis legitima exhereditationis causa, quam, ob suscepti postea baptismi venerationem, sublatam prorsus esse volumus, succeedere debere, ac si iidem Judaei seu alii Infideles nullum fecisent aut ordinassent testamentum, vel aliam ultimam voluntary; omnesque and singulas bonorum et jurium, sive inter vivos, sive inultima voluntate, alienationes, distractiones, aut alias dispositions predicted, in hujus nostre Constitutionis fraudem etin odium Christiano Fidæi factas, seu, potius, indignationas, censeri, ac nullius propterea roboris et momenti esse; motu, scientia, et potestatis plenitudine si.milibus, tenore presentium, sancimus, decernimus et ordinamus.

S. 19. — Ceterum, ne, dum provida sollicitudin temporalia Conversis ad Fidem commoda comparamus, spirituale animorum lucrum negligere videamur in convertendis; quemadmodum Infideles ceteros, which runs along sunt,.sacris missionibus institutis, Evangelica prædicatione instruere non cessamus;

ita de Judzis etiam, who, magno numero, inter Christians, vivunt et nostris quodam modo oculis obversantur, æterna salute procuranda precipue cogitamus. 212

lristitia enim nobis magna est (fidenter cum Apostolo dicimus) and continuus dolor cordi nostro, dum, paterni amoris visceribus, miseremur Israeliticam gentem, olim Deo amabilem populum, quem elegit Deus in hereditatem sibi, and custodivit quasi pupillam oculi sui, nunc autem, (postquam, Judaica in summum scelus erumpente perfidia, vere iratus est furore Dominus in populum | suum, et usque in finem abominatus est hæreditatem suam), velut gregem sine Pastore dispersum, per invia quseque et inaquosa, misere divagantem, ac verbi Dei, quod illi. unicum superest, salutari pabulo destitutum, solo, scilicet, litterae que occidit, à Judæis cortice degustato, spiritu vero, which vivifies, and animalibus hominibus non percepto.

S 20. — Propterea, ad eosdem Judæos in sancte Fidei veritate salubriter erudiendos et trahendos ad Christum, ea omnia et singula quæ de sacris lectionibus seu sermonibus, per weekly singulas, ad ipsos, ubicunque eorum synagoge fuerint, habendis, memoratus Gregorius predecessor noster, in aliis suis, anno Incarnationis Dominice, thousandsimo quintentesimo octogesimo quarto, Kalendis Septembris, Pontificatus sui anno decimo tertio, editis Apostolicis litteris, quarum tenorem, pro espresso, in præsentibus haberi volumus, sapienter constituta sunt, ab omnibus ad quos pertinet, inviolate servari, et, sicubi in desuetudinem abierunt, in usum revocari precipimus et mandamus: Concionatores omnes, qui ad id. munus electi fuerint, specialty admonentes, iisque etiam, in nomine Domini destrictius injungentes, ut memoratos Judæos non injuriis, customliis aut nimia verborum as-were

peritate, quibus in Judaica perfidia magis obfirmarentur, sed charitate potius and mansuetudine, quam mitis nos et humilis cord Christus edocuit, velut wandering oves, ad - Sancte Ecclesiw caulas suaviter allicere et, patefacta ex veterum potissimum, quos venerantur, scripturarum oraculis, Christianz veritatis luce, velamen ab oculis eorum detrahere, omni studio satagant, and ex Judaïcæ pravitatis tenebris, quibus obscurati sunt | oculi eorum ne videant, Dei omnipotentis operante virtute, liberentur.

. S21.— Postremo, Jude: osomnes ceterosque Infidels quoscunque, who ad baptized grtiam, Deo donante, pervenerint, omnibus Ecclesiarum prelatis ac secularibus etiam principibus, per misericordie Deinostri viscera, commendamus, ut eos patrocinio foveant, auctoritate adjuvent, potentia tueantur, neque ab aliis, presertim vero, a Judæis aut quibusvis Infidelibus, ulla in re, indecock vexari patientur; Universe, ubiquitous Terrarum, Christi faithfules, in Unigeniti Filii Dei et salvatoris nostri Jesu-Christi, cujus vice fungimur, nomine hortamur and obsecramus, ne venientes ex Infidelitate, presertim eyelids despicant and aversentur; potius, novella hujusmodi, Ecclesie officiis ac beneficiis, prout quisque poterit, excolere et irrigare non desint, atque, ut veros in Christo brothers, ac Domesticos fidei effects, benign excipiant, in necessitatibus sublevent and, omni, demum, Christiane charitatis genere prosequantur, ut, from suscepto Sancte Fidei proposition, gaudium ipsorum sit plenum et exultatio, iis vero qui foris sunt et adhuc Infidelitatis caligine detinentur, ad ejusdem Sanct: Matris Ecclesiae gremium properandi OXCILOND Poison AUSTIN e —

Non obstantibus etc...................

Datum Rome, apud Sanctum Petrum, anno Incarnationis Dominicæ milesimo septtingentesimo quarto, quinto Idus Maii, Pontificatus nostri anno quarto.

Ex Epistola Petri Venerabilis
ad Ludovicum VIE contra Judæos

Sed quid proderit inimicos Christiane Spei,in exteris et remotis finitebus insequi ac persequi, si nequam, blasphemi, . long Saracenis deteriores Judai, non longe a nobis, sed in medio nostri, tam libere, tam audacter, Christum cunctaque Christiana Sacramenta impune blasphemaverint, conculcaverint, deturpaverint. Quomodo zelus Dei comedet filios Dei, si prorsus intacti evaserint summi Christi ac Christianorum inimici Judai? An excidit a mente regis Christianorum quod olim dictum est a quodam sancto rege Judeorum? Vonne, have, who oderunt you, Dominate, oderam; and super inimicos tuos tabescebam? Perfecto odio oderam illos. (Ps.138.) . 8i detestandi sunt Saraceni, who quamvis Christum of Virgina, ut nos, natum fateantur, multaque de ipso cum Nobis sentiant, tamen Deum, Deique Filium (quod majus est) neglove, mortemque ipsius ac resurrectionem, in quibus tota summa salutis nostræ est, diffitentur; quantum execrandi and odio habendi sunt Judaei, who nihil prorsus of Christo vel fide Christiana sentientes; ipsum virgineum pactum, cunctaque Redemptionishumanæ Sacramenta, abjiciunt, blasphemous, subsannant? Nec ad hoc ista dico, ut regalem vel Christianum gladium in necem nefandorum illorum exacuam, quia scriptum de eis in divino psalmo recolo, loquente sic in Spiritu Sancto propheta: Deus, worried, ostendit mihi super inimicos meos, ne occidas eos. (Ps. 58.) | Non vult enim Deus prorsus occidi, non omnino extingui, sed ad majus tormentum et majorem ignominiam, ut fratricidam Cain, life, death deteriorates service. Nam cum Cain, post fraterni sanguinis effusionem, Deo diceret: “Omnis qui invenerit occidel me,” (Gen. IV) dictum estei: “No, ìnquit Deus, ut æstimas, morte morieris, sed gemens et profugus eris super terram, quæ aperuit os suum et suscepit ARE fratris tui de manu tua."

Insuper, ut tam nefarium furtum Judæorumque commercium tutius esset, lex jam vetusta, sed vere diabolica, ab ipsis principibus Christianis processit, ut sires ecclesiastica, vel (quod deterius) aliquod sacrum vas apud Judæos repertum fuerit, nec. rem sacrilego furto possessam reddere, nec . nequam furem Judæus prodere compellatur. Manet inultum scelus detestabile, quod hormade mortal suspendiipunitur in Christiano: pinguescitinde et deliciis affluitJudæus, unde laqueo suspenditur Christianus. — Auferatur ergo, vel ex maxima parte imminuatur, Judaicarum divitiarum male parta pinguedo, and Christianus exercitus qui, ut Saracenos expugnet, pecuniis vel terris propriis, Christi Domini sui amore, non parcit, Judæorum thesauris tam pessime acquisitis non parcat. Reservation of your life, auferatur pecunia, ut per dextras Christianorum, adjutas pecuniis .blasphemantium Judæorum, expugnetur infidelium audacia Saracenorum. Servant populis Christianis, etiam, ipsis invitis, divitie Judæorum, sicut olim, cum Deo placerent patres eorum, Deo jubente, sunt ad serviendum traditæ diviti: Ægyptiorum. Vane-Patrol. Latin. Vol. 189, p. 369, letter 36.)

END

4

E Preface... (ord SSS DER ERE TE |
D SQUARE. [---anaton]uive.......-..... se. I
- He. - Jewish wealth...... RIT tS e 23
- I BE ETI CNE DUT ORNE ss 39
- nus ee Pope and the Juit.....-..... oe 59
- V. - Church legislation concerning
= the Jew. Part of this legislation Ed affecting individual life. The Ghetto. The yellow badge....... 90
- VI. - Part of the legislation affecting life
domestic. The wet nurse. The au-
* ESCSSCDUILGUTS Qu o ette a 157
EU - VII. - Part of the legislation affecting the | - Civil life. Commerce. The professions. Inter-professions
ENEMA LIS C Site uitae eias 182
- Vill. - Part of the legislation affecting the Religious life. Ritual murder. 230
Supporting documents. .... Er to RME e 283

Digitized by Google

x nh, ee |

Á adi

T

on NN

2
Š
= of t ws.
"Oh
. THE
- ^u

^w

V

"cn fita 4
r, ra Cm KY aw

he

qas.

Ax TA
"mc

Fa to * Digitized by ia $ vit 7 I>

f

Oh
v)

Google

you
. ^
you -
+ L - Teds
- t, :
. / hy FA
- |
n 3, d *
+ : *
' ° Í
PEA y | - NS M
- p
+
H " + z
i J = ^ | ” zg . EL >
: E . h T |
LY » -- - z

E r <ni
7 + & ta
i *
f:
a her ' " - i
*
vv . '
Oe
s V y .:
P x 1.
j J
i
" , ES
[" >
, -
b » v
r " ^
D - fd
' 1 Y
i 4
> ' . i
" d ^
| Š ^ .
E z 3 EN [SA] t 7 f rs 4
dp A ^
"
LJ * ^ LI
MT «ES `
: [ic ER E g
- - OK, A
- 4 . "y .
E w » ite Be es v Les
: i; Ti 4
d * - ad i

, ` Digitized by Google

3

vi
"1

*

OQ:

ed by

igre

™
"D

i ha i raz
4

set mw

YOU

VR.

d Len meme eomm Imm.
(TY *-

; s Life of Saint Raymond of Pennafort, Third |
ER General of the Order of St. Dominic............. E ty d,

The same volume in-12........ ART ede i ELM m ME

- The Pilgrim's Rosary, 1 vol. in-12......... PR CI S
- Chastity, Poverty and Obedience mea "E pue Wt
_tics before Rationalism, 1 vol. in8.. coq epp MEA

The Clergy of France in 1892, 1 vol. in-12....... ? De. RE EE zi
T School Rcs and the Traditional School pm ree | PT TIC

tise
At. at the right "Wi

| PR WORKS cons

E

The |

e Pope and Liberty, 1 vol. in-8.. E

LIN LL

I flight inda. (2... Js p: i re ie

born these + c

Faith and Military Virtues, 1 large octavo volume.. +50: EL.

ALT TO -

ANGEL AS cw»

iac" BLOW IN
1 vol. ACC NEW PESE te Tr UI UOTE NE 2 TE.

AS Y os po e> SE = Es
A 'és v 1 s "zd
$ E Li af "A — | d A
= corn "^d .
ST * = 15.10 a, i sem 7
OX 0 Seen at wor «V. nn^ M rr wee TA Yap » LAURE v LPC M = UV FA PLUR =
tm spare a^ Mo WM M.
AN pa HER
ST D `
peN v*
TN

x AE seen e
SCA

AE | : A

ec

ret
= al aU tt

PUJAS treated in alphabetical order. Overall | ho DRE =

Regarding the Boers, morality, and... me E |
Cult, 4 vols. big. in-8...... The A GET e NES UR PE n

", friend: 5 Uu

The Song of the Songs or Reciprocal Love | t.

ver a en ET iren ;
RE ws "Ji ANT, s An
ANR AT. ars | er AS a ues ^ p b. wi? ALN y wes , >
ri) fs LN The b
Za. «119 NAME MP | /

that of Jesus Christ and the Church, 1 vol. in-12.. pe Parallelism between Geology and the Bible, T »
XE js

I vol. in- 8. A AIL HR ETE HER DOM aD
A Ad GT ue d.

WORK BY THE ABBOT x

LL
Mr. ne
- : uit :
1 Seen 2 #40
oce wt ran
- DO LJ

Piety in the School, 1 vol. in-12....

Dita

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

'
*
` .
z ` eo
r
/

-- -HAS

"has

Louis DASTE

SECRET SOCIETIES

"We encounter almost all major changes Jewish thought, action, whether brilliant and visible, or muted and latent. Thus Jewish history runs parallel to universal history.
saddle across its entire length and penetrate it with a thousand threads.

(Univers Israélite, July 26, 1907, p. 585)

THE SAVOISIAN

SECRET SOCIETIES

&
THE JEWS

Cover illustration

The Old Man of the Mountain drugs the Assassins, his disciples

Marco Polo (1254-1324), The Description of the World or Book of Marvels. Story from 1299, copied in Paris around 1410-1412.

Illumination by the Master of the Mazarine and collaborators. Manuscript on parchment, 299 leaves, 42 x 29.8 cm

BnF, Department of Manuscripts, French 2810, fol. 17.
© National Library of France

> = +

"

we Fui, Fui, Non Sum, Non Curo“:
"I did not exist, I existed, I no longer exist, it makes no difference to me."
A useless servant, among others

September 19, 2016
Scan, Corrections
EPIPHANIUS

ORC, Layout
LANCULUS

For the Excommunicated Digital Bookstore of Curious Readers of the Commons
All of Lenculus's digital reviews are free

Louis DASTE

SECRET SOCIETIES

&
THE JEWS

“We encounter at almost all major chan-
movements of thought a Jewish action, either eclaeither silent and visible, or mute and latent. Thus the history-

Jewish history runs parallel to universal history throughout its extent and penetrates it with a thousand threads.

(Univers Israélite, July 26, 1907, p. 585)

PARIS
THE FRENCH RENAISSANCE
3, Rue de Solférino, 3
1912

SECRET SOCIETIES

&
THE JEWS

“We encounter at almost all major chan-
movements of thought a Jewish action, either ecla-
either silent and visible, or mute and latent. Thus the history-
Jewish history runs parallel to universal history throughout
its extent and penetrates it with a thousand threads.

(Univers Israélite, July 26, 1907, p. 585)

In the nineteenth century, certain societies...
Crete are waging an underground war against Christianity and against the civilization it spawned.
These are the ones we will be briefly studying.
In some respects, they are akin to secret societies.
pre-Christian. We must therefore say
A few words about these, first of all.

Se

Germany and the Baltic countries – "Sonnendwendfeier"
Celebration of the annual summer solstice festival or the longest day of the year, on June

BEFORE OUR LAST JESUS CHRIST

Td): the early ages of humanity, of societies secret societies – whose members were received after graduated initiations – existed at the heart of religions

which were intertwined with the civilizations of the Egyptians, Chaldeans, Canaanites, Persians, etc.

However noble the efforts of the es-human beings were led towards the Good manifested in these brotherhoods occult, they always ended up falling into a profound corruption, by virtue of the very principle of dissimulation and consequently the lie that was at their basis.

However beautiful metaphysics may have been at first thinkers who often built for the Initiates Ancient secret societies and ingenious hypotheses
on God, Nature, Man — fleeting lights, briefly lit, they quickly gave way to darkness. In short, the persistent flight of the human soul
The climb to the heights was always defeated by cunning.
of the one who was the true theologian of these Societies
religious secrets — the one whom Holy Scripture calls
The Adversary: Satan.

In other words, the life of secret societies
those outside of Christianity, who constituted the elites
For the thinkers of Paganism, it was a perpetual defeat.
of human reason through the suggestions of the Prince of this World, of the Demon, who was the sovereign master of all the peoples, except for the Hebrew people.

The history of Israel itself was nothing else.
that a war without truce between the religion of the true God and demonic religions (1), including priests and devotees formed the pagan secret societies we have just to say. It will suffice here to recall that three-quarters of kings of Judah and all the kings of Israel allowed themselves to be won over by The Bloody Mysteries of Moloch. What infiltrations?
This is unacceptable in the pagan nation of God!

In reality, throughout the independent life of
of the Jewish people, only a small minority of Israelites retained
The true faith remains intact. The rest—the majority—mixed more or less to its ancestral Judaism the paganism of neighboring peoples.

1. — “Omnes dii gentium doemonia. » says the Bible.

THE JEWISH "TRADITION"

when Nebuchadnezzar had destroyed Jerusalem and em-

led into captivity in Babylon, the remnants of Israel, decimated by massacres and pagan infiltrations into the Judaism continued, of course. The splendors material aspects of Babylonian civilization could not fail to capture Jewish imaginations and to dis-to submit to the ascendancy of the Chaldean genius. Furthermore, the Hebrews of distinction who, by royal decree, were ins-trout in the priestly colleges of Babylon – such Daniel and his companions – there made contact with the ri-intellectual pursuits of the Chaldeans: hence, among some Jews, a penetration of Chaldean religious ideas
in the midst of the mosaic tradition.

Then, when Cyrus' Persians, welcomed as liberators, the lords by the Hebrew captives in Babylonia, had them re-
Having taken possession of Judea, the contacts of thinkers Jews – who remained numerous in Mesopotamia – were naturally more intimate with Persian thinkers than they had been with the Chaldean thinkers, whose kings had been so harsh towards defeated Israel: hence the infil-profound shifts in religious ideas among some Jews

Persian influences, which were added to the Chaldean contributions, and deform-
They are the mothers of the ancient mosaic tradition (in Hebrew, Kabbalah).
to the point of making it the impure "Kabbalah".

This is what the Protestant historian Matter, inspector general of the University, defined in these terms in an ouwork "crowned by the Royal Academy of Inscriptions"
and Belles Lettres:

… The Kabbalistic system, so different from the ancients Hebrew beliefs, is a heavily Judaized copy of the Parsism, and its elements, date back to the times of exile (of the Hebrews in Babylon)...

(Critical History of Gnosticism, Paris, 2nd ed., 1843, vol. 1, p. 154.)

Add to that the prestige that powerful societies secret religious practices of the Chaldean "Kasdim", then of the Persian Magi, inevitably had, in the eyes of many of educated Jews, and we arrive at this concept:

everything happens as if some Jews, during the captivity-Babylonian society, had formed, like their vanquished Chaldean queurs, a national secret society, of which the teachings were no longer pure Mosaic law, but an adulterated Judaism, mixed with pagan theogonies of various sources, Chaldean first, then Persian.

Let us also note how powerful it must have been for the Jews reduced to a few thousand and plunged into the do-their humiliating slavery, the temptation to resort to The secret society, imitating the Gentiles, makes their conquests rants! Their nation seemed dead, and yet, their Prophets promised him an eternal and glorious life! To help realize the hopes of resurrection-tion of the Jewish people – without land, without armies, as today – what better way, on the surface, than the secret society which operated in Mesopotamia, Vigorous specimens right before their eyes?

In fact, certain historical events which, other-
However, undecipherable enigmas remain, to be found-
will be fully elucidated in the following pages,
when we are led to observe what is happening
as if it had been formed during the Babylonian captivity, a Jewish secret society whose doctrines, long hidden shrouded in impenetrable mystery, will be known more later under the name of Kabbalah (1).

That the doctrines of Kabbalah have long existed
"in the shadow of the deepest mystery" (which implies necessarily implies the existence of a secret society tasked with... to preserve and propagate them), – that is what a
The illustrious Jewish scholar, Adolphe Frank, of the Institute. Here are his in his own words:

1. – This is only a hypothesis for the time of the Captivity
Babylon becomes a historical reality for the period of the Roman domination. We use it indeed in the masterful article by Mr. Jean Berger, published in issue no. 1 of the International Review of Secret Societies (10 Place de Laborde, Paris):
"Whether by necessity or by nature, Jews have always sought, used and loved the mystery.

“In Jerusalem during Roman rule, the Secret Society of Zealots..., whose goal was, at the same time, a return to complete mosaicism and the social revolution, he thought for a moment under the leadership of Eleazar, son of Simon, break the yoke of the Caesars.
"They had organized a kind of secret government"...
And "the center of action they created in Judea was equaled only by
"We were in the revolution of '89."
"These strange lines are taken verbatim from the encyclopedia"
from Larousse... »

(Jean Berger, De [Initiation chez les Juifs, RISS n°1, p. 30).

A doctrine... which for a period of more than twelve centuries, without any other proof than the hypothesis of an ancient tradition, with no other apparent motive than the desire to penetrate further intimately in line with the meaning of the holy books, it developed and propagated in the shadow of the deepest mystery; that is what one found, after they have been purified of all alloys, in the monu-original elements and in the oldest remnants of the Kabbalah.

(Ad. Frank, The Kabbalah or Religious Philosophy)
(of the Hebrews, Paris, Hachette, 1843, p. 1.)

During the five centuries that followed the captivity from Babylon to the birth of Our Lord Jesus Christ, the desasters who overwhelm the Jewish people (their subjugation) to the Greeks, then to the Romans) made it increasingly necessary the use of permanent conspiracy — of the A secret society, therefore — in the eyes of the patriots Jews, who attributed the most brutal, material meaning to messianic promises of world conquest made to their race. The more misfortune befalls Israel, the more this nation “with stiff necks” (1) rears up against him. Against all hope, she persists in hoping that the empire of the universe will belong to him, and that the "King-Messiah", his liberator, "will crush the peoples",(2)... such is the figurative expression from a Rabbi.

This idea became widespread and, in the time of Christ, the A large mass of Jews came to regard the Messiah like "a temporal king who would rule the world" entire" and which "would exterminate the enemies by force of arms of Israel” (3). In Jerusalem, the adversaries of Christ (the (Pharisees in the lead), "were indignant at the pretension of

1. — Acts of the Apostles, VII, p. 51.

2. — Dictionary of the Bible, by Abbot Vigouroux Fulcran, vol. iv, columns 1032 to 1036.

3. — Dictionary of the Bible.

Jesus to be the Son of God, that is, the Messiah, he who seemed so despicable to them, and in whom they saw no hope— "an ability to fulfill national aspirations." (1)

Many passages in the Gospel give to to think that one of the sources of the Pharisees' hatred against Our Lord was in this fact that Christ did not it in no way corresponded to the crude ideal they had forged for themselves of a domineering Messiah destined to "crush the peoples" benefit of Israel.

1. — ibid.

the mass

ique of Chr

The symbol

IX.

*

ist on the Cro

Unbloody Renewal of the Sacrifice of Jesus

AFTER OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST

bi

Contrary to the expectations of the executioners of Jesus, the religion born in his blood takes on an extension quick. How the Jew — firstborn of the enemies of the Church, on this earth — how does it go about hindering its Progress? Everywhere and whenever he can, he lash out. he stones his former coreligionists who have converted to the faith of Christ. However, the deicide leaders of Israel realize It quickly became clear that their persecutions were in vain; the number The number of Christians is constantly increasing; how can this be broken? which they consider a dangerous schism for The bastard Judaism that they built with their own hands? Given their weak position and their subjugation to the Romans allowing them to dispose of the Church is not enough to destroy it In its nascent stage, something else is needed: cunning. Now, historical facts—torics — the enumeration of which will extend to all the centuries since the Christian era — will prove that it is real that the Jew used / a trick (a certain trick, always the same) against Christianity. This ruse is the in- the infiltration of Judeo-pagan ideas into the Church, those memes which, much later, will appear to the light of day with Jewish Kabbalah.

who consumed the sacrifice of Calvary.

How is this trick carried out? Here's how.

Teachings different from those of the Apostles of Christ are treacherously given away within the Church, by false brothers, to the new Christians still imbued with part of the ideas in which they were raised. The result of these-teachings — which flattered the converts “the old "Man" — is inevitable: it creates division among the flock. That's heresy.

And who, from the very beginnings of the Church, sowed the tares Heresy among the good evangelical grain? — The Jew.

Who, in later times, continued this work with extraordinary perseverance? — The Jew.

GNOS

Gnostic Secret Societies of Palestine

Oh, we know that the Gnostics (the most heretical) formerly separated from the Church) were organized established in secret societies. But who had originally launched- Is this the Gnostic movement? The learned historian Protestant Matter, Inspector General of the University of France will tell us. Speaking of the founders of the Societies Gnostic secrets of Palestine – the first in date – he writes:

Simon Magus, Menander, Dositheus, and Cerinthus were Jews.

(Art. Gnosis, in the Dictionary of Philosophical Sciences)

Written under the direction of the Jew Adolphe Franck, member of the Institute, t. I1, p. 553.)

The doctrines of this primitive Simonian Gnosis derived directly from Jewish Kabbalah. The Jew Ad. Franck definitively established this in his book: The Kabbalah, Paris, 1843, p.344, 343, etc.

GNOSTIC SECRET SOCIETIES
VALENTINE'S OR EGYPTIAN

Their initiator,

Valentine, whom Saint Irenaeus places at the head of all the Gnostics, because of the importance of his theories, was of Jewish origin.

It's not us who are saying this, it's the same hisTorian Protestant Matter in his Critical History of Gnosticism, vol. I1, p. 37.

Their systems (those of the Valentinian Gnostics) were only one development of that of Simon the Magician.

(M. Amélineau, Essay on Gnosticism, p. 323.)

Consequently, the systems of the Gnostics
The Valentinians, disciples of the Jew Valentinus, were drifting away from the faith.
also, from Jewish Kabbalah, through the channel of teachings of the Jew Simon the Magician.

The Jew Valentine also practiced against the Christianity, a tactic of hypocrisy that we will see reappearing too often: hidden in Rome itself under the mask of orthodoxy, within a ca- community Catholic, Valentin sent throughout the Roman Empire secret emissaries to infiltrate his Jewish Gnosis into
the Church.

Gnostic Secret Societies of Mark

The heretic Mark is the one who came from Judea to Gaul, until Lyon where he was the adversary of Saint Irenaeus (1).

Now, here is what the same Protestant historian as us
As we have already mentioned, Mr. Matter wrote about the Gnostic Mark:

Marc, originally from Palestine, tried to win by Kabbalistic speculations about the Jews of his homeland.
(Critical History of Gnosticism, vol. 11, pp. 106, 107.)

Thus, in Mark's Secret Societies — as in those of Valentine and in those of Simon Magus and of his successors, — the initiators were Jewish, the en-
The teachings were Kabbalistic.

Thus, all these Gnoses, the Palestinian ones first then the Egyptian women and finally those who penetrated up to and including Gaul were:

1° organized into secret societies;
2° the work of Jews — whose names we know;
3° the vehicle of Kabbalistic Jewish doctrines.

1. – Second bishop of Lyon, after the martyrdom of Saint Pothinus, tortured under Marcus Aurelius.

Intertwined snakes found at Djiroft (3rd millennium BC), Symbol of the duality of Manichaeism.

Object found in Jiroft (Southern Iran)
Currently on display at the Tabriz Museum, Azerbaijan.

MANICHEISM

c. two centuries, the Gnostics had exhausted their effort against the Church which remained standing, undefeated-cue. Fresh troops were needed against her. That's the Manichaeism, which appeared in the middle of the 2nd century, which... provided.

Manichaeism, too, bears the triple mark already observed on Gnosticism: like Gnosticism, Manichaeism is organized into secret societies; like it, it has initi-Jewish leaders; like her, he professes doctrines of Jewish origin.

That the Manicheans formed secret societies, The fact is well known. Let us simply recall that, in his Encyclical Humanum genus, it is to the Societies that Manichean crests that Leo XIII first compares The secret societies of Freemasonry.

As for the Jewish origin of Mani and Manichaeism, the evidence we provide below, based on Recent discoveries seem decisive to us. But, Impressively, as early as 1806 – well before the discoveries – green in question –the Italian officer Simonini, in a letter to Father Barruel (1), had stated that Jews, the pre-Having been identified as one of their own, they had revealed to him that Manes was Jewish, like the Old Man of the Mountain and the founders-members of Freemasonry and Illuminism. In this Regarding Mani, we will see that the discoveries made-the arguments we are referring to support Simonini and his Jewish confidants.

While Gnosticism originated in Judea, Manichaeism is born in Babylonia, that is to say in a country which, after the Babylonian captivity, remained one of the centers of Judaism, to such standards that Graëtz, the most renowned of historians
Jewish nothings, could write that, in terms of purity
Judea itself recognized the superiority of race
Babylonia became a new land for Israel Promise.

Now, it is south of Babylonia, near the mouths of the Euphrates, in the region where Jewish colonization was the more compact than lived — and still lives, after nineteen centuries — a Gnostic sect, that of the Mandaites or Mandaeans, which was the mother of Manichaeism.

Mr. Babelon, of the Institute, in his book Les Mandaites, reports that the Sidra Rabbah, the great book of the Mandaeans,
relates that at an unspecified time:

The Mandaites (primitive people) had been annihilated and had left completely absorbed by a Jewish sect.
(M. Babelon, Les Mandaites, Paris, 1881, p. 52.)

One of the main founders of this sect became
The Jewish woman was called Elxaï or Elhasai. This is the same Kabbalistic Jew. list that the Jew Franck, of the Institute, presented, in his book The Kabbalah, as a supporter of the Kabbalah thesis-

1. — Letter published in full by Claudio Jannet, in La F.'. M. in the 19th century, Avignon, 1882, pp. 658-662.

A list that sees the Holy Spirit as a female being. (We know that this belief is adopted by some Gnostics current.)

The name Mandaites comes from Manda,

...an essentially Semitic expression meaning Science, Gnosis, so that from an etymological point of view, Mandaite is the equivalent of Gnostic...

(M. Babelon, /d..., p.10.)

Borrowings... were made by the Mandaites from the Bible, to Talmud, to the doctrines of Jewish Kabbalah.

(Ibid., p. 27.)

Mandaism is therefore a Gnosis where the grafting Kabbalistic Jewish tradition is grafted, no longer onto a sy-rien or égyptienne, known in the Gnostics of Simon
the Mage or of Valentine, but on a Chaldean-per- stump sane. We will see in a moment the great interest of this difference.

But now Mani appears. — Mani the Jew, as Simonini wrote to Father Barruel:

About one hundred years after the appearance of Elhasai, Manes was born,
of Mandaean parents and raised in Mandaean beliefs until the age of 24, when he conceived the idea of founding his own company even a religion.

(M. Babelon, /d..., p.22.)

Regarding Mani's "Mandalite relatives," let us add that the father of Manes (writes Matter, Protestant historian) of Gnosticism) was Kabbalistic, and let us remember that Simon the Magician, Valentine and Mark, who, before Elxai, had also "conceived the idea of founding their own religion", were also Kabbalists. When one thinks about enormous difficulties that nova- usually encounter
For authors, it is considered strange that so many Kabbalists have had successively the idea of founding new religions in appearance, and that they succeeded brilliantly...

In reality, it is not a new religion that he created Manes, and we will see in him not a brilliant creator, but an adapter for whom the paths had been prepared: the works that Messrs. Brandt, Flügel and Kessler published in Germany, about thirty years ago, proved in

In effect, Manes merely adapted Mandaism to his views of religious conquest, and to preach it outside the country Mandaean.

Based on the work of the German scholars we have just to say, Mr. Rochat, a Protestant pastor in Geneva, wrote in 1881 a remarkable Essay on Máni (Manès) and his doctrine. We read there:

Mania clearly copied the Mandaean sacred books...
(Essay, p. 159.)

In particular, with regard to the substance of the theo-Manichaean logic, divine life and persons in God, these — which the Kabbalists call /es Sephiroth and which the Gnostics call the Aeons — are named by Manes the Rays of the King of the Paradise of Light. Now, Manes simply copied them from the King's Rays of Light, from the Mandaeans.

Mr. Rochat draws a parallel between Mandaean writings and the Manichean writings devoted to these Rays, and he writes:

The comparison between the two pieces is striking; they are the same ideas, sometimes the same style.

(Essay, p. 165.)
The numerous comparisons that he also makes
Mr. Rochat, following Messrs. Brandt, Flügel and Kessler, leave no room for doubt: Manes only ex-to externalize Mandaism. We are therefore led to give this definition of Manichaeism: it is not something other than Mandaism, a Kabbalistic Jewish sect... skittle for the use of non-Jews of the East, like Gnosticism was nothing more than Kabbalah disguised for practical use non-Jews of the West. (Here we are considering the East and the West in relation to Babylon and Jerusalem). In short, everything it is as if the Jews Elxai and Manes had taken over in the 3rd century in the East the task that the Jews Simon the Mage, Valentine, etc., had accomplished in the 1st and 2nd centuries to the West.

In support of our thesis, here is a remark from a
The great impact Matter had from 1844 onwards:

He said there is a curious fact to point out in the history of Mandaism and Gnosticism, the former has attacked
He went to the East and remained confined there, as he still is... while Gnosticism has consistently moved towards the West
tooth; that all the leaders of his echelons have marched towards Rome, Spain or Gaul. It seems that the leaders of the two systems-
The three groups had agreed to divide the known world between them.

(Matter, Critical History of Gnosticism, vol. 111, p. 207.)

It is a fact: first of all, Gnosticism conquered the Western world: then Mandaism — under the name of Manichaeism — conquered the eastern world and finally
It was something everyone knew about then. Was it by chance?
The gigantic movements of ideas that we call the Did Gnosticism and Manichaeism arise spontaneously and without a purpose?...

Let's observe this parallel:

Firstly, in the 1st, 2nd and 3rd centuries AD
yours, — under the impetus of the many Jews of Gnose
that we have listed — the Gnostics cover
the Western world (in relation to Jerusalem) of their Anti-Christian secret societies. How can they be explained?

their victories? By the fact that Jewish Kabbalah, which is the core of Gnosis, was very skillfully wrapped in Syro-Egyptian-Hellenic traditions: these made accept without their knowledge the Syrians, the Egyptians, Greco-Romans — in short, the Western nations dentales — the Crypto-Judaism of Gnosis (to em-to use a felicitous expression applied by a journalist English list to the Deunmehs of Thessaloniki, modern Jews (outwardly Islamized).

Secondly, Manichaeism in the 2nd century from the hands of failing Gnosis the scepter of the enemies of the Church. It first spread east of Babylon, among the dualistic peoples (1) of Persia and Turkestan, before to conquer the entire Western world in stages. How? How can these conquests be explained? By this: Jewish Kabbalah, which is at the heart of Manichaeism, it had been mixed with the traditional Chaldean-Persian dualist traditions. These were the traditions dualists who unwittingly absorbed the Crypto-Judaism from the Manicheans to the Eastern nations of the Persia, Turkestan, and then the peoples of the West already categorized They were worshipped by the Mithraics, who were also dualists.

Finally, let us not forget — and the parallelism will be complete — plet — that at the root of Mandaism, there is the Jew Elxai and at the root of Manichaeism the Jew Manes, exactly as at the root of Gnosticism there had been the Jew Simon the A Magi and his Jewish disciples.

We have just said how Gnostic conquests-Tickly and Manichean. Did they have a why? When we see Jews, and always Jews sowing occulting Jewish doctrines using Gnosticism and then

---

1. — That is to say, peoples believing in two divine principles, co-eternal and equal in power, of Good and Evil.

of Manichaeism which drew crowds away from the Church Given their large numbers, are we entitled to ask ourselves if These Jews did not specifically aim to wrest from The Church, these countless crowds?

If we now turn to what we we said:

1° Kabbalistic Jewish doctrines that lived so long for a long time shrouded in the deepest mystery, and

2^ of the Jewish secret society whose very mystery of these doctrines requires the existence, — we understand-dra the why of Gnosticism and Manichaeism, and we will know WHICH ENEMY had created out of hatred for Christianity, these two war machines that have does so much harm to the Church.

Is there any need to add it?

This enemy was THE KABBALIST JEW.

= CPE = =
has Mele

Mig:

at the house of
CEORGE GALLET

Muhammad as a war leader.

Frontispiece of a clandestine French edition from the work The Life of Muhammad by M. Prideaux. 1609.

MUHAMMAD AND THE JEWS

Certainly, Gnosticism and Manichaeism exerted significant influence.

These ravages wrought havoc in Christendom. (These ravages...) continue to this day, because these heresies, which died in apparentage, persist in living). But Islam – where we will immediately show the Jewish hand – caused him alone as much harm as the two great primi- heresies
tives and it causes as much bloodshed as Manichaeism.

It is in the most Judaized region of Babylonia that Manichaeism was born. It was also in a pro-Islam will be born from a fundamentally Judaized tradition. The Jews boast with good reason for the great role they played in Arabia, at the mo-where Muhammad was going to appear. This is how Graetz,
The great Jewish historian wrote:

It was not uncommon to see Jews at the head of Arab tribes...;
The Jews became, in many respects, the initiators of Arabs. The history of the Jews of Arabia, a century before the advent-
The formation of Islamism and during the life of Muhammad, forms a from the most glorious pages in the annals of Judaism.

(Graétz, Henrich Hirsch, History of the Jews t 111, of the destruction tion of the second temple (70) to the decline of the lexilarcat (920), p. 279.)

Several Arab tribes converted to Judaism;
Among them, Graëtz mentions:

The Benou-Kinanah, a warlike people, relatives of the illustrious Koreishites of Mecca, etc...
The most resounding and important conversion was that of a powerful king of Yemen.
(Graetz, vol. III, p. 283.)

From 520 to 530, "the whole of Yemen was Jewish," writes the Jew.
Bernard Lazare (Antisemitism, p. 85.)

The Koreishite Muhammad, relative of the Benu-Kinanah converted to Judaism, was in contact with Israel, the fact is well known. Furthermore, "the mother of Muhammad, Emina, was born Jewish…," wrote von Hammer(1) “Muhammad
"was nourished by the Jewish spirit," wrote the Jew Bernard Lazare.
(Antisemitism, p. 85). "The best part of the Quran is "borrowed from the Bible and the Talmud," writes the Jew Graetz (Hist., t. III, p. 289).

Was it by chance and without purpose that Muhammad, the great
The poet, the skillful fisher of men, was "nourished by the spirit"
"Jewish" by Jews who were as subtle and as ardent patriots
What about the Kabbalistic scholars? (2) The skeptics who

1. — History of the Order of Assassins, Paris, 1833, p. 11.

2. — The Jewish secret society of Zealots had survived the capture from Jerusalem by Titus and had been reconstituted precisely in Medina,
the same one where Muhammad would organize Islam:

“The Jewish writer Graetz (writes Mr. Jean Berger in his ar-
(article already cited) informs us that the Zealots succeed-
They were able to survive the dispersal and reconstitute themselves...

The Zealots, he said, who had taken refuge in northern Arabia, in the people of the Yatrib region (Medina) succeeded in establishing a settlement there-
"and to maintain it until the 7th century..." (Graetz... t. 11. p. 403).

From what little we know, it seems quite likely that if we could
To know the Zealots' organization thoroughly, one would discover...

would be tempted to accuse us of seeing the Jew everywhere,
will get a taste of it in a major event
of Muslim history, at the birth of the Great Schism which split Islam in two, just a few years after the death of Muhammad.

He was a Jew who converted to Islam, like today.
the Deunmehs or Crypto-Jews of Thessaloniki. His name was Alsauda Sabaï. It was he who, with prodigious cunning, divided the Muslims who became, to the great scandal of their Jewish "initiators," the persecutors of Israel. It is he who sowed among the Muslims the seeds from which will be born monstrous secret societies. It was he, finally, who... ignited within Islam fratricidal hatreds like rivers blood will not be able to extinguish. This Jew, Alsauda Sabai, me-It's a good ritual, isn't it, that we talk about him for a moment.

the same blow the framework which was later covered by the masonry organization-nique.... (Jean Berger... p. 31).

9 rat Sa ctia
RES
[^P 1s LE

rm

Petree

rar

s

x - And D RU dra

Othman ibn Affan (574 and died in 656)

He established the definitive version of the Quranic text – what is called the "Uthmanic Vulgate." The Qur'an, composed of 114 surahs, includes— The same 6,236 verses transmitted orally since Muhammad, is indeed not to the time a fixed text. If the verses themselves have been firmly established since the recension ordered by Abu Bakr, who had confirmed the authenticity of each verse supported each time by the testimony of at least two companions of the Prophet, the order of recitation of the surahs, in particular, will-laughs widely.

THE JEW ALSAUDA SABAI

THE SCHISM IN ISLAM

Let us quickly note that Muhammad became an enemy-half of the Jews, much to the dismay of the leaders secrets of Israel that expected, for the benefit of their hidden ambitions, the progress of the Muslim religion insofar as she was half Jewish. Such a misa- Moreover, the venture of occult powers is not unique in history. To remain secret, their actions cannot to be exercised through orders, but only through suggestions tions. Therefore, it is normal that the occult powers do not may prevent certain movements of which they are the creators of deviating to the point of turning against them. It is also normal that the Jewish occult power, the Jewish secret society used against Islam – the new- the enemy – the same weapons already used against the Early Christianity. In fact, the Jew inoculated it with poison. from Gnosticism to Islam, as he had six centuries earlier, inoculated Christianity with the same poison.

The instrumental being who, in the 1st century, had given to Christianity, the disease of Gnosis – that is to say the Jewish Kabbalah – was, as we recall, the Jew Simon the Mage.

The instrumental being who, in the 7th century, poisoned Islam, with the same Kabbalistic virus, was the Jew Alsauda Sabai. Let's summarize, according to Mr. Dozy, the worrying car- laughter of this child of Israel:

He was a Jewish convert from southern Arabia... Othman (third successor of Muhammad) whom he openly blamed-
The administration had exiled him from Medina; he had surrendered then in Egypt where, thanks to his profound knowledge of the Script-
In Saint-Tropez, he soon acquired great esteem...
He maintained that all the Prophets that God had sent on lands had had an aide or vizier: the vizier of Muhammad was another quAli (his son-in-law); therefore, the inheritance belonged to him after his death.

"Othman is therefore not a legitimate Caliph," he said.
Alsauda); he has no right to obedience; he must be deposed "ser." Othman was not only deposed, but assassinated, and Alsauda Sabai played a great role on this occasion.

(M. Reinhart Dozy, Essay on the History of Islam, p. 221.)

After the assassination of Othman, Ali, Muhammad's son-in-law, finally attained the Caliphate, from which he had previously been excluded.
you. Alsauda Sabai pushed the cult of this prince so far that i/God declared it. Outraged, the honest Muslim Ali sent the Jew Alsauda went into exile and had some of his
the most fanatical supporters.

Despite this, writes Mr. Dozy, the converted Jew clung to his idea, and when Ali had been assassinated, he announced that he was not death, that a part of divinity dwelt within him.

(M. Reinhart Dozy, Ibid., p.222.)

It is on this basis of the divinity of Ali and his descendantsdants that the Jew Alsauda Sabla founded the powerful sect Shiites whose schism split Islam in two.

Note that the dogma of the incarnation of a part-that of divinity in Ali, his sons and his grandsons is not something other than the Kabbalistic dogma of reincarnation.

The Shiites were waiting for the Mahdi (the Guide of God), the Imán, descendant and incarnation of Ali, who was to come on earth to establish the reign of Justice and draw ven-fear of the oppressors. But this belief in a Mahdi is nothing other than the Kabbalistic Jewish belief in a King - Messiah “who will crush the peoples”.

Brief Shiites – who were searching for meaning in the Quran internal or hidden, the esoteric meaning, and this by means of the Jewish Kabbalistic method of the A//egory – appear within Islam, as with the Gnostics, in other words like Kabbalists.

In summary, the Jew Alsauda Sabai made use of the Kabbalah known from a corner, to split in two the oak of Islam.

THE ISMAILIYAH (or Ismailites)

From the end of the 7th century BC to the end of the 8th century AD, seven Imams from the descendants of Ali succeeded one another in direct line, to the state of pretenders persecuted by the Muslims ormethods. Around these Imams, great-grandsons of Ali (and of His wife Fatime, daughter of Muhammad) gathered Secret societies whose doctrines are manifestly Kabbalists, like those of the Jew Alsauda Sabai, their anspiritual being. Let's mention in passing that the famous orientalGuyard's list noted great similarities between the doctrines of these Shiite secret societies and those which, Several centuries later, it would be called Averrhoism. However, the Jew Bernard Lazarus proclaims that Averrhoism in the hands of his coreligionists it was a powerful weapon against the Christian faith. Thus, Kabbalistic doctrines Shiites had served against Islam before serving against Christianity.

The most recent (late 8th century) of the sects The Shiites in question are called the Ismaili sect, from the Named after Ismail, the seventh Imam. It was she who, in the 9th century, will become the first executive of a secret society for the least as perverse and as terrible as that of Illuminated by Weishaupt, in the 18th century.

A WEISHAUPT IN THE 9TH CENTURY

ABDALLAH SON OF MAÏMOUN
AND ITS NEO-ISMAILITES

Lery, the strange one who was the apparent creator of this secret society of reformed Ismailia (1) (or Neo-Ismailites) was named Abdallah, son of Maimoun the occultist.

Abdallah (writes the Dutch historian, Mr. Dozy) concut the plan... to gather in a secret society that would have differvarious degrees of initiation, both freethinkers and superstitious people of all sects; to use believers to make the infidels reign, conquerors to overthrow the empire they had founded; to finally form a party in namebreux, closely united, erected the passive obedience which, when The moment would have come, he would give the throne, if not to himself, then to the less so to his descendants...

(Historical Essay on Islam, p. 260.)

To achieve the goal set by Abdallah, writes another Dutch scholar, Mr. de Goeje, a set of means was invented which can rightly to call them satanic: they were exploiting all their weaknesses of man...

1. — See the end of the previous chapter.

And this system was implemented with calm and... resolutions that excite our astonishment and that, if we could forget the goal, would deserve our most enthusiastic admiration. (Memoir on the Carmaths of Bahrain and the Fatimids, p. 3.)

The most admirable thing is that in two generations the colossal goalSal, pursued by Abdallah, was victoriously overtaken.

Who was Abdallah? Who did he work for? For himself or for others? Was the triumph of his designs due to his transcendent genius or perhaps to other powerful aids mysterious health issues?...

Certain passages from the aforementioned work by Mr. Dozy give the impression that Abdullah and his father were (like the Jew Manes and his father before him) of beings more acted upon than acting, instrumental beings silences moved by hidden hands. And we will see that these their hands were Jewish.

Abdallah's father, Maimoun, an ophthalmologist by profession (written Mr. Dozy was a free thinker. To escape the clutches of the Inquisition (implied: of orthodox Muslims), of which seventy of his friends had been victims, he/ had sought a refuge in Jerusalem, where he secretly taught the sciences of the occult religious practices, while in public he presented himself as a pious and zealous Shiite.

(Essay... Islam. p.260.)

We have before our eyes a dual being who carries the mask of a religion he practiced outwardly, but cursed by him within (1) —a being like that

1. — In cynical and frightening “Instructions”, Abdullah son of Maimoun, — supposedly a “pious and zealous Shiite,” that is to say, a partisan San, a passionate follower of Ali's grandsons, ordered his initiates to follow the high pa who would later be called the Marrano Jew. Now, as already the Jew Manes, Maimoun came from Judeo-Persian Babylon sane where Israel had deeply left its mark, and it was in Jerusalem that he took refuge to teach the occult sciences, Magic, this pagan Magic of which the Kabbalah and the Talmud are intertwined! Aren't we entitled to to wonder now if Maimoun and her son Abdallah were not, if not Jews, at least Secret agents of the Jew? The rest of our story will show this that one should think about it.

ranks to kill without mercy any Alide who fell into their hands.

THE ARCHCHANGEL SAINT MICHAEL

Taken from the painting of the Assumption of the Virgin by Perugino. (Academy of Fine Arts, Florence, 16th century.) — Before the the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem and the dispersion of the Jews, when already Everything foreshadowed the horrible catastrophe, it was heard, according to the report o The historian Josephus, the angels of the sanctuary exclaim: "Let's go out, let's go out"Tones from here!" An ancient rabbinical text adds that the western regions Dentales were henceforth entrusted to the government of Saint Michael; as if, precisely at that hour, the glorious archangel had... flew towards Rome and towards our lands, to take possession of them and to establish the seat of its new empire there... Christian France, in Indeed, it was not long before it was born and grew, to become... his cradle, under the protection of Saint Michael, the soldier of Christ and of his Church.

THE JEW OBAIDALLAH

KHALIFE PSEUDO-FATIMIDE

Abdallah – worthy son of the "free thinker" Maimoun, professor of occult sciences – had the goodhappy to meet a colossal Persian a wealthy man named Zaidan, very knowledgeable in the sciences of the occult he too had cults, and was a bitter enemy of Islam who had crushed his country.

Abdallah convinced Zaïdan that the secret of strength For Muslim Arabs, that was their faith. So, that was their faith that had to be broken first and foremost, if one wanted to ruin the Arab power and liberate Persia. Zaidan, enthusiasticHe placed his immense fortune at Abdallah's disposal that he believed himself to be like himself, a Persian patriot. But Abdallah, for us, was only Persian in appearancerence: in reality, the riches of the true Persian have fallen the money in Abdallah's hands will be used to pay the fees of the war of the Jewish nation against the Arab nation and to continue with extraordinary mastery the plans the disintegration of Islam outlined two hundred years earlier early by the Jew Alsauda Sabai. Moreover, a grandson of AbAllah will become the Mahdi Obaidallah, founder of the powerful dynasty of the so-called Fatimid Caliphs who arra-

will give to the true Muslims a vast empire and will nearly kill Islam. Finally, this Obaidallah – who dared to claim descent from Ali and Muhammad, through his Fatime's daughter – was considered a Jew by some historians Muslims. Under this Grand Master of a true Judeo-Medieval Freemasonry was in reality the Kabbalah. Jewish woman who reigned for several centuries, from Syria all the way to Morocco.

After that, our readers will appreciate whether Abdallah and Were Obaidallah agents of the Secret Society or not? a Jewish Kabbalist, like the Jew Simon Magus and the Jew Manes, who did so much harm to Christianity, and as had been after them the Jew Alsauda Sabai who had begun the work of undermining Islam that perperfectionna the Secret Society of the Neo-Ismailites.

Let us also note that the Neo-Ismailites of Abdallah in the 9th century, like the Illuminati of Weishaupt in In the 18th century, they were the enemies of all morality, like of all social orders and that the degrees of initiation of Weishaupt, offer the closest similarities with those of Abdullah.

It is worth noting that it was only in the mid-19th century that Western scholars have begun to study the proceded and the Ismaili doctrines so similar to the procedures dice and the doctrines of the Weishaupt Illuminati — which had taught them during the 18th century and could not So, to know them through European science. But... “Weishaupt was surrounded by Jews,” admits Bernard, a Jew. Lazare in his book Anti-Semitism...

At 28 years old, in 1776, Weishaupt would seem to found his own only a set of secret societies whose design demands a mind of intrigue of dizzying depth. It was also when he was very young that, nine centuries earlier, Abdallah had seemed to single-handedly establish its superposition of Societies secrets.

SECRET SOCIETIES & THE JEWS A5

A suggestive parallel!... Could it be a meme proteacher of Mystery and Secret, the Jew — who remains the even across the ages — would have given to these two young people monsters. Abdallah and Weishaupt, the same lessons in hyPocrite villainy, nine centuries apart?...

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre

Jerusalem, Christian quarter.

"Ft again, here is the most magnificent and
The most wonderful thing:
Every year, in the evening of Holy Saturday, on the Tomb appeared
rail a fire, better,
a holy light,
which fills and all the lamps above hanging around
light up at this fire
and shine brighter.
But learn how it happens, listen: this grace comes and the miracle appears through the prayers of the holy and Orthodox Patriarch of Jerusalem, during-
With the crowd, he circles the Tomb three times, singing:

"Your Resurrection, O Christ the Savior, the Angels sing of it in the
"Heaven, and we on earth, make us worthy to glorify You with a pure heart!"

Having accomplished this,
the Patriarch enters at the-
The interior of the Sepulchre and the very beautiful wax candles
white ones are lit by
He saw it in that light. Then he
He got out and sat down in the place which had been prepared for him, and all the people rasthings seem to be approaching and even light their butts
gies to those that hold in his hands the Patriarch."

Parfenio Monk
Regarding Jerusalem:

A crowd of pilgrims
se engouffre dans len- ¥ ye. NÉ NUE qu main entrance, 1898. In 0o VN E^ fac We.

TWO TEAMS

FATIMID PRINCES
AND CARMATHIC BRIGADES

We know that at several times (among others from 1815 to (O 1848, in Europe), the work of the Secret Societies antisocial behavior was shared between two teams that functioned were born either successively or simultaneously: that of agitators and corrupters, and that of assassins.

However, as early as the 9th century, the Kabbalistic Jew succeeded, thanks to to the neo-Ismaelite sect, its instrument, this remarkable blow-capable: to employ simultaneously and successfully Here is a complete list of the corruptors, the Daïs or missionaries. Fatimid “Lodges” (1), and there fanatical assassins, the Carmathes.

At the same time as the Neo-Ismaili Secret Society was preparing the foundation of the so-called Fatimid Caliphate. organized, to the east of Arabia, in Bahrain, — profundamentally Judaized — a new branch where it is practiced qua /e communism the most absolute of goods as well as of women.

---

1. — The Austrian historian Von Hammer often speaks of the “Lodges” of the Neo-Ismaili or Fatimid secret society.

To the "Brothers" of this new sect, all crimes were permitted, provided they had faith. They were allowed to... suaded that through faith, they had nothing to fear from sin or punishment...

(M. de Goeje, p.30.)

This new neo-Ismaili sect was that of the Carmathes.

Torrents of blood and cities in ashes revealed soon its existence in the world, writes the Austrian historian Von Hammer.

(History of the Order of Assassins, p. 47.)

The Carmatians so effectively weakened the Caliphs of Baghdad, through their continuous attacks, that when the Obaïdallah the Jew dared to wear a turban in Africa.
imperial, the court of Baghdad will be forced, in its powerlessnesssance, to leave this usurpation unpunished.

Such was, in the east and in the west, the double and brilliant victory
the story that the Kabbalistic Jew won, following his application of full collectivism in Bahrain, near
of the Persian Gulf.

THE HOLY SEPULCHRE OF CHRIST AND THE BLACK STONE OF MECCA

If one could still doubt that the Jewish hand was ca-Behind the Neo-Ismaili Secret Society, here is who would be likely to remove any hesitation.

It is a proven fact that Mecca was taken and sacked by the Carmatians who, in an attempt to "destroy religion (Mahometan) in its entirety," removed the palladium Muslim, the famous Black Stone, and that on a (secret) order from Obaidallah that would shake Islam down to its very foundations, and which the faithful were to speak of

with horror, even after several centuries.
(M. de Goeje, p.98.)

One hundred years later, in the time of King Robert I*, son Hugh Capet, a Jew from Orléans, was sent by his coreligionist from France serving as ambassador to the Caliph Fatimid of Egypt, great-grandson of the Jew Obaidallah. The
A Jew from Orléans asked the descendant of the Jew Obaïdallah to destroy the tomb of Christ in Jerusalem (which was (in fact) in order to destroy Christianity in one fell swoop.

In both cases, it was Jewish hatred that was being served.
these two Caliphs of Jewish origin, agents of execution of the Secret Kabbalistic Society of the Neo-Ismailites.

Emile Signol (1804-1892), The Capture of Jerusalem, Palace of Versailles.

VISIBLE ACTION
& HIDDEN ACTION

IN THE WEST

Usquici, we talked about Jewish action in
The Orient in its two opposing aspects:

1° Direct action, in broad daylight (among the Arabs an-(those prior to Muhammad);

2° The hidden action, concealed beneath the guise of Societies Gnostic, Manichean, Ismaili secrets, for to be exercised through the Lodges of these various Primitive masonry.

However, among the Western nations born on the ruins of the Roman Empire, and in France particularly, the Jew waged a similar war of conquest, first in in broad daylight, then through the occult means of the "Lodges" manifest-Cheyennes swarmed from East to West.

In the time of certain Merovingian kings, not only-
Our Gallo-Frankish ancestors were on an equal footing with the Jews — as the Arabs were with their me-Jewish thieves, at the same time — but they were still at certain viewpoints dominated by Israel, which levied on They levied taxes on them and trafficked in the flesh of their enslaved sons.

in slavery. The bishops of France fought with energy the immense danger that was there to the faith of their Christian people.

Under the Carolingian Emperors, Jewish supremacy made great strides in France. Jewish proselytism flourished there. exercised with intensity. A Jewish historian, Mr. Israel Levi, has praised Charlemagne's liberalism and his "re- policy" comforting for the Jews."

The Jew's direct influence was so powerful at the court of Louis the Pious, whom the Bishop of Lyon, Saint Agobard, he was treated with the grossest contempt when he went to pre-to convey to the Emperor his just grievances against Israel. When he declared to the sovereign that his officials, at Lyon was as terrible for Christians as it was gentle For the Jews, this was a scandal in this Judaized court. their tolle (1) against the great Bishop.

THE JEW OF ORLEANS – ANTI-JEWISH REACTION

(Year 1014)

Under the Capetians, the scene changed. We have said above, how a Jew from Orléans (then the capital of Robert I*, son of Hugh Capet) was sent as ambassador Sade by his coreligionists in the presence of the Fatimid Caliph from Egypt.

We need to add some details here. This happens-known in 1014, a date to remember. The Jew of Orléans was por-author of letters in which the Jews of France implored the Fatimids – Ismaili and Kabbalist – to overthrow the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem in order to destroy it from the base

---

1. – (Note by Lenculus) By allusion to the Latin translation of John XIX, where the Jews ask Pontius Pilate to crucify Jesus with this cry: Tolle, tolle, crucifige eum.

Christian “superstitions”: the Fatimid fulfilled their desires; he destroyed the Holy Sepulchre. But, on the other hand, Jews were massacred throughout France, and at its Upon their return from Egypt, the Jewish mail was burned in Orléans.

This is how, avenging the Jewish outrage against the Holy Sepulchre, the legitimate anger of the people of France made to lose in a few days to Israel all the ground that he had made it possible to win the Judaizing policy of the Carolingiens.

But if open action had become impossible-While this was only possible for the Jew, he still had the following to undermine Christen the underground world of Jewish secret societies.

Some of them, the Gnostics, had settled in France as early as the 1st century; the others, the Manicheans, had succeeded there-clumsily penetrated by the three northern borders, of the east and the south.

A MANICHEAN... OR JEWISH SECT IN ORLEANS
(Year 1022)

It was again in Orléans, the capital of King Robert I, that A new manifestation of Jewish activity took place in 1022.
but hidden this time under the mask of a Society se-Crete. According to some historians, it was Gnostic.
Manichean according to others. For the Jew Bernard Lazare,
She was Jewish (1).

At the beginning of the 11th century, a Jewish heresy-
The Manichean ideology had therefore won – in the form of Secret society – of high-ranking figures from Orléans, laymen and clergymen, nuns, even priests. One of these, named Étienne,

had even guided the conscience of Queen Constance, Robert's wife. Several others held the principal chairs.

ecclesiastical schools of Orléans.
(From F. Doinel, Gnostic Patriarch.)

In short, like the Jewish Gnostic Valentinus, these conspirators
the heretics secretly spread their heresy by disguising themselves lying under the cloak of Catholic orthodoxy.

On December 28, 1022, a number of these Ju-Deo-Manicheans perished at the stake in Orléans.
the invisible network of secret societies was already too extensive due in France so that the death of some Manicheans was the death of Manichaeism.

As early as 1023, heresy reappeared in Limoges. In 1025 it re-
He was born in Arras. A little later in Liège.
(F. Doinel.)

---

1. – Anti-Semitism... Paris, 1894, p. 25.

THE MANICHEAN PEOPLE OF ALBIGE
& THE JEWS

A century later, Manichaeism — stemming from Jew Manes — was everywhere. Under the names of Cathars in Slavic countries, Patarins in Italy, of Brabançons in northern France, d'Albigeois in the
At midday, the Manicheans were swarming and spreading their faith.
semi-Kabbalistic with incredible fervor. Everywhere these Sectarians were organized into secret societies. They had their schools, their doctors who knew the biblical texts, writes Mr. Schmidt, and were very skillful to interpret them, sometimes according to the letter, sometimes according to the lal-
"Legorie," he said. "So we are brought back to the Jew again."
inventor of the allegorical method by which one makes
To tell the Holy Books whatever one wants.

Michelet — so far-sighted when his anti-fanaticism
Catholicism does not blind him — he noted that

The doctors of Brabant taught aloud
Aristotle; and, very quietly, the Arabs and the Jews with Pantheism dAverrhoes and the subtleties of the Kabbalah.

(Hist. of France, t. 11, p. 393.)

This amounts to saying that the secret, esoteric doctrine the Brabantians (Albigeois, Patarins, etc.) were none other something that Kabbalistic Judaism.

For his part, the great Jewish historian Graez wrote:

...It is in their relations with educated Jews or in Jewish works that the Albigensians... had partly drawn upon the idea of rejecting the authority of the papacy. There was even among the Albigensians a sect which openly declared that "the
"The doctrine of the Jews was preferable to that of the Christians..."

(Graetz, History of the Jews, vol. IV, p. 163.)

Between the Jew Manes and the Jewish scholars who, in the 11th century, stirred up the Manichean Albigensians against the Church, nine

Centuries have passed. But Manichaeism has remained the same.
immutable like the Kabbalistic Jew, his father, is immutable. The soul of the Albigensian secret societies was the very soul of the Jewish people, filled with hatred against the Church and the Christian peoples.

Let us briefly recall the appalling cruelties perpetrated by the Albigensians against the Catholics for about thirty years, before Simon de Montfort came to bring down the
the power of these Judeo-Manicheans, in this Languedoc that Michelet called "the Judea of France" (1) so much the es-
The Jew was taken there and was master.

1. - Hist. of France, t. 11, p. 409.

THE TEMPLARS

when the Albigensian sect fell under the blows

Catholic French from the north, including Simon de Montfort was the leader, but this was not the end of Albigensianism.
Judeo-Manichean, because the Albigensian Lords escaped in large numbers to their deaths by entering the Order of Temple, we will explain how; they transmitted to this Religious order, the Manichean contagion, and now
The Templars will be the (unwitting) agents in Europe (for the most part) of the Jewish occult power.

First of all, who were the Templars?

In Jerusalem, in 1118, 90 years before the crushing of the Albigensians, several French knights had founded
The Order of the Temple to defend against the Muslims
the Holy Land reconquered. The Templars had first They were faithful to their great duties. But the riches they accumulated and their influence became very great designated as superb prey for the enemies of the Church.

The original statutes of the Templars, attributed to Saint Bernard, gradually lost their austerity through modifications formations where the influence of "carefully chosen personalities" covered” can be detected:

A particularly dangerous prescription of the der- Our statutes are those which, in a way, recommend to Templars to seek recruits among the former Knights communed, in order to facilitate "the eternal salvation of their souls"... It would be wrong to believe that receptions of this kind were exceptional. They were so few that the Hospitallers (1) followed the same rule. The historian of Jerusalem, William of Tyre, addressed bloody reproaches to them from the end of the 12th century.

(A. Rastoul, The Templars, Paris, Bloud, 1905, p. 13.)

Here. Mr. Rastoul adds in a footnote:

This scandalous prescription is translated, by a counter-voluntary meaning, of an article of the Latin rule (/a primitive rule), the 645, which specifically excludes excommunicated people from the Temple.

It is by virtue of this clause, which was fraudulently inserted into the statutes of the Templars, which many lords Albigensians had their lives saved by entering the Order of Temple. This was also one of the causes of the fall of the Templars. We say: one of the causes. Not only-Indeed, the Templars were permeated by /a Jewish Kabbalah under its Manichean and Albigensian mask, but they were still penetrated by the same Kabbalah under his neo-Ismaili mask — a mask forged by Abdallah, son of Maimoun, and perfected by another agent secret, whom we have not yet spoken of, Hacan, son of Sabah, the Old Man of the Mountain, the leader of the Hashim or Assassins.

How were the Templars influenced by the sec-Oriental traditions? Here they are:

1. — Rival Order of the Templars (L D.)

Apart from the Knights and Servants, the houses of the The temple housed squires, auxiliaries, or Turcoples. and Muslim slaves, all people with whom perpetuated contact

tuel, combined with the pervasive corruption of Eastern Christianity, was not designed to facilitate religious life.

(A. Rastoul, The Templars, p. 16.)

We can therefore see how it could have happened that in the
at the same time that, in France, the Order of the Temple was suffering
the dangerous penetration of Judeo-Ma- Albigensianism Nichean, — in Palestine it was still penetrated by the Ismailism, in the particularly perverse form of the Secret Society of Assassins of the Old Man of the Mountain, of Kabbalistic Jewish origin, she too.

= S mP-

QI NTC ns

The Death of Simon Magus

Simon was baptized by Philip.

According to the Acts of the Apostles, after having A magician wants to buy Peter's power to perform miracles (Acts 8:9-21), which earned him the apostle's condemnation: "May your money perish with you."

"Money is a gift from God."

because you thought you could acquire it with l

Law,

THE OLD MAN OF THE MOUNTAIN

The Ismailis appeared to us
in two different aspects: as Fatimids,
In Egypt, they operated according to the method of hy- corruption Pocrite, and like the Carmathes, in Arabia, they worked in a terrorist manner. These two characteristics were reregistered in the Secret Society of the Hashishim by their foundation dater Hasan, son of Sabah, the Old (or Sheikh) of the Mountain.

The latter — like the Jew Simon Magus, like the The Jew Mani and like the Jew Alsauda Sabai — it seems to us to have been the man of the Jewish secret society, of the Power Jewish occult.

Here's why.

Above, in our paragraph on Manichaeism, We talked about the letter addressed in 1808 to the Jesuit Father Barruel by the Italian officer Simonini — famous letter This letter has since been filed in the Vatican archives. As we recall, Simonini stated that Jews from Italy— They told him that Manes was Jewish and that the Old Man of the Montagne was also Jewish. Now, this Jewish tradition, entrusted to Simonini at the end of the 18th century, is found corbolstered by very ancient Persian books translated into Europe long after Simonini.

The Persians contemporary with Hasan, son of Sabah (they (Writing seven centuries before Simonini) indeed say that The followers of Hasan called themselves Bathenians among themselves, that is to say, proponents of the allegorical interpretation of the Quran. Now it is proven that it is the Kabbalist Jews who invented the allegorical interpretation of the Holy Books. It is with the help of this allegorical interpretation that they have changed the pure wine of the Moses tradition into vinegar of their impure Kabbalah, before using it to Judaize and attempt to subjugate the Goyim, both Christian and Muslim Sultans.

The doctrine of the Assassins essentially boils down to the ancient Kabbalah, established in Islam as early as the 7th century? (400 years earlier) by the Jew Alsauda Sabai, precursorsister of the Ismaili Kabbalist Abdallah, son of Maimoun, himself a precursor, Hagan, son of Sabah, who "reformed" and perfected Ismailism. The strangest novel is inferior in strangeness to the real life of man darkness that was Haçan, "the Old Man of the Mountain". Like his 9th-century spiritual ancestor, Abdullah the son by Maimoun — Hagan, son of Sabah, comes out in the XI? century of a mysterious family. Some say he is Persian, the other Arabs. Like Abdullah, he affected to be a zealous A Shiite, an ardent supporter of the Alids – whom he would have killed, all as Abdallah had done. He began his political career by a heinous betrayal that almost equals it in infamy to Judas, the ultimate traitor.

Later, initiated into the mysteries of the Secret Society Hacan was received as an Ismaili, where he quickly rose through the ranks; he was received a prince by the Fatimid Caliph of Egypt, descendant of Obaidallah the Jew. But a palace revolution drove him out of Cairo, and he returned as a fugitive to his native country, Persia.

Then, this fugitive of yesterday became a great man shadowy leader. Through treachery—always—he seizes the fortress of Alamut which became the center of the power- the establishment of his secret society in seven grades, and he legitimizes it its conquest in the eyes of the neighboring populations a4 with the help of Jewish Kabbalah and its combinations of letters and Numbers.

THE HASHISHIM OR ASSASSINS

Even more treacherous than Abdullah's secret society, the Weishaupt of the 9th century, the sect of Hacan had for characteristic a diabolical innovation of its founder- member: one of the lower ranks of this secret society, said of the Hashishima, was that of the Fedavis or Devoted Ones. Sacrificed; this is the name still borne in Persia by the sec- silent assassins. The hypocrisy of Haçan's system was so so perfected was it that it achieved these results: the Fedavis "did not leave the dagger for a moment" (Von wrote Hammer); they were sent to assassinate here and there all the enemies of the Order, very good Muslims for the most part part, —and these Fedavis, even more duped than complicit, believed that by these crimes they would become the most Muslim pure, the most deserving, while their sect was, to their unsuspecting, a terrible instrument of destruction forged in the tale Islam!

Several European historians have cited this from old chronicles, both Christian and Muslim. He sees how one of Hasan's successors in the Great Mastery of the Order of Assassins concludes against the mu- Sultans and, through the Templars, a treaty was signed.

Creed with the Christian king of Jerusalem. Terrible disasters they descended upon the Crusaders, in punishment for this shameful and ephemeral alliance of "the Cross with the Daggers".

Let us simply make this serious observation: the Hashishim or Assassins (Disguised Judaizing Kabbalists) (Muslims) fought against Islam in the East — as the Albigensians (Judaizing Kabbalists disguised as Christians) and soon hidden under the cloak of the Templars) have fought Christianity in the West. Here as there, true Christians and true Muslims had, for hidden adversaries, secret societies of Jewish origin, issues of Crypto-Jews (1).

1. — We have already said this. But it is useful to repeat it: Crypto-Jews is a suggestive expression coined by an English journalist for to describe the Deunmehs, the Islamized Jews who, in 1908, made the re-so-called Young Turk revolution.

FALL OF THE TEMPLARS

With the fall of the Templars, we enter, in history-History of Secret Societies, a series of facts so dense that we must renounce being able to give in a few lines something other than a glimpse of the most sum-mayors.

Sectarians of all kinds have long since piled up lies upon lies in an attempt to in-no center the Order of the Temple which were struck by the Pope and the King of France. But the further we go, the more guilt appears. the Templar order which, throughout Christendom, suffered shameful convictions after long and meticulous a lengthy trial, following detailed confessions — the same confessions in the most diverse countries.

It was in reality an incomparable service that the king Philip the Fair returned to the Christian nations when he took the initiative in prosecuting the knights of Christ transformed into Manicheans, that is to say into instrumentalists Elements of Jewish Anarchism.

In a brochure (1) which has become very rare and whose in-Interest is strong; the late Claudio Jannet wrote these suggestive lines:

> The minutes and instructions directed against the
> The Templars observed practices and doctrines among them.
> whose identity with the rites and teachings of the highest
> The degrees (of Freemasonry) of the 18th century are striking...
>
> (The Precursors, pp. 1 and 2.)

What avatars does Crypto-Judaism take in secret societies?
has he traversed, from the Templars to the Franks-Freemasons? That's what we still need to examine quickly.

---

1. — Claudio Jannet: The Precursors of the F^. M. at xvr and in the 16th century, Paris, Palmé. 1887, in-8.

TEMPLARS TO THE HUGUENOTS

one can only conceive of an Order as powerful as the Order
The Temple could not disappear all at once.
despite the violence of the blows he received.

Following a tradition that it would be interesting to make the critics, a number of Templars escaped from convictions would have continued to spread in secret their Manichean doctrines within the guilds Scottish stonemasons. It is a certain fact that...
that the workers' guilds — originally ca-Catholics — were permeated by anti-Christianity so much in France as well as in Scotland, England and Germany, the de-
The break of the Albigensians and the Templars inevitably had its part in this penetration, at the same time as everywhere Uniformed secret societies proliferated in Europe.
hostile to the Church.

In the 15th century, a new Jewish effort resulted in injecting a new [evolution] into the veins of the Christian world
A heavy dose of Kabbalah. We want to talk about Humana-

Neoplatonic nism — which was merely a mask for the Jewish Kabbalah. Humanism spread throughout Italy and Germany.

of secret convents. The following lines, extracted from the aforementioned brochure by Claudio Jannet, suffice to characterize to terrify the champions of this Judaizing Humanism:

...In Florence..., the Jewish community, since 1450, not only-
he acquired enormous wealth through usury, but still penetrated high society and exerted an intellectual influence undeniable lectual. One of its most distinguished representatives-
The ford was Alemanno, also known as Datylus, who was Pico della Mirandola's Hebrew professor. Some of His recently published writings reveal his close relationships with the principal Florentine nobles.

Marsilio Ficino, the founder of the Platonic Academy..., had very frequent and very intimate relations with the rab-Jewish bins. He himself, although a canon, wrote in one of his letters: "I have made it a rule of conduct to recite
Three times a day, morning, noon, and evening, Psalm 145, this which, according to Jewish doctors, will assure me of eternal bliss.

Savonarola had all too good reason to thunder against the Jews and against Judaizing Christians.

(Cl. Jannet, Les Précurseurs, pp. 44, 45.)

These "Judaizing Christians," these double-dealing Humanists from their Jewish inspirers, grouped into secret societies were the true driving forces behind the Reformation that split in two Christendom in the 16th century, known in the 7th century as the he-Kabbalistic theory of the Jew Alsauda Sabai had shared Islam in Two Enemy Camps. Divide ut imperes, says the proverb.

Se

THE BROTHERHOOD
Rosicrucians

While it is true that the Reformation had its primary source in the Judaizing secret societies of the neo-humanists tonicians, it is no less true than the Rosicrucians – of whom The Brotherhood appeared in Germany in the early years

born of the 18th century – “derive directly from the Kab-Jewish bale" (1).

In 1622 (written Cl. Jannet, the followers (of the Rosicrucians) covered the walls of Paris with handwritten posters as well designed:

“We, deputies of our principal college of the Brothers of Rosicrucianism, let us make a visible and invisible stay in this city by the grace of the Most High, to whom the hearts of the righteous turn.
We teach without books or brands and speak languages from the country where we want to be to draw men our sem-
"Nonsense about error and death."

1. – Claudio Jannet, Les Précurs...., p. 47. Let us add that the founder An apparent member of the Rosicrucian order was the Protestant pastor Valentin Andreae.
grandson of one of the first Reformers, Jacob Andrea.

The impression made by these posters was considerable.
Memories of the time have preserved its trace and the pages vo-
Opinions for and against multiplied on all sides.
propaganda, carried out with the utmost secrecy, was thereby facilitated.
and that's why they had resorted to this bizarre public-cited. They were addressing themselves particularly to lawyers, to the gentlemen, to the members of Parliaments...

(Cl. Jannet, Les Précurseurs, pp. 17, 18.)

This is how the Rosicrucians, who pursued systhematically the upheaval of Society(1) all by presenting themselves as benefactors of humanity (2), sought to win over the social classes in France that Freemasonry would succeed, a century later, in corto break and disarm them, before leading them to the guillotinetine. But, writes Claudio Jannet,

the propaganda of the Rosicrucian Brothers in France
It did not succeed, and the followers had to promptly leave the country.
because the monarchy and the Church were too closely united, the ideas Christians were too deeply rooted in the nation so that they could remain there with impunity for a long time.

Some of them were seized and imprisoned at Mechelen. A certain Adam Hazelmeier was sentenced there to the g-Theorists and sectarians, foreshadowing the tactics of the philosophers of 16th century, they presented him as a victim of the Jesuits.

(Cl. Jannet, Les Précurseurs, pp. 21, 22.)

The Rosicrucian Order, as we have said, was born in Germany Magne. It prospered there. But we must observe that Germany was then deeply Judaized. We
We have also previously pointed out that plu-sects of Jewish origin, those of the Albigensians, of the Carmathes, of the Mandaites, were also born and

1. – Claudio Jannet, Les Précurs..., p.20.
2. – Ibid., p. 18.

had also thrived in countries where the footprint
Jewish was profound.
It was logical that it should be so.

It was just as logical as the very Kabbalistic Rose-Croix prospered similarly in England where the Jews had gained a foothold, once the Anglican schism was complete.

MAGISTER.
JESUS CRISTO

D. ec H.

– | BENEDICTUS
Dominus – – DEUS – NOSTER
Aix d: $ SA i LS . Ea qui dedit nobis Signum 4 e 8

t

E Crucis

THE ROSE-CROSS, MOTHER OF FREEMASONRY

€: England (written by Claudio Jannet on a page)
capital city to which we are drawing all our attention (of the reader), in England where Protestantism had
The ground was better. The Christian faith had long been shaken; the situation was better.
prepared only in France for Rosicrucian propaganda.

The main follower was the physician and alchemist Robert Fludd (1574-1637)... who published an edition in 1616 clay of the Fama fraternitatis (1). The father of the antiquarian Elias Ashmole was also one of the most fervent followers.
This one (Elias A.)... at the same time as he continued the paternal tradition and concerned himself with the occult sciences, was initiated into Freemasonry (2) in 1646 and collected a a host of documents on Freemasonry (3) which were used

1. – One of the first books of Rosicrucian propaganda, (LD)
2. – Here we point out that the Freemasons of this ma-
That nonsense wasn't about the modern Freemasons, but rather the members of the old workers' guilds of the Middle Ages, which began to be penetrated by men "foreign to the art of building" (LD)

3. – Ibid.

read for the constitution of the Grand Lodge of England
in 1717.

This is the point of convergence established between the new Society which then formed under the old name of Freemasons (implied: professionally. LD) and the sectarians who since a century continued across Europe.

The very curious book of Philalethes (1), The long livers, dedicated in 1720 to the Grand Master, Masters and Wardens and Brothers of the Lodges (implied: modern-style, LD) of London, strongly indicates clearly stated in his preface that there existed above the three grades tra-traditional, borrowed from the freemasons (2), an illumination and a hierarchy whose nature he does not reveal. The language he
The job is entirely that of alchemy and the Rosicrucians.

The most authoritative historians, Mackay, Whytehead, Yarker, are unanimous on this point...

(Cl. Jannet, Les Précurs., p.22, 23.)

That's it, as Claudio Jannet so aptly puts it, the point of junction established between the new Society which is forming then under the old name of the Freemasons – of me–
third – and the sectarians who had been perpetuating themselves for a century across Europe.

These sectarians – the fact is historically proven – are infiltrated (to use Mr. Ab–'s very expressive term) Barbier) (3) in the old guilds of masons
English by trade and have transformed their old "lodges"
in the first Lodges of modern Freemasonry.

1. – Philalethes is the pseudonym of Camber, author of the pre– first book published under the auspices of the leading lodges of France Modern Freemasonry. The brothers are urged to concern themselves neither with politics, nor religion (already!), while granting, for appearances' sake, praise of Christianity. See Claudio Jannet, Les Précurs., p. 7.

2. – See Note 2, previous page.
3. – See in his book: /Masonic infiltrations in the Church...

But who were these sectarians whose mysterious hierarchy...
The previous one was superimposed on the three grades of the elders Masons by trade? – Rosicrucians who proceeded "directly from Jewish Kabbalah" and were consequently agents, more or less unconscious, of the Kabbalistic Jew.

Let's say it once again: all of this is historical.
The infiltration of the Rosicrucians–that is to say– to say of Kabbalistic Judaizers – in the brotherhoods of English stonemasons called freemasons is something Proven, undeniable. For all Masonic historians.
Seriously, England and America never did that.
a shadow of doubt.

And it is from this infiltration that Freemasonry was born.
pure nonsense.

dept

Christianity systematically

You will attack him and the thought
You will not study Greek.

There"

^

You will hunt down racism
especially when it doesn't exist.

You will ridicule the peasantry

and will give up.
You will despise the workers.
and you will relocate their factories,
You will trample on the people
and you will feel guilty.

Its

Through contraception,
abortion and immigration,
a substitution of population you will organize.
You will shatter your family unit.
and parental authority
You will condemn.

With full sovereignty

You will plunder the State.
The Nation will mention it
You won't even dare anymore.
Big business will decide
You will allow everything.

Subject to dictates
You will be in the markets.

| A A" 'a ya 444 x & &d 5 dd

The looting
social systems
(You will accept without flinching)

THE | quine

The instruction methodically
You will "deconstruct".
Any sacred dimension
In Art you will find release.
You will make morality seem outdated
and all the deviations
You will encourage him.
Vulgarity, obscenity and shamelessness in all
"Miscircumstances you will promote.

Mr. You will facilitate the concreting.
And you will disfigure the landscapes!
To great delight
Kebab vendors,
spring rolls and burgers,
You'll forget about your cuisine.

Your mother tongue
You will massacre.

By Gavalda, Balzac
You will replace it.
Any transmission
you will prevent and you will scourge.

The Noble Unknown

CONCLUSION

In fact, we find at the end of this study

We vomit among the secret fathers and masters of Freemasonry proper, the three characteristics that we we have observed in ancient secret societies Gnostics, Manicheans, Ismailis, etc., namely:

1° Jews or Judaizers are their initiators;

2. The doctrines they profess are of Jewish origin Kabbalist;

3. They are organized into superimposed secret societies. whose compartments are secret from one another others.

It thus seems to be confirmed that since the time of Simon Magus the Jew, the Jew Mani, the Jew Alsauda Sabai, —not to mention the Kabbalists Abdallah, son of Maimoun, and Hacan, son of Sabah up to the Kabbalist Ashmole and the Kabbalist Camber, both ancestors of modern French Maccabees, a persistent, hidden agenda has infiltrated, within the non-Jewish nations, secret societies of Judaizers destined to become more or less unwitting traitors towards their respective homelands and their original faith.

And this for WHOM'S benefit, if not for the benefit of the Kabbalistic Jew? an ambitious list of conquests to be achieved through cunning and treachery Universal domination?

In order to be condensed into this brochure-chure, the preceding considerations — and which en-span eighteen centuries — are necessarily reduced to their simpler expression. But we have already exposed them-sées with fairly extensive developments, in 1908, 1909 and 1910, in a large number of articles published in the anti-Masonic journal La Bastille (1).

Readers interested in the fascinating question of The Secret Society, the Jew's favorite weapon against civilization-Christian tradition, will find copious documentation on this subject mentation in a long-term work that we we are currently preparing by completing our research previous.

THE DOVE, SYMBOL OF THE PURE AND FAITHFUL SOUL

Bearing the olive branch, she is triumphant in the fight for the faith. Catacomb Frescoes.

1. — The Bastille; office: 42, rue de Bellechasse, Paris. — Director-Copin-Albancelli and Louis Dasté. — Annual subscription: France 7 Fr. — Foreign: 9 francs.

BIBLIOGRAPHIES

Amélineau M. Émile — Essay on Egyptian Gnosticism. Paris, 1887.

Artista Elias — Fama fraternitatis.

Babelon M. — The Mandaites. Paris, 1881.

Emmanuel Barbier (Abbot) — Masonic Infiltrations in The Church. Lille, 1910.

Berger Jean — On Initiation among the Jews, R.LS.S. n°1.

Paris, 1912.

Doinel, Jules (Koska Jean) — Lucifer Unmasked. Paris, 1895.

Dozy Reinhart — Essay on the History of Islam. Paris, 1879.

Franck Adolphe - The Kabbalah or the religious philosophy of Hebrews. Paris, Hachette, 1843.

Goeje Jan Michael de — Memoir on the Carmathes of Bahrain and the Fatimids. Leiden, 1886.

Graetz, Henrich Hirsch — History of the Jews

Hammer Joseph von — History of the Order of Assassins.

Paris, 1833.
Jannet Claudio — In the F. M-. in the 19th century. Avignon, 1882.
" " —The Precursors of Freemasonry in the 16th and in the 17th century. Paris, Palmé, 1887.

Lazare Bernard - Antisemitism: its history and its causes.
Paris, 1894.

Leo XIII — Encyclical Humanum genus. Rome, 1884.

Matter Jacques — Critical History of Gnosticism, its influence on the religious and philosophical sects of the first 6 centuries of the Christian era; 3 volumes. Paris, 1828.

Michelet Jules — History of France.

Rochat Ernest — Essay on Máni (Manés) and his doctrine.

Geneva, 1897.

Rastoul Amand - The Templars. Paris, Bloud, 1905.

Vigouroux Fulcran (Abbot) — Dictionary of the Bible; 5 volumes.
Paris, 1912.

The Bastille — Anti—Masonic Journal

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Before Our Lord Jesus Christ …..…........... cece in Jewish “tradition” (Kabbalah) ….............….....

After Our Lord Jesus Christ...
| rui ——————————
The WAT CC ISIN ec oe eoo REM TUE:
Muhammad and the Jews cascada or.
The Jew Alsauda Sabai .... oo aoo ao ao aro a sas so aee ce tee ee
A Weishaupt in the [10th century .... sss
The Jew Obaïdallah PE
TCC ICS a ee a mean
Visible action & hidden action.................. sss.
The Manichean Albigensians and the Jews...
ESSOR ETE bud anata
The Old Man of the Mountain........... sss sess.
Fall of the Templars .... sss sss sss.
From the Templars to the Huguenots .... sess.
The Rosicrucian Brotherhood .... sss

The Rosicrucian Order, mother of Freemasonry...........
Sod cu M ——— EAS
Bibliographies «eae aster sas so soe se aee se ae Use e tad

Table of contents...

F. CONTY Printing Works, 210, Rue Lecourbe. — PARIS.

The ancient and prestigious secret society of "Those Who Pull the Strings"

FIND ALL PUBLICATIONS

reviews of rare or banned books in digital format

The Savoyard & Lenculus

Rare or hard-to-find books and documents

+ Wawa Conspi - Blog and History E-Book
the-savoisien.com/blog/ histoireebook.com

+ Wawa Conspi - Forum + Balder Ex-Libris
the-savoisien.com/wawa-conspi/ balderexlibris.com

+ Free PDF + Aryana Libris
freepdf.info/ aryanalibris.com

+ Aldebaran Video + PDE Archive
aldebaranvideo.tv/ pdfarchive.info

All reviews or digital reissues
The Lenculus resources are free and cannot be used for profit.
All of his publications can be found on the website:

http://the-savoisien.com

This is a reproduction of a library book that was digitized
by Google as part of an ongoing effort to preserve the information in books and make it universally accessible.

Google Books

https://books.google.com

Google

About this book

This is a digital copy of a work that has been preserved for generations on the shelves o precaution by Google as part of a project aimed at allowing internet users to discover th line.

Because this book is relatively old, it is no longer protected by copyright law and is no
"Belonging to the public domain" means that the book in question has never been subject t
Expiration. The conditions required for a book to enter the public domain can vary from c
These are all links to the past. They bear witness to the richness of our history, our cu too often difficult for the public to access.

The footnotes and other marginal annotations present in the original volume are reproduce
of the long journey the book has taken from the publishing house through the library to f

Instructions for use

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize works in the public domain and make thus accessible to all. These books are indeed the property of everyone and we are simply However, this is a costly project. Therefore, and in order to continue disseminating thes necessary measures to prevent potential abuses by third-party merchant sites, in particul
technical constraints related to automated queries.

We also ask you to:

+ Do not use the files for commercial purposes. We designed the Google Books Search progr
We therefore ask that you use these files for personal purposes only. They may not be use any commercial purpose.

+ Do not perform automated requests. Do not send any automated requests whatsoever to the research concerning translation software, optical character recognition, or any other fie
For large amounts of text, please do not hesitate to contact us. We encourage the use of works and documents belonging to the public domain and we would be happy to be of service

+ Do not remove the attribution. The Google watermark contained in each file is essential and allow them to access more documents through the Google Books Search Program. Do not d
No cases.

+ Stay within the law. Whatever use you intend to make of the files, remember that it is
Be sure to respect the law. If a work belongs to the American public domain, do not assum

other countries. The legal duration of copyright for a book varies from country to country
The works whose use is authorized and those whose use is not. Don't assume that simply pos
Book search means that it can be used in any way anywhere in the world. The sentence to wh
The penalties you would face in the event of copyright infringement could be severe.

About the Google Books Search service

By facilitating searches and access to a growing number of books available in many languag contribute to promoting cultural diversity through Google Books Search. Indeed, the Googl allows internet users to discover the world's literary heritage, while helping authors anc

online searches in the full text of this work can be found at: http://books.qgoogle.com

yx

,

d Dicite

dbi

82272.20 MM

RU RS

B ^
+.
| RC .
f | |
| | (fi
e.
V.

ra once amen PENTA revo degree" DUE e ae
| tw NATIONAL ANTI-JEWISH PROPAGANDA

| LITTLE CATECHISM

ANTI-JEWISH

BY

A. DE BOISANDRE

60* Thousand

| 15 cents
1 PARIS
E ANTISEMITIC BOOKSTORE
| 45, rue Vivienne, 45

(sr ED
WIOOQIC
Dr.

f A»
I. Antisemitism is not a union of political men seeking to seize power for their own enjoyment.
procare. It is the natural and logical grouping of tum tes
National forces against the common enemy: the Ju Parasite, speculator, and traitor. 4

| EDOUARD DRUMONT.

They are now free, these Jnifs; they are masters.
With each blow, I find myself on the throne of the world...
MICHELET. |

“Finally, you find in the Jews only a people…”
rant, lazy and barbaric, who has long joined the p unworthy avarice, to the most detestable superstition, and to the x horrible hatred for all the peoples who tolerate them enrich them. » E -

VOLTAIRE.

ES

Why would God have created the Jew, if it weren't for...
to use us as spies.

| BISMARCK. -

Unsociable, strangers wherever they are, without a homeland, sar
Other interests besides those of their sect, the Talmudic Jews have always been a scourge for the country where fate has them

Ernest Renan.

-
i

(Bothschild...)

Aging 1, hats off! This passerby
He made his fortune at the very hour you shed your blood;
Jl played the lowering and rose as he went
That our fall was more profound and more certain.
JL needed a vulture for our dead, and he was one.
11 fit, hard worker and always on the lookout,
Suer a nos malheurs des chäteanx et des rentes.

Victor Hueco.

. *-

In France, we never have a/mó the Jew who lives, no
his work, but from the exploitation of the work of others.
HENRI ROCHEFORT.

Digitized by Goo le
3

“VRE “NATIONAL. OF. ANTIUNE PROPAGANDA.

e pr 45, rue Vivienne, in Paris.

x os ae
ay ^ : ; « P 3
: ` j
i = fp
As PAR. i

1 we kc
- m +. £
HER S: SPE M MNT e Ie; , -oo
and LE ^ ae . A 7 n : | :
Pine ee pe We et - AE | : A \
This A. DE BOISANDRÉ | - *
EE urna e C PE 3 Ion : re
ite ce us 5 m > at 3 DO H . * ; 2 pa - i ` | - EP ° `
2.
PLE
go ENT
Word ' > $ god E 7
Bow nn
: J | EP jd " ^
TRECE -- : f EE : ;
2655 oa 2 . AMETE EQ y
ov» BOP Mille
Pal Lure m | e
n 5 | " os I" . AS
? ai
, PB . 3 y D È j
B l | j
! i 2 | í jf
izx E ad ^ a iS
` +
a 4 dg
'p ; ty
MN xs. .
xi:
A ECCO 1
4 x Li

AC^ PARIS OO "EE
ANTISEMITIC BOOKSTORE
Fu 45, Rue Vivienne, 45th

i

FOREWORD >

` This little booklet does not have the pretension of ap-to order something for cultivated minds who,
crazy today - except in the case of blindness |

voluntary – are able to understand the im-
The crucial importance of the Jewish question. Written without pretension, with the greatest simplicity-cited, 'with the greatest possible clarity, it is primarily aimed at this hardworking crowd which doesn't always have the time to educate oneself, who doesn't
He hardly ever reads newspapers, let alone books.
and that it is nevertheless important to keep informed of the movement of ideas, since through his work tenacious, through her ceaseless production, she is more than ever the resource, the reserve and France's hope.
These millions of peasants, OR workers, employees, small shopkeepers, small - civil servants, small rentiers, were doubly-lying to the victims of the Jew.

- The Jew was not content with ruining them and... to starve them through speculation and the blows of

BI

Boer A. 3

stock exchange; to enslave them more completely,
He tried to corrupt them, to lead them astray,
-to lead them astray on false trails. After having

-seized the wallets, he wanted to seize:

brainstorming.
This is how the crash of the es and the opinions has become, in our unfortunate country, the corollary and complement to all crashes

. financial, industrial and commercial.

- For fifty years, the Jew was the absolute master of the press, and consequently

. . The sovereign arbiter of the opinion he directed at his leisure.

— For fifteen years, since the day Drumont,
In Jewish France, the mockery rang out,
Despite the revolts, the situation has undoubtedly improved.
but she's not yet where she should be to be. If in the major centers of the newspapers

...with high readership, they are fighting the enemy today

with ferocity and they strike him terrifically

. Ribes, the remote province, the peaceful villages. | _ are still delivered almost defenseless to the infamous propaganda from the Jewish newspapers their substitutes, the DURUM OR leaves.

socialists. — :

What appalling havoc they wreak in the |

spirits these small district newspapers |

; 2c c
from the chief town of the canton, inspired by hatred, written by ignorance and stupidity, which have no other intellectual center than the Lodge voisine, whose political director deserves ae
to be called Homais or Robert-Macaire, and well

“Often both together!”

These are the cabbage leaves, these "ducks", as they are called, who led the France on the brink of disaster.

And how can anyone be surprised? x

These small local newspapers reign supreme.
sharing on the intelligences they have nur.
mission to distort and stupefy. The competition
There is no need to fear anything. The independent press...
Dante, the honest man of the departments, is valiant.
It's probably slow, but it's too weak, it
Is he too poor to compete with Avantac?

As for the major Parisian newspapers, they are ~ perhaps too scholarly, too literary, and then —

They often arrive too late, and they don't give _ | not the “local news”.

there is only one way — many of our readers
gentlemen will certainly agree with us — | to combat this systematic poisoning M

'of minds and hearts: it is to pour the counter-| poison in the form of small brochures, small — manuals, small leaflets, easy to read and of a good market such as it is possible to Ze.

to distribute in thousands of copies.

The Little Anti-Jewish Catechism responds to this desideratum.

He will point out, once again, the ambition
. to explain the whole philosophy or the whole pro:
political and social gram of Anti-Semitism.
His more modest claims don't resist- sim-simply to point out some lies, to refuto spread some gross calumnies, to sow in besides some sound and patriotic ideas.
We are asking our friends to help us

~

> with all their power to spread this goodness

_seed, to ensure that it germinates in their surroundings, to prevent her from being smothered
through the tares of cosmopolitanism...

Long live France for the French!

PART ONE
De VA denied 2

e Dres What is Jin Bins? | /

R. — Theoretically; Anti-Semitism is len-

"seems like observations and studies that have for the aim of drawing public attention to the Jews and to the constant danger that their morals and actions pose

Run to the Societies. p? Um

In practical terms, antisemitism is a movement protest and resistance organized by pa-

triotes against Jewish power, also dangerous
...for nations as well as for individuals.

'Generally adopted. Moreover, it does not lend itself to any, E

. the Semitic race.

- The Arabs are also Semites. That's probably true.

D. — Why do we say “Antisemitism” and not “Anti-Semitism”: ?

R—“Anti-Judaism” would, in fact, be imprecise /
and more precisely.

“Antisemitism” is a scientific term.

ambiguous in France and in most countries of Europe, where Jews are the only representatives of

The situation is different in Algeria, for example, o

clearly to avoid any confusion, that in Algiers.

dt more readily: the "(anti-Jewish party)" than the "party anti-Semite.

D. – Is antisemitism therefore a political party?

that?

R. – Strictly speaking, no.
D

Modern anti-Semitism, in its origins; was not | hardly more than a philosophical movement, a body of doctrines logically deduced from the study approx-

PESCE RESI

based on history and impartial examination of the Contemporary society; but, little by little, the events- |

These factors have led to antisemitism, despite itself.
to become a political party, and most importantly,
the most essential of all, since, at present,
We can say that there is nothing left in our country but two opposing parties: on one side, the Jews and the Foreign agents; on the other hand, France:

–© D.– How did the Jews come to be so 'formidable?'
R.–He had written a whole volume for you.
quer.

However, you can get an idea of the current situation, by imagining what it was like,

… France towards the end of the last century, on the eve of the:
| Revolution, and by comparing the situation of this |

. era to that of today.

The Monarchy which had been so great, and which had.
1 'ondé, at the cost of ten centuries of struggle, unity and the |

The great champion of France had fallen, since Louis XV,
in disrepute and unpopularity,

The nobles who, with Duguesclin, with Joan of Arc, |

with Bayard, with Condé, with Turenne, had shed their blood on so many battlefields, –
the nobles were no more – for too great a name –
at least one of them – what useless court-herbalists whose costly conceit burdened the anti-chambers of Versailles. The clergy themselves, – the religious orders in particular – were ravaged by the worst abuses.

– The people, meanwhile, suffered from evils “terrible. The finances were in disarray, the waste-
"Age reigned from top to bottom. Law and Justice"

“existed in more than name; they offered no protection, but no security for the little ones and the poor.

Life was joyful only for the privileged; it
"was intolerable for the masses.

What did the people do then?

At the end of his patience and resignation, he stood up,
and in a formidable movement of revolt that Nothing could stop him; he broke the old regime and made the Revolution..

(D. – Would the Anti-Semites want to make a Revolution in their turn?

R. — No, because the anti-Semites are above all

* Patriots know all too well what it costs to health

a people and the future of a race, these terrible _Social emotions.

'We therefore do not want to repeat the Revo-ution; we simply want to refine it, revise it... b

D. — What do you mean by that? — p: ei

i Vv ^ & Ng Hd - ^ st: $: . ~
E EN T

———ÁÁAu—— to M
z^ RE wee -

sd us

R. — I mean that the Revolution was detri-born from its path, which it was exploited by the facor.
the most audacious and cynical by men who are only entitled to the share of inheritance that the people frangais had been generous enough to abandon them gradually managed to divert to their own advantage all the succession...

It was the Jets who surrendered to T.
this criminal capture to the detriment of all classes of the nation... l

D. — How so?

R. — I will explain it to you later.

For the moment, compare the situation of the regime current, which has nothing of the Republic but the name and which is nothing but Jewish anarchy, in the situation of the year old regime in 1789.

It's the same mess, the same favoritism.
The same waste of public funds, the same contempt of true merit and acquired rights, the same hatred of Freedom and justice, the same negligence, the same impotence, the same decrepitude. Only, od
This has intensified over the past century in certain areas; »r frightening tions.

Thus, in 1789, the budget deficit which was one to determining causes, or of the reason one of the great nds pi ^ texts of the Revolution, not EL until 52 mi

lions. P |

We would laugh at such misery today.
What would 52 million do, plus:
less in the abyss of our bae already `:

4

|

|

CS = —
past three and a half billion, and which will soon be to reach the fourth billion, thanks to taxes—
news that is hypocritically being prepared under the . name of income tax, by making people believe in
. naive as this transformation in distribution and the collection of taxes, has as its point of view ML the small taxpayers? | |

What would 52 million be worth in the ba—
I am launching our debt, which is the heaviest in the world,

which reaches the fantastic figure of 84 billion, while England, richer than us, was born must that 16 billion, and Germany and Russia 14 million

Just liards?

= .Bound by debt and taxes, it is logical that the life is becoming increasingly difficult for us.

Our industry and our commerce paralyzed by high labor costs, competing with rich-foreign values that are more favored in every respect, are fallen into an inertia that resembles death.
Our merchant navy, once so flourishing, is reduced to nothing, despite the costly bonuses of cons-
; construction that we pay for; our maritime transport are in the hands of the Jews; the same is true of our : railways, and, since the "Sealed Conventions-rates" negotiated by the Jew Raynal, we are obliged to pay each year, under the pretext of ga-interest payments, enormous sums that will
| to be added to the coffers of cosmopolitan bankers:

|
|
|
| "You know how it is,
|

to all the millions taken from the 'raids of financial and commercial exchanges.

The workers complain that they only receive - insufficient wages for excessive work, and they accuse the bosses. The bosses respond that they do not can pay more or reduce the hours of work under penalty of being driven to bankruptcy. At each Conflicts, strikes, and returns that politicians in the pay of the big banks- .
Jewish quiers fuel their excitements, and who have no other result than to impoverish them a little more plus salaried employees.

The peasant, bent over the furrow, is hardly more | happy that his ancestor from the time of Louis XIV, this an animal with a human face, which La Bruyère described.
Such a striking portrait. When he paid his rents,
It's barely enough for him to avoid seizure.

giving an advance to the tax collector who is pressuring him and threat. If by chance a happy year, a re-exceptional harvest allows him to put what-Meanwhile, the Jews are setting up a buccaneering operation.
gigantic as Panama, and they sweep it up in one only one day the poor LE of an entire existence-
work term, |

I hardly need to inform you of the situation.
desperate for small businesses ruined by the big shops and through Jewish bazaars.

The civil servants themselves are to be pitied.
Although their number exceeds 600,000, and that, by their ever-increasing multitude of new ones |

| recruits, they tend to become a real scourge national, P would be a mistake to believe that everything is rose in their existence: |

Underpaid, treated like dogs, they are made buy through all kinds of constraints and humidity
. ties the meager pittance that is thrown to them like a Bones to gnaw on.

They no longer have the right to have opinions or political views.
nor religious; they are in the service, not only of |, the administration for which they work, but of all the politicians, their families and their creations

. tures. They are transformed, willingly or unwillingly, into brokers, - as electoral commissioners, and, woe to them!
if they balk, if they show 'only insufficient zeal-.
Good heavens! They are veritable serfs bound to the land.

| the policy that feeds them so sparingly. P

Alone, above all this misery and all

In the face of these anxieties, the Jew shines, radiates, and triumphs.
He's billionaire, he's happy, he's OC:
'health.
Not content with now reigning over the Stock Exchange, he opisem reign over souls and consciences; he he wants France to be his property, his possession; he extends his hooked hand on everything, even the army...
Pie, you saw it clearly with the Dreyfus affair...

D. - That's true, though, what you're saying there;

But how can the anti-Semites be Pierre for Bring the Jews to reason? | /

R. — They will only have to draw inspiration from the lessons of History,

They will remember how it was used in the past with the squanderers of public funds, the Sem-Blangay, the Enguerrand de Marigny, the Fouquet. They will remember Colbert, the child of the people. virile energy, the great minister of Louis XIV, who, in a single hunt for the thieving financiers, brought back - six billion in the public treasury; they will imitate Napoleon I*' who hunted down with such just severity the suspicious financiers and the plundering generals, and who never hesitated to make those who appeal to him "overflow with riches" milk the "public leeches"...

D. — Very well; but supposing that you succeeded in stealing from the Jews part of what they revealed to us, how will you manage for the prevent it from happening again?

R. — We must hope for the Jews that a po
The lesson will suffice for them.
Serious legislative reforms will be implemented.

disposable; it will be necessary to regulate the Financial exchanges and trade exchanges, sup-prioritize any speculation that rests solely on - the game, firmly apply the laws and, if necessary, to forge new ways to combat hoarding in all its forms. its shapes. making wide cuts in all the | administrative branches, finally bringing back a little order, peace and tranquility in a country that - twenty years of political and financial anarchy have re-due to the state in which you see it.

D.— I like this program; but if, despite everything, |
Are the J wifs starting again?

R. — Well, that would be too bad for them; for it is It is likely that, in this case, the outraged nation gave a second, more serious correction than - the first one...

II

Antisemitism is not a war
| of religion. _

D. — The ideas of the Anti-Semites would suit me Enough; unfortunately, there's something going on that will...
crumpled... o |

R. — Which one? | |

'D. — I heard it said and even read it in the newspapers claim that the anti-Semites were clerical.
fanatics paid by the Jesuits to row us to end the government of priests.

R..— And you believe that nonsense?
op. — Damel...

R.— Observe more closely those who re-pañdent: you will quickly recognize that they are returning in one of the following categories:

BC Jews; i |

20 Freemasons;

3° Protestant pastors or sectarian Protestants;
. 4? Former priests who have thrown their cassocks to the nettles;

5. Politicians of all stripes and from all backgrounds

in the pay of the Jews.
D. — You may be right; mats ne pourrieg-

You still have to prove to me that Antisemitism |
Isn't this a religious war?

R. — Nothing could be easier; all you have to do is
An appeal to simple common sense.

D. — Go ahead!

AR. — If the Anti-Semites were, as the pre-some political charlatans tend to vulgar clerics paid by the Pope and by the Je-
As a result, you will surely admit, I suppose, that the Antise-
Is Mitsism only found in Catholic countries?

D. — Indeed.

R. — Well, anti-Semitism has existed in all the eras, across all latitudes, amidst civilizations
the most diverse interpretations and religions the pios heterogeneous.

The cry: "Down with the Tails!" so often shouted at the current time in the streets of Paris and all the cities in France and Algeria, is only the repercussion
throughout the ages, protests resounded there
2,000 years ago in the forum of pagan Rome. Read Cicero, the great Latin orator, read Tacitus, the harsh and magnificent historian of Caesar's Rome, you will find there You will find observations and judgments on the Jews.
comments that would also be perfectly at home in the Jewish France or Free Speech.

Transport yourself to the Spain of the Caliphs, to x1? century AD. You will hear the Moors of Granada utter the same curses against Is: rael.

- It was during this period that the glorious patriotic poet

| | SAT
Abu Iskak Al Elbiri traveled from city to city reciting
|. his famous Kasida rhymed in noun, to excite the cou-rages. Everywhere people repeated with him the refrain of his "song: "The Jews have become great lords;
They reign in the capital and in the provinces; they have palaces inlaid with marble, adorned with fountains
they are magnificently dressed and dine sumpmurderously, while you are poorly dressed and malnourished. » l |
Now take a look at the company con-
.temporary; ; you will find that |' Antisemitism there
It exists everywhere. It reigns among Lutheran Germans.
as among the French and Austrian Catholics-liques, among the Russians and Romanians who appear-adhere to the Greek Orthodox religion, as with
. the Arabs and among the Persians, who are followers
'of Muhammad. Do you know what the Arabs call-

The Jews? They call them: Dyiffa ben Djiffa, which means: "Carrion, son of carrion"...
You can see from this that the religious question does not enter absolutely nothing to do with antisemitism; other-
In fact, it would be necessary to admit that all religions of the universe have agreed and conspired to perseto cut up these unfortunate Jews, a hypothesis whose astonishment- -
This statement would make even the most obtuse Freemason back down...
D.— What you are telling me seems very true to me;
Is it not true, however, that most writers
Vain anti—mites were and still are Catholics fervent? E
R. — That is yet another gross and careful error- E

*

Eig

a lie propagated by the Jews with the aim of lending credence a lie and to perpetuate an ambiguity.

The Jews criticize Drumont, who is also the most liberal and least sectarian of men, to go to Mass on Sunday. But they refrain
It is worth adding that Drumont is a student of the University cited, that he received his education as an external student of high schools in Paris where he had, among other teachers, Messrs. Camille Rousset and Gaston Boissier, who are one and the other became members of the French Academy.

This secular education of the author of France
Jewish, The End of a World, and The Last Battle forms a striking contrast with clerical education
current ministers who pretend to be afraid of the Congregations, to further postpone the realization-tion of reforms long promised to the nation, |
.. Waldeck—Rousseau, Lanessan, Monis, Caillaux,

are all students of Jesuit or congregational schools nists. The same is true, moreover, of most the great leaders of socialism, who are playing into the hands of Ministry and Jews.

When the Jews or their friends will make sion of-
before you, to the alleged clericalism of Drumont, ask them why they don't speak or
of Luther, the founder of Protestantism, who has Written about Jews: violence and vulgarity © before which the most energetic diatribes of Contemporary anti-Semites might be mistaken for Amenities? Ask them what they think too.

of Voltaire, that god of free thought and anti-

"Ralism, which exhausted the arrows on the sons of Israel

sharper and more poisonous in his wit?
In our century as well, the list would be long.
freethinkers and even atheists who have
They were shown to be convinced anti-Semites. I can quote you,

. at random, the socialist Fourier, the inventor of the pha-

Lanstere, who did not disguise his contempt for the Jews and called them unproductive patriarchal Zeus:
Toussenel, his disciple, who wrote about the Jews as kings of The era, a masterpiece; the socialist Proudhon, whose atheism was celebrated: Tridon, a member of the Commune, author of Jewish Molochism; the doctor Regnard, a Blanquist, who wrote Aryans and Sémites and who was, during the Commune, secretary of Raoul Rigault; and finally Chirac, the author of the Jewish Tales and Kings of the NOR, which is a revolutionary socialist
tionary. ' nd |

If all of this were public knowledge, you would understand-nose although the Jews: would waste their time to you-to represent the Anti-Semites as clerical-| caux; but they speculate on naivety and ignorance-

like they speculate on the Stock Exchange on the maur- .

I'll send you the paper they issue...
` D. — They are then famous hypocrites...

R. — 'Yes, and even more hypocritical than you.' Think. The Jew, never forget, is the being of the reversed sign, that is to say that, when he commits an infamy, he always blames others for it, because

It's better to disguise oneself, to create an alibi...

Thus, when the Jews reproach us for their
to wage a religious war, that is what they are doing on the contrary who do it to us; it is these foreigners, these hospita-
French politicians who are maneuvering and intrigue |
relentlessly trying to prevent us from believing in God that we please and to go to the Church which we con-comes. Have we ever had them?
Prevented from going to the synagogue?

D. — You are right: freedom of conscience remains the first of goods.

R. — That is probably why the Jews ©
They want to monopolize it like everything else. They want Complete freedom for them, however they want it.
all the money. How can anyone be surprised after that that in the entire universe, and throughout all periods of history, all peoples, whatever their religions and their races, have always considered the Jews as the scourge of humankind!

III

Antisemitism is a movement of protection-tion ee NS and DFE ae nationale. |

D. — If Anti-Semitism is not a war of religion, as you have demonstrated to me, is it not
Not at least a race war?

R. —— On Pa ditisouvent, et certains Antisémites

THE

They themselves have it. But on reflection, this

The true nature of the anti- struggle is not yet there.
Semitic, although all things considered the slow and treacherous

...Jewish infiltration, if we did not block its path,

inevitably, this will produce the same consequences sooner or later.
| consequences that mass exoduses and brutal in-_invasions of barbarians that signaled the end of the world
Roman and the first centuries of our era.

If I had to define Antisemitism from the point of view

In terms of the goal he is pursuing, I would readily say that he is a movement for the protection of the economy and the preservation of | national vation. . ;

To D. — I don't quite understand...
| . R. .— You'll understand. I say:
`10 LD` Antisemitism is a protection movement | kills |
Indeed, the Tails, who before the Revolution could not-worth owning buildings and had nothing but the

A product of wear and tear, the Jews possess today

More than a third, perhaps half, of the fortune of France...

D. — How many Jews are there in France?
R,— It is difficult to determine the population
ve in an absolutely accurate way, because the Jews they conceal as much as they can in order to be able to to fly more safely. It's even to allow them to hide better than, for the past fifteen years or so Once born, the census forms no longer bear
no mention relating to worship... |
Despite the lack of a definitive basis, we can estimate

» u
M

that the Jewish population in France is not super-greater than 100 or 150,000, maximum figure.

D. — And these 100,000 to 150,000 Jews would own more of a third of the wealth of France which COPIES almost of 40 million inhabitants?

R. — As I have the honor to tell you!
D. — That's terrifying!
R. — Frightening, indeed, and that's just one en-

A first step in the process, or, if you prefer, just an aperitif.

Some time before his death, Baron Hirsch, one of our richest Jewish billionaires after the Rothschild, he said to his son, showing him a group of eani komme: bearers of the most beautiful ' names of the French armorial:

— You see, my son, these dukes, these marquises and these counts who are so proud of their titles and their coat of arms; in fifty years, they will be reduced to it to marry our daughters or to ask us for a position concierges.

The Hebrew baron could have added that to all the classes of French society, the same miserable future-The rable was reserved. The victorious Jews would have encore consented perhaps, out of vanity, to take the nobles for sons-in-law or for dog-servants; but |
It is certain that, having become absolute masters, they would have-would have brought the mass of the population back to a condition tion worse than ancient serfdom.

If the anti-Semites hadn't risen up, France, in fifty years, it would have been nothing more than a nation of expropriated people and slaves... | |

D. — But it is a real national peril that you Report me! | B

R. — You see, and yet I'm only just arriving to the second part of my definition:

29 Anti-Semitism is a movement of preseroa:

national tion.

Follow me carefully, because here we touch
to the heart of the matter.

And, above all, fully grasp this essential idea-
such that Jews are not isolated individuals, and that the ties that bind them so closely are not only ties of blood, race and family. The Jews are a people...

D. — A scattered people?

R. — Scattered, yes, if you have their in mind
dispersion throughout the world; but if the Jewish people
: is scattered across vast territories, there is no
no less connected, coordinated, unified by a government through laws, through an entire priestly hierarchy endowed, political and administrative which make it the na-
the most highly centralized system in the universe.

D. — What are you telling me?

R. — Pure truth; a truth that has been well often observed and highlighted, like an averweaving, by clairvoyant minds.

Portalis, the great jurist, summarized for Thus, the entire Jewish question is contained in this sentence.
his illuminating relationship with Napoleon RER:

“Jews are not just a sect,

e | but ONE PEOPLE.

And Napoleon, for his part, said, in the middle of the Council
State: 7 | X Pp
© The evil that the Jews do does not come from the individus, BUT OF THE CONSTITUTION ITSELF
OF THIS PEOPLE.
In solemn circumstances, the Jews themselves-they themselves have no difficulty admitting this na-distinct nationality.

That's how it was a few years ago, Mr. Great.
Rabbi Dreyfus, transferred from Brussels to Paris, exclaimed
in his inaugural address: "Remember that you are Jews first and foremost...! » | * 4

The Jew Isaiah Levaillant, former Director of the General security was clearly haunted by the same thing.
thought when he was writing to another Jew, a cer. tain Schwob: I am convinced, like you, that we constitute the highest arislocracy of world”.
Finally, Dr. Herzl, who wants to give back to Jews a territorial homeland and who founded Zionism to bring them back to Palestine, — Dr. Herzl has written: | | | b.

“We are a people, we are a little bitple ONE...» |

However, if the Jews form a single people, although Scattered throughout, how do you expect the Jews of — France — to speak only of these — may,
To be both Jewish and French?

D. — That seems impossible to me; the Jews, in
The conditions must form a state within a state...

R. — Say that they form a nation in the na-

due tion; For, I repeat, the Jews form a nation

9^ distinct: a nation that has its government, its ", leaders, all the more dangerous because they are unknown;
a nation that has its laws, its morality which is the nega-tion of ours, and even to its courts which alone

must be aware of differences between Jews...
D. = You terrify me; and what's more

d. It's because the Jews scream like polecats when

| It seems as if they consider them as foreigners!
R.—I believe you; they will even tell you that they are three times French, without any of them, moreover-

THERE

-€-

their, never been able to explain what this is based on - triple part nationality.

— “That is the eternal misunderstanding of the question +

Jewish, said Renan, who was not, far from it, “an enemy of Israel. The Jew, ordinarily, wants to _ both common law and separate law.

Meditate on this profound statement from a skeptic that |

The power of truth, for once, has prevailed.
She means that the Jew, so eager to claim the civil rights that give him equality among the

| The people of Ouilcampe, nevertheless intend to continue >

= to exercise its own right among these same peoples, which ensures him a special and privileged position.
Look at the foreigners, when they come to our country,
the English, the Germans, the Italians, the Belgians,
Do they ask to be treated like citizens?
French toys? | | |
D.: — DUNS, obviously. TM

.R. — Have you ever seen in history that a .
nation, with its institutions, with all its functions-;

. legal and governmental information has been superimposed ©

somehow to another nation? Would you conceive-

You, Germany and France, living like this, in time
That's normal in such a strange situation.

D. — That would only be possible if France had conquered Germany and vice versa.
R. — Yet this is our condition compared to the Jews. The Jews did not conquered by force of arms, and yet they are our masters, to the point of being installed in our homes,

no, not, once again, in the state of individuals isolated; but in the form of organized communities and powerful, in the state of a functioning national nation-

lying in our nation.
Do you understand what such parasitism is, which was able to develop as much as he wanted for a century, is it threatening for the future of France?
D. — Yes, I understand; and how I love my country above all, I am very close to shouting with |

You: "Down with the Jews!"
R. — That's great!

ve

4 SECOND PART `

4 | D

4 Yas situation of the Jews on the eve of the Nu sie ` Revolution .

* \

Uc

E mæ You promised me you would "explain yourself" (cotament):

"the Jews, who were once nothing but usurers | =

"despised by all, by foreigners of a special nature-
- regulated by exceptional laws, are DR
EE little by little, "the masters of France."

R. — To fully keep my promise, I must
"tsudiit. First of all, to give you an explanation of the condi- .
The treatment of Jews under the old regime. This leads us to

. would be too far, too far, and I refer you to France in Jewish woman by Edouard Drümont.

When you have read the homework assignments titled: The 23rd

Jewish in T History of France, you will possess ád-

"miblemeat the question, . -and you will be in a state to —
- to refute the lies and absurdities that the Jews_

- spread in books and newspapers |

scribes in their employ. c T
' D. — Is it not true then that the p were |

“Horribly persecuted during the Middle Ages?”
Re — The truth is that the Jews were first of all.

~

We were very well received on French soil.
summer days the land of hospitality par excellence. =g

Do you want proof? | | "vi |

In the 11th century, in this poorly understood Middle Ages - that is presented to us today as an epo- .
that of barbarity and fanaticism, one could count in France had 800,000 Jews, a figure that has never been reached.
Since then, almost. Half of Paris belongs to:
born to the children of Israel, who were already almost as richer than their great-grands are today-nephews. It was therefore entirely up to the Jews to mark their.
a place in our country, to live happily and peacefully;

All they had to do was accept the laws of nation, to recognize the new - as their homeland ground on which they had moved their homes.

This is what emigrants do nowadays who will settle on distant, spiritless lands back again. That's what those Dutch peasants had done.
Landais and Frangais who give today a so heroic example to all nations of the universe in fighting, one against a thousand, for the independence of Transvaal. m

This is what they did from the earliest centuries of no- -
three stories the barbarian hordes who had invaded successively the soil of old Gaul. The Franks, the Visigoths, the Burgundians, and later the Nor-
The Mands merged with the Gallo-Roman element, and |
From this combination of diverse races emerged good-- a whole new nation, France, which was to be

-

~

His.
Po.

-

-2

after a few centuries, the most centralized, the unified oe of the globe.

The Jew alone remained resistant to all assimilation.

t “in. While yesterday's enemies, victors and To: DY's | |
_: {the vanquished reconciled, joined hands to

to forge the homeland, the Jew continued to remain apart.

To be a brother, that is to say, equal to others, a humi-
; bound; he wanted better than that: he aspired to the . domination. So, as he knew that he would not prevail-neither by the force of numbers nor by the ascendancy 'lu courage, he used the only weapon at his disposal

^ position and which suited his temperament: the Cunning. Hidden in his ghetto, he became a sequicot weigher.

and ducat clipper; including the future of Gold and the power it would wield in future centuries
In Turkey, he became a usurer.

The oppressed people groaned. The kings came-to the aid of their people by issuing edicts

against the Jews; but they, far from reforming,

They took their revenge by adding to it, then betrayal.

Eyes perpetually turned towards the East
due to racial attraction, they acted in France as In Spain, they negotiated with the Saracens and their delivered several cities in the South, including Bé-

Ziers, Narbonne and Toulouse.
It is through countless misdeeds of this nature that the Jews brought upon themselves punishments which they ap-

. call for persecutions, which we call,

legitimate executions...
- Towards the end of the eighteenth century, the Jews were ew

zB as mE d

an object of universal execration. Alsace, -which "they j|
had been three-quarters devoured by wear and tear. ea | particular horror was born. In Strasbourg, during For four hundred years, the Jews had been forced to
to leave the city each evening, to the sound of the horn, to go and get Gite et Mael in CERES from:
the enclosure. E
The Jews at that time paid the corporate toll- '
rel. At the entrance to the cities, it was collected on each
A Jew, one sol. A simple Jewish woman paid six denarii; a Large Jewish woman, nine pieces of silver. On the toll books, the
The word "Jew" was only mentioned after "beef" and "pig."
Signs were erected along the riverbanks.
and rivers, where Jews could read the defense |
which allowed them to bathe, except on reserved days veux to dancers and prostitutes. In some.
cities in Germany, well after the Revolution and there.
At barely fifty years old, one could still see at the entrance of the public promenade of inscriptions thus con-
cues: Jews and pigs are forbidden to enter here.
Today, we see similar signs.
on our main roads in France, but what are they?
Jews enriched by our millions who build them to forbid passersby from entering their forests. And parked for the unfortunate peasant who wouldn't be able to handle it account, who could resist the urge to tender a snare or poaching a pheasant! The new Lords do not take kindly to jokes about the law of hunting; they claim to exercise this right on their lands
the right of high and low justice and have them shot impi-

Y

HAS

_toyably all Jenica caught in the act by
- their guards...

D. — The newspapers have, in fact, reported certain
| monstrous facts; but the Jews will answer you
They have suffered many others in the past, ...
'keys of ignorance and fanaticism...

R.'— So don't take these tall tales for ar-

| gent compte, The truth, I repeat, is that

| Jews, in all eras as today,

| "ended up turning everyone against them epar
^ their banditry and their betrayals.

© Were they fanatics and clerical sectarians?
that the Bourgeois of Paris, in this eighteenth century

of philosophy and tolerance, which saw the publication
the works of Voltaire, of Jean-Jacques Rousseau, of Diderot, of d'Alembert, of Montesquieu, of |

Beaumarchais and so many other writers that the

Today's freethinkers claim as their great ancestors?

,D. — That's not likely!
R. — Well, I'll tell you what they were thinking:
Jews and their character, these Se of the Encyclopedia.

The Jews, who were already dreaming of seizing control of Parisian commerce, in 1767, wanted to take advantage of law of a decree of the Council according to which it was law-impossible for foreigners to enter the bodies of the m-

| third party, subject to obtaining a patent granted by the king, The six merchant guilds protested angrily gimentically, and, as Edouard Drumont wrote in

E!

Jewish France: The Request of the Merchants and Traders, Cians of Paris against the admission of Jews is at / definitely one of the most interesting documents ger.
exist on the Semitic question.

1

"The admission of this species of men into a society"
Politics, it was said, can only be very dangerous;
can compare them to wasps that do not enter the hives only to kill the bees, open their bellies and in to extract the honey that is in their entrails. Such are the Jews to whom it is impossible to attribute the qualities of a citizen which one must certainly find in all subjects of political societies.
"Of the kind of men we are talking about today, none
was not raised according to the principles of legitimate authority.
They even believe that all authority is an usurpation of
They only make wishes to achieve an Empire universal; they regard all possessions as belonging to themnant and the subjects of all states as their own. having removed their possessions.
"It often happens that in wanting to rise above the Prejudices lead us to abandon true principles. A certain Modern philosophy seeks to justify the treatment of Jews.
that they experienced from all the Sovereigns of Europe. We must either look at the Jews as guilty, or to appear to reproach the sovereigns, even their predecessors

of His Majesty, a cruelty worthy of the most ancient times | pars bars »

And this sentence again, which says so much in so little of words:

"Allowing only one Jew to trade in a city is..."
To allow everyone, AND TO OPPOSE EACH MERCHANT THE

#

STRENGTH. OF AN ENTIRE NATION, WHICH WOULD NOT FAIL TO /. SERVE TO OPPRESS THE TRADE OF EVERY HOUSE, ONE AFTER THE OTHER, AND CONSEQUENTLY THAT OF THE ENTIRE CITY...
They are particles of quicksilver that run and wander,
"and which at the slightest slope come together into a main block."

D. — This document is, indeed, quite remarkable,
And he explains many things, but the King and the Church
Weren't the Jews persecuting me?

KR. — I have already shown you that the alleged persecutions that left so much bitterness and rancor—

: one in the heart of the Jews was most of the time that measures of justice, not only legitim—_ times, but necessary. It was essential to protect the Five peoples against the insatiable greed of these usurers.

As for Louis XVI in particular, far from it.
to consider persecuting the Jews, this benign monarch
on the contrary, he lavished on them the mar—^. questions. of his 'benevolence.' He had already returned numerous edicts in their favor, and without a doubt,
He would have pushed kindness and recklessness to the point of granting these intruders the same rights as everyone else French, if the Revolution had left him the time. T | |

D. — And the priests?

R. — On this point, you can ask the

The Jews themselves: they will answer you, they have `same answer in advance. |

_When Napoleon I* convened the Grand in 1807

Sanhedrin, to try. — in vain, moreover — to bring the Jews back into order and legality.

L

—

The Israeli deputies began by paying homage to image to the liberalism of the Church and the spirit of tolerancerancidity which she had always shown to their
In this regard, on February 5th, at the suggestion of one of them,

Mr. Avigdor, they voted on the order for the following day:

"The deputies [of the French Empire and of the Kingdom of Ithaca at the Hebrew Synod decreed the
On May 30th, filled with gratitude for the well-successive facts that the Christian clergy have rendered in centuries passed to the Israelites of various states of Europe;

"Full of gratitude for the diverse online resources."
Popes and several ecclesiastics have done in different times to the Israelites of various countries, then.
that barbarity, prejudice, and ignorance combined presented and expelled the Jews from the midst of the so-companies,

"Stop: |. |

"That the expression of these feelings will be recorded in the minutes of today
so that it may remain forever, a testimony
authentic expression of gratitude from the Israelites this Assembly for the benefits that the ge-The generations that preceded them received from clergymen from various European countries.

D. — But then I no longer understand the recitations — Lions, Jewish newspapers against "fanaticism" and
V “clerical intolerance”? |

R. — This proves that: you do not

s

|

eub ez

The Jewish spirit, its power of dissimulation, of furberie and lies | |

II
The Jewish citizens.

D: — How the Jis became citizens

| French; ? |

| R. — By a decree of the Constituent Assembly,
dated September 27, 1791.
© D. — Under what circumstances and as a result of What incidents led to the passing of this decree?

—© R. — I will give you a brief overview.
We saw in the previous chapter that Louis XVI had always: displayed an extreme benevolence towards the Jews. As early as 1784, the King had issued an edict that abolished corporate tolls humiliating treatment to which the Jews were subjected.

In the same year, he signed Letters Patents favorable to the Jews of Alsace. Finally, Louis XVI had entrusted Malesherbes with the task of preparing the definitive emancipation of the Jews, and to put at to address this delicate issue with a commission of Council of State.

These repeated marks of royal protection do not were not enough for the children of Israel. The Jews wanted to appeal to public opinion.

In 1785, the CS Society of Sciences and pn

U "undi daw

from Metz, opened a competition with the aim of finding-dear. "The means of making the Jews more useful and..."
"Happier in France." | TOE

The institution of this competition, which was found to be garlic.
their means of extending for two years, me-would not be enough to hold attention, because it was the point of the start of a long series of Jewish intrigues. Bor-
We need only recall that nine memoirs were submitted.
sent and that three were deemed worthy of reward-
his: those of Mr. Grégoire, parish priest of Emberménil, near Lunéville; Lhiéry, lawyer at the Parliament of Nancy; and Zalkind-Houritz, a Polish Jew, resident
Paris,

D. — Father Grégoire, whom you cite as pre-
Is the first winner of the Metz competition the same as...? the famous Abbé Grégoire who would speak of him under the Revolution and under the Empire? ° —— o

R. — It is indeed from this 'apostate' that he
It is a question. We will see, moreover, that he was not alone.
apostate in the affair, and that the defrocked played a leading role in the emancipation of the Jews.

D. — How did the Constituent Assembly receive the Israel's claims?

R. — Rather coldly, at first. She refused.
even for a long time to include the Jewish question |
to his agenda, and the efforts of Abbé Grégoire, who had been elected deputy. of Lorraine, failed
First of all, completely.

Moreover, I would need to write an entire volume to summarize, even briefly, the legislative history |

\ :

of Jewish emancipation. It suffices for you to know that the proposal for emancipation introduced officially-

| lyment for the first time in December 1789, ne
It was voted on only on September 27, 1791.
= During this period of almost two years, the proposal.
was brought to the tribune 14 times, and 13 times it was re-pushed back and postponed.

In the sessions of December 21, 23 and 24
In 1789, four categories of incapacitated persons were presented together at the helm of the Assembly to demand the Civil rights: Protestants, Jews, actors and the executioner. The demands of three of the categories out of four were received favorably; the bour-Reau himself was rehabilitated; the Jews deh oureni to ^ Isn't that suggestive, and doesn't it seem that the |
i Constituents - had as a premonition and like the anticipated remorse for the crime they were about to commit commit acts against their homeland, by equating them with ci-French citizens, these cosmopolitans, these wanderers, these in-
:trus, this people of whom four thousand years have passed prou-
were sociability P | Ho

D. — These long hesitations are curious, in | effect; but what were, at the ORES ia
2 tea sellers of the Jews;
sa e The same qu waoni hdi We noted at.
Monitor the names of the Assembly members who . spoke or voted in favor of the Jews: all were part of Masonic Lodges | |

D. — Corruption cannot be such.
His role?

R. — Certainly, and venality gave him ps
the reply. , |
Mirabeau, along with Abbé Grégoire, was the great advocate cat of the Jews; he was not content with bringing them
With the powerful support of his words, he took up his pen.
| to demand their “political reform”. But you
You know the famous tribune by reputation. It has been said from him that "he did not give himself to any party, but negotiated
...with everyone, and that he loved only himself." You are not unaware Nor did Mirabeau sell himself to the Court for 600,000 francs and a pension of 50,000 francs per months. This is historically proven.
I should add that Mirabeau had another reason for defending the Jews is perhaps even more powerful than the need to have a lot of gold to cover his expenses
A life of debauchery. While pleading the cause of Israel,
He probably gave in to suggestions and cajoling.
d'unene Juive de Berlin, famous at that time parson - spirit and her beauty: Henriette de Lémos, married to Dr. Herz...
D — And Abbé Grégoire? j
R. — Abbé Grégoire did not disdain it, he did not Moreover, the "base metal." From the Revolution, he accepted bishopric; from Napoleon, the titles of count, senatorteür and Commander of the Legion of Honour, with a considerable endowment of money. Finally, Bertrand de Molleville claims in his History of the Revolution

the resolution that the apostate priest received a sum of 80,000 francs from the Society of Friends of Blacks,
as a token of appreciation for the share

`

3

that he had taken part in the emancipation of the blacks of Saint-Domingue. | |

It would be quite extraordinary, €— that the Jews should not have imitated the Negroes, and they should not have The sensitive Grégoire was thanked in the same way...

D — Can you now give me some examples?
Names of enemies of the Jews? — |
R. I'll give you two examples. First, Labbé

| Máuy;: the powerful improviser known as the “Mirabeau of the Right.” December 23, 1789, Abbot Maury spoke out against the emancipation project.

tion, these eloquent and prophetic words:

“I first observe that the word Jew is not the name of a sect, but of a nation that has laws, which has always followed them, and who still wants to follow them? Ap-
To strip Jews of their citizenship would be as if Pon © said that, without letters of naturalization and without ceasing to be English and Danish, the English and the Danes could become French citizens... The Jews have crossed seventeen SEHE: without mingling with the others

peoples. .

"They must not be persecuted; they are human-
My brothers, they are our brothers; and anathema to whoever
They would call it intolerance! 'No one can be worried' for his religious opinions; you recognized him, and
From then on you ensured the protection of the Jews

“more extensive. So that they are protected like 27%

dividus etnon oe French, since E ne peuvent
citizens...

In these—so eloquent lines, you will find—

-:væ a perfect summary of the Jewish question. Since a-| century, it hasn't changed 95 times. Like their ancestors.

-

The Revolution, contemporary anti-Semites do not
They don't want to oppress the Jews, but they don't want to nor do they want to be oppressed by them; they do not want not especially since Jewish culture oppresses the nation 3
French... |

Let's now talk about Rewbel, who, along with Schwends
and the other deputies from Alsace protested ardently,

in the name of his constituents, against emancipation- |

m of the Jews.
- Did Rewbel belong, like Abbot Maury,
"a" could of the Constituent Assembly?

R. - Not at all; Rewbel, a lawyer from Colmar, was a fierce Jacobin, finding himself in Mainz at the moment-
In connection with the trial of Louis XVI, he wrote to urge the condemnation, saying that he was surprised that Louis.
Capet vécát encore.

This is the future regicide, hardly suspicious according to Pep Sûr.
. of having been reactionary or clerical, who exclaimed, at
-. the session of December 24, 1789, in response to a dis. .
Count of Clermont-Tonnerre's course, favorable to Emancipation:

"The decree that will elevate the Jews to the rank of ci-toys will be, without a doubt, their death warrant Alsace, because the people there hate them so much, and because I fear them so much
May his fury be awakened upon them!

The same Rewbel, attacked by Camille Desmou-Lins, who criticized him for his hostility towards the Jews, se.
defended in these terms:

"Your humanity, after a few days of

--

eem E

-a stay (in Alsace) would certainly lead you to em-

: to devote all your talents to the class named-

. poor, hardworking and brave of my unfortunate compatriots, oppressed and squeezed in the most

"Atrocious, due to the cruel horde of these Africans crammed together"

in my country.

I ù $

D. - Apart from the Constituent Assembly, the Jews found-

Do they see defenders?

R. — As in our time, they had the art of

Two: to warm up public opinion and make it favorable.

Jews, in particular, took the lead in the movement: Cerfbeer, an immensely wealthy Jew from Strasbourg, former general manager of animal feed in the North, to which Louis XVI had granted the rights of a royal subject, and Berr-Isaac-Berr, originally from Nancy.

Corruption was, naturally, their principal weapon. cipal. The Duke de Broglie was outraged in full As-~~ assembled, at the session of January 18, 1791:

= "Among them," he said, "there is one in particular (Cerfbeer) who acquired an immense fortune at the expense of the State, which is spreading sum-

my considerable efforts to win defenders to his "cause" |

Cerfbeer found a valuable ally in a
A young Jacobin lawyer named Godard. An Israelite
Having converted, Father Lémann published in his book:
Jewish Preponderance: The Most Curious Details
on the maneuvers undertaken by this schemer to force the hand of the National Assembly. [I] success-

\

born

sit to terrorize her by having her taken in hand by the
The cause of the Jews is common.

You can see from this that the Dreyfusards have nothing ,invented when they imagined hiring anarchists insults to the army and disturb the peace in meetings and in the street.

D. — So the "Forty Sous" already existed,
A century ago? E

R. — Perfectly; when they saw that the rep-
the nation's representatives did not show enough em-

eagerness to vote on the emancipation decree that they
The Jews demanded violence, they interested the future September Massacres in their cause.
the prisoner killers, the "workers" of Maillard.

Graetz, a historian of the Jews and a Jew himself, has-vows with cynicism:

'Seeing,' he said, 'that it was impossible to obtain,'
by reason and common sense, what they called their rights, they resolved to force the National Assembly to approve their emancipation... They only knew that too much so that power was no longer in the hands of the Assembly, but in those of the various parties of the capital, which, in their revolutionary zeal, dominated-
They were all born, the king, the Assembly, the whole country! It was So it was to them that the fufu of Paris addressed themselves, Alsace and Lorraine."

D. — So, it would be a matter of threatening intervention of the Commune, which the Jews would have said especially their emancipation?

[
|
|

mm

ER EN Mis. out, and the most extraordinary thing is that among the meters of the municipality that showed

There was more zeal in pleading the cause of the Jews, there was a majority of defrocked priests...

| D.— That's possible!

-R. — That's the absolute truth. Let's take, for example
For example, the address of the Assembly of Representatives from there Commune to the National Assembly on the admission-registration of Jews in the civil registry. This document, which was presented to the National Assembly on February 25, 1790 by – a delegation led by Abbé Mulot, president of the Commune, and by the lawyer Godard, carries four signatures: those of Godard, of Abbé Bertolio, of Duveyrier, and Abbot Fauchet, the constituent bishop-tional of Calvados. With Abbot Mulot, it was so three priests out of five deputies who came to re-

On the emancipation of the Jews!

D. – That's extraordinary!

R. – What is even more so is . impudence: Jews of today who dare, after

This, to call their opponents clerical...

–

= rerla faute que une bande de défrocés et d'intrintrigues >

D. – Do you know what I'm thinking?

R.– Always say. | |

D. – I think Paris has changed its mind
on Jews since 1791, because the last elections
| Parisian women were, isn't it true, anti-“
Semites 27. | |

A. – Unquestionably; Paris is in the process of repairing

committed, a century ago, by abusing his great name. It was thanks to Paris that the Jews became- ci-citizens; it will perhaps be thanks to Paris that the French-

They will become free again!

III

'The Judaizers'

D.— Our discussions on the Jewish question have
I was very impressed, I won't hide it from you, and I
I wouldn't be far from saying the same as you, Antisé-Convinced. Only one objection still stops me...

R. — Ixquelle?

D. — The one that socialists do when they
they say:

“Why are you persecuting the Jews and the Jews alone? Why do you always attack Jews and never certain Catholics who are no better than
Are they Jews? Capital, however, is still Capital:
Whether he is Jewish or Catholic, he is always the same…»

R. — When they make this argument, the so-Specialists know very well that they are not telling the truth.
rity. On the contrary, it is they who are relentlessly ex-exclusively on the industrial sector, which is very rarely Jewish, and who never dare to attack the powerful fi-financier, to the big speculator who is one eight times out of ten.

We, on the contrary, make no difference- -
Relation between the Jew and the Judaizer... |

D. — What do you mean by Judaizing?

R. — By Judaizing, we mean the

Pa

—#— |
' \ business brewer — whatever his race or religion“gion — who behaves like the Jews, who commits
The same acts of banditry and the same depredations, that one finds lurking in the Stock Exchanges next to the Jew, weaving its spiderweb, and watching like him for its prey, who is the associate or emulator of the Jew in the unions, in trusts, in land grabs.

Would you like an example?
Let's take the major oil refiners who, thanks to:
to a criminal agreement, set the prices for their fan- -
They keep quiet and make us pay eleven cents for oil then * that the Belgians pay three or four cents for it. All these Refiners are not Jewish; there are Catholics among them.
- is one of the Protestants. All of them, however, are in our eyes equally guilty, and all will have the same accountability, when justice
The people will have replaced servile and venal justice.
. of today.
- I could say the same about sugar refiners...
"D: — It is no less true that you are attacking
What preference do you have for Jews?
- Rs — If we attack the Jews more often than
"For others, it's because we meet them."
, more often than others in dirty business where
Pon gropes and where one steals. | |
However, we cannot deny the obvious,
we cannot close our eyes so as not to See the light!
Is it our fault: if the Jews, who number 150,060 in
At most, they possess 80 to 100 mil-

L

liards, while the total wealth of France is] valued at 260 billion? Is it our fault if the Jews, these filthy beings, covered in rags and eaten away by |
Lice, which were prevalent a hundred years ago, are now commonplace.
in the most beautiful hotels in Paris and in the most famous historic castles? Is it our fault if the richest buildings, the largest forests, the
the most renowned vineyards, the most magnificent hunting grounds their magnificent properties belong to them, and if the same is true of the mines,

. land and water transport, and most industries and businesses both in Paris and in provinces and colonies?

So ask the socialists why, then that we have never hesitated to take party against large industrialists like the Lebaudy or the Rességuier family, who are not Jewish, they dare not
They would never dare attack Rothschild!

Mr. Jules Guesde is perhaps the only one who had.

This courage once existed, and today the Guesdists are the first to call the SO- — sellouts and police officers specialists in the style of Millerand and Jaurès.

Yet it is a significant piece of "capital" that Rothschild, a pretty “block” of solid gold! d

Do you know what the current figure is?
The Rothschilds' fortune? Ten billion!

We were not the first to give this staggering figure; it's the Signal, a pro- newspaper testing, as quick to flatter the Jews as to spread- dre dre de venomeux calumnies contre les Antisémis. |

And what do we see today?

— AT ==

We see the socialists screaming like a _ pack of ravenous dogs, around 500 million

There are 160,000 members of religious orders in France, but:
stopping and becoming mute, as if struck by a religious terror, before the billions possessed by the Rothschilds, that is to say by a single aa of German Jews.

We have seen these same so-called socialists, these false friends of the people, voting for the abominable law on the inheritance tax regime, under which small and modest inheritances will now be subject to a progressive tax, while the cent- 'tens of millions stolen from the Stock Exchange by the swindlers' savings will continue to pay only tax |

acim (1) | - 3 .

—

; (I) This unjust law on the tax reform of inheritances has was definitively voted on in the session of the Chamber on the 22nd 1901, thanks to the intervention of a Jewish and radical deputy, |

otz.

The amendment by Anthime Ménard, who demanded the extension with the major legacies of the principle of progressivity, had only been rejected during the first discussion at the faia majority of 6 votes. The Chamber, overcome with shame, was going to Maybe vote for it.

It was then that Mr. Klotz intervened to demand the disjunction.

"It is not possible," he said, in essence, "to vote."
the Ménard amendment in its current form. This would be a delay-Let's postpone the budget vote indefinitely. Let's vote on it as is.
inheritance reform. I then commit to resuming for my account Mr. Anthime's amendment and has the transform into a special bill...
You grasp the full ingenuity of this division:
With the Ménard amendment being part of the law on the inheritances which was itself incorporated into the budget, we

To understand this strange attitude of the politicians
The proponents of socialism, we need to know them.

Do you know who is sponsoring the two?

major daily socialist newspapers existing in Paris?

By Jews!

The Little Republic, where Mr. Jaurès pontificates, is subsidized by a Jew, the director of one of these credit sales houses that killed the little one and the medium-sized business.

As for the Lanterne, where Mr. Viviani succeeded as editor-in-chief to Mr. Millerand when he entered the ultra-bourgeois ministry of Waldeck Rousseau is even more powerful. The Lan-Lerne, which belonged to the Pereire family, who are Jews

we had a law that was immediately operational, according to the terms of which inheritances worth millions, hundred million, and billions would have been immediately subject to the progressive tax, at the same
A title that modest inheritances.

The Ménard amendment, definitively rejected, which we
Is there anything left?

We are left with Mr. Klotz's project, that is to say, a pipe dream.

"an illusion, a banal bill of any kind that the i

- The Senate will never steal, he who will go to sleep tomorrow
along with so many others in the archives of Luxembourg.

Thanks to this loophole, the millionaires of Upper-Banks will therefore be protected for a long time to come against the consequences of a new tax law that will affect...
rment, from today, work and savings.

Rothschild and Co. will continue to pay for their millions and for their billions the simple proportional tax of 2.50 0/0, while the farmer and the sharecropper, the small shopkeeper, the PUN rentiers will see their meager inheritances ruthlessly decimated by the tax authorities, armed against them alone with the new tax - progressive.

|

EET S |
“Portuguese, has since passed into the hands of the Rothschild, who are German Jews.
However, it is in this high-level banking document that the Viviani, the Rouanet, the Fournière and so many others
They preach class struggle every day, the war on bosses, the abolition of capital and the
